The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Mr. Stanley was making a statement or a comment not upon the merit now, but in direct response to my question.

Mr. HENDERSON. I would like to make a statement. I think the record ought to note, Mr. Chairman, so far as I am concerned, that at the present time the S. E. C. has before it an issue which has been argued but not disposed of, involving some of these questions and involving Morgan Stanley; therefore, as I see it, I am precluded, of course, from participating in this discussion because we sit in quasi-judicial capacity.

I should like the record to note also that none of the questions which counsel in this hearing will raise with Mr. Stanley have been suggested by me. Is that correct, Mr. Nehemkis?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Absolutely correct, Mr. Commissioner.

Mr. HENDERSON. None of the questions have I directed. And therefore, they are not to be taken as having any relation at all to the issues which are before the S. E. C. in the instant case.

The CHAIRMAN. I take it that the S. E. C. in presenting this particular study is not attempting to bring in any questions which is pending before the Commission on this other issue of which you speak?

Mr. HENDERSON. Not only that, but counsel's brief was prepared before the application of the declarant was filed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As Mr. Stanley knows, we have been living in his shop for months.

Mr. STANLEY. Yes; I know it.

The CHAIRMAN. He says that with an air of resignation. [Laughter.]

Mr. STANLEY. Well, Senator, to comment more appropriately on what you just said a moment ago about the two methods of doing business, I would like to say just this, without going into the other matter which Mr. Henderson referred to at all: Of course, corporate securities can be sold by competitive bidding; there is no question about it. But in my opinion—and I am not trying to argue it now—it is very much better in the interest of the borrower and of the investor not to sell issues through competitive bidding. If you do it by competitive bidding, there are a lot of things that come up, points that I think are bad. I mean, it is sort of a catch-as-catch-can proposition—casual intermittent connections, the company does not get the benefit of professional expert advice, the banker either has to take it as is, as the company has it, or pass it up.

It tends to overpricing, tends to poorer character of securities, tends to eliminating the small dealer in my opinion, because the people who bid competitively have got to have capital; they have got to pay high prices, and I believe that it eliminates the small dealer and will concentrate the business in the hands of the large dealers more than today.

Also, you are going to have groups in competitive bidding, because anybody can't come along and do it. You have the group question, whatever that is; if it is a matter of being democratic, it will be just the same as it is today.

Now, I have thought a great deal about it, and I would like to come back to it later on if you will permit me and if you have time, but I would like to also comment on one other thing that you said, sir, and the same statement or a similar statement was made in the opening statement, I think, yesterday morning, namely, that during the period of 1906, I think, to 1939, the Telephone Company had done all of its bond business with J. P. Morgan & Co. and associates, or Morgan Stanley & Co. and associates.

Aside from the transactions prior to 1935 which Mr. Whitney referred to, of various bond issues and loans that they did not handle with J. P. Morgan & Co., there were a very large amount of convertible bonds and stock that were sold by the company without the intervention of bankers at all, which frequently were sold to their own stockholders, running to a very large amount of money.

I would like to correct what may be an erroneous impression inadvertently made by Mr. Henderson in a previous statement, probably referring to public offerings, by saying that since Morgan Stanley & Co. has been in business, the Telephone Company and subsidiaries, or, rather, it was only subsidiaries, and certain companies that are considered as part of the Bell System that are not controlled by it but of which the Telephone Company has 20 or 30 percent stock interest have sold a total of $150,000,000 of securities direct to insurance companies without bankers at all, so they have tried alternative methods and have not confined themselves to one method.

The CHAIRMAN. $150,000,000?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Out of a total of?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, we have managed issues of $580,000,000 I think, and in addition they have sold $150,000,000 since 1935. I don't think this really bears on it very much, but Mr. Young tells me that the amount they have sold to their pension fund is about $60,000,000 additional.

UNDERSTANDING AMONG INVESTMENT BANKERS WITH RESPECT TO EXISTENCE OF TELEPHONE GROUP

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, from the three documents ¹ which I had occasion to read to you, it would appear that you were very anxious that the arrangement for the Illinois Bell offering should not constitute a precedent for the future interests in that business, is that substantially correct, Mr. Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. I never made commitments for the future to anybody anyway, but at that particular time, as I have said before, the industry, the investment banking business, was changing. People were very anxious to obtain a standing, to become established, these new firms, and were very eager to get into good business. We were equally anxious and definite in our minds that we were not going to let them get any kind of position in the future.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that the reason for your not desiring to establish a group or create an impression that there might be a precedent?

Mr. STANLEY. That is one reason, but as I said, I never made commitments for the future to anybody anyway.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, I had occasion to refer to a memorandum of the telephone conversation between you and Mr. Jesup. I am going to read to you another statement that appears in Mr. Jesup's memorandum.

You will recall, Mr. Chairman, that this is identified pursuant to your arrangement with me. Mr. Jesup said as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1697"]:

My guess is that they do not want to be committed to this group in these amounts for future telephone business, owing to the possibility of some of the banks being able to underwrite in the future. If this came about, I would imagine that they might have to include the First National, Guaranty and National City.

Could Mr. Jesup have understood you correctly, or was that your impression at the time?

Mr. STANLEY. That was what Mr. Jesup said.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was not possibly your view, or one of the reasons why you were not anxious to establish a group?

¹ "Exhibits Nos. 1644, 1697, and 1698."

Mr. STANLEY. Well, my reasons, very simply, were that we were just considering this transaction, and we were not at that time making any plans for the future.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, in accordance with our prevailing understanding, I should like to offer a memorandum by H. M. Addinsell, whom I have previously identified to the committee, dated November 20, 1935, with reference to the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. $45,000,000 offering. May it be marked, sir?

The CHAIRMAN. It may be marked.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1699" and is included in the appendix on p. 12241.)

The CHAIRMAN. Are the letters to be marked, all of those?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You want them marked at one time?

The CHAIRMAN. Suppose we have them all marked, and that will dispose of them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All right.

The CHAIRMAN. That includes all of these exhibits that are to be identified by the staff member when he returns?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct, sir.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1700, 1701, and 1702" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12242-12243.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, may I read to you a rather brief statement of Mr. Addinsell in which he says [reading from "Exhibit No. 1699"]:

All participants giving up pro rata to them * * *.

I take it this indicates that in spite of your strong admonition, some of the banking houses still believed there was a group and that they had definite claims on the business. Suppose I read you the whole statement [reading from "Exhibit No. 1699"]:

We are offered a $4,000,000 interest which is a slight reduction from our proportionate interest in the Illinois Bells and is occasioned by the fact that Dillon Read will be introduced into the business (in a non-appearing position) and all participants are giving up pro rata to them. The amount of their interest is not stated. Mr. Morgan is sending us the proposed registration statement—

And so forth.

Now, I repeat my question, if I may, Mr. Stanley, that language seems to indicate that despite your very strong admonition that there was no group, some of the houses still believed that there was a group and that they had some claim on the business, and it would further indicate, Mr. Stanley, that you apparently were forced to recognize the existence of a group since you cut the participants pro rata?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, Mr. Nehemkis, I don't see where you get the idea that we were forced to give, to start with. I don't know what the other people thought. I thought you introduced a memorandum¹ from Mr. Addinsell saying there was no precedent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I have, but this is a subsequent memorandum² on the Southwestern Bell issue dated November 20, 1935.

Mr. STANLEY. But what of it?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am asking for your comment. Here is a responsible member of the investment banking community. You have been very careful to admonish the various houses that there was no precedent. Apparently, Mr. Addinsell, a responsible banker, believes that there was a group. You seem to indicate, in spite of your own statements, that there was a group, because it was necessary to cut the group pro rata.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1698."

² "Exhibit No. 1699."

Mr. STANLEY. I wouldn't think that his memorandum indicates he thought there was a group. What he is saying is that there is a readjustment of the amounts these people had, different from the time before.

Senator KING. Has this witness, the person who wrote the letter, testified?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir. This is a memorandum by Mr. H. M. Addinsell.

Senator KING. How would that bind Mr. Stanley?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am not saying that it does.

The CHAIRMAN. He doesn't contend that it binds Mr. Stanley, and of course it doesn't, but it is merely an expression of opinion, that is all, so that any question based upon it would be an argumentative question.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct.

Mr. STANLEY. I think all he is saying is that the same people are going to be in this Southwestern issue plus another one who wasn't in the previous issue.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may I at this time offer in evidence a table entitled "Relative Participations in Security Issues of American Telephone and Telegraph and Associated Companies, 1935-39." The source of the data which appears in this table was compiled from the registration statements filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission relating to the respective issues on file with that Commission.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be admitted.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1703" and is included in the appendix on p. 12244.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In the same connection, Mr. Chairman, I also offer in evidence a table upon which the one you now have before you was predicated. This table likewise is compiled from the information appearing in the registration statements on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission. However, I do not intend to discuss the second table which I request be admitted.

The CHAIRMAN. The table may be admitted.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1704" and is included in the appendix on p. 12245.)

PERCENTAGE PARTICIPATIONS OF PRINCIPAL MEMBERS OF TELEPHONE GROUP
IN RELATION TO PARTICIPATION OF MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INCORPORATED, 1935-39

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does Mr. Stanley have a copy of this table?¹ Here is one, Mr. Stanley. A word concerning this table and why it is being offered at this time. This table was prepared, may it please the committee, by dividing the amount taken by each underwriter by the amount taken by Morgan Stanley; in other words, a series of fractions: Kuhn, Loeb over Morgan Stanley equals Kuhn, Loeb's amount; Kidder, Peabody over Morgan Stanley would equal Kidder,

¹ Referring to "Exhibit No. 1703."

Peabody's amount, and so on. In each Telephone issue you will observe, Mr. Chairman, that Kuhn, Loeb gets exactly 50 percent of whatever is taken by Morgan Stanley. You will further observe, may it please the committee, that Kidder, Peabody's participations have been exactly 40 percent, or very close to 40 percent, in all issues other than Pacific Telephone, in which issue Kidder, Peabody received 33⅓ percent. You will further note, Mr. Chairman, that Lee Higginson's participation in 7 out of 11 Telephone issues has been exactly 50 percent of the amount taken by Kidder, Peabody. Now, you will note on the table, there next appears a group of houses, First Boston, Brown Harriman, E. B. Smith. These three houses have all obtained precisely the same amounts beginning with the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph 3¼s of April 1936. You will further note, Mr. Chairman, that a new firm appears as a participant in the issue, Harris, Hall & Co. This firm thereafter appears in all subsequent issues. Harris, Hall & Co.'s participation would appear to have been ceded to it by First Boston. From this time on First Boston gets the same percentage as E. B. Smith & Co. and Brown Harriman, and this would appear to be the explanation for First Boston's obtaining the same percentage as E. B. Smith and Brown Harriman beginning with the Pacific Tel. & Tel. issue, whereas in the prior issues First Boston's percentage exceeded that of the other two houses.

Now what is the moral to be drawn from this chart? Yesterday, you will recall, Mr. Chairman, that there was offered a table¹ which showed that in all Telephone issues headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., from 1920 until 1930, the percentage amounts taken by the group of houses in that syndicate were absolutely static, no variation. This chart was prepared, Mr. Chairman, to show whether or not there had been any crystallization of a group in Telephone financing under the leadership of Morgan Stanley & Co. comparable to the group under the old J. P. Morgan & Co. leadership.

I submit, sir, that despite Mr. Stanley's desires that there be no group, as expressed to the participants, this chart indicates that there has been a crystallization.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, it is not the chairman's understanding that the witness has ever denied that there was a group. He has merely denied that there was any obligation by which particular members must of necessity be included in the group, and that is the only difference that I see. Am I correct in that?

Mr. STANLEY. Not quite, sir. It depends on what you mean by the word "group," I suppose. A group of underwriters—may I just finish?

The CHAIRMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. STANLEY. A group of underwriters are the people who buy the bonds from the company. Now it is quite true that since 1935, since Morgan Stanley & Co. have managed these Telephone issues, all of these people that have been mentioned have been in the business, but a great many others have, too, on exactly the same terms. For instance, in some issues they bought the entire amount. The first issue—no; I am not sure whether you said seven names or nine.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1687."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In that table? ¹

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Nine names.

Mr. STANLEY. Anyway, it doesn't make any difference, a certain number of people bought the entire issue of the Illinois Bell, 9 people. The next issue, 10 people bought the entire issue; the next issue 10 people bought the entire issue; the next issue 47 people, all on exactly the same terms. In the next issue——

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). When you say "all on exactly the same terms," what do you mean?

Mr. STANLEY. I mean they paid the same price to the company.

The CHAIRMAN. Yes; but the proportionate share of each participant was necessarily different.

Mr. STANLEY. Not to the total. I will come to that in a moment, sir, if I may.

The next issue, 97 people bought the issue; the next issue 10 people, the next issue 48, the next issue 8, and how anybody can say there is anything very frozen about that I don't see. The next issue 37 people bought it, the next issue 43 people, the next issue 47 people bought it.

The CHAIRMAN. Are you referring now to the underwriters?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Or to the distributors?

Mr. STANLEY. To the underwriters. If you would like the number of distributors I can give them to you in each issue. They run from three to eight hundred people in each issue.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Stanley——

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). May I just finish the question that the chairman raised? The people whose names Mr. Nehemkis has given here, that is ourselves; Kuhn, Loeb; Kidder, Peabody; Lee Higginson; First Boston; Brown Harriman; Smith, Barney; Blyth & Co., in the first issue bought 93 percent of the issue; in the next issue 89 percent. The next 83 percent, the next issue 53 percent of the issue, the next issue bought 46 percent of the issue.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, you are referring to the exhibit which has been——

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). No, sir, I am not; I am referring to a table of my own.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, I mean when you say the next issue, are you referring to the issues that appear on this chart?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir; I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would the——

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). The next issue is——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Excuse me a moment, Mr. Stanley.

Would the Chair request for the convenience of those who are trying to follow the testimony, that the witness discuss them in the order in which they appear on the chart?

The CHAIRMAN. Yes, let's do that; Mr. Stanley, would you do that?

Mr. STANLEY. I will read the names, if I may.

The CHAIRMAN. If you will hold in your hand, or conveniently, a copy of this exhibit ² and then, for the benefit of the members of the committee, identify each issue from it, reading from the top down——

¹ "Exhibit No. 1703."

² "Exhibit No. 1703."

Mr. STANLEY. Right, sir. In the first issue——

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Which is the Illinois Bell?

Mr. STANLEY. The Illinois Bell issue, seven underwriters purchased 97 percent of that issue, the balance being taken by two more underwriters, presumably.

The CHAIRMAN. Pardon me?

Mr. STANLEY. The balance was taken by two more underwriters whose names are already in the testimony.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, now, let's see. Appearing on that table,¹ among the participants, are Morgan, Stanley & Co.; Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Lee Higginson Corporation; The First Boston Corporation; Brown Harriman & Co., Incorporated; Smith, Barney & Co.; later also identified as E. B. Smith & Co.

Mr. STANLEY. Those are the first seven to whom I referred.

The CHAIRMAN. And then the Mellon Securities Corporation and Bonbright & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. Right.

The CHAIRMAN. A total of nine underwriters?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir. The figures are in this chart, Senator, and those figures are the ratio that Mr. Nehemkis has figured out of the respective amounts that each firm purchased as compared to the amount we purchased. The figures that I am giving you are the amounts in the aggregate of seven people, of the total issued. I don't question the accuracy of Mr. Nehemkis' statement here or his computation of mathematics, but what I am trying to say is that it doesn't tell the story at all, because you have got to consider the whole issue. You can't give just part of the issue and——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Mr. Chairman, may I venture to say that it is impossible to make the kind of comparison that Mr. Stanley wants to make? I merely indicated, sir, that these were ratios and you can't compare ratios with absolute figures. Mr. Stanley should address himself to the chart in evidence, and then, if he wishes to——

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). He is doing that, Mr. Nehemkis, and what he is trying to do, as I understand him, is to point out to the committee what proportion of the entire issue was purchased by what underwriters and how many underwriters participated in each issue, and, of course, the committee is willing to have him make his explanation.

Senator KING. I think the explanation is quite proper and competent in connection with the transaction.

Mr. STANLEY. Thank you.

The second issue, the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. issue, the first seven names at the top of Mr. Nehemkis' sheet purchased 89 percent of the total issue.

The CHAIRMAN. But there were 10 participants in that issue, all told?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir; the next issue was the Pacific Tel. & Tel. 3¼'s, and those 7 people, the same 7 people, purchased 83 percent of the entire issue, and there were a total of 10 underwriters. The next issue, the American Tel. & Tel. issue of 1961, those same 7 people purchased 53 percent of the issue, and there were 47 underwriters; that is, 39 other people.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1703."

The CHAIRMAN. Now, may I interrupt you there to ask whether Morgan Stanley & Co. determined the identity of all the persons who participated and all of the firms that participated in that?

Mr. STANLEY. We did, sir; we discussed the names with the company, but they said the responsibility was ours, and as I said before, we had to guarantee performance.

The CHAIRMAN. Then the seven first names purchased how much of that security?

Mr. STANLEY. 53 percent.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, that allocation was made by you?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. And you allocated the other 47 percent to these additional underwriters whom you brought in of your volition?

Mr. STANLEY. Correct; entirely.

The CHAIRMAN. And that was done at your discretion, and I assume you were guided by a sort of—what would be the best form of distribution?

Mr. STANLEY. Correct, based on our opinion of the merits of the people.

The CHAIRMAN. Very well.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, do you want to point out that that was a $150,000,000 issue?

Mr. STANLEY. Quite. The amounts are shown, I think, on your list.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. STANLEY. The next issue of A. T. & T., of \$140,000,000, the 7 people bought 46 percent of the issue, and there were 97 underwriters. The next issue of Bell Telephone was $3\frac{1}{2}$ s— $3\frac{1}{4}$ s it should be—those same 7 people purchased 82 percent of the issue.

Senator KING. Purchased what?

Mr. STANLEY. 82 percent, sir; and there were how many underwriters?

Mr. YOUNG. Ten underwriters.

Mr. STANLEY. Ten underwriters. The Southern Bell issue, which was the next one, 7 people issued, it was a $42,500,000 issue, and the same 7 people purchased 54 percent of the issue and there were 48 underwriters. The next issue was New York Telephone Co., a $25,000,000 issue, and those 7 people purchased 98 percent of the issue, and there were 8 underwriters. The next issue, the Mountain States Telephone, the 7 people purchased 56 percent of the issue, and there were 37 underwriters.

On the Southwestern Bell issue, the 7 people purchased 56 percent of the issue, and there were 43 underwriters. That was a $28,000,000 issue. The Southern Bell issue, which is the last one, was $22,250,000, and 7 people purchased 55 percent of the issue, and there were 47 underwriters.

The CHAIRMAN. What was the largest percentage?

Senator KING. Who purchased the rest, on that last one, 45 percent?

Mr. STANLEY. There were 40 other people who joined in the purchase.

The CHAIRMAN. What was the largest percentage that you just gave us, allotted on any single issue, to the first seven firms?

Mr. STANLEY. The largest percentage was 98.40, and that is in the case of the New York Telephone Co., which the company wanted distributed primarily in the East and particularly in New York.

The CHAIRMAN. And the smallest was 50, or—

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). Forty-six percent.

The CHAIRMAN. Forty-six percent in what issue?

Mr. STANLEY. In the $140,000,000 A. T. & T.

The CHAIRMAN. And in all other issues, these seven participated in more than 50 percent?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, those seven firms which in each instance except one took more than half of the total, were Morgan, Stanley & Co., Inc.; Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Lee Higginson Corporation; The First Boston Corporation; Brown Harriman & Co., Inc.; and Smith, Barney & Co., also known as E. B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. And the various proportions which they took are substantially those set forth on the exhibit offered by Mr. Nehemkis?

Mr. STANLEY. I have no reason to question the accuracy of it.

The CHAIRMAN. That is a mathematical calculation; but as you glance at it, you see no reason to dispute the proportions?

Mr. STANLEY. Quite correct.

The CHAIRMAN. Very well.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, you have referred to the first seven names, or a phrase substantially similar to that. Will you now give me the names represented by that phrase, the first seven?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, the first seven names on your list.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No; the first seven names which you had occasion to refer to in your exposition of a moment ago. What are those seven names?

Mr. STANLEY. Well—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Well, I just read them, and he acknowledged them.

Mr. STANLEY. They are the first seven names on your list; they are the same names at the top of your table.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I see. I just wanted to make clear that we were talking about the first seven names.

Do you recall Mr. Charles Mitchell's testimony in regard to Telephone matters when he was here? I believe you were present.

Mr. STANLEY. I was present, I think, most of the time.

ACCOUNTS "FROZEN TO A FAR GREATER EXTENT THAN OTHERS"—THE TELEPHONE ACCOUNT

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am going to read to you what Mr. Mitchell had to say on the point now under discussion, may it please the committee:¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Mitchell, we left off this morning with a discussion of Telephone matters. You were good enough to indicate to the committee that you would make available certain information. Let me repeat to you some of the questions at this time. You had this to say, "There are certain accounts that are frozen to a far greater extent than others. For instance, what we know as the Telephone account.

"The CHAIRMAN. Is that a frozen account?

¹ Supra, p. 11573.

"Mr. MITCHELL. As to its leadership and the first few names on that account I think it is more nearly frozen, perhaps, than most accounts."

I skip a portion and I continue with Mr. Mitchell's testimony:

Mr. MITCHELL. I would say that for a long period of years—and I give you that from recollection—the business has been headed by J. P. Morgan and latterly by Morgan Stanley & Co., and there have always been in that group, always according to my recollection, Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Lee, Higginson & Co.; and latterly, Lee Higginson Corporation. Since Morgan Stanley & Co. have handled this financing, those names have headed the list. They have also followed them in all of the issues, The First Boston Corporation; Brown Hariman & Co.; and Edward B. Smith & Co., and those names by and large have been the names that have appeared in the public advertising.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And it was that list of names of those underwriting houses which you have just enumerated that you regard as being the group?

Mr. MITCHELL. Those names have appeared so often with the head of the group, with the head of the underwriting syndicate, that I would say that they were regarded as the principal names in the Telephone business.

Mr. Stanley, is there a Telephone group under the leadership of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated?

Mr. STANLEY. Not as I understand the meaning of the word.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, I now read you from a memorandum covered by stipulation of Mr. Charles E. Mitchell, may it please the committee.

The memo is dated September 23, 1936, and is addressed to members of the firm by Mr. George Leib, who was a witness here, as you will recall, Mr. Chairman. I now read you, Mr. Stanley—

Senator KING (interposing). Did that witness identify the statement?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This memo, Senator King, has been offered under a stipulation by the chairman of the board of Blyth & Co., who identifies it as coming from his files, and that stipulation¹ is in the record.

Senator KING. Well, the point I am trying to get at is, could that be regarded as having been sworn to by some person, some witness?

The CHAIRMAN. Yes, that was the understanding. Mr. Mitchell was here, and in order that he might not be required to remain, he acknowledged that, that that memo came from his files.

Senator KING. But he wouldn't swear to its accuracy and Mr. Leib was not here on the stand so he couldn't swear to it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am still saying, sir, that for purposes of identification, and that the record may be clear, Mr. Mitchell has stipulated and I am offering in connection with that stipulation, a memo coming from the files of Blyth & Co. I say nothing further with reference to its contents.

Senator KING. Well, you see, it is sort of getting the testimony in the back door, without bringing in the witness, Mr. Leib, on the stand and letting him swear that he made that statement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I must take exception to that.

Senator KING. Is Mr. Leib going to be called?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The record may show that counsel takes exception to that statement.

Senator KING. Let it be noted, but can Mr. Leib be called as a witness; yes or no?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. George Leib, in connection with this proceeding, is not to be called as a witness, Senator.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1691."

Senator KING. Well, I want to know—if he doesn't have his testimony here. We will continue.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Shall I proceed?

The CHAIRMAN. Proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading from "Exhibit No. 1705"].

Harold Stanley called up while you were out on the subject of American Telephone & Telegraph. There will be a \$175,000,000, 25-year, $3\frac{1}{4}$ s filed either today or tomorrow, to be offered about October 15. \$25,000,000 of this will be retained by the company for the pension fund.

It will be two point profit business with $\frac{3}{4}$ going to Morgan Stanley. Underwriters will receive $\frac{1}{4}$, subject to expenses and the selling group will receive $\frac{1}{4}$. * * * There will probably be about 45 underwriters—

And then appears a list of names. Now, the last paragraph [reading further].

Mr. Stanley went on to explain that there is absolutely no precedent in this business as the next issue will be a small one and it may be that they will go back to the original seven underwriters who appear publicly.

Mr. Chairman, I merely offer this in evidence at this time as an indication of what Mr. George Leib, whom the committee has seen and the committee has heard, understood at the time. It is offered in evidence.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1705" and is included in the appendix on p. 12250.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And if I may use an expression—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Of course, Mr. Nehemkis, there is no argument about the facts so far as I see them. The witness acknowledges that there were several principal underwriters. He merely concedes that those could be changed. These various exhibits that you are offering do not in any sense controvert that declaration. I don't see how it can be controverted because it is a matter of interpretation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct. I think you and I understand each other perfectly.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think also, Mr. Chairman, that some of the things we do offer support some of the contentions Mr. Stanley has made.

The CHAIRMAN. Yes, surely.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Chairman, in accordance with your previous arrangement concerning identification, I would like now to ask you to examine "Exhibit No. 1700," after I briefly touch on it, you will—if you will, sir, look at it. This exhibit was obtained from the files of E. B. Smith & Co., now known as Smith, Barney & Co. You will observe, sir, its very significant statement—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Now, is that one of the exhibits which we put in subject to future identification?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Subject to future identification, correct, sir. This exhibit sets forth in one column the various underwriting houses that have participated in Telephone securities from the time of the passage of the Securities Act in 1933 up until the Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph offering of June 9, 1938, and on the left-hand side appears a list of underwriters, but the significant thing about this is that only the percentages and further reference marks that I will come to are made with reference to the first seven, always the percentage of the first seven and always the position in advertising of the first seven.

It would seem—I make no other comment about it—that at least one important and responsible investment banking house thought that only the first seven houses were significant in this business.

Will you examine it, Mr. Chairman?

GUARANTY OF FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY OF OTHER MEMBERS OF SYNDICATE BY MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.

Mr. MILLER. Might I ask a question? Mr. Stanley, were all of these Telephone issues handled in the same manner, that is, you had to guarantee the account and all the members' responsibility in the account?

Mr. STANLEY. In each issue.

Mr. MILLER. I wonder if the committee have the impression that that is a normal type of account? Isn't that an extraordinary thing?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, it is not general, Mr. Miller. We have done it in a few other cases, but it isn't general. I don't know whether any other managers have done it or not. I don't recall any, but it seems to me that some have done it. But I might point out that there are various other kinds of guaranties that other managers arrange in other syndicates, a partial guaranty, up to 10 percent or the first 5 percent that might default, or whatever it might be, some guaranty of that kind. But I don't remember at the moment any other instance by any other manager of a complete guaranty of the entire underwriting.

Mr. MILLER. The usual thing is no guaranty on the part of the manager?

Mr. STANLEY. The usual thing is a separate, several contract between the underwriter and the company and that, of course, is one of the proofs that the company, in many cases, has a lot to say as to who the underwriters are, because they have a contract direct with them.

Mr. MILLER. I understand.

Senator KING. I didn't understand that last observation.

SEVERAL LIABILITY OF UNDERWRITERS UNDER PURCHASE CONTRACT WITH ISSUER

Mr. STANLEY. The way business is done now, sir, a group of people buy an issue of bonds, whatever the amount may be, from a borrowing company. The procedure under the present laws makes it better, or less difficult, to have each underwriter sign a contract with the borrower. One man buys a million bonds, another man buys two million bonds—or another firm, in both cases, rather—another firm buys “x” number of bonds, and in the aggregate they comprise the entire issue, and that is a several contract between each firm and the borrower, so naturally the borrower knows something about whom he is doing business with.

Senator KING. From your experience in the business to which you have been referring, is there any advantage to the borrower in knowing just what he will get for his entire issue, and knowing that he will not have to go out and look around for a purchaser, to peddle them here and there in various parts of the United States?

Mr. STANLEY. Oh, absolutely; a very great advantage. It is essential that he know that he has got the entire amount to be paid to him on the date set.

Senator KING. From your experience over a long period of years, is it more advantageous to the borrower and to the public to have a plan such as you have indicated, or rather to just let each issue be advertised and sold to any purchaser desiring to buy any portion, without any guaranty?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I think it is very much more to the advantage of the borrower and the investor to have continuing relations with responsible, competent people in the investment business, with a borrowing concern. I don't want to enlarge on it too much, but the investment banker who knows about the company for a long time and has gotten where they have mutual confidence in each other and have had satisfactory relations with each other, it is normal that they will continue and certainly they can do business better and more effectively than just a new man every time. Now, so far as the investor goes, such a person who has continued relations, whose advice is heeded and followed—they may be disagreed with but they talk it out and the company and the banker agree on what is the proper thing for the investor's interests—certainly the investor's interest is looked after a great deal better than in a case where the investment banker has nothing to say about a certain issue at all.

Senator KING. Another question: Are there many issues of bonds, not coming within the category to which you have referred in Mr. Nehemkis' memo, that have defaulted? In other words, in the general issue of bonds, not those that are guaranteed, are there many in default during the past few years?

Mr. STANLEY. By the underwriter to the borrower, you mean, sir, or do you mean by the public?

Senator KING. The purchaser.

Mr. STANLEY. You mean the borrower?

Senator KING. By the issuer.

Mr. STANLEY. There have not been many defaults of American corporations in recent years. Perhaps I don't understand your question correctly.

Senator KING. Well, are there many companies which have purchased bonds not in this—small group or individual groups, purchased bonds—have they defaulted?

Mr. STANLEY. Oh, I think perhaps I understand your question as, Do the investment banking firms—have they defaulted? No, sir, not often.

Senator KING. Where the investment banker has made a guaranty such as is indicated in these, have there been any defaults?

Mr. STANLEY. We haven't been called on to make up any defaults.

Senator KING. That is all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, may I clear up one point about your earlier testimony? As you were going over a list which was available to you, you indicated that in the Southern Bell Telephone Co. $42,500,000 offering in 1937, the underwriting group had been increased from either 9 or 10 to 48. Is it not a fact that you increased that underwriting group at the express request of the Telephone Co.?

Mr. YOUNG. Is that Southwestern?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Southern Bell Telephone, $42,500,000, 3¼'s, 25-year debentures.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I think very likely, Mr. Nehemkis. I can't be sure of the dates, but as I have testified, as business went on, as business began, we—this was 1937.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right.

Mr. STANLEY. But I am coming back in a moment. In the initial Bell issue, we thought the most appropriate and best thing to do—and I would like to explain some of the reasons in a moment—was to have a fairly small group and a very large distributing group. That was—we were just starting in business, and you know the conditions in the investment markets were uncertain. People's ability wasn't fully tested, these new firms and all that. As we went on and did more business, we became convinced, and the company also felt that it was very wise, on large issues, national issues, to have a much larger underwriting, and between us, we agreed. The determination of the people, however, was left to us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I should like to refer—

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). We started that in 1936, Mr. Young says.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I should like to refer at this time to a memorandum which has already been received in evidence, as "Exhibit No. 1701," subject to our prevailing understanding. This memorandum confirms substantially what Mr. Stanley just said. It is a memorandum from Mr. H. M. Addinsell with reference to the Southern Bell offer, dated April 14, 1937. I should like also to refer to another memorandum by Mr. Addinsell, "Exhibit No. 1702," on the Southern Bell Telephone offering of 1939.

RECIPROCITY WITH MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, may it please the committee, I should like to read to you a letter from Mr. Mitchell. This letter is covered by Mr. Mitchell's stipulation¹ in evidence. This letter is directed by Charles E. Mitchell to his partner on the west coast, Charles R. Blyth, and reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1706"]:

I have had several talks with Harold Stanley regarding Pacific Telephone business and have used every argument that I can muster that we should be up around the top in that offering. He started out with the proposition that it was going to be impossible to revise the old account. Later he conceded us a position of $1,000,000 in the underwriting and the last appearing name. Then he told me that there was just as much pressure from the Coast for the care of Dean Witter as there was for us and if he revamped the account to take us in, he would have to find some place for Dean Witter, and now in a letter written just as he was leaving for a holiday, he writes me as to the set-up as follows:

"As to Pacific Telephone, we have tried to consider all the different aspects of that issue. It is not coming for some time, but I think that the participants will be invited on the following basis."

Then appears the first seven names that we have been referring to, and three additional names, Blyth & Co., Dean Witter, and Harris & Co.

Continuing with Mr. Stanley's letter, which Mr. Mitchell quotes [reading further]:

"The names to appear in the advertisement in the order given.

"I know you will keep the above confidential, as we haven't spoken of any of the other houses, and the above program may be changed.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1691."

"After giving not only your wishes but the entire matter a lot of thought I am convinced that the above arrangement is fair all around and to the best interests of the business.

And now, sir, I call your attention particularly to the next paragraph [reading further]:

"I note what you say about your having offered us the participation in Pacific Gas & Electric, which of course we appreciated and which we were very glad to accept, but really there can be no connection between that and the Pacific Telephone business in your mind or ours."

Mr. Stanley, did that mean that you recognized that Blyth & Co. could not possibly reciprocate to you by having offered you a piece of P. G. & E. business for Telephone business?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I don't know what it meant, because I don't know what was said in Mr. Mitchell's letter, but it certainly has no connection; there is no connection between the two in my mind.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You still maintain that?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1706" and is included in the appendix on p. 12250.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now let me read to you from Mr. Mitchell's testimony:¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You can't ever hope really to reciprocate to Morgan Stanley? Mr. MITCHELL. No; oh, no; they are not in our line of business.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I don't know whether you want me to comment on that or not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Only if you wish, sir.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I don't see any reason at all why people can't do business with people who want to do business with them, but I say, in connection with the testimony that has happened here on reciprocity, that a man or firm cannot run a syndicate that he is managing on a basis of anything except merit and performance and usefulness to the business.

UNDERWRITING RISK RELATIVE TO TELEPHONE ISSUES

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, we have been discussing a case history of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. for 3 days. We have developed for the committee the origins of that business and we have carried it through the leadership of Morgan Stanley. May I ask you this question. What risk is actually involved in managing a Telephone issue?

Senator KING. What was the second word of your question?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What risk, Senator, is there actually involved in going in a Telephone issue?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, Mr. Chairman, I don't see how you can apply that, if you are implying that there is no risk in any business you do. For instance, when the war happened—

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, I don't think that that was called for by the witness at all. I think the question was very plain and the witness has in my opinion no right to read an implication into that statement.

The CHAIRMAN. It was a conditional implication.

¹ Supra, p. 11600.

Mr. STANLEY. May I add to my answer in this way, that the risks involved in handling Telephone issues which are of the highest character are similar to the risks of handling all bond issues: The matter of markets, changing markets; the matter of proper pricing; there might be no risk as to insolvency.

Mr. HENDERSON. What was that?

Mr. STANLEY. There might be no risk as to the insolvency of the Telephone Company. For instance, when rumors of war happened in September, the outstanding Telephone bond issues went off 10 points, and if the syndicate had had a commitment at that time they would have had a loss. If you overprice the issue, as we did in the last Southern Bell issue, you may have a loss there, the bonds went down. I am very glad to say that on most of the issues we happened to have priced them very properly. Now, I might inject here, Senator—you have asked myself and I think some of the other witnesses whether there was any assurance that the price that was obtained by this method of negotiations was a fair and adequate price.

Leaving aside the question of the spread for the moment, which is all a matter of record in the S. E. C. and most of the utility issues are passed upon by one commission or another as to its propriety, I think the best answer, for instance, on the Illinois Bell issue was the price it sold at in the open market. I have those figures here. It was offered at 102 $\frac{1}{2}$ and a month after it sold in the wide-open market at 102 $\frac{5}{8}$. Now, it is a matter of judgment, and you have got to have experience in pricing and in merchandising. The same questions of judgment come into competitive bidding—I mean there isn't anything automatic about competitive bidding; a fellow forms an opinion as to what the proper price is, and he may be right or wrong.

The CHAIRMAN. What you are saying now is that in this particular issue—

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. A month or so after the underwriting had been completed—

Mr. STANLEY. Right.

The CHAIRMAN. The issue was commanding in the open market a price which was at least a point above—

Mr. STANLEY. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. That at which it was disposed of.

Mr. STANLEY. It was selling at a price approximately the same, fractionally above the price at which it was offered, an eighth above. It was offered at 102 $\frac{1}{2}$.

The CHAIRMAN. So at this period, after the underwriting, the issue was commanding in the public market not only the price at which the underwriters purchased from the issuing company but also the entire spread.

Mr. STANLEY. Right. The spread in my opinion is the compensation you pay for distribution, the same as you distribute any kind of commodity. You buy at wholesale and sell at retail.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, of course the point in a matter of this kind is whether so large a compensation should be paid for the distribution of so high-grade a security.

Mr. STANLEY. That may be one question. That is also a question of pricing and markets.

The CHAIRMAN. Surely; and I recognize that different answers might be given.

Mr. STANLEY. Further than that, I think there is another point not often thought of. You get into the question of whether wide public distribution is a good thing or not, or whether concentrated holdings are preferable. Generally speaking, it has been my experience that the corporation which has to borrow every year, or every 2 years, with an expanding business, which I hope we are going to have again soon, those people would rather, generally speaking, have their securities widely distributed and have a market as a gage of their credit in the case of future issues. Now the only way you can get wide distribution from here to California and any other place is by having hundreds of dealers all over the country work and sell those bonds. The big houses can't do it all, the entire amount. They can do part but not all of it, and you have to pay those fellows or they won't work, and that is where part of your spread goes. There has been a lot of talk about dividing up the profits of business that people didn't own here—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). There wasn't a great deal of talk; there was one simple short sentence.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, that I agree with, Senator, completely. The selling commission is about half of the total spread, but on the question of division of profits among various bankers and their participations in issues, I am not sure that it has been brought out, I don't think that it has in the testimony I have heard, that when a man takes a million-dollar commitment as underwriter, if things go well he may make $6,000; if things go wrong, Lord knows what he will lose. I mean we talk in such large figures that the compensation is lost sight of in the maze of large figures. Now another thing in distribution, and it is related to this Telephone business, that I would like to say very briefly is that most of these Telephone issues were refunding issues, and in considering the appropriate people who would be useful in the new syndicate, we naturally thought of people who had sold Telephone securities before. They were in touch with those people, those securities were to be taken away from them by redemption and new securities issued in their place. They naturally were in a much better position to place the new Telephone issues because of their knowledge and their clients having had old Telephone issues. As has been testified to here, the Telephone Co. developed in New England; the securities were largely held in the East. We had a list of the holders of the Illinois Bell issue that was to be redeemed. It was public information in the manuals of institution holdings, trusts, charities, insurance companies, and so forth, and of that issue those institutions alone held over half the issue. So it is obvious that the markets, generally speaking, as well as the holdings of the telephone bonds, are in the East rather than the West. We did put bonds in the West in the selling group and in other places too. Incidentally, we put quite a large amount in Chicago.

I may say that Mr. Stuart is an old friend, but his figures were wrong in the amount of his selling participation. He had $1,000,000 which he accepted.

The CHAIRMAN. What about the distribution of Telephone stock? Is that carried on in the same way?

Mr. STANLEY. That is generally, or latterly, by the company offering directly to its own shareholders, nobody else having anything to do with it, and the price is very attractive and way below the market. There have been times in the past where the Telephone Co. had a campaign of selling stock to the public, but that hasn't been done lately.

Mr. AVILDSSEN. You said that the Southwestern Bell issue was overpriced, I believe?

Mr. STANLEY. No; the Southern Bell.

Mr. AVILDSSEN. Would you explain what you mean by overpriced?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, priced at a figure where it wasn't attractive to all the public, and all the bonds were not sold and the price went off.

Mr. AVILDSSEN. Who got the benefit of the overpricing, the underwriters or the Company?

Mr. STANLEY. The Company.

Mr. AVILDSSEN. The Company got the benefit of the overpricing?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. AVILDSSEN. How about the investor?

Mr. STANLEY. The investor lost, if he bought bonds at that price, unless he bought them after they had gone down.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you mean the investor lost if he bought a bond and then sold?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes; if he retains it he may not have a loss at all.

Senator KING. Have you concluded your statement, Mr. Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir.

Senator KING. I want to ask one question. From your experience, is it more satisfactory to the public in general to have underwriting than where you sell without any underwriting? In other words, you sell more readily where the bonds are underwritten by responsible organizations?

Mr. STANLEY. Much more so in the latter case, and, in addition to that, Senator, of course when a company has a bond that is coming due, as the New York Telephone Co. did this fall—seventy-five million, or whatever the figure was—they have got to have somebody agree to provide that amount of money on October 1, or whatever the date is. They can't go out and make an effort to sell things and get half of it and not the rest of it at all, and the same thing applies in these refunding issues, of which there have been a great many in the last year, calling an outstanding security, paying perhaps 5 or 6 percent, to refund at 3 percent. When they make a call to the bondholders those bonds come due, and they have got to have the money in their pockets to pay them.

Senator KING. That would necessitate—or at least it is believed to be necessary to go out then, and organize a syndicate for the purpose of taking up the refunding issue?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I interpose at this moment and ask the committee's indulgence to continue a little longer than we usually do so that we may conclude with Mr. Stanley's testimony before lunch and not run over our schedule? As you recall, we have already advised certain witnesses that their appearance would not be necessary.

The CHAIRMAN. How long do you expect?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. About 20 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, I believe you were present here yesterday when the committee received in evidence a table¹ showing that on the old J. P. Morgan syndicates of Telephone bonds the syndicate books frequently closed in 1 minute, 5 minutes, 30 minutes, an hour; 2 hours was considered a flop. Now, do you find any substantial difficulties in disposing of Telephone bonds since Morgan Stanley has had the leadership of the telephone business?

Mr. STANLEY. I think the bonds have gone very well in most cases excepting the last Southern Bell issue.

I want to point out that what you have said, your description of the method prior to 1935, is not correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Excuse me, sir; do you want to testify about a matter pertaining to J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. I can testify about the general practice in the securities business because that is what I was in charge of at the Guaranty.

The general practice in subscription issues prior to the 1933 Banking Act was that selling syndicates were formed, and they were told a few days in advance that subscription books would open on a certain date, and between the time they got that notice and the opening of the books they sold the bonds; maybe it took 2 or 3 days. The idea that they sold the bonds—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). That isn't what has ever been said. The table and any comments on the table merely said that the books were closed, not that the bonds were sold. The books were closed; that is what we are talking about.

But let me proceed, sir, if you have finished. Hasn't Morgan Stanley's biggest difficulty in Telephone issues really been in keeping out other underwriters who wanted participations?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, as in almost all good business, Mr. Nehemkis, there are underwriters who would like to have been included in the Telephone issues, who were not, but you can't include everybody who is eligible in any piece of business. The conversation on the part of certain people who may have desired to be included, when they talk to us, isn't very realistic. They talk about being included, and they don't even know what the price is going to be, it is just conversation, they are soliciting business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, the Illinois Bell offering of 1935, with which we started this morning, was a refunding, was it not, of the Illinois Bell of 1923, headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. I don't know; I think so. It was a refunding issue of an outstanding bond.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you ask one of your assistants?

Mr. YOUNG. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you accept Mr. Young's answer as your answer?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, quite.

PROFITS OF J. P. MORGAN & CO. AND MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED, ON TELEPHONE FINANCING

Mr. NEHEMKIS. From an exhibit² previously offered and now in evidence it appears that the 1923 issue had a total spread of $3\frac{1}{4}$, or

¹ "Exhibit No. 1688."

² "Exhibit No. 1681."

$1,625,000, and the total profit to J. P. Morgan & Co. from the flotation of the 1923 issue was $144,000.

Now in 1935, Mr. Stanley, on the issue of Illinois Bell which was brought out under the leadership of Morgan Stanley, there was a spread of 2 points or $874,000, and from the table¹ that you now have before you, you will note that the total profit to Morgan Stanley from the flotation of the 1935 issue was $211,345. Note, Mr. Stanley, that J. P. Morgan & Co.'s gross profit was less than 10 percent of the gross spread. Morgan Stanley's gross profit was almost 25 percent of the gross spread.

Now would you care to indicate why there should be such a glaring discrepancy?

Mr. STANLEY. I don't think there is any connection between the two things.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you want the record to show that that is your answer?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is not the ability to collect a quarter point management fee on the entire issue one of the major perquisites of leadership in syndication?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, any one of the—I don't know that I would call it a major perquisite, I think that is an improper designation, but I would say one of the most important parts of any syndicate offering is the work that the manager does in preparing the issue, advising the company, forming the underwriting group, forming the selling group, sponsoring the issue, putting his own money up to back his own judgment.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me put my question to you bluntly, sir. Underwriters don't work for nothing. Is not the quarter-point management fee very important?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now Morgan Stanley's management fees on Telephone business have amounted, have they not, to approximately $2,000,000?

Mr. STANLEY. I will have to add them up, but I should think our total profits, including management fees, ran somewhere around a half of 1 percent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you accept my figure, subject to your correction?

Mr. STANLEY. Certainly.

(Senator King took the chair.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I should like to offer at this time a table which gives the figures that I have been referring to. You will note, sir, that the source of the data upon which this table has been predicated was furnished us by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

Acting CHAIRMAN KING. Have you seen it, Mr. Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. I have not seen it, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1707," and is included in the appendix on p. 12251.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it not be possible for the witness to accept that subject to correction at his leisure if he finds any inaccuracies?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1707."

Acting Chairman KING. During the recess, if you desire to make any suggestions or corrections you may do so when the committee meets.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I merely say that so we may go ahead.

Mr. STANLEY. Certainly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact, sir, that Morgan Stanley's total profits on Telephone business has amounted to $2,800,000.

Mr. STANLEY. The total gross profits, which in your table shows before taxes, overhead, and return on capital—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Two million eight hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. STANLEY. That is the figure before those expenses and other items which I have just mentioned, taxes and overhead—

Acting CHAIRMAN KING (interposing). Out of that there would be expenses, rent of your office, and employees?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, indeed, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. Social Security.

Mr. STANLEY. It is a very expensive kind of organization to keep. You have business, sometimes a lot of it at once, and sometimes it is a long time before you have it. You have to keep a staff of expert people, and, of course, after taxes are paid nowadays there is not so much left.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, you may recall, having been present here yesterday, that the committee received in evidence a table¹ showing the amount of securities floated under the leadership of J. P. Morgan, and the profits realized thereon.

Mr. STANLEY. I was here, but I missed that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will give it to you now. Between 1920 and 1930, according to the table now in evidence, J. P. Morgan & Co. floated a total of $832,000,000 of Telephone securities on which it realized a profit of $2,969,000. Now the total spread on this business, in dollars, amounted to approximately $27,500,000, and the Morgan profit was about 11 percent of the total.

Now Mr. Stanley, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, has managed approximately $580,000,000 of Telephone securities on which its gross profit, as you have indicated the use of the term, has been $2,778,000. The banker's gross commission in your business, that is to say, under your leadership, has been $11,500,000 and Morgan Stanley's percentage of the total gross commissions has been, according to my calculations, in excess of 25 percent as compared with but 11 percent for J. P. Morgan & Co.

Would you accept that?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I would say that it certainly is 2 or 3 or 10 times as hard to do business now as it used to be, with all these laws and regulations and what not. I am a firm and strong believer and in favor of the underlying ideas of the Securities Act, but actually it is awfully expensive to do business today, and further than the expense of it, you have civil liabilities that run for 3 years and you don't know what they mean.

I might say, Senator, that our guaranty of performance in the Telephone issues alone raises a civil liability—if they were all within a 3-year period, which I am not sure they were—of a total of $580,000,000. Theoretically, conceivably we are liable on that whole amount.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1681-3."

POSITION OF DEALER

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have indicated, Mr. Stanley, that the possibilities of profit are becoming more and more difficult. Has the proportionate share in the business been felt by the distributor, has he shared equally with the underwriter in these profits?

Mr. STANLEY. I am not sure that I get your question clearly, Mr. Nehemkis.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have indicated that it is more difficult today—

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). More expensive, and more difficult.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. More expensive for the underwriter to do business?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have given some of the reasons. What about the little dealer scattered over the country? Does he share in the profits realized by the underwriters to the same extent?

Mr. STANLEY. Does he share in the profits realized by the underwriters to the same extent as he previously did?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. STANLEY. The business is done on an entirely different basis. In the old days the dealers—it is hard to say this without being technical, Senator. Let me begin again. In the old days the selling syndicate usually included a lot of dealers, the principal people in the business and other people; all of those people had a firm commitment in the syndicate. To go back a minute—beyond that, usually in those days a group of a few people bought an issue and then formed a syndicate which they sold it to, but everybody had a firm commitment in the syndicate. Nowadays the dealer doesn't have a firm commitment. Underwriters buy a block of bonds from a company, buy an entire issue; they hold the bag, they offer the dealers around the country an opportunity to sell those bonds, give them an option for a day, and he gets less compensation working on a commission or on an option than he used to get when he made a firm commitment.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me see if I can make a little clearer what I had in mind a moment ago. The gross spread, as you have indicated, as the evidence shows, has been cut roughly in half. The underwriter's proportion, however, has been increased about 250 percent. Now here was what I was trying to get out. Has the dealer been getting a smaller share than he got before?

Mr. STANLEY. The dealer who is not an underwriter?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, he functions—yes, I think the dealer who sells today on an option gets less compensation than the dealer who in the old days sold not as a dealer but as a member of a selling syndicate which is different from an underwriter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is what I was trying to get.

Mr. STANLEY. He does a different job. He doesn't have liabilities under the Securities Act. The underwriter does.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me ask you a question at this point. Is the result of what you have just said, namely, the smaller share, which has been going to the dealer, result from anything the dealer has done? Has he asked for it?

Mr. STANLEY. The dealer prefers it. The dealer would rather make a commission on selling what bonds he is able to sell in a day than to take up bonds that he doesn't know whether he can sell or not. You see, under this method he doesn't have to take them up until after he is able to sell them, and naturally he is much safer and most of these smaller dealers haven't got very much capital. It also has another feature which has nothing to do with your question which is a good feature; it cuts out this high pressure selling to a great extent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I don't think you were here at the opening of the hearings, but we opened at that time with Commissioner Henderson reading a very historic letter. He read at that time a letter from Lee, Higginson & Co. to Frederick P. Fish, Esq., president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. The letter was dated February 15, 1905. With your leave I want to conclude these hearings by reading to Mr. Stanley one paragraph of that letter. Will you follow me on this, sir?

Acting Chairman KING. Did you hear it?

Mr. STANLEY. No, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (reading from "Exhibit No. 1708") :

As we think we have made it apparent to your Company ever since our firm and Messrs. Speyer & Co. provided for the last capital requirements, we are anxious to be afforded an opportunity to show on what terms we can provide the fresh capital desired by the Company for the coming year. We do not ask or suggest that we should be given the slightest preference over any banking firms. The Company is in sound financial condition, and we submit that there is no reason, based on the condition of the Company in the present market situation, why the company should not provide for its wants on the best terms available, and we think it a fair statement to say that the Company cannot determine what these are if it permits a single firm only to lay before it a plan to provide for its financial requirements.

Mr. Stanley, isn't the situation which Francis Higginson, one of the most distinguished bankers of his time, was writing about in 1905 just as true at the present time?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I would say two things in answer to that, Mr. Nehemkis. First, if the Telephone Company doesn't think we do a good job it is not going to keep us, and they are very competent people. In the second place, I would say when we as manager convey our ideas to the company as to what we think are the proper terms of an issue it represents the combined opinion of the best firms in the business, the best distributors.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, sir, very much.

(Senator O'Mahoney resumed the chair.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, there are a few documents to be offered at this time. The table to which I made reference earlier and the source has been identified. I should like this historic letter from Francis Higginson to Mr. Fish printed in full, if you will, sir. A letter to me from Mr. Henry S. Sturgis, giving certain percentages in the participations of Telephone issues under the J. P. Morgan & Co. leadership, and a similar table and a letter of transmittal from Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the documents may be admitted.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1708, 1709-1 to 1709-3, and 1710-1 and 1710-2," and are included in the appendix on pp. 12252-12256.)

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any other questions to be addressed to Mr. Stanley?

MEMORANDUM ON COMPETITIVE BIDDING BY MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.

Mr. STANLEY. I am not sure but that in the last sentence I spoke of the best firms in the business. I would like to have it made clear I mean the best other firms in the business.

