It is difficult to define the exact atmosphere of a new school year. Yet no one can mistake it. It almost seems as though the Summer holidays were the occasion of greater development than their other brethren. Apart from the fact that many of those at the head of things have left, their successors seem to have expanded to dimensions capable of filling their place. Jones mi., the last year's fag, has this year acquired almost a modicum of dignity, and next year will be calmly looking forward to the time when he may step into our shoes. Our time is short.

Very short indeed is the school life: and its end soon looms over us, unavoidable. Very well, let us forget it. There are more important things in life than death. For instance, we have to congratulate Mr. Bryant on his marriage, and wish him every happiness. That is one of the few sentiments expressed in these pages which we are confident will meet with universal approbation.

Again, we have to wish all success — and the omens have been good — to Wells and the Eleven under his captaincy. Here also the expression of such a wish is almost superfluous.

It is one of the Editor's greatest difficulties to avoid platitudes. In fact, the reader will observe that the present one cannot.

The Carthusian has now reached its 400th Number, so how can we expect to say anything that our fathers have not said before us upon such a chronic subject as a new school year?

The controversies of nearly a year ago seem to have cast a frost on Parnassus. At anyrate we have received no bouquet culled on that delightful mount. Either the muses have left Charterhouse for the front (where they appear to wax fat and mighty, if the publishers' catalogues are to be believed), or else they are lurking shyly in some odd corner. If that be the case, we cordially invite them to appear. By no means do we pledge ourselves to publish everything we may receive, but we should certainly be glad to print verses:

"ὁμι展演 μεν αὐτῶν οὐχὶ δεξιώτερον, κοιμοδίας δὲ φορτικῆς σοφότερον."*

An innovation is rightly regarded as a dangerous thing; but we call our readers' attention to an experiment which we hope may prove at least harmless.

* For the benefit of the Modern Side:

"Not too exalted for our tastes,
Still, not so low as vulgar comedy."
The Editor offers a small prize for each of the following subjects:

A.—The best original short English poem on something done during the Holidays.

B.—The best description of any sort in less than 500 words of Charterhouse in the year 2,000 A.D.

Here, again, we do not guarantee to publish the results unless they reach a certain standard of excellence; but we hope that they will. Entries should be posted in The Carthusian box not later than November 10th, and should be signed with a pseudonym. They should be accompanied, however, by a folded paper, containing the pseudonym and the real name and house of each competitor. We hope to publish the winning entries in the next number of The Carthusian.

Digging is again in full swing. A certain number last year used to attend voluntarily, and those who have once come under the spell of the spade are more intractable than any drug-fiend. Digging becomes their “modus vivendi”; they cannot escape it; they do not wish to struggle against it; it becomes an obsession, they indulge in larger and larger doses. Many of these devotees may be seen by looking at any allotment: their numbers are increasing every day. No one can doubt that it is an infection more rapid than potato disease itself, as penetrating as the onion-fly. If we were to follow up the metaphor, we ought to cry out against this bondage: but it is exact! Very that the likeness thoroughly breaks down. It is a craving to be encouraged! The more go down before it the better: and we hope that this quarter will see, for the good of our country and our souls, a marked increase in the numbers of these devotees, patients, proselytes—call them what you will, provided you join their number. We will not quarrel over a name.

There are many who have been doing agricultural work in the holidays, and to them mere digging will appear but child’s play. If they feel like that, then, they have no excuse not to dig as often as possible: indeed, if they do not go it will be a confession that they have not grown so accustomed to hard work as they pretend.

For valuable services rendered in connection with the War:

To be Brevet Colonel:

LIEUT.-COL. T. H. HAYDON (M.B.)

DATED 26TH JULY, 1917.

Awarded a Bar to M.C. gazetted 3rd June, 1916:

LIEUT. (TEMP. CAPT.) M. H. KING (M.C.)

He carried out a daring reconnaissance under very heavy fire, and brought back most valuable information. He set a fine example of courage and initiative.

AWARDED THE MILITARY CROSS:

TEMP. CAPT. S. A. PIKE

He led his company with marked courage and ability under heavy bombardment. Later, taking over entire command, he carried out a successful withdrawal, remaining himself to the last.

SEC. LIEUT. (TEMP. LIEUT. AND ACTING CAPT.) J. H. TILLITON

He led his company with great courage and ability and captured two machine guns with very few casualties.

PUBLISHED 3RD AUGUST, 1917.

"On the occasion of His Majesty's recent visit to His Army in the Field."

To be Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order:

LIEUT.-GEN. J. J. ASSER (C.B.)

DATED 16TH AUGUST, 1917.

Awarded the Distinguished Service Order:

CAPT. E. W. WALKER

He led his company forward and, assisted by an officer and a few men of another unit, captured an important point and held out against sharp counter-attacks until the remainder of the enemy position was won. He personally captured a machine-gun and a large number of prisoners.

LIEUT.-COL. A. E. WILLIAMS

He handled his battalion during an attack with skill and decision, showing great resourcefulness under difficult circumstances.

AWARDED A BAR TO M.C. GAZETTED 23RD JUNE, 1915:

CAPT. (TEMP. MAJOR) W. F. ARMSTRONG

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in collecting a relief party and digging out a number of men who had been buried in his battery dug-out by hostile shell-fire. He carried out this work successfully under heavy fire, during which he was badly wounded, but continued to encourage all by his coolness and splendid example.

Awarded the Military Cross:

Sec. Lieut. E. B. Behrens
During a heavy bombardment of his battery he showed the greatest courage and promptitude in extinguishing fires amongst camouflage and ammunition. He also brought under cover a sergeant who was badly wounded. His energy prevented the destruction of much ammunition and material.

