Lionel Nathan de Rothschild, Esq. (1808-1879). N.M. Rothschild & Sons, chairman; Bank of England director (1868-1889); first Jewish director of the Bank of England; Mother: Hannah 3rd de Rothschild (née Baret Cohen); Father: Levi Baret Cohen, merchant of London;

Co-funder with Queen Victoria of the EMIGRATION FUND (1869) to finance white & yellow Christian debt & opium slavery (1869); MP, Ealing, Middlesex (1847-68); The City of London (1846-69 under Minority Clause; 1869-74) with Robert Wigram Crawford; Middlesex, judge; Deputy Lieutenant, City of London; Austrian Empire, baron; Alliance British and Foreign Assurance Company, director; Provident Clerk's Mutual Life Assurance Association, trustee, director; Northern Railway of France, trustee; Alliance Marine Insurance Company, president; 48 Piccadilly, W. London; married, first cousin Baroness Charlotte von Rothschild (Naples); three sons, one daughter (Nathan - 1st Baron Rothschild, Leopold, Alfred, Evelina).

Arkancide? Lionel Rothschild acquired British political power as MP by unanimous proclamation by the unexpected death from bronchitis on Feb. 09, 1869, 9:30pm of MP-elect Charles Bell, Esq. ("even before he entered upon his Parliamentary duties"). The Clintons learned Arkancide well, it appears, from the Rothschilds. Suspiciously, the "urgent announcement" of Bell's replacement by Lionel de Rothschild was actually made in many of his obituary announcements! Rothschild' sponsors were well prepared to announce him right in the obituary, before his opponents had time to mourn and mount a counter-attack! Reminds this writer of the way the Bush Administration had the hundreds of pages of the USA Patriot Act already prepared and ready to put before Congress in the weeks following the 911 false flag.

More Rothschild Arkancide? In 1890, Hannah Primrose (de Rothschild) Countess of Rosebery died aged 39 with typhoid. Henry Wellcome was doing extensive experiments with typhus at the time. Hannah was the namesake of her grandmother Hannah 3rd de Rothschild married to Lionel de Rothschild, her grandfather. Hannah the younger's untimely death paved the way for her gentile husband, Archibald Philip Primrose, 5th Earl of Rosebery, 1st Earl of Midlothian (Lord Rosebery), to inherit the N.M. Rothschild & Sons vast banking and commerce fortune. It also paved the way for Lord Rosebery's election as prime minister in 1894. It also facilitated Britain's experiments in imperial federal corporatism and the formation of the British Pilgrims Society. Also in 1890, Junius Morgan died in a carriage "accident" in Monte Carlo, leaving his vast Peabody-Morgan-Rothschild banking empire to his son, J.P. Morgan. Yet more Arkancide?

Lionel de Rothschild acquired his The City of London MP political position in the curious untimely death by bronchitis of MP Charles Bell—not by winning an election. As a result of his death-appointment, Rothschild became the first Jewish member of Parliament, in the same year he was also appointed to be the first Jewish director of the Bank of England by bank governor John Wigram Crawford. He was also the chairman of the family bank, N.M. Rothschild & Sons.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