There is one other thing I would like to say, sir. There has been a good deal of reference to competitive bidding and what is in the public interest in the two methods of doing business. We had hoped this subject would come up in these hearings and we tried to put our own ideas in shape to present them as completely as we could on that subject and to be prepared to be examined and cross-examined on it. I am very sorry that there isn't time in these hearings to go into that subject fully, but in order not to waste time on it I put my own ideas in the form of a memorandum which I would like very much to submit to the committee and have it put in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Stanley, Mr. Henderson pointed out earlier this morning that the S. E. C. is apparently preparing a complete study on that very question. We have endeavored to have these various matters presented in an orderly way so that all sides could be reviewed at one and the same time. The insertion now of a statement by you would immediately subject the committee to requests from persons who take a different view, don't you see?

Mr. STANLEY. Quite right.

The CHAIRMAN. And if you will bear with the committee or the chairman in that respect I think perhaps it would be best.

Mr. STANLEY. I quite understand that you can't attempt to argue the question when there are other points of view, but if it isn't possible to put it in the record may I submit it to you and the other members of the committee for them to read?

The CHAIRMAN. We would like very much to have you do that, and I assure you that it will be given the very closest attention.

Mr. STANLEY. First rate, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. When that particular question comes up it will be thoroughly reviewed.

Mr. STANLEY. First rate, sir. I will then submit it.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, I object to the submission at this time even for members of the committee, for these reasons: The subject of competitive bidding as it relates to Mr. Stanley's firm and a number of other firms is one of the most acute and most often discussed. We in the S. E. C. and in the Investment Banking Section have been pressed by others of different and opposing views to have a hearing. We have told each one who asked to be heard, some of whom are presently engaged in controversy with Mr. Stanley's firm for pieces of business, that this hearing was not going to take up this particular matter. I feel that we have given a certain amount of promise to those of opposing view who wanted to be heard, and they would have a right to resent it if Mr. Stanley in a hearing that was decidedly limited were able to intrude his views, no matter what the guise. This committee is at liberty to do as it pleases, of course, but I want to register, in no uncertain terms and in the strongest language I can command, an opposition to this particular introduction even to members of the committee at this time, for the reasons I have stated.

Mr. STANLEY. I didn't suggest this thing with any idea of going into arguments or into controversy that Mr. Henderson speaks of. There is no reference whatever in this memorandum to that subject. I only suggested doing it because the topic has come up repeatedly in these hearings at which I have been present.

The CHAIRMAN. Let me say it is a matter of great personal interest to me, and Mr. Stanley and the others would be at perfect liberty to leave this room and go down to the post office and mail it to each one of us. He has agreed that it shall not be entered as a part of the record, and I really can't see any objection to the members of the committee receiving it.

Mr. HENDERSON. I regard it, Mr. Chairman, as decidedly a disregard of the orderly presentation of information before this committee. If it needs any stronger language I will be glad to offer it at this time. I want this committee to be under no doubt as to how I feel about the submission of one point of view by what I would consider a backdoor method. Mr. Stanley is at liberty to do anything he wants in America with his point of view, but for this committee to recognize it I say does not keep faith with the others whom we have assured that this matter would not come up here.

The CHAIRMAN. But the committee is not recognizing it under the agreement that I announced would be perfectly willing to adopt.

Mr. HENDERSON. It makes no difference.

The CHAIRMAN. I feel myself, by some inadvertent questions which I addressed to the committee without first submitting them to the S. E. C., that I provoked this matter, and for myself I am perfectly willing and happy to receive the letter and I don't believe that it in any way interferes with the presentation of this hearing by the S. E. C.

Senator KING. I would like to ask Mr. Stanley one question. Does that in any way explain or cover the testimony which you have been giving here today, or deal with that same subject?

Mr. STANLEY. It refers to the same general subjects.

Mr. HENDERSON. To the A. T. & T. financing?

Mr. STANLEY. No, sir; not to any specific piece of financing; the general subjects of what an investment banker does and should do for his client.

Mr. HENDERSON. I call the witness' attention to the fact that the subject matter before us was the A. T. & T. financing.

Senator KING. If that were true, and we asked questions that transgressed those limitations, it seems to me perhaps in fairness to the counsel representing the Government and the witness, they would have a right to make an explanation of anything that was developed here in the hearing, and I would accept the views of the chairman.

Mr. STANLEY. It is a question of doing business in general without relation to any particular company.

Thank you.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there other questions? Are you going to have other witnesses this afternoon?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We have three witnesses for this afternoon. Shall I tell you their names now?

The CHAIRMAN. It might be well.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. George Whitney and Mr. Arthur Anderson of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Mr. Joseph R. Swan, of Smith, Barney & Co.

The CHAIRMAN. The committee will stand in recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

(Whereupon, at 12:50 p. m., the committee recessed until 2 p. m. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

The committee resumed at 2:12 p. m., on the expiration of the recess.

The CHAIRMAN. The committee will please come to order.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I apologize, Mr. Chairman, for holding you up.

The CHAIRMAN. It is the first time you have done it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I hope that you will forgive me. May I ask for your further indulgence for one moment more? May the Commissioner and I have an off-the-record discussion for a few seconds with Mr. George Whitney before his testimony?

The CHAIRMAN. You may.

Mr. HENDERSON. I should say, Mr. Chairman, that Mr. Nehemkis was trying to see me all noon hour and I was conferring with you.

The CHAIRMAN. You were buying my lunch. [Laughter.]

(Off-the-record discussion.)

The CHAIRMAN. Are you ready to resume, Mr. Nehemkis?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am, Mr. Chairman, I apologize again, sir.

Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. In view of certain evidence which has just come to my knowledge I find it necessary at this time to recall Mr. George Whitney who, of course, will appear later, but I am now recalling him on the Telephone matter.

Mr. George Whitney, please.

TESTIMONY OF GEORGE WHITNEY, J. P. MORGAN & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, have you ever had occasion to give sworn testimony which is contradictory to anything which you have had occasion to testify to before this committee in the past few days?

Mr. WHITNEY. No.

TESTIMONY OF MR. WHITNEY IN THE NIAGARA HUDSON POWER HEARING RELATIVE TO TELEPHONE FINANCING

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, I read to you testimony taken at a private hearing before the Securities and Exchange Commission in the matter of the application of Niagara Hudson Power Corporation for exemption as a subsidiary of the United Corporation.

This appears on page 153 [reading]:

Question. There were no commitments, formal or informal—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). By whom was the question?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By Mr. Lawrence S. Lesser, acting as counsel for the Securities and Exchange Commission [reading]:

Question. There were no commitments formal or informal, were there?

Answer. No.

Question. In those days, there used to be formed what were known as groups?

Answer. I suppose if you want to, you have to acknowledge—I mean, men acquired certain vested rights in these groups which they have bitterly resented if they were changed, but as far as any agreement on our part, or any paper or contractual thing in any of these, or in any other, the only group that we ever had anything to do with in the last 25 years that I know about is telephone. In the old days there was a traditional position, percentages, in the so-called telephone group which we managed, but there there was a definite arrangement. That is the only one.

Do you care to make any comment, sir?

Mr. WHITNEY. Merely this, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Nehemkis was kind enough to show me this testimony to see if it refreshed my memory in connection with my first answer, which he thought was contradictory. I don't consider that that is in any way contradictory. I said there, if I can remember exactly, that certain people bitterly resented changing percentage that they considered they had vested rights, but that we never had contract or arrangement. I have never on the stand in the last few days questioned the accuracy of the memorandum Mr. Nehemkis has presented from Kidder's in which they had used the word "proprietary," and so forth.

There was quite a lot of discussion in the last 2 or 3 days about how we tried to change those percentages, about this pencil memorandum of mine which I have specific reference to,¹ and how we were unsuccessful in that. And while I haven't so testified, it would have seemed to me to be clear that Mr. Winsor felt from his exhibits—from his actions when we have tried consistently through the twenties to continue to extract from the New England distribution for the national distribution, a larger percentage, that he felt he had a right, going away back from 1906 when he introduced us to the business, and right on down through, and I am perfectly clear that in that testimony I gave a year or two ago, or whenever it was, I had in mind that he did consider they had vested rights. But I would like to just say—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). When was that testimony given?

Mr. WHITNEY. January 24, 1939, less than a year ago. But I said here, as Mr. Nehemkis read, that as far as any agreement on our part or any paper or contractual thing, the only group that I know is the Telephone where Mr. Winsor was successful in resisting any wish that we in the distributing end of my office had. While I don't know this, I am pretty sure because I had some conversations on the same subject in 1930 with Mr. Winsor; I have not felt it was my duty to answer a lot of things that were irrelevant to the questions, but I don't consider—and I still stand on my answer—that there is anything contradictory. The facts are simply these, that we had a job of work to do. We thought we could do it better by changing the percentages. Mr. Winsor felt that he had a right in it that we never recognized, and that we never considered true.

The CHAIRMAN. You tried to change the percentages as long ago as May 6, 1920?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes; and practically constantly through the next 10 years.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1679."

The CHAIRMAN. So that this effort on your part, this unsuccessful effort, to change the percentages, lasted down to January 1939, and it was of such a character that at that time in your testimony you spoke of it from the point of view of those who were holding the interests as a vested right?

Mr. WHITNEY. That is right. And, of course, perhaps it is irrelevant to mention the context, that this came up against a suggestion by the S. E. C. lawyers that there was another case in connection with Niagara Hudson, where certain people considered they had vested rights.

The CHAIRMAN. My impression, you know, was that you testified that the word "proprietary" came to you as a complete surprise.

Mr. WHITNEY. And that it was Winsor's word. I have never questioned the accuracy, or his attitude. I never was asked what Mr. Winsor thought about it. Obviously, I wouldn't know, but I have never questioned that he considered he had a vested right. I was talking about J. P. Morgan & Co.

The CHAIRMAN. You knew at all times, concerning which you have testified, that Winsor and his associates did think they had a vested or proprietary interest in this matter?

Mr. WHITNEY. Certainly.

Senator KING. In the New England matter?

The CHAIRMAN. No; in the distribution of the Telephone securities.

Mr. WHITNEY. You notice, also, that I used the word "traditional," which is what Mr. Winsor said.

Senator KING. Well, so that I may be clear in regard to the matter, did Mr. Winsor claim any interest in any of the Telephone issues except those relating to corporations engaged in Telephone business in the New England States?

Mr. WHITNEY. Oh, certainly. All the American Telephone System and its subsidiaries throughout the country. These are financial operations, Senator King, that I have testified about during these last 2½ days, which had to do with the whole system. This memorandum of May 5, 1920,¹ had to do with the A. T. & T. and subsidiaries. He thought it went to everything.

Senator KING. The reason I asked the question was that I understood you to say that he brought you the business from the New England States, and that you tried to change the percentage there, and that his testimony, or your testimony there, related to his contention with respect to the New England issues and not with respect to any other Telephone issues.

Mr. WHITNEY. No, sir; that goes back to the very first days, traditionally back to 1906, the financing of the Telephone system was handled in New England in 1906. I testified the other day that because the financial program got to be of such size, Mr. Winsor felt that it could no longer be handled successfully in New England alone, so he approached Messrs. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and ourselves for assistance in a transaction of convertible bonds, and that was where we became in the first instance connected with Telephone financing. And I think Mr. Winsor felt that that—let me put it a different way. I think we felt that that was very difficult, to insist on things with Mr. Winsor, when Mr. Winsor claimed certain rights. But we never believed in those. We never felt that we had any vested rights to the business unless we did a good job for our clients, and it was their election in each issue that came along.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1673."

RECOGNITION OF CLAIMS OF KIDDER, PEABODY & CO.

Mr. HENDERSON. During the twenties, you did recognize the claim that he set up?

Mr. WHITNEY. We had no option but to recognize it.

Mr. HENDERSON. What do you mean by that, "no option"? You have testified there was no legal right, derived from the library agreement, that he could assert against you.

Mr. WHITNEY. Oh, well, technically, if we wanted to be perfectly ruthless, we would have made an issue of it, but that isn't the way we do business.

Senator KING. I want to ask one question. I omitted to ask it of one of the witnesses who was on the stand. What proportion or percentage of the underwriting during the past—oh, 5, 6, 8, or 10 years, has been with respect to new issues and what proportion with respect to refunding operations?

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, if I may testify—it is very hard to distinguish between them. I think, Senator, it is fair to say that Morgan Stanley could testify better on that because I have not been familiar with the issue business since 1935, but I think the issues of 1935 and 1936 and 1937 were very largely refunding. I think since then there has been a portion of both. Prior to 1935, with the exception of some financing done in 1920 and 1921, which was refinanced in 1924 and 1925, when money rates changed, it was practically all new money.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Nehemkis, Senator King asked a question as to how much was new money and how much was refunding. Did we not have a calculation of the Morgan Stanley issues which shows how much was new money and how much was refunding?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir; we did have a general calculation which I think is the direct answer to Senator King, in the testimony that was presented last spring, on savings and investment, and as soon as I return to the office, I will be very happy to send you a copy.

Senator KING. If it is already in the record, there will be no necessity for that.

Mr. HENDERSON. I mean about the Telephone Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir.

Shall we proceed?

I now call to the witness stand, Mr. Arthur Anderson and Mr. Joseph R. Swan.

Senator KING. Are you through with Mr. Whitney?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney will remain on the stand.

(Senator King assumed the Chair.)

Acting Chairman KING. Have you been sworn?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan has not been sworn and Mr. Anderson has not been sworn.

Acting Chairman KING. Do you each of you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in this proceeding is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. ANDERSON. I do.

Mr. SWAN. I do.

TESTIMONY OF ARTHUR M. ANDERSON, J. P. MORGAN & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.; JOSEPH R. SWAN, SMITH, BARNEY & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.; AND WILLIAM S. WHITEHEAD, SECURITY ANALYST, SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Acting Chairman KING. You may proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will Mr. Lyons and Mr. Whitehead step forward, please? In the interests of economy, Senator, I will have members of my staff identify a number of documents so there will be no interruptions later. Mr. Whitehead, will you examine the documents before you and indicate for the committee the name of the document and where you obtained it, and that you recognize it to be a document that you so obtained from the files of the company, that you will mention?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. This first list consists of a selling group of 22 names, that came from the files of The First Boston Corporation. It is headed, "Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Co., Refunding and Improvement Mortgage, 3¼ bonds."

This next piece of material came from the files of the New York Central Railway. It is a letter written by Mr. John M. Young, dated June 18, 1935, address, 23 Wall Street, and the accompanying memo is a list of the original and secondary groups. The memo which accompanied that letter is also from the New York Central files.

Acting Chairman KING. You found the memo in the files with the letter?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. Exactly; together.

Acting Chairman KING. Would anything in the files indicate who prepared the memo? Was it a part of the letter or attached to it?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. It is attached. He says, Senator, "I am enclosing herewith a list concerning which," and so forth.

Acting Chairman KING. I see.

Mr. WHITEHEAD. Letter dated June 3, 1935, to Mr. M. O. Whiting, of Boston from Mr. W. F. Place, vice president of the New York Central Railway, from that company's files.

Another letter from Mr. Stuart E. Peck to Mr. Willard Place, of the New York Central Railway, dated June 13, 1935, from the New York Central files.

Memo entitled, "Toledo & Ohio Central Railway," over the signature of H. M. Addinsell, dated June 17, 1935, from the files of The First Boston Corporation.

Telegram from Mr. Max O. Whiting, of Boston to Mr. John R. Macomber, chairman of The First Boston Corporation, dated June 21, 1935, from the files of The First Boston.

Telegram initialed "J. R. M.," to M. O. Whiting, of Whiting, Weeks & Knowles, dated June 21, 1935, from the files of The First Boston Corporation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitehead, did you ascertain at the time you obtained that document whose initials "J. R. M." were?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. That has reference to Mr. Macomber.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. John R. Macomber?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. Correct.

Acting Chairman KING. And who is he?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. John R. Macomber is an official of The First Boston Corporation.

Mr. WHITEHEAD. Letter to Mr. George Whitney, on The First Boston Corporation stationery, dated June 28, 1935, signed J. R. M., also identified as John R. Macomber, from the files of The First Boston.

Memo obtained from the files of the Erie Railroad signed by C. B. Post, from the files of the Erie.

Two letters, one to Mr. MacCraig, comptroller of the Atlantic Coast Line, from Mr. H. L. Borden, vice president, dated May 21, 1935, and a letter to Mr. Roland Redmond, dated May 22, 1935, the original of which was signed by Mr. Lyman Delano, and both from the files of the Atlantic Coast Line.

Acting Chairman KING. Is Mr. Delano a director of the company?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. He is chairman of the board.

Another letter dated April 30, 1935, to Mr. Potter, chairman of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, the original signed by Mr. Delano, from the files of the Guaranty Trust Co.

A letter to Mr. Anderson, Arthur M. Anderson, of 23 Wall Street, New York, to Mr. Ralph Budd, from the files of the Burlington, dated May 2, 1934.

Another memo initialed "C. I. S." from the files of the Burlington, dated June 13, 1934.

File memo dated July 26, 1934, over the name of A. N. Williams, from the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad.

Telegram to A. N. Williams, dated November 13, 1934, from W. R. Coe, from the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana.

Telegram from Mr. A. N. Williams, dated November 9, 1934, to Mr. W. Ewing, of J. P. Morgan & Co., from the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad.

Telegram dated May 9, 1934, from Mr. Ewing to Mr. Williams, from the Chicago & Western Indiana files.

Telegram from Mr. P. V. Davis, of Brown Harriman, to Mr. Williams of the same railroad, dated November 13, 1934, and telegram from Mr. Williams, dated November 14, to Mr. Anderson, from the same files.

Another telegram dated November 14, 1934, to Mr. A. N. Williams from Mr. A. Anderson, from the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad files.

Another telegram from Mr. A. N. Williams to Mr. W. Ewing, dated November 19, 1934, from the files of the Chicago & Western Railroad.

A letter from, presumably, Mr. Williams to Mr. Ewing, dated December 14, 1934, from the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Whitehead.

Mr. LYONS, step forward, please. Will you look at the document shown you and tell me whether that was obtained from the files of Harriman Ripley & Co., Incorporated, please?

Mr. LYONS. Do I have to be sworn?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Oh, I forgot. This gentleman has not been sworn.

Acting Chairman KING. Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. LYONS. I do.

TESTIMONY OF BARROW LYONS, ASSOCIATE FINANCIAL ECONOMIST, SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Lyons.

Mr. LYONS. This is a memo to Mr. H. C. Sylvester, Jr., vice president of Brown Harriman & Co., and Mr. P. V. Davis, vice president of Brown Harriman & Co., which is from Joseph P. Ripley, dated December 17, 1934, from the files of Harriman Ripley & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Lyons.

Mr. LYONS. There is another. A memo dated February 21, 1935, to Mr. Sylvester, Mr. Davis, and Mr. W. Harmon Brown, from "J. P. R.," from the files of Brown Harriman.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who is J. P. R.?

Mr. LYONS. Same as the previous, Mr. Joseph P. Ripley.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, you have been discussing with us for the past few days a number of case histories, concerning specific pieces of financing. This afternoon we should like to discuss with you a series of transactions which, however, occurred during one interval of time. We are going to discuss with you the maturities of certain railroad bonds which fell due during the year 1935, and as we go along we shall have occasion to identify each issue as we come to it.

Mr. Swan, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. SWAN. Joseph R. Swan, 14 Wall Street, New York.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And what is your present business connection?

Mr. SWAN. Partner in the banking firm of Smith, Barney & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. ANDERSON. Arthur M. Anderson, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

PURPOSE OF THE BANKING ACT

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And what is your business or profession, Mr. Anderson?

Mr. ANDERSON. Partner of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, did not the Banking Act of 1933 have as its essential purpose to prohibit any firm receiving deposits from engaging in the issuing, underwriting, selling, or distributing of securities?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, was not the effective date of this provision June 16, 1934?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not J. P. Morgan & Co., pursuant to the terms of the banking act, elect to continue its commercial banking business?

Mr. ANDERSON. Its deposit business; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And to discontinue its securities business?

Mr. ANDERSON. As a result.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that after June 16, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the banking act, J. P. Morgan & Co. was barred from engaging in the business of issuing, underwriting, selling, or distributing securities?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, immediately prior to the effective date of the Banking Act, were you not president of the Guaranty Co. of New York, the security affiliate of the Guaranty Trust Co.?

Mr. SWAN. I was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not the Banking Act of 1933, Mr. Swan, also provide by section 20 that no member bank of the Federal Reserve System was to be affiliated with any organization engaged in the issue, flotation, underwriting, public sale, or distribution of securities?

Mr. SWAN. I understand so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, the mechanical separation of the two types of business that we have been referring to was required under the act, was it not?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes. The securities business, as you defined it by quoting the act.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that your understanding, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. Yes; that is my understanding.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this separation, Mr. Anderson, was considered necessary by the Congress to accomplish the divorce of investment banking from deposit banking?

Mr. ANDERSON. I can't state what was their purpose.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you have any opinion?

Mr. ANDERSON. That was the effect.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was the result achieved?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, the separation that we have been discussing was considered necessary in order to accomplish the divorce of investment banking from deposit banking, is that your understanding?

Mr. SWAN. I believe that was the purpose of the act; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the objective of the act was to accomplish such a divorce, Mr. Anderson?

Mr. ANDERSON. I assume so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And is that your understanding, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. That is my understanding; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Swan, do you recall Chairman Potter's letter to the stockholders of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York of June 6, 1934, in which he expressed his understanding of the intent of the act?

Mr. SWAN. I do not recall the letter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you, Mr. Swan, the letter to which I have referred, and ask you to glance at it to see if it refreshes your recollection. (The witness examined the letter.) Mr. Swan, permit me to interrupt you. Did you ever recall seeing that letter?

Mr. SWAN. I do recall seeing the letter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That's fine, that's all I wanted.

Mr. SWAN. I didn't know whether you were going to ask me to testify to it or not. I remember the letter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter identified by Mr. Swan, Mr. Chairman, is offered in evidence.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1711" and is included in the appendix on p. 12259.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Before I relinquish it, may I read just one sentence from it. Chairman Potter had been discussing with his shareholders a number of alternatives confronting the bank after the passage of the act, and he had this to say [reading from "Exhibit No. 1711"]—

With respect to the second alternative, since it is the intent of the Banking Act of 1933 to divest commercial banks of a continuing interest in the securities business, this course seemed objectionable—with reference to one of the objectives.

May it be offered?

(Senator O'Mahoney resumed the Chair.)

The CHAIRMAN. It may be received.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In short, I take it, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Swan, that it was the objective of the Banking Act to disassociate deposit banking from the underwriting of securities; is that your understanding, Mr. Anderson?

Mr. ANDERSON. From the risk of the underwriting business; yes.

Mr. SWAN. That's right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Swan, pursuant to the Banking Act, the Guaranty Co. of New York was liquidated by the Guaranty Trust Co., was it not?

Mr. SWAN. I understand—I don't know whether it is completely liquidated or not. It went into liquidation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Fine. In June of 1934, did not—

Senator KING (interposing). Voluntarily or involuntarily?

Mr. SWAN. Voluntarily.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In June of 1934, Mr. Swan, did not the principal officers of the Guaranty Co. join Edward B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. Four of the officers of the Guaranty Co. joined Edward B. Smith & Co. as partners. Other officers joined in other capacities.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you give me the names of the former officers of the Guaranty Co. who became partners of Edward B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. Myself, Mr. Burnett Walker, Mr. Ritchie Kimball, and Mr.—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Fish?

Mr. SWAN. Mr. Fish; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Irving D. Fish?

Mr. SWAN. Yes; Mr. Irving D. Fish.

Senator KING. I assume the Guaranty Co. was a corporation?

Mr. SWAN. The Guaranty Co. was an affiliate of the Guaranty Trust Co.

Senator KING. You mentioned partners—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). A number of the officers of the Guaranty Co., when the Guaranty Co. ceased under the terms of the Banking Act to be able to do business, we became partners of a private banking house of Edward B. Smith & Co.

Senator KING. But not merely stockholders in that corporation, but partners?

Mr. SWAN. Partners; yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Without being precise, Mr. Swan, how many former employees of the Guaranty Co. joined the staff of Edward B. Smith & Co.? About a hundred, would you say?

Mr. SWAN. Oh, no; maybe 200.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. About 200?

Mr. SWAN. Or maybe 300.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A large number?

Mr. SWAN. Yes; a large number.

RAILROAD MATURITIES DUE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, during the interim between the time when Section 21 of the Banking Act became operative and the time when Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., was organized, were there not a number of railroad maturities of companies for whom J. P. Morgan & Co. had previously acted as banker?

Mr. WHITNEY. Probably.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know?

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, you want me to anticipate?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want you to answer the question "Yes" or "No", if you are able.

Mr. WHITNEY. That is the best of my recollection.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a statement showing a number of maturities which came due at the time we have been discussing, and ask you to glance at these railroad securities and tell me, if you can give me a positive answer. For your information, Mr. Whitney, there were many others. This is but a random sampling.

Mr. WHITNEY. This doesn't say anything about maturities here.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You were in the banking business for a long time. You should know that question.

Mr. WHITNEY. Why?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well——

Senator KING (interposing). Don't argue with the witness; ask him a question.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I did ask him——

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). I do know, Senator, that these—I know from my recollection and from the fact that these properties consulted us about these matters, that these bonds did mature during that period. I was probably over precise because I wasn't exactly sure that they matured or whether they were anticipating maturities.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is all I wanted to know, Mr. Whitney. You will recall—excuse me, for the convenience of the record, it might be well that I offer this statement at this time, since we will have occasion throughout this hearing——

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). What is the source of the statement?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Moody's Steam Railroads for the year 1933.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be offered.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer in evidence a table of the maturities which we will be discussing during this session of the committee.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1712" and is included in the appendix on p. 12260.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, you will recall that in connection with your testimony on A. T. & T., I had occasion to ask you whether any other banking houses ever discussed financial problems with companies for whom J. P. Morgan & Co. was the recognized banker? Now, these railroad companies whose maturities were imminent and placed on the sheet which you glanced at a moment ago, do you recall whether any other banking houses joined J. P. Morgan & Co. in talking to the management at the time of the refundings?

Mr. WHITNEY. May I be sure I got that question right?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will the reporter please read the question?

(The question was read.)

Mr. WHITNEY. The answer is "No."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is, Mr. Whitney—just a minute, I want to get your answer, and if you want to comment, we will, as we have always done, when we have finished with the direct examination, give you an opportunity to do so.

Mr. Swan, have you the sheet¹ before you?

Mr. SWAN. No, sir.

THE SPREAD ON THE RAILROAD BOND ISSUES UNDER CONSIDERATION

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you borrow it from Mr. Anderson? You will note that the first item is $8,000,000 for the Nypano or the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad. The spread on that issue was 1 point, was it not, or $80,000—of course, when it was ultimately extended?

Mr. SWAN. The spread on the issue was arranged—its terms were that it was 1 point to be paid on the extension and half a point extra on such bonds as might be purchased by bankers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But no new bonds, I am advised by my assistant—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). No new bonds were so purchased.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were so purchased, so that the figure I gave you is correct?

Mr. SWAN. Substantially.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Swan, the next item is the Toledo & Ohio Central Railway maturity, $7,500,000, but $12,500,000 were actually issued. Was there not then a spread of 2 points on the $12,500,000, or $250,000? Shall I repeat my question?

Mr. SWAN. I was just looking at my records; I just wanted to confirm that. My records show—no, excuse me, I have the wrong one. I find from my records that that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, the next maturity was \$4,000,000 of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad Co., an Atlantic Coast Line subsidiary, of July 1935. Twelve million dollars of the Atlantic Coast Line were actually issued, so that the spread was $2\frac{1}{2}$ points, amounting to \$300,000, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. There was a spread of $2\frac{1}{2}$ points in that issue; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, the next offering was $6,300,000 of the Chicago & Western Indiana, due in September and October of 1935, is that correct, sir? Shall I repeat that? Six million three hundred thousand dollars was the actual issue; $6,100,000 was the amount that matured.

Mr. SWAN. $6,100,000, according to my record, is the amount which we underwrote.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the spread was $2\frac{1}{2}$ points, or \$157,000?

Mr. SWAN. The spread was $2\frac{1}{2}$ points.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, Mr. Swan. Mr. Swan, would you accept my arithmetic if I said that the total of those spreads which you have gone over with me amounted to $688,000, subject to your correction?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1712."

Mr. SWAN. Subject to my correction; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Whitney, may I direct a question to you? The power to designate the houses which were to be in the underwriting and selling syndicates for the refunding of these railroad maturities was the power to distribute nearly $700,000, is that correct?

Mr. WHITNEY. You are asking me to accept your arithmetic, too?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By implication.

Mr. WHITNEY. If there were that power, if there were that ability to direct, I suppose it would be a fair assumption.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, was it not in fact the decision of J. P. Morgan & Co. which determined among which firms this $700,000 was to be divided?

Mr. SWAN. I had not thought so. I had thought that it was the decision of the railway companies which were doing the financing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, was it not the decision of J. P. Morgan & Co. which determined among which firms this $700,000 was to be divided?

Mr. WHITNEY. Certainly not.

FUNCTION OF J. P. MORGAN & CO. IN REFUNDING OPERATIONS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, what function did J. P. Morgan & Co. have in the refunding of these railroad maturities?

Mr. WHITNEY. A very simple function. We had been in varying degrees financial advisers to these properties for a great, great many years. As you have so clearly pointed out, on the 16th day of June 1934 the law forced a decision upon us as to what branch of banking we were going to continue in, and we followed our historic practice and continued in the deposit business. As I said yesterday, there was, however, nothing in the banking law, and there isn't as far as I know to this day, anything which told us that we shouldn't continue to serve our clients in any way that they requested us to, other than the distribution of securities. In each one of these cases these people who had had banking relations with us for years came to us, predicated on the fact that we no longer could sell securities for them, and said, "What shall we do about these maturities?" In other words, they asked our advice as bankers.

In each one of these cases they were confronted with the fact that the investment banking business had faced the very serious readjustment because of the Banking Act and they wanted to know of the houses which were still in the business which we thought were the ones that would serve them best. The situations are each different, but the underlying reason why they came to us, J. P. Morgan & Co., was because they always had sought our advice and I presume they didn't think merely because we were out of business—out of the investment banking business—that we were also out of the deposit business; and we gave them, as we always have tried to do—we are still doing this—our clients for some reason still come to us for advice—we still give it to them to the best of our ability, and unless the law is changed again I hope that we always will continue to do so. And that is the simple function that we perform of service to our clients.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, did your firm—

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). May I just finish, as I didn't answer your question? We did not designate these houses. In each case these houses had direct contacts with the issuing corporation; that is why a minute ago I asked to be perfectly clear in my answer to Mr. Nehemkis' question, Did they join you in discussing these matters with these issuing companies?, and my answer was, "No; they did not join us; they had direct negotiations, direct contacts with these houses in each case." They never to my remembrance (I conducted certain of these conversations—some I didn't; Mr. Anderson did some and Mr. Ewing others), but in no case did we talk to the company with these houses; we were purely and simply advisers to these companies in a rather new field, as it was then, with the personnel in it, and we did not conduct the negotiation; we had nothing to do with the distribution; we had nothing to do with the underwriting whatsoever. In fact, although the law would let us, we didn't even take a fee for this service.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I turn now to the financing of the Toledo & Ohio Central, the wholly owned subsidiary of the New York Central. Mr. Swan, who decided what firms were to be included in the underwriting and what firms were to be excluded?

THE TOLEDO & OHIO CENTRAL RAILROAD CO. REFUNDING

Mr. SWAN. I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson?

Mr. ANDERSON. I have no knowledge; I had no contact with that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, the same question?

Mr. WHITNEY. Which company was that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Toledo & Ohio Central; who decided what firms were to be included and what firms were to be excluded?

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt and Mr. Willard F. Place of the New York Central.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you identify each one as to their position?

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Willard F. Place was vice president at that time; he is now financial vice president of the New York Central; and Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt is a member of the executive committee of the New York Central and was at that time handling their financial affairs.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, I show you a diary entry entitled "New York Central R. R. Co.," from the files of your office. Do you want to examine it in view of the fact that it is stamped on the back here "Smith, Barney & Co."?

Mr. SWAN. I should like to. Do you expect to examine me on this, or do you just want to identify?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I merely want you to tell this committee if that is a true and correct copy of an original now in your possession?

Mr. SWAN. I believe so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This sheet identified by the witness is offered in evidence.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be admitted.

(The sheet referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1713" and is included in the appendix on p. 12260.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I now read to you two entries from that sheet, an entry dated February 13, 1935: You will find that in the first paragraph of the photostat entered by John W. Cutler, a partner, is he not, of yours, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the entry by John W. Cutler [reading from "Exhibit No. 1713"]:

George Whitney spoke to JRS—

That is Mr. Swan—

and a second time to me, as to coming financing of the Road, about three weeks ago. Anderson—

That refers to you, sir,— spoke to me again last week and asked what details, if any, GW—

Meaning George Whitney—

had given us. He said he himself was not familiar with the last discussion between GW—and H. S. Vanderbilt, and therefore thought it best to wait until Whitney's return about February 18th. He indicated they had not yet, but would probably, also speak to Brown Harriman.

Mr. Whitney—

I ask you, sir, now to follow me to the third paragraph from the end, a further entry by J. W. C., May 3, 1935 [reading further]:

Re Toledo & Ohio Central, spoke to G. Whitney. He said nothing would be done for two or three weeks, and that everyone in town had been in to see him about it. Will probably mean that the railroad or JPM&Co. will make up an account and hand it to someone to put thru. (Re Canada Southern, Prudential and Metropolitan went direct to the railroad.)

And now, sir, I ask you to skip to the next, to the last paragraph, diary entry by H. D. M.; that is Mr. Moore of your organization, is it not, sir?

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this is dated June 22, 1935 [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1713"]:

Working on $12,500,000 Toledo & Ohio Central offering which it is hoped to release last of next week. First Boston will be leader of business.

Mr. Swan, are these entries that I have read correct?

Mr. SWAN. It is my recollection that the first statement, the statements, to answer your question, I believe are correct transcripts. I should like to comment on them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I ask you one question and then have you comment, if you will, please? Who did make up the account, Mr. Swan, J. P. Morgan & Co. or the road? Now, if you will answer and then comment.

Mr. SWAN. This business was not handled by my firm. We were participants in it. It was handled, in my recollection, as it says here, by The First Boston Corporation. We had nothing to do with making up the account and I can't answer your question.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, then you don't care to comment on your own entries?

Mr. SWAN. I should like to comment on this as far as the first of these paragraphs is concerned. My recollection is that that refers not to Toledo & Ohio Central financing but to possibly future New York Central financing. The other paragraph, like all of the paragraphs in this memorandum, was rather a shorthand account of conversations with Mr. Whitney. We were, like everyone on the Street, eagerly out and aggressively out seeking business, and we went to all of the large institutions everywhere, not only in New York City, but Chicago, Boston, Cleveland, everywhere that we could, to try to get business. Amongst other people that we went to was J. P. Morgan & Co., and this refers to our approach to getting business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to merely comment on one statement you made. You said this did not refer to Toledo & Ohio, but to New York Central?

Mr. SWAN. Will you let me just refer to my files?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If you will, sir. I think it refers to Toledo & Ohio. If I am mistaken will you correct me at a later time?

Mr. SWAN. I can correct you now. This is headed, this sheet which you first showed me is headed "New York Central R. R. Co.," and it then goes on [reading from "Exhibit No. 1713"]:

George Whitney spoke to JRS and a second time to me as to coming financing of the road—

And I think it refers to New York Central R. R. Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I accept your word for that, but I would merely point out that the only pending refunding at that time was Toledo & Ohio. Mr. Whitney, I am sorry, I want—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). Excuse me. I just want to continue that point with you. The next sentence says [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1713"]:

During lunch today at First National Bank with Sam Weldon discussion turned to railroad matters and New York Central was brought up.

That was less than a month later and I don't think that that was brought up on account of Toledo & Ohio Central.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I now read from a letter identified by one of the members of the staff. This letter is from 23 Wall Street. That is your house, isn't it [to Mr. Whitney]?

Mr. WHITNEY. The office.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the letter is dated June 18, 1935, addressed to Willard Place, New York Central R. R. Co., and is signed by John M. Young. Mr. Young was then associated with J. P. Morgan?

Mr. WHITNEY. What date is this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. June 18, 1935.

Mr. HENDERSON. I gather, Mr. Whitney, you don't refer to it as "the House of Morgan"?

Mr. WHITNEY. I do not.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you refer to it as "the corner"?

Mr. WHITNEY. I do not. J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1714-1"]:

DEAR WILLARD: I am enclosing herewith a list concerning which I spoke to you today.

And attached to it a list on which appear the following: "Original Group," and the following names: Brown Harriman & Co., Inc.;

E. B. Smith & Co.; First Boston Corporation; Lee, Higginson & Co.; Kidder, Peabody & Co. Then appears the caption "Original group" and the amounts for that group; and then the following caption, "Selling group" and the amounts for that group. Underneath that you will find "Secondary group" and a list of houses, together with their names and amounts. I offer in evidence this document.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1714-1" and are included in the appendix on p. 12261.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, would it be correct to conclude that the make-up of the list was determined by J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. It would not. Mr. Chairman, this whole proceeding, it seems to me, could be very much simplified for the committee if again I repeat, because I may have to repeat it a good many times otherwise, that I haven't made any question of the fact that we were very active in this business. I have said, or tried to make clear a few minutes ago, that our clients who had dealt with us in the past came to us for advice as to how to conduct a certain piece of business; on all these cases the story is exactly the same. In each case we recommended to them that there were certain people who were then the most prominent people in the investment banking business in New York who would be proper people and would give proper service in the job of work they had to do.

We had discussions with—I did, Mr. Anderson did, and Mr. Ewing did, who was then one of our partners—with the seniors, senior partners of these various concerns, or senior officers. We went to this party and that party, as a service for the railroad, to inquire whether these gentlemen would be interested in handling this financing. We went to the railroad company and said we would suggest this or that course. I don't want to give any possible indication that we didn't, that we didn't work just as hard as we could to help our clients. We did. We still do. But when it comes to the inference that we had anything to do with the actual business, I just want to make very clear that we didn't certify these people. When it came down to a decision, it was made by the officers of these various corporations on their own discretion, on their own responsibility, and we merely gave them the best advice that we could as to how they were to handle their job.

The CHAIRMAN. As I understand your explanation of the situation, J. P. Morgan & Co., in compliance with the Banking Act, was going out of the business of investment banking—

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). Was out.

The CHAIRMAN. And it was not, however, going out of the business of advising its clients, both former clients and new clients, with respect to all matters which might properly come before a banker; that you considered it to be a perfectly proper and legal procedure for J. P. Morgan & Co. to advise a client, the New York Central Railroad, for example, with respect to the manner in which securities might be distributed or by whom they might be underwritten? That in giving that advice you did not consider yourself as being engaged in the business? That you had numerous conversations with the responsible officers of the New York Central Railroad and that you do not deny that from J. P. Morgan & Co. went this letter¹ of June 18, addressed to Mr. Willard Place, Esq., of the New York Central Railroad, containing a list of security companies; that in making the suggestion you were not engaged in exercising the discretion, but that the discretion was exercised by the company? Have I correctly stated the—

¹ "Exhibit No. 1714-1."

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). Just exactly.

The CHAIRMAN. So that if the railroad followed your suggestion you considered that to be the responsibility of the railroad and not yourselves?

Mr. WHITNEY. Just exactly.

The CHAIRMAN. Though of course we might also conclude that the railroad, having taken your advice for so many years, it was only natural that it should follow your suggestions and when you made them you had a pretty good idea that the railroad would follow your suggestion?

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, Mr. Chairman, in the banking business, like so many other businesses, you have to be right certainly 51 percent of the time before people think of you. So that it is reasonable—if they came to us and asked our advice—it is reasonable to believe they thought it was advice at least worthy of consideration. Mr. Nehemkis didn't ask me to comment on that particular letter. That of course is a letter from John Young to Place;¹ whether that was a final list I don't know; it may have been; but undoubtedly whoever was the leader in this business—there seems to be some dispute about that—probably told him what they had done. We never had a thing to do with that second list of names there. We dealt in this case, and in one of the others at least, with three principal people, namely E. B. Smith, First Boston, and Brown Harriman. They made up a list of what they thought was an adequate list to distribute these 12 millions of bonds, and I suppose they sent John Young, who was the head of our bond department, this list and he forwarded it to Willard Place.

The CHAIRMAN. What was your testimony with respect to compensation on J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. I said we weren't even paid a fee for the advice we gave, although we were advised we were legally entitled to it.

Senator KING. Would this be an analagous parallel case: A lawyer of standing in any community with a large clientele is elected to office, or engages in some other business, and concludes that he shall not any longer take the business of his large clientele, and having confidence in him, having taken his advice for years, and been guided by him in all their legal controversial matters, when he advises them that he no longer can act in that capacity but they ask him who would be good lawyers, who is a good man, to look after bonds, another for torts, and so on, and he suggests A, B, C, and D, and they go, pursuant to his suggestion, to the other lawyer whom he recommends. Would that be something analagous to your situation?

Mr. WHITNEY. I think so, Senator King. I ventured to suggest in earlier testimony that I think there is a very close analogy between the relationship between a client and his lawyer, and a client and his banker; it is a professional relationship.

The CHAIRMAN. But you also testified—I remember—that the lawyers didn't want to agree to that analogy.

¹"Exhibit No. 1714-1."

Mr. WHITNEY. I said sometimes they questioned it; I didn't say they disagreed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, there is to be attached—but I am offering them separately for the reason that I will explain to you—to the memorandum previously offered, a penciled addition to those lists and those amounts, and they——

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). To the list attached to the letter of June 18, 1925?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct, sir.

May I ask, Mr. Whitney, if I understand you——

The CHAIRMAN. Now, let's get this understood; you are offering now this penciled memorandum on the sheet bearing the figures "216" which is to be regarded as part of the previous exhibit¹——

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, correct sir. The reason I offer them in separate pieces is because they were found in separate places, but our man was told that they belonged together.

The CHAIRMAN. By whom? Who told you that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The responsible official of the railroad who opened up the files to us. But I want to be thoroughly correct and strict in this thing, and so I am offering them in two pieces.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be admitted.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit Nos. 1714-2" and is included in the appendix on p. 12262.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did I understand you to say that you thought that a possible explanation for that list of proposed underwriters and selling group, with amounts, may have resulted from the fact that some of the underwriters had suggested those names to John Young, and he in turn had passed them on?

Mr. WHITNEY. No; I did not suggest that at all. I think the word I used was that I was merely commenting on them. Willard Place, as I said a little while ago, was a vice president of the New York Central in charge of finance, and as I also tried to show, we were in this advising the New York Central on a financial matter.

Now, I am not attempting to draw any conclusions of what that list was. It merely was that obviously John Young, head of our bond department, was passing on to our client a list of names which would be in the business. I don't know who made it up. I shouldn't doubt that he discussed it with Willard Place. I just don't know. I merely say that my comment was that he was putting this up to our client along the lines of advising with them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, do you have any recollection of ever having made such suggestions to J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. Made suggestions about people who should be included in the syndicates?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. SWAN. Yes, indeed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You did?

Mr. SWAN. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Why have you not furnished us with that information?

Mr. SWAN. I don't know. In connection with the Chicago & Western Indiana, which we managed, you have the list of the syndicate members.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1714-1."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read you, Mr. Chairman, a letter—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). Mr. Nehemkis, may I ask this question: Did you [to Mr. Swan] in connection with this furnish to Mr. Young any suggestion as to the make-up of the list?

Mr. SWAN. I couldn't tell you. Your men went through our files—everything that was discussed. It is very possible that after the business was finally definitely arranged, that they were sent by Mr. Young a list of the people who composed the principal group and any that may have been added. I can't answer that. It would have been the regular thing to have done.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read from the letter previously identified, Mr. Chairman, from Mr. Willard Place to Mr. Max O. Whiting, 36 Federal Street, Boston, Mass., June 3, 1935 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1715"]:

Thanks for your letter of the 29th. It is a serious question as to whether the bonds should carry a 3¾% or 4% coupon, but so far the leaning has been to the 3¾ rate. It is also yet to be determined as to just how the sale should be made. The matter is shaping up rather quickly now, however, and I think it will be pretty well decided upon within the next week or 10 days, so you ought to keep rather closely in touch with our friends on the corner.

Mr. ANDERSON. What business is that you are talking about?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Toledo & Ohio, the subject matter under discussion. I offer it in evidence.

Mr. ANDERSON. I don't think it is.

Mr. WHITNEY. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. The exhibit may be received. To what does this refer?

Mr. WHITNEY. The Boston & Albany, another subsidiary of New York Central.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1715" and appears in full in the text.)

Mr. WHITNEY. As I remember—and I am speaking from memory—New York Central had Boston & Albany bonds in the treasury, and it was a question whether they could sell them. It was not in connection with the maturity, as these—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). While I do not concede what the witness has said, it is interesting to note, Mr. Chairman, assuming that what he says is true, that the point still holds good. The place to get a participation was not the railroad but "the corner."

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Whitney—

Mr. ANDERSON (interposing). He doesn't say that.

The CHAIRMAN. The sentence here, which is the center of this little conversation, reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1715"]:

The matter is shaping up rather quickly now, however, and I think it will be pretty well decided upon within the next week or 10 days, so you ought to keep rather closely in touch with our friends on the corner.

Now, what is your interpretation of that, Mr. Whitney?

Mr. WHITNEY. I am not trying to interpret, but I suppose it is that Mr. Place had been consulting with us about how they should do their financing. This man, Whiting, Weeks, or something, was up in Boston and was a very close friend of his, and he thought if he wanted to be recommended he had better come in and tell us to recommend him.

That would be perfectly reasonable. He was trying to get business, too.

Mr. HENDERSON. He was trying to get on the list? I gather from what you say that Mr. Place was telling him to go down to your firm and see whether he couldn't be included.

Mr. WHITNEY. No, no.

Mr. HENDERSON. That is what your answer was, I think; am I incorrect?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes; I'm sorry you got a wrong impression because both Mr. Anderson's recollection and my recollection is that it is an entirely different piece of business. There is no question of a list. I think there were bonds sold for the New York Central to Boston, or——

The CHAIRMAN. There seems to be no dispute with respect to the facts. Recommendations were made. Your dispute is on the meaning of the facts.

Mr. WHITNEY. Certainly. There was no list about it. I have testified with respect to advising these people. I have, in fact, boasted of the fact that we were performing a service for them.

The CHAIRMAN. That is it; you made certain recommendations, and these recommendations apparently were followed. That is all there is to it.

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes. But that would be good advice, wouldn't it?

The CHAIRMAN. That is not for me to pass on.

Mr. WHITNEY. Perhaps not for me, either.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will the committee take judicial notice that, according to all the public manuals, the only railroad refunding at this time that was being considered was the Toledo & Ohio?¹

I pass to the next document. I wish to ask you to consider, sir. This is a letter previously identified on the stationery of Adams & Peck, 63 Wall Street, dated June 13, 1935, from E. Stuart Peck to Mr. Willard Place.

Senator KING. Who are they?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Peck, I assume, is a member of the firm of Adams & Peck, and they deal in guaranteed bonds and railroad securities, a New York House. Mr. Peck writes as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1716"]:

I called at J. P. M. & Co. today and as George Whitney was away for the day, I spoke to Harry Morgan about that matter. I have known him for a long time, mostly in connection with sailing, and somewhat in connection with business. We had a very nice chat about the Toledo bond issue, and he said that they did not know yet how it would be handled, but that he would be very glad to put in a good word for Adams & Peck with whatever group of investment bankers might handle it.

So we will hope for the best; and I thank you very much for giving me your valuable time.

Mr. Swan, do you recall whether Mr. Henry Morgan put in a word for Adams & Peck with E. B. Smith & Co?

Mr. SWAN. In the natural course of events they would not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer in evidence the letter, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1716" and appears in full in the text.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, to the best of your recollection, who decided to leave Adams & Peck off the list?

¹ See infra, p. 12048.

Mr. ANDERSON. I have never had any conversations about any such list that you are referring to, Mr. Nehemkis, so I can't answer that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, who decided to leave Adams & Peck off the list?

Mr. WHITNEY. Off what list?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The list of underwriters that Mr. Peck was referring to, that he called on Mr. Harry Morgan about.

Mr. WHITNEY. I don't know.

"MATCHING" FOR THE LEADERSHIP

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I now read to you from a memorandum previously identified, dated June 17, 1935, by Harry M. Addinsell. Mr. Addinsell, Senator King, is the chairman of the executive committee of The First Boston Corporation, and the memorandum is entitled "The Toledo & Ohio Central Railroad."

I read from it as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1717"]:

Mr. Whitney, of J. P. Morgan & Co., invited Mr. Ripley of Brown Harriman & Co., Mr. Swan of Edward B. Smith & Co. and myself to come over to their office today to discuss the above proposed issue. The road wishes to sell these bonds to the public at par and proposes to allow the bankers two points. The principals' interests will be as follows:

There appear five names, and the respective amounts after that:

First Boston
Brown Harriman
E. B. Smith
Kidder Peabody
Lee Higginson.

Morgan have a list of, I think, about fifteen or sixteen names of people whom they want to have an amount of bonds, which they have not yet discussed with us, at a set-up of $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1%.

Mr. Whitney, would it not appear from Mr. Addinsell's memorandum that J. P. Morgan & Co. did make up the list?

Mr. WHITNEY. It would not; what it says, of course—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, don't quibble with me, Mr. Whitney, in that way.

Mr. WHITNEY. I am not trying to quibble—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I am trying to be courteous and polite to you, and—

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). I don't mean to quibble, Mr. Nehemkis, I promise you I don't, but they said we had a list of about 15 or 16.

Mr. HENDERSON. You think this refers not to the list, but to whether it is 15 or 16?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (reading further from "Exhibit No. 1717"):

At the outset Mr. Whitney said they did not want to decide what the order of precedence should be as between Brown, Smith and ourselves.

Mr. Anderson, were you present at that conference?

Mr. ANDERSON. No. I had nothing to do with any part of the negotiations of this business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, according to the statement that I have just read, is it not a fact that J. P. Morgan & Co. could have decided the precedence, but did not?

Mr. WHITNEY. They asked us to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I'm sorry, Mr. Whitney, I must insist that you answer my question. Is it not a fact that J. P. Morgan & Co. could have decided the precedence?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes; they asked us to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, Mr. Whitney [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1717"]:

So we matched for it—

[laughter]

and that resulted in our being in first place, Brown second and Smith third. In the absence of Mr. Whitney I have advised Mr. Young of J. P. Morgan & Co. to that effect and also of the meeting referred to below.

Mr. Whitney asked us to speak to Kidder and Lee Higginson about it, which I have done, and there will be a meeting of the five principals at this office Tuesday at two o'clock. The mortgage, circular, etc., are already pretty well lined up under the direction of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed—

Just for the sake of the record, Mr. Whitney, who are Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed?

Mr. WHITNEY. A firm of counselors in New York, who are our counselors.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (reading further):

and understand Mr. Howland Auchincloss and Mr. MacVeigh of that firm are handling the matter and will act as counsel for the bankers.

So it would appear, Mr. Whitney, that the lawyers were already selected, had already done their work. Who selected the lawyers, Mr. Whitney?

Mr. WHITNEY. I don't remember, but—I don't remember.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document from which I have read, Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, is offered in evidence.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1717" and is included in the appendix on p. 12262.)

Mr. SWAN. May I comment on this a moment, please, because according to this [indicating document] I certainly knew more about this business than I have previously testified. Our files do not have any record of this meeting. My recollection of the business is that The First Boston Corporation was selected to handle this business, and that we were in a less important position than this here apparently shows. I apparently was at a meeting which I have entirely forgotten.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The committee does not care to have us call Mr. Addinsell, does it, on this point? Or is Mr. Swan's explanation sufficient?

Mr. SWAN. I quite accept that. I am just—my memory is at fault.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I understand, Mr. Swan.

Mr. HENDERSON. This was dated June 17, 1935, this memorandum¹ of Mr. Addinsell's. The principal interests that Mr. Young outlined to Mr. Place are the same as those indicated in Mr. Addinsell's memorandum?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct, sir, to the best of my recollection.

So that Mr. Swan, apparently from Mr. Addinsell's statement of who were present at the conference which you were present at with Mr. Whitney, it would appear that neither E. B. Smith & Co., nor The First Boston Corporation, composed the list.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1717."

Mr. SWAN. Well, my recollection of that was that The First Boston Corporation were chosen to handle this business, in which event they would have gone ahead, and in consultation with the road with the advice of J. P. Morgan, the road having the advice of J. P. Morgan, and they would compose the list.

I cannot testify as to how the list was composed. I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you testify at this time that E. B. Smith & Co. did not compose the list?

Mr. SWAN. I would be quite confident that they did not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You did not?