Capt. G. S. Constable
When our advance was held up by the enemy’s fire he took an advanced position with a small party, and held out for the remainder of the day within a few yards of the enemy’s trench under heavy fire, and after being himself wounded. His initiative and gallantry were most marked.

Temp. Lieut. F. J. Mann
He showed great ability and courage in keeping his mortar in action under most difficult conditions. For four days he carried on, observing his fire from an exposed position, and completed his task with great success.

Temp. Capt. E. G. Pelly
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in charge of a motor transport convoy. It was largely due to his determination and fine example that the convoy, though seriously checked, succeeded in reaching its destination.

Sec. Lieut. J. C. Ritchie
He led his platoon in the most gallant manner and succeeded in repelling two determined enemy counter-attacks.

DATED 25th August, 1917.

Awarded a Bar to M.C. gazetted 20th October, 1916:

Temp. (acting Capt.) A. S. Dallas (M.C.)
Whilst his battery, less one section, was being heavily shelled he brought the other section into action at the gallop and got the horses away without accident, afterwards going to the observation post in the front line and doing valuable work in registering his battery.

Awarded the Military Cross:

Temp. Capt. B. W. Ridley
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in carrying out daring reconnaissances during an attack. He obtained and sent back valuable information at a time when communication was exceedingly difficult, and he showed exceptional coolness and initiative under fire.

Sec. Lieut. (acting Capt.) K. J. Snowden
After the capture of a position he quickly established a good observation post and fought his battery with great skill and judgment, sending back valuable information to his Brigade Commander and responding to all calls made upon him.

(Mesopotamia Operations.)

To be Companion of the Order of the Indian Empire:

Temp. Hon. Lieut.-Col. S. G. A. M. Moens

To be Brevet Major:

Capt. R. H. Farren

Awarded the Distinguished Service Order:

Major (temp. Lieut.-Col.) R. W. Hewitt
Major and Brevet Lieut.-Col. A. W. H. M. Moens

Awarded the Military Cross:

Capt. R. Dane, Lieut. (acting Capt.) H. A. Wellesley

DATED 17th September, 1917.

Awarded the Distinguished Service Order:

Major (acting Lieut.-Col.) R. S. I. Friend

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in personally supervising the consolidation of a captured position and pushing out important advanced posts. Although frequently under heavy shell fire he kept his men in splendid spirits by his personal example and energy.

Major (acting Lieut.-Col.) H. R. Goodman

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in commanding his battalion. The spirit and drive of his battalion during an attack and the splendid way in which they captured their own objective and then went to the assistance of another battalion that was temporarily in difficulties, are to be entirely attributed to the personal influence and initiative of this officer. By excellent training he has improved the fighting efficiency of his battalion beyond all recognition, and prior to the attack his patrols penetrated the enemy’s lines on several occasions, inflicting heavy casualties and gaining much valuable information.

Capt. H. F. E. Smith
During an enemy attack upon our trenches he found himself blocked in a tunnel with twenty men. ‘The only entrance that was not blown up was bombed by the enemy. With great coolness and control, however, he kept his men together, and at nightfall brought them through trenches held by the enemy and across a river. The escape of his party was entirely due to his initiative and resource.

Major (temp. Lieut.-Col.) N. D. K. MacEwen. (For distinguished service in Mesopotamia.)

Awarded the Military Cross:

Temp. Sec. Lieut. (temp. Capt.) D. E. Liddell

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in carrying out a most valuable reconnaissance at great personal risk and entirely on his own initiative. The reliable information which he secured could not be obtained from air photographs, and was largely responsible for the effective nature of our bombardment.
DATED 26th September, 1917.
Awarded a Bar to D.S.O. gazetted (in both cases) 3rd June, 1916:—

THE LATE SEC. LIEUT. WALTER LOUIS BEHRENS, ROYAL FIELD ARTILLERY.

Sec. Lieut. Walter Louis Behrens, who was killed on July 10th, was the twin son of Mr. Walter Behrens, of 18 Rue Washington, Paris, and of the late Evelyn Behrens, daughter of Mr. S. H. Beddington, of 21 Hyde Park Square, London. He was born in Paris in 1897, and after he left Charterhouse continued his education in Switzerland. With his twin brother he came over to England at the age of 17 to join the Army, and after training in the Inns of Court O.T.C. he was gazetted to the R.F.A. on September 15th, 1915. He proceeded to the front in December, 1915, and remained there continuously until his death. His colonel writes:—“It is very hard to tell you what a terrible loss he is to the brigade, where he was universally liked. He absolutely knew no fear, and with it all he always kept a cool head in trying circumstances. I had a great admiration for him, and the men of his section adored him and feel his loss greatly.” He was recently commended in divisional despatches.

Brigadier-General Thompson writes:—“Please accept my sincere sympathy for the loss of your gallant son who was killed in action a few days ago. It is most sad that such a most promising career should have been ended so early. He was a most valuable young officer, and had earned the highest praise from all officers under whom he served. On one of the last occasions when I met him, I commended him very highly for the good work he had done while in charge of a detached section in a heavily shelled locality. It may be some comfort to you to know how well your boy was doing, and how much his loss is felt by his many friends in this Divisional artillery.”

THE LATE IVAN STUART CAMPBELL.