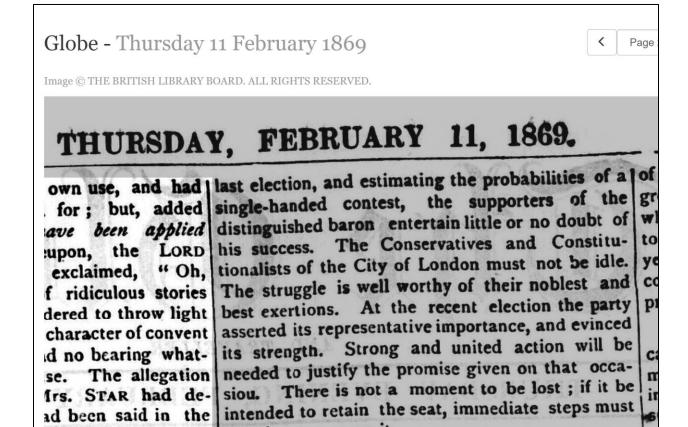

WITH great regret we record the decease of Mr. Charles Bell the Conservative member for the City of London. An attack of bronchitis, complicated by a disease of the heart, from which the honourable gentleman suffered severely, has suddenly terminated a life which in its maturity promised to be of signal service in the representative assembly. Mr. Bell was a partner in the firm of Thomson, Bonar, and Co., and enjoyed the highest reputation as a man of business, remarkable for his commercial enterprise and in-He was widely respected, and would tegrity. Frayers were read by the Bishop of Heiserdond.
The Binisterial peers present were Earl GRANVILLE and Earl DE GREY AND RIFON.
The Bishop of DERHY took the oath and his seat on the Episcopal bench.
On the motion of Earl GRANVILLE, the House adjourned at ten minutes past two o'clock until Tuesday next, the 16th, when the regular basiness of the assign will be commenced.

We have to announce the death of Baroness de Normann, auntof the Marquis of Northampton and Lady Marian Alford, which took place on Tuesday morning at Castle Ashby, the Marquis of Northampton and Lady Marian Alford, which took place on numer the death, in Belgrave-square, on Toesday, of the accomplished Lady Murchison, wife of Sir Roderick I. Murchison, Bart, K. C. B. S. She was the only daughter of General Hugonin, of Norsted House, Hants (so long colonel of the 4th Dragons), and was in her Sist year.

This Marquis of Anolassay.—We regret to announce the death of the Marquis of Anglesey, on Saturday, at Beaudesert, his seat, near Lichfield. The decease nobleman was the eldest son of Field-Marahal the Marquis of Aughesey, who died in 1854, and who had been steer but to the marquistate for his distinguished military Elizabeth Villiers, third daughter of George, fourth Earl of Jersey, The late peer was born in July, 1797, and had been married three times—first, to Eleaners, second daughter of the late Colonel John and Lady Chariotte Campbell, who died in July, 1288; second, in August, 1833, to Henrietta, fourth daughter of the late Sic Charles and Lady Harriet Bagot; and thirdly, in 1860, to the daughter of Mr. G. Burnand, who survives him. By his first marriage he leaves surviving issue Henry, Earl of Usbridge (his successor in the marquisate) and Lady Constance, married to the Larl of Winchinea; by the second marriage, Lady Florence, widow of the marries have an annual married to the Larl of Winchinea; by the second marriage, Bell, M.P., for the City of Mr. Bell, M.P.—M. The circumstance of this being his first voyage makes the catastrophe more melancholy.

Mr. Graves, of Pail-Insall, on Wednesslay prosecuted a carver and gilder, of Great Dover-road, Southwarf, for having infringed twenty of his copyrights. The offender was fined £100, with the alternative of twenty months' imprisonment.

The DOUBLE MICREM AT BLACKWALL.—The inquest on the bodies of Feter Pearson and Sarah Ann Cooper, who are believed to have been mardered by the husband of the latter, was resumed at Blackwall on Wednesslay. Evidence as to the finding of the bodies and the nature of the injuries was given, and testimony was also adduced tending to show that Cooper was unhappy in his demestic relations. Another adjournment took place. No trace of the supposed numberer has yet been discovered.

BILLIARDS.—On Monday last Roberts (the champion) and W. Button played an exhibition march, of 1,000 up in the handoome room attacked to the Canterlany Hall, Lambeth, Roberts allowing his opposition of the supposed numberer have yet been discovered.