Mr. SWAN. I would be quite confident we did not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, may I ask, Mr. Swan, that further, while J. P. Morgan & Co.—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). Excuse me. May I add to my answer?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Certainly, Mr. Swan.

Mr. SWAN. It is possible—and it is subject, I think, to my getting the information, if you want it—that we made suggestions for it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I accept that, Mr. Swan.

Although J. P. Morgan & Co. declined to decide who should lead, is there any question in your mind that they had the power to do so if they so desired?

Mr. SWAN. Well, I think that is a rather difficult question to answer. In my mind, there isn't any question that in the last analysis the borrowing corporation would decide what bankers they wanted to have. If J. P. Morgan & Co. had wanted any particular firm to lead this business, I don't think they would have arranged for that firm to lead the business without the acceptance of that recommendation by the borrower.

Senator KING. By whom?

Mr. SWAN. By the borrowing corporation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to recall to you, Mr. Swan, what Mr. Addinsell said who was also present at the conference with you [reading from "Exhibit No. 1717"]:

At the outset Mr. Whitney said they did not want to decide what the order of precedence should be as between Brown, Smith and ourselves, so we matched for it.

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Nehemkis—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Excuse me, Mr. Whitney.

Mr. WHITNEY. I just—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). No; I'm sorry, I am addressing my question to Mr. Swan.

Mr. SWAN. I read that, and it is obvious that they did not want to make the decision. Now, whether that decision was on behalf of the road or not, I am not prepared to say, but I presume it was that they were acting as the road's advisers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, as a banker of many, many years' experience in the financial community, under the circumstances here set forth, see if you can answer my question: Could J. P. Morgan & Co., if they so desired under the circumstances we have been discussing, have decided who was to lead?

Mr. SWAN. If J. P. Morgan & Co. had said to one of the three houses, "We want you to lead," we would have followed their suggestion.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, Mr. Swan.

Mr. Whitney, you wished to make a comment?

Mr. WHITNEY. I very much regret, Mr. Nehemkis, that you thought I was quibbling a minute ago, because I did not mean to. That was the first thing I wanted to say. As I said a few moments ago, I did not know about the list. But on this particular phase of it that you have been questioning Mr. Swan about, I have the liveliest recollection of it, because of this:

When I first spoke to these people in behalf of the New York Central, I spoke to them together. We have heard something in the last week about this ambition to have certain positions in the business—prestige, and the various reasons such as that. I had deliberately talked to them as three people, and had recommended that one of the three people lead it, also indicating Kidder and Lee Higginson. I remember this very well, because they said, "We can't agree who is going to lead in this business—" in other words, who was going to have precedence in name, "won't you settle it between us?" This was not in my capacity as adviser to New York Central.

I said, "I have nothing to do with it." And I just remember as well as I am sitting here, that I said, "Why don't you match for it?" I never thought they would. And they said, "That would be the only way we could settle it."

Now, there is the simple story, and I remember it because I had never seen business settled quite so quickly as that before. [Laughter.]

CONSULTATION WITH RAILROAD CONCERNING LEADERSHIP

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Swan, do you have any recollection at this time whether the railroad was ever consulted about who should be the leader?

Mr. SWAN. I have no recollection of that; no.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, after Mr. Whitney suggested that you toss for it right then and there, depending upon the outcome of the toss of the coin, the leader of that business was determined?

Mr. SWAN. Well, I am prepared to stand by this memorandum¹ here. As I said—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Addinsell's memorandum?

Mr. SWAN. Yes; I daresay that is good evidence that we did toss for it. My memory is hazy about this transaction.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, sir.

Mr. Chairman, I now read you from a telegram previously identified from Max O. Whiting to The First Boston Corporation, dated 1935, June 21, 11 a. m. [reading from "Exhibit No. 1718"]:

I understand that Toledo & Ohio business has been turned over to you, Smith, and Brown Harriman much as Albany issue was given to us to handle—

By whom, under what circumstances?

Mr. WHITNEY. By the company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you sure, Mr. Whitney?

Mr. WHITNEY. You remember a little while ago I rather hesitatingly suggested that Mr. Place's letter² to Mr. Whiting had to do with Albany finance? This confirms it.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1717."

² "Exhibit No. 1715," supra, p. 12014.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, before you get yourself into difficulties, the dates are very different.

Mr. WHITNEY. They are?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Oh, yes.

Mr. WHITNEY. But the fact remains that this was the Albany transaction. When was this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think it was in April.

Mr. WHITNEY. All I remember, frankly, was that Whiting had done the Albany issue. It was turned over as I said before, and I regret that I don't make myself clear. We advised the railroad to do the business with these four or five houses, whichever you want, and in that sense the railroad had the direct negotiations with these houses, The First Boston, Smith, Brown Harriman, and in the Boston and Albany debenture issue, they had the railroad, and so the records of Whiting, Weeks, and Knowles show.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like to have you listen to the remainder of this telegram [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1718"]:

that the bankers decided among themselves who was to head the business and that some suggestions were made as to who might be included Stop As this is New York Central business and at least distantly related to Albany I don't see how the First Boston Smith and Brown Harriman can fail to include Whiting Weeks and Knowles on terms equal to anyone appearing after the three principals and we feel we are entitled to an interest of five percent as you know Brown and Smith each had seven per cent in Albany.

Could Whiting by chance have been referring to what Mr. Mitchell explained to us, the doctrine known, shall I say, as reciprocal obligation?

Mr. WHITNEY. I have not the remotest idea.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, the telegram is offered in evidence.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be admitted.

(The telegram referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1718" and is included in the appendix on p. 12263.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read to you a telegram previously identified, from John R. Macomber of The First Boston to Mr. Whiting, the sender of the previous telegram, who wires as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1719"]:

Telegram received. Understand Nevil Ford went over this situation with you yesterday and explained it fully. Stop As a matter of fact business referred to came to First group which included two other houses than those you named all set up and with secondary group named by the road with amounts. Stop

I want you to note that, Mr. Whitney [reading further]:

As a matter of fact, business referred to came to First group—

Meaning First Boston group—which included two other houses than those you named all set up with secondary group named by the road.

Now, as a subsequent telegram will show, Mr. Macomber was a little confused [reading further]:

We had nothing to do with guiding this and have got to handle as instructed by them. You are of course included in this but cannot see how we can do anything but accept the schedule as presented and over which we have no control Stop Will be in Boston Monday.

The telegram which I have read is offered in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

(The telegram referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1719" and is included in the appendix on p. 12263.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It would seem from the telegram I have just read, Mr. Swan, that Mr. Macomber felt no firm in the group had any power to decide who was to be in and who was to be out. Would that be a fair interpretation from that telegram?

Mr. SWAN. That was what Mr. Macomber says.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But he was apparently at that time under the misapprehension that the railroad selected the underwriters, since 4 days earlier, on June 17, Mr. Addinsell was clearly aware that the list was made up by J. P. Morgan & Co.,¹ and as you will see from the document I am about to offer, by June 28 he got straightened out.

I now read you from Mr. Macomber's letter dated June 28, 1935, to George Whitney, Esq., J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, New York City [reading "Exhibit No. 1720"]:

The opportunity which was offered us to take part in the Toledo & Ohio Central 3¾% bonds was naturally most satisfactory to us and I do want to thank you very much indeed for your thought of us. We are very grateful.

One of the things which has given me the most satisfaction in the last year has been the attitude of our old friends towards us who had to make quite a readjustment in our business lives and, as I said to a friend of mine this morning, it is sometimes almost embarrassing to have some of our friends do all they do for us. Nevertheless, it is gratefully accepted and I only hope in due course we may be able to be helpful on our side and we are trying to do our part. Your firm certainly has been very good to us and we do appreciate it.

I offer it in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be admitted.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1720" and appears in full in the text.)

Senator KING. Your firm, Mr. Whitney, had been doing business with this railroad company before, had it, acting as vendor of or underwriter of its securities?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes, sir. The T. & O. C. is owned 100 percent by the New York Central, and we have been bankers for them since—oh, since 1880, I think, and we have been fiscal agents of that property up to 1916 when we abandoned that position. They come to us just as they would go to people they had done business with before, and we were trying to help them. The record will show all this. I don't want to do what Mr. Nehemkis might think was quibbling, but I think the record here is perfectly clear. The list was made up by the road, in the final analysis. We advised them—but that doesn't matter. The road made the decision. We advised them as to houses. I have testified that way time and again.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, do you recall that Commissioner Henderson inquired earlier whether the list that was submitted was the same as the list finally made up?

I now offer in evidence a document previously identified which contains that information, may it please the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. What is this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It was identified by Mr. Whitehead as having been obtained and given to him by The First Boston Corporation.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1717," supra, p. 12015.

It shows the final selling list and the respective amounts of the various houses on the issue we have been discussing.

Mr. HENDERSON. Made up after Mr. Addinsell got straightened out?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. After Mr. Macomber got straightened out, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. This is the secondary group?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct, sir.

Senator KING (to Mr. Nehemkis). So that I may properly understand the testimony, is it your contention that if J. P. Morgan for a number of years had been the fiscal agents, financial advisers, of a corporation and had underwritten its securities, and after the Act was passed which called for the dissociation of the corporation, that it was improper for J. P. Morgan, if one of their former clients whom they had served, should ask their advice as to who would be competent to underwrite their securities or buy their securities for them, to suggest somebody?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Senator King, I am afraid that what I am about to say will shock my good friend Commissioner Henderson who knows I have a lot of opinions on a lot of subjects. Unfortunately at this time I have no opinions whatsoever.

Senator KING. I am very glad to know that. Proceed.

ROLE OF J. P. MORGAN & CO. IN NY-PANO EXTENSION

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We now turn, may it please the committee, to the financing of the—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Has this been marked?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Not yet.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1721" and is included in the appendix on p. 12263.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now we turn, may it please the committee, to the financing of the Nypano.

Mr. Swan, who determined who the underwriters were to be for the extension of the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio bonds?

Mr. SWAN. I expect the Erie Railroad.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, I ask you the same question.

Mr. ANDERSON. I know it was the Erie Railroad Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, will you give me your answer to that same question?

Mr. WHITNEY. I assume the Erie Railroad. I know nothing about it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, I show you a series of diary entries labeled "New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio Railroad," which purport to come from your files. Will you examine this and tell me whether this is a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. SWAN. That is a true and correct copy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may I read from the diary entries which have just been identified by the witness? This is an entry by Mr. Swan's partner, Mr. Cutler, December 10, 1934 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1722"]:

George Whitney spoke to me December 7th reference underwriting extension of the $8,000,000 4½s due March 1st 1935. Said he thought it should be handled 50-50 Brown Harriman and ourselves, and asked me to advise Ripley and arrange a meeting. He suggested the 4% bond be underwritten at par for 1% commission, on theory that about two-thirds of the present holders would take new bonds.

Another entry, 2 days later, by Mr. Swan's partner, Mr. Cutler [reading further]:

BW—

Is that Burnett Walker, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (continuing):

and I—

Meaning Mr. Cutler—

with Ripley and Davis met with Messrs. Whitney and Anderson yesterday.

Ripley is Joseph Ripley, and Davis is Pierpont Davis, of Harri-man Ripley & Co.

The above was substantially confirmed, with the exception of maturity where 10 to 15 years was suggested.

Suggested by whom, Mr. Anderson?

Mr. ANDERSON. I have no recollection of any such meeting at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (reading further):

Time element involved in underwriting approximately 30 days and commitment on such basis would have to be made about February 1st. We assume we would head this account as bankers for Van Sweringens—

Mr. Swan, E. B. Smith & Co., to the best of my knowledge, had never been bankers for the Van Sweringens. You meant the Guaranty Trust Co., didn't you?

Mr. SWAN. Well, the Guaranty Co. had been bankers for them, I think. He used the word—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). He used the word loosely?

Mr. SWAN. He used it rather loosely, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. He seems to have wrapped himself up with Guaranty for the moment [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1722"]:

We assume we would head this account as bankers for Van Sweringens, but Whitney and Anderson did not want to discuss this phase of it, suggesting we work it out between ourselves and B H & Co.

Mr. Anderson, do you have any recollection of that meeting?

Mr. ANDERSON. Not the slightest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, do you have any recollection of that meeting?

Mr. WHITNEY. No. I don't doubt it, but I haven't got any recollection of this meeting at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, for the sake of the record, I would like you to give plain and clear statements. I asked you a simple question. I will repeat it. Mr. Whitney, do you have any recollection of that meeting?

Mr. WHITNEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, Mr. Whitney [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1722"]:

BW—

That is, Burnett Walker—

and I lunched with Messrs. Ripley and Davis.

I don't think the next one is particularly pertinent. It continues the discussion.

I now offer in evidence the diary sheets from which I have been reading and which have been identified by Mr. Swan.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be received.

(The diary sheets referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1722" and are included in the appendix on p. 12264.)

Senator KING. Do you want the whole thing in or just what you have read? You indicated which you did not read, didn't you?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, sir. May I say that my assistant calls my attention to the fact that inadvertently I should have read another paragraph, and this answers your question. I guess we had better put it all in. The line is this [reading from "Exhibit No. 1722"]:

Question of LongDock Co. 6's due next year, brought up, but was left to be discussed if and when it came up. JWC and/or BW arrange to continue with Anderson of JPM & Co.

And that is a dairy entry written by Mr. Cutler, Mr. Swan's partner, dated December 17, 1934.

Mr. SWAN. Is there any reason why the last paragraph should not be read? I mean, it just bears out——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I should be happy to, in the interest of getting it complete. Certainly [reading further]:

Agreement with Railroad Company and our associates signed today; letter is being sent out tonight and Railroad Company's Extension Offer and our purchase offer to be advertised tomorrow.

This is a diary entry of February 13, 1935, the new year, and it is entered by Mr. Swan's partner, Karl Weisheit "KW," is that right?

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. HENDERSON. Did you have some special reason, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. Only to show that we were dealing directly with the railroad company.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, that was at the time of winding up the deal, was it not? There is nothing in the previous sentence to show that you were dealing with anybody else except the Morgan group, is there?

Mr. SWAN. That is, it was written at the time of winding up the deal, but the conclusion of negotiations with the railroad company.

Mr. HENDERSON. And the concluding act, technically, was when you went to the railroad, of course?

Mr. SWAN. No; we conducted the negotiations with the railroad company. I think the gentleman we conducted them with was Mr. Walsh.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall, Mr. Anderson, whether the Erie suggested the leadership in that financing?

Mr. ANDERSON. My best recollection of it, Mr. Nehemkis, is that Mr. Walsh came in to see me during the latter part of 1934. He asked for suggestions of various people who would be qualified to do this business, and we discussed their pros and cons. My recollections, and that is not borne out by the record, is that I recommended his going in to talk to the Brown Harriman people, or rather to Mr. Davis, in that office, who, I was confident, had already familiarized himself with the problem.

Senator KING. With whom? Who is Mr. Walsh?

Mr. ANDERSON. Treasurer of the Erie Railroad.

Senator KING. He represented the railroad company in that transaction?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes, sir.

Senator KING. Do you know what was the initiation of the negotiations which culminated in the transaction referred to in the closing paragraph just called attention to by Mr. Nehemkis?

Mr. ANDERSON. The first recollection of any discussion with—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. (interposing). The reason I wanted Mr. Anderson's recollection on that was that the diary entry from the files of Smith, Barney & Co., beginning in December of 1934,¹ when the negotiations were taking place, contained no reference to discussions with the company, and the first reference which Mr. Swan requested me to read into the record, referring to anything pertaining to the company, appears after the new year, February 13, 1935, and relates merely to the formal signing of the papers.

Mr. SWAN. May I state, Mr. Chairman, that these records, such as we have here, are really quite incomplete? I mean, they constitute memoranda, some of which are from time to time omitted, but they do not constitute memoranda of conversations and they are by no means complete.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, do you have any additional memoranda bearing on these subjects?

Mr. SWAN. No; I do not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Because if you have, I would like you to give them to us.

Mr. SWAN. Your examiners had access to all our files.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then do you withdraw your statement that these diary entries are not complete?

Mr. SWAN. No; I can't withdraw that statement. I think that many times we had conversations which we did not enter in the diary.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What did you do with those memoranda, destroy them?

Mr. SWAN. They were not memoranda. I am just talking about conversations.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Oh, I see. I beg your pardon. I misunderstood you. So anything that is recorded in writing—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). Anything that is recorded in writing is in the diary—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is in the diary entries?

Mr. SWAN. Not everything was recorded in writing in the diary entry, but you had access to everything that is recorded in writing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I just wanted to be clear that I understood you.

Mr. SWAN. I am very confident of that.

Senator KING. Do you recall any of the railroad executives or representatives, lawyers, or otherwise, with whom you had any—you or your firm—conversations?

Mr. SWAN. Well, we had conversations with Mr. Walsh of the Erie, we had conversations with Mr. Delano of the Atlantic Coast Line, we had conversations with Mr. Williams of the Chicago & Western Indiana.

Senator KING. Those preceded your entering into this understanding to buy some of the securities?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1722."

Mr. SWAN. That is correct, yes, sir.

Senator KING. That's all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, do you recall at this time whether or not Mr. Bradley, chairman of the Erie, had been holding discussions with your firm?

Mr. ANDERSON. Prior to that time?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At that time.

Mr. ANDERSON. I remember having one talk with him. I can't relate the date to these discussions at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But as you previously testified, J. P. Morgan & Co. were bankers who could, of course, do no underwriting at this time?

Mr. ANDERSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, have you any recollections as to whether or not Mr. Bradley had been negotiating with E. B. Smith & Co. at this time, bankers, who could do underwriting?

Mr. SWAN. I have no recollection. May I just comment upon that, that is, with regards to the Erie business? We were trying to get Erie business at that time. I think it would have been more than probable that we would have gone to Mr. Bradley and asked for his support in getting that business, and also to the other interests, with whom, over a long period of years, we had quite close relations.

Senator KING. Do I understand that J. P. Morgan & Co. was not underwriting or was not, in fact, giving you any part of this business, that you were dealing with the railroad company?

Mr. SWAN. We went to them, as we went to all of these other people, to try to get their support with the railroad company or with the issuer, believing that they would very quickly be consulted and that they would be advising them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I offer at this time a copy, previously identified, of the minutes of the railroad. Shall I proceed, sir?

The CHAIRMAN. The exhibit may be received.

(The copy of the minutes referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1723" and is included in the appendix on p. 12264.)

ADVANTAGES WHICH ACCRUE FROM LEADERSHIP

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At this time, Mr. Swan, was there not some question as to whether E. B. Smith & Co. or Brown Harriman should lead the business?

Mr. SWAN. Oh, I believe we always, on all of these issues, had great discussion as to who should lead the business. It seemed very important to us, the leadership seemed very important to us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, what are the advantages accruing to a banking house in leading a piece of business?

Mr. SWAN. I think prestige.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Position in advertising?

Mr. SWAN. Position in advertising.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Sometimes management fees?

Mr. SWAN. Well, in this case—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). In this there wasn't, but generally speaking?

Mr. SWAN. Well, if—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Isn't also one of the advantages of leadership the ability to conduct negotiations with the company officials?

Mr. SWAN. I don't think particularly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How about keeping the syndicate books? Isn't that one of the advantages of leadership?

Mr. SWAN. It is sometimes thought to be.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And why would it be an advantage to keep the books?

Mr. SWAN. Well, it always is an advantage, I suppose, to be the people who can give out interests in the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Swan, that the house that keeps the books has the right to make the selections of the other members of the group, and by virtue of having the power to make the selections is in a position to place those other houses under a reciprocal obligation?

Mr. SWAN. I think that sometimes can be inferred. As a matter of fact, in a situation of this sort, I think that everybody—that is, the three leaders, or the two leaders in this account—allocated business on this thing. I would like to say as regards any reciprocal gains, or any reciprocal advantage, that the first job of the banker every time is to do a good piece of business. If he doesn't do a good piece of business, he does not survive. Any reciprocal, so-called reciprocal, advantages are very incidental to any piece of business. The first job of the banker is to try to do a good piece of business in order to have another piece of business, and if he doesn't do a good piece of business he won't have another piece of business.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Swan, do you keep a little black book of reciprocal obligations?

Mr. SWAN. We keep a card in our files which shows the business that we do with other people and the business they do with us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I might say, Mr. Henderson, that Mr. Swan has been good enough to make that available to us.

Senator KING. May I ask a question?

Mr. SWAN. But I would like to emphasize that any reciprocal relations are very incidental to this business.

Mr. HENDERSON. They are part of the company records?

Mr. SWAN. We have this card,¹ which is a part of our records, of which you have a copy.

Senator KING. Would the leader be interested, if there were a leader, in the facility with which his associates were distributing and disposing of the securities allocated to them?

Mr. SWAN. That is our first thought. The only way we might choose one person rather than another, where they had equally good abilities to distribute, but our first thought in these things is that every member of a syndicate should make a contribution to the syndicate of some kind, either distributing ability or even, in many cases, the value of a name associated with the business is a contribution.

Senator KING. Would I be wrong in assuming that a leader would be interested in knowing that all of his associates in the syndicate were properly carrying out their function and were selling the securities as rapidly as the market required?

¹ See "Exhibit No. 1888."

Mr. SWAN. We keep a very complete record of the performance of dealers in all syndicates, so that we think we know how well they can perform, what their abilities are, and that is of major importance to us.

Senator KING. Each member of the syndicate would be interested, of course, in the proper discharge of the duties and obligations resting upon the other members of the syndicate?

Mr. SWAN. Very much so.

Senator KING. And I suppose would be in contact with the other members of the syndicate to determine whether or not they were discharging their obligations and making proper sales and distributions of the allocations to them?

HISTORICAL RELATION OF E. B. SMITH & CO. TO ERIE RAILROAD CO. FINANCING

Mr. SWAN. The principal members of a syndicate are very apt to be in consultation about the formation of the group and best interests of the syndicate. Their advice to each one of the leaders is generally sought, and is very valuable.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, will you examine the three sheets I now show you and tell me whether you recognize them to be true and correct copies of originals in your custody and your possession?

Mr. SWAN. That is a true copy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you tell me who Mr. Moore is? I think he is the writer of the memo.

Mr. SWAN. He was an employee of Edward B. Smith & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now offer the memo identified by the witness in evidence.

(Senator King assumed the chair.)

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1724" and is included in the appendix on p. 12266.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By the way, Mr. Swan, may I have—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). Have I some right to comment on that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you let me develop my questions, and then as we always do, comment afterward?

Acting Chairman KING. You will have full opportunity to comment upon it, Mr. Swan.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not Mr. Moore formerly an employee of the Guaranty Co.?

Mr. SWAN. He was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you have a copy of this with you, in your original file? It might be easier to follow as I ask you questions. If not, we will furnish you with a copy.

Mr. SWAN. Would you give me the date of that?

Acting Chairman KING. December 11, 1934.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, I notice that Mr. Moore first lists the bond issues of the Erie, the leadership of the syndicate, or the first three or four houses in the syndicate since 1924, and then he goes on as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1724"]:

The Guaranty did not have an original interest in any of the above Erie financing but did have a 6% interest in the selling groups formed in connection with the two offerings of $50,000,000 of First and Refunding Mortgage 5s. I did not check the smaller issues for selling group interests.

He then says, in the second paragraph on the bottom of page 1:

The Guaranty did not have an original interest in any of the above Erie financing.

He next traces the ownership of the Erie stock, and you see that set forth there. He next traces the original interests and outstanding bank loans, Guaranty Trust, First National's interest being the largest.

He says, in the middle of page 2, under the caption, "Bank loans" [reading further]:

In connection with the outstanding bank loans, the original interests were to be as follows—

And then he lists the various banks.

Then he continues [reading further]:

It should also be noted that the National City Co. was not included.

Do you follow me, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I am going to read to you from the first paragraph under the caption, "Miscellaneous" [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1724"]:

In February 1930, Mr. Swan spoke to J. P. Morgan & Co. regarding the Guaranty's interest in Erie financing. J. P. Morgan & Co. thought that they should go over all of their financing in which the Van Sweringens were interested and review the Guaranty's interests. They—recognized the Guaranty's claim on Pere Marquette financing but did not revise the Guaranty's interest in the Erie financing of $50,000,000 Refunding and Improvement Mortgage Bonds the following April.

Meaning the J. P. Morgan Company—

Now, will you turn with me, Mr. Swan, to the section called, "Comments," at the bottom of page 3, and Mr. Moore continues [reading further]:

I am inclined to the belief that we should limit our claim to the leadership of the proposed underwriting of the Erie extension to the basis that it is Van Sweringen financing. If we take the position that the stock is owned by Chesapeake & Ohio it is possible that we may open up the claim of Kuhn Loeb to a leading position whether or not they have been invited to consider the business.

And Mr. Moore continues [reading further]:

We must also consider the extent, if any, to which we may be committed to Lee Higginson. In this connection they were included in Chesapeake Corporation (initial issue) because part of the C. & O. stock was at that time owned by Nickel Plate. It was stated, however, at the time that their inclusion and interest were not to constitute a precedent. Also, while they appeared in Allegheny financing the Guaranty Company retained the management fee and warrants.

Mr. Swan, what relation did E. B. Smith and Co. have to Van Sweringen financing, which entitled it to base its claim on the facts herein set forth and which I have read to you?

Mr. SWAN. Well, it was purely on the basis of what we would call a professional, or a personal-professional relationship. When the Van Sweringens did their financing, which my impression was in the year 1922, it was handled by the Guaranty Co. I think it was largely handled by myself and Mr. Burnett Walker.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When you were with the Guaranty Co.?

Mr. SWAN. When I was with the Guaranty Co.; yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, I am sorry, but will you ask the gentleman who gave you that information to come back to the stand?

Mr. SWAN. Mr. Walker?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. B. W.?

Mr. SWAN. B. W.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am not at all interested in what Mr. Walker said, but in the interests of orderly procedure—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). May I tell you exactly what he said?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is not necessary. I shall just ask you, Do you accept what Mr. Walker gave as your answer to me?

Mr. SWAN. Yes. It is quite clear.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All right, I just wanted to have the record show that.

Mr. SWAN. What Mr. Walker said was that a registration statement had just been filed in connection with an issuance for the Chesapeake Corporation, which owned the stock of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. and was one of the so-called Van Sweringen companies.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, did Mr. Moore mean that because Van Sweringen financing had been part of the Guaranty Co. business, that E. B. Smith & Co. had a claim to it?

Mr. SWAN. I didn't finish my answer to the last question. I will start it by saying that we had this very close relation with the Van Sweringens, when we were doing the Nickel Plate financing, in 1922. I think we had continued that close personal relationship ever since.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When you say, "we," sir, you mean the Guaranty Trust?

Mr. SWAN. No; the Guaranty Co. first and then when Mr. Walker and myself went into Edward B. Smith & Co., the close personal relationship continued, and we renewed it or extended it, whatever word you want, when we went into Edward B. Smith & Co. When we went into Edward B. Smith & Co. we were using every legitimate means in our power to secure business, and this professional relationship which we had, and which we believe is a very important thing in the investment banking business, as Mr. Whitney has explained—the investment banking business has a very professional character. When the Guaranty Co. ceased to exist, we thought that that professional relationship extended to the persons who had helped to create it, and when we were in the Guaranty Co. we did our best to get the relationship with the Van Sweringens and with other issues just as close as we possibly could. When the Guaranty Co. was no longer able to do investment business, we then went to these clients and we urged on them the close personal relationships which we had previously had with them, through our contact when we were members of the Guaranty Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You felt, then, Mr. Swan, that when you and your associates left the Guaranty Co. of which you had been the head, and entered the private banking house of E. B. Smith & Co. that because of your personal and close and intimate relationship to that business, naturally that business followed you?

Mr. SWAN. We made an effort to see that it did follow, and in those cases it did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, National City Co., Mr. Moore noted, was not included in the banks that had made loans to the Erie, do you recall that?

Mr. SWAN. The memorandum ¹ so states.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, the National City Co. appeared after the Guaranty Co. in the original group of C. & O., Pere Marquette and Missouri Pacific, is that correct?

Mr. SWAN. Those pieces of business were not handled by Guaranty Co.; we were participants, through syndicates, but we were not the managers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you examine page 3 of Mr. Moore's memorandum.² You will note there that National City Co. appeared after the Guaranty Co. in each instance.

Mr. SWAN. Oh, I—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you misunderstand me?

Mr. SWAN. I think I probably misunderstood you. I didn't say they didn't appear, but I just said those pieces of business were not pieces of business which we managed; they were not so-called our pieces of business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Sorry. Was the priority of Guaranty Co. over National City Co. the basis for E. B. Smith's claim of priority over Brown Harriman?

Mr. SWAN. I think our claim of priority over Brown Harriman & Co. was any legitimate claim we could make. We were trying to get the leadership of this business and we put forward every argument that we could think of. Now this memorandum ³ that you see here was a memorandum prepared by Mr. Horace Moore.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will give you a chance to explain that in detail as soon as we finish the questions.

Mr. SWAN. That is part of your question now.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You will have full opportunity—the committee will afford it to you, I am sure.

Acting Chairman KING. You will have opportunity to make explanation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Moore recognized in the memorandum ⁴ that we have been discussing that the mantle of Guaranty Co. had fallen on E. B. Smith and that the mantle of the National City Co. had fallen on Brown Harriman. This committee has heard testimony from Mr. George Bovenizer of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who likewise recognized that the mantle of the National City Co. had fallen on Brown Harriman. Now, did Mr. Ripley recognize the validity of these contentions?

Mr. SWAN. I don't know what Mr. Ripley thought.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read to you, Mr. Chairman, from a memorandum by Mr. Joseph P. Ripley to Mr. H. C. Sylvester and Mr. P. V. Davis on the subject of the Erie Railroad which we are discussing, and this memorandum has been previously identified [reading from "Exhibit No 1725"]:

After hearing the whole story, I have seen fit to let E. B. Smith Company head the account on New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Extension bond proposition. Their name comes first, ours second; interest to be 50/50; managership is to be shown as it was in the Chicago & Western Indiana. Nobody else should be brought into the account until both of us approve, and we both think only the two of us should do the business.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1724."

² Ibid.

³ Ibid.

⁴ Ibid.

I offer this in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1725" and is included in the appendix on p. 12267.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall, Mr. Swan, that it was only E. B. Smith and Brown Harriman which were to do the entire issue?

Mr. SWAN. At that particular time that apparently was the thought in Mr. Ripley's mind, as expressed to his associates.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How did it happen that Kuhn, Loeb; White, Weld; Clark, Dodge; and Goldman, Sachs & Co. were subsequently included?

Mr. SWAN. I think that we thought they would be an addition to the business and help it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, will you examine the document I now show you and tell me whether you recognize this to be a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. SWAN. That is a true copy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I offer in evidence the document identified by the witness.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1726" and is included in the appendix on p. 12268.)

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received. Now, Mr. Swan, you may make the explanation.

Mr. SWAN. All I wanted to say in regard to this memorandum,¹ was that Mr. Moore, who was an employee of ours, and was very anxious to bring to our attention any arguments that we might make whereby we would gain leadership or advancement in our cause of business, prepared this memorandum. Some of it is prepared from data; he tells me some of it came out of his memory. It is his presentation of the arguments that we might use to try to get leadership of this business. Very little of it, in my opinion, had validity. The real argument which we thought we had for getting leadership in this business was the close connection of many years of Mr. Walker and myself with the Van Sweringens who were at this time—or who had previous to this time—or who at this time, yes, who at this time controlled Erie Railroad, one of their railroads. We had very close associations with them.

I have no doubt that in the course of this discussion that we probably talked to the Van Sweringens; we probably talked to Mr. Bradley; we missed a trick if we didn't; we were doing everything we could to get business and to get important positions in the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is there any question in your mind, Mr. Swan, concerning the accuracy of any of the statements made by Mr. Moore?

Mr. SWAN. I don't doubt the accuracy of the statements, but I doubt the validity of the inferences.

Acting Chairman KING. Let me ask a question there. Was there during the period covered by the memorandum to which reference has been made, anterior and subsequent to that period, was there and is there rivalry among bond houses to secure positions in the syndicates for the sale of securities, and having securities?

Mr. SWAN. I think there is the most intense competition in our business, both before business is secured and after business is secured, to get position and large interests in the business. I think the competition is very keen all the time.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1724."

Acting Chairman KING. Did the Guaranty Co. have rather an important place in the vending of securities?

Mr. SWAN. I think the Guaranty Co.—it would probably be immodest to say it—I think we were probably about the best distributors of securities, retail distributors of securities. [General laughter.]

Acting Chairman KING. I think that modesty is entirely warranted. When did it cease to operate and when did this mantle—using the expression of my friend here—fall upon somebody else's—if it did—shoulders?

Mr. SWAN. The Guaranty Co. ceased to operate, I think, on the 15th of June 1934. At that time Edward B. Smith & Co. took over the major part of their organization; four officers of Guaranty Co., as I have testified, became partners in Edward B. Smith & Co. This sales organization to which you have referred I think was taken over practically in its entirety. Edward B. Smith & Co. was perfectly qualified; had the qualities which I think are necessary for an investment banker to have, to handle the business that the Guaranty Co. previously handled.

We naturally went out and pressed that as much as we could and pressed previous relationships as hard as we could. We succeeded in retaining, I should say, most of the business that the Guaranty Co. had previously done.

Acting Chairman KING. Is the investment business so uncertain and subjected to so many dangers so that its mortality, speaking generally over a long period of years, is very great?

Mr. SWAN. I wouldn't like to go into that too intimately.

Acting Chairman KING. At any rate it isn't absolutely watertight business?

Mr. SWAN. I think it is an extremely hazardous business and as far as the present time is concerned, the profits of it are most limited.

Acting Chairman KING. When you guarantee the issues of railroad companies particularly, is there any certainty of any profits at all? Judging from the past?

Mr. SWAN. Judging from the past, these issues I have been reviewing, these issues here, and thinking about them, these issues were all issues which needed good salesmanship, needed people who could properly explain securities and who were known as people who could do a good placing job.

Acting Chairman KING. Isn't there hesitancy—I will put it that way—upon the part of some of these investment companies in underwriting the guaranteeing of the bonds which they take over, or is there very great desire to underwrite obligations?

Mr. SWAN. Well, of course, it depends upon the character of the obligation. The very highest class obligations are very much sought for; there are some other obligations which presumably are perfectly good, but are less easily salable that are not so much sought for. I think it varies as to the eagerness with which people seek interests as to their apparent salability.

Acting Chairman KING. I assume that when a corporation desires to obtain capital with which to refund or to meet new issues that it is concerned as to the character, standing, and prestige of the various investment companies with which it seeks affiliation?

Mr. SWAN. I think I would put it this way: I think they require sufficient capital to know that the obligation which the underwriter may take is assured. I think the next—I think all of these—no one of these is good without the other. An investment banker must have capital, he must have integrity, and he must have competence.

Acting Chairman KING. I assume, then, that some investment bankers have larger capital than others?

Mr. SWAN. Yes; that is true.

Acting Chairman KING. And to that extent if they have a good name, good character for integrity and honesty, they may have some advantages over other investment bankers?

Mr. SWAN. Well, I don't think—I don't think I would go too far on that. Capital is only one attribute which is necessary, and after you get up to capital of a certain amount, the capital which is sufficient to guarantee the obligation which you take, capital beyond that is not so particularly necessary.

Acting Chairman KING. The moral stamina and moral character have a great deal to do with the position which an investment banking organization will have in the community?

Mr. SWAN. I thoroughly believe so and I think that isn't enough. I mean capital and integrity aren't enough. I think that the banker has to be competent; he has to know his business.

Mr. O'CONNELL. May I ask a question, Mr. Swan? A moment ago you expressed some concern about possibly unwarranted inferences that might be drawn from Mr. Moore's memorandum.¹ What did you have in mind more specifically than that?

Mr. SWAN. I just meant that some of the things that he put forward as arguments as to why we should have that business didn't seem to me very good arguments.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Specifically were you referring to the nature and extent of the so-called reciprocal obligation that has been discussed?

Mr. SWAN. No. Well, may I just look at that? I don't know that I know just what you are referring to.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I am not at all clear on what you were referring to when you made the general statement.

Mr. SWAN. All I was saying was that here are a number of things that are recorded here on these several pages which are put forward as arguments as to why we might claim position over Brown Hariman & Co. in the leadership of this business, and one or two of the things that I have spoken of here were valid arguments. I think a good many that were spoken of here did not constitute valid arguments, and I think the inference is—maybe this will answer your question—the inference is that all of this constituted valid arguments. It really was just bringing up before us the things that we might consider as to whether they were valid or not.

FORMER ASSOCIATION OF PARTNERS OF E. B. SMITH & CO. WITH GUARANTY CO. AS A VALID CLAIM TO LEADERSHIP

Mr. O'CONNELL. Well, would you consider the fact that you and other members of E. B. Smith & Co. had formerly been connected with the Guaranty Co. is a valid argument to be used in this connection?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1724."

Mr. SWAN. Yes; I certainly thought that was a valid argument, that our old relationship over a period of years with the people who now controlled this property constituted a valid argument as to why we should get leadership in this business.

Mr. HENDERSON. Have you finished?

Mr. O'CONNELL. Go ahead.

Mr. HENDERSON. I have no desire to interfere with the proper questioning by the committee. I would like to point out, however, we gave a sort of commitment to Mr. Whitney and his associates that we would try to get them through by tomorrow night.

Acting Chairman KING. If you will stop speaking now we will hurry along.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You recall, Mr. Swan, I asked you if you had any knowledge as to why White, Weld & Co., or Kuhn, Loeb or Clark, Dodge were subsequently included. I want to read you from a memorandum which you have just identified and which is now in evidence, as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1726"]:

We were advised by Mr. Arthur Anderson, of J. P. Morgan & Co., that White, Weld & Co. had been associated with J. P. Morgan & Co. or Drexel & Co. in the underwriting of a number of former Erie extensions and commented that they had approached him in connection with the underwriting of this extension. Mr. Anderson did not specifically request that we include White, Weld & Co. but he was pleased when informed that we had offered White, Weld & Co. an interest of 15%.

After Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had been offered and had accepted an interest of 10%, we learned that they had approached J. P. Morgan & Co. concerning the business.

I note, there, Mr. Swan, that K., L. went direct to J. P. Morgan & Co., rather to E. B. Smith or Brown Harriman. I continue to read from this memorandum by Mr. Cutler [reading further]:

An interest of 5 percent was offered to Clark, Dodge & Co.

By the way, Mr. Anderson, do you know Mr. Francis Ward?

Mr. ANDERSON. Very well.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had Mr. Francis Ward formerly been with J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And then he went to Clark, Dodge & Co.?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I continue reading from the memorandum of Mr. Cutler, Mr. Swan [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1726"]:

An interest of 5 percent was offered to Clark, Dodge & Co. because of Mr. Francis Ward's recent affiliation with the firm.

We considered offering a participation to Morgan Grenfell & Co., Limited.

Mr. Swan, why did you consider it necessary to offer a participation to a London house?

Mr. SWAN. A great many of these bonds were held in Holland and England. As a matter of fact in making up this list strength was added to the business by the fact of having Kuhn, Loeb; White, Weld; Clark, Dodge, in this business, because they were all very well known names abroad. That was one of the influences in choosing those people.

Now as far as Clark, Dodge is concerned, it says here we included them because of Mr. Francis Ward's recent affiliation. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I was just asking about Morgan Grenfell.

Mr. SWAN. Morgan Grenfell of course were located in London where their name also—where it would be useful to have them helping this business along, which required deposits and exchanges, and so forth.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would I be entirely mistaken, Mr. Swan, if I suggested that one reason why you may have wanted to offer a participation to Morgan Grenfell & Co., Ltd., of London was because of its, shall I say, association with J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York?

Mr. SWAN. I haven't any doubt but what that—that we, of course, knew that and maybe that is the reason their name was suggested to our minds. Of course they are very well and favorably known over there and would add to the business. Each one of these people would help the business.

Acting Chairman KING. Were securities sold abroad in Holland?

Mr. SWAN. This was not a question, Senator, of selling securities. This was the extension of an outstanding issue and there were a great many of these bonds held in Holland and in England.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE RAILROAD CO. REFUNDING—ROLE OF J. P. MORGAN & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, did J. P. Morgan & Co. arrange the $12,000,000 Coast Line financing in May of 1935?

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, we advised a great deal with Mr. Delano, the chairman of the board of the Coast Line, because they had this record that you introduced earlier, not only these maturities but also a bank loan was coming due.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Bank loan to J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. We had an interest in a six and a half million dollar loan, if I remember right. Again here we had, I think, started doing business with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and Louisville & Nashville Railroad back somewhere prior to 1880, and our relations there had been particularly close. Mr. Delano, who was the chairman, was a very close personal friend of ours and he had shortly before succeeded Mr. Henry Walters, who had been chairman for years, and we certainly did everything in our power to assist in it. I think I arranged—we were very active—this particular transaction myself, up to the point of discussion, and I know I did everything I possibly could to help Mr. Delano.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, will you glance at these diary entries which purport to come from your files, and tell me whether they are true and correct copies of originals in your possession?

Mr. SWAN. They are.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer them in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The diary entries referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1727" and are included in the appendix on p. 12268.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, will you follow me as I read you some of these entries by Mr. Cutler, Mr. Swan's partner?

Diary entry, 9/20/34 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1727"]:

JRS—

Mr. Swan—

and I spoke to GW regarding possible financing. Road wants to sell about $12,000,000 bonds when it can. Business pretty fair first six months but falling off now. No reason why we should not approach Lyman Delano direct, which we plan to do.

Would that mean, Mr. Swan, that Mr. Whitney consented to your approaching Mr. Delano, chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line?

Mr. SWAN. I think it meant that Mr. Whitney thought it would be an advisable thing for us to do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I'm sorry, I didn't quite get it.

Mr. SWAN. I think it meant that Mr. Whitney thought that it would be an advisable thing for us to do. As a matter of fact, Mr. Cutler happened to be a personal friend of Mr. Lyman Delano, and we went to Mr. Whitney because of his well-known connection with the road. Mr. Whitney said, or we asked possibly, Shall we talk to Mr. Delano, and he said, "Well, yes, go ahead."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you did talk—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). And we talked to Mr. Delano.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. To Mr. Delano, because Mr. Cutler subsequently noted in his diary that he [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1727"]:

and JRS lunched with Lyman Delano, Chairman, today. Delano said he had extended his six months' loan with the banks (JPM & Co. loans secured by General 4½% bonds) for another six months from October 1st.

I am just skipping along here [reading further]:

JWC to see GW—

Mr. Whitney—

and follow. I reported the above conversations to Anderson of JPM & Co., in Mr. Whitney's absence abroad.

Continuing [reading further]:

Reported to Whitney conversation JRS and I had with Delano as above. Loan extended to April 1st. George Whitney called JRS yesterday and said that Mr. Delano had seen him and he thought it was time to consider doing something. He—also spoke of our discussion with him some months ago as reported above. It was left we were to study the situation and decide what, in our opinion, could be done, and go back to GW.

Meaning George Whitney—

I continue, Mr. Swan [reading further]:

JRS and I talked with G. Whitney and told him we would be very much interested in considering the underwriting of $12,000,000 of above bonds, but felt before talking more definitely we would like to have additional information.

Skip along a few sentences, if you will [reading further]:

Whitney will speak to Brown, Harriman and then advise Delano he has spoken to both of us. He further indicated on account of the old three-way account that he assumed BH & Co. should lead.

Mr. Whitney, the old trio account was made up of J. P. Morgan & Co., First National, and National City, according to your previous testimony? Is that correct? Can you answer me yes or no?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes; I think so. May I ask for that again?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I said, Mr. Whitney, that the old trio, according to your previous testimony before this committee, had been made up of

J. P. Morgan, First National, and National City. Will you answer that yes or no, if you can?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that, Mr. Whitney, you recognize Brown Harriman as the heir of the National City Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You repudiate that statement?

Mr. WHITNEY. What statement?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That I have just read to you purporting to be a conversation.

Mr. WHITNEY. The best answer will be the next sentence.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am now continuing with the diary entries [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1727"]:

Ran into G. Whitney again and in view of what we thought he indicated yesterday regarding leadership, reminded him that in the three issues of Coast Line securities since the war, J. P. M. & Co. had appeared alone, the last issue for the three-way appearance being in 1915. He said he realized that and merely indicated to us yesterday that he considered ourselves and B. H. & Co. 50-50, leaving us to work out leadership between us.

That is not in conflict with any question I have asked you.

Mr. HENDERSON [to Mr. Whitney]. You didn't give him an answer to the question. He asked you whether you repudiate Cutler's dairy entry there?

Mr. WHITNEY. I merely meant, Mr. Henderson, that I thought the next sentence which I had read ahead rather showed there had been some mix-up in Cutler's recollection of what I had said. He said, "he merely indicated to us yesterday that he considered ourselves and B. H. & Co. 50-50."

So apparently the next day I hadn't meant quite what Mr. Cutler meant in his previous memorandum.

I acknowledge perfectly freely there had been a three-three account, but I don't remember ever saying to Mr. Cutler that I thought Brown Harriman should lead, and that is supported by what Mr. Cutler himself says the next day. Isn't that right?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just a moment, Mr. Whitney. I want to point out, if I may, to the Chair, the diary entry by John W. Cutler dated January 10, 1935, which reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1727"]:

Whitney will speak to Brown Harriman and then advise Delano he has spoken to both of us. He further indicated on account of the old three-way account—

That is the old trio arrangement, Mr. Chairman—that he assumed B. H. & Co. should lead.

Mr. Whitney, of course, having this before him, jumps ahead and then reads from Mr. Cutler's entry of January 11, 1935, but those two things are separate statements, and my reference and my question, sir, was directed to Mr. Cutler's diary entry of January 10, 1935.

Acting Chairman KING. Then the statement made by Mr. Whitney is sufficient answer, it explains it. He repudiates it in the sense of a categorical statement, but he makes the explanation.

Mr. WHITNEY. I thought, sir, you asked me whether I recognized that Brown Harriman inherited the City Company business and I said "No" to that.

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed.

Mr. HENDERSON. Just one more question on that. Mr. Cutler said very plainly that you had said to him that you assumed, on account of the old three-way arrangement, that Brown Harriman & Co. should lead, and your direct answer to that is what? Did you or didn't you tell Mr. Cutler that?

Mr. WHITNEY. I haven't the slightest recollection of that, Mr. Henderson. It was a long time ago. It is quite extraordinary that I should have spoken to E. B. Smith first, if I had thought that Brown, Harriman should lead.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would merely observe, Mr. Chairman, and I will promise to move on rapidly, that it would appear from these diary entries that Mr. Whitney was not able to make up his mind until after, when Mr. Cutler brought to him certain additional facts which apparently had escaped Mr. Whitney's attention, such as that J. P. Morgan & Co. had appeared alone in the last issue for the three-way appearance, being in 1915, and it would seem that after these additional facts had been brought to Mr. Whitney's attention, he changed his earlier view.

I shall proceed as I have indicated.

Acting Chairman KING. But I assume that the entry there should be construed as the whole procedure.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, you indicated that there was an Atlantic Coast Line loan at this time with J. P. Morgan & Co. Is that correct?

Mr. WHITNEY. I indicated there was a loan with the banks of which we had a participation, if my recollection serves me, which was a six and a half million loan altogether. We had a million dollar participation, and we had arranged the loan for Mr. Delano with the other things.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, is it not a fact that part of the proceeds of this issue were used to pay off some of the railroad's bank loans?

Mr. WHITNEY. Certainly. That was the purpose of the loan.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And J. P. Morgan & Co. was likewise paid off when the issue was floated?

Mr. WHITNEY. Certainly; they paid us all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, you and I sometimes have difficulties about precision in language, so will you do me the great courtesy of listening attentively to my next question? While I do not wish to imply that this particular repayment was in any way improper, it did, however, involve the very situation which the Banking Act sought to obviate. Is that not so, Mr. Whitney?

Acting Chairman KING. You mean the Banking Act prohibited making a loan to pay off an obligation of the bank?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir. As I understand the provisions of the Banking Act, it was to prevent the proceeds derived from flotation of securities to pay off obligations owing to a bank.

Acting Chairman KING. How would a corporation then, owing to a bank, pay its obligations if it had no credit and had no more money, that is if it had no money and had to borrow or sell securities.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I don't want to testify. If you want me to, I will take the stand.

Mr. WHITNEY. The answer to your question, Mr. Nehemkis is "No."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't consider that the situation described was in conflict in any way with the Banking Act?

Mr. WHITNEY. I do not. I never even heard it suggested.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Bearing in mind, of course, that I have clearly indicated I personally see nothing improper about the transaction.

Mr. Chairman, I now offer in evidence a memorandum and letter previously identified, from the files of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1728-1 and 1728-2" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12269 and 12272.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, is not generally patronage one of the advantages sometimes derived from underwriting? Perhaps if you find difficulty in answering that, I will read to you from this letter by Mr. Delano.

Mr. WHITNEY. May I have the question first?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you read back the question?

(The reporter read Mr. Nehemkis' last question.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you get that? By that I mean the ability of a banker to name trustees and registrars, and where funds are to be placed on deposit, and so on. We have had some testimony to that effect earlier.

Mr. WHITNEY. It is a new idea to me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me read you this letter, Mr. Whitney. This is by Mr. Delano, to Mr. William C. Potter, chairman of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, dated April 30, 1935 [reading]:

DEAR MR. POTTER: The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company has agreed to sell to Brown, Harriman & Co., Incorporated, and Edward B. Smith & Co. $12,000,000 Ten-Year Collateral Trust Notes, secured by $25,000,000, of our General Unified 4½% Bonds.

Mr. Whitney, if you will please listen to the following [reading further]:

At the suggestion of Mr. George Whitney, we have designated the Guaranty Trust Company of New York to act as Trustee of this indenture.

Did you understand my question, Mr. Whitney, when I referred to patronage as being one of the attributes of a banking house?

Mr. WHITNEY. I understood your question, but I was doing a little work for the Guaranty Trust Co. of which I was a director.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And also you were a member at that time of the executive committee, if I recall correctly.

Mr. WHITNEY. That is quite so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And J. P. Morgan had elected to discontinue its underwriting business in 1934, wasn't that what you said, Mr. Anderson?

Mr. ANDERSON. Your date was June 16, 1934.

Mr. HENDERSON. I ought to say, Mr. Whitney, that I think counsel was compelled to ask you to give your opinion on these two matters that have been brought up, since they came to our attention in the course of the inquiry. It was an obligation on the part of counsel to raise those two questions and to get your answer.

Mr. WHITNEY. It is all right with me.

CHICAGO & WESTERN INDIANA RAILROAD CO. REFUNDING—ROLE OF J. P. MORGAN & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We now turn, Mr. Chairman, unless you think nightfall is too much upon us, to the Chicago & Western Indiana R. R. refunding, and I think we will be through in about 15 minutes.

Acting Chairman KING. Do you guarantee that, underwrite it? [Laughter.]

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I underwrite it. [Laughter.]

Acting Chairman KING. We will take a recess until 10 o'clock sharp.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As soon as we conclude this.

Acting Chairman KING. I didn't say that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan would have to stay overnight.

Acting Chairman KING. Would you like to leave this capital of the Nation tonight, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. Senator, I would like to meet your wishes in any respect, but I would love to go home. [Laughter.]

Acting Chairman KING. I would like to meet your wishes, proceed.

Mr. SWAN. There is a conflict of interest here that I think should be divorced. [Laughter.]

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, the Chicago & Western Indiana financing in the fall of 1935 was a matter of purchasing a block of Chicago & Western Indiana bonds from the Burlington and also selling a block from the Chicago & Western Indiana's treasury, wasn't it?

Mr. WHITNEY. I really can't testify of my own knowledge, except from these records that I have seen. I had nothing whatever to do with it.

Mr. Anderson can answer, of course.

Acting Chairman KING (to Mr. Nehemkis). Can you answer the question?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It was purely a technical question for the record. As I understand it, the Chicago & Western Indiana financing in the fall of 1935 was a matter of purchasing a block of Chicago & Western Indiana bonds from the Burlington and also selling a block from the Chicago & Western Indiana's treasury, wasn't it [to Mr. Anderson]?

Mr. ANDERSON. The financing of the Western Indiana was the sale of treasury bonds. The sale of bonds for the Burlington was not of any immediate importance to the Chicago & Western Indiana R. R. Co. They had already passed out of their possession some years before.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, did J. P. Morgan & Co., manage that business and select the underwriters?

Mr. ANDERSON. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, will you examine a document which my assistant will show you, and tell me whether it is a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. SWAN. It is. Do you want me to read it?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, I don't want you to read it, I want you to identify it.