The funeral of Mr. Ivan Stuart Campbell, who died last June of septic poisoning in Jassy, while employed in the Queen of Rumania’s Hospital as an anaesthetist, was made the occasion for an impressive demonstration of the affection and respect shown by the Rumanian people for the British nation. Mr. Stuart Campbell was the younger son of the late Mr. James Campbell, of Craignish. Educated at Charterhouse and Exeter, Oxford, he rowed in the Trial Eights in 1906, and became a member of Leander. He returned from America, where he had been very successful as an actor, in 1914, and, being found medically unfit for military service, joined Lady Paget’s Hospital Unit which did valuable work in Serbia from 1914. He remained in Uskub throughout the Bulgarian and German occupation until removed to Sofia by the Bulgarians, and was eventually sent back to England in 1916. Leaving England again in October, 1916, Mr. Campbell joined Queen Elizabeth’s Hospital in Bucharest, which left during the retreat and was re-established in Jassy.
The Queen placed the Order of the Rumanian Crown upon his coffin in recognition of his services; and in the name of the Rumanian Government Mr. Jean Duca, Minister of Education, delivered an eulogy on Stuart Campbell and his country.

THE LATE LIEUT. GEORGE GUY BARRY DOWNING, ROYAL FLYING CORPS.

Lieut. George Guy Barry Downing, Royal Flying Corps, accidentally killed in Scotland on Sept. 4th, aged 23, was the third son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Downing, of Llanishen. After leaving Charterhouse he studied art at the Slade School, London. In August, 1914, he joined the Old Public School Boys' Training Camp at Tidworth Pennings, was recommended for a commission, and posted to the Welsh Regiment. He applied for removal to the Royal Flying Corps, but accompanied his regiment to France and was wounded on Sept. 25th, 1915, at the Battle of Loos. He was subsequently transferred to the Royal Flying Corps, and after the usual training was in July, 1916, sent to the front, where, on Sept. 2nd, while flying over the German lines, his machine was seriously damaged by German anti-aircraft gun fire and he was wounded. In these circumstances, attacked by two German machines, he succeeded in driving them off and in landing within the French lines. He was sent home, and when recovering from his wound had a severe attack of diphtheria. Certified fit for light duty in March last he subsequently acted as instructor at aerodromes in this country. He was recently under orders for the front, but these were countermanded, and he was ordered to return to Scotland as an officer of a training school, where he had been only a few days when the accident happened. He had considerable talent as an artist; a number of his drawings have been reproduced in the illustrated magazine Colours; and he had every prospect of a successful career.

THE LATE Sec. Lieut. BRIAN JOHN DUNLOP, GRENADE GUARDS.

Second Lieut. Brian John Dunlop, Grenadier Guards, who was killed on July 31st, was 19 years of age, and the elder twin son of the late Herbert William and Mrs. Dunlop, of Maisonneute, Earley, Berks. He received his commission in September, 1916. His commanding officer writes: "Brian was killed instantaneously at the head of his platoon just before they captured their objective. He was beloved of his comrades and all ranks. I can ill afford to lose such a splendid soldier and leader." The chaplain says: "He was, as usual, leading his men forward and was showing the greatest gallantry. . . . He was absolutely fearless and blameless. There are few boys who have been better loved by their battalion, both officers and men."

THE LATE BRIGADIER-GENERAL MALCOLM PEAKE, C.M.G., ROYAL ARTILLERY.

Brigadier-General Malcolm Peake, C.M.G., Royal Artillery, who was killed, together with his Brigade Major, by a shell on August 27th, was the youngest son of Mr. Frederic Peake, of Burrough-on-the-Hill, Leicestershire, and was born in March, 1865. He was educated at Charterhouse and the Royal Military Academy, from which he passed into the Royal Artillery at the end of 1884. For 10 years, from 1895 to 1905, he was attached to the Egyptian Army and served with the expedition to Dongola in 1896, being mentioned in dispatches and receiving the 4th Class Medjidieh and the Egyptian medal with two clasps. In the Nile Expedition of the following year he was in command of a battery of Egyptian Artillery, and was again mentioned in despatches, and added a clasp to his medal. In the expedition of 1898 he took part in two important cavalry reconnaissances and commanded a battery of native artillery at the battles of Atbara and Khartum. A third time he was mentioned in despatches, received the brevet of major and gained two further clasps. In the operations in 1899 he commanded the artillery and received the 4th Class of the Osmanieh and a sixth clasp to the medal. From 1914 to 1916 he held the appointment of A.A.-G. at the War Office, and subsequently did sterling work as Brigadier near Ypres. He was made a C.M.G. in 1900, and was also an Officer of the Legion of Honour.

THE LATE MAJOR J. W. RICHARDSON, YORK AND LANCASTER REGT.

Major Richardson was educated at Charterhouse and Trinity College, Cambridge; and afterwards qualified as a solicitor. On the declaration of war he applied for a commission, was made captain four months later, and gazetted major in July, 1916. He was killed in the attack on Bullecourt on May 3rd, 1917, whilst in command of his battalion, the colonel having been wounded very early in the day. His colonel wrote:
"You have the comfort of knowing that your sorrow and loss is in a lesser degree shared by all who knew him. His popularity was unbounded and his bravery proverbial. For several weeks before his death he was my second in command, and in all the preparations for the battle in which he was killed he displayed the most untiring energy and was the greatest help to me. He was, too, a charming companion, always cheery and quick to see the humorous side of things."

The Battalion Chaplain in a letter to the press describing the fight, said:—"A certain amount of confusion now arose, most of the officers being killed or wounded. Major Richardson made a glorious dash forward, rallying his men by his wonderful courage and leading them magnificently, when a bullet struck him in the forehead, death supervening shortly afterwards." In a private letter the Chaplain said:—"It is a very bitter blow to us all, but it was a glorious end to a life which had an immense influence for good on all who came in contact with him. He was a splendid type of Britisher, a thorough Christian who was never ashamed to witness for his Master, a gallant soldier, and, above all, a perfect friend. His old company, 'C,' will always remember him for his wonderful personality, and the whole battalion mourns his loss deeply and sincerely. Personally, I shall miss him awfully, for he was ever ready to help and guide me in my spiritual work. He made his Communion just before the battle, and told me he was ready to live or die for the cause he so faithfully served." A brother officer next in command wrote:—"It seems useless for me to try and express how frightfully sad I am about it. As you know, Jack was absolutely the life and soul of the regiment. No one could have been beloved by officers and men more than he was, and after he fell every man left in the battalion volunteered to go out and look for his body. Five stretcher parties went out, but could not get to the place owing to violent shell, rifle, and machine-gun fire. I hope you will excuse this poor sort of letter, and accept my deepest sympathy; and believe me that every officer, N.C.O., and man, would have done anything to please him. His was the spirit that keeps one going out here. Full of fun and jokes, yet withal deeply religious."

