We are desperately trying to get him to oversee the Eric Schmidt project. He's apparently open to doing it but a little worried about how legit it is and what it means for later on. I was hoping you could call him to tell him how important the project is and how much faith higher ups would have in his ability to deliver a really good product ...and how that would inevitably mean a position later.

I'm going to talk to him as well, but would be really helpful for him to hear the same talking points from you. We really want/need this guy running this project and let's just say he'd be a really strong CTO for a national campaign.

Would you be able to do that? Mikey is low key so I'm not worried about him blabbing if you tell him it's a confidential conversation.

Cheryl, adding you on here in case HRC may want to meet with him to discuss Obamacare website...that would REALLY help us make the case to him!!