Mr. SWAN. I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like to offer this in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It will be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1729" and is included in the appendix on p. 12272.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to read you a part of this memorandum which has been identified as coming from the files of E. B. Smith & Co. [reading from "Exhibit No. 1729"]:

Brown Harriman & Co., Incorporated, and Edward B. Smith & Co. were invited by J. P. Morgan & Co. to consider the purchase and sale of a block of $1,658,000 Chicago and Western Indiana R. R. Co. First and Refunding Mortgage 5½% Series C Bonds owned by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy R. R. Co. It also developed that the Chicago and Western Indiana wished to sell $6,340,000 5½% Series A Bonds for refunding purposes. An investigation of the Chicago and Western Indiana was undertaken jointly by Brown Harriman and ourselves without any determination by J. P. Morgan & Co., or the two of us concerned of the question of leadership. Morgan said it was up to the two houses to settle this matter between themselves. Brown Harriman claimed the leadership primarily on the grounds that the National City Company had a historical and appearing position in former syndicate offerings. Our claims to the leadership were based primarily on the ownership of 2/5 of the capital stock of the Company by the Van Sweringen interests which were to acquire an additional 1/5 when and if the Wabash decided to withdraw. Our offer to toss a coin for the leadership was declined and as a counter proposal it was suggested that the question be referred to J. P. Morgan & Co. for decision.

Mr. Anderson, will you follow me on the next paragraph? [reading further]:

These conversations were concluded on a Friday night by Messrs. Davis, Sylvester and the undersigned and on the next morning Mr. Davis arranged for a meeting with Mr. T. S. Lamont who was the Morgan partner available that morning. In the meantime, however, I talked to several partners and it was decided that we would offer the leadership to Brown Harriman, we, however, to be joint in everything else, including managership.

So, Mr. Swan, from that statement by your associate, Burnett Walker, admittedly J. P. Morgan & Co. had the power and the right to assign leadership between Brown Harriman and E. B. Smith, but simply preferred, for whatever reasons available at the time, not to exercise it. Is that correct?

Mr. SWAN. My interpretation of it would be that they would say to us that we were joint and we were to decide it between ourselves. We were finding it difficult to decide it between ourselves and we therefore tried to get them to arbitrate it. We made up our minds that it was a much wiser thing for us to say to Brown Harriman & Co., "You go ahead and lead it."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And on the basis of the opening paragraph I read, is it not a fact, Mr. Swan, that clearly J. P. Morgan & Co. selected the underwriters and was considered to be in complete control of the situation?

Mr. SWAN. I think if that had been written in completeness it would have said, "J. P. Morgan on behalf of the Railroad Company."

Acting Chairman KING. At any rate, Brown Harriman were selected as leaders?

Mr. SWAN. We conceded the leadership to them without further action.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine that and tell me if that is a true and correct copy of the original in your possession? Identify the document for me, please.

Mr. SWAN. I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer this in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1730" and is included in the appendix on p. 12273.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now offer in evidence a document previously identified.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit 1731" and is included in the appendix on p. 12273.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, will you examine a letter from yourself to Mr. Ralph Budd, of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co., dated April 30, 1934, and tell me if that is a true and correct copy?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you look at this and tell me if you are familiar with that memorandum?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These are offered.

(The letter and memorandum referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1732 and 1733" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12273 and 12274.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine these, Mr. Swan, and tell me if they are true and correct copies?

Mr. SWAN. They are.

Acting Chairman KING. I assume without reading that they have some relevancy to the inquiry?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am trying to "underwrite this deal" for you, Senator.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The telegram and the diary entries referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1734 and 1735" and are included in the appendix on p. 12275.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Anderson, will you glance at this memorandum and tell me if you recognize it as a true and correct copy?

Mr. ANDERSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Offered.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1736" and is included in the appendix on p. 12275.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now offer 11 documents previously identified and bearing upon the subject of this discussion.

Acting Chairman KING. Who is Mr. Sylvester?

Mr. NEHEMKIS (to Mr. Whitney). Mr. Sylvester is vice president of the investing banking house of Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc.; correct?

Mr. WHITNEY. Correct.

Mr. ANDERSON. Mr. Nehemkis, this memorandum seems to be dated around the middle of July 1934. I was absent on a holiday abroad at the time, I think.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which memorandum?

Mr. ANDERSON. This memorandum from Walker.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is an undated memorandum.

Mr. ANDERSON. It refers to a meeting on July 17, 1934. I never heard of this meeting which is referred to, and at which T. S. Lamont was present.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I suggest after the meeting is adjourned you and Mr. Walker and Mr. Swan get together on this? I am merely offering what is written here.

Acting Chairman KING. You may correct it; if you were out of the United States, you may indicate it in the record. These documents may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1737 to 1747" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12276-12279.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, I asked you a question at the outset of these hearings. I am now going to repeat that question to you and see if you don't perhaps care to change your answer. It would appear, Mr. Whitney, that the power to determine to whom these railroad refundings were to be distributed was the power to distribute about $700,000 of gross income. Would you agree, Mr. Whitney?

Mr. WHITNEY. I see no reason to change my former answer. But Mr. Chairman—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Thank you, sir. I want to get my documents in and then you can comment. Does it relate to that point?

Mr. WHITNEY. Oh, yes; it relates to that point.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. To the specific point or the general subject matter?

Mr. WHITNEY. I will be glad to wait.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You will recall we discussed this morning, Senator King, a stipulation¹ by C. E. Mitchell, concerning a number of documents which I have been offering. I now want to offer another document pursuant to that stipulation, but before handing it to you, let me read it to you. You will recall that we have been discussing the refunding of the Atlantic Coast Line. Now on June 17, 1936, after Morgan Stanley & Co. was organized, Morgan Stanley brought out an offering of $26,000,000 of Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. first and refunding bonds.

What is the relationship, Mr. Anderson, between the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and the Atlantic Coast Line?

Mr. ANDERSON. The Atlantic Coast Line controls the Louisville & Nashville by ownership of a majority of the capital stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This is a memorandum, you will recall, by Mr. C. E. Mitchell [reading from "Exhibit No. 1748"]:

Morgan, Stanley & Co. will offer the above mentioned issue probably next week, or possibly the week following. * * *

Harold Stanley explained that, owing to the fact that when J. P. Morgan & Co. withdrew from the investment banking business, the First Boston Corporation, Brown Harriman, and E. B. Smith & Co. had handled some Louisville & Nashville financing, they had been obliged to give them a preferential position over us.

Do you know anything about that, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. I am sorry, I thought you were asking Mr. Anderson.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you hear what I just read? Mr. Stanley explained to Mr. Mitchell who was hoping to get a better position for his company that he couldn't do it in the L. & N. issue because of the fact that during this period we have been discussing J. P. Morgan & Co., he says, withdrew from the investment banking business and your firm, Brown Harriman and First Boston handled some of the Atlantic Coast Line business. Therefore, he said he was obliged to give your firm and the other two a preferential position.

Mr. SWAN. It is very difficult for me to testify, I should think, on a memorandum of Mr. Mitchell's referring to a conversation with Mr. Stanley.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I thought you might by chance know something about it.

I offer this in evidence.

¹"Exhibit No. 1691."

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.
(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1748" and is included in the appendix on p. 12279.)

OPINION OF DAVIS POLK WARDELL GARDINER & REED RELATIVE TO BANKING
ACT OF 1933 AND RELATION OF J. P. MORGAN & CO. THERETO

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Alexander, may I trouble you for a moment? I show you a carbon copy of a memorandum addressed to you from myself dated Washington, D. C., November 8, 1939. Do you recall seeing and receiving the original?

Mr. ALEXANDER. Yes; I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. What is the purpose of that? Is it information you asked for?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct, sir, just to complete the record.

Acting Chairman KING. Is there any contention about it?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No. This was an aide memoire to assist him in getting the material for us.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1749" and is included in the appendix on p. 12280.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Alexander, I show you a letter dated November 1, 1939, and ask you if that is a copy of a letter you sent me.

Mr. ALEXANDER. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I have here four opinions from Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed to Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. Examine those and tell me if they are true and correct copies.

Acting Chairman KING. What is the relevancy?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These are legal opinions obtained by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. from their counsel indicating to them certain factors about which I wish to examine one of the witnesses.

Mr. ALEXANDER. These are the copies of opinions that I sent to you.

Acting Chairman KING. There is nothing about relations between client and counsel?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir.

Mr. WHITNEY. We gave them voluntarily, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I misunderstood you. These were made available by Mr. Alexander.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1750 to 1755" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12282-12286.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Alexander, will you read the next to the last paragraph on page 4 of the aide memoire of November 8, 1939.

Mr. ALEXANDER (reading from "Exhibit No. 1749"):

In this connection, it is to be noted that the only general opinion of counsel furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co. is the opinion dated May 29, 1934, and that no specific opinion nor memorandum of specific discussions has been furnished that bear upon the aspect of the question raised by Mr. Wardwell. Three opinions dated July 22, August 21, and December 14, 1935, have been furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co., but each such opinion deals with legal problems connected with the respective bond issues, but not with the position of J. P. Morgan & Co. under Section 21a of the Banking Act of 1933.

May I read from the opinion of Mr. Wardwell, of November 1, 1939, concerning the applicability of section 21a of the Banking Act of 1933 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1755"]:

We have reviewed this question from time to time and have had no occasion to change our opinion.

As you know, we consider it advisable for the firm to follow the existing practice of examining with us the character of any particular transaction that may be under consideration in order that the firm be assured that such transaction falls within the scope of the general opinions which we may have given the firm from time to time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At this time, do you care to make any comment in regard to my communication to you from which you have read?

Mr. ALEXANDER. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, sir.

I have no further questions, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. Mr. Whitney, you had some further explanation.

Mr. WHITNEY. This last evidence just given shows that we were obviously very much alive in '34 and '35 to what we could and could not do under the new set of affairs. All I really wanted to say before that was, as I said in the beginning, if I can do a little boasting, I would like to say we would have tried to do our duty for our clients, which is to give them every possible service we can, and that this whole arrangement was forced upon us and the rest of the banking community by the change in the laws, and we were trying to adjust ourselves to that position, and these all follow the same pattern. The clients came to us and asked us to do a job. We did it as well as we knew how, and advised them to the best of our knowledge and belief as to who would perform a proper service for them.

That is really all I have to say.

Acting Chairman KING. I assume you had some uncompleted business, you had many clients and they came to you in the course of business and called for persons to take over some of the activities in which you had been engaged, and you gave them the advice upon their questions as to the persons or corporations or investment companies that could best serve them?

Mr. WHITNEY. And assisted them just as much as we could within the legal limitations by which we were bound.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Whitney, in that connection, you take the position, I gather from your last statement, that none of the services you performed in this period contravene the Banking Act?

Mr. WHITNEY. Absolutely.

Mr. HENDERSON. Leaving aside for a minute the legal phases, or leaving them aside entirely, a number of those functions you performed in this "switch-over" period are functions which are performed by underwriting houses, is that not correct?

Mr. WHITNEY. No, sir; I don't quite agree with that, because what we did was to advise clients of ours who in the past had traditionally come to us for advice and they didn't have the acquaintanceship, the relationship that Mr. Swan referred to that he had established with his clients, with anybody but with us at the time. They had to deal with others, and what we did in an extended service to these people varied a little bit in these issues, but none of those services had to do with the service of negotiation on price except insofar as we advised the borrowing corporation in two instances, to my knowledge, as to whether we thought the terms suggested by the underwriters were fair.

Mr. HENDERSON. I was late and I don't want to get into an extended argument, but I would like you to go back to the explanation you gave to this committee, which you volunteered at one of the earlier hearings, as to the functions performed by an investment banker, and I would like you to lay that alongside of some of the functions you performed in these cases under discussion this afternoon. I would like to have your considered answer, whether it would still be "No."

Mr. WHITNEY. Do you want me to attempt to do this now, or do you want a considered answer reviewing the situation?

Mr. HENDERSON. I would like your considered statement of the functions you perform. You have made several statements for the record as to what you consider that function to be. There has been laid on the table today a series of functions which you performed which you say were strictly banking functions for certain former clients of yours. I would like you to lay them together and tell me at some future time whether the answer is still "No."¹

Mr. WHITNEY. The answer is "No."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, there is one document I forgot to offer. This has been identified by Mr. Whitehead who appeared earlier.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1756" and appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11795.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like to have a telegram admitted from Mr. George Leib, and may I give you a word of explanation why I ask you to do this.

Mr. HENDERSON. Is that the telegram which was sent collect? [Laughter.]

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, sir. Mr. Leib was asked the question as to whether or not Harrison Williams had ever held any stock in Blyth & Co. Strictly speaking, Mr. Leib's answer was responsive to my question. Mr. Leib, however, feels that there may be some misunderstanding about that in the minds of some of the members of the committee, and so that there may be no misunderstanding he has indicated and shown how and why and where Harrison Williams has held stock in Blyth & Co.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The telegram referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1757" and appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11826.)

Acting Chairman KING. Have you additional questions of these witnesses? May they all be excused, including Mr. Whitney?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Oh, no, sir; Mr. Whitney is going to be with us tomorrow.

(The witnesses, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Swan, were excused.)

Acting Chairman KING. The committee will stand adjourned until 10:30 tomorrow morning.

Mr. HENDERSON. The Insurance Subcommittee will meet at 10:30 tomorrow in room 357, Senate Office Building.

(Whereupon, at 5:15 p. m., a recess was taken until Wednesday, December 20, 1939, at 10:30 a. m.)

¹ Mr. Whitney, in a letter, dated January 26, 1940, submitted the information requested. It is included in the appendix on p. 12321.

INVESTIGATION OF CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1939

UNITED STATES SENATE,
TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE,
Washington, D. C.

The committee met at 10:45 a. m., pursuant to adjournment on Tuesday, December 19, 1939, in the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney presiding.

Present: Senators O'Mahoney (chairman) and King; Messrs. Henderson, Lubin, Avildsen, Kades, Hinrichs, and Brackett.

Present also: Holmes Baldridge, Department of Justice; Clifton M. Miller, Department of Commerce; Willis J. Ballinger, Federal Trade Commission; Ganson Purcell, Securities and Exchange Commission; Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., special counsel; Samuel M. Koenigsberg, associate attorney; David Ryshpan, financial analyst; Oscar L. Altman, financial analyst; and Lawrence Brown, investigator, Securities and Exchange Commission.

The CHAIRMAN. The committee will please come to order.

Will you call your first witness, Mr. Nehemkis?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Harold Stanley.

The CHAIRMAN. The chairman has received a letter from Mr. C. B. Sawyer, president of The Brush Beryllium Co., submitting certain material for the record in connection with the hearings on beryllium.¹ Without objection, this may be printed in the record at the appropriate place.

(The letter and material referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1758-1 to 1758-3," and are included in the appendix on pp. 12286-12290.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, you will recall that the day we opened our proceedings, in the afternoon session we had occasion to discuss the financing of the Chicago Union Station bonds. In the course of the testimony of Mr. Bovenizer, there was a question as to whether or not certain contentions made by counsel were accurate, and as our usual procedure is, I requested Mr. Bovenizer to check his own books and advise us whether he still felt that way.²

I am in receipt of a letter under date of December 18, 1939, from Mr. Bovenizer, who advises as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1759-2"]:

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: I have your letter of the 14th instant in connection with my testimony of the other day on Chicago Union Station bonds and I find upon further examination that your figures are quite correct, not only as to percentage but as to amount also.

Regretting that my error should have caused you this additional trouble and with appreciation of your courtesy—and so forth and so on.

¹ Hearings on the development of the beryllium industry appear in Part 5.

² Hearings, Part 22, p. 11438.

May this be inserted in the record at the appropriate place, sir?

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, it may be so inserted.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Together with the accompanying letter to Kuhn, Loeb.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1759-1 and 1759-2 and appear in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, pp. 11797 and 11798.)

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair wishes to announce that a subcommittee of this comittee is conducting insurance hearings in room 357 in this building. If there are any witnesses who have been subpoenaed for the insurance hearing who are in this room, they should be in room 357.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, one further matter before proceeding with the business at hand: Yesterday afternoon, you may recall, Mr. Chairman, that we were discussing one of the interim pieces of financing, the Toledo & Ohio, and the question was raised by Mr. Anderson whether it was actually the Toledo & Ohio financing or some other financing.¹ I have reference now to our "Exhibit No. 1715," and so that the record may be clear, I merely want to read briefly from yesterday's proceedings:

QUESTION. I now read from the letter previously identified, Mr. Chairman, from Mr. Willard Place to Mr. Max O. Whiting. . . .

Mr. ANDERSON. What business is that you are talking about?

ANSWER. Toledo & Ohio, the subject matter under discussion. I offer it in evidence.

Mr. ANDERSON. I don't think it is.

Mr. WHITNEY. No, sir.

Then the exhibit was identified, and Mr. Whitney continued:

The Boston & Albany, another subsidiary of the New York Central—

And then Mr. Whitney continued to explain how it had to be the Boston & Albany.

Now, Mr. Whitney was in error, and I have prepared for you, sir, an abstract from Moody's Manual on Investments of Railroad Securities, which indicates that it was the Toledo & Ohio that we were discussing, and that under no conceivable stretch of the imagination could it have been the Boston & Albany; since so distinguished a banker as Mr. Whitney should have known that the Boston & Albany main line 1's were 4½'s. We were talking about 3½'s.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Nehemkis, didn't Mr. Whitney say that those Boston & Albany bonds were bonds held in some fund? It wasn't a new issue, it was a block of bonds held by the railroad. They were talking about selling those.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If he did—

Mr. MILLER (interposing). It is my understanding from the testimony.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I don't recall it, sir, but I have the testimony before me and a rather hasty glance at it does not indicate, if he said that, that it arose in this connection. I think, Mr. Miller, that you may have reference to an answer by Mr. Anderson in connection with the sale of certain Burlington bonds. I will be very glad to check it for you later.

¹ Supra, p. 12013.

Do you want this in the record or are you satisfied with the statement? [pointing to exhibit].

The CHAIRMAN. I think it is all right.

TESTIMONY OF HAROLD STANLEY, PRESIDENT, MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED, NEW YORK, N. Y.—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, will you state the date on which Morgan Stanley & Co. was incorporated?

Mr. STANLEY. I testified yesterday that it was September 5, 1913. I now understand that it was September 6—I mean 1935.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, what is the correct answer to the question?

Mr. STANLEY. The correct answer is September 6, 1935.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, I show you certain documents purporting to be the certificate of incorporation of Morgan Stanley, and various amendments thereto. Will you be good enough to examine them and identify them for me?

For your information, Mr. Chairman, these documents will be subsequently offered. They were obtained from the Secretary of State at Albany, N. Y., and bear his authentication.

Mr. STANLEY. I so identify them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The four items identified by the witness are offered in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1760-1 to 4" and are on file with the committee.)

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS OF MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INCORPORATED, AND THEIR PRIOR AFFILIATIONS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, will you be good enough to name the officers and directors of Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc., and will you also at the same time state the business affiliations of these officers and directors prior to their becoming associated with Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc.?

Mr. STANLEY. Have you the list there?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I do; but I prefer that you give it to me from your material.

The CHAIRMAN. This exhibit,¹ being the certificate of incorporation, is filed with the committee, not printed.

Mr. STANLEY. The list of officers and directors of Morgan Stanley & Co., which we have already furnished you, are as follows: Harold Stanley, president and director. Prior affiliation, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Do you want the date of employment as well?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If you have it there, you might as well give it.

Mr. STANLEY. Date employed, September 6, 1935, which is the day we opened our office.

William Ewing, executive vice president and director, same date of employment; prior affiliation, partner J. P. Morgan & Co.

Henry S. Morgan, treasurer, secretary, and director, same date of employment; prior affiliation, partner J. P. Morgan & Co.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1760-1 to 4."

Perry E. Hall, vice president and director; former affiliation, partner Drexel & Co.

Edward H. York, Jr., vice president and director, same date of employment; prior affiliation, partner Drexel & Co.

John M. Young, vice president, director, same date of employment; former affiliation, manager bond department, J. P. Morgan & Co.

Allen Northey Jones, vice president and director, same date of employment; prior affiliation, manager statistical department, J. P. Morgan & Co.

Alfred Shriver, vice president and director, date of employment, February 17, 1936; prior affiliation, president and director of Guaranty Co. of New York, in dissolution.

Sumner B. Emerson, vice president and director, date of employment, October 19, 1936; prior affiliation, vice president Fire Association of Philadelphia and associated companies.

Archer M. Vandervoort, assistant treasurer and assistant secretary, date of employment, September 16, 1935; prior affiliation, employee J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At the time of the organization of Morgan Stanley, you, Mr. Stanley, Mr. William Ewing, and Mr. Henry S. Morgan had resigned from the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., had you not?

Mr. STANLEY. We had.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But the arrangements in regard to the organization of the new firm were made, were they not, at the time when these individuals whose names I have just mentioned were still partners in J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. STANLEY. The arrangements?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. For the organization of the new firm.

Mr. STANLEY. Quite correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The capital stock of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., consists, does it not, of preferred stock and common stock?

Mr. STANLEY. It does.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were there not issued 70,000 shares of preferred stock at par $100 per share and 50,000 shares of common stock at $10 per share, $5 of which was set up on the books as paid-in capital, $5 as paid-in surplus?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., started business with a paid-in capital of $7,500,000?

Mr. STANLEY. Rather a paid-in capital of $7,250,000 and $250,000 paid-in surplus. Seven and a half million dollars of money.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I accept that. On August 7, 1939, was there not authorized an issue of common stock and was not the common stock increased from 50,000 shares to 200,000 shares?

Mr. STANLEY. I am not sure of the date. You undoubtedly have it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You may accept my dates subject to correction, if you wish.

Mr. STANLEY. I think that on the date you mention the authorized number of shares increased to 200,000 shares and 150,000 shares as stock dividend.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the additional 150,000 shares were distributed to the common stockholders as a stock dividend, as you just indicated, increasing the amount of outstanding common stock to 200,000 shares. Is that correct, sir?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this is the amount of common stock now outstanding?

Mr. STANLEY. It is.

COMMON AND PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS OF MORGAN STANLEY & CO.,
INCORPORATED

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were not the three principal common stockholders at the time of incorporation, yourself, Mr. William Ewing, and Mr. Henry S. Morgan?

Mr. STANLEY. They were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By the way, is Mr. Henry S. Morgan the son of Mr. J. P. Morgan?

Mr. STANLEY. He is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, as each of these individuals took something over 20 percent of the stock, do they not now hold between themselves over 60 percent of the common stock?

Mr. STANLEY. They hold, I think, exactly 60 percent between them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that, Mr. Stanley, the controlling interest in the new firm was held by these three former partners of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, it depends on what you mean by controlling interest. Sixty percent of the voting stock was held by these three individuals.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does that mean anything to you?

Mr. STANLEY. The control of a company is in the hands of all the stockholders.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, let's be precise. When three individuals hold 60 percent of the voting stock of the company, does that have any significance?

Mr. STANLEY. If they act together they vote the majority of the stock, certainly, but if you take any one of them and the balance of the stockholders, I don't see how they could have a majority.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The other common stockholders were Mr. Perry E. Hall, Mr. A. N. Jones, Mr. E. H. York, Jr., and Mr. John M. Young?

Mr. STANLEY. I am sorry, I didn't follow all the names. Undoubtedly it is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Perry Hall, A. N. Jones, E. H. York, Jr., John M. Young.

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I believe you have already testified, but I should like you to state again at this time that the other common stockholders whose names I have just given to you were former employees of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, former employees of J. P. Morgan & Co. or partners of Drexel & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who was a former partner of Drexel?

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Hall and Mr. York.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What is the difference between Drexel & Co. and J. P. Morgan?

Mr. STANLEY. They are the same firm, but Drexel & Co. is the name of the business down in Philadelphia.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I see, same firm, different name.

Mr. STANLEY. Yes. Understand, that isn't the legal definition. I am not trying to be legalistic about it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I quite understand you, Mr. Stanley. So that all of the common stock was held by either former partners or employees of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. And Drexel & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In the light of your explanation.

Mr. STANLEY. Quite right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At the time of the incorporation of Morgan Stanley & Co., was not the bulk of the preferred stock taken by Morgan partners?

Mr. STANLEY. The bulk of the preferred stock was purchased by certain individual partners.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If you can answer my question at this time I will give you further opportunity to clarify it by detailed questions later. (The reporter read the immediately preceding question.)

Mr. STANLEY. The bulk of this preferred stock was taken by Morgan partners individually, certain Morgan partners individually.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, I show you a letter from you addressed to me, dated November 27, 1939. Tell me if this is your signature and whether this is a letter which you did send to me?

Mr. STANLEY. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine the four sheets attached to the original letter of transmittal? Do you recognize those as having been prepared by your organization?

Mr. STANLEY. I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The documents identified by the witness, Mr. Chairman, are offered in evidence.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be admitted.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1761" and are included in the appendix on p. 12291.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Of the original holders of the preferred stock, only William Ewing and Henry S. Morgan were associated with the new company. Were not all of the other holders partners of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As Messrs. Henry S. Morgan, yourself, William Ewing, each purchased about 20 percent of the common stock of Morgan Stanley & Co., was not their investment in the equity of the new company approximately $100,000 each?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not Mr. Henry S. Morgan purchase 2,500 shares of preferred stock for $250,000, and did not Mr. William Ewing purchase 1,500 shares of preferred stock for $150,000?

Mr. STANLEY. They did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that the total capital investment of Mr. Harold Stanley, president of the new company, was approximately $100,000?

Mr. STANLEY. As of September 16, 1935, but shortly after that—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Just answer the question as you have been given it.

Mr. STANLEY. As of September 16, 1935, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that of Mr. Henry S. Morgan, vice president, was approximately $350,000?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that of Mr. William Ewing, vice president, was approximately $250,000?

Mr. STANLEY. As of that date.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not other officers invest something under—

Mr. STANLEY [interposing]. Excuse me, Mr. Nehemkis, it was somewhat larger, but that is approximately correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You accept that?

Mr. STANLEY. Substantially so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let's see that the record clearly shows your answer. I asked you a series of questions concerning the amount of the investment of yourself, Mr. Henry S. Morgan, Mr. William Ewing, and is your answer, "Substantially correct"? Is that what you want the record to show?

Mr. STANLEY. The amounts you mention are substantially correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, sir. Now, did not the other officers invest something under $200,000 in the common stock of Morgan Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that $6,600,000 of capital in the form of preferred stock was supplied by Morgan partners?

Mr. STANLEY. I don't think I have that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Why don't you accept that subject to check?

Mr. STANLEY. I will be glad to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that the officers of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, supplied but $900,000 of the original $7,500,000 capital of the firm?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you tell me who now hold the common stock of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated?

Mr. STANLEY. Do you want the whole list?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Run them off quickly.

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Emerson, Mr. Ewing, Mr. Hall, Mr. Jones, Henry Morgan, Mr. Shriver, myself, Mr. York, Mr. Young.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does not Mr. Ewing, yourself, Mr. Henry S. Morgan, each still hold approximately 20 percent of the common stock?

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Ewing, Mr. Henry Morgan and myself do each hold approximately 20 percent of the common stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is not the only new holder of common stock Mr. Alfred Shriver?

Mr. STANLEY. And Mr. Sumner B. Emerson.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Sumner Emerson?

Mr. STANLEY. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When did Mr. Sumner Emerson acquire common stock in addition to that—I think you covered that in your previous answer when you told me the names of the common-stock holders, didn't you?

Mr. STANLEY. I didn't cover your last question. It is a very simple answer. He acquired it on or about the time he became an officer of our company, which was sometime after he became an employee—I don't know the exact date.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is not important. Tell me who the holders of the preferred stock are, if you will?

Mr. STANLEY. As of August 31, 1939, the close of our fiscal year, the holders of our preferred stock were as follows. Do you want the amounts?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just give me the names.

Mr. STANLEY. Arthur M. Anderson.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, to save time you might give me the amounts.

Mr. STANLEY. Arthur M. Anderson, 1000 shares. Gaspar G. Bacon and George Whitney, trustees under deed of trust, dated November 13, 1914, 1,700 shares. Robert L. Bacon and Gaspar G. Bacon, as trustees for Martha B. Whitney, 1,700 shares. Francis D. Bartow, 1,000 shares. William Ewing, 1,500 shares. Allen Northey Jones, 200 shares. Thomas W. Lamont, 19,500 shares.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me make sure I have that. Thomas Lamont, 19,500. That is in evidence¹ but I want to put it on my copy.

Mr. STANLEY. Russell C. Leffingwell, 3,400 shares. H. Gates Lloyd, Jr., 850 shares. H. Gates Lloyd, Jr. and Charles D. Dickey, trustees for Richard W. Lloyd, under the will of Horatio G. Lloyd, deceased, 850 shares. Richard W. Lloyd, 850 shares. Richard W. Lloyd and Charles D. Dickey, trustees for H. Gates Lloyd, Jr., under the will of Horatio G. Lloyd, deceased, 850 shares. Henry S. Morgan, 9,800 shares. J. P. Morgan, 3,000 shares. Junius S. Morgan, 2,800 shares. Harold Stanley, 1,000 shares. Charles Steele estate, deceased, 20,000 shares.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I note that among the new holders of the preferred are yourself, holding 1,000 shares and Mr. Allen Jones holding 200 shares. Mr. Stanley, has any person other than those appearing in the four lists which you have previously identified in the names and amounts you have just given me ever been, to your knowledge, a holder of record or beneficial owner of any shares of either common or preferred stock of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I can only answer the question about the holders of record; no one has, to my knowledge, in that respect. I can't answer of course about beneficial ownership.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who can answer that question?

Mr. STANLEY. Each stockholder, I suppose.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You, as a principal officer of Morgan Stanley are not aware of that?

Mr. STANLEY. We have no knowledge of the transfer of stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have no knowledge or information or belief on the subject?

Mr. STANLEY. No; I have none.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is not the preferred stock cumulative up to 4 percent, and is it not a nonvoting stock entitled to 6 percent if earned?

Mr. STANLEY. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It has no rights, however, of any kind other than to receive dividends when, as and if declared, and certain payments on liquidation. In short, it has no right to vote for officers?

Mr. STANLEY. No right to vote for officers or directors.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, the common stock alone elects the officers and directors?

Mr. STANLEY. It does.

¹ Referring to "Exhibit No. 1761."

LIMITATIONS ON DISPOSITION OF CAPITAL STOCK UNDER ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, is it not a fact, Mr. Stanley, that under the articles of incorporation it is virtually impossible for either the common or preferred stock of the corporation to be sold to anyone who is not satisfactory to the present directors or their successors?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, there are restrictions on transferability.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you accept my statement as a description?

Mr. STANLEY. I am not sure that it doesn't go too far. They can't sell it without offering it to us but if we don't take it they can sell it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If one of the holders of stock offers it to you and you are not interested, could it be sold to me, for example—this being a very hypothetical case?

Mr. STANLEY. I think so. You wouldn't get your dividend this year if you bought it. [Laughter.]

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that really so, that anyone, for example, could acquire stock of Morgan Stanley if you decided that you weren't interested in purchasing it?

Mr. STANLEY. I will be glad to give you the exact situation subject to correction by my counsel. In brief, the restrictions are on transferability. If the holders of preferred stock want to sell it they would have to offer it to us first, and if we don't take it within a certain time limit then they can sell it to somebody else.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. To anybody else—

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). That they want to, within a time limit.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Within 30 days?

Mr. STANLEY. Is that correct?

Mr. GEORGE A. BROWNELL.¹ Yes.

Mr. STANLEY. And if they don't sell it in that 30 days to somebody else and subsequently want to do it again they have to offer it to us.

Mr. BROWNELL. Sixty days is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do I understand you correctly that John Jones could under the circumstances that you have just narrated become a stockholder of Morgan Stanley & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You are quite sure of that?

Mr. STANLEY. I think so. May I ask counsel if that is correct?

Mr. BROWNELL. Yes.

Senator O'MAHONEY. It would seem, Mr. Nehemkis, from your questions that you might be interested in acquiring some of this stock. [Laughter.]

Mr. NEHEMKIS. After seeing exhibits here showing the profits in the underwriting business I ought to be. [Laughter.]

The CHAIRMAN. This is set forth in the charter.

Mr. STANLEY. It is all set forth in the papers that you have.

The CHAIRMAN. Does counsel recall the particular section of the charter?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Articles 13 and 14, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. Let's read this into the record.²

¹ Counsel to Mr. Stanley.

² Reading from "Exhibit No. 1780-1," on file with the committee.

13. No holder of either Preferred or Common Stock shall be entitled as of right to purchase or subscribe for any part of any unissued stock of either class or any additional Preferred or Common Stock to be issued by reason of any increase of the authorized capital stock of the Corporation of either class, or bonds, certificates of indebtedness, debentures or other securities convertible into stock of the Corporation, but any such unissued stock or such additional authorized issue of new stock or of other securities convertible into stock may be issued and disposed of pursuant to resolution of the Board of Directors to such persons, firms, corporations or associations and upon such terms as may be deemed advisable by the Board of Directors in the exercise of their discretion.

14. With the exception of transfers in the case of a deceased stockholder to his executors or administrators and, as to the Preferred stock only, with the further exceptions of transfers (1) to a person who is already an existing stockholder of the corporation and (2) to testamentary trustees, no shares of the Preferred Stock or the Common Stock of the corporation shall be sold, assigned, bequeathed, or otherwise transferred, whether by any holder or owner thereof, or by the executor, administrator, trustee or other representative of any stockholder or by any receiver, trustee in bankruptcy or any representative of the creditors of any stockholder, or by the grantee or assignee of any such shares sold on execution, or otherwise, unless the same first shall have been offered for sale to the corporation, or, if the corporation shall so elect, to a nominee or nominees of the corporation, as hereinafter provided.

Whenever any such holder, owner, executor, administrator, trustee, receiver, bankruptcy trustee, grantee, assignee or representative shall desire to sell or dispose of shares of Preferred Stock or Common Stock of the corporation, such holder, owner, executor, administrator, trustee, receiver, bankruptcy trustee, grantee, assignee or representative shall first notify the Board of Directors, and shall offer to sell said Preferred or Common Stock to the corporation or to its nominee or nominees at a price per share not exceeding the value thereof determined as follows:

(a) In the case of the Preferred Stock said value shall be determined by computing the amount which each share of Preferred Stock would have received, after payment of all liabilities, of the corporation, if dissolution of the corporation had taken place at the end of the month last preceding the date of receipt by the corporation of the aforesaid offer.

(b) In the case of the Common Stock said value shall be determined by computing the amount which each share of Common Stock would have received, after payment of all liabilities of the corporation and of all amounts payable to the holders of Preferred Stock on dissolution, if dissolution of the corporation had taken place at the end of the month last preceding the date of receipt by the corporation of the aforesaid offer.

(c) In case any dividends shall have been declared by the corporation on such stock, payable to stockholders of record of a date subsequent to the end of the month last preceding the date of receipt by the corporation of the aforesaid offer, but prior to the transfer by such holder, owner, executor, administrator, trustee, receiver, bankruptcy trustee, grantee, assignee or representative to the corporation or to its nominee or nominees of the stock covered by such offer, the amount of such dividends per share shall be deducted in determining the value per share as above provided.

In computing the value of the Preferred Stock or of the Common Stock for the foregoing purposes the value of the assets and the amount of liabilities of the corporation shall be as determined by the Board of Directors, except that no allowance shall be made for good will or any other such intangible asset, and the determination of the Board of Directors shall be final; provided, however, that if the offerer of the stock so desires and so specifies in his offer, such value shall be determined by the independent accountants who last audited the books of the corporation, and in such case the determination of said accountants shall be final. If an offerer elects to have such value determined by said accountants, he shall pay the fees and charges of the accountants for such service.

The aforesaid offer and notice shall be in writing addressed to the corporation at its principal office in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent an offerer from offering to sell his stock for less than the value thereof as above determined. If an offerer shall have specified a price in excess of the value of his stock, determined as above provided, the price at which the corporation, or its nominee or nominees, shall have the right to buy the stock shall be automatically reduced to the value as so determined by the Board of Directors or the independent accountants, as the case may be.

If any such offer be accepted by the corporation for itself, or on behalf of its nominee or nominees, it shall be the duty of any such holder, owner, executor, administrator, trustee, receiver, bankruptcy trustee, grantee, assignee or representative to transfer said stock to the corporation, or to its nominee or nominees, upon payment of the purchase price (i. e., the offering price or the value as above determined, whichever is less), and no dividends or interest shall be paid or allowed on such stock after failure to comply with any request by the corporation to make such transfer.

If within thirty (30) days after the delivery of any offer of sale as aforesaid, the corporation shall not accept for itself, or on behalf of its nominee or nominees, such stock or any part thereof, the offerer shall be at liberty, within sixty (60) days after the expiration of such thirty (30) days, to sell and transfer such shares of stock as are not bought by the corporation, or by its nominee or nominees, to any person at any price not less than the price at which the corporation had the right to purchase such shares (i. e., the offering price or the value as above determined, whichever is less). If, however, such shares of stock shall not have been so sold or disposed of, and the certificates therefor presented to the corporation for transfer within such sixty (60) days, such shares must again be offered to the corporation as hereinabove provided, before the same or any part thereof can thereafter be sold, assigned, bequeathed or otherwise transferred.

From and after the sale, assignment, bequest or transfer of any stock made in violation of the foregoing provisions, and until after the notice and offer as heretofore provided shall have been given and the time of the corporation to exercise said option shall have expired, the corporation shall have, and it is hereby expressly given, the right and option to purchase all or any part of such stock at a price equal to the value thereof determined as above provided. No transfer of any stock made in violation of the foregoing provisions shall be valid or effective or be recorded on the stock books of the corporation.

Whenever the corporation shall exercise any of the rights and options hereinabove given, either for itself or on behalf of its nominee or nominees, in accordance with the terms thereof, and shall deposit or cause to be deposited with any bank or trust company in the City of New York for the account of the holder of record of said stock, his legal representatives and assigns, the purchase price determined as hereinabove provided of any stock which it has so elected to purchase for itself or on behalf of its nominee or nominees, and shall give notice in writing to such holder of record, sent by registered mail to his address as the same appears on the stock books of the corporation, of the place and amount of such deposit, and that such deposit will be payable to him upon surrender of the certificates for such stock, duly endorsed and stamped for transfer, then and thereupon all rights of the owner and holder of such stock, his legal representatives and assigns, in law and in equity as a stockholder of the corporation shall cease and such stock shall be and become the property of the corporation or of its nominee or nominees, as the case may be, and the certificate or certificates representing such stock so purchased, shall be deemed to be and shall be cancelled and of no effect, and the custodian of the stock books of the corporation shall note such cancellation in the stock books of the corporation.

Any notice hereinabove provided to be given by the corporation shall be sufficient if given to the holder of record of any stock at his address appearing on the stock books of the corporation, and shall bind the legal representatives or assigns of such holder of record.

The Board of Directors shall have power to sell and dispose of the shares which may be transferred as aforesaid to the corporation whenever, in their judgment, it can be done with advantage to the corporation.

Those are the two sections.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Shall I proceed, sir?

The CHAIRMAN. You may proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, I show you two sheets containing data on issues underwritten or participated in by your firm during the period September 16, 1935, to June 30, 1939, and the second sheet containing information with respect to counsel for underwriters, advertising agencies, engineering, appraisal firms, accounting firms. Will you examine these sheets and tell me whether you caused them to be prepared in response to my request?

Mr. STANLEY. We did, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The documents identified by the witness are offered in evidence, Mr. Charman.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1762 and 1763, respectively, and are included in the appendix facing p. 12291.)

ANALYSIS OF BUSINESS DONE BY MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, was not Morgan Stanley & Co.'s first offering on September 21, 1935? Was not that an issue of Consumers Power Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. It was. We were joint managers with Messrs. Bonbright.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I was going to come to that. This offering appeared how many days after the organization of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated?

Mr. STANLEY. The date you mentioned is the date of the prospectus. The offering was September 23, and I have testified that Morgan Stanley & Co. was organized on September 6.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that your answer is now, how many days after the organization of Morgan Stanley was this issue of Consumers Power offered?

Mr. STANLEY. Seventeen days.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And I believe you have already indicated that you were co-managers of this offering with Bonbright & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. We were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, if my memory serves me correctly, a previous witness, Mr. Gordon, has testified¹ concerning some of the difficulties that arise when you have a joint-managership account. Would you indicate briefly to the committee how it happened that you had a co-managership of this account with Bonbright & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I should like to say first that I think your reference to Mr. Gordon's testimony, which I heard in part, at least, was not quite on the subject. His testimony—his reference was to having one manager in one part of the country and another manager in another part of the country.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Certain difficulties arising from joint managership, but since you and the Bonbright firm were both in New York, that difficulty or that kind of difficulty would not ensue?

Mr. STANLEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then will you answer my question, if stated to you in this fashion: How did it happen that you were joint managers with Bonbright & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. We so acted because Mr. Wendell Willkie requested us to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Wendell Willkie?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

¹ Supra, p. 11946.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, is Mr. Wendell Willkie a partner of the investment banking house of Bonbright & Co., Mr. Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Wendell Willkie is chairman of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation and chairman of the Consumers Power Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Wendell Willkie requested you to make Bonbright your joint manager of the account?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes; he requested us to be joint manager of the account with Bonbright.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was the amount of the offering, Mr. Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. $19,172,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And how much was your participation?

Mr. STANLEY. Our participation in the underwriting group was $5,711,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, keep your eyes on the same line and go to the last column and tell me how much your gross profit was.¹

Mr. STANLEY. Our gross profit before deductions of expenses, which were set forth in the heading, was $60,575.66.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In the first 4 months of your existence, during the period September 16 through December 31, 1935, did not Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated participate in underwriting amounting to $195,835,000?

Mr. STANLEY. We participated in issues amounting to that. Our underwriting was fifty-five-million-odd dollars.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, having in mind the two figures we have before us, what was the amount of the gross spread on these issues?

Mr. STANLEY. You mean dollars?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; in dollars.

Mr. STANLEY. $4,186,527.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, after deducting your share of the syndicate expenses, what was your gross profit? I am aware that your terminology is different from the one which I am using, which I take to be the accepted one. You refer to gross receipts or losses, but I think we understand each other.

Mr. STANLEY. Gross receipts. I think your question was our share of gross profits after—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). —deduction of syndicate expenses; correct.

Mr. STANLEY. Which are the expenses of the syndicate as such?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right.

Mr. STANLEY. None of our own expenses or overhead taxes, and so forth.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right. What is the figure?

Mr. STANLEY. The figure is $933,245.79.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right.

Senator KING. Out of that you paid taxes and your office expenses?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir; overhead, rent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, was not your profit on these issues about 22 percent of the gross spread? You don't have the figures there; Mr. Young had better make some calculations. Put down $933,246 over $4,186,528, and tell me if that isn't 22 percent of the gross spread; approximately 22 percent, Mr. Young?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1762."

Mr. YOUNG. Yes; that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, was not this profit a little less than half received from management fees, Mr. Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, during the 4-year period September 16, 1935, to June 30, 1939, did not Morgan Stanley & Co. manage or co-manage issues amounting to $2,534,968,530?

Mr. STANLEY. From September 16, 1935, to June 30, 1939?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct, sir.

Mr. STANLEY. We managed or co-managed issues amounting to $2,534—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). You accept my figure?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes. I wasn't sure whether I had the right place.

Senator KING. Was there a guaranty—were these underwritten?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir; these were all underwritten by various firms, including ours.

Senator KING. That meant a guaranty of the amount for which you had underwritten?

Mr. STANLEY. Not of the entire amount, sir. All of the Telephone issues were guaranteed and certain other issues, but not the entire figure just stated.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not, during the same period that we are discussing, Morgan Stanley participate in issues managed by others, amounting to $629,901,200?

Mr. STANLEY. They did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And again, during the same period under discussion, did not Morgan Stanley manage or participate in issues amounting to $3,164,000,000?

Mr. STANLEY. That is the correct figure—the face amount of bonds—the amount of our own underwriting—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I will come to that. Morgan Stanley participated in issues or co-managed—the Morgan Stanley participation in issues managed or co-managed by it was $522,991,050?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, that is something over 20 percent, isn't it?

Mr. STANLEY. About.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Approximately?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, approximately.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you want to check the figures, Mr. Young, or do you accept them?

Mr. YOUNG. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Morgan Stanley's participations in issues managed by others was $66,525,000, or something over approximately 10 percent?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that Morgan Stanley's participation in issues managed by itself was twice as large as in issues managed by others?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, do you have before you the total spread on the issues managed by Morgan Stanley during this period under discussion?

Mr. STANLEY. I have. The figure is $50,450,216.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, of this amount, Mr. Stanley, did not Morgan Stanley transfer to its gross profit account, referred to in your table as receipts and losses, $12,227,613, or about 24 percent?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, the figure that you mentioned is in this last column of gross receipts.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is your answer "Yes" or "No"?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, you said transferred to our gross—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Profit account, referred to in your table as receipts and losses.

Mr. STANLEY. Now, you are speaking about bookkeeping now and after all, presumably—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Well, where—

Mr. STANLEY. There is no bookkeeping—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Well, "transfer" need not be taken that literally. What is your answer to my statement? I want the record to show your answer. What appears in that column? What is the figure, $12,227,613?

Mr. STANLEY. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then your answer should be "Yes," should it not, sir?

Mr. STANLEY. I don't know; I mean, you are talking about transferring to a gross profit account. There is no such account.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All right.

Senator KING. Make such explanation as you care to.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, there is no doubt, Senator, that the figure he mentioned in the column, the last column of the table, which we prepared at his request, is there, but I thought he was referring to our books of record.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No; I think you were taking me too literally.

Mr. STANLEY. I'm sorry.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, can you tell me what the total spread was on the issues which were managed by other houses?

Mr. STANLEY. May I have that read?

(The question was read.)

Mr. STANLEY. The spread in the issues managed by other firms in which we participated was $12,621,294.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That's correct. Now, of that amount, it appears in the gross-profit account, does it not, $462,315 or about 3¾ percent of the spread?

Mr. STANLEY. It appears in that column; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, Mr. Stanley.

Now, of the 73 issues managed by Morgan Stanley, am I correct in understanding that not one issue showed a loss?

Mr. STANLEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is to say, loss to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In fact, it only shows—the only loss shown from the Morgan Stanley participations is the 1936 Shell Union issue, which was managed by some other house; is that correct?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And your loss on that participation was $32,000, roughly?

Mr. STANLEY. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that this was the only issue out of the 90 managed or participated in by Morgan Stanley during these 4 years that showed a loss?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, is this correct. Mr. Stanley, that the gross profit to Morgan Stanley on the issues managed or co-managed by it was slightly less than half a point?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What is your answer, Mr. Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct. I have answered.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, was not the gross profit that Morgan Stanley, on issues managed by others, made, $462,315, or about one-fifteenth of 1 percent, on the gross spread, of course?

Mr. STANLEY. I can't follow you.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Accept it subject to correction.

Mr. STANLEY. I will be glad to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, was not the total spread on the issues managed by others $12,621,000, roughly speaking?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it correct that only two firms ever served as co-managers with Morgan Stanley?

Mr. STANLEY. I don't think—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Perhaps I can help you if I give you this question: Have any other firms, other than Bonbright & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., ever served as joint managers with you?

Mr. STANLEY. I think not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What is your answer; "Yes" or "No"?

Senator KING. He said, "I think not."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I wasn't sure. You think not?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Bonbright & Co., prior to the organization of your firm, was always associated with utility business, was it not?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, it had done a very large—

Senator KING (interposing). Do you mean exclusively associated?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I wouldn't—

Senator KING (interposing). Or others?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I wouldn't say exclusively, but my understanding is that it was a house that was famous for its utility business.

Did I get your answer, sir? [to Mr. Stanley]

Mr. STANLEY. There are several Bonbright firms that had existed over a period of years. Those firms had been identified largely with utility financing, but it had done other business, particularly some of the firms.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, the—

Senator KING (interposing). Pardon me, but there were several firms by the name of Bonbright?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes, sir. Not more than one at one time, but over a period of time there were several distinct firms.

Senator KING. Under the same management or same ownership?

Mr. STANLEY. Different management, Senator.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I believe you said, Mr. Stanley, that the other co-manager with you was the house of Kuhn, Loeb. Has not Kuhn, Loeb & Co. been particularly associated with railroad issues.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, they have done a great deal of railroad financing. They have done a great deal of other kinds of business over a long period, too.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You feel you can't answer my question in the form in which it was put to you?

Mr. STANLEY. I can't answer it precisely. I can express the opinion that they probably have done more railroad business—still, I don't know how much.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think that is fairly helpful. Was not Morgan Stanley's total gross profits from security flotations, during this entire period that we have been discussing, $12,689,928?

Mr. STANLEY. That is correct—subject, of course, to all the deductions that I have mentioned several times.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right. Did not $7,774,286 or a little over 60 per cent come from management fees?

Mr. STANLEY. Management compensation, yes. We pay ourselves part of that.

Senator KING. You what?

Mr. STANLEY. We pay ourselves part of that. I don't know if that is clear, Senator.

Senator KING. No; it is not.

Mr. STANLEY. Well, the management compensation is paid by all of the underwriters to the management. There might be 10 underwriters and each of the 10 pay something to the management. When we are one of the 10, as we always are, we pay ourselves that portion, you see.

Senator KING. Oh, you take it out of one pocket and put it in the other?

Mr. STANLEY. That's right. When we have taken the underwriting, or 20 percent of the underwriting, we pay ourselves 20 percent of the total, as managers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will Mr. George Whitney please take the stand, and will you remain, Mr. Stanley?

Senator KING. May I ask one question before he does?

Generally speaking, Mr. Stanley, what would be the expenditures that would be paid out of the gross returns or gross profits?

Mr. STANLEY. The expenditures that any firm would have?

Senator KING. Yes; I am speaking of taxes or whatever they were.

Mr. STANLEY. Yes. Well, first, of course, there is the return on capital, that being the most important thing in the underwriting business, which, if idle for a long time—or we may be busy at other periods. The business has peaks and valleys, you know. You do a lot of business or you don't do business for a long time. We did a lot of business in the first 2 years of our existence, and the last year we haven't done very much. As I said to Mr. Nehemkis, if we had been the owner of our preferred stock this past year, we wouldn't have received full dividends, because we didn't earn it.

Senator KING. Well, that is to say, you have to keep available a large amount of capital which brings no returns whatever?

Mr. STANLEY. Right. We have to keep a staff of people who are available, if we want to maintain this existing form of investment machinery for the need of the market, so that they are available to perform certain expert services to a borrower, and they are competent, experienced men. They have to be kept and paid whether we are busy or whether we are not. Of course, we have that overhead; we have rent, we have taxes, all the things that any business has to pay in the way of expenses.

Senator KING. Have you ever made any computation as to the amount which might be considered as a profit after meeting all of these obligations to which you have referred, taking into account the idle capital which for some periods would not be used and which, of course, calls for some compensation, and what would be the ultimate amount which would be regarded as a profit?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, you can't—I don't think you can in this business decide what would be an average return on capital over a period of time. The business is very "spotty." An awful lot depends on where you say "Yes" or "No" as to going into certain issues. For example, during this period there were certain issues that were brought out on the market that didn't turn out very well, and the underwriters had substantial losses. If we had said "Yes" to the invitation to become an underwriter in those issues, we might not have had any money at all, or, rather, we might not have had profits anything like these that Mr. Nehemkis has brought forth, the gross profits. We didn't go into those issues, as it happened.

Senator KING. Well, were there many corporations or investment bankers or companies in the field during the period covered by the inquiries of counsel?

Mr. STANLEY. I should say "Yes."

Senator KING. Was the field open to every investment company to bid for or enter into negotiations with corporations that were seeking capital?

Mr. STANLEY. The field was entirely open to anyone if the corporation wanted to do business with them.

Senator KING. There was no coercion upon your part to compel them—corporations seeking money—to deal with you?

Mr. STANLEY. No, sir; none at all, Senator.

Senator KING. I suppose the fact that you made a pretty good record, as evidenced by Mr. Nehemkis' questions, would bring to Morgan Stanley and those with whom they were associated considerable prestige, and people would have confidence in them and go to them when they had large flotations to make?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, all of us, Senator, I might say, have been in the business of investments for quite some time and knew a great many people in the business and in the big corporations. We had a certain, or we were supposed to have a certain knowledge of the business over that period.

TESTIMONY OF GEORGE WHITNEY, J. P. MORGAN & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.—Resumed

ENUMERATION OF FORMER ACCOUNTS OF J. P. MORGAN & CO. UNDERWRITTEN BY MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED—ACCOUNTS NOT UNDERWRITTEN

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, will you glance at the sheet spread out on the table there, indicating the originations and participations of the firm of Morgan Stanley, and run through that list and read off, if you will, the companies on that list which were formerly accounts of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. I don't know anything about that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do as I ask, if you will, Mr. Whitney. You are a banker and you have testified that you had 25 years' experience in the banking business. That should be simple for a banker.