THE LATE LIEUT. AND ADJT. HENRY LAURENCE SLINGSB y, M.C., KING'S OWN YORKSHIRE LIGHT INFANTRY.

Lieut. and Adjt. Henry Laurence Slingsby, M.C., King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, attached Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, who died of wounds on August 11th, aged 24, was the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cecil Slingsby, of Beetham House, Milnthorpe, Westmoreland. He received a commission in the Special Reserve in February, 1913, went to the front early in August, 1914, and was through all the first six months of the fighting, receiving his Regular commission in October, 1914, and being mentioned in one of Lord French's early despatches. He was badly wounded in the following February, and was promoted lieutenant about the same time. His captain wrote:—"He was my right-hand in the company. . . . I cannot speak too highly of your boy's work. . . . His experience in the war was invaluable to us all, and I had to rely on him to a great extent. Besides doing his duty steadily and regularly at all times, he was always active and resourceful in devising means of worrying the enemy, and kept the men up to the mark by his bearing and example under fire and gained their admiration and respect. . . . On many occasions he has displayed great gallantry. . . . He took good care of his men and was very popular with them." In May, 1916, Lieutenant Slingsby was appointed adjutant to a Service battalion of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry. He was lately awarded the Military Cross.

DEO DANTE DEDI.

Nearly 500 Carthusians have already fallen in the war; and it is generally felt that the time has come for Charterhouse to set on foot its War Memorial. All Carthusians will desire, we feel sure, not only to provide help for the families of those who have fallen, but to commemorate their names and services in some visible form at Charterhouse; and they will ask that this visible memorial shall be something notable and as far as possible worthy of the unique circumstances and sacrifices which it is to recall. We are therefore asking you to co-operate in raising a fund to meet the greatest need of Charterhouse to-day by building a new Chapel, which may commemorate the Carthusians who have fallen or shared in the sacrifices and labours of the Great War, as the Chapel Cloister commemorates those who fought and fell in South Africa: and further, if a sufficient sum can be raised, to supplement the War Scholarships founded by the Governing Body,* and thereby enable the sons of such Carthusians to enjoy the advantage of an education at Charterhouse.

The visible Memorial in the form of a new Chapel needs no recommendation for those who have watched the growth of the School. The old School Chapel, very dear to nine out of ten of us as the place where we worshipped side by side with our schoolfellows, and indeed with those who have fallen, has long been inadequate for the needs of the much larger Charterhouse of to-day. Designed originally for some 300 boys, it had to be enlarged even while in building-and since that time the School has further increased in size to such an extent as wholly to outgrow the accommodation of its Chapel. The need for a new building is undeniable: and it gives the opportunity for a visible memorial such as nothing else could equally provide. Every care will be taken to preserve the Cloister and as far as possible all Carthusian memorials.

The second object is in effect a fund for the relief of widows and orphans. There can be no better method of helping the widow than by securing for her the means to educate her sons.

With two such objects for our War Memorial we confidently appeal to all Carthusians to raise a sum of not less than £60,000; and judging by the sums which are known to have been raised by other schools, at least that sum ought to be forthcoming. There are over 5000 living Carthusians. We trust that the name of no single Carthusian will be absent from the list of subscribers. The scheme has the cordial and wholehearted support of the Headmaster, who has promised a contribution of £1000.

We invite and shall heartily welcome subscriptions not merely from those who have been educated at the School, but from all who in any shape or degree are connected with it, especially from the Parents, Relations, Friends of past and present Carthusians, believing that there are very many to whom it will be no small pleasure to take a share in making this a Memorial worthy of the great example which it sets before the eyes of all Carthusians for ever.

There will be a General Meeting of all interested in this scheme at Old Charterhouse upon the first suitable day, to receive a report of progress of the scheme, and to elect a representative Committee. A notice of the day and hour will be given in “The Times” and other papers.

Note.—Those who desire to spread their subscriptions over a term of 3 to 5 years can of course do so.

All subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer,

James William Sharpe.

All Carthusians who were his pupils in mathematics, and all his colleagues will hear with deep regret of the sudden death of James William Sharpe upon August 17th, at Bournemouth. He was 10th Wrangler, a Fellow of Caius College, Cambridge, and a Master here from 1877 to 1891, when he relinquished his post in consequence of failing health. The following extract is from a Bournemouth paper:—

"He was a man of exceptionally powerful intellect, finding interest in all matters regarding science, natural history, Psychical Research; in which matters
he had a likeminded friend in Dr. A. R. Wallace.
Nothing human or superhuman seemed outside the range of his sympathies; a perfect ' gentleman,' on whom one could always depend; who had a firm abhorrence of everything in the shape of injustice, cruelty, and suchlike. What an unaffected, open-handed hospitality was always used at Woodroffe by the genial host and hostess! To her goes forth the deepest sympathy in this her changed estate."
Agricultural Camp.