have made a clean sweep of traditional representation and filled the bounches with a convention pledged to the lustant extirpation of all ords that afflict this realm of her Majesty. But the nation did nothing of the kind. It stood by old English babits and customs, and it showed its abhorrence of extremes, it returned a House composed, for the most part, of the near who would have been elected had there been no Reform at all. But, mark, it did not return that House in order that it might act as if there had been no reform at all. Let not supbody fall into this blunder; for, if it be fallen into with any large perseverance, another election may rectify it in a way that would perhaps savour of disaster to many worthymen. By dint of creating a public opinion, Mr. Gladstone had induced the majority of electors to be anonimous in one thing, which had therefore been thrown into some programmes and omitted from others, and in no sort treated as a political dogma. Now the general council of the realm is pledged to that dogma—the disendowment of the Irish Church—and there is no Pope who can absolve it from the duty which such faith implies. This is the work to be gone about. But the nation has confided it to men who were our friends of old, whom we believed we could trust, and who, having grown up amid the traditions and institutions of the realm, will landle them reverently and tenderly, even when excision and subversion are to be done. tenderly, even when excision and subversion are to be done. This is expected, and Mr. Gladstone and the best of his colleagues have cheerfully and cornestly promised it. If the Conservatives will see that the business is decreed to be done, and that the force which is lent to the Premier for its performance is a force that cannot be resisted without mortal peril to more important things than even the Irish Church, we see no reason why they should not apply themselves to any and every modification or improvement of the Government scheme. The Irish Church must go; but its defenders do not hold so bad a brief as some of its adversaries think, and if the ingenuity and energy of the Opposition leader be devoted to securing the best terms that can be obtained, he will have fully discharged his duty as Conservative leader. He may record a numerical protest, and he may be right in doing so; but his real work lies in making that tolerable which he must perceive is inevitable.

"Proteplase: "A the last was word that has come up, and people who dide out, and are therefore speed to the duly peril of halog placed next to hales (who have recrything), may be thankful for a word on the embody. It may proved their feeling foolish, of which is more to the purpose, showing that feeling, to the dele insign of their neighbour. At a meeting of the Geographical Society, on Manday, Professor thucker stated that he had necetaring that the whole of the bottom of the sen in the North Atlantia George and along the African case was covered by simple organisms of animal life, which, under the name of Proteplasms, had made some noise false. The dimercout is not to understand the last words liferally there have been no voices from the ma; is the Protessor meent only that the word had been taken up by brilliant writers, and the titles had been expanded in a way which—which the body had butter be left to explain, as she will do charmingly no one will don't this who concenbers the fair philosophus in one of Mr. Disruell's novel who expounded the Vestiges of Crestion:—"I was a fish, and I shall be a crow." Spanial Republication, it seems less taken note of the Burgos difficulty, and protests against the execution of the persons who perpetrated the cruel murder of the Civil Governor. Whether Dova Juan Prim will listen to the protect or leave the matter to the Corteone cannot know before this is printed; but the assessies have found another apologist. In one of the English "religious" papers the following pleasing remarks occur. After an infimation that the account of the crime is highly coloured (whereas it is clear that the nost revolting details have been every properly kept voiled in general language), the organ of churchmanabilip says:—"It is a horrible business; but the provocation was maddening, remembering that challess, pyxes, monstrances, and crucifixes would all come within the definition, collections of art, and would therefore be scized by the spoiler. We can famp how un English priest would feel on seeing his nilar stript and descented before his cycs, and make some allowance for the sunguinary passions of the Spaniard."
Pethape the upology had better be left without other comment than such as the most advanced fitualist will make upon it before he takes the poker and rams the journal between the bars.

Nothing, of course, must be said about the "Saurin v, Start"

Nothing, of course, must be said about the "Sauria v. Starr" case until it shall have been decided. But two small points not connected with the merits of the business may be noted. One is that Mr. Browning, who wrote that wonderful poem about "Hate in the Cloister" and crystallized the small, intense persistent gabe of one monk against another, has material for a companion composition which will demand not so much his miraculous subtleness as invaled power. For, whichever way the verdict may go, the idea of a long and pin-pick persecution has been brought out in its timest details; and whether it were inflicted or only imagined, that idea comes, whence it could only come, from the cloister. Secondly, the Lord Chief Justice is to be thanked for his preventing an ugly word from being introduced into our language. Perhaps nobody at the Bar could better afford than Sir John Coloridge to be asked not to give his sanction to the use of such a word as "superioress." Baron Martin does not like new duttes to be imposed upon the Judges, but they can with the slightest trouble do so much towards the repression of abominable words that it could be wished that they would more often stand by the well of English and keep it undefiled. Reading the good old law-books teaches more tiren hav.