Mr. WHITNEY. I think I can try to do that, Mr. Chairman. I am not sure that I can remember, but I will do my best. This is a sort of an unrehearsed—do you want me to read them all?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Sure. You go down the list and tell me every one of those accounts which was formerly an account of J. P. Morgan.¹

Mr. WHITNEY. All right.

Consumers Power Co., no; Dayton Power & Light Co., no; Illinois Bell Telephone Co., yes; Ohio Edison Co., no; New York and Queens Electric Light & Power Co., no; Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., yes; New York Edison Co., no; Central Illinois Light, no; Consumers Power Co., no; Louisville & Nashville Railroad, yes; New York Central Railroad, yes, twice; Consolidated Edison Co., no; Pacific Telephone & Telegraph, yes; Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, yes; Cincinnati Union Terminal Co., yes; Chicago & Western Indiana, yes; Brooklyn Edison Co., yes—I mean, no, on that. What was your question, whether we did bond issues or—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Whether they were an account of yours.

Mr. WHITNEY. What do you mean by that, may I ask?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Whether you did any form of financing, bonds, notes, stocks.

Mr. WHITNEY. Crane Co., no; Niagara Falls Power Co., yes; Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., yes; Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, yes; Indianapolis Water Co., I wouldn't know; New York Edison Co., no; Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, yes; General Motors Acceptance, twice yes; Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., no; American Telephone & Telegraph, yes; Central Hudson Gas & Electric, yes; Argentine Republic, yes; American Telephone & Telegraph again, yes; Consumers Power Co., no; Pacific Telephone and Telegraph, yes; Ohio Edison Co., no.

Great Northern Railway, I guess yes; Government of the Dominion of Canada, yes—that's twice.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just keep to the corporate issues—well, go ahead, since you are doing it, you might as well do it all.

Mr. WHITNEY. You interrupted my train of thought.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I'm sorry!

Mr. WHITNEY. Argentine Republic, yes; Johns-Manville Corporation, yes; Philadelphia Electric, yes; Argentine Republic, yes; Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph, yes; Crane Co., no; Phelps Dodge, no; Cincinnati Gas & Electric, no; Standard Brands, no; New York Telephone, yes; Niagara Electric, twice, yes; duPont, yes; Westchester Lighting, no; Ohio Edison, no; Central New York Power, no.

Consolidated Edison, no; Consumers Power, no; Duluth, Missabe and Iron Range Railway, yes; Consolidated Edison of New York, no; U. S. Steel, yes; Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph, no; Standard Oil of New Jersey twice, yes; Southwestern Bell Telephone, yes; Public Service Electric and Gas, yes; New York Steam Corp., no; Argentine Republic again, yes; Dominion of Canada, yes; Continental Oil, no—well, a predecessor company, a very different company we had then.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That's right.

Mr. WHITNEY. Railway Express, yes; Consumers Power, no; Eastman Kodak, no; Inland Steel, no. That wasn't their business anyway.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1702."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was a participation.

Mr. WHITNEY. Oh, excuse me!

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to get the record straight.

Now, Mr. Whitney, I want to thank you. That was a very refreshing experience, because I think you have been overmodest about your memory heretofore.

Mr. WHITNEY. Thank you!

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Whitney, all railroad issues that you have enumerated on that sheet were former J. P. Morgan accounts? All Telephone issues were——

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). Excuse me, sir, what was that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I said all railroad issues that you enumerated—suppose we make it a little more systematic. I am going to show you this table of industrial and railroad issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley during the period under discussion, and ask you to look at them and tell me if there is any railroad issue on this list that was not one that you enumerated a moment ago.¹

Mr. WHITNEY. That is correct, except——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Just hold it for a moment!

Mr. WHITNEY. May I answer your question?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Certainly.

Mr. WHITNEY. That is correct, except the Great Northern Railway was at First National Bank.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But part of the old trio, that is——

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). No, no; it wasn't, not a bit! Excuse me!

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All right. Now, hold that for just a moment. You see a number of industrial accounts there. All of those accounts were formerly managed by J. P. Morgan & Co. except——

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). You mean bond issues?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Bond issues—except—now, you pick out the ones that were not managed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, Crane, it is down here twice; Phelps Dodge is here, and Eastman Kodak. Now, let me start again: Crane——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Excuse me, but just to get the record plain on this, these are industrial issues underwritten by Morgan Stanley which were not formerly accounts of J. P. Morgan & Co. Proceed.

Mr. WHITNEY. Crane Co., the Phelps Dodge Co., the Eastman Kodak Co., and I think Standard Brands.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. One other, Shell Union Oil.

Mr. WHITNEY. Who?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Oh, I'm sorry, that is not on your list. But that is one other account that you people didn't have.

Mr. WHITNEY. I wouldn't know—one other. I didn't hear what you said to start with.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I said Shell Union Oil was not formerly an account of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. WHITNEY. Oh, no! And Continental Oil, of course, is so changed in its present situation, it is really not proper to say——

¹ See "Exhibit No. 1764-2," appendix, p. 12295.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). With reference to Standard Brands, is it not a fact, Mr. Whitney, that your firm organized and was instrumental in setting up Standard Brands?

Mr. WHITNEY. We had something to do with it, but we weren't either of the two functions you suggested.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, I would like to offer in evidence at this time these two tables from which we have been working, the source of the data having been furnished to us by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, in both instances.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be received.

(The tables referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1764-1 and 1764-2," respectively, and are included in the appendix on pp. 12293 and 12295.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, do you recall any company for which J. P. Morgan & Co. was formerly principal banker, which has floated securities through some house other than Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated?

Mr. WHITNEY. I couldn't possibly answer that question. I never thought of it before.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you do some thinking about it and send me a memorandum on it?

Mr. WHITNEY. You mean check up every industrial company financed during the last few years?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Somebody in your organization. We would like the committee to have the benefit of your advice on it.¹

Mr. Stanley, do you recall any company for which J. P. Morgan & Co. was formerly principal banker which has floated securities through some other house than Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated?

Mr. STANLEY. I would like to be able to think about it, because I might miss some. I recall some at the moment; perhaps I can think of more later. Those I recall are the Connecticut Light & Power Co., a subsidiary of the United Gas Improvement Co., which sold securities by Putnam & Co., of Hartford; Cincinnati Union Terminal Co., which sold some bonds through Lehman Brothers; the C. & O. Railroad which sold securities through Halsey, Stuart, and Otis & Co.; the Terminal Railroad of St. Louis, who sold securities through a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, do I follow you correctly that the three you have mentioned thus far, Terminal Railroad, C. & O., Cincinnati Union Terminal and Connecticut Light & Power—

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). That is four. I would like to have the opportunity to think further about it. There may be many others, I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If you will and at your leisure send us a memorandum, we will be very grateful.²

Mr. STANLEY. I will be very glad to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Stanley, will you glance at the sheet³ I am about to show you, the original of which is in evidence, and go over this very quickly and tell me which of these utility issues you recognize as having been managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley. Just tell me first which of those you recognize as having been managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley.

¹ Mr. Whitney, under date of January 26, 1940, submitted the information requested. It is included in the appendix on p. 12321.

² See letters from Mr. E. H. York, Jr., Feb. 15, 1940; Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., Esq., March 4, 1940; Mr. Harold Stanley, March 12, 1940, in the appendix, pp. 12321-12324.

³ "Exhibit No. 1764-1."

Mr. STANLEY. This entire list purports to be a list of certain utility issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co., and I have no doubt it is correct. Some of these companies, of course, sold—I think in all cases of these groups here the sales were in quite substantial amounts of securities direct by private placement to institutions.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Substantially you accept the table?

Mr. STANLEY. It seems to be correct. It is subject to check.

UTILITY UNDERWRITINGS BY MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED, WHICH WERE NOT UNDERWRITTEN BY J. P. MORGAN & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All of this is subject to check.

Will you pass it to Mr. Whitney? Mr. Whitney, will you run over that list¹ and tell me which of those utility accounts were formerly accounts of J. P. Morgan & Co.? Take them by groups, the first one being the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York. Were any of that group formerly Morgan accounts?

Mr. WHITNEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Take the next group, Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, any of that group of companies J. P. Morgan accounts?

Mr. WHITNEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Turn to the next, Niagara Hudson Power Corporation, were any of those J. P. Morgan accounts?

Mr. WHITNEY. Some of them in part, I mean, in other words, we had done isolated business for some of these; yes. Some we hadn't; Central New York we hadn't.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you indicate the ones for which you believe that some isolated financing had been done, subject, of course, to check?

Mr. WHITNEY. I would want to check them because I don't like guessing on something I haven't checked up, but we did once, many, many years ago, the Niagara Falls Power, and I have an idea it related to another. Central Hudson I think we did in Drexel. I wouldn't know. Buffalo Niagara we did some, and other people, if I recollect, did some, the Central New York Power, so that I think we may have done isolated transactions for Central New York Power.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you turn to the next section, Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation?

Mr. WHITNEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. United Gas Improvement Co.

Mr. WHITNEY. Through our Philadelphia office; yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey.

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, back in the 1890's or something like 1900 I guess it was, we did a piece of business for them in J. P. Morgan & Co. and since then Drexel has.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1764-1."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the last, Indianapolis Water Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Hall tells me that Drexel did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The answer is that Drexel handled the last three pieces?

Mr. HALL. Which three pieces?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Look at the chart¹ and refer to United Gas Improvement Co., Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, and Indianapolis Water Co.—did Drexel handle all those three accounts?

Mr. HALL. They did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, to return to a former answer of yours, you said U. G. I. and Public Service Corporation of New Jersey appear in the J. P. Morgan scheme of things rather remotely in the past. Don't they appear latterly somewhat more contemporaneously than perhaps you intimated?

Mr. WHITNEY. J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. WHITNEY. No, sir; we have never done any broad transaction, I don't think, in New York. In the New York part of our show I don't think we have ever done anything for U. G. I., and I say we did once 40 years ago for Public Service.

Wait a minute, I apologize because I always think in terms of the New York end. Mr. Hall reminds me that some of these Commonwealth & Southern Corporation issues, subheaded that way, Drexel did do business with. He had better identify it because I wouldn't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think Mr. Hall had better be sworn.

Mr. WHITNEY. I wouldn't know of my own knowledge at all. I have forgotten.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (to Mr. Hall). Suppose you take the sheet.² And will you be good enough to swear this person?

The CHAIRMAN. Do you solemnly swear the testimony you are about to give in this proceeding shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. HALL. I do.

TESTIMONY OF PERRY E. HALL, VICE PRESIDENT, MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INCORPORATED, NEW YORK, N. Y.

Mr. HALL. There is only one, and that would be the Ohio Edison under Commonwealth & Southern.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you previously indicated, and Mr. Whitney accepted your statement, that U. G. I., Public Service of New Jersey and Indianapolis Water Co. had been formerly financed by Drexel?

Mr. HALL. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, do you recall when the United Corporation was organized?

Mr. WHITNEY. United Corporation—1929.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not the United Corporation organized by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Bonbright & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. It was.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1764-1."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, I show you a letter which purports to be on the stationery of J. P. Morgan & Co., addressed to Lansing P. Reed, Esq. Will you look at it and tell me if you recognize this as being your stationery and the kind of file paper that normally appears in your shop?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This is a letter, may it please the committee, from Mr. Thomas S. Lamont, to Mr. Lansing P. Reed. Can you tell me who Mr. Lansing P. Reed is or was?

Mr. WHITNEY. He was a member of the firm of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, who are our counsel.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read to you this letter [reading from "Exhibit No. 1765"]:

At Harold Stanley's suggestion—

I presume he referred to you, sir?

Senator KING. What is the date of that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. January 2, 1929 [reading]:

At Harold Stanley's suggestion, I am enclosing a batch of advertising circulars regarding various investment trusts. He—

Referring again, I presume, to you, Mr. Stanley—suggested that I call to your particular attention the Utility Equities Corporation and especially the first paragraph thereof which I have marked. In this connection the names of two other investment trusts occurred to me, the purposes of which are in a way similar to the one proposed—

Bear this in mind, if you will, Mr. Chairman—in that they make little if any pretense of diversification, and their purpose is obviously to insure continued control by the bankers (Lee, Higginson & Co.), and their clients. These are the Swedish American Investment Corporation and the Solvay American Investment Corporation. In the circular advertising the sale of their fixed obligations to the public, no mention is made of diversification.

Now, I am offering this at this time because of this significant fact. This document was filed under United Corporation, and when I paused in my reading, the reference was to United Corporation.

I offer it, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1765" and is included in the appendix on p. 12296.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, were you not once a director of the United Corporation?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you be able to identify for me the report to the stockholders for the year ending 1934, and while you were not a director in 1938, I ask you to tell me if the report I show you for the year 1938 looks familiar to you, and is the report.

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, I can certainly identify the '34 one. I suppose it is fair to believe that that is the report that was issued in 1938.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Before relinquishing these, since I don't have occasion to refer to them later, I would like to read into the record from the consolidated balance sheet sent to the stockholders in the year 1938, the investments of the United Corporation in a number of corporations which we shall have occasion to deal with later, and which we have in fact already discussed with you [reading from "Exhibit No. 1766-2"]:

Companies	Shares held	Percent of total voting stock outstanding
Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, common stock.....	2,424,356	19.6
Niagara Hudson Power Corporation, common stock.....	2,351,007	23.4
Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, common stock.....	988,271	13.9
The United Gas Improvement Co., common stock.....	6,066,223	26.1
The Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, common stock.....	1,798,270	5.1
Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc., common stock.....	203,900	1.5

May I at this time, sir, offer these documents in evidence, as identified by the witness?

The CHAIRMAN. Do you want them printed in the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think it is rather important, sir, that they should be printed.

Perhaps we can file them; we can always get access to them.

The CHAIRMAN. That will be better.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think I have given the vital information.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be accepted and filed.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1766-1 and 1766-2" and are on file with the committee.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, is it a pure coincidence that Morgan Stanley should do all the underwriting for companies whose stocks have been the principal investment of United Corporation?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I don't know what you mean by a pure coincidence, but I would say that the reason that we have done business for the companies, for the subsidiaries of the companies you mentioned, is because those companies asked us to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it a coincidence, Mr. Stanley, that Morgan Stanley has done no underwriting for other utility companies?

Mr. STANLEY. I am not sure that we haven't.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Check me if you will. If I am in error, I am always very happy to be so told.

Just a moment before you do that; to the best of your knowledge at this moment, subject always to your privilege to check, can you give me an answer to those two questions, yes or no?

Mr. STANLEY. May I have it read, please?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Read the second question.

(The reporter read the question: "Is it a coincidence, Mr. Stanley, that Morgan Stanley has done no underwriting for other utility companies?")

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Give me the answer to that. You have the privilege of checking that later.

Mr. STANLEY. May I have the question again?

(The reporter read the question again.)

Mr. STANLEY. We have done other.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What is the answer to the question, is it a coincidence or not a coincidence?

Mr. STANLEY. Coincidence to what? I don't get your meaning.

Senator KING. It seems to me that is a dual question. Is it a coincidence—that is a question; and was there any underwriting of other organizations.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They were two questions, sir, quite.

Senator KING. It seems to me a man would have to be dexterous to know how to answer it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will repeat the first question: Mr. Stanley, is it a pure coincidence that Morgan Stanley should do all of the underwriting for companies whose stocks have been the principal investment of United Corporation? Now may I have your answer?

Mr. STANLEY. I would say it has nothing to do with the ownership of United Corporation by these companies.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You can't answer that yes or no?

The CHAIRMAN. May I suggest, Mr. Nehemkis, that the question cannot possibly be clear to the witness, because he doesn't know what is in your mind as the alternative to a coincidence.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I ask the witness if he will pass that; I have his general answer, and see if he can answer my second question, which I believe was as follows: Mr. Stanley, is it a coincidence that Morgan Stanley has done no underwriting for other utility companies?

Mr. STANLEY. But we have done other underwriting.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Than in that group formerly mentioned?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes; we have. They are on the group you have, some of them—all of them.

“MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INCORPORATED, HAVE BEEN DOING BUSINESS WITH THE CLIENTS WHICH FORMERLY HAD PATRONIZED J. P. MORGAN & CO.”

The CHAIRMAN. Doesn't this all boil down to this state of facts, Mr. Nehemkis, that the Morgan Stanley firm was incorporated after the banking law of 1933 had been passed, divorcing underwriting from banks, and that the Morgan Stanley firm took over the underwriting function of the old firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and that it was established principally by old stockholders or old partners of J. P. Morgan or Drexel; in other words, that the new investment company was organized by the owners of the J. P. Morgan partnership for the purpose of carrying on the business which the banking house could no longer carry on, and that most of the investment underwriting business of J. P. Morgan went on over to Morgan Stanley? Now, that is the situation, is it not, and there is no dispute about that, is there?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think the answers are all in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. There is no dispute about that.

Mr. STANLEY. Only this, sir; we didn't take over anything. We formed a company to do business of the type of security business, investment business, that J. P. Morgan & Co. used to do, and I think it might tell the whole story of the formation of Morgan Stanley & Co. if you would permit me to put in the record two very short announcements made at the time of formation, one by Morgan Stanley & Co. and one by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The CHAIRMAN. I think they have already been mentioned, but we will be very glad to have them.

Mr. Stanley:

For release morning newspapers September 6, 1935

ANNOUNCEMENT OF MORGAN STANLEY & Co., INC.

A group of partners and staff members of J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York and Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia, formerly active in the securities business of the firms, have withdrawn and are forming a new organization for the underwriting and wholesaling of investment securities, to be known as Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., Messrs. Harold Stanley, William Ewing, and Henry S. Morgan, of J. P. Morgan & Co., Messrs. Perry E. Hall and Edward H. York, Jr., of Drexel & Co., and Messrs. John M. Young and A. N. Jones, heretofore managers of the Bond and Statistical Departments of J. P. Morgan & Co., are to be the executive officers of the new corporation. Mr. Stanley will be the President of the new corporation.

The new securities corporation will have a paid-in capital of $7,500,000, divided into common and preferred stock. The common shares, which have sole voting rights in the election of the directorate, are to be held exclusively by the officers and staff of the corporation. The preferred shares will be held by members of this group and by certain individual partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. The corporation will open its offices for business at No. 2 Wall Street, New York City, on September 16th next.

For release morning newspapers September 6, 1935

STATEMENT OF J. P. MORGAN & Co.

We have to announce with regret the resignation of the following members of J. P. Morgan & Co. and of Drexel & Co. who, with other valued members of our staffs, have, under the name of Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc., undertaken to organize and carry on a securities business of the character formerly handled by our firms: Harold Stanley, William Ewing, Henry S. Morgan, Perry E. Hall, Edward H. York, Jr.

The withdrawal of these partners and associates, and their formation of a separate and independent securities company, is, we consider, a logical step following upon our firm's decision a year ago, to carry on our banking business rather than the securities business; thus acting in accordance with the banking and securities provisions of the Banking Act of 1933, recently confirmed by the Banking Act of 1935, just enacted. We believe that the members of the new organization will be able, with the ample experience which they have heretofore had, to serve usefully the investment interest of the community.

The firms of J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. will continue as heretofore to carry on their business as private bankers.

The CHAIRMAN. Now you said in answer to my question that J. P. Morgan & Co. did not transfer this business, or words to that effect?

Mr. STANLEY. Right.

The CHAIRMAN. But as a matter of actuality, though there was no legal transfer of this business, the new firm of Morgan Stanley & Co., composed of former partners and associates of J. P. Morgan & Co., did, as a matter of fact, carry on most of the old J. P. Morgan investment-banking business?

Mr. STANLEY. It did, as a matter of fact, if I may say, do a very considerable amount of business with people who had formerly done business with J. P. Morgan & Co. and with people who Mr. Ewing, Mr. Hall, and myself had individually done business with.

The CHAIRMAN. And you were not, of course, confined to that business which had formerly been transacted by J. P. Morgan? You did other business?

Mr. STANLEY. We did.

The CHAIRMAN. And would do other business that would come across the threshold?

Mr. STANLEY. We would be very glad to.

The CHAIRMAN. But it is a fact, nevertheless, that the great majority of the old business and the old clients followed the Morgan partners into the new firm.

Mr. STANLEY. A great many of the old clients of J. P. Morgan & Co. did business with us after we were formed, yes, sir; people we had known for years.

The CHAIRMAN. Would it be proper to say most of them did?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes; I think so.

The CHAIRMAN. In other words, with very few exceptions, the new firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. have been doing the business with the clients which formerly had patronized J. P. Morgan & Co.

I say just as a plain matter of fact; it has no implications of any kind to my mind at all. It is just a plain matter of fact. That is what happened.

Mr. STANLEY. Quite right, sir; excepting with very few exceptions I am not quite sure of the figures. I think there was quite a substantial amount of business done with people who had never done business with J. P. Morgan & Co. before.

The CHAIRMAN. And it would be a simple matter for you and Mr. Nehemkis to get together and outline what business has been taken over, what percentage—I shouldn't use the words "taken over," what business is now carried on by Morgan Stanley that formerly had been carried on by J. P. Morgan. Is that the situation as you understand it? [to Mr. Nehemkis].

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir. Mr. Whitney has identified the three industrial accounts that were new accounts not handled by his firm; Mr. Stanley has given testimony that the only old accounts that his firm did not handle were four accounts, three of which his firm lost through competitive bidding; Mr. Whitney has testified that all of the utility business that Morgan Stanley has done today was with companies in which United Corporation, which had been organized by Mr. Whitney's firm, had heavy investments in; and Mr. Stanley, if I understand correctly, is a little bit confused by my second question that had the word "coincidence" in it, but which simply means that I find no record of new financing of utility business by Morgan Stanley & Co. other than accounts that belonged to the United Corporation group.

Mr. STANLEY. I testified that United had nothing to do with it.

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Chairman, may I make a comment then? I didn't testify to that. I testified as to the first part of what Mr. Nehemkis stated but I never had an opportunity, I never was asked the question about confining this to United Corporation. Mr. Stanley's statement and your statement, rather, is absolutely correct of any understanding of what has happened. United Corporation I can say unequivocally hasn't been a factor in this in any possible, conceivable way.

The CHAIRMAN. I don't see much difference between what Mr. Nehemkis has said and what the chairman said, nor what the witness said. I don't see any dispute here.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think they are now all in agreement.

The CHAIRMAN. Then what is it all about?

Senator KING. Was the Stanley company that you aided in organizing required, compelled, legally or morally, to take over any clients that formerly had patronized J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. No, sir.

Senator KING. You had the right to select clients as and when and where you pleased?

Mr. STANLEY. Absolutely, sir.

Senator KING. And to take over any or all of the former clients of J. P. Morgan & Co. if they came to you?

Mr. STANLEY. If they were willing to do business with us.

Senator KING. And you went out, as I understood the testimony, and did obtain other clients in addition to those who had been the clients of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. We did.

Senator KING. You were an independent corporation?

Mr. STANLEY. Absolutely, sir.

Senator KING. No strings upon you, so you were not compelled to take only J. P. Morgan clients but you could take clients from any source you pleased?

Mr. STANLEY. Absolutely.

Senator KING. And have done so?

Mr. STANLEY. We have.

The CHAIRMAN. Of course, there is perfectly clear from all of the testimony throughout this hearing a fact which we all knew before, that J. P. Morgan & Co. were probably the leading bankers in the United States, if not the world, and that most of the strong corporations in the United States at some time or another passed through its portals. J. P. Morgan & Co. did a lot of the financing business. Now that the Banking Act has separated two functions that were formerly merged, Morgan Stanley in the investment field has succeeded to a similar dominant position that J. P. Morgan formerly held.

Mr. STANLEY. Senator, I am very glad to say that some of the former clients have been willing to select us to be their bankers in the investment field.

Senator KING. I see no impropriety in that.

Mr. STANLEY. I don't, sir. I am proud of it.

The CHAIRMAN. It isn't a question of impropriety so far as the question takes note. It is a question of the actual concentration of the bulk of this business. Now, that carries no implication of wrongdoing or violation of the law, or anything of that kind, but it is a physical fact that is of tremendous importance in the economic history of the United States.

Mr. STANLEY. Lots of good business we don't get, Senator, that we would like to have.

The CHAIRMAN. You are not satisfied with the large proportion that you now have?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, I would like to do more.

The CHAIRMAN. It was ever thus.

Mr. STANLEY. We haven't had much since July, Senator. We are running in the red.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may I proceed?

The CHAIRMAN. It is now 12:30.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I don't know what to do. I promised some of our witnesses that we would get them back to their families before Christmas. I am kind of worried.

The CHAIRMAN. One reason I interrupted was in the hope that it might clarify the matter and make it unnecessary to go into so much detail. I really don't think there is any dispute about this.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have done it magnificently and I am not going to cross-examine. If I may have the committee's indulgence for 15 minutes more, then I think we can come to a good stopping point.

Mr. Whitney, I want to read to you testimony of your senior partner, Mr. Thomas Lamont, given in connection with the hearings before the Wheeler Railroad Committee.¹ I think you recall them, don't you?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes, sir.

PROPORTIONS IN WHICH PREFERRED STOCK OF MORGAN STANLEY & CO.,
INCORPORATED, IS HELD BY PARTNERS OF J. P. MORGAN & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you follow me as I read?
This is Mr. Lamont [reading]:

We have no interest in the profits of Morgan Stanley & Co.

QUESTION. You get dividends upon preferred stock, do you not?

Answer.—

By Mr. Lamont, who always is the answerer here.

We get interest on our preferred stock.

QUESTION. You get dividends upon the preferred stock, do you not?

Mr. LAMONT. Those are limited dividends, simply a return on capital.

QUESTION. If they make any profits—

Referring to Morgan Stanley—

you get a profit out of the business, do you not?

Mr. LAMONT. No, we do not get a profit out of it.

QUESTION. Through dividends?

Mr. LAMONT. I do not call that a profit out of the business, I call that interest on capital.

QUESTION. It comes from earnings, does it not?

Mr. LAMONT. It derives of course from the profit of the earnings of the business.

QUESTION. It comes from interest upon the earnings?

Mr. LAMONT. Certainly.

QUESTION. The other way, you had it as a partner, and now you have it from interest.

Mr. LAMONT. Oh, by no means now. The way you put the question, Senator, would indicate that we had an interest in the profits of Morgan Stanley & Co., whereas we do not. We get interest on capital. The dividend on the preferred stock is limited to a certain amount, and we have no interest in the equity.

At this moment Mr. Whitney interposed.

Mr. WHITNEY. The preferred stock is owned by individuals, not by the firm.

Mr. Whitney, in what proportions is it owned?

Mr. WHITNEY. You mean the total amount?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In what proportions is the preferred stock owned by individuals?

Senator KING. Of what?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Morgan Stanley, sir.

¹ See "Investigation of Railroads, Holding Companies and Affiliated Companies" pursuant to S. Res. 71 (74th Congress), Part 6, pp. 2026-7.

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Chairman, I agree that this matter has been summed up by you completely. The answer to that question is this, that when these gentlemen we have been talking about this morning decided to split off from us completely into an independent—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). May I ask that Mr. Whitney give us an answer in accordance with our custom, and if he has an explanation he may make it.

Mr. WHITNEY. Very well. At the time of the organization there were, I think, 8 partners of the 16 at that time who contributed in varying degrees purely for their own accounts, personal accounts, outside of the firm, the amount of preferred stock that Mr. Nehemkis introduced this morning.

The CHAIRMAN. Did you say 8 out of 16?

Mr. WHITNEY. Eight out of the sixteen partners.

Mr. STANLEY. There were 17 partners at that time.

The CHAIRMAN. Seventeen persons were partners at that time of J. P. Morgan & Co., is that right?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. And of that 17, 8—

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). I find it is nine—nine contributed in varying amounts for their own personal accounts.

The CHAIRMAN. Nine of them contributed part of the preferred stock of Morgan Stanley & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes, sir; at the time. There are 8 of the living partners out of 14 who have no interest whatever in Morgan Stanley, leaving 6 living partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. who have an interest of about 44 percent of this nonvoting stock.

The CHAIRMAN. Six out of how many?

Mr. WHITNEY. Out of 14. The remaining 8 are obviously—or rather, to put it more accurately, those 6 are obviously the remaining partners who are the more well-to-do older partners. The 8 of the younger partners, who are more directly charged with day-to-day operation of the firm have no interest.

From the inception, Mr. Henderson—perhaps I was putting this back end to, but from the inception this has been completely separated. It is not lumped in any way. It is an individual investment by those individuals. As death and various things come to operate, the preferred stock finds its way into trusts. I, myself, for instance, transferred it to two trusts of which my family are beneficiaries, and I have absolutely no interest in it. In other words, there has never been anything but a totally individual investment in the matter, and nothing to do with J. P. Morgan & Co., from the inception to this day, and as unfortunately death takes its toll, that percentage is going to further decrease.

The CHAIRMAN. Legally the two are separate entities?

Mr. WHITNEY. Absolutely.

The CHAIRMAN. There can be no question, of course, of that. That is the legal status of any corporation. But the fact remains, of course, that those who controlled Morgan Stanley were formerly partners of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes, sir, who elected, however, to split off entirely from us to form a completely independent organization, and what

Mr. Nehemkis refers to in the testimony before Senator Wheeler back 2 or 3 years ago, is, of course, the fact that the older partners, the more well-to-do partners in 1935, did grubstake these partners and associates, and they got a limited return that has already been testified to.

While the conversation at that time with Senator Wheeler was a question of dividends and interest, it is true that it was a grubstake they put up as an investment to enable the new company to have adequate capital. But in the nature of the thing, from its inception, it was fully acknowledged by the partners who went in that it was going to be their private investment. That was the theory of it. We wanted to comply absolutely in every respect with the law. This money was put up and we were entitled, as capital is, to primary return, and it took the form obviously of preferred stock rather than a note, so that "interest" and "dividends" did not get mixed up in that way. But it was capital, a grubstake given by the old Morgan partners to the other men who elected to go off in the other venture, to enable them to do business.

The CHAIRMAN. And while you say the two are distinctly legal entitles, it nevertheless is true, as Mr. Stanley has testified in answer to my question, that the great bulk of the investment banking business of the J. P. Morgan company did find its way to Morgan Stanley.

Mr. WHITNEY. Because, as has been testified, it flows with individuals rather than with the name.

The CHAIRMAN. Of course, J. P. Morgan & Co. has never made any effort to keep business away from Morgan Stanley & Co.

Mr. WHITNEY. Certainly not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I regret, and I think you know how deeply I regret to say it, but Mr. Whitney's answer to my question is completely unresponsive.

The CHAIRMAN. He probably was led away from the question by the interruptions. Perhaps you may restate the question.

Mr. WHITNEY. I didn't mean to be. May I have it again?

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Nehemkis will state it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read to you from your previous testimony:

Mr. WHITNEY. The preferred stock is owned by individuals, not by the firm.

My question: In what proportion is it owned, Mr. Whitney? You testified a moment ago that there were 8 partners who subscribed originally to preferred stock. Now tell me very simply, did these 8 partners subscribe for preferred stock of Morgan Stanley in the same interest as their capital interest in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. No; certainly not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then tell me how they did it.

Mr. WHITNEY. I am really not meaning to be unresponsive but I don't know what you mean; in proportion to what? To their means, I should say.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Ah! Mr. Whitney, I think you do see—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Now, now—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I withdraw that, I apologize.

PARTNERS INTERESTS IN J. P. MORGAN & CO. IN RELATION TO THEIR PREFERRED STOCK INTERESTS IN MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INCORPORATED

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did the eight partners of J. P. Morgan & Co., who subscribed for preferred stock in Morgan Stanley & Co., subscribe in the same proportion as their capital interest in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. WHITNEY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In what interest did they subscribe?

Mr. WHITNEY. In accordance with their personal inclinations and means.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, in view of the answer I am constrained to offer you—

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). Do you still think it is unresponsive, because I am trying to do the best I can. You say in proportion to something. It certainly wasn't in proportion to their interest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think Mr. Whitney is trying to do his best. I tried to frame the question several ways and he doesn't understand, so I think the appropriate thing for me now is to offer you a table which contains the answer and I offer you the answer and if Mr. Whitney desires—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). By whom prepared?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It was prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section.

The CHAIRMAN. S. E. C.?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct.

The CHAIRMAN. From what records?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. From the income tax reports of J. P. Morgan & Co. I offer it, sir.

Senator KING. Does that show the interest which each of the incorporators of the Morgan Stanley company—would that show the interest each incorporator had in that company?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That will show, sir, the proportionate interest of the eight partners, I think Mr. Whitney said, who subscribed to stock of Morgan Stanley in relation to their proportionate interest in the capital of J. P. Morgan & Co. The purpose of that table is very relevant, as you will see upon scrutiny.

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Chairman, I finally tumbled to what Mr. Nehemkis is getting at, but, of course, a man's individual income taxes are on his own income, and my answer is even more certain than it was before that there was no proportion to our capital, because a man has other funds outside of the firm. If he has income—of course that goes in the income taxes.

The CHAIRMAN. Let me hand you the exhibit¹ which has been tendered by Mr. Nehemkis and ask you to look at that and see whether or not it refreshes your recollection or enables you to answer the question.

Mr. WHITNEY. I couldn't dare do this, because it is put in such a different way. Of course we haven't had access to Revenue Department figures. I would have to check it. If it would serve to expedite this, Mr. Steele and Mr. Lamont and Mr. Morgan were the three—Mr. Steele is now dead—they are the oldest and have the three largest interests in our firm. You see, our income, our capital contributions to our office, and our percentage of earnings in the profits, if any, and losses, if any, have no relation whatever to capital.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1766-3."

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Whitney, in that connection, as I understand it (you will correct me if I am wrong), you have two sets of arrangements so far as payments out of income are concerned. In the first case, the capital contribution receives a stated return in proportion to—

Mr. WHITNEY. (interposing). You are talking about us now?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes, J. P. Morgan & Co. In proportion to the amount held by the individual partners. Then the balance, if any, is distributed on an entirely different basis?

Mr. WHITNEY. That is right.

Mr. HENDERSON. It is distributed in accordance with some predetermination by the partners and does not correspond to the capital contribution. That is one of the ways in which the younger members are enabled to share in the results of the business that is created, isn't that correct?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes, subject to certain immaterial data, I mean differentials, but that is substantially correct. If we have a profit at all, there is a distribution made on quite different arbitrary grounds as between ourselves, one of which of them is obviously his return on capital, the other is division of profits, but no relation of capital among the rest of it. There is another predivision on still more arbitrary terms but that is a detail.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Stanley, in Morgan Stanley, preferred stock is entitled to a fixed return, is it not?

Mr. STANLEY. It is.

Mr. HENDERSON. And this year you indicated you couldn't get it because you didn't earn it?

Mr. STANLEY. Right.

Mr. HENDERSON. And the balance remaining, if any, is distributed according to basis other than the contribution of capital?

Mr. STANLEY. Well, the balance remaining over—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). Will the reporter read back the question I addressed to Mr. Stanley?

(The reporter read back the immediately preceding question of Mr. Henderson.)

Mr. STANLEY. I don't think the contribution of capital is involved, Mr. Henderson. Everyone knows what preferred stock is. A preferred stock has dividends out of earnings and after they get their full amount they are entitled to, the common stock gets dividends.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think that is the answer, except you have made it a usual thing. I asked you about your company.

Mr. STANLEY. In our company what I have said is the case.

Mr. HENDERSON. That is, the balance, if any, is distributed according to the ownership of common stock?

Mr. STANLEY. Quite right, after the distribution of preferred dividends.

Senator KING. If I understood your answer, Mr. Whitney, there are the two categories into which the earnings or the profits of J. P. Morgan & Co. are placed, and the distribution of those profits are not with respect to the number of partners, but some of them have larger interests than others?

Mr. WHITNEY. In both categories.

Senator KING. In both categories the younger partners perhaps have less capital, perhaps less of the profits than the older ones who have for years been interested in the business and furnished the capital?

Mr. WHITNEY. Or the other way around in many instances; the larger capital people have less interest in the residual profits than the younger ones because we are less active in the business. But it is a perfectly arbitrary thing.

But the point in this connection, if I may say so, was whether any of these presentations of Mr. Nehemkis may tie up mathematically and that I just don't know.

The fact is that when it came to grubstake, as I said before, these gentlemen who were breaking off from our firm, it was done with no relation to anything except their personal inclination and their personal means, and if the record will show that clearly, I don't know how you can make mathematical calculations about anything, but that was the fact.

Senator KING. And the income-tax returns of individuals, partners, and those who are in the Morgan Stanley Co., would not reflect the amount of their interest in the Stanley company?

Mr. WHITNEY. It wouldn't necessarily. It would have nothing to do with it because it was purely a voluntary contribution of individuals.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I ask a question there, Mr. Chairman?

But the record of the capital contribution of each of the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. would be shown in the return of J. P. Morgan & Co., would it not?

Mr. WHITNEY. Not necessarily, because a man might have very substantial outside assets.

Mr. HENDERSON. No, I think I said the capital contribution to J. P. Morgan & Co. by partners would be shown in the return rendered by J. P. Morgan.

Mr. WHITNEY. For income-tax purposes?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes.

Mr. WHITNEY. Oh, no. You are getting me out of my depth on income-tax returns, but that isn't shown.

Mr. HENDERSON. I am not trying to trap you, Mr. Whitney, on this thing.

Mr. WHITNEY. The return would be on our income.

Mr. HENDERSON. Just a minute.

(Off the record discussion between Senator O'Mahoney, Mr. Henderson, and Mr. Nehemkis.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, you had an opportunity to examine somewhat casually the sheet shown you by the chairman, I believe. If the proportions in which the preferred stock is owned by the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. is the same as their proportionate interest in the capital of the firm, it follows, does it not, Mr. Whitney, that the effect is the same as if the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. owned the stock of Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc.?

Mr. WHITNEY. Absolutely not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I have no further questions.

Mr. WHITNEY. May I explain that, Mr. Chairman, because it seems to me there is an inference in there. We have already testified to Mr. Senator Wheeler we didn't have it as a firm. The facts are exactly as I stated this morning, that certain individuals did it. It is well known that Mr. Steele and Mr. Lamont and Mr. Morgan are the three richest of our partners, probably, and they made the contributions in the largest amounts as a matter of public record, but the inference that Mr. Nehemkis attempts to draw there (because they contributed the largest amounts in both offices, in ours and in Morgan Stanley) is absolutely incorrect because it just isn't so. It was a voluntary contribution by individual people, subject to deaths, as has already happened when Mr. Steele died last summer, in which case stock is already in the hands of his executors and it has been nothing, never has been anything, but an individual investment by the individual partners, at their own election, because they happened to have means to do it.

Mr. HENDERSON. Now, Mr. Chairman, Mr. Whitney's statement was not directed to the supposition which counsel presented. In view of the delay, I suggest the statement presented by counsel, properly identified by those who prepared it, be introduced into the record.

Senator KING. Without further proof of the material, I don't see that it has any proper value.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, of course, it has not been identified by any person on the staff.

Mr. HENDERSON. We can identify it, just as we have identified other documents prepared by the staff. Responding to Senator King, it is my considered opinion that it does have a real bearing on the questions and the supposition addressed to Mr. Whitney by counsel. I ask for its introduction.

Senator KING. If there be no objection, it seems to me, after offering proof as to the amount of capital which any of the partners of J. Pierpont Morgan had in this new concern—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). That is exactly what we want to present.

Senator KING. But to identify that with the income-tax return would not prove it, because any of them might have income from various sources, other sources; so it seems to me that the only thing that is necessary for you, if that is material, is to ascertain—let me complete my statement—to ascertain the amount of capital of the Morgan Stanley Co. and by whom subscribed, and if some of the stockholders are members of J. Pierpont Morgan then you are entitled to such inference as that would—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). May I say that the utmost latitude is allowed in hearings of this kind. We have not pretended at any time to enforce the rules of evidence. Many objections could have been made at any time during the whole proceedings of this committee to testimony—I am not now referring to testimony or evidence offered by the S. E. C., but on the part of everybody who has come before the committee. This committee is sitting, not as a jury would sit, to pass upon a strict legal question, but in an effort to learn the fundamental facts about our economic system.

Now, personally, I have no objection to the admission of this particular instrument. My questions to counsel and to Commissioner Henderson with respect to it, off the record, were all intended to point out what I deemed to be its legal weakness as a legal offer of evidence.

Now, this exhibit, as Mr. Nehemkis has stated, has been prepared by the staff of the S. E. C. Obviously, that is not binding upon any of the witnesses before the committee because they had no part in it and they know nothing about it. It is prepared by your experts from your examination of income-tax returns. Now, it probably is accurate, but obviously it has no binding effect.

This exhibit contains first a list of names of individuals presumably former members or present members of J. P. Morgan & Co. It contains a column which is labeled [reading from "Exhibit No. 1766-3"]:

Approximate percentage of capital in J. P. Morgan & Co. * * *. As shown by the 1938 partnership income tax returns. 2% was paid to partners who died in that year.

Now, those calculations were worked out by the staff of the S. E. C.—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). On the basis of the partnership return of the firm.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, the next column shows the [reading further]:

Approximate percentage of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, preferred stock in comparison with total held by Morgan partners and their assignees, i. e., 70,000 shares less 12,500 held by officers of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., as of 8/31/39. 8.8% is held by assignees of partners.

The exhibit shows that Charles W. Steele, deceased, held 36.6 percent, approximately, of the capital of J. P. Morgan, and that he held approximately 34.8 percent of the new firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. Now, there is a diversion immediately. Thomas W. Lamont held 34.2 of the approximate percentage of capital in J. P. Morgan & Co., and he held 34 percent in Morgan Stanley; J. P. Morgan held 9.1 percent of the first, he holds 5.2 percent of the second; R. C. Lef-fingwell, 6.1 percent in the first, 5.9 in the second; F. D. Bartow, 2.9 percent in the first, 1.7 in the second; J. S. Morgan, 2.2 percent in the first, 4.9 percent in the second; A. M. Anderson, 1.9 in the first, 1.7 in the second; George Whitney, 1.9 in the first, none in the second; H. P. Davison, 1.2 in the first, none in the second; Charles D. Dickey, 0.9 in the first, none in the second; Thomas S. Lamont, 0.6 of 1 percent in the first, none in the second; Edward Hopkinson, Jr., a debit interest in the first and none in the second; Arthur E. Newbold, less than one-tenth of one percent in the first and none in the second.

Mr. WHITNEY. He is not a partner of ours, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. Edward Starr, Jr., less than one-tenth of 1 percent in the first and none in the second.

Senator KING. You say he is not a partner?

Mr. WHITNEY. Neither of those two gentlemen are.

The CHAIRMAN. H. Gates Lloyd, Jr., less than one-tenth of 1 percent in the first, 2.9 in the second, this percentage having been acquired under the will of Horatio G. Lloyd who had subscribed for approximately 4.8 % of the original issue, and at the time received approximately 4.9% of the income of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Now, that is the exhibit.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I suggest, just so the record may be clear, that we did not contend that heading which you read—that heading is not partners.

The CHAIRMAN. Yes; there is no title over the column.

Mr. STANLEY. May I say just one word? I couldn't follow the things you read then but I understood you to say that Mr. Steele and Mr. Lamont had thirty-odd percent of the preferred stock of Morgan Stanley & Co. Yes; the figures you read were, Mr. Steele, 36 percent of it—I suppose it is preferred stock; it says capital. Oh, wait a minute—the preferred stock—may I begin again? Memoranda which you read show Mr. Steele a holder of 34.8 percent of the preferred stock of Morgan Stanley & Co., and Mr. Lamont as a holder of 34 percent of preferred stock of Morgan Stanley & Co., whereas the fact is that at the end of August 1939 Mr. Steele held 28.5 percent of the preferred stock of Morgan Stanley and Mr. Lamont held 27.8 percent of the preferred stock of Morgan Stanley & Co. I know nothing about the figures in J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You will notice, however, that you are reading from different dates, don't you, Mr. Stanley?

Mr. WHITNEY. Mr. Chairman, may I just say this, that we haven't any objection to that going in as long as the record shows that income-tax returns of the individual partners have absolutely no relation to the capital that they may have in the firm except that obviously the fellows with the bigger capital in the firm probably get more interest in it than the fellows who have less.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, of course, I read it into the record. It is in the record.

Senator KING. Mr. Chairman, may I say that the objection which I suggested a few moments ago was not to the introduction of evidence tending to show the interest which any of the partners of the J. Pierpont Morgan firm had in the Morgan Stanley company, but the point that I made was that if you attempted to show the income of the various individuals, that would not reflect anything as to the interest which they might have in J. P. Morgan & Co. or this company, because the income might have been derived from a hundred other different sources.

The CHAIRMAN. This column purports to show the general income.

Senator KING. So I have no objection at all to showing whatever interest of any of the partners of J. P. Morgan have in the Morgan Stanley company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you.

Senator KING. And I think that counsel himself would admit that to tie it up to an income would not be any basis in determining the interest they might have in any company.

Mr. WHITNEY. May I say one more word, Mr. Chairman, literally that the calculations are wrong anyway? [Laughter.]

Dr. LUBIN. I don't understand what the basis of the table is, what the table is based upon. The income received by these partners as revealed by their income tax statements, then computed in terms of holdings—or is it a statement based upon returns from J. P. Morgan & Co. and stock of the partners—stockholders of the Morgan Stanley company—in which they specify their holdings of securities in either or both of these companies?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I'm sorry, I missed the crucial part of the last part of your question, but I would say from the general import that I got from it, if it is the pleasure of the committee, perhaps the orderly way to do this job would be to put the technical man of the staff, who was charged with the responsibility of preparing this, on the stand and have him tell—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Excuse me, Mr. Nehemkis, but to answer Mr. Lubin's question, will you please read, as I did, the heading on the first column?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think the Senator is correct. If I just give you the headings—the first column which the Chairman read is entitled as follows: "Approximate percentage of capital in J. P. Morgan & Co.," and that is predicated upon the 1938 partnership income tax returns. The second column, Mr. Commissioner, reads as follows: "Approximate percentage"—approximate percentage, that is where Mr. Stanley was confused—"of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, preferred stock in comparison with total held by Morgan partners and their assignees," with appropriate deductions indicated in a footnote.

Dr. LUBIN. I still don't feel that you have answered my question, namely, do these figures taken from the partnership income-tax returns, figures showing the incomes of the partners, and using those figures as the basis, do you compute their holdings of stock or—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). No, sir.

Dr. LUBIN. Or did this income tax return reveal the actual holdings?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The income tax material upon which this is predicated shows—and the figures we use—interest on capital.

The CHAIRMAN. But you computed it from the interest?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. That is the question which he is asking, the income tax return which you examined did not show the capital stock?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. It is a computation?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. In other words, it is a conclusion of the person who prepared the table?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct.

Senator KING. And shows the income which is derived from other sources?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir.

Senator KING. That was the point that was not clear when I made my first objection. If you attempt to link this with the income which Mr. Morgan or anybody else had in other investments, it would wholly be irrelevant.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right. But we don't do that.

Mr. WHITNEY. May I point out, Mr. Chairman, that I didn't get until this minute that those income tax returns were of 1938; what has that got to do with contributions made to the capital stock of Morgan Stanley in 1935?

The CHAIRMAN. Well, now, the witness is arguing; but, of course, there has been an awful lot of argument here.

I think it is perfectly clear now.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1766-3" and is included in the appendix on p. 12296.)

The committee will stand in recess until 2 o'clock, and we hope to finish at that time.

(Thereupon, at 1:01 p. m., the committee recessed until 2 p. m. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

The hearing was resumed after recess at 2:25 p. m.

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sidney A. Mitchell, take the witness stand, please.

Acting Chairman KING. Have you been sworn? Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in this proceeding shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. MITCHELL. I do.

TESTIMONY OF SIDNEY A. MITCHELL, PRESIDENT, BONBRIGHT & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Mitchell, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. MITCHELL. Sidney A. Mitchell, Oyster Bay, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you associated with the investment banking firm of Bonbright & Co.?

Mr. MITCHELL. I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you a partner of that firm?

Mr. MITCHELL. It is a corporation that I am president of.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. President of the corporation. How long have you been president of Bonbright & Co.?

Mr. MITCHELL. The present Bonbright since it was organized in December 1938. I was president of a previous Bonbright from the time it was organized in 1933 until December 1938.

ORGANIZATION OF BONBRIGHT & CO., INC.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact, Mr. Mitchell, that Bonbright & Co., a predecessor of the present Bonbright, was instrumental with J. P. Morgan & Co. in organizing the United Corporation?

Mr. MITCHELL. It is not a fact, Mr. Nehemkis.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you care to make any additional comment or enlarge upon that?

Mr. MITCHELL. Yes; the Bonbright, which was organized in 1933, had no connection with any previous Bonbright company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I merely had in mind Mr. Whitney's testimony this morning, which was a little bit different from what you said, but I accept what you say, sir. Has Bonbright & Co. ever been instrumental in the financing of Niagara Hudson Power Corporation?

Mr. MITCHELL. The Bonbright Co., which existed from '33 to '38 was one of the underwriters of three issues of subsidiaries of the Niagara Hudson Power Co.

Acting Chairman KING. May I ask a question? Did that first corporation, that Bonbright company, did it incorporate in 1938 or was it merged into the present?

Mr. MITCHELL. No; the present Bonbright—may I start in 1933? In 1933 the company which up to that time had been known as Bonbright went out of the investment banking business entirely. A new corporation was organized at that time, entirely separate and distinct, and in no way a successor to the one that went out of the investment banking business in 1933. It is that corporation, Senator, the one that was organized in 1933, which was one of the underwriters of several bond issues of subsidiaries of Niagara Hudson Power.

Acting Chairman KING. But the present company, of which you are the president, was that organized in '33?

Mr. MITCHELL. No; that was organized in 1938, December 1938.

Acting Chairman KING. What became of the corporation in 1933?

Mr. MITCHELL. The corporation that was organized in 1933 was liquidated in 1938.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. While we are on this historical development of the various Bonbright companies, were you associated with the old Bonbright company of 1933?

Mr. MITCHELL. I was the vice president of that company from 1926 until 1933.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Have you always been associated with the various Bonbright companies?

Mr. MITCHELL. No; Mr. Nehemkis, because there have been some since 1890 sometime. My first connection with any Bonbright company was in 1923.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. 1923. I think I have those dates fixed now. Was there any other banking house associated in the financing of Niagara Hudson Power securities?

Mr. MITCHELL. Do you mean subsequent to 1933?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct.

Mr. MITCHELL. There were a great many.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you tell me whether Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy were associated in that financing?

Mr. MITCHELL. I remember they were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And can you tell me any other house?

Mr. MITCHELL. Morgan Stanley.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Mitchell, did you ever have occasion to discuss with any of the officials of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, the problem of the respective participations in the underwritings of the Niagara Hudson Power Corporation?

Mr. MITCHELL. I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. With whom did you have such discussion.

Mr. MITCHELL. I had those discussions when the first issue—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I said with whom?

Mr. MITCHELL. With Mr. Stanley and I believe Mr. Hall.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Perry Hall?

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Perry Hall.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you identify the period of time about when you had these discussions?

Mr. MITCHELL. Very definitely, because they arose when the first public issue was made of any subsidiary of the Niagara Hudson Power Co., subsequent to 1933 when our firm—the Bonbright of 1933—when that firm did business, and when we heard that this financing was about to be done I had a discussion at that time with Morgan Stanley & Co. as to the position which Bonbright & Co. might obtain in that financing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Mitchell, did you not also in connection with this discussion which you have referred to, enter into an informal agreement or understanding with the two officials of Morgan Stanley that you have mentioned a moment ago as to the underwriting of securities of Niagara Hudson system, or as to the proportion of the amount of underwriting that your company would obtain in such underwriting?

Mr. MITCHELL. You are referring, I presume, to testimony I gave in the private hearing of the Niagara Hudson case?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am, sir.

INFORMAL UNDERSTANDING RELATIVE TO FUTURE FINANCING OF NIAGARA HUDSON POWER CO. SYSTEM BETWEEN BONBRIGHT & CO. AND MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INCORPORATED

Mr. MITCHELL. As I remember, in the autumn of 1938. In order to have that testimony have the meaning which it should have, it must be considered against the chronological context—if I may put it that way—of events. The first discussions I have said which I had with anyone of Morgan Stanley relating to a subsidiary of the Niagara Hudson Power Co. was, I believe, in the year 1936, and the first issue was discussed, the refunding of some bonds of the Niagara Falls Power Co. My discussion at that time was in connection with the interest which Bonbright might have in that particular issue.

As a result of those discussions Bonbright received a certain interest in that particular issue.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall—forgive me for interrupting you—do you recall what the interest was at this time?