On August 20th, a contingent of Carthusians went into camp for farm work. This camp, which was admirably organised by Mr. E. M. Jameson and Mr. F. J. Chignell, was held on the Manor of Tangley, in Oxfordshire, and about twenty-two miles out from that city. The weather was hardly kind at first, and the period was consequently extended to September 12th; but it entirely made up for its early misbehaviour by exemplary conduct during the last week. As a farmer candidly remarked, for the first few days it was difficult to find employment for his gang; but once the weather was fine enough for harvesting our work was of the greatest value. It was wisely decided that military discipline should be avoided as much as possible, but a few necessary rules had to be formed, and, to the credit of Charterhouse, they were well kept.

Our tasks were many and varied, which gave no pretext for complaint to those who had feared boredom: ranging, indeed, from cleansing Augean yards without hydraulic aid to standing on haystacks while remorseless elevators delivered hay at about twice the pace it could be dealt with: or again, perched precariously on the edge of a rick, we would be bombarded with whirling sheaves, all of which had to be caught and passed on in the right direction and the right way round, and which gave one a better idea of the mechanism of the solar system than any orrery invented. Some were even initiated into the actual mysteries of rick-building, and great is the labourer’s pride when for the first time a sheaf is allowed to remain where he laid it.

The first and foremost impression that this experience left on our minds was a wholesome respect for the farm labourer, and above all for the farmer himself—a class which it is apparently fashionable to malign as a profiteer. He requires more skill and patience, more industry, and, indeed, more control over others than many of us had ever imagined. He works with the men and as hard as the men, and never did we hear of any complaints against him behind his back. The men themselves were some of the most agreeable companions we had met. The sense of humour was much more highly developed than is usually imagined: and though we found them at first almost unintelligible, we must remember that there are two sides to every question; that whereas such order as “shut out the fella’” (unharness the rear horse) caused us some difficulty, they in their turn were much mystified by our “extraordinary accent.”

If our food had been poor, our tents leaky, our fellow-workers disagreeable, and the weather abominable, it would still have been worth while for the sake of the nation: but as we were admirably fed and sheltered, the farmers were kindness itself, and we all arrived home like the second half of advertisements for patent medicines, our thanks are due in no small measure to the Masters who bore the burden of the organisation.

Mr. Jameson describes the negotiations preceding the camp in his report as follows:

"On Wednesday, August 1st, at the request of Mr. Charles, of the Central Harvest Committee of the National Service Department, I attended a Meeting of the Local War Agricultural Committee at Chipping Norton with a view to ascertaining if they were desirous of having a camp of about fifty boys in the neighbourhood. After some conversation I came to the conclusion that the Committee had not previously given much consideration to the question. . . . . It seemed to me that the Committee, having little to risk in the matter, would indeed be glad to have such a camp in their neighbourhood, but would give no definite guarantee of regular employment.

I was therefore inclined to advise that the camp should not be arranged there, when Mr. F. W. P. Matthews, of Fifield, said he was sure he could guarantee me all I wanted. . . . . He telegraphed next day, offering a favourable site for the camp and guarantees for at least thirty boys. . . . . It should be recorded that it was entirely due to Mr. Matthews’ energy and organizing ability that all the arrangements agreed upon held good, and that there was no disappointment whatever."

Since we returned Mr. Jameson has received a large number of letters, via Mr. Matthews, giving the farmers’ candid opinion on our work. The following are two of them:

"Dear Sir,—In answer to your card re the Charterhouse boys, I beg to say I found them most satisfactory. They were thoroughly industrious and conscientious, and should the labour difficulty continue I should be more than pleased to see them again."

"Dear Sir,—Referring to your letter of this morning about Charterhouse boys. I found them most useful when the weather was fine, and I am sure they did their best to help. But the first fortnight they were with us the weather was almost unbearable, and I should like the boys to know how grateful I feel towards them for sacrificing their holidays to come and camp under canvas in such awful weather and be so cheerful at no interest to themselves, and to do their level best to help gather the crops. I am sure my harvest would have been made very short work of provided we had had three weeks' nice weather. If there is such a thing as their coming next year I should be pleased to have the same half-a-dozen I had this time, and I am sure they would like to come again if they are not serving their country otherwise. The Charterhouse boys can take it from me that they showed great self-sacrifice in doing their bit."

It was not the boys alone who received the praise. One letter says: "They have all taken a real interest in their work, Masters as well"; while another describes Mr. Jameson and Mr. Chignell as "two topping fellows for work."

All these opinions are of more than temporary value: for we must remember that the impression left by such camps as ours will undoubtedly influence the "After-the-War" Social Revolution. We have had a chance of proving to the workmen of the country our right to the advantages we enjoy: it is gratifying to think that we have taken it.

A Plea.

There is a legend, or there should be one, that when Adam and Eve left hurriedly the Garden of Eden the Devil lent them a motor-car. There are many such even now whirled along in clouds of their own conceits, to whom every mile on the speedometer is indeed a debarring angel with a flaming sword; but man is a biped, not a cyeloped, and those who use their two feet may still walk with God in the garden, and still see England slowly.

The schoolboy age is an age to which the romance of machinery especially appeals: he lives by mechanical rôte, and naturally he prefers the power granted by the control of a motor-cycle to his position at School, where he is a mere bolt or screw in the machine. But by indulging this he is going the wrong way for complete recreation: he wants not only a holiday from being a machine, or part of a machine, but he wants a holiday from the whole idea, the whole atmosphere of machinery itself. Recreation works by contrasts, like treatments for dyspepsia: and he who would have a real holiday from school-life should see the opposite.

Few boys care for beauty except as a vague abstraction: but let them go a-walking on one of those wet washing-days of Nature, when all her finery is glistening freshly tricked out on every hedge-row; when the moist loam smells of nothing at all this side of paradise, and see if it does not drive the machines from their brains and set the sap rising hummingly there instead: and yet, when they go back to their screw-ship, they will find that they fulfil their duties in the machine more effectually, more purringly, and with less friction than any joy-ride could make them do.