There will be a scene, of a sensational character, on the Underground Radway one of these days; and, though the interest will not be quite so thrilling as that of Mr. Boneleault's heident which is so delightfully horring, there will be something which the parties concerned and the spectators will remember. How many Kensington stations there may be up to the present writing I do not know; but I know of three, and also that the officials always woult you to the wrong one. You descend—the stain is off like lighting—and you are left plants, in a region probably unknown to you, and certainly one which you had not the least desire to visit. The folk at the booking-offices are not, for the most part, une vil; but it is, they think, no part of their business to do more than issue the ticket you demand, and they know nothing of the general system of lines. If they do attempt to advise you, take some other ticket han the one recommended, and the chances against you are reduced. There is the High-street station, the Glourestra-road station, the South Kensington station, and—on second thoughts there must be mother, for neither of these kirght for the Kensington station, whence you get to the South-Western line. All very well to say that we should look at the map at home and ascertain our route: Brisly, there is no map; I reserve other objections. Of course, if you travel every day, the points are beaton into your head; but if you travel every day, the points are beaton into your head; but if you travel every day, the points are beaton into your head; but they will do couples you with several other things besides the meaningless names of stations, and an interval of three weeks puts titem out of your head. Next, the portes on these lines are, with a few exceptions, more claborately study than can be languised. I think they do not much like the public is often rude. Still, we pay to be told how t adminute intentions which I am sure they have, they would fuccesses their own takings and the public comfort.

The question has not a material interest for the middle-aged, but there be young folk who have been in doubt when St. Valentins comes—that is for we all know that to-morrow, Sanday, is the 14th), when ought the peculiar epistolary rits of the festival to be performed, Saturday or Monday? Delicate details suggest themselves to those who send and receive valentines. As a moralist, I should say, observe the rite on the Saturday, so that minds may not be diverted on Sanday by speculations as to the number of hearts and darts that will arrive. Let the ledger of love be made up on Saturday night, and talanced. The commercial rule with bills may be applied in St. Valentine's case. Probably, too, this rule will be approved by the youngest, who are not fond of defering pleusare. But a triend in the Post Office—where, truly, people are likely to know a good deal on the matter—casy that Monday will be the great day, and it is then that these who have been lacky enough to impire admiration may look for their musical letters, sent-bage flux, and my sendence of the moral letters, some-bage flux, lovers' compasses, perfume-bottles, and all the other delights which Rimmel and refinement mainster to the tender-hearted. It is, by-the-way, a good sign that the valentine missives have become elegandes. Anything is better than the vulgorities which used to existly us, and which still satisfy too many. But the affection whose expression can be bought in poor attiff after all, and the girls of the period have an opportunity of allowing that they are not so settlet as they are sketched. No one scene to remember a sea-on so fatal in hunting accidents. Summary of Passing Events.

Tim Boston Advertisor, one of the most influential of American papers, agrees with the New York Tribune in regarding the Alabama Treaty as mosatisfactory and incomplete. It is folly, it says, to treat the more claim for "robol piracies" as the chief contamining griswames between the two countries. No question is more claim for "robol piracies" as the chief contamining griswames between the two countries. No question of money reaches to the bottom of the dispute. The hasty recognition of the Confederate Government by the country is the great and substantial grisvance which sales and in the beaution of the failure to provide for the discussion of this grisvance that it regards the convention negotiated by Mr. Reverly Johnson as unit to stand as the settlement of the present controversy.

—I have frequently been compelled to ride—also, as a matter of choice—in the guard's van from Eazhon to Bala. On several occasions I have noticed a half-bred sheep doe plunding down the embankmest just in time to miss the last carriage, after which he runs and barks most furiously. This he has done for over three years, and the guard's whom I have spellen to say he never misses at this, and he is so can conting their letters and parcels, they involuntarily say, "There's the dog." There are this regular tracks to and from his kennel, literally worn—far plainer than a sheep track. He never exceeds his distance, and never starts but from the one point. One of the guards told me that one day the dog was out with his master shooting, and more than a mile from the rall, but when the train was due he set off in as such practical to the numeral; and then returned as many the of whether, exaxing, and thereas; the met his train as usual, punctual to the numeral; and then returned to his master. HULL THEATRE DESTROYED BY FIRE.