Mr. MITCHELL. I think it was around 10 percent, Mr. Nehemkis. I don't remember exactly, but I can get it for you if you want it. That issue was done. We think we did our job successfully as an underwriter in those bonds. The next issue that came along was sometime in 1937. I believe the spring of 1937, but I am not sure, and it was the Buffalo Niagara Electric Service Co., some such name. In that issue we also had an interest which I think was not exactly the same percentage of the total issue, but somewhere nearly the same. When that issue came on we again discussed the matter with Morgan Stanley & Co. We pointed out that in the last issue we had had a certain interest that we had performed in a certain way in the last issue; we hoped our interest in that particular company, which was then under consideration, would be at least as good as it had been in the preceding one. Fortunately it was.

If I may just finish.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, sir.

Mr. MITCHELL. I just want to give you the background of this particular thing. Then the third issue came along; it was in, I believe, the autumn of 1937, and in that issue—that was the Central

New York Power Co.—in that issue we again discussed with Morgan Stanley what position we might hope to obtain for ourselves, and I believe that our position again was slightly different from what it had been before, but nevertheless in the same general neighborhood.

Acting Chairman KING. Were those separate issues?

Mr. MITCHELL. Three entirely separate issues, Senator.

Acting Chairman KING. Of different corporations?

Mr. MITCHELL. Of different subsidiary companies of the Niagara Hudson Power Co. Now the reason I am saying that, Mr. Nehemkis, is this. Over a period there from '36 to the end of '37 there were three different issues of subsidiaries of this company. It so happened that the discussions about our participation in any one of those issues was apropos of that particular issue. It so happened that in the issue we did a certain job and had a certain interest and did a certain job. As in the second issue, presumably because of our performance in the first, we were given a comparable interest; we did also a fairly good job in that. When the third one came the same thing happened, you see? Now in the autumn of 1938, I believe it was at that time, I think this is a fact, but you know more about this than I do, the Niagara Hudson Power Co. applied to be declared not to be a subsidiary of the United Corporation. We were suddenly told by somebody that the S. E. C. wanted to hold hearings at 120 Broadway and would I appear at such a time. I did.

The question then that was asked me was, "Did you ever have any arrangement with Morgan Stanley or understanding or something with Morgan Stanley regarding your financing of Niagara Hudson Power Co.?" I said at that time, "Based upon the history as it had developed in those three preceding issues done in '36 to the time of this hearing, that we had"—I believe I used the word—"an informal arrangement."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct.

Mr. MITCHELL. Subsequently that was in your questionings and so on; you kept referring to an agreement or an understanding or something of that sort. We discussed—you asked a lot of questions, and so on, and we discussed this. At the end of the period I think I stated, or Mr. Lesser, I believe, stated—and I have it here, because perhaps it is the best explanation of this thing. Mr. Lesser stated—

Acting Chairman KING (interposing). Who is Mr. Lesser?

Mr. MITCHELL. He is on the staff of the S. E. C., Senator, and conducted this private hearing I am speaking of. Mr. Lesser stated, "Am I correct when I say that your understanding with Morgan Stanley about Bonbright participation in the future business of Niagara Hudson, is it an informal understanding based on hope and expectation and desirability of the continuance of the relationship, rather than any formally legally enforceable contract?"

The answer was, "You are correct."

"It is an understanding, isn't it?" Mr. Lesser said. "It is not only your feeling but it is their feeling."

And my answer to that was, "That is what we hope. If they don't share that feeling there is nothing we can do about it. My understanding with our friends at Morgan Stanley is that if any piece of Niagara's business comes up that they have anything to say about that insofar as they have anything to say, and consider it for the best interests of the business to so state, that they would suggest to the company that Bonbright and Schoellkopf have substantial interest in the business, which interest would be identical, but there is nothing we could do about it if Morgan Stanley won't do it, and there is nothing Morgan Stanley can do about it if the company won't agree."

Now, that is based on the previous relationships that accrued.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Mitchell, for that very good explanation of your conversations and the results therefrom. Now, may I ask you this question: Is it your impression that what you refer to as "expectation and hope" has materialized insofar as your house is concerned?

Mr. MITCHELL. No; I was extremely disappointed in the arrangement that we made, Mr. Nehemkis.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just how were you disappointed?

Mr. MITCHELL. Well, I had hoped very much that we might have a larger interest in this first issue of subsidiaries than we have.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that your hope and expectation was shattered only insofar as degree was concerned?

Mr. MITCHELL. Yes; I suppose that is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Mitchell, I am going to show you a table¹ which shows the relative participations in utility issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, and it will contain the amount of the participation of your firm—I should say your company, excuse me—and the other company that you spoke of, Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy, in a number of issues of Niagara Hudson Power Corporation. Would you glance at this for me, please, Mr. Mitchell?

Senator KING. Does that relate to the issue of 1938?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, sir. Do you see the percentage participations there, Mr. Mitchell?

Mr. MITCHELL. I see you have under Bonbright 50 percent. Fifty percent of what?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Of what Morgan Stanley received.

Mr. MITCHELL. Oh, is that the percentage?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes. Will you run down the various issues and tell me the amount that your firm received in relation to the amount Morgan Stanley received?

Mr. MITCHELL. Niagara Falls Power Co.—wait a minute. I had better start at the beginning of your list. Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, 4½ percent preferred, 340,400—what is that, dollars or shares?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Dollars—I think there is a dollar sign there.

Mr. MITCHELL. It must be shares. Morgan Stanley—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Just give me the percentage amounts.

Mr. MITCHELL. Morgan Stanley 100 percent, Bonbright nothing. Niagara Falls Power Co. 3½'s of 1966, Morgan Stanley 100 percent, Bonbright & Co., 50 percent. Buffalo Niagara Electric Corporation 3½'s of 1967, Morgan Stanley 100 percent, Bonbright 50.8 percent. Buffalo Niagara Electric Corporation Serial Debentures of '38-52 (that was done at the same time), Morgan Stanley 100 percent, Bonbright 50.8 percent. I think those were underwritten pro rata with the bonds. Central New York Power Corporation, 3¾'s of '62, Morgan Stanley 100 percent, Bonbright 49.5 percent. I don't know anything about these figures; I assume they are correct.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1767-1."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you may always have the privilege of correcting them if you so desire. While you have that before you, Mr. Mitchell, will you also give us the percentage participation in relation to the Morgan Stanley amount and Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy?

Mr. MITCHELL. They are just the same.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As yours?

Mr. MITCHELL. As ours.

Senator KING. Who is that?

Mr. MITCHELL. Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it not appear, Mr. Mitchell, that the hope or expectation which you spoke of earlier has been realized?

Mr. MITCHELL. Well, no; because I thought you said that I satisfied you as to the amounts we had in this participation and I told you I wasn't—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). You thought you should have more?

Mr. MITCHELL. We hoped to receive more.

Senator KING. May I ask a question? I understood that in the first issue you referred to, you got 10 percent, and now you got 45?

Mr. MITCHELL. No, Senator; we had about 10 percent of the total securities issued, underwritten. In Mr. Nehemkis' tabulation is what our percentage is in relation to Morgan Stanley's, the amount of bonds underwritten by Morgan Stanley & Co.

Senator KING. And you got 45 percent?

Mr. MITCHELL. And we had about half as much. We underwrote about half as much as Morgan Stanley underwrote but I believe Morgan Stanley underwrote only about 20 percent of the total issue.

Senator KING. So that Morgan Stanley didn't underwrite the entire amount?

Mr. MITCHELL. No, no, sir; there were a great many underwriters.

Senator KING. And you had the same amount that Morgan Stanley had?

Mr. MITCHELL. That—no, we had approximately one-half.

The CHAIRMAN. That is, Morgan Stanley had 20 percent, you had 10, and that was the total of 30 percent of the entire issue?

Mr. MITCHELL. That is correct, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that I find, Mr. Mitchell, that in four issues, the Niagara Power Co. 3½'s, the Buffalo Niagara Electric Corporation 3½'s, the Buffalo Niagara Electric Corporation series of debentures, and the Central New York Power Corporation 3¾'s, Bonbright had substantially half of what Morgan Stanley did, and I also find that exactly the same percentages apply to Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy. Now, do you happen to know, Mr. Mitchell, whether a similar informal understanding, hope, or expectation exists between Bonbright; Morgan Stanley; Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy; and the following houses: Brown Harriman; The First Boston; Smith, Barney; E. W. Clark & Co., with reference to Niagara Hudson Power Corporation's financing?

Mr. MITCHELL. Well, Mr. Nehemkis, first, may I say I have no idea of what there is with these other companies, nor do I think it is quite right or correct to say a similar understanding and so on, because what I am trying to make clear to you and that is the only reason I mention this chronological—development of our interests—is to point out to you that our discussion arose in connection with the Niagara Power Co. That is the first issue we knew anything about. In that issue, we had an amount in relation to Morgan Stanley's, which as I say, is approximately 50 percent. All right; another issue comes along, we want to have at least as good a position as we have had in the previous one, but there was no future—when the interests in the first issue were settled, there was no commitment as to any future issue nor is there today any.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; I think I understand, Mr. Mitchell.

Mr. MITCHELL. I wanted to make that perfectly clear.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think I follow you, quite.

Now, Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, the reason I asked the witness whether he had any personal knowledge of a similar—you embarrass me, Mr. Mitchell—"hope"; I don't know quite the word to describe it.

Senator KING. "Expectation."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. "Expectation," as between Brown Harriman; First Boston; Smith, Barney; and E. W. Clark, is that I find that in the same issues that we have been discussing with this witness, these houses all always received the same amount; 22.9 percent or 22.8 percent; but it never varies. So I just inquired.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Nehemkis, apropos of that, do you mind if I interject, as it may perhaps help your question?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Oh, please do so!

Mr. MITCHELL. Commonwealth Edison Co., with which Mr. Stuart is very familiar, has been engaged in quite a large refunding program. I don't know, it amounts to two or three hundred million. It was recently completed. The interest that Bonbright, I believe, had in the first of five or six different individual issues, to carry out this program, was "X," say; the interest that Bonbright had in the second issue was again, "X" percent; the interest that Halsey, Stuart had in the first was so much, Presumably the underwriters in the first issue acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of the company and therefore, when it came to having another issue, they naturally turned to the same underwriters; that is the normal procedure, it seems to me, in any professional relationship, and this is distinctly a professional relationship.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Quite. Mr. Mitchell, may I ask you one other question? Have you always conferred with Mr. Stanley and Mr. Hall and possibly other officials of Morgan Stanley & Co. each time a new piece of financing of Niagara Hudson Power arose?

Mr. MITCHELL. We have always discussed it with them; yes. Now, whether we have had to go and fight hard to have the same position or not in one issue, as against having to do it in another, I can't say. I don't think so. I think we have discussed the matter each time it came up.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes. Well, as you recall in your mind at this time, do you have any recollection as to whether you had to discuss each time exactly what the percentage participation would be?

Mr. MITCHELL. I don't think so. I am sure, for instance, in Commonwealth Edison, we never did. I think we were merely notified by Halsey, Stuart what it was and they said this is being done just like the last issue, and every interest was about the same.

Senator KING. Did Halsey, Stuart have the entire issue underwritten?

Mr. MITCHELL. Commonwealth Edison, Senator, they managed, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, now, in the Niagara Falls Power $3\frac{1}{2}$'s of '66, do you recall at this time whether you discussed the percentage participation, what it would be, or was it just taken for granted?

Mr. MITCHELL. Oh, very much, because that was the first issue, Mr. Nehemkis, and therefore it was very important for us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in the next one, the Buffalo Niagara Electric Corporation $3\frac{1}{2}$'s, was there any discussion about the percentage participation?

Mr. MITCHELL. There may have been. I am not sure about that, although I remember very distinctly in connection with the first piece of business of that holding company subsidiary.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you are not clear about the subsequent ones?

Mr. MITCHELL. I am not; no, I don't remember.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I should like to offer in evidence this table which we have been discussing. The source is based on the registration statements relating to the respective issues on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be received.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1767-1" and is included in the appendix on p. 12297.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I have no further questions, sir, unless the committee desires to examine Mr. Mitchell.

The CHAIRMAN. Do the members of the committee desire to address any questions to Mr. Mitchell? If not—

Senator KING. Any issues to which you have referred, did any one company underwrite the entire amount and then confer with others with respect to the allocation of the issue to various investment companies?

Mr. MITCHELL. No, Senator. I believe the—I don't—I assume that the arrangement was that the company picked out someone with whom it wished to deal, as the managing underwriter, so to speak, and after discussion with the company what—I mean after discussion with the underwriter, told the underwriter what other underwriters should be included, and there were 5 or 10 or 15, I don't remember how many there were, and each of them bought the bonds directly from the company itself rather than having one of the underwriters buy them all and sell them to the others.

Senator KING. Was that the plan which is usually adopted, or has been adopted for years, in connection with the disposition of securities?

Mr. MITCHELL. Ever since the Securities Act was passed.

Senator KING. But anterior to that time?

Mr. MITCHELL. No; not before that time because then we were able to have banking groups, and it very frequently happened that one house would buy the entire issue and then would sell it to a banking group, of which it was a member.

Senator KING. Was it the custom then for the companies to select a person, or the banking company, which would be their representative, and underwrite or dispose of the entire issue?

Mr. MITCHELL. Very definitely, Senator.

Senator KING. That has been the custom for many years?

Mr. MITCHELL. Yes, sir.

Senator KING. There was rivalry between the various banking institutions, was there?

Mr. MITCHELL. Most acute, sir.

Senator KING. For the acquisition, if I may use that term, of the various issues?

Mr. MITCHELL. Very much so.

Senator KING. And the company, the investment company, that offered the best terms, was it the custom to have the issuing company select that organization, that investment company as its representative?

Mr. MITCHELL. I don't think it was so much a question of the investment company that offered the best terms. I think it was more a gradual development of a relationship over a period of years. I think I can explain that perhaps by—

Senator KING (interposing). Rather professional, as you used that expression?

CONTINUITY OF BANKER RELATIONSHIP

Mr. MITCHELL. It seems so exactly to me. For instance, under—well, we have done business—the individuals who are now in Bonbright & Company, have done business—have been the people who have negotiated contracts, written prospectuses, studied financial plans and so on, for certain companies over a long period of years. Now, when those companies have some problem, some financial problem, to do, they come and consult those same individuals. That happens all the time.

I was rather astounded this morning, for instance, in this hearing, to see that so much time was being spent in trying to find out whether or not corporations who had done business with J. P. Morgan in the past were doing business today with Morgan Stanley & Co.

Senator, I can think of nothing more natural than that; I mean, if, for instance, I should have to employ a counsel and had employed a certain counsel for 15 years, whose advice on various legal matters we have had and he has always done it satisfactorily and knows the whole background and history, what is more natural than I should go back to him again? Now, if he happens to be a partner in the firm of Davis Polk or something, in the beginning of my relationship, and then subsequently goes out on business for himself, under another name, with no connection with Davis Polk, that doesn't mean he isn't the same man that he was before. He is the same friend of mine who has given me this satisfactory advice. Naturally, I therefore go to him again.

Senator KING. In that sense, then, it is professional, that is a professional relation which ensues, much the same as between a client and his lawyer?

Mr. MITCHELL. Quite right, Senator, and may I add just one more thing to that point, because it is something I think does concern the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and that is this, that it seems to me that the very fundamental principle of the Securities Act tends to emphasize this continuity of relationship. For instance, in your A-2, your registration statement under the Securities Act, responsibility for which we must take as investment bankers, as well as the company, there are various questions. Among them, for instance, is this: Financial changes and so on since the year 1922. That all has to go in.

Then you have one whole section of the Securities Act where it says, "Important developments of the last five years." Well, now, we are all liable for misstatements and the company is liable for misstatements. If the company has had a relationship with a certain banking house, say, or certain individuals, who are now engaged in the investment banking business, since 1922, an intimate relationship with them, when it comes to prepare this statement—and the liability for a mistake in this statement is very great, sir—when it comes to prepare this statement, I should think it would do it with a great deal less worry if it had the assistance in the preparation of that statement of people who had been intimately associated with it since the date to which these questions refer.

So, it seems to me there is, first, a professional character, and always has been, to this business, and it seems to me, second, that under the present way the business is done, the importance of that continuity of relationship is emphasized even more than it was prior to the passage of the Act.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Mitchell, have you read all the testimony that has been given at these investment banking hearings?

Mr. MITCHELL. I have not, Mr. Henderson.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, I suggest that you do, because it will, I think, serve to cure you of any wonder why we have gone into detail as to continuing relationships. If you will note, as you go through that record, some of the stubborn resistance to the intimation that there was a continuity or a continuing group, you will perhaps realize why the S. E. C. put on the kind of hearing that it did. I suggest that, and strongly recommend it to you.

Mr. MITCHELL. Thank you.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Mitchell, for having come down here.

Mr. Chairman, I ask Mr. Alexander to step forward to help me identify some documents.

TESTIMONY OF HENRY C. ALEXANDER, J. P. MORGAN & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Alexander, will you glance at this batch of material which was prepared by your firm and tell me whether you recognize it to have been so prepared?

Mr. ALEXANDER. I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What does that material represent? What are the various subject matters referred to in that material?

Mr. ALEXANDER. The deposits of various corporations at certain month ends. I think that is over a 5-year period, sir. Also, the amount of loans made by J. P. Morgan & Co. to the various corporations outstanding as of the end of each of the last 5 years. It also covers the securities owned by J. P. Morgan & Co. in these companies as of the end of each of the last 5 years.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Alexander.

May the documents identified by the witness be filed with the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. They may be so filed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Alexander—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). Just a minute, Mr. Nehemkis.
(Off-the-record discussion.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my request and I ask leave of the committee that this material be kept in the files of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The CHAIRMAN. Very well.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1767-2" and are on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Alexander, I show you a letter addressed to your firm dated March 6, 1939, requesting certain data from your firm, and your reply thereto.¹ Will you examine it and tell me whether or not it is a true and correct copy?

Mr. ALEXANDER. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer it in evidence.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be received.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1768-1 and 1768-2"² and are included in the appendix on p. 12298.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Alexander, I show you a table which your firm has prepared in response to our request, giving the financing by J. P. Morgan & Co. of Consolidated Gas Co. and subsidiary issues, together with the profits of your firm. Will you examine this and tell me whether you caused this sheet to be prepared in response to our request?

Mr. ALEXANDER. I did, Mr. Nehemkis. These are participations by J. P. Morgan & Co. in financing headed by other houses.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer it in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection it is so ordered.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1769" and is included in the appendix on p. 12310.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to offer one other table which relates to the subject matter heretofore discussed. This table, Mr. Chairman, shows the participations of Blyth & Co. in Morgan Stanley issues relating to Consolidated Edison Co. and certain other issues, together with the profits of Blyth & Co. in that financing. The data has been supplied to us by Blyth & Co., and has been identified by Mr. Charles E. Mitchell at the time he appeared before this committee.

The CHAIRMAN. It may be admitted.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1770" and is included in the appendix on p. 12312.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, Mr. Arthur Dean, who represents Mr. Mitchell's firm, has asked that I correct my statement. I said the "profits" of Blyth & Co. Mr. Dean requests that the record show "gross profits" of Blyth & Co.

I now offer a table showing relative participations in utility issues managed and co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, during the period 1935 to 1939, with reference to Consolidated Edison and subsidiary financing. The source of this data, may it please the committee, is based on registration statements relating to the respective issues on file with the Commission.

¹ For additional information pertinent to the above testimony, see letter of October 10, 1939, Irving S. Olds to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., appendix, p. 12330, and letter of November 15, 1939, Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., to Henry C. Alexander and reply of December 7, 1939, thereto, appendix, p. 12327.

² J. P. Morgan & Co., under date of October 26, 1939, submitted a partial revision of "Exhibit No. 1768-2." It is included in the appendix on p. 12325.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection the table may be admitted.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1771" and is included in the appendix on p. 12314.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now offer in evidence, may it please the committee, a table relating to the financing of Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y., Inc., and its subsidiaries by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, for the period September 16, 1935, to June 30, 1939. This is predicated upon data supplied by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1772" and is included in the appendix on p. 12315.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I had hoped to have the pleasure of discussing with the committee and with Mr. Leffingwell this afternoon certain data on deposit accounts, and their significance, and so on. The people at J. P. Morgan & Co., have worked very hard to make this material available. Mr. Alexander tells me there has been a force of 17 people working night and day for some time. Unfortunately, the material was made available to us only this morning. While I have no doubt that it is accurate in all respects, I don't feel under the circumstances that I want to ask the committee to discuss it with me when the staff has not had sufficient time to examine it. So with the committee's indulgence, may I ask that we defer that phase of our presentation which we hoped to give you this afternoon until a later time when we shall have analyzed it.

The CHAIRMAN. Very well.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will Mr. George Whitney and Mr. Harold Stanley return to the witness stand, please?

TESTIMONY OF GEORGE WHITNEY, J. P. MORGAN & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.; AND HAROLD STANLEY, PRESIDENT, MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED, NEW YORK, N. Y.—Resumed

QUESTION OF WHETHER PROCEEDS OF ISSUES UNDERWRITTEN BY MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED, WERE PLACED ON DEPOSIT WITH J. P. MORGAN & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, do you know whether or not several companies for which Morgan Stanley & Co. has underwritten securities have placed all or part of the proceeds of their issues on deposit with J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. STANLEY. I don't know as a matter of fact, but I assume some of them have.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you not, Mr. Stanley, have occasion to underwrite an offering in 1938 which for the purposes of the record will be known as corporation No. 1?

Mr. STANLEY. I assume that is the correct date. We underwrote securities of that corporation, but I don't know the date.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, will you look at the sheet which Mr. Alexander has and tell me the amount of the credit entered to corporation No. 1?

Mr. WHITNEY. Credits?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. WHITNEY. You mean from the top of this list?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. WHITNEY. In March '37, $750,000; September 7, same year, $750,000; another $750,000, March '38; a million dollars in August '38; $500,750 in September; a million dollars in November; and $21,084,865.78 in December '38.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It was that last figure that I was interested in. Do you know whether that happens to be the proceeds in part or in whole of the underwriting by Morgan Stanley?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes; paid to their account.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, did not corporation 2 have occasion to underwrite with you a substantial offering in 1937?

Mr. STANLEY. They did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Whitney, if you will glance at the sheet before you and tell me the amount of the credit entered to corporation No. 2?

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, it was $17,000,000 June '37.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that the amount of the proceeds in whole or in part of the underwriting that Mr. Stanley referred to?

Mr. WHITNEY. I assume so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Could you find out if you are uncertain at this time?

Mr. WHITNEY. This company had an account with us and they credited it, I presume that it is. There may have been some other credits, incidentally.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, in connection with corporation No. 3, did you not have occasion to do a substantial amount of underwriting for corporation No. 3 in 1937?

Mr. STANLEY. We did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, if you will glance at the corresponding sheets and tell me whether or not the proceeds in whole or in part of that underwriting were credited to the account of corporation No. 3?

Mr. WHITNEY. I find here a credit to that corporation of $48,750,000; withdrawal, $44,500,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, did you not have occasion (when I say "you," you understand I mean the corporation) to underwrite a substantial amount in 1937 for corporation No. 4?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, will you look at your sheet and tell me the amount of the credit entered to corporation No. 4?

Mr. WHITNEY. There are several large credits.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The first one.

Mr. WHITNEY. $9,951,000 in one month. That is a rather active account.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As far as you know, would that represent in whole or in part the proceeds of that underwriting?

Mr. WHITNEY. I should assume so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, did your organization have occasion to do some underwriting in 1937 for corporation 5?

Mr. STANLEY. We did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, will you look at your sheet and tell me whether the amount of the credit entered to corporation No. 5 is the result in whole or part of the proceeds of that underwriting?

Mr. WHITNEY. Which year?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. '37.

Mr. WHITNEY. I find an entry or credit of $21,700,000; the following month a withdrawal of $18,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, did not your firm have occasion to underwrite in 1937 for corporation No. 6?

Mr. STANLEY. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, will you tell me the amount of the credit to corporation 6?

Mr. WHITNEY. '37 one month a credit of $21,578,000, but that again is a very active account. I don't know if all of that is the result of that credit.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am sorry; I didn't hear your answer.

Mr. WHITNEY. I say I find in one month a credit for that corporation of $21,578,000, but that is a very active account, and I therefore don't know whether that is the amount of the credit as the result of this operation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you get that information for me?¹

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes; but there is $53,000,000 deposits and $49,000,000 taken out during the year in that corporation. I don't know what the amount of the—

Mr. STANLEY (interposing). The issue was $20,000,000.

Mr. WHITNEY. It probably is that plus normal credits.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Your answer to my question is, "Yes?"

Mr. WHITNEY. I assume that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, did you have occasion to underwrite for corporation 7 in 1938?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, what is the amount of the credit to corporation 7 resulting in whole or in part from the proceeds of that underwriting?

Mr. WHITNEY. There is nothing in these figures of mine—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). What is the amount of the credit?

Mr. WHITNEY. The largest single month of credit was $9,900,000; 31 months.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, without having me ask the question, tell me if that isn't the month in which the underwriting occurred?

Mr. STANLEY. The underwriting occurred in July of that year. The issue was $81,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, did you have occasion in 1938 to underwrite for corporation 8?

Mr. STANLEY. Yes; we did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you give me the corresponding information, Mr. Whitney?

Mr. WHITNEY. Well, there are some very big credits, but I think here is one of $49,876,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that the credit resulting in whole or part from the proceeds of the underwriting?

Mr. STANLEY. I don't know. The size of the issue was much larger than that. The issue was twice the size.

¹ Mr. Whitney, under date of January 26, 1940, submitted the information requested. It is included in the appendix on p. 12321.

Mr. WHITNEY. A withdrawal of $44,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know, Mr. Whitney, whether the figure you gave represents in whole or part the proceeds of the underwriting?

Mr. WHITNEY. Certainly not the whole, and while it is a very active account I should think it is very probable it is a portion of it; it is a very active account and in that year there were over $80,000,000 of credits and $93,000,000 of withdrawals.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Stanley, did Morgan Stanley & Co. do any underwriting in the year 1938 for Corporation 9?

Mr. STANLEY. They did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine your sheets, Mr. Whitney, and tell me the same information that you have been giving me heretofore? What is the credit to the account for Corporation 9?

Mr. WHITNEY. No credit around that time at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Check with Mr. Stanley on that again.

Mr. WHITNEY. I can tell you for '38 the only credit was $8,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will ask Mr. Stanley to look at his material and find out when the underwriting took place.

Mr. WHITNEY. We have a credit for January of $8,000,000 and nothing in April.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As to the credit account of $8,000,000, does that represent in part the proceeds of the underwriting?

Mr. WHITNEY. I haven't the remotest idea.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you find out?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes. I will ask the company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you will advise the committee?

Mr. WHITNEY. I will ask the company if they will advise the committee, or if they will authorize me to advise the committee; I will do so.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All right. You don't have that information?

Mr. WHITNEY. I wouldn't know. It is just an ordinary credit.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is all. Thank you very much.

Senator KING. I would like to ask if the questions are for the purpose of indicating that the Morgan Stanley company did considerable banking with J. P. Morgan & Co. and obtained credits when they made certain underwritings?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Not quite, Senator. It simply indicates that a portion of the proceeds of the underwriting done by Morgan Stanley & Co. found their way to J. P. Morgan & Co., the bank, and we merely have been talking about numbers that represent corporations.

Senator KING. I understand, but for the purpose of indicating, as I understand it, that they did their banking with the Morgan company?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is right.

Senator KING. And when they would underwrite obligations and incur obligations they would obtain loans or credits from J. Pierpont Morgan and then would repay the credits which they obtained?

The CHAIRMAN. With respect to these certain companies, Morgan Stanley & Co. handled certain underwriting and J. P. Morgan & Co. were bankers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is right.

¹ See footnote on p. 12099.

Mr. STANLEY. May I say that as far as Morgan Stanley is concerned we provided certain companies with a certain amount of funds. They did with those funds what they wanted after they got them.

Mr. WHITNEY. The only comment I would like to make is that these were all accounts we had had deposit relations with for varying lengths of time, sometimes a long time, sometimes not a long time, and we cleared the transactions. Payment by Morgan Stanley was made to them in our books and then it was entirely at their disposition. It was purely a bank clearing transaction.

Mr. STANLEY. Paid by check.

Mr. WHITNEY. Paid by check, certainly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Whitney, I'm sorry, I had hoped I was through, but I want to ask one question which might clarify the issue a bit. Can you tell me in general whether or not J. P. Morgan & Co. performs fiscal services of various kinds for corporations who have occasion to underwrite securities through Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated?

Mr. WHITNEY. Fiscal? I don't know what you mean.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Registrarships, coupons—

Mr. WHITNEY (interposing). Oh, certainly, but we do it for a lot of people.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is right, but it just happens that you do it for corporations that do their underwriting through Morgan Stanley?

Mr. WHITNEY. I would assume we must.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you have supplied us with that information?

Mr. WHITNEY. Yes; among others.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No further questions.

The CHAIRMAN. Are these gentlemen excused?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They are.

The CHAIRMAN. Are they excused for Christmas?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. For Christmas.

The CHAIRMAN. Merry Christmas, gentlemen, and thank you so much.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Russell Leffingwell, please.

The CHAIRMAN. Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in this proceeding shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I do.

TESTIMONY OF RUSSELL C. LEFFINGWELL, J. P. MORGAN & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Leffingwell, will you state your full name and address for the record, please?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Russell C. Leffingwell, Oyster Bay, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you are a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were you not former Under Secretary of the Treasury Department of the United States?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I don't want to be too exact about the words—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Assistant Secretary.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. The office of Under Secretary had not been created. I was Assistant Secretary.

The CHAIRMAN. That was during the administration of Woodrow Wilson?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. During the administration of Woodrow Wilson and under the three secretaries of the Treasury who served him, Mr. McAdoo, Mr. Glass, and Mr. Houston.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Leffingwell, will you tell me in what year you became a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. In 1923, July 1. May I just add further identification? I am a New York lawyer, and practiced law from 1902, in general practice, until 1917 when I went to the Treasury, and from 1920 to 1923 when I returned to the practice of law.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, sir.

Mr. Leffingwell, glancing at the sheet which I have made available to you for your convenience, because I note you have no papers with you, is it not true that as of September 30, 1939, the total assets of J. P. Morgan & Co. were $640,000,000-odd?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. It is.

INCREASES IN HOLDINGS OF GOVERNMENT OBLIGATIONS BY J. P. MORGAN & CO. BETWEEN 1934 AND 1939

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A comparison of the first statement published by J. P. Morgan & Co. on December 31, 1934, with that published on September 30, 1939, shows that total assets have increased, that total deposits have increased.

Senator KING. Assets or deposits?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, deposits make up the former; they both have increased. Cash likewise has increased. The holdings in United States Government securities has increased, State and municipal bonds have increased, and loans and advances have not increased; capital has not increased; surplus in partners' balances has not increased. Total capital in surplus has not increased. However, in this period, Mr. Leffingwell, deposits did increase over 60 percent?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I accept your figure.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Subject to your correction, sir. Similarly, Government securities increased over 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ percent, and I note that State and municipal bond holdings increased over 350 percent.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I accept it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Capital decreased by one-fifth?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I accept that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The increase in deposits, I take it, permitted the large increase in Government securities, would you say?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Excuse me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The question was, did the increase in deposits over this period of time permit the large increase in holdings of Government securities?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Yes, sir; I should think so.

Senator KING. You utilize your profits for the acquisition of Government securities so you can get some little interest?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Of course, it all goes into one total; it is not earmarked, but the increase in deposits is reflected in part.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, most of these Government securities are wholly tax exempt, are they not, sir?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Well, I would have to get an analysis of that. I wouldn't be able to say, because, as you know, the Government issues a variety of issues, some of which are wholly tax exempt and some of which are not wholly tax exempt, and I am not at all sure how that stands in relation to the portfolio.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you make it available at some later date, at your convenience?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Yes.¹

Senator KING. For my information, is it not a fact that the greater part of the Government securities have been taken up often at the invitation of the Government by various banks throughout the United States, so they can get some little interest upon the deposits, and the greater part of the forty-odd billion dollars of bonds, the greater part of those issues, have been taken up by the banks?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I think that is probably true. Of course, during the war, Senator, we made a very great effort to get wide distribution of the Government's obligations through the Liberty Loan organization, and that was, I think, a most important achievement of the U. S. Treasury during that period. Under these conditions, different policies are necessarily followed, and the Government securities tend to be held by the banks.

Senator KING. And insurance companies?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. And insurance companies and I suppose other great companies.

Senator KING. But most of the—

Mr. LEFFINGWELL (interposing). But I have no statistical information on it. I have no doubt that the Treasury would have—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Mr. Leffingwell, I have before me some calculations which appear on the large sheet that has been made available to me, and I observe that the total of Government securities, State and municipal securities, held by J. P. Morgan & Co., for the year 1934, was, roughly, $257,000,000; that its deposits during the same period were $338,000,000; and for the year 1935, the total of Government obligations, State and local, were $342,000,000, as compared with $473,000,000 of deposits; and for the year—

Mr. LEFFINGWELL (interposing). These figures are not on here, so I am accepting them as you run along.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I had expected my assistant to give you one so you might follow me. Here is a copy.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Thank you.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think I was about to come to the year 1936, that is the third one down, Mr. Leffingwell. The total of Government, State, and municipal securities was $360,000,000 and the deposits for the same year $479,000,000. In 1937 the total of State and local securities was $280,000,000, and deposits $395,000,000. In 1938 I find that the holdings of Government, State, and local securities was $352,000,000 and the deposits with your firm were $521,000,000; and as of September 30, 1939, the total of your holdings in Government securities, State and local, were $386,000,000 and your total deposits, $590,000,000.

¹ Mr. Leffingwell, under date of February 2, 1940, submitted the information requested. It is included in the appendix on p. 12337.

Mr. Leffingwell, has it not been contended that the great proportion of bank deposits are not being put to use in private industry?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I have heard a great deal about that; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Has there not been an increasing proportion of bank deposits invested in tax-exempt securities?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Well, of course, that broad question involves the practice of a great many people and I haven't followed it statistically, but there is a plain tendency in your figures which I accept to an increase in government securities, so far as our bank is concerned. I would have to look this subject up in a broader field, but I wasn't thinking you were going to ask me about that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I'm sorry, but my question is sufficiently general.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I don't doubt that what you say is so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, tax exemption makes this kind of investment that we have been speaking of especially attractive to banks, does it not?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Well, I should think it made it very attractive to banks. I should think it made it very attractive to private persons.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In fact, over 80 percent of the earning assets of J. P. Morgan & Co. as of September 30, 1939, were invested in such tax-exempt securities?

Mr. WHITNEY. Oh, no; nothing like that.

Senator KING. Can you give a percentage figure?

PROPOSAL BY MR. LEFFINGWELL TO ABANDON POLICY OF TAX EXEMPTION
ON CERTAIN GOVERNMENT OBLIGATIONS

Mr. WHITNEY. No; but that is assuming that all our governments are tax exempt and, of course, they are not.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. You are speaking of a subject that has interested me very much. If I seem to ramble too much, bring me back to earth.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir; you are doing very well; it is a pleasure.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. You remind me of what happened to me 22 years ago. Twenty-two years ago I proposed on behalf of Secretary McAdoo the abandonment of the policy of exemption, exempting government securities from taxation, and in the second Liberty bond bill, authority was given by Congress to issue bonds without exemption from supertax. That is a rough statement.

Under Secretary McAdoo's authority—I was very green in the Treasury then; I expounded this question for the Treasury—and I have always been a firm believer in the policy which I understand Secretary Morgenthau advocates, of withdrawing tax exemption from Government securities of future issues. Necessarily, the Treasury never for a moment contemplated the possibility of removing tax exemption from outstanding issues which contain a different sort of obligation. But I have always felt withdrawal of exemption desirable—I have always favored it—for future issues of Government securities.

Now, so far as a bank portfolio is concerned, I say this because I want you to understand that as to the matter of public policy, I have never ceased to advocate, either in public life or in private life, the adoption of a policy of taxing government securities, never.

Senator KING. Now, you know, Mr. Leffingwell, do you not, that that is a subject on which there have been sharp differences of opinion?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I do; I do indeed, Senator.

Senator KING. Many believe it is to the advantage of the government itself to issue securities, bonds, of the character which it now issues, that is, bearing interest, because they will be more salable, they will bring a higher price in the market, and in the long run, it's advantageous to the government. Isn't that one view?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Absolutely, absolutely. And——

Senator KING (interposing). So you are not the last word?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I am not the last word.

Senator KING. You are not the last word in that question.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. No, but I was afraid I wasn't going to get in my first word, Senator. [Laughter.]

Senator KING. Well, I am not deciding whether the last word or the first word is the better.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I don't ask anybody to agree with me, but——

Senator KING (interposing). However, while you are on the subject, Mr. Wilson and his Secretaries of the Treasury, Mr. McAdoo, Mr. Houston, Mr. Glass, did not agree with you?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Oh, I beg your pardon! Mr. Wilson, Mr. McAdoo, Mr. Glass, and Mr. Houston all supported that policy.

Senator KING. Well, then they didn't carry it out.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. That was carried out in the second, third, and fourth Liberty Bond issues.

Senator KING. With respect to surtaxes?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. With respect to surtaxes. And the only reason why we didn't put it into effect in respect to normal taxes was that we were of the opinion in the Treasury, when we were selling bonds in the denominations of $50 and $100 and $200, that the attempt to collect normal taxes on them would cost more money than it would come to.

Mr. MILLER. May I ask a question of Mr. Leffingwell?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Certainly, sir.

Mr. MILLER. In making such large investments of bank portfolios in U. S. Government obligations, aside from the high-credit standing of these obligations, would you say that the tax exemption or the tax benefits contained in these various issues was as important as the marketability, the ready marketability, in large amounts? Was that the guiding or the most important thing?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Well, frankly, Mr. Miller, I think plainly the problem of the banker is to invest monies deposited with him safely and in such a way that he can meet the demands made upon him by its depositors; in other words, that his first obligation or charge is the care and safety of the money entrusted to him, and that the safest thing he can buy, or could buy, is a short-time obligation of the Government of the United States; and I should say, speaking only for my own opinion, that in answer to your question specifically, a liquid investment of a first quality is a consideration that impels bankers to invest their portfolio in U. S. Government securities.

You promised to stop me if I rambled on to a point where I bored you, Mr. Nehemkis. You know, for 4 days I have sat here and listened to other people talk. [Laughter.]

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is too much of a privilege, Mr. Leffingwell, to take advantage of your kind offer.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I have given a great deal of thought to the question which you asked, Mr. Miller, and which you began, Mr. Nehemkis, asking. About the question of public policy in relation to tax-exempt securities, which is no business of mine as a banker—I just wanted you to know of my philosophy with regard to the subject. I have the greatest deference for the opinion of others who have a different view, and I don't for a minute mean to suggest that I know all about it. But, unquestionably, our object in buying securities or in making loans is to see that the moneys that are deposited with us are safe and liquid. Now, I have an extraordinarily interesting comment on that subject that I found in the Federal Reserve Bulletin as long ago as September 1936. It interested me so much that I thought I might read you just a sentence.

The growth of large-deposit balances to the credit of individuals and financial concerns reflects the accumulation of idle funds, awaiting investment, and also explains, in part, the active demand for securities.

Now, there is just one other thought—one more quotation—and that is taken from the then Assistant Director of the Division of Research and Statistics of the Federal Reserve System, Mr. Lauchlin Currie. He attributed that growth of deposits “to the Government's borrowing and spending program,” and “to the addition to our gold stock,” which has resulted from the flight of money from Europe.

In addition to those two factors which have led to this expansion of deposits, I should add, I think, the devaluation of the dollar which makes gold worth $35 an ounce instead of $20.67 an ounce. Obviously, when the gold comes in, more dollars are printed against it than were under the old arrangement.

This expansion of deposits which is reflected in our statement, as you correctly said—well, I have a notion that in the 5 years since we were put out of the investment banking business, our deposits have about doubled. That is not surprising. I don't know how it runs through the country, but there is nothing unusual about it. Bank deposits have increased enormously, and they have increased because of these two factors which Mr. Lauchlin Currie, with authority, mentions, plus the one I mentioned, which is only a footnote to his. But those things are not in the very nature of the case things which lead to the revival of confidence and activity in business if you stop to think about them. We had to go along those lines. I was in complete agreement with the decision of the Government to suspend payment or “go off” gold. I knew of no other solution for the problem than going off gold in 1933. But while there was the basis for deposit inflation in this high price of gold in terms of the dollar, it was in the very nature of the case a thing that did not give confidence. So the very set of circumstances which created deposits, that same thing tended to sterilize them. It was both a necessary thing and a sort of “scaring” thing for business, that we had to go off gold.

Well, similarly, the Government's borrowing and spending program carried with it, of necessity, a sense of apprehension, and in many phases it of necessity involved competition with business; so that the Government's borrowing and spending, which expanded deposits, at the same time carried with it this somewhat deflationary or sterilizing antidote. You had stimulus and depressant at the same time operating on the economic system.

Now, those things were two. Third, the incoming gold came over for fear of the war; came over for fear of revolution in Europe; came over because of Hitler and because of Stalin and because of the distressed condition of the world. That gold that came in created deposits. But at the same time the thing that brought it here created fear.

So you have both an inflation of deposits and an inflation of the public debt. The three major factors that operated to bring those about, brought with them a brake, a slow-down. So you have the extraordinary phenomenon of an immense inflation of deposits, immense inflation of public debt, and no inflation at all of prices, and no recovery of business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We were speaking earlier, Mr. Leffingwell, of the fact—

Mr. LEFFINGWELL (interposing). Must you stop my speech? If I could have one more sentence or perhaps 2 more minutes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am sorry, sir; I hadn't intended to be rude.

ADVOCACY BY MR. LEFFINGWELL OF POLICY PERMITTING PRICE INCREASE¹

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Mr. Chairman, am I keeping you too long? You weren't a bit rude, Mr. Nehemkis; you have been very generous. I just wanted to complete that thought. Now, we have on the whole—and this, Mr. Chairman, I know, from what you said in public and from what I have read in the newspapers of the view of the committee, you will reject, but I know you will permit me a hearing. We have had many things pressing toward a higher level of costs for business. We have had a pressure, one with which I sympathize, for better wages, a pressure for better working conditions, absolutely necessary and inescapable pressure for relief and a great burden of taxation, and yet taxation is wholly inadequate to meet the expenditures of the Government.

All these things reflect themselves in the costs of business and, on the other hand, we have had policies of the Government, well thought out, intended to prevent inflation, which are directly and effectively directed toward preventing prices from rising. Now, if business must meet rising costs, and an extraordinarily heavy burden of taxation and pay higher wage rates, and provide much better working conditions, and pay the bills for relief, and at the same time you are going to keep prices down, then I guarantee to you that business will go bankrupt, because business cannot forever pay higher taxes, meet higher costs, and stand the same level of prices.

The CHAIRMAN. What is the conclusion that you say you know that the chairman would reject?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. The conclusion is that we must accept the view that you must either curtail relief, which you cannot do, and must reduce the tax burden, which you cannot do, or you must consent to permit prices to rise—or else you must admit that the profit system is dead, the capital system is dead, and we are going to have a managed economy.

¹ In this connection see also memorandum subsequently submitted by Mr. Leffingwell and entered in the record as "Exhibit No. 2163," appendix, p. 12338.

We have had a very much managed economy for 22 years. I was guilty of trying to manage it somewhat when I was in the Treasury. We had a managed deflation in 1937 and '38, intended to prevent inflation, but the effect was drastic deflation.

The CHAIRMAN. Of course, Mr. Leffingwell, some Members of Congress, particularly those who come from agricultural States, have been very anxious to bring about a certain rise in prices because they felt that would be the only way in which the farmer and the rancher could operate at anything like a profit. I think that the criticism of price rises recently has not been directed toward an adequate compensation for products, whatever they may be, but toward an undue manipulation of prices to make them—to raise them out of proportion to what the costs justified.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Well, Senator—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). I didn't want you, Mr. Leffingwell, to place any rejection of any policy in my mouth, because I am not conscious of having rejected anything like that.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I am perfectly delighted to hear it; it is music to my ears. I was so fearful that you had espoused the cause of price controls.

The CHAIRMAN. I find a lot of people around the country, and particularly in some of the financial journals, have assumed my conclusions for me. I don't recognize myself frequently in what I read about the chairman of the committee.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Then if I have performed no other service I have performed a great one in getting you to make that statement, Senator. I am delighted.

Dr. LUBIN. Mr. Chairman, may I ask a question?

The CHAIRMAN. Certainly.

Dr. LUBIN. It doesn't have a definite bearing upon what Mr. Nehemkis asked, but bearing upon what Mr. Leffingwell said in regard to cost. Is it your general opinion that actual labor costs in terms of unit costs of production are higher today than they were, let us say, oh, in 1936 or 1928 or 1929?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I am afraid I couldn't answer that in terms of unit costs of production. As I look at the experience of business in the country, it appears to me that the ratio, that the ratio of profit is steadily being squeezed in between those two forces. Is that not so, sir?

Dr. LUBIN. The reason I asked it was that I think pretty generally most of us don't distinguish between changing wage rates and changing labor costs. Such evidence as this committee has had from various people who are in the operating end of industry gives pretty definite—leads to the belief pretty definitely that modern technology, greater efficiency and operation, better distribution methods, and so forth, have really cut costs rather markedly, and that the increased wages have more than been offset by the increased productivity of labor during the last decade or two.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I should undoubtedly accept that. I think that the really distressing problem is that while we have been getting better wages for those fortunate people who are employed, the management of our economy has been failing conspicuously for ten years to get a better pay roll in the pockets of all possible employees. That is the most distressing phenomenon of our managed money and our planned economy, and I think that it is due to the fact that the wage bill in terms per man is very high and the tax bill is very high and the burden of indebtedness is very, very high.

The CHAIRMAN. But is the wage bill high in terms of output? Now, for example, take the automobile industry, a modern automobile is produced at a much lower wage cost in terms of the actual product than it was 15 or 20 years ago, and that is what has enabled the motor industry to reduce prices to advantage.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Of course, that would be an absolutely controlling factor if one were to assume that this was a moribund or obsolete or senescent economy. To my mind it is a juvenile economy. I realize that there are those who think that the frontiers have met and that we are aged and exhausted, and that we have no future. To my mind, this is just an infant sort of a country and I don't know who is going to invent the next thing, but I know that the energies, the imagination, of the American people have risen to every opportunity that has been presented them, and I believe that the opportunities of the future are far greater than the opportunities of the present.

The CHAIRMAN. You are expressing a point of view that the chairman has frequently expressed.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Leffingwell, in the first days of the hearings of this committee, my distinguished colleague here, Senator King, asked me whether I thought that we had stopped growing, and I responded, in the vernacular, by saying, "There's life in the old gal yet."

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. That's splendid, only I don't even think she is an old gal. [Laughter.]

Senator KING. Anybody that would despair for this Government in view of the conditions and confusion in all parts of the world, it seems to me, is a pessimist of the first water. This Nation has got to lead other nations by its example and I agree entirely with Mr. Leffingwell, the future of this country is better than it has been in the past.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I really think you ought to give 130,000,000 people a little more rope. I think, going back to the time when I had official burdens, however insignificant, we got into a phase of trying to manage all of us. It was necessary, we had a great big war on our hands, and I can be forgiven for thinking we did a swell job. But then we sort of relaxed, and I think we relaxed most exaggeratedly, as you all do. That went on for 10 years and we had another major crisis, and we had to manage things again, we had to do most drastic things. I have said we had to do that. I cannot agree with those whom I greatly respect, who criticize that decision: I think it was inevitable.

But I don't think we ought to go too far. I think we want a system of free enterprise, and I believe in those old-fashioned Americans being let loose on the plains and the rivers and the harbors, and the hilltops, and I think they will work out their destiny. I think they will do a superb job all over again, and I really believe the relief of the world abroad, the future of mankind, depends on their having opportunity to do that.

Senator KING. Less regimentation, less discouragement of investment so many of these deposits in the banks drawing only small rates of interest, such as banks can pay, would be beneficial so it could be utilized in the expansion of business and in the creation of new business activities.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, this committee is contemplating what we have termed a free-for-all public discussion. I think we have found candidate No. 1 for that.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Thank you very much; I would be grateful for the opportunity.

The CHAIRMAN. Of course, I think Mr. Leffingwell's comments should not be permitted to pass without just another little addition. There is the implication in what you say that the Government has undertaken an undue degree of management. You say, of course, that government has done this in the past. It did it when you were a part of Government because it had to do so, and there is a tendency now to say that the Government has done too much of this particular thing, but it should never be overlooked that during the past 6 years there has been practically no alternative proposal offered, except upon the part of certain unreconstructed Democrats like Senator King here.

Now, Senator King from the outset was opposed to the N. R. A. Take that as an example.

Senator KING. The Supreme Court said I was right—unanimously.

The CHAIRMAN. I was not a member of the Senate at the time, so I can speak as an observer.

Senator KING. And I think you agreed with me.

The CHAIRMAN. I am speaking now as an observer. The significant point is that before any inferences may be drawn out of any policy it must be remembered that that bill was adopted by a practically unanimous vote, and that there was no division, no political division, with respect to it. So today when I hear people talking about Government regimentation, and too much spending, for example, as in the case of the W. P. A., I can't forget that when the last appropriation bill, for example, for W. P. A. was passed there wasn't a single vote cast against it in the Senate of the United States, for all the criticisms, and there were only 23 votes cast against it in the House. So it was a program that was adopted because there was no alternative program.

In measuring our conclusions we must bear facts like that in mind, it seems to me.

Senator KING. May I make one addendum? When Mr. Leffingwell was in the Government we had a great war on. We called for more than 2,000,000 men, we had to send ships abroad, we called for large expenditures, we contracted a debt up to twenty-six billions of dollars in the prosecution of that very great war. So in the prosecution of war, as a rule, economic as well as political laws are silent. We bow to the necessity and the preservation and protection of our country, and if we get into another war undoubtedly there will be a system of regimentation which will be very obnoxious, but will be essential to properly prosecute the war.

TAX-EXEMPT INCOME TO J. P. MORGAN & CO. AND ITS PARTNERS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I hate to return to such mundane matters as Government securities and their attractiveness to banks, but I suppose one must.

You say, Mr. Leffingwell, that tax exemption makes the kind of investment you have been describing to us especially attractive to banks, and I think I commented at the time that about, well, over 85 percent of the earning assets of J. P. Morgan & Co., as of September 30, 1939, were invested in such Government securities, and I think you have already indicated that the same thing is true to a greater or less degree on the part of banks throughout the country?

Senator KING. That is true, is it not, you indicated that you thought that?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I accept the figures as to J. P. Morgan & Co., but—

Mr. WHITNEY. Eighty percent of our assets would be $520,000,000, and our total tax exemptions are $385,000,000, because unfortunately at that time we had $200,000,000 of cash which we were not able to invest in anything.

Senator KING. The point I was making related to the question of Mr. Nehemkis, that the banks, generally, throughout the United States have a very large amount of their deposits held in Government securities.

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I think what I was trying to say (before I forgot myself and entered into this larger field) in answer to Mr. Miller, is, that after all, the object of the banks is to get a safe investment for their money and, of course, the safest investment for this money is Government obligations. And the pertinence of my general remarks is that there aren't other good loans being offered to the banks in sufficient volume, and I was attempting to show why there were not other good loans being offered to the banks in sufficient volume.

As far as tax exemption is concerned, under the same conditions which exist today if the Government were to be selling other taxable securities, I should not expect to see the banks' portfolios change.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This income that is tax exempt to incorporated banks is not exempt to the stockholders of such banks, is that correct?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. The dividends are not exempt, but of course the income—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I meant dividends. However, Mr. Leffingwell, whatever is tax-exempt income to the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. is tax-exempt income to the partners personally, is that not true?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are not all of the expenses of J. P. Morgan & Co. charged against taxable income, pursuant to section 25 (a) (5) of the Revenue Act?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I suppose expenses are a deduction from total income.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So there is in most years, Mr. Leffingwell, little if any income taxable to the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Not most years. When years are as bad as some have been there isn't any taxable income, but in many years our taxable income has been very great and our taxes have been very great.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Leffingwell, is not substantially the entire income of the partners of the firm exempt from Federal income tax?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. It depends entirely upon the year, I think.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In 1938 it was entirely exempt, was it not, sir?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I don't remember.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you accept my statement, subject to correction?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So in 1938 the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. paid no income taxes on their earnings of nearly $4,000,000 from the firm?

Mr. LEFFINGWELL. I don't know whether that is true or not. I don't know whether the earnings were $4,000,000. I know that if they paid no taxes it was because there was no taxable income.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you have any comment on that, Mr. Whitney?

Mr. WHITNEY. On this last?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; do you want to correct it?