Not that I am an exponent of aesthetic vagabondage, or of that kind of sentimentalism which weeps hysterically over a faded flower or a dead bird. Far from it. Walking, nature-love, beauty itself should never be the objects of a man's life, or they will surely warp his sympathies from the use of his fellow men; but as a recreation they are excellent for making fit both body and mind. Walk briskly, with a companion if you like—it is little odds, as one talks seldom when walking—don't walk too far or hurry: but when you get the chance walk, walk, walk, and see if you do not feel the better for it.

Old Carthusian Notes.

The silver cross and candlesticks in memory of Rev. H. V. le Bas, Rev. W. J. Romanis and Rev. J. A. Arman Tait, which have been placed in the chapel of Charterhouse, E.C., were designed and made by Mr. J. W. Marshall, and we have to thank this good Carthusian for a piece of work worthy both of the craftsman himself, and of the old friends and colleagues whose memory it preserves, and of the old chapel in which all three had lovingly served.

J. Graham has passed first out of Keyham Royal Naval College, winning two first prizes and one second.

The following passed the examination for admission to the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich: W. M. Blagden, F. L. Gauntlett, J. W. T. Woolridge.

Titherington.—The death is announced at the age of 51, after an operation, of the Rev. Arthur Flitt Titherington, rector of Bramshott, Hampshire, and rural dean of Petersfield. Mr. Titherington, who was educated at Charterhouse, Magdalen College School and Queen’s College, Oxford, was a well-known oarsman in his time, and he stroked his University against Cambridge in 1887, the year the late D. H. McLean, “No. 7” in the Oxford boat, broke his oar off at the button after passing Barnes Bridge. From 1889 to 1895 Mr. Titherington was assistant master at Radley College, and headmaster of Brighton College until 1906. He was ordained in 1890 and became rector of Bramshott in 1906.

Charterhouse v. Wellington.

Played July 21st. After a closely contested game Charterhouse beat Wellington by three wickets. There had been heavy rain in the night and Vintcent sent the visitors in to bat. The wicket would have become better during the day had not a terrific storm burst over the ground during lunch. Wellington batting was steady, and so was the bowling of Wooldridge and Rücker, and five wickets fell for 32 runs. But P. Dollar and Cameron made a last wicket stand, Dollar hitting 41 in great style. Charterhouse started batting at 4.20 with 138 runs to knock off. Three wickets down for 13. Then Beeching, who had contributed so much towards the victories over Harrow and Westminster, joined Thomas. They both played wonderful innings, and Beeching’s 74 not out won the match. The Wellington bowlers failed to take the advantage of the wicket, which was never in favour of the batsmen. The fielding on both sides was excellent, and both wicket-keepers were good. Played July 26th. Charterhouse batted first. After some good batting by everyone, Vintcent declared the innings closed for 235, of which Beeching contributed a well hit 63 and Vintcent 47 not out. Charterhouse had two hours to bowl out the visitors, but owing to Lieut. Carsten’s wonderful innings of 41 the South Africans managed to avert a defeat. With seven wickets down for 97 the match ended in a draw in favour of Charterhouse. Score and analysis:

CHARTERHOUSE V. RIFLE BRIGADE.

Played July 28th. The last match of the season was perhaps the best of the year. The Rifle Brigade batted first, and four of their wickets fell for 4 runs. This was too good to last, for then T. O. Jameson came in and with Gurdon put up 85 runs in grand style, and the innings closed for 194. Wooldridge and Rucker bowled magnificently, and Lavenstein mixed his deliveries well. The fielding, especially on the offside, was excellent. Charterhouse went in to bat on an easy wicket, but five wickets fell for 79. Then Lavenstein and Williams knocked off the runs, just winning the match for Charterhouse. This was the most exciting match of the season, and was an excellent finish to one of the best seasons of Charterhouse cricket.

H. N. Vintcent, an excellent wicket-keeper. Although his batting was not to be compared with his wicket-keeping, he often made useful scores. One of the best captains the School has ever had, and as captain at Lords he won the match for "The Rest."

J. W. T. Woolbridge, a fast, medium bowler, well above the average. Against Winchester he was at times quite unhappy, combining as he did excellent length with a decided break and a swerve to the leg. He was a sound bat, who rose to the occasion more than once.

H. M. Sykes, a sound bat, with some good strokes on the off. Was better at the start of the season. A safe catch and an extra-cover who never let anything go past him.

T. H. P. Breeching, a really brilliant bat, who hit with tremendous power, and who had a great variety of styles. He undoubtedly won the match v. Harrow, Westminster and Wellington, by playing splendid innings at critical times.

P. W. Rucker, a very steady, an at times brilliant, left-hand medium-slow bowler. He had a beautifully easy action, which prevented him tiring. An unorthodox and hard-hitting bat, who often made useful scores.

F. B. A. Thomas was quite the cleanest hitter in the side, and improved during the whole season. He came to the rescue on more than one occasion when things were going badly. Was a very good catch in the long-field.

R. B. B. Cooke was a bat with plenty of strokes, but, except on one occasion, did not do himself justice. A very good field.

H. R. H. Williams, a useful bat, who hit very hard, but who seemed to be afraid of letting himself go in matches. A magnificent mid-off, who seldom missed a possible catch.

E. L. Lavenstein, as a bowler who varied his pace well, he never did himself justice, but as a bat he played some useful innings, especially in the match against the Rile Brigade. A really brilliant out-field, who seldom missed a possible catch.

H. Hollins, a disappointing player, who, except for one century, never showed his true form. A fair slip, and a useful change bowler.