The Theatre Royal, Hall, has hab but a short life; it was burnt to the ground on Friday night, in the was burnt to the ground on Friday night, in the court of the professor, the dot Theatre Royal, in 1859, and it was not till say years later that the building just observed was built. On Friday evening Mr. Lewis Nanton, who has been ill for some weeks, had a benefit, and the theatre was tolerably consider. He that the building by about haft-past eleven. The checktakers and gas-mes were last on the pramises, and they had just got outside when some one raised the alarm of fine. Very little property was saved from the flames, and when the costly production, such as the pantonume, which has been performed sime Currentage, is taken into consideration of a vast quantity of property. The stages "feets, the sceners, and the dresse were on a costly and elaborate scale, and very little of the pantonium and stage, was 146 feet by 72 feet. The chief portion of the house—the dress-circles and just-falls—was approached from the flates of the theatre in the stated—three dress-circles, 200 people; upper boxes, arout 200; gallery, about 1000; just form 800 to 900; and stalls, 44; in all upwards of 2,250 seats. The building was insured to the extent of 2200, in the North British and Mercantille Insurance Company. A serious academ happens above to the them when a large beam, which had taken light, fell upon him, and severely injured him in the back. He was however, quickly rescued from his perilons position, and conveyed to a place of safety. Some valuable manuscripts have been saved.

AN EVIDENT OVERSIGHT. — A poor fellow brought upa week or so back at Marlborough-street Potice-court, told the magistrate he had been "often murdered." It is strape that the setule Mr. Knoz should not have thought of asking him if he was a stranatic author,—Punch.

ON SUNDAY, a woman, named Cooper, 23 years of age, murried, and her granfither, aged 76, billed and deaf, were discovered to have been murdered in a house in Pojar, both their throats being frightfully cut. The husband of the deca-ed woman has not since been seen, and suspicion points to him as the murderer.

a year to pay the interest at 3 per cent. per annum, the future increase being dependent, as before stated, upon the success and prosperity of the new company. The capital account showed that £57,774 had been expended, leaving a balance of £1836.

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said that when the company was formed six years since, on the failure of the first attempt to lay the telegraph in the Red Sea, it was expected either to realise 25 per cent. dividend if the cable could have been repaired, or that the money spent upon it would be thrown away. The result was unsuccessful owing to the wide-spread and extended deterioration of the original cable, and the shareholders would at that time have brought the company to a close; but at the suggestion of the board, who hoped to be able to recover a great part or the whole of the capital, and who had received no remuneration, and who had offered to continue their services without any such recognition, it was decided to maintain the company on the lewest scale of charge. The directors had done their best; they leased the land line, and obtained 5 per cent. for some years. They were obliged to reduce this to 3 per cent. when the Government established a competition line by the Persian Gulf, which carried away all the Red Sea through traffic.

The report and statement of accounts were then adopted, a distribution of OPIUM SHOPS AND GAMBLING-HOUSES AT HONG KONG.—On Feb. 9, Earl Granville, Secretary of State for the Colonies, received a deputation from the Social Science Association, in support of their two memorials to his lordship and his immediate predecessor, seeking the abolition of the Hong Kong Government farms of opium-smoking shops and gambling-houses. The deputation was introduced by Mr. Chisholm Anstey, who explained their objections, and observed upon some recent correspondence between Governor Sir B. G. Macdonnell and the Duke of Buckingham, in reply to their first memorial. The Hon. A. Kinnaird, M.P., and Colonel Sykes, M.P., and Mr. Murrow, from Hong Kong, also addressed the Colonial Minister, who, at the conclusion, with much courtesy and frankness, expressed his entire concurrence with the deputation upon the principle of their remonstrance, his decided unwillingness to allow the license fees on gambling-houses to swell the colonial revenue, and his readiness to consider maturely, before unwillingness to allow the license fees on gambling-houses to swell the colonial revenue, and his readiness to consider maturely, before deciding to continue the system at all, the suggestions which the deputation had laid before him for suppressing the practice of gambling altogether amongst the people of Hong Kong by direct penal means.