Mr. WHITNEY. No. I have a lot on your earlier things. You must remember we have to make earnings before taxes are due, and, of course, our holdings of governments are not wholly tax-exempt. In running a bank, as Mr. Leffingwell indicated, you have to run your portfolio on what the market has to offer. The figures you gave of 85 percent was after the deduction of cash. You could have made that percentage higher if you had taken out real estate and other things, like cash, that have no income. Our total assets tell a different story. On that I can't speak. I would have to look it up. I don't like to guess, but I am sure all our holdings of governments are far from being tax-exempt, except insofar as they are all tax-exempt on normal income. As to the municipals, yes, that would be true—$65,000,000. But I am not competent to talk about taxes, I only know we have to pay them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As I said earlier, I deeply regret we can't have the pleasure of having Mr. Leffingwell's discussion on that very vital problem of the role and function of bank deposits, and I hope that Mr. Leffingwell will be able to do that with us at some later date.

I have no further questions, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any more questions to be addressed to Mr. Leffingwell?

Thank you very much, sir.

Any other witness this afternoon?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. What is your program now?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As I understand, we meet again with the committee some time after the new year, the date to be fixed by the committee, is that correct?

Senator KING. I suggest we leave it to be fixed by the committee and Mr. Henderson, and then we can give ample notice to all witnesses.

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you very much, Mr. Whitney.

Mr. WHITNEY. We are discharged?

The CHAIRMAN. You are dismissed for the present. I will wish you a Merry Christmas now.

The committee will stand in recess then, so far as the investment banking hearing is concerned, until the call of the Chair.

Tomorrow, in this room, the hearing upon certain phases of the insurance problem, which has been going on in Room 357, will be resumed. The Chair wishes to urge all members of the committee who may possibly do so to attend this insurance study.

The committee will now stand in recess.

(Whereupon, at 4:05 p. m., an adjournment was taken subject to call of the chairman.)

APPENDIX

EXHIBIT No. 1659-1

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

In view of any possible attempt of the opposition to the National Bell Telephone Company or others to buy up a majority interest in said Company, and of the danger to the interests of the minority if this should be accomplished the undersigned hereby agree in respect to the stock in said National Bell Telephone Co. owned by them and to the amount placed opposite their names as follows:—

They will not sell any part of said stock except to the subscribers of this paper unless all of said subscribers agree to sell all of said subscribed stock and have the opportunity to do so, at a price satisfactory to each: they will not agree to give proxies to vote upon said stock to any other than some of the said subscribers.

This agreement is to remain in force until April 1st, 1880, but it may be terminated at any time with the unanimous consent of the subscribers, but not without. It is not to be binding unless at least 3,700 shares are subscribed Boston, April 2nd.

W. H. Forbes, 300 shares; J. Malcolm Forbes, 100 shares; H. L. Higginson, 635 shares; Y. S. Gardner, Jr., 75 shares; C. E. Perkins, per W. H. F., 150 shares; Thomas Sanders, 500 shares; Thomas A. Watson, 300 shares; George L. Bradley, 525 shares; W. G. Saltonstall, 25 shares; Arthur W. Slake, 100 shares; C. S. Bradley, 218 shares; Francis Blake, Jr., 325 shares; R. S. Fay, 100 shares; A. Lochranets, 100 shares; J. N. A. Griswold, by W. H. Forbes, 100 shares; H. S. Russell, by W. H. Forbes, 150 shares; C. C. Jackson, 50 shares; C. Williams, Jr., 50 shares.

Boston, Dec. 15th, 1879.

We the undersigned, mutually agree to release each other from all the obligations of the above written agreement.

W. H. Forbes, H. S. Russell, by W. H. Forbes, J. N. A. Griswold, by W. H. Forbes, C. E. Perkins, by W. H. Forbes, Geo. L. Bradley, T. A. Watson, C. Williams, Jr., Thomas Sanders, W. G. Saltonstall, H. L. Higginson, R. S. Fay, A. Lochranets, Francis Blake, Jr., Arthur W. Slake, J. Malcolm Forbes, C. C. Jackson, John L. Gardner, Jr., C. S. Bradley.

[Presidents File No. 1879 Apl 2 Agreement Not to sell. Release Room 1124—195 Bwy. N Y C. A T & T. Co. Inv. C. anyst.]

12115

EXHIBIT No. 1659-2

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY AND PREDECESSORS

SCHEDULE 1a.—List of Directors of Predecessors Prior to 1900 With Their Terms of Office Including Directorships Held by Them in American Telephone and Telegraph Company

Name of Director	Bell Telephone Company (Association)	New England Telephone Company	Bell Telephone Company (Corporation)	National Bell Telephone Company	American Bell Telephone Company	American Telephone and Telegraph Company
(a)	(b)	(c)	(d)	(e)	(f)	(g)
Bell, A. G.	{ 8-1-77 7-2-85				9-9-11 12-16-21
Hubbard, C. E.	{ 8-1-77 7-2-85	2-2-78 5-26-03	7-20-78 5-26-03	3-10-79 5-26-03	3-31-80 12-16-21	5-9-00 8-24-28
Hubbard, G. G.	{ 8-1-77 7-2-85	2-2-78 1-30-82	7-20-78 6-21-80	3-10-79 4-12-82	5-14-80 12-10-97
Sanders, T.	{ 8-1-77 7-2-85	2-2-78 5-26-03	7-20-78 5-26-03	3-10-79 5-26-03	5-14-80 8-7-11	5-9-00 8-7-11
Watson, T. A.	{ 8-1-77 7-2-85	2-2-78 1-30-82	7-20-78 12-31-78
Bradley, C. S.	{ 2-2-78 1-30-82	6-21-80 1-30-82	4-12-82 3-10-79	3-10-79 4-12-82	5-14-80 3-11-85
Cochrane, A.	{ 2-2-78 1-28-89	1-30-82 5-26-03	3-10-79 3-8-86	3-10-79 3-28-11	5-14-80 3-31-80	1-4-83 4-10-19
Silsbee, G. Z.	{ 2-2-78 1-30-82		1-30-82 4-12-82	4-7-79 5-14-80	3-31-80
Saltonstall, W. G.	{ 2-2-78 2-2-85		10-8-84 3-10-90	11-29-88
Goodspeed, J. H.			{ 7-20-78 12-31-78
Sturgis, J.			{ 7-20-78 12-31-78
Bradley, G. L.			{ 7-20-78 1-30-82	3-10-79 4-12-82	3-31-80 3-26-06	5-9-00 3-26-06
Bailey, T. B.	{ 1-25-97 5-26-03	7-20-78 12-31-78	4-7-79 3-10-79	3-29-21 (A) 3-31-80	3-30-15 (A) 9-2-85	5-9-00 9-2-85
Forbes, W. H.	{ 1-30-82 9-19-87	12-31-78 9-19-87	9-19-87 12-31-78	10-11-97 3-31-80	9-2-87 (A) 5-9-00	9-2-87 (A) 5-9-00
Blake, F., Jr.			{ 1-30-82 4-12-82	3-10-79 3-28-11	3-31-80 1-19-13
Fay, R. S.			{ 3-10-79 3-12-82	3-31-80 3-28-82	3-31-80 5-14-80
Emerson, C.		{ 1-30-82 1-28-84	6-21-80 9-13-82
Driver, W. R.		{ 1-30-82 5-26-03	6-21-80 5-26-03	4-12-82 5-26-03
Whitcomb, C. M.		{ 1-16-91 1-28-85		3-10-90 3-11-85	3-31-80 5-14-80
Devonshire, R. W.		{ 1-27-90 5-26-03	9-10-89 5-26-03	4-12-82 5-26-03	12-16-21 (A) 3-20-07 (A)	5-8-80 5-7-82
Bowditch, C. P.			{ 10-8-84 5-26-03	5-14-80		11-30-85 3-20-07 (A)
Minturn, R. B.				{ 3-29-81 7-13-87
Hudson, J. E.	{ 1-30-82 10-1-00	9-13-82 9-10-89	5-12-82 10-1-00	11-29-88 10-1-00		3-4-88 10-1-00
Clapp, C.				{ 3-28-82 6-20-88		3-4-88 5-24-88
Phillips, G. L.			{ 4-12-82 3-10-84
Madden, O. E.			{ 4-12-82 3-8-86
Vail, T. N.			{ 4-12-82 3-9-91			8-14-85 5-7-82
Stone, P. S.	{ 1-28-84 1-28-91	9-13-82 9-10-89	3-10-84 3-9-91		3-25-02 4-16-20	3-25-02 4-16-20
Perkins, C. E.				{ 3-11-85 5-14-07		5-9-00 5-14-07
French, C. J.	{ 1-28-89 5-26-03	9-9-91 5-26-03	3-8-86 5-26-03
Stockton, H.	{ 9-19-87 1-27-90	9-19-87 9-10-90	9-19-87 3-10-90	7-13-87 5-14-90		9-19-87 5-8-90
Blake, S.				{ 3-28-89 5-8-89
Howe, H. S.				{ 5-8-89 12-16-21		12-24-88 8-2-91

(A) Indicates director was in and out during periods.

SCHEDULE 1a.—List of Directors of Predecessors Prior to 1900 With Their Terms of Office Including Directorships Held by Them in American Telephone and Telegraph Company—Continued

Name of Director (a)	Bell Telephone Company (Association) (b)	New England Telephone Company (c)	Bell Telephone Company (Corporation) (d)	National Bell Telephone Company (e)	American Bell Telephone Company (f)	American Telephone and Telegraph Company (g)
Sherwin, T.	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-10-90 5-26-03	-----	-----
Ware, C. P.	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-0-91 5-26-03	-----	-----
Hutchinson, W. S.	{ 1-28-95 5-26-03	-----	{ 9-2-00 5-26-03	{ 3-11-95 5-26-03	-----	-----
Amory, C. W.	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-26-95 3-28-11	{ 9-23-97 5-20-13
Williams, M.	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-26-95 8-21-19	{ 5-9-00 8-21-19
Milne, G. D.	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-8-97 5-26-03	-----	{ 3-26-18 3-25-19
Coolidge, T. J., Jr.	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-30-97 3-28-11	{ 5-9-00 4-14-12
Forbes, J. M.	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 1-19-98 2-19-04	{ 5-9-00 2-19-04

EXHIBIT No. 1659-3

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

AMERICAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

SCHEDULE 1b.—Officers and Members of Executive Committee Years 1885 to 1900, Inclusive

Name (a)	Executive Committee (b)	President (c)	Vice President (d)	Treasurer (e)	Clerk (f)	Auditing Committee ¹ (g)
Hubbard, C. E.	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-31-85 16-28-21	-----
Driver, W. R.	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-31-85 3-31-14	-----	-----
Forbes, W. H.	{ 4-3-85 3-29-98	{ 4-3-85 3-29-88	-----	-----	-----	-----
Bowditch, C. P.	{ 4-3-85 3-30-87 3-29-92 3-30-97	-----	{ 4-3-85 3-30-87	-----	-----	-----
Cochrane, A.	{ 4-3-85 3-31-86 3-28-93 3-27-94 3-26-95 4-9-07	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-30-87 3-29-88
Saltonstall, W. G.	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 4-3-85 3-30-87
Clapp, O.	{ 3-31-86 3-29-88	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----
Hudson, J. E.	{ 3-30-87 10-1-00	{ 4-1-89 3-28-01	{ 3-30-87 4-1-89	-----	-----	-----
Stockton, H.	{ 3-29-88 4-1-89	{ 3-29-88 4-1-89	-----	-----	-----	-----
Blake, F.	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	{ 3-29-88 3-28-01
Howe, H. S.	{ 3-30-97 4-3-11	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----
Amory, C. W.	{ 3-29-98 4-9-07	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----

¹ From April 3, 1885 to March 30, 1887, known as the Standing Committee for Auditing the Accounts, and from March 28, 1899 to March 28, 1901, the Committee on Treasurer's Accounts.

² Pensioned between 1914 and 1917.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-4

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY AND PREDECESSOR COMPANIES SCHEDULE 2.—Per Cent of Equity Ownership by Directors, Other Officers and Their Family Relations as of Selected Dates From July 9, 1877 to September 16, 1935¹

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY (ASSOCIATION)

Date	Total out- standing shares	Per Cent of Outstanding Shares Held By
		Directors ²	Other Officers	Family Re- lations ³	Directors, Other Officers and Family Relations
(a)	(b)	(c)	(d)	(e)	(f)
July 9, 1877.....	5,000	68.06	-----	31.94	100.00
July 20, 1878.....

NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE COMPANY

February 12, 1878.....	2,000	100.00	-----	-----	100.00
March 10, 1879.....	2,000	28.20	8.05	5.40	41.65

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY (CORPORATION)

July 20, 1878.....	4,500	75.24	1.76	19.82	96.82
March 10, 1879.....	4,500	54.25	1.11	19.66	75.02

NATIONAL BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

March 10, 1879.....	7,250	55.04	0.10	21.26	76.40
---------------------	-------	-------	------	-------	-------

AMERICAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

December 8, 1880.....	73,500	40.13	3.83	12.44	56.40
March 28, 1885.....	96,021	12.91	.02	8.53	21.45
March 31, 1890.....	112,971	5.13	-----	6.31	11.44
March 30, 1895.....	205,000	3.95	-----	6.45	10.40
March 31, 1900.....	258,863	1.37	-----	3.67	5.04

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

March 17, 1905.....	1,315,514	1.88	-----	-----	-----
March 31, 1910.....	2,592,894	2.31	-----	-----	-----
March 31, 1915.....	3,579,779	1.30	-----	-----	-----
March 19, 1920.....	4,420,615	.86	-----	-----	-----
March 17, 1925.....	5,915,329	.57	-----	-----	-----
March 14, 1930.....	13,909,697	.73	-----	-----	-----
September 16, 1935.....	18,662,275	.06	-----	-----	-----

¹ Information as of March 31, 1900 and prior dates was compiled from the stock records of the companies. Data on per cent of outstanding shares held by directors of American Telephone and Telegraph Company, were obtained from compilations made by the company.

² From July 9, 1877 to March 31, 1900, includes percentage of shares held by directors as trustees or agents. From March 17, 1905 to September 16, 1935, the percentages are for shares owned by directors. However, if 271,104 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph Company common stock, held by American Bell Telephone Company and voted by Frederick P. Fish, President, were included, the percentage for March 17, 1905 would be 18.65.

³ The per cent of outstanding shares held by family relations of directors and other officers of the companies prior to 1900 is computed on the basis of holdings of individuals with the same surname.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-5

No. S-26-E
Inv. CA
Dept. Treasury
File 012.11

TABLE No. 1.—Stock Outstanding and Number of Stockholders

Nearest Available Record Date to Annual Meeting	Shares Outstanding ¹	Number of Stockholders	Average Shares Per Stockholder ¹
			Including A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and Trustees for Employees	Excluding A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and Trustees for Employees
1926.....	9,234,772	366,525	25.2	25.1
1925.....	8,915,329	349,191	25.5	25.5
1924.....	7,472,728	299,498	24.9	24.8
1923.....	7,088,013	256,041	27.7	27.6
1922.....	5,601,252	197,825	28.3	27.9
1921.....	4,435,246	146,490	30.2	29.7
1920.....	4,420,615	124,172	35.5	34.4
1919.....	4,419,495	113,860	38.8	38.5
1918.....	4,358,965	88,851	49.1	47.9
1917.....	3,958,633	73,600	53.8	52.1
1916.....	3,848,239	66,938	57.5	55.6
1915.....	3,579,779	61,512	58.2	56.2
1914.....	3,446,377	56,946	60.5	60.2
1913.....	3,440,960	52,080	66.2	63.5
1912.....	3,243,617	40,064	66.2	66.1
1911.....	2,682,422	40,686	66.2	62.0
1910.....	2,592,894	37,594	68.8	66.8
1909.....	1,909,205	28,545	66.9	66.9
1908.....	1,525,280	24,189	63.1	63.1
1907.....	1,315,514	18,549	70.9	70.9
1906.....	1,315,514	17,542	75.0	75.0
1905.....	1,315,514	17,055	77.1	77.1
1904.....	1,270,689	16,121	78.8	78.8
1903.....	1,097,184	11,887	92.3	92.3
1902.....	877,480	9,609	91.3	91.3
1901.....	621,271	7,858	79.1	79.1
1900.....	258,863	6,961	37.2	37.2
1899.....	258,863	6,863	37.7	37.7
1898.....	258,863	6,886	37.6	37.6
1897.....	236,500	6,474	36.5	36.5
1896.....	215,000	5,778	37.2	37.2
1895.....	205,000	5,572	36.8	36.8
1894.....	200,000	5,247	38.1	38.1
1893.....	174,995	4,542	38.5	38.5
1892.....	150,000	3,945	38.0	38.0
1891.....	125,000	3,501	35.7	35.7
1890.....	112,971	2,734	41.3	41.3
1889.....	100,000	2,066	48.4	48.4
1888.....	98,521	1,770	55.7	55.7
1887.....	98,021	1,818	53.9	53.9
1886.....	98,021	1,826	53.7	53.7
1885.....	96,021	1,607	59.8	59.8
1884.....	96,021	1,532	62.7	62.7
1883.....	59,500	973	61.2	61.2
1882.....	59,500	724	82.2	82.2
1881.....	59,500	540	110.2	110.2

¹ Excluding shares held in name of A. B. T. Co. and treasury stock.

No. S-26-F
Inv. CA
Dept. Treasury
File 012.11

TABLE NO. 2.—*Financial Interest of Large Stockholders*¹

Nearest Available Record Date to Annual Meeting	Holders of 1000 Shares and Over			20 Largest Stockholders
	Number	Shares Held	% of Stock Outstanding	Shares Held	% of Stock Outstanding
1926	425	1,113,926	12.1	400,819	4.3
1925	439	1,136,816	12.8	398,776	4.5
1924	367	902,206	12.1	306,779	4.1
1923	385	980,423	13.8	325,176	4.6
1922	342	769,601	13.7	231,640	4.1
1921	293	617,419	13.9	173,635	3.9
1920	327	749,738	17.0	193,021	4.4
1919	385	906,407	20.5	202,039	4.6
1918	416	978,161	22.4	216,884	5.0
1917	391	877,485	22.2	221,421	5.6
1916	389	906,730	23.6	233,631	6.1
1915	373	877,036	24.5	224,765	6.3
1914	368	904,223	26.2	234,393	6.8
1913	371	958,757	27.9	233,231	6.8
1912	377	981,522	30.3	258,000	8.0
1911	296	698,561	26.0	209,846	7.5
1910	304	740,102	28.5	221,663	8.0
1909	198	577,056	30.2	258,720	13.6
1908	163	458,968	30.0	216,209	14.2
1907	155	403,465	30.7	192,479	14.6
1906	166	398,580	30.3	149,555	11.4
1905	180	411,610	31.3	146,367	11.1
1904	176	402,793	31.7	143,398	11.3
1903	166	375,312	34.2	140,420	12.8
1902	108	284,624	32.4	149,766	17.1
1901	82	167,649	27.0	86,541	18.9
1900	25	40,100	15.5	35,023	13.5
1899	16	28,313	10.9	31,819	12.3
1898	23	39,628	15.3	38,628	14.9
1897	19	36,516	15.4	37,462	15.8
1896	18	45,360	21.1	47,120	21.9
1895	14	25,874	12.6	31,123	15.2
1894	16	28,916	14.5	32,476	16.2
1893	11	22,857	13.1	29,511	16.9
1892	10	19,277	12.9	26,853	17.9
1891	7	11,930	9.6	21,730	17.4
1890	11	17,655	15.6	23,610	20.0
1889	10	18,503	18.5	26,380	26.4
1888	11	23,579	23.9	31,365	31.8
1887	12	22,600	23.1	28,651	26.2
1886	11	19,918	20.3	27,263	27.8
1885	13	23,371	24.3	27,953	29.1
1884	9	23,656	24.6	31,841	32.2
1883	8	14,824	24.9	21,648	25.4
1882	8	16,837	28.3	24,114	25.5
1881	11	27,383	46.0	33,190	25.8

¹ Excluding A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and trustees for employees. Stock outstanding includes shares carried in these names but excludes holdings of A. B. T. Co. and treasury stock.

No. S-26-H
Inv. CA
Dept. Treasury
File 012.11

TABLE No. 4.—Financial Interest of the Directors

Nearest Available Record Date to Annual Meeting	Board of Directors			Present Board of Directors
	Number	Shares Held	% of Stock Outstanding ¹	Number Holding Stock 1926-1912	Shares Held
					Number	% of Holdings in 1926
1926.....	19	50,892	0.6	19	50,892	100.0
1925.....	19	50,894	.6	19	50,894	100.0
1924.....	19	77,205	1.0	19	77,157	150.6
1923.....	19	67,132	.9	18	65,992	128.7
1922.....	19	43,409	.8	18	42,323	82.2
1921.....	19	27,749	.6	17	27,980	54.0
1920.....	19	38,036	.9	14	27,580	53.2
1919.....	17	43,471	1.0	12	26,761	51.6
1918.....	17	50,507	1.2	11	27,031	52.1
1917.....	17	47,575	1.2	12	26,654	51.4
1916.....	17	46,713	1.2	12	26,968	52.0
1915.....	17	46,451	1.3	10	26,565	51.2
1914.....	25	45,912	1.3	10	25,286	48.7
1913.....	25	55,677	1.6	9	26,147	50.4
1912.....	25	58,571	1.8	9	23,617	45.4
1911.....	25	55,829	2.1
1910.....	18	59,788	2.3
1909.....	18	25,511	1.3
1908.....	18	31,796	2.1
1907.....	18	24,597	1.9
1906.....	18	29,193	2.2
1905.....	18	24,809	1.9
1904.....	18	24,553	1.9
1903.....	18	32,456	3.0
1902.....	18	12,866	1.5
1901.....	15	6,025	1.0
1900.....	13	2,198	.9
1899.....	13	2,445	.9
1898.....	13	2,978	1.2
1897.....	13	4,542	1.9
1896.....	13	6,007	2.8
1895.....	13	5,955	2.9
1894.....	12	6,818	3.4
1893.....	12	6,073	3.5
1892.....	12	5,530	3.7
1891.....	12	5,110	4.1
1890.....	12	5,615	5.0
1889.....	12	7,398	7.4
1888.....	12	7,376	7.5
1887.....	12	7,556	7.7
1886.....	12	8,158	8.3
1885.....	12	8,089	8.4
1884.....	12	8,158	8.5
1883.....	12	7,104	11.9
1882.....	12	8,041	13.5
1881.....	12	13,181	22.2
1880.....	11	9,144

¹ Excluding shares held in name of A. B. T. Co. and treasury stock.

No. S-26-J
Inv. CA
Dept. Treasury
File 012.11

TABLE NO. 6.—Degree of Control by Large Stockholders¹

Nearest Available Record Date to Annual Meeting	Estimated Minimum Number of Stockholders Owning Majority of:		Shares Held By Holders of 1000 Shares and Over		Shares Held By 20 Largest Stock- holders		Shares Held By Board of Direc- tors
	Shares Out- standing ²	Shares Voted at Annual Meet- ings ³	% of Majority Out- standing ²	% of Majority Voted at Annual Meet- ings ³	% of Majority Out- standing ²	% of Majority Voted at Annual Meet- ings ³	% of Majority Out- standing ²	% of Majority Voted at Annual Meet- ings ³
1926.....	23,000	8,500	24.1	37.1	8.7	13.4	1.2	1.7
1925.....	21,000	7,500	25.5	39.0	9.0	13.7	1.2	1.7
1924.....	12,000	3,000	24.1	37.9	8.2	12.9	2.0	3.2
1923.....	13,000	3,250	27.6	43.6	9.2	14.5	1.8	3.0
1922.....	11,000	1,500	27.4	43.3	8.3	13.0	1.6	2.4
1921.....	8,000	2,000	27.9	45.2	7.8	12.7	1.2	2.0
1920.....	6,800	1,750	33.9	52.6	8.7	13.5	1.8	2.7
1919.....	5,700	1,750	41.0	67.5	9.1	15.0	2.0	3.2
1918.....	4,500	1,700	44.8	70.3	9.9	15.6	2.4	3.6
1917.....	3,600	1,500	44.3	66.2	11.2	16.7	2.4	3.6
1916.....	3,400	1,500	47.1	72.9	12.1	18.8	2.4	3.8
1915.....	3,300	900	49.0	70.8	12.5	20.4	2.6	4.2
1914.....	2,750	900	52.5	86.1	13.6	22.3	2.6	4.4
1913.....	2,750	850	55.7	87.9	13.5	21.4	3.2	5.1
1912.....	1,150	375	60.5	101.7	15.9	26.7	3.6	6.1
1911.....	1,100	350	52.1	86.9	15.6	26.1	4.2	6.9
1910.....	1,500	325	57.1	94.8	17.1	28.4	4.6	7.7
1909.....	775	225	60.4	83.7	27.2	37.5	1.6	3.7
1908.....	775	240	60.2	78.0	28.4	36.7	4.2	5.4
1907.....	775	250	61.4	78.5	29.2	37.4	3.8	4.8
1906.....	675	300	60.6	72.4	22.8	27.2	4.4	5.9
1905.....	675	220	62.6	77.2	22.2	27.4	3.8	4.7
1904.....	625	225	63.2	75.2	22.6	26.8	3.8	4.6
1903.....	500	230	68.4	77.4	25.6	28.9	6.0	6.7
1902.....	400	110	64.8	97.0	34.2	51.0	3.0	4.4
1901.....	400	108	54.0	91.9	27.8	47.5	2.0	3.3
1900.....	400	31.0	27.0	1.8
1899.....	400	21.9	24.6	1.8
1898.....	400	30.6	29.8	2.4
1897.....	400	30.9	31.8	3.8
1896.....	225	42.2	43.8	5.6
1895.....	225	25.2	30.4	5.8
1894.....	225	28.9	32.5	6.8
1893.....	225	26.1	33.8	7.0
1892.....	200	25.7	35.8	7.4
1891.....	200	19.0	34.6	8.2
1890.....	200	30.3	41.8	10.0
1889.....	200	37.0	52.8	14.8
1888.....	110	47.9	63.8	15.0
1887.....	110	46.2	58.6	15.4
1886.....	110	40.6	55.8	16.6
1885.....	110	48.7	58.4	16.8
1884.....	110	49.3	64.2	17.0
1883.....	75	49.8	72.6	23.8
1882.....	50	56.6	81.0	27.0
1881.....	19	92.0	111.6	44.4

¹ Excluding A. B. T. Co., A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and trustees for employees.² Excluding shares held in name of A. B. T. Co. and treasury stock.³ Including unvoted shares in the name of A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and trustees for employees.

No. S-26-TK
Inv. CA
Dept. Treasury
File 012.11

TABLE No. 7.—Potential Control by Directors

Nearest Available Record Date to Annual Meeting	Shares Held By:			% of Total to Stock Outstanding ¹	% of Total to Shares Voted ²
	Board of Directors	A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and Trustees for Employees	Total
1926	50,892	51,538	102,430	1.1	1.7
1925	50,894	20,253	71,147	.8	1.2
1924	77,205	35,858	113,063	1.5	2.4
1923	67,132	23,251	90,383	1.3	2.0
1922	43,409	86,187	129,596	2.3	3.6
1921	27,749	85,288	113,037	2.5	4.1
1920	38,036	152,392	190,428	4.3	6.7
1919	43,471	39,448	82,919	1.9	3.1
1918	50,507	104,911	155,418	3.6	5.6
1917	47,575	126,926	174,501	4.4	6.6
1916	46,713	127,523	174,236	4.5	7.0
1915	46,451	122,336	168,787	4.7	7.7
1914	45,912	19,359	65,271	1.0	3.1
1913	55,677	134,528	190,205	5.5	8.7
1912	58,571	531	59,102	1.8	3.1
1911	55,829	150,832	215,661	8.0	13.4
1910	59,788	82,906	142,694	5.5	9.1
1909	25,511	-----	25,511	1.3	1.8
1908	31,796	-----	31,796	2.1	2.7
1907	24,597	-----	24,597	1.9	2.4
1906	29,193	-----	29,193	2.2	2.7
1905	24,809	-----	24,809	1.9	2.3
1904	24,553	-----	24,553	1.9	2.3
1903	32,456	-----	32,456	3.0	3.3
1902	12,866	-----	12,866	1.5	2.2
1901	6,025	-----	6,025	1.0	1.7
1900	2,198	-----	2,198	.8	-----
1899	2,445	-----	2,445	.9	-----
1898	2,978	-----	2,978	1.2	-----
1897	4,542	-----	4,542	1.9	-----
1896	6,007	-----	6,007	2.8	-----
1895	5,955	-----	5,955	2.9	-----
1894	6,818	-----	6,818	3.4	-----
1893	6,073	-----	6,073	3.5	-----
1892	5,530	-----	5,530	3.7	-----
1891	5,110	-----	5,110	4.1	-----
1890	5,615	-----	5,615	5.0	-----
1889	7,398	-----	7,398	7.4	-----
1888	7,376	-----	7,376	7.5	-----
1887	7,556	-----	7,556	7.7	-----
1886	8,158	-----	8,158	8.3	-----
1885	8,089	-----	8,089	8.4	-----
1884	8,158	-----	8,158	8.5	-----
1883	7,104	-----	7,104	11.9	-----
1882	8,041	-----	8,041	13.5	-----
1881	13,181	-----	13,181	22.2	-----
1880	9,144	-----	9,144	-----	-----

¹ Excludes holdings of A. B. T. Co. and treasury stock.

² Includes unvoted shares of A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and trustees for employees.

F. H. B.
H. C. H.

TABLE No. 8.—*Estimated Number of Stockholders in Addition to Large Holders and in Addition to Directors Necessary To Control Annual Meeting—Based Upon Residual Average Shareholdings*¹

Nearest Available Record Date to Annual Meeting	Estimated Number of Holders Necessary to Control Annual Meeting in Addition to:
	Holders of 1000 Shares and Over ²	20 Largest Stockholders ²	Board of Directors	Board of Directors Plus A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and Trustees for Employees
1926.....	85,706	108,277	118,416	116,346
1925.....	80,194	103,630	113,290	112,458
1924.....	67,928	87,238	93,733	92,275
1923.....	53,282	73,132	79,905	78,765
1922.....	41,905	57,816	62,524	59,413
1921.....	29,407	41,883	45,408	42,517
1920.....	23,796	37,577	46,090	36,221
1919.....	14,273	31,094	34,118	33,077
1918.....	11,187	25,885	28,383	26,200
1917.....	11,098	22,493	24,869	22,400
1916.....	7,954	19,377	21,794	19,471
1915.....	5,271	16,629	18,973	16,769
1914.....	3,286	14,552	16,917	16,592
1913.....	2,905	14,537	16,500	14,434
1912.....		11,605	13,963	13,955
1911.....	2,331	10,441	12,325	9,691
1910.....	848	9,174	11,052	9,781
1909.....	2,399	7,446	10,065	10,065
1908.....	2,923	6,874	9,012	9,012
1907.....	2,233	5,309	7,025	7,025
1906.....	2,877	6,029	7,102	7,102
1905.....	2,270	5,640	6,708	6,708
1904.....	2,445	5,605	6,605	6,605
1903.....	1,783	4,277	5,047	5,047
1902.....	142	1,894	3,115	3,115
1901.....	252	1,405	2,249	2,249

¹ In the computations for this table, unvoted shares of the A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and trustees for employees have been included in shares voted at annual meetings, and these holdings as well as those of the A. B. T. Co. have been excluded in determining average holdings outside of the groups of large holders indicated.

² Excluding A. B. T. Co., A. & P. Co., B. T. S. Co., and trustees for employees.

No. S-26-L
Inv. CA
Dept. Treasury
File 012.11

EXHIBIT No. 1659-6

American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Predecessor, American Bell Telephone Company—Long Term Debt Issues—1880 to 1905, Inclusive

[From files of Securities and Exchange Commission]

Name of Issue	Year Issued	Principal Amount	Selling Price Per $100 Principal Amount	Net Proceeds	Com- peti- tive Bid- ding	To Whom Sold
American Bell Telephone Company:
Coupon Convertible 6% Notes.	1880-1881	$476,000	$100	$476,000	No....	Pro Rata to Stockholders.
	1881	15,000	138.33	20,450	(1)	(1)
	1881	9,000	140	12,600	(1)	(1)
Convertible 6% Coupon Notes.	1882-1883	645,000	100	645,000	No....	Pro Rata to Stockholders.
Seven Per Cent Debenture Bonds.	1888	1,987,500	100	1,987,500	No....	Pro Rata to Stockholders. -
	1888	12,500	Various	14,002	(1)	Lee, Higginson & Co.
Ten-Year Debenture 4% Coupon Bonds.	1888	5,000,000	100.771	5,038,550	Yes...	Do.
	1899	3,000,000	102.327	3,069,810	Yes...	R. L. Day & Co.
	1899	2,000,000	101.71	2,034,200	Yes...	Estabrook & Co., R. L. Day & Co., and Vermilyne & Co.
American Telephone and Telegraph Company:
Four Per Cent Collateral Trust Bonds.	1900	7,000,000	95	6,650,000	No....	Kidder, Peabody & Co.
	1900	3,000,000	90-97	2,895,000	No....	Do.
	1901	5,000,000	95	4,750,000	No....	Do.
	1902	$13,000,000	-----	-----	No....	Do.
	1905	20,000,000	94.19	18,838,000	Yes...	Do. and Baring Bros. & Co., Ltd.
Three-Year 5% Gold Coupon Notes.	1904	$20,000,000	97.77	19,554,000	Yes...	Speyer & Co. and Lee, Higginson & Co.

¹ Sold at auction.

² Data not available.

³ Delivered to Kidder, Peabody & Co. in exchange for $12,000,000 par value of preferred stock and $3,000,100 par value of common stock of Western Telephone and Telegraph Company, successor to Erie Telephone and Telegraph Company. Alternative sale price on the first $7,000,000 of these bonds delivered to Kidder, Peabody & Co., in case the Erie Company reorganization did not materialize, was 95.

⁴ $25,000,000 principal amount of Four Per Cent Collateral Trust Bonds pledged as collateral to this note issue.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-7

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

(Handwritten:) P. F. File. 6/3/08. A. A. M.

LEE, HIGGINSON & COMPANY,
44 State Street, Boston, April 8, 1904.

Personal.
H.

FREDERICK P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
Boston, Massachusetts.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: I was with Jim Storrow in New York yesterday and came back last night, in case there should be anything for me to do here about this bond business.

Of course, we agree with your views entirely that you need a new market, and we think this can be accomplished by dealing with Speyer. We know as well as anybody can that the Telephone securities are as good as can be, but they have not interested the public yet, outside of New England, very much, and the company has not got the standing which it deserves and which it will have by and by. The New Yorkers are always shy of new things from this part of the country. We think Speyer can help to distribute the securities elsewhere.

As regards figures, may I call your attention to the fact that there are plenty of railroad notes of companies well known to be strong and in good hands, and these notes sell at 5% and thereabouts. The $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ notes of the Pennsylvania road have hung fire terribly. More than that, there are plenty of railroad notes to come, as everybody knows. If the Telephone company wants money and wants a new market, it will probably have to pay for it, just as everybody does who is not well known.

It seems to me, if I were on your board, that I should vote to take money, if it were offered, in quantities enough to make the company easy and pay the price needed. It is, after all, a very small matter on short securities. Most of these railroad notes are two years, and that seems to be a good length of note; and perhaps they can be made a little longer. If the time could be left to the bankers, it would be not less than two years; it would be made longer, if it could be managed, and might give good results.

If you want me today, or if I can offer any advice of value, I am at your service.

I am speaking to you with perfect frankness, just as I have for the last thirty years to the directors of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co., with whom I have had intimate relations. They were very apt to ask about the times and about what I thought with regard to this or t'other point, whether I bought a loan or not; and I always found that by treating them with entire openness and considering their problems, I got on much better. I think they recognized that fact, and I think it did them good. At any rate, it was much easier for me to proceed in that way, and I can fairly say that we have dealt with no railroad in the country, in which dealings we have made less money than with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. We always paid them every penny we could afford for loans and not infrequently paid them too much.

I do not believe it is wise for a corporation to get the last penny on its bonds or notes. Notes cannot fall much in price; bonds can fall very heavily. If the dealers or the investors or both see bonds very heavy on the market, the next time the company wants money it is remembered and costs more than it should.

Forgive me for offering my wisdom (?) unasked, and believe me,

Yours truly,

H. L. HIGGINSON

EXHIBIT No. 1659-8

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

MARCH 7, 1902.

Personal.

FRANCIS L. HINE, Esq.,
Vice-President, First National Bank,
2 Wall Street, New York.

MY DEAR MR. HINE:

I am now in a position to assent definitely to the proposition which I discussed the other day with Mr. Baker and yourself.

We will sell to Mr. Baker and his associates 15,000 shares of the stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, at $153\frac{1}{2}$, with the understanding that Mr. Baker is to have the option to take 25,000 additional shares of the stock within a few days after his return from the south, and at the same price, if he desires to do so. If he concludes that he would like to have 35,000 additional shares, rather than 25,000, I have no doubt that we shall be able to meet his views on that point.

It is our expectation to elect Mr. Baker and Mr. Waterbury to the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at the annual meeting, which will be held on March 25, 1902.

I need not repeat that we understand that it is the purchaser's intention that this stock is to be held as an investment, although, of course, no binding agreement to that effect is to be expected.

I think that I have now stated our entire understanding, and should be glad to have you confirm my statement and indicate to me when you would like to have the certificates for the 15,000 shares delivered and the names in which these shares are to be placed.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book I.]

No. 29.

GEO. F. BAKER, President.
H. C. FAHNESTOCK, V. Pres.
FRANCIS L. HINE, V. Pres.
CHARLES H. STOUT, V. Pres.
C. D. BACKUS, Cashier.
W. G. SNOW, Asst. Cashier.
H. FAHNESTOCK, Asst. Cashier.
GEO. F. BAKER, Jr., Asst. Cashier.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
New York, March 8, 1902.

F. P. FISH, Esq.

*Pres., Am. Tel. & Telegraph Co.,
Boston, Mass.*

DEAR MR. FISH: Replying to your favor of the 7th instant, I beg to hereby confirm the agreement entered into by you with Geo. F. Baker, Esq., namely, that he and his associates shall accept upon presentation by you at the First National Bank of New York, 15,000 shares of the stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at 153½, and that they shall have the privilege of accepting 25,000 @ 35,000 shares additional at the same price within a few days after Mr. Baker's return from the South. Also that Mr. Baker and Mr. Waterbury shall be elected as members of the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at their meeting to be held on March 25, 1902.

As indicated over the telephone, we should be glad to have a certificate of 100 shs in name of Geo. F. Baker, 100 shs in name of John I. Waterbury, 14,800 shs in name of W. J. Nevius.

(300 shares of the latter to be in six certificates of 50 shares each).

Yours, very truly,

F. L. HINE, V. P.

[Source: President's file 12373.]

Source: President's file 12373.

GEO. F. BAKER, President.
H. C. FAHNESTOCK, V. Pres.
FRANCIS L. HINE, V. Pres.
CHARLES H. STOUT, V. Pres.
C. D. BACKUS, Cashier.
W. G. SNOW, Asst. Cashier.
H. FAHNESTOCK, Asst. Cashier.
GEO. F. BAKER, Jr., Asst. Cashier.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
New York, Mch 25, 1902.

F. P. FISH, Esq.

*Pres., Am. Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
Boston, Mass.*

DEAR SIR: Referring to your letter of March 7th, I hereby accept for myself and associates the option to purchase 35,000 shares of your stock at 153½, the same to take effect this date. The arrangement for the delivery of the certificates and payment of dividends as arranged by you with Mr. Waterbury will be entirely satisfactory. Yours, truly,

GEO. F. BAKER.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-9

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

PROPOSED PLAN OF FINANCING

Report of Messrs. Leverett, Sherwin and Driver. February 16, 1905

FREDERICK P. FISH, President
EDWARD J. HALL,
THOMAS SHERWIN,
C. JAY FRENCH,
Vice Presidents
CHARLES EUSTIS HUBBARD, Secretary
WILLIAM R. DRIVER, Treasurer

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
Boston, February 16th, 1905.

PLAN OF FINANCING PROPOSED BY MR. WATERBURY AND ASSOCIATES

FREDERICK P. FISH, Esq.,

DEAR SIR: In order that there may be no question as to the exact points which are discussed in this letter we will briefly summarize the plan under consideration.

A syndicate to buy—

- (a) $15,000,000 of our bonds expiring in ten years instead of 1929.
- (b) $35,000,000 four per cent bonds analogous to our present bonds convertible into stock at $130 at any time, say, after three years and before eight years, and to run, say, twenty to twenty-five years.
- (c) $50,000,000 of the same type of convertible bonds, if we have the power to offer them, with an option on the part of the syndicate to take $50,000,000 more of the same kind.

The $100,000,000 which the syndicate are bound to take are to be paid in installments on fixed dates, the series of installments of the first $50,000,000 being completed in August 1906 and of the installments of the second $50,000,000 in December 1907, with the right to anticipate at any time payment of any part or all of the first $50,000,000 and at any time after August 1906 payment of any part or all of the second $50,000,000. If payments are anticipated, the syndicate, at our request, will hold the money until we want it and allow 3% interest.

Omitting the price to be paid for the bonds, this is the whole of the plan.

The distinctive and controlling feature of this plan is the issue of convertible bonds, and at the threshold of our inquiry we are met with the question of the power of this company to issue such bonds, as the indenture of July 1, 1899, under which our present collateral trust four percent bonds are issued, makes no provision for the issue of convertible bonds.

It has long been laid down by text writers, supported by numerous decisions, that in the absence of special enabling statutes authorizing a different disposition of its stock, a corporation, upon the issue of new stock, must distribute that stock pro-rata to its then existing stockholders. In other words, each stockholder, upon the issue of new stock, has the right to take a proportionate part thereof. Some cases have gone so far as to hold that the stockholders are entitled to have this new stock at par. Such is not the rule in New York, according to the recent case of Stokes vs. Continental Trust Co., 91 N. Y. Sup., 239. But it would seem to be the law in that state that a stockholder is entitled to take his pro-rata share of new stock at the same price it may be offered to other stockholders or to others.

This is a general rule of law and subject to exception. For example, it would not apply in case of the purchase of specific property for stock, where the corporation is authorized to issue stock for other consideration than money; nor would it apply in the case of the conversion of bonds into stock, if the corporation is authorized to issue convertible bonds. Other cases may be imagined in which the rule would not apply.

But the rule would make strongly against the right of a corporation to issue convertible bonds unless specifically authorized, except in cases like the one mentioned below (this company having in the treasury of The American Bell Telephone Company $27,000,000 of its old stock which can be disposed of by our directors as they see fit).

The Stock Corporation Law, section 2, in empowering stock corporations (among them telephone companies) to issue bonds and secure the same by mortgage, requires the consent of the holders of not less than two-thirds of the capital stock of the corporation, and provides that the directors, under such regulations as they may adopt and when authorized by such consent (i. e. of the holders of two-thirds of the capital stock), may confer on the holder of any debt or obligation secured by such mortgage the right to convert the principal thereof, after two and not more than twelve years from the date of the mortgage, into stock of the corporation. This is the only New York statute upon this subject affecting this company.

The application of the above to the plan in question is not difficult. So far as the first $35,000,000 of the bonds is concerned it would not be necessary to issue new stock in order to enable this company to perform its covenant of conversion. The $27,000,000 of stock now held by The American Bell Telephone Company would be ample and available for the purpose. But inasmuch as further new stock would be needed to carry out the remaining features of the plan, it would hardly seem necessary to draw upon the stock held by The American Bell Telephone Company; for all the stock required could be authorized by one vote of our stockholders.

Is action by the stockholders necessary? Not for the first $35,000,000, because the $27,000,000 of stock needed for the purpose of conversion are within the control of the board of directors. But we are of the opinion that it would be required for the remaining issues for the reasons above given and for the further reason that such is the express requirement of the enabling statute. The very fact that it was thought necessary to make such an enabling statute would create a presumption that such power did no otherwise exist.

We are concerned with the question of power to issue convertible bonds and not with that of policy, although it might be worth while to consider whether, if the power exists, it is expedient to issue, without consulting the stockholders, so great an amount of convertible bonds as is contemplated by the plan as a whole, with the possible attendant issue of so large a block of stock.

THE PLAN IN DETAIL

Examining the plan in detail, we find that at first an issue of $15,000,000 of our bonds is contemplated, to run ten years instead of until 1920, the date of payment of our collateral trust four per cent bonds. Can these short term bonds be issued under the indenture of trust dated July 1, 1899? That indenture provides for the issue of bonds, all to be substantially of the tenor therein set forth, except that bonds bearing a less rate of interest than that specified in the form given in the indenture may be issued thereunder. The exception of the rate of interest would of itself indicate that all other provisions of the bond are to remain unchanged and that the time of payment can not be changed. It is at least doubtful if bonds of a shorter period can be included thereunder by agreement with the trustee, as all the bonds already issued would have an interest in the terms under which the later bonds are to be issued. If short term bonds are issued a failure to pay these bonds at maturity would be a default under which all the securities of the trust might be sold and must be sold at the request of one-fourth in interest of the bondholders. This is a radical change in the plan of the trust established by that indenture.

We take it that the $35,000,000 of bonds required by section (b) of the plan could be our regular collateral trust four per cent bonds if desired. As stated above the directors have within their control the required amount of stock—that now in the treasury of The American Bell Telephone Company. Bonds in the regular form provided by the indenture could be issued, and appended to each bond a separate covenant on the part of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to make the conversion. If the conversion were made, the bonds when surrendered under the terms of the conversion would come back into the possession of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. If the instrument containing the covenant for conversion was not stamped on the bonds but made in a separate instrument appended to the bonds, it might be removed from the bonds and the bonds reissued. But it is to be noted that the amount of collateral once placed in the hands of the Old Colony Trust Company, Trustee, to secure these $35,000,000 bonds, must always remain in its hands and cannot be withdrawn even if it be thought desirable to cancel them. Indeed the bonds themselves must, if they are to be used, remain outstanding. New bonds cannot be substituted for them, except under the provision for mutilated bonds, in the first paragraph of the indenture.

As stated above, it would probably be found more desirable, if convertible bonds in greater amount than $35,000,000 are to be issued, to issue them all under a new indenture instead of issuing $35,000,000 under the indenture of July 1, 1899, and the balance under a new indenture. The indenture of July 1, 1899, as stated above, makes no provision for an issue of convertible bonds.

BUSINESS CONSIDERATIONS

There is one serious business objection to the adoption of the convertible bond feature of this plan. The bonds, when placed upon the market, being of a greater value, would to a large extent lessen the demand for our collateral trust bonds, as the market would undoubtedly give preference to the convertible bonds. This would be an important fact for those of our present bondholders who may wish to dispose of their bonds.

Undoubtedly we need not, in our policy of financing, limit ourselves to our own serious detriment in order to protect those who have heretofore purchased our previous issues of bonds, but we should bear in mind, in deciding upon a policy, that we must ourselves necessarily be in the market to sell further issues of our collateral trust bonds; because in May 1907 $25,000,000 of these bonds will be released by the payment of the $20,000,000 of notes for which they are now held as collateral. In July 1908 the bonds of The American Bell Telephone Company will be payable, thereby making the collateral theretofore held for such bonds available for the issue of $10,000,000 of our collateral trust bonds. As stated above, this collateral having once been deposited with the trustee under the indenture cannot be withdrawn; and consequently this company will have $35,000,000 of bonds which it must sell in order to avail itself of the assets deposited under that indenture.

It would, therefore, seem to be highly desirable, as a business proposition, not to issue convertible bonds if it can be avoided, as these $35,000,000 bonds would be available in any scheme which did not require the issue of convertible bonds.

AVAILABLE ASSETS

Are we in a position to make a contract according to this plan?

The stocks and bonds which this company possesses, including what we are to receive within a short time, stand on our books at-----	$143, 000, 000
Of these there have already been deposited with the Old Colony Trust Company under the indenture of July 1, 1899, (the value here stated being that at which they stand on our books)-----	66, 000, 000
Balance-----	77, 000, 000
Of this the following are not available for deposit under that indenture:
Western T. & T. Co. (because the indenture of trust does not permit the deposit of the stock of this company, as it is not a licensee)-----	$13, 000, 000
Certain stocks of struggling companies, like the Cent. N. Y., Cent. Union, N. Y. & Penn., and Ches. & Pot., which should be kept in hand for the future financing of these companies-----	7, 500, 000
	20, 500, 000
Leaving a balance of-----	56, 500, 000
If a new indenture is to be prepared, there may be added to this the following:
Western T. & T. Co. preferred-----	$12, 000, 000
Real Estate-----	2, 250, 000
Long Line Construction-----	31, 000, 000
So. Bell Indebtedness, say-----	10, 000, 000
Other notes, say-----	4, 000, 000
	59, 250, 000
	115, 750, 000

There is, in addition to the above notes, the notes of the above mentioned struggling companies amounting to about $10,000,000 but these notes, for the reason above stated, should, if possible, be kept within the control of this company.

In order to issue the $100,000,000 of bonds above called for, if a margin equivalent to the margin provided for in the present indenture of trust be called for, $133,333,333 of assets would be required therefor. The assets in hand would hardly be sufficient to furnish this amount of security, not to speak of security for the $50,000,000 of further bonds on which the syndicate is by the plan to have an option. For this latter $50,000,000 provision must be made with securities that will be obtained in the future. Consequently the option on this further $50,000,000 should not be available before the expiration of several years from date.

It is to be noted in this connection that the company has cash in hand sufficient to pay all its obligations until the current Summer; that for the two years succeeding, including the payment of the $20,000,000 of notes maturing in May 1907, the probable requirements of the company will not be much, if any in excess, of $70,000,000; and that upon the payment of the above notes $25,000,000 in bonds will be in hand for the future financing of the company.

RESULT OF PLAN

If, under the above plan, the bonds net this company 89 (90 with, say, 1% for expenses) and the option to take the stock is exercised at the expiration of three years from date, the transaction would be equivalent to the sale of the stock in three years at $115.70 (that is, 89% of 130) with a payment meanwhile by this company of about 4½% per annum for the money; or, to state the transaction in another way, it would be equivalent to a sale of the stock at 130 and a payment meanwhile by us of 8% per annum on the money. If the option was exercised at the end of eight years, it would be equivalent to about 5¼% for the money, and the rate would increase as if the option were exercised earlier. The purchaser is free to take the stock or not according to the state of the market.

CONCLUSIONS

Our conclusions are, that

(1) It would be undesirable, from a business point of view, to issue convertible bonds.

(2) In order to issue convertible bonds above $35,000,000, consent of two-thirds of the stockholders would be required, and this would be difficult to obtain.

(3) It is much more desirable to issue bonds under the present indenture of trust, for the present needs of the company, up to, say, a total of $100,000,000. If more than $100,000,000 of bonds are to be issued, it might be well to consider whether it is not advisable to make an issue of bonds under another indenture of trust which would fall due at some other date, as the amount falling due in 1929 would otherwise be excessive and probably burdensome for the company to finance at one time.

(4) Short time bonds (that is to say, payable in ten years) cannot be issued under the present indenture.

(5) We doubt the expediency of financing the company for so long a period of time as the proposed plan contemplates, especially as it would have the effect of tying up our assets and of rendering more difficult the use of them in the financing, consolidation, and development of our sub-companies.

(6) In preference to the plan under consideration, we should recommend the issue this year of a limited amount of stock and bonds, say, one in ten of stock to present stockholders and $15,000,000 in bonds to be sold to bankers. Of course it would be preferable to finance for a year or two more if a satisfactory arrangement can be made through a syndicate. A plan for marketing abroad stock or stock and bonds would be very desirable.

To our minds there is another risk in the proposed plan which should be had in mind. If a bankers syndicate should be formed under the proposed plan, who should pool their bonds or place them in trust, the trust so formed, by exercising the option given for the conversion of bonds, would have the power to acquire so near an absolute controlling interest in this company as practically to control the whole assets of the company, which they could use for any schemes of financing that they saw fit. In short, having nearly one-half of the entire issued capital stock of the company, they could consolidate this company with other companies, or make any other arrangement in regard to its future financing that they saw fit. This is a great and extremely valuable option and is equivalent, until the bonds are distributed or sold to the public, to a surrender of the powers of management by the present officers and stockholders to a body of bankers who may work to the disadvantage of the present stockholders in the promotion of other schemes of consolidation.

We cannot see in the present condition of the company any urgency which calls for a method of financing so drastic as this plan.

Respectfully,

GEO. V. LEVERETT,
THOMAS SHERWIN,
WM. R. DRIVER.