P. G. Bower, a bowler who should have been discovered earlier in the season. He had great command over the ball, and could suit his bowling to any wicket. A good field. Poor bat.

FINAL HOUSE MATCH.

GIRDLESTONEITES v. VERITES.

This match, which began on July 16th, resulted in a somewhat easy victory for Girdlestoneites, although on paper the teams were equally matched. Verites won the toss and put themselves in on a rather uncertain wicket. Quayle and Daldy opened the innings, but both wickets fell within a few minutes. Hardicker then came in and played an excellent innings of 66, after being missed once in the early stages. Bower, who put on a useful 29, was the only Verite who could withstand the bowling. The Girdlestoneite fielding was good, and de Beer brought off two very fine catches. Burberry bowled well, taking six wickets for 49. Girdlestoneites then went in and totalled 263. Cooke and Wilson Taylor going in first put on 38 before Wilson Taylor was out to a catch from Williams. Cooke played a very good innings of 83, although his scoring was rather slow. Towards the tail of the team Burberry and Rucker livened matters up considerably, putting on about 50 together in forty minutes. For Verites, Bower bowled with wonderful steadiness, taking eight wickets for 90 runs. Verites were faced with 115 to get to avoid an innings defeat. Hardicker succumbed to Rucker, being caught and bowled off a very hard drive. Then Dady and Williams made a stand, and things looked more hopeful for Verites until Williams was out to an exceptionally fine catch by Cooke in the deep. After Williams was out the rest of the team could offer little resistance and the innings closed for 103, Girdlestoneites winning by an innings and 10 runs. Score and analysis:

CHARTERHOUSE V. DENNIS ATHLETIC F.C.

This, the opening match of the season, was played on September 29th, and after a very poor game, resulted in a win for the School by ten goals to nil. Charterhouse lost the toss and the visitors decided to defend the Godalming end first. After the kick-off the ball was almost continually in our opponents' half, the Charterhouse backs being scarcely called upon at all. The School forwards combined well, but were weak in front of goal. Williams opened the scoring, and 3 more goals were scored before half-time was called. In the second half both sides seemed to tire considerably, and the School added 6 more goals before time was up. For the visitors, the right back played well, especially Thorne Thome at outside. Team:--

CHARTERHOUSE.—J. M. Wells (capt.) (goal); D. J. T. Peacock, R. C. Gregory (backs); P. W. Rucker, B. C. A. Patchitt, C. J. Wesley Smith (half-backs); T. H. P. Beeching, R. H. Whalley, H. R. H. Williams, E. L. Lavenstein, R. J. Thorne Thorne (forwards).

CHARTERHOUSE V. R.G.A. ALDERSHOT.

This match was played on Saturday, October 6th. Wells won the toss for Charterhouse, and elected to defend the Chapel end of Big Ground. During the first ten minutes it looked as though the visitors would prove more than our equals, but the School forwards quickly settled down, and the excellent combination of Williams and Lavenstein soon secured us a goal. The opposing forwards made one or two determined rushes, but were unable to break through our defence. The School halves and forwards got together very well, and another goal was soon added to our score. Before half-time was called, the last goal of the match was obtained, owing to the excellent play of our forwards. In the second half both sides seemed to tire, and there was no further score. For the visitors, the most conspicuous players were the centre-forward and the right-half, who both played a superlative game. For the School, Williams was at his best, and, with Lavenstein, constituted a dangerous pair; Patchitt was remarkable for his steadiness and cool play, contributing largely to our success. Our defence was kept busy, and proved itself efficient. The whole side indeed did well to obtain a victory over such strong opponents. Team:--

CHARTERHOUSE.—J. M. Wells (goal); D. J. T. Peacock, R. C. Gregory (backs); A. M. Stern, B. C. A. Patchitt, E. G. Wesley Smith (half-backs); T. H. P. Beeching, R. H. Whalley, H. R. H. Williams, E. L. Lavenstein, R. J. Thorne Thorne (forwards).

O.T.C.

CAMP, 1917.

The O.T.C. took an unusually strong company to Camp on July 31st, numbering not far short of three hundred men: the Camp was at Tidworth Pennings, just under Sidbury Hill, in the same spot as in 1916. The Charterhouse contingent formed the leading company of No. 2 Battalion, which, comprising Charterhouse, Harrow, Malvern, Clifton, Bradfield and Westminster, was under the command of Major Smart, Capt. Irvine taking the company. No. 1 Battalion, consisting of Eton, Marlborough, Radley, Beaumont College and Imperial Service College, was commanded by Lieut.-Col. A. H. Wall, of Marlborough: while of the Eton staff, Lieut.-Col. F. E. Robeson acted as Brigadier, Capt. A. M. McNeile being Adjutant, and Hon. Lieut. L. K. Marsden, Brigade Quarter-Master. Capt. Cave was Camp Commandant, while the position of Brigade Major was undertaken by Capt. J. St. C. Rose, of the Grenadier Guards. Sergt.-Major A. G. Locke again filled the post of Battalion Sergt.-Major to perfection, and Mr. Nayler repented his fine performance of last year as Battalion Scouting Officer.

As regards the weather, we could hardly have experienced a more complete contrast to that of 1916: it was raining at Godalming before we started, but had partially cleared into a dull compromise upon our arrival at Tidworth. The mud at the entrances to Camp was terrible, and it seemed that the very worst spot had been chosen for the preliminary ‘dumping’ of the heavy baggage. After the first two days, however, during which the rainfall was practically continuous, the weather cleared somewhat, and for the whole of Sunday and Tuesday the sun shone quite brilliantly, while Monday was free from rain.