A letter from Ostend mentions the death at that place of Mr. Murphy, formerly Mexican Minister in London, and subsequently at Vienna. He became Minister of Foreign Affairs to the Emperor Maximilian, and occupied that post when his sovereign was murdered. Mr. Murphy was well-known in Europe, and had several Austrian and German decorations. On Wednesday night, Feb. 10, an explosion of firedamp occurred at the Woodshuts Colliery, Staffordshire, belonging to Messrs. Cooper and Haslope. Two men were killed instantly; two others were so severely burnt that they only lived a short time after the explosion, and others were injured. Sir W. Fergusson has carefully examined the Siamese twins, and, it is said, concurs in the general opinion of surgeons that any surgical separation would be most likely attended with fatal consequences, not so much on account of any obstacle presented by the structure of the uniting band of flesh as the moral effect of the disunion on the two brothers.

SILK SUPPLY ASSOCIATION.

A Silk Supply Association is about to be established in London by Mr. D. Chadwick, M.P., and Mr. Thomas Dickins, with the following objects:—

1st. To stimulate the production of Silk by Cottage Cultivation and otherwise in every country where the Mulberry Tree is capable of giving food to Silk Worms.

2nd. To encourage the introduction and exchange of the eggs of the best kind of Silk Worms in Silk producing districts.

3rd. To offer practical suggestions and encouragement to the producers of silk for improving the quality, and securing a better classification, and for ensuring greater care in the reeling of the silk.

4th. To promote the cultivation of Silk in the various Silk producing districts in India, where the production of Silk has not recently increased, and in other districts of India, where the cultivation of the Silk Worm has almost cased, but which are known to possess special advantages, by the growth of the Mulberry Tree, and the habits of the people, for its propagation.

5th. To promote the Exportation of Cocoons from countries not well able to reel them. 6th. To communicate with the Foreign, Colonial, and Indian Departments of her Majesty's Government, and to obtain the aid of the English Representatives in the British Colonies, and Consular Agents in all Foreign Countries to promote and extend the cultivation of Silk.

In reference to this object, Dr. Forbes Watson, writing from the India-office.

cultivation of Silk.

In reference to this object, Dr. Forbes Watson, writing from the India-office on February 8, says in a public letter:—

"A judiciously worked Silk Supply Association is very worthy of support. I believe it might be instrumental in improving and extending the cultivation of Silk in India and elsewhere, and, if established, I shall be happy to be of any service to it in my power."

By a fatality which has often engaged public attention, Sir John Lawrence is the only surviving Governor-General of India save one. Lord Ellenborough is the only living man who has shared with him the honour of having ruled India, except for a few days. In the course of 12 years four of his predecessors died—Lords Hardinge, Dalhousie, Canning, and Elgin. Lord Dalhousie's life closed prematurely at 48, and Lord Canning was only 60 when his constitution broke down under the strain which an unhealthy climate and terrible anxieties had placed upon it. Sir John Lawrence's work in the mutinies was perhaps only less severe than that of Lord Canning himself, and when he went back to India in 1864 he was in his 53rd year. He is still more than 20 years the junior of Lord Ellenborough. He has, however, seen 40 years of service in India, whereas Lord Ellenborough was in the country less than three years. When Lord Elgin died no man looked for the appointment of Viceroy less than Sir J. Lawrence. It was said at the time that Lord Palmerston met him at a railway station, and said to him, "You are the very man I wanted to see. Will you go out to India as governor-general? Take till to-morrow morning to think over it." I never expected to see India again," he said to an acquaintance in Calcutta. Now, probably, he returns home to stay; and it may be hoped that he will continue to render good service to his countrymen, and to the natives of India, for many years to come.

Miss Ida Gladstone, youngest daughter of Sir Thomas Gladstone, Bart, of Fasque, near Fettercain, brother of the Prime Minister, met with a very serious accident on Tuesday, Feb. 9. She had been riding out within her father's grounds, accompanied by a groom, when the horse, a very spirited animal, got unruly, and bolted. After the

The trial of the Westminster election polition began this morning, Feb 12.

The Tamworth petition is in progress, the principal allegation against the return of Sir Robert Peel and Sir H. Bulwer being intimidation. Mr. Justice Willes is the judge. One of the witnesses subpenned for the petitioners attempted to poison himself with laudanum on Feb. 10.
