Lillian Scott Troy Protests Accusation That She Is in an Enemy Firm

LONDON, June 21—4:50 P. M.—The Board of Trade has ordered the Hop Extract Company and the Horst Company, whose officials state they are controlled by the D. J. Partello Company of Chicago, to show cause within four days why they should not be wound up as enemy firms. Other directors in the United States besides Partello are Lillian Scott Troy and her father, Patrick Troy of San Francisco.

One of the organizers of both companies was Baron von Horst, a former Californian, who was interned in England soon after the war began. It is stated that the Baron, who has lived in England for years and accepted a German title, after leaving the United States, no longer owns any stock of either company.

Lillian Scott Troy, who is in London, appealed to the American Consulate today to request postponement of action until Partello can arrive from Chicago. She asserts both companies are controlled by Partello and that all the stockholders are either American or English. If the Board of Trade winds up the concerns, she says, she will protest to the State Department on the ground that such action amounts to confiscation of American property.