The inclemency of the elements, as was to be expected, seriously hampered the scheme of training: in the first two days, however, several good lectures were delivered, the principles of which were afterwards applied in practice in the Field Work. The latter on the whole was vastly more satisfactory than that of last year: on Monday evening we indulged in night operations, which proved highly successful.

There were not so many demonstrations as we enjoyed in 1916. On Sunday afternoon, however, the weather being favourable, we were treated to a very fine aeronautical demonstration, which was indeed a wonderful spectacle. The great advance made in aviation during the past twelve months, as plainly shown by this exhibition, is really quite amazing.
Each company provided three guards on each of two separate nights, the Charterhouse guards going on duty on the Tuesday and Saturday evenings. The members of the former were real heroes, for they were on duty for twenty-four hours in almost incessant rain and bitterly cold wind. The second group of guards had the luck to escape with perfectly dry weather, and enjoyed the excitement of the knowledge that a murderer was at large in the neighbourhood, who, it was said, had killed a Quarter-Master, and was wanted by the Military Police.

The Brigadier, after inspecting the lines of the two Battalions, pronounced the Charterhouse lines to be the best in the Brigade, and practically faultless. This fine result was doubtless attained by the industry of the Tent Commanders and men, and more especially by the marvellous energy and dauntless enthusiasm of the C.O., who never missed a scrap of paper or rubbish that might let down our lines.

The Tent Prize in the first line was carried off by Lance-Sergt. F. E. Powell, of Hodgsonites; in the second line by Sergt. Norton, of Verites; and in the third by Lance-Corpl. Liebenrood, of Girdlestoneites, and Sergt. Tully, of Pageites, who tied.

If any individual deserves special mention, it is undoubtedly Cadet Officer Gauntlett, acting as Company Sergt.-Major, whose masterly dealing with a serious disturbance on the Thursday evening was admirable; while Cadet Officer Brodie, acting as Platoon Sergeant of No. 1 Platoon, although incapacitated by illness towards the end of camp, always unfailing in spirit and energy, performed prodigies of supervision and organisation.

"THE CARthUSIAN."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CARthUSIAN.

Dear Sir,—No one, I think, can deny that the following suggestion possesses novelty, and of reasonableness not a little. It is to the following effect: Why should not some notice be taken of the ideas you so prolifically publish? Wells is to be congratulated on having put one of them into practice: but that very deed was an innovation. If, as is so often claimed, the Correspondence Column is the most popular portion of your periodical, at any rate among the junior readers, why should not the "Authorities" so frequently invoked take also an intelligent interest in it? For their benefit I hope you will publicly announce: (1) That Lord Northcliffe has no money interest in The Carthusian; (2) that the Editor—as I am sure is the case—has no private axe to grind; (3) that The Carthusian is uninterested in politics, and therefore that its suggestions may be taken as the genuine expression of public opinion.—I am, sir, yours with every apology,

QUI MULTA SCRIPSIT, SED FRUSTRA.
OLD CARTHUSIAN COLOURS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CARTHUSIAN.

Dear Sir,—Several letters have appeared in your paper, bringing to the notice of Carthusians the fact that Old Carthusian colours can now be bought for a few shillings, and that any Tom, Dick, or Harry can wear and does wear them. I do not know if Mr. Walter Williams is an Old Carthusian. If he is not, why is he permitted to wear an Old Carthusian tie while dancing with Miss Phyllis Monckman in the revue at the Comedy? Whatever may be the case, I think you will agree with me that it would be better if our colours were not displayed behind the footlights. And that in any case it is unnecessary to make jokes about the colour of them. Trusting that the authorities will endeavour to put a stop to the selling of Old Carthusian goods at such ridiculously low prices,—I remain, Sir, your obedient servant,

AN OLD CARTHUSIAN.

SWIMMING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CARTHUSIAN.

Dear Sir,—I was very much surprised last quarter to hear that the Swimming Cup was one of the finest Challenge Cups in the School, and to find the great lack of interest in the House Matches. In my opinion to decide the match on a single event, the Relay Race, is a very unfair test of Swimming. It would be more interesting to have either three or five events all counting equally, and the winners to be the team scoring most points. My suggestions for the events are (i.) Diving, (ii.) two lengths Sprint Race, (iii.) life saving, on the lines of the Humane Society Medal, (iv.) six lengths Endurance Race, and lastly, the Relay Race. True, the Competition would take a long time, but arrangements could be made to hold the events on different days. I hope you will bring the question before the proper authorities, and perhaps encourage others to give their views on the matter.—I am, yours in expectancy,

RICARDUS.

HOUSE PAIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CARTHUSIAN.

Dear Sir,—Surely the Racket and Fives pairs who play for their House might be allowed to wear their house sashes, at any rate in the Oration and Long Quarters. In all other games fellows are allowed to show that they represent their House if they want. I might add that I am not likely to represent my House at either of these games, and that it is not for my own benefit or any other particular person's that I make this suggestion.

O.T.C.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CARTHUSIAN.

Dear Sir,—Could I suggest an improvement in the O.T.C.? Could not each fellow have the Colours of his House on the sleeve of his tunic, as is the case in the Colonial Armies? It would be quite unnecessary to have the "black," which each House has, but only the distinguishing colour. This could either be in the shape of a small square or circle.—Yours, with the usual apologies,

"ANENCIS."

PROGRAMMES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CARTHUSIAN.

Dear Sir,—Would it not be possible to have the composers' dates printed after their names on the programmes of Classical concerts? To the learned few this is unnecessary, but for such of the ignorant as wish to learn it would be a real help. For instance, at Miss D'Aranyi's recital it would have helped my understanding of the music if I had known whether Bach and Debussy were contemporaries, or which was the earlier. I am told that one can infer the date of music from the style, but I should be more likely to appreciate the style if I knew the date.—Yours faithfully,

IOTA.