The foregoing plan assumes that the convertible bonds to be issued thereunder will not be offered to our stockholders. We understand that it is now proposed to modify this plan by making an offer of these bonds to our stockholders. This would remove one of the serious legal objections to the plan. It would not, however, give authority to the directors to offer the Fifty Millions, on which it is proposed to give the syndicate an option, that is to say, the third Fifty Millions of the plan, because there is not sufficient stock at the disposal of the directors to make such a contract. All of the other objections to the plan as stated in the foregoing opinion still subsist. In addition, if say, One Hundred Millions were to be offered to our stockholders at one time the question of the good faith of the offer would be at once raised, inasmuch as it couldn't be fairly expected that our stockholders would be in a position to take so large a block at once.

Respectfully,

GEO. V. LEVERETT,
THOMAS SHERWIN,
WM. R. DRIVER.

[Source: President's file 17614.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-10

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

FEBRUARY 15, 1905.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
Broad and Wall Streets, New York City.

DEAR SIRS: We find so many practical and technical difficulties in the scheme suggested in our conference last Friday, that it will be some time before we shall be in a position to take the matter up on its merits. Absolutely no time will be lost in making such investigations as are necessary to a proper consideration of the plan.

I shall hope to call on Mr. Steele some time Friday, to talk with him a few minutes about some of the legal difficulties.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book IV.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-11

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

(Handwritten:) P. F. File. 6/3/08. A. M.

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, Feb. 15, 1905.

Private

DEAR MR. FISH: I am beginning to think that we ought to raise the necessary money by the sale of four per cent collateral bonds without the conversion clause. We surely can find some one who will buy them at a reasonable price. The other proposition is intricate and uncertain, and might lead to a great deal of trouble. I write you about it now, thinking that you might want to intimate to the people in New York that some of your people do not look with favor on their plan, but of course do as you think best about this.

If you wish to talk with me on the telephone you can call me up at the Senate any time after 11 o'clock tomorrow or Friday, and at the Arlington Hotel previous to that or in the evening.

Very sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE.

Mr. F. P. FISH,
15 Dey Street, New York, N. Y.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-12

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

FEBRUARY 20, 1905.

JOHN I. WATERBURY, Esq.,

Manhattan Trust Company, Wall & Nassau Streets, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. WATERBURY: Knowing the deep interest you have in securing an arrangement by which our financial matters may be adjusted for a long time, I regret to say that the Executive Committee has determined that it is not wise for us to consider at present the comprehensive scheme of financing submitted to us by Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company and Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Company at our recent interview. I have so notified those two firms.

There are certain practical and legal difficulties in the way of dealing with the matter on broad lines at the present time which may ultimately be eliminated but which now seem to us controlling.

We are submitting to a number of banking houses which have expressed an interest in our securities a memorandum copy of which I enclose.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

(Enclosure)

[Source: Private Letter Book IV.]

FEBRUARY 20, 1905.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,

Broad and Wall Streets, New York City.

DEAR SIR: Our Executive Committee has given careful consideration to the proposition which you and your associates made to us a week ago last Saturday for the purchase from our Company of certain securities to be issued by it.

The Committee has decided that at the present time it is not expedient for the Company to enter into such a comprehensive scheme of financing as that suggested, on the lines proposed.

Thanking you for the pains you have taken in this matter, I remain,

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book IV.]

FEBRUARY 20, 1905.

GEORGE F. BAKER, Esq.,

First National Bank,

4 Wall Street, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. BAKER: After most careful consideration our Executive Committee has determined that we can not take up at present negotiations on the lines suggested by Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company and Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Company at our recent interview. There are practical and legal difficulties in the way which seem to us, for a time at least, to be controlling.

I enclose a copy of a memorandum that we are submitting to a number of banking houses which have intimated a desire to consider any issue of securities that we might make about this time.

I shall hope to see you in New York at an early date.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH,
President.

(Enclosure)

[Source: Private Letter Book IV.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-13

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

Aug. 14, 1905.

DEAR MR. WINSOR: In view of my understanding with my Executive Committee that the entire financial question should go over until fall, I am not sure that I am at liberty to go so far into the facts and figures with you as you would like, as per your suggestion at the Exchange Club today. At any rate, I shall have to bring the question before my Committee.

You will remember that I said, after my return from California, that I saw no reason why you and I should not talk over your general plan or thought on the subject (provided we could do so without prejudice or any danger of incurring the slightest obligation) for such preliminary consideration would make the work in the fall, if we take it up, more easy. Dealing with the "facts and figures" as you suggest would go far towards instituting negotiations and a possible approach to a committal. This, of course, must be avoided.

If you feel that you can not tell me the general nature of your plan, without going into the figures, it seems to me most probable that everything will have to go over till fall, as I doubt if my Committee would support me in taking action now, which might be inconsistent with our conclusion to do nothing at present. I should have said all this to you this noon but my mind did not work quickly enough.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) F. P. FISH.

ROBERT WINSOR, Esq.

[Source: Private Letter Book IV.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-14

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

WALL STREET, CORNER NASSAU, NEW YORK,
November 21st, 1905.

DEAR MR. FISH: If you will pardon a running comment which occurs to Mr. Baker and myself after reading over the proposed circular to the stockholders, you will, I think, have a better notion as to how we are impressed in our efforts to judge of the draft from the point of view of the stockholder, who, after all, is the person we desire to reach.

The statement as to the business and operations of the Company might, we think, be followed by the further statement that the companies are gaining in those portions of the country in which they have continuously prospered etc. etc., omitting any reference to conditions which are generally known to exist.

This followed by a description of the company's investments and advances, and by the statement that in order to meet the continual increasing demands for a comprehensive and national service such as only this company can give, requires constant development of facilities and further outlay.

A statement of the present amount of the issued capital upon which dividends are paid, and a short table which will show at a glance the outstanding bonds and debenture notes of all kinds, including The American Bell Telephone Company's bonds.

The increased requirements of the company have heretofore been met by issues of stock or of debentures, or by the issue of debenture notes.

The development of the company has now reached a stage when the Directors believe that the interests of the stockholders will be best conserved by authorizing another form of security that will enable the company to negotiate advantageously for additional moneys that are required to meet the enormously increasing business of the company, so that it may be prepared to meet market conditions as they occur, and provide for financing the Company for an extended period should it be found practicable to do so.

The Directors believe that in addition to the right to secure money by the further issue of stock and of its four per cent. collateral bonds, they should be authorized to negotiate for the issue and sale of convertible bonds as the money for the necessary development of the business could probably be obtained at a better rate than if the Company was confined to the forms of financing to which it has heretofore been limited.

While the present financial condition of the Company is sufficient for all its purposes until well into 1906, the Directors nevertheless are of the opinion that action should be taken upon the recommendation in order that the stockholders may derive every advantage in securing money for the future purposes of the Company.

I trust we have met your request as desired, and that if we can be of further service you will not hesitate to command us.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN I. WATERBURY.

F. P. FISH, Esq.,
Pres't. Amer. Tel. & Tel. Co., Boston, Mass.

(Enclosure.)

[Source: President's file 15941.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-15

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that the undersigned, stockholder in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, does hereby constitute and appoint Alexander Cochrane, Nathaniel Thayer, John I. Waterbury and William R. Driver, attorneys of the undersigned, with power of substitution to each, for and in the name of the undersigned to vote upon all stock of the undersigned in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at the special meeting of the stockholders of said Company to be held on Thursday, the twenty-first day of December, 1905, for the purpose of acting upon the question of authorizing the issue of convertible bonds, and at any adjournment of said meeting, with all the powers the undersigned would possess if personally present. A majority of such of said attorneys as shall be present and shall act at the meeting (or if only one shall be present and act, then that one) shall have and may exercise all of the powers of all of said attorneys hereunder.

DECEMBER , 1905.

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
No. 15 Dey Street, New York, March 12, 1901.

Enclosed please find notice of the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of this Company.

It is important that your stock be represented at this meeting, in order that the presence of a quorum may be ensured.

A blank form of proxy is enclosed, which, if you cannot be present in person, you are requested to sign and send to some one in your confidence for use, or to William R. Driver, 125 Milk Street, Boston, if that be more convenient. If sent to Mr. Driver, the proper United States Internal Revenue stamp will be affixed and duly cancelled by him.

A stamped envelope is enclosed for use, if you choose to send the proxy here.

CHARLES EUSTIS HUBBARD, Secretary.

[Subject File No. 012.11. Treas. Dept. A. T. & T. Co., Inv. C. Augat.]

[Subject File No. 012, Treasury Dept. A. T. & T. Co., Inv. C. Augat.]

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That I, the undersigned Stockholder in the AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY, do hereby appoint _____ true and lawful Attorney, with power of substitution, for me and in my name to vote at the Annual Meeting of the stockholders in said Company, to be held in New York, March 26, 1901, or at any adjournment thereof with all the powers I should possess if personally present.

March _____, 1901.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-16

[From files of American Telephone and Telegraph Company]

DECEMBER 6, 1905.
P. F. 15923

Personal

CHARLES H. DAVIS, Esq.,
25 Broad Street, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. DAVIS: Your letter of December 5 comes to hand today. I am very glad to hear from you and if you care to call on me in New York next Tuesday at my office 15 Dey Street, I should like to talk the situation over with you.

It does not seem to me wise at the present time that we should commit ourselves to offering to the stockholders any convertible bonds that may be issued, for the market conditions might be such that the most desirable trade possible for the Company and the stockholders would be one that could not give the stockholders the opportunity to subscribe for the bonds.

My own belief however is that if we ever issue such bonds, the conditions are likely to be such that an offer to the stockholders would be wise and proper.

Of course you understand that we have no plans for financing at the present time and there are no negotiations whatever looking to the sale or issue of such bonds. We simply concluded that it would help the Company very much to have this form of financing open to it and therefore the Directors ask for the requisite authority.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, *President.*AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY, SPECIAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS, DECEMBER 21, 1905

Dec. 21, 1905.

"Resolved, That the Directors be and they are hereby authorized to issue from time to time, when and as it may be necessary, for the transaction of the business of the Company, or for the exercise of its corporate rights, privileges, or franchises, or for any other lawful purpose of its incorporation, convertible bonds of the Company, not exceeding, in the aggregate, one hundred and fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) in such denominations, at such rate of interest and for such periods of time as they may determine, and they are hereby authorized to confer upon the holders of such bonds the right to convert the principal thereof, after two and not more than twelve years from the date of such bonds, into stock of the corporation at such rate, not less than par, as the Directors may fix, and under such regulations as they may adopt."

EXHIBIT No. 1659-17

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

DECEMBER 15, 1905.

Personal.

W. L. PUTNAM, Esq.,
60 State Street, Boston.

MY DEAR MR. PUTNAM: I trust that we are to have the support of the Lowell stock at the special stockholders' meeting in New York. I write this because I observe that the proxy has not yet come in.

The proxies generally are coming in, and the more I think the matter over, and the more I hear of the views of those whose opinion is of value, the more thoroughly satisfied I am that the Directors should have the power for which they ask.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 41.]

DECEMBER 15, 1905.

P. F. 15,961

" 15,988

GEORGE BARCLAY MOFFAT, Esq.,
5 Nassau Street, New York City

MY DEAR MR. MOFFAT: I regret extremely that I was unable to see you in New York this week, as I intended. I had so much to do that was unexpected that I did not have the opportunity to communicate with you.

I sincerely hope that we are to have your support in getting, at our meeting next Thursday, the power to issue convertible bonds.

The matter has received most careful consideration, and we are all satisfied that if this additional authority is given to the Directors it will be to the advantage of the stockholders and the Company.

I am not able at this moment to put my hand on the letter from you which I received a few days ago, and I should thank you very much if you would write me again upon receipt of this, telling me exactly what is your attitude and giving me the opportunity of writing you at greater length if you are not entirely satisfied to advise those with whom you come in contact to act affirmatively with reference to the proposition that will come before the meeting.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

(Handwritten.) Gov. Crane is trying to see you this afternoon or tomorrow morning to talk the matter over with you.

[Source: President's Letter Book 41.]

Mr. FISH: Mr. Driver telephoned from New York just now (11:55 A. M.) to say that Marsden J. Perry had not sent in his proxy (3,750 shares), and that Francis A. Cranston, Providence, had withdrawn his (1,200 shares). As this last seems to indicate a change of mind you may want to take notice of it.

G. D. M.

December 15, 1905.

[Source: President's file 15947.]

DECEMBER 15, 1905.

P. F. 15,947

MARSDEN J. PERRY, Esq.,
Providence, R. I.

MY DEAR MR. PERRY: I trust that you are in favor of giving the Directors of the Company the power to issue convertible bonds, and that you will either be present at the meeting or send us your proxy.

If you have any doubt as to the advisability of having the Directors in a position where they can negotiate for the issue of convertible bonds, I shall be glad if you will do me the favor to give me a chance to talk the matter over with you.

Mr. Francis A. Cranston, of Providence, who sent in his proxy, has withdrawn it. I should be very sorry if this meant that he disapproved of the plan.

Perhaps you will take the trouble to call me on the telephone at your convenience.

The proxies are coming in well, and, as far as I can judge, those whose opinion I most value believe with me that the Directors should have the power to negotiate for the issue of convertible bonds if conditions are favorable to that sort of security.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 41.]

(Stamped:) Received Dec. 19, 1905 A. B. T. Co.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
No. 15 Dey Street, New York, N. Y., Dec. 16, 1905.

Mr. JOSEPH S. FAY, JR.,
31 State St., Rm. 406, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: For the purpose of the special meeting of stockholders called for Thursday, December 21st, it is necessary that two thirds of the capital stock should act.

Your proxy has not been received.

124491—40—pt. 23—22

If the proposition meets your approval, and if you do not expect to be present at the meeting, will you kindly execute and return the accompanying proxy?

As the time is short, I shall be glad if you can find it convenient to give this your early attention. (Handwritten:) 5440 Shrs.

Respectfully yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

(Handwritten:)

DEAR SIR: I do not approve of the proposed issue because in the Resolution of the Directors they fail to state that the bonds shall first be offered to the stockholders. I consider this very important so shall not send proxy.

Yours truly,

J. S. FAY, JR.

(Handwritten:) 15947 Dec. 18, 1905. L. B. 41/372. See L. B. 41/338.

MARSDEN J. PERRY

UNION TRUST COMPANY BUILDING

PROVIDENCE, R. I., December 16, 1905.

DEAR MR. FISH: I most heartily endorse your plan for the issue of convertible bonds, and supposed I had executed and sent my proxy long ago, but on my return from New York I find your letter, and the only inference is that I have neglected my "plain duty". I, unfortunately, have no influence with Mr. Cranston, or I would volunteer to see him and attempt to secure his proxy, but there are, you know, some men to whom success, even in a moderate degree is an offence.

Faithfully yours,

MARSDEN J. PERRY.

One enclosure.

(Handwritten:) File

OFFICE OF SETH LOW

30 East 64th Street, New York

DECEMBER 18th, 1905.

DEAR SIR: I have received a second copy of the circular of your Company, dated November 29th, 1905, and a second request for my proxy, to be used at the meeting of the Company to be held on the 21st inst. I am not sending my proxy, for the reason that I do not believe in the plan proposed.

Yours, very truly,

SETH LOW.

F. B. FISH, Esq.,

President of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.,

15 Dey Street, New York City.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-18

[From files of American Telephone and Telegraph Company]

JANUARY 27, 1906.

P. F. 16078

WILLIAM SALOMON, Esq.,

Messrs. William Salomon & Co., 25 Broad Street, New York.

MY DEAR MR. SALOMON: I was out of town when your telegram was received. Nothing has been done as yet, but the conditions are such that I must be very careful in all cases not to give any encouragement to any parties in the matter referred to.

I very much appreciate your continued interest in our financial affairs, and it would give me great pleasure to be in a position to utilize your very efficient organization and capacity; but there are innumerable considerations that must be taken into account, and it is entirely impossible for me to say what can or can not be done.

Thanking you for your telegram, I remain,

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 42.]

(Handwritten:) 16078. Jan. 30, 1906. LB 42/95. See LB 42/35, 38.
 (Handwritten:) File 6/3/08 A. A. M.

WILLIAM SALOMON & Co.

BANKERS

25 Broad Street New York

JAN. 29, 1906.

Mr. F. P. FISH,

President, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Boston.

DEAR SIR: I beg to confirm telegrams exchanged between us and receipt this morning of your kind letter of January 27th, for which accept my best thanks.

I shall be much obliged if you will let me know whether you are going to be in New York within the next few days, so that I might have an interview with you; or if you are not going to be here, whether you would permit me to send one of my partners to Boston to have a talk with you in respect to the matter referred to.

I understand from your telegram and letter that the matter is still open, and I would like to learn whether it may be possible to allow me to make for myself, associated with a satisfactory group, a competitive offer. Your policy has always been that of allowing competitive tenders to be made and I do not understand from your letter that it is your intention to follow a different policy in this instance.

I am

Yours truly,

W. SALOMON.

S. B.

JANUARY 30, 1906.
P. F. 16078

WILLIAM SALOMON, Esq.,

Messrs. William Salomon & Co., 25 Broad Street, New York.

MY DEAR MR. SALOMON: Your letter of January 29 comes to hand this morning.

I shall be in New York early next week—probably Tuesday—and should of course be glad to see you, or any representative of yours at any time.

As you assume, the matter is still open, but I am not at present in a position to state whether or not we shall be in a position to allow competitive tenders, as has been the case heretofore.

In former years I should have given the same answer up to the time when our policy was determined for the particular case, for I am satisfied that each time you must deal with the existing situation on its merits.

While, therefore, I should be very glad to talk the matter over with your representative, I should feel bound to refrain from committing myself in the slightest degree to any policy, until the time comes for action, when I shall be forced to adopt and adhere to some definite position.

I greatly appreciate your willingness to participate in our financial arrangements, and it would give me great pleasure to deal with your firm if matters took such a turn as to make it possible so to do. You undoubtedly recognize the complexities of my position, and I trust that you understand that all that I am saying is said in the most friendly spirit, but in view of the necessities of our business situation.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 42.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-19

[From files of American Telephone and Telegraph Company]

DECEMBER 16, 1905.
P. F. 15922

EDGAR SPEYER, Esq.,

Lothbury, London, England.

MY DEAR MR. SPEYER: I was very glad to receive your cablegram and to know that you are of the same mind as when I had the pleasure of talking with you last September.

Nothing can be or will be done in the way of financing, at any rate for a few weeks. I should be only too glad if, when the time came, it were possible to take the matter up on exactly the lines referred to in your cablegram. You will understand, however, that it may not be in our power to do this.

Meanwhile, nothing is being done, and the whole question is open for such action as shall seem best and most expedient.

Thanking you for communicating with me on the subject, I remain,
Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

(Handwritten:) P. F. File. 6/3/08. A. A. M.

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
January 27, 1906.

Personal.

Mr. F. P. FISH,
125 Milk Street, Boston.

DEAR MR. FISH:—Mr. Storrow called on me at the hotel last evening. From what he said I judged that he and his friends would be quite well satisfied with a two-thirds interest in the proposed syndicate providing Mr. Morgan would withdraw his objections to Mr. Speyer. I presume that he will make this known to you when he sees you. That being the case, Mr. Winsor ought to be able to induce Mr. Morgan to withdraw his objections. I will call you on the telephone Tuesday.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE

(Handwritten:) File. 6/3/08. A. A. M.

S-Mc

LEE, HIGGINSON & COMPANY,
44 State Street, Boston, February 1, 1906.

FREDERICK P. FISH, Esq.,
President, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
119 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: In order that there may be no misunderstanding about our position, I beg to say that, representing a syndicate formed by Messrs. Speyer & Co. of New York and ourselves, we would be glad to have an opportunity to bid on such new securities as the Telephone Company may contemplate issuing.

At present, we do not know sufficient details as to the character of the securities and the amount to be issued, to formulate an offer.

If the Company should desire us to consider the characteristics to be given the new securities, and to advise the Company as to our opinion, either with or without a bid, we shall be glad to do this.

If we should purchase an issue of securities from you, we should make an especial effort to interest European investors; and perhaps it may be of interest to you to know that we should have directly associated with us, and prepared to join with us in offering the securities abroad, among others, the following banking interests:

England (London): Speyer Brothers.

Holland (Amsterdam): Teixeira de Mattos Brothers.

North Germany (Berlin): Deutsche Bank.

South Germany (Frankfort-on-Main): Lazard Speyer-Ellissen.

We are ready to make an offer for these securities on short notice, if we are put in a position by the Company to do so.

Very truly yours,

LEE, HIGGINSON & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-20

THIS AGREEMENT, made this 8th day of February, 1906, between the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a corporation of the State of New York

(hereinafter called the Company), party of the first part, and J. P. Morgan & Company, Kuhn, Loeb & Company, Kidder, Peabody & Company and Baring Brothers & Company, Limited, (hereinafter called the Bankers), of the second part,

WITNESSETH:

The Company is about to make an issue of bonds amounting to one hundred and fifty millions dollars, dated March 1, 1906, payable to bearer, or if registered to the registered holder at the office or agency of the Company in New York, New York, or Boston, Massachusetts, in gold coin of the United States of America, of the present standard of weight and fineness, on the first day of March, 1936, with interest at the rate of four per centum per annum, payable at either of the offices or agencies aforesaid in like gold coin, semi-annually on the first days of March and September in each year, to the holders of the coupons thereto annexed, on presentation and surrender thereof; which bonds are to be convertible at the option of the holder into common stock of the Company at any time after three years and within twelve years from the date thereof at the rate of one share of stock for $140 of the principal of such bonds under suitable conditions. The bonds are to contain a provision that in case the Company shall at any time before the expiration of the period of convertibility issue, sell or permit to be sold, any stock in addition to the present stock outstanding in the hands of the public (amounting to $131,551,400) except in exchange for convertible bonds, the rate of conversion thereafter shall be determined by adding to the sum representing the value of said $131,551,400 of stock at $140. per share, the sums actually received in cash for all such additional stock issued or sold, not including stock issued for convertible bonds, and dividing the aggregate of such sums by the said 1,315,514 shares of present outstanding common stock, increased by the number of shares of such additional stock issued or sold, exclusive of the stock issued for convertible bonds. Both principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable without deduction for any tax or taxes which may be imposed by the laws of the United States of America, or of any State, county or municipality therein, and which the Company may be required to pay or deduct therefrom.

They are to contain a further provision that they may be redeemable by the Company at any time after eight years from the date thereof at 105 per cent. and accrued interest, on giving notice of such intention to redeem by publication thereof for twelve weeks in two newspapers of the City of New York and the City of Boston, Massachusetts, and also in London, and, if requested by the Bankers, in two Continental centres. They shall be redeemable in whole, or from time to time in part, and if in part the bonds to be redeemed shall be drawn by lot in the usual manner.

Whenever such right to redeem shall be exercised the holder of the bonds to be redeemed shall have the privilege of converting the same in accordance with the terms of the bonds at any time (not later than March 1, 1918) up to thirty days before the day of redemption.

The bonds are to contain a provision for the registration of the principal thereof, in New York City and Boston, Massachusetts, and for the certification thereof, by some Trust Company; and a provision relieving the officers, directors and stockholders of the Company from any liability of any kind with respect thereto.

It is therefore agreed by and between the parties hereto as follows:

FIRST. The Company agrees to sell to the Bankers, and the Bankers agree to purchase from the Company, One hundred million dollars of such issue at the price of 95 and accrued interest; less a commission of 2½ per cent. on the par value of said bonds, said bonds to be taken and paid for as follows:

Bonds of the par value of $10,000,000 on each of the following dates: April 15th, 1906, July 15th, 1906, October 15th, 1906, January 15th, 1907; bonds of the par value of $30,000,000 on April 15th, 1907; and bonds of the par value of $10,000,000 on the following dates: July 15th, 1907, October 15th, 1907, January 15th, 1908.

The Bankers are to have the right to demand the delivery of said $100,000,000 of bonds in any sums prior to the date or dates so specified, on paying therefor the purchase price.

If the engraving and printing of said bonds shall not have been completed before the day of delivery, receipts shall be issued therefor as a temporary substitute.

SECOND. In consideration of said agreement of purchase, the Bankers shall have the option to purchase the balance of said issue, amounting to $50,000,000, until October 1st, 1908, at 98½ and accrued interest, less a commission of 2½ per cent. upon the par value of the bonds, but in the event of the exercise of such option prior to January 2nd, 1908, the said bonds shall not be delivered until that day.

THIRD. The Company shall not issue any unsecured bonds or notes in addition to said issue of convertible bonds (except obligations payable in less than one year and to an aggregate amount not exceeding $10,000,000), unless there be paid into the treasury of the Company additional money from the sale of stock, in which case the Company may issue additional unsecured bonds or notes to an amount equal to the money so paid into the treasury of the Company. This provision shall be included in the bonds if the Bankers so elect.

FOURTH. If the Company shall hereafter execute any mortgage on its property and franchise, or any new collateral trust indenture covering collateral now owned by the Company or acquired with the proceeds of said bonds, it shall provide for the security of the convertible bonds herein provided for on equal terms with any other obligations secured thereby; but this shall not prevent the issue of collateral trust four per cent. bonds, under the present indenture securing them, to the amount now permitted thereby in view of the amount of collateral already deposited.

FIFTH. If at any time ninety-five per cent. of said bonds shall have been redeemed or converted, the restrictions of the two preceding paragraphs of this agreement shall cease to be operative.

SIXTH. The liability hereunder of each of said four firms of bankers shall be limited to one-third of the aggregate obligations of the Bankers.

SEVENTH. The said bonds and the trust indenture, as to their form and legality, shall be subject to the approval of the counsel of the respective parties.

Dated, February 8th, 1906.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
By F. P. FISH, President.
J. P. MORGAN & Co.
KUHN, LOEB & Co.
KIDDER PEABODY & Co.
BARING BROTHERS & Co., LTD.
by KIDDER PEABODY & Co.

FEBRUARY 13, 1906.

Messrs: J. P. MORGAN & COMPANY,
KUHN, LOEB & COMPANY,
KIDDER, PEABODY & COMPANY,
BARING BROTHERS & COMPANY, LIMITED.

GENTLEMEN: Referring to the agreement dated February 8, 1906, between this Company and yourselves, touching the issue by this Company of Thirty-Year Convertible Four Per Cent Gold Bonds, dated March 1, 1906, and amounting to $150,000,000, I understand that you have agreed that article Third of said agreement shall be modified to read as follows:

"THIRD, During the term of said bonds the Company shall not have outstanding at any one time unsecured bonds or notes in excess of $150,000,000 (except obligations payable in less than one year and to an aggregate amount not exceeding $10,000,000), unless there be paid into the treasury of the Company additional money from the sale of stock, in which case the Company may issue additional unsecured bonds or notes to an amount equal to the money so paid into the treasury of the Company. This provision shall be included in the bonds, if the Bankers so elect."

Will you kindly write me a letter confirming your agreement.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13, 1906.

THE AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your favor of even date herewith, we accept the modification therein proposed of our contract of February 8th, 1906, so that Paragraph Third of said contract shall read as follows:

"During the term of said bonds the Company shall not have outstanding at any time unsecured bonds or notes in excess of $150,000,000 (except obligations payable in less than one year and to an aggregate amount not exceeding $10,000,000), unless there be paid into the treasury of the Company additional money from the sale of stock, in which case the Company may issue additional unsecured bonds or notes to an amount equal to the money so paid into the treasury of the Company.

"This provision shall be included in the bonds if the Bankers so elect."

Yours truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
 KUHN, LOEB & Co.,
 KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
 BARING BROTHERS & Co., LT'D.,
 By KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-21

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY—CONVERTIBLE BONDS SYNDICATE

Referring to the Agreement between the undersigned and the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, dated February 8th, 1906, providing for the purchase from that Company of $100,000,000 face value of Four per cent. Convertible Gold Bonds and for an option upon $50,000,000 additional of such bonds, it is agreed between the undersigned that the business under said agreement is divided in the following proportions:

J. P. Morgan & Co., Twenty-five (25) per cent.

J. S. Morgan & Co., Five (5) per cent.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Twenty-two and one-half (22½) per cent.

Kidder, Peabody & Co., Twenty-five (25) per cent.

Baring Brothers & Co., Limited, Twenty-two and one-half (22½) per cent.

Dated, New York, February 14, 1906.

J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
 KUHN, LOEB & Co.,
 KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
 BARING BROTHERS & Co., LT'D.,
 By KIDDER, PEABODY & Co., Atty's in fact.

(Handwritten:) Accepted. J. S. Morgan & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-22

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

APPENDIX 10

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY CONVERTIBLE FOUR PER CENT GOLD BONDS SYNDICATE AGREEMENT FEBRUARY 15, 1906.

J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York; Kidder, Peabody & Co., Boston; Baring Brothers & Company (Limited), London.

AGREEMENT, made the fifteenth day of February, 1906, by and between J. P. MORGAN & COMPANY, KUHN, LOEB & COMPANY, KIDDER, PEABODY & COMPANY and BARING BROTHERS & COMPANY, Limited (hereinafter collectively called the "Bankers"), parties of the first part, and THE SUBSCRIBERS HERETO (hereinafter called, severally, "Subscribers," and, collectively, the "Syndicate"), parties of the second part:

WHEREAS, The American Telephone & Telegraph Company (hereinafter called the "Company") has made with the Bankers an agreement, whereby, among other things, the Company is to sell, and the Bankers are to purchase, upon the terms in said agreement provided, one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) face value of Convertible Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds of the Company of the issue described in the statement of the Company, dated February 12, 1906, of which a copy is annexed hereto; and

WHEREAS, the Subscribers desire to form a syndicate to purchase said bonds from the Bankers at 94½ per cent. of their face value together with accrued interest, said bonds to be paid for on the following dates, with the right to anticipate any of the payments, viz.:

$10,000,000	bonds	on	April 5, 1906,
$10,000,000	"	"	July 5, 1906,
$10,000,000	"	"	October 5, 1906,
$10,000,000	"	"	January 5, 1907,
$30,000,000	"	"	April 5, 1907,
$10,000,000	"	"	July 5, 1907,
$10,000,000	"	"	October 5, 1907,
$10,000,000	"	"	January 5, 1908.

Now, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and of their mutual promises, the parties hereto agree and the Subscribers severally agree, each with the others, and with the Bankers, as follows:

I. Each Subscriber shall indicate in his subscription hereto the total amount face value of convertible bonds for the purchase of which he is or shall be bound on account of the maximum Syndicate obligation to purchase $100,000,000 face value of convertible bonds at 94½ per cent. of their face value and accrued interest; and, to the extent of the purchase price of the bonds so indicated in his subscription, each Subscriber will make to the Bankers cash payment for the purposes herein indicated, when and as called for by the Bankers, without reference to the receipt or the possession by the Bankers or by the Subscribers of any of the said convertible bonds. The several Subscribers shall be called upon to make payments of cash, in respect of their several subscriptions, only ratably according to the several amounts thereof, but to the full extent of his own undertaking each Subscriber shall be so responsible regardless of performance or non-performance by any other Subscriber. In the same proportion each Subscriber shall be entitled to share in the benefits, and shall bear any loss, resulting to the Syndicate under this agreement, except as otherwise herein provided. Nothing in this agreement contained shall constitute the parties hereto partners, or shall render any of the Subscribers liable to contribute more than the amount of his subscription. Originals hereof shall be signed by the Bankers and retained by them, but counterparts may be signed by the Subscribers, and all shall be taken and deemed one original instrument.

II. In the same manner as other Subscribers, the Bankers may severally become Subscribers hereto; and, as such Subscribers, they shall be liable for all subscriptions by them made, and in all respects entitled to the same rights and benefits as any other Subscriber. The Bankers may severally purchase or be interested in the purchase of any of the convertible bonds herein mentioned, and may deal with the Syndicate in the same manner as other persons. Any Subscriber hereto may, on his own account, make any agreement with any other Subscriber or with any other person, syndicate or corporation. This agreement shall bind and benefit ratably, not only the parties hereto, but their respective successors, survivors, assigns, executors and administrators. All rights and powers of J. P. Morgan & Co., of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and of Kidder, Peabody & Co. hereunder shall vest in the copartnership firms now bearing those names, respectively, and in the successors thereof as from time to time constituted, without further act or assignment. Any of said Bankers may delegate any of their powers and authority under this agreement to any of the other Bankers. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as creating any trust or obligation whatsoever in favor of any person or corporation other than the Subscribers, nor any obligation in favor of the Subscribers except as herein expressly provided. The term "convertible bonds" whensoever herein used shall be deemed to include receipts or certificates issued for payments on account of the purchase price of such bonds.

III. Each Subscriber in his subscription hereto shall give an address, to which notices, calls or other communications may be sent; and any notice, call or other communication addressed to any Subscriber at the address so given, and either left at such address or mailed, shall be deemed actually given to such Subscriber, and shall be sufficient for all the purposes hereof. If any Subscriber shall fail so to furnish his address to the Bankers, he shall not be entitled to any notice of calls, or any other notice hereunder, and he shall be deemed to assent to any action of the Bankers. The Bankers may issue to the several Subscribers receipts in respect of payments made hereunder, of such tenor and form as they may deem suitable. Such receipts, and all rights and obligations hereunder of the respective Subscribers may be made transferable in such manner and on such terms and conditions as the Bankers may prescribe; but no transfer hereunder shall be valid unless assented to in writing by the Bankers, and, unless otherwise expressly provided in such assent, the transferor shall continue liable for the payment of the unpaid part of the transferred subscription until the same shall be fully paid.

IV. The Bankers, in their discretion, may release any Subscriber. In case any Subscriber shall fail to perform any of his undertakings hereunder, or shall be released by the Bankers, other Subscribers may be received to take the share of the Subscriber so failing to perform his undertakings or so released. In case of the failure of any Subscriber or his transferee to perform any of his undertakings hereunder as and when called for by them, the Bankers, on behalf of themselves and of the Syndicate shall have, and at their sole and exclusive option may exercise, the right to exclude such Subscriber or his transferee from all interest in or under the Syndicate; and, in their discretion, without any proceedings either at law or in equity, in such manner and on such terms as they shall deem expedient, they may, for the benefit of the Syndicate, dispose of such participation hereunder or of any interest or right of such Subscriber or of his transferee hereunder, and thereupon all interest and right of such defaulting Subscriber or his transferee hereunder shall cease and determine. At any public sale hereunder of any interest or right of any Subscriber or his transferee, the Bankers, or any party hereto, may purchase the same for their or his own benefit, without accountability; but notwithstanding any sale, whether public or private, the defaulting Subscriber shall be responsible to the Bankers for the benefit of the Syndicate for all damages resulting from any such failure on his part, not exceeding the amount unpaid on his subscription hereto with lawful interest.

V. The Bankers shall have full power, in their discretion, from time to time, to make with the Company any additional agreements, relating to the purchase and sale of the convertible bonds herein mentioned, as, in the exercise of their unlimited discretion, they may deem expedient, and also, from time to time, to modify and perform said agreement with the Company and any other agreements they may make with the Company hereunder, as they may deem expedient. The Bankers shall be under no responsibility in respect of the form or validity of the convertible bonds or of any receipts or certificates, nor for the delivery of bonds by the Company in exchange for any receipts or certificates which may be issued for payments on account of the purchase of bonds, nor for the performance of any agreement contained in any such receipts or certificates.

VI. The Bankers shall have authority, from time to time and at any time, to incur such expenses as they may deem proper in carrying out, or in endeavoring to carry out, this agreement, or in connection with the preparation, execution or examination of the securities which may be the subject of this agreement, or in doing any act or thing which they may deem to be in the interest of the Syndicate, and all such expenses shall constitute and shall be a prior charge in their favor upon any and all moneys and bonds, by them received or held hereunder. Any and all moneys by them received hereunder shall be held by them as Bankers in general account. They shall also have power and authority finally to fix and to pay all compensations of depositaries, brokers, agents and counsel, or others; and in the expense account may be included brokers' commissions to the Bankers or any of them on sales or purchases of bonds at the rate usually paid.

VII. The Bankers shall have full power, as in the exercise of their unrestricted discretion they shall deem to be for the best interests of the Syndicate, from time to time, during the life of the Syndicate, in such manner, upon such terms and for such prices as they shall deem expedient, to sell and dispose of any and all bonds that may be subject to this agreement. In case of any such sale the proceeds thereof shall become and be subject to this agreement; and, as managed, used and finally distributed by the Bankers under the provisions of this agreement, the same shall be accepted by the Syndicate in full and final discharge of any and all obligation and liability of the Bankers hereunder. During the life of the Syndicate the Bankers, in such manner, at such prices, on such terms and in such amounts as they may deem expedient, shall have power, for account of the Syndicate, to make purchases of the convertible bonds or receipts or certificates representing bonds or rights which may be accorded to stockholders to subscribe for bonds, and they may resell any such bonds, receipts, certificates or rights which they may have purchased; and, in their discretion, they may make any further undertakings of any kind with any persons concerning any such bonds, receipts, certificates or rights. They may apply towards any such purchases any sums realized from any sales of convertible bonds of the Company under any provision of this agreement; and they may make advances, or may procure loans, and may secure the same to such amounts and in such manner as from time to time they may deem expedient for any of the purposes of this agreement.

VIII. The Syndicate shall continue until July 1, 1907, unless sooner terminated by the Bankers, and it may be extended thereafter from time to time by the Bankers, in their discretion, but not beyond July 1, 1908. No Subscriber shall be entitled to receive any of the convertible bonds or the proceeds thereof, which may be subject to this agreement, until the termination of the Syndicate. In the meantime in their discretion, the Bankers may retain all or any of such convertible bonds or may deliver to any Subscriber his proportionate part thereof. In the latter case such Subscriber shall hold the same subject to sale by the Bankers, and shall return the same upon the call of the Bankers at any time before the termination of the Syndicate. No Subscriber shall, prior to the termination of the Syndicate, sell or contract for the sale of any of the convertible bonds subject hereto. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent any Subscriber or any of the Bankers from dealing in any manner with bonds not subject to the provisions of this agreement. The Bankers shall be the only and final judges as to whether at any time it is to the interest of the Syndicate to proceed further under this agreement; and, whenever they may deem expedient, they may abandon the objects contemplated by this agreement and all further proceedings hereunder. In such event all cash and convertible bonds by them received and then held for account of the Syndicate, and the proceeds of such bonds, shall remain charged with the payment of all expenses and liabilities by them incurred hereunder, and shall be applied, first, to the payment of any and all expenses incurred by the Bankers under any provision of this agreement, and, secondly, to the repayment to the Subscribers, ratably, of all amounts of such convertible bonds or cash held by the Bankers subject to this agreement (so far as the same may be sufficient for that purpose). After the complete performance of the entire obligation of the Syndicate hereunder, but not before the date set from time to time for the termination of the Syndicate as above provided, unless otherwise determined by the Bankers in the exercise of their unrestricted discretion, and upon surrender of the certificates and receipts issued hereunder by the Bankers, which surrender by any Subscriber shall constitute a final release and satisfaction of all his claims hereunder, the Syndicate shall be entitled to receive the profits of the purchase, use, sale and disposition of the convertible bonds which shall be or become subject to this agreement. The Bankers shall make no charge for their services hereunder, but shall be entitled to retain for themselves, without accountability to the Subscribers, the difference between the aggregate net price at which the Bankers under their said contract are to acquire said bonds from the Company and the aggregate price at which, under this agreement, the Syndicate is to receive bonds or the proceeds of bonds; the Bankers being entitled to retain also any other benefits accruing to them under their said contract with the Company.

IX. The Bankers shall be the sole managers of the Syndicate, and in behalf of the Syndicate they may make any and all arrangements, including the purchase or sale of any of the securities of the Company, and may perform any and all acts, even though not herein provided for, which in their opinion shall be or become necessary or expedient in order to carry out the purposes of this agreement, or to promote or to protect what they shall deem to be the best interests of the Syndicate. The enumeration of specific powers elsewhere in this agreement shall not be construed as in any way abridging the general powers by this article conferred upon or reserved to the Bankers. The Bankers shall not be liable under any of the provisions of this agreement nor for any matter connected therewith, except for good faith in performing the obligations by them herein expressly assumed; and no obligation not herein expressly assumed by them shall be deemed to be implied. In consideration of the irrevocable rights in them vested hereunder, and the promises of the several Subscribers, and upon the terms and conditions herein contained, the Bankers have become parties to, and in good faith will endeavor to consummate the purposes of, this agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Bankers, parties of the first part hereto, have subscribed originals hereof, and the parties of the second part have subscribed said originals or counterparts thereof, as of the day and year first above written.

J. P. MORGAN & Co.
 KUHN, LOEB & Co.
 KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.
 BARING BROTHERS & Co., LTD.
 By KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-23

[From files of American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Memorandum initialed by J. P. Morgan, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Robert Winsor, F. P. Fish, and W. M. Crane.]

with 10171

In investing, caring for and depositing the money received from the sale of bonds the company shall exercise all reasonable precaution, in consultation with the bankers and with their cooperation to deposit and use so much of it as it shall from time to time not require for the current purposes of its business, in such a way and in such places as not to disturb or disarrange money market conditions and the Company will seek to meet the reasonable suggestions of the Bankers in respect to the employment of the funds. It is understood that the bankers will not suggest deposits unless such deposits will receive interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum.

(Initialed:) J. P. M.; K. L. & Co.; R. W.; F. P. F.; W. M. C.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-24

100 Million 4% Convertible Gold Bonds Offered February 15, 1906

Syndicate Joint Allotments made by K. L. & Co. and J. P. M. & Co.	Bonds
American Exchange Natl Bank	175,000
Asiel & Co.	70,000
Adams Express Co.	150,000
Bank of British North America	70,000
Simon Borg & Co.	70,000
Blair & Co.	250,000
Borsswain & Co.	40,000
Bank of Montreal	100,000
J. S. Bache & Co.	150,000
Blake Bros. & Co.	150,000
George F. Baker	400,000
C. D. Barney & Co.	150,000
Brown Brothers & Co.	150,000
Bank of New York, N. B. A.	150,000
Bankers Trust Co.	150,000
George P. Butler & Bro.	120,000
Thomas Branch & Co.	250,000
Citizens Saving & Trust Co. at Cleveland	40,000
Cuyler Morgan & Co.	250,000
Commercial Natl Bank, Chicago	70,000
Central Trust Co.	500,000
Chase National Bank	150,000
Clark Dodge & Co.	70,000
Dominick & Williams	150,000
DeHaven & Townsend	40,000
A. G. Edwards & Sons, St. Louis	70,000
Equitable Trust Co.	120,000
Emanuel Parker & Co.	70,000
Fidelity Trust Co., Balti	40,000
A. B. Leach & Co.	120,000
Fifth Avenue Trust Co.	40,000
Fahnestock & Co.	70,000
H. C. Frick	200,000

100 Million 4% Convertible Gold Bonds Offered February 15, 1900—Continued

Syndicate Joint Allotments—Continued.

	Bonds
Harvey Fisk & Sons.....	3,300,000
Francis Brothers & Co., St. Louis.....	70,000
First National Bank, N. Y.....	5,000,000
First National Bank, Chicago.....	250,000
Guaranty Trust Co.....	100,000
Robert Garrett & Sons, Balti.....	70,000
H. P. Goldschmidt & Co.....	70,000
Goldman Sachs & Co.....	150,000
P. J. Goldbart & Co.....	200,000
Hanover National Bank.....	250,000
N. W. Halsey & Co.....	250,000
Herdelbach Ickelhurner & Co. ¹	350,000
Henderson & Co.....	75,000
Hudson Trust Co., Hoboken.....	120,000
A. A. Housmann & Co.....	100,000
E. H. Harriman.....	1,000,000
Hallgarten & Co.....	150,000
Herzfeld & Stern.....	150,000
Halle & Stieglitz.....	70,000
Industrial Trust Co., Providence.....	250,000
Kean Van Cortlandt & Co.....	150,000
Rudolph Keppler & Co.....	25,000
Knauth Nachod & Kuhne.....	120,000
Kountye Bros.....	300,000
Kingsley Mahon & Co.....	40,000
Kissell Kinnicutt & Co.....	120,000
Ladenburg Thalmann & Co.....	250,000
Lehman Bros.....	150,000
Liberty National Bank.....	150,000
Mackay & Co.....	200,000
Thos. L. Manson & Co.....	120,000
Maitland Coppell & Co.....	100,000
Merchants National Bank.....	70,000
Morton Trust Co.....	250,000
Mercantile Trust & Deposit Co., Baltimore.....	100,000
John Monroe & Co.....	70,000
Morristown Trust Co.....	70,000
Moore & Schley.....	120,000
Moffat & White.....	225,000
Morgan & Bartlett.....	70,000
Manhattan Trust Co.....	1,250,000
Robert H. McCurdy.....	70,000
E. Naumburg & Co.....	25,000
National Bank of Commerce, N. Y.....	500,000
Newport Trust Co., Newport, R. I.....	20,000
National City Bank.....	250,000
New York Trust Co.....	150,000
Plympton Gardiner & Co.....	150,000
Phenix National Bank.....	40,000
Potter Choate & Prentice.....	400,000
Probst Wetzlar & Co.....	120,000
Post & Flagg.....	40,000
Redmond & Co.....	150,000
John D. Rockefeller.....	2,500,000
Rhodes & Co.....	70,000
J. & W. Seligman & Co.....	400,000
J. S. Smithers & Co.....	350,000
Sternberger Sinn & Co.....	40,000
Edward Sweet & Co.....	70,000
Strong Sturgis & Co.....	50,000
Scholle Bros.....	70,000
Sutro Bros. & Co.....	70,000

¹ So in original.

100 Million 4% Convertible Gold Bonds Offered February 15, 1900—Continued

Syndicate Joint Allotments—Continued.

Bonds

William Salomon & Co.....	250,000
Standard Trust Co.....	70,000
John A. Stewart.....	70,000
Schafer Bros.....	40,000
Spencer Trask & Co.....	250,000
Title Guaranty & Trust Co.....	70,000
U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co.....	100,000
U. S. Trust Co.....	120,000
L. von Hoffmann & Co.....	500,000
Van Emburgh & Atterbury.....	150,000
Windsor Trust Co.....	100,000
Werner & Brown.....	40,000

In Philadelphia:

Brice Monges & Co.....	40,000
Thomas A. Biddle & Co.....	100,000
Bank of North America.....	70,000
Commercial Trust Co.....	70,000
Erwin & Co.....	40,000
Fourth Street National Bank.....	70,000
Farmers & Mechanics National Bank.....	100,000
George S. Fox & Sons.....	40,000
R. Glendenning & Co.....	70,000
Germantown Trust Co.....	70,000
Girard Trust Co.....	100,000
Newburger Bros. & Henderson.....	40,000
W. H. Newbold's Son & Co.....	40,000
Philadelphia National Bank.....	140,000
Philadelphia Trust Safe Deposit & Insurance Co.....	70,000
Saller & Stevenson.....	70,000
Winthrop Smith & Co.....	70,000
Toland Bros. & Co.....	70,000
Townsend Whelan & Co.....	70,000

Foreign:

Amsterdamsche Bank, Amsterdam.....	250,000
Banque de Paris et de Pays Bas, Paris.....	700,000
Baseler Handelsbank, Basel.....	70,000
Bank für Handel & Industrie, Berlin.....	350,000
Banque Federale, Zurich.....	100,000
Comptoir National, Paris.....	100,000
Commerz & Disconto Bank, Hamburg.....	100,000
Direction der Disconto Gesellschaft, London Agency.....	250,000
Dresdner Bank.....	1,400,000
Norddeutsche Bank in Hamburg.....	750,000
National Bank für Deutschland, Berlin.....	150,000
Societe Generale, Paris.....	250,000
Schweizensche Kredit Anstalt, Zurich.....	250,000
Swiss Bankverein.....	300,000
Von Speyr & Co., Basel.....	125,000
M. M. Warburg & Co., Hamburg.....	420,000

Total Joint List..... 35,170,000

J. P. M. & Co. List

Ackermann & Coles.....	50,000
Robert Bacon.....	100,000
Bank of California.....	800,000
Bertron Storrs & Griscom.....	50,000
W. N. Cohen.....	25,000
Columbia Trust Co.....	70,000
Citizens Central National Bank.....	100,000
Franklin Trust Co., Brooklyn.....	120,000
Harvey Fisk & Sons (See Joint List).....	200,000
First National Bank, Chicago (See Joint List).....	250,000
German American Insurance Co.....	100,000

100 Million 4% Convertible Gold Bonds Offered February 15, 1900—Continued

J. P. M. & Co. List—Continued.

	Bonds
Isaac W. Hellman.....	300,000
James H. Hoyt.....	150,000
Keech Loew & Co.....	70,000
D. P. Kingsley.....	20,000
Knickerbocker Trust Co.....	1,000,000
L. C. Ledyard.....	200,000
Col. C. W. Larned.....	7,000
M. Martin, Jr.....	50,000
E. R. Morse & Bro.....	250,000
Morgan, Harjes & Co.....	300,000
National Park Bank.....	150,000
Paine & Wilson.....	40,000
John D. Rockefeller (See Joint List).....	1,500,000
Arthur P. Sturgis.....	25,000
Francis L. Stetson.....	100,000
H. McK. Twombly.....	100,000
Union Trust Co. (See Joint List).....	150,000
L. C. Weir.....	50,000
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	3,588,000
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	4,915,000
Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	5,000,000
Kidder, Peabody & Co. for New England.....	25,000,000
J. S. Morgan & Co.....	2,000,000
London.....	18,000,000
Total Bonds.....	100,000,000

EXHIBIT No. 1659-25

FREDERICK P. FISH, President.

EDWARD J. HALL

THOMAS SHERWIN

CHARLES P. WARE

*Vice Presidents.*CHARLES EUSTIS HUBBARD, *Secretary.*WILLIAM R. DRIVER, *Treasurer.*AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY, Boston, January 7th, 1907.

CHARLES STEELE, Esq.,

% Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company,Wall & Broad Sts., New York City.

DEAR SIR: At the request of Mr. Fish I send herewith a copy of the two (2) agreements and of the memorandum between this Company and the Bankers touching the issue of notes and convertible bonds.

I have not been able to find Mr. Frederick B. Snow this afternoon and send on these papers to you without conference with him.

Yours very truly,

GEO. V. LEVERETT.

MEMORANDUM made this eighth day of January, 1907, between the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, (hereinafter called the Company), of the first part, and J. P. Morgan & Company, Kuhn, Loeb & Company, Kidder, Peabody & Company, and Baring Brothers & Company, Limited, (hereinafter called the Bankers), of the second part, to accompany an agreement of this date between the Company and the Bankers modifying the agreement between the parties hereto dated February 8, 1906.

As payments become due from the Bankers for the balance of the One hundred million dollars convertible bonds which have been purchased by them, the Company will at the request of the Bankers issue to the Bankers for said payments and in lieu of an amount of such bonds not exceeding $25,000,000, face value, notes of the Company to an amount equal to 89½ per cent of such face value of the said bonds, payable at such dates as the Bankers may request but not more than one year from their date; upon maturity of such notes the Bankers shall take and pay for the convertible bonds in lieu of which said notes may have been temporarily issued.

The net price to be paid by the Bankers for said notes shall be such a price that the actual cost to the Company of the money received, taking into account the respective rates of interest of the notes and bonds and the time that will elapse before their maturity, shall be the same as if the taking of the convertible bonds had not been postponed.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,

By F. P. FISH, President

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

KUHN, LOEB & Co.

KIDDER PEABODY & Co.

BARING BROS. & Co., LTD.

By KIDDER PEABODY & Co., Atty's.

THIS AGREEMENT made this eighth day of January, 1907, between the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a corporation of the state of New York, (hereinafter called the Company), of the first part, and J. P. Morgan & Company, Kuhn, Loeb & Company, Kidder, Peabody & Company, and Baring Brothers & Company, Limited, (hereinafter called the Bankers), of the second part,

WITNESSETH:

Referring to the agreement between the parties hereto dated February 8, 1906, as modified by letters dated February 13, 1906, in which the Bankers agree to purchase $100,000,000 convertible four per cent bonds of the Company dated March 1, 1906, out of a total issue of $150,000,000, and under which they have the option to purchase the balance of said issue amounting to $50,000,000, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. The Bankers agree that a substantial amount of the convertible bonds purchased by them under the agreement of February 8, 1906 shall, within sixty days, be offered for public subscription and be distributed.

2. Said agreement of February 8, 1906, as modified, is further modified by reducing the option price for said balance of said issue of convertible bonds, amounting to $50,000,000, from 98½ per cent, less 2½ per cent commission, to 90 per cent, less 2½ per cent commission, upon the par value of the bonds.

3. Three and a half million dollars shall be allowed to the Syndicate which has purchased the One hundred million dollars convertible bonds from the Bankers as a reduction in the price to be paid for said bonds by the Syndicate. Of the foregoing amount Five hundred thousand dollars will be furnished by the Bankers and Three million dollars by the Company, to be paid to the Bankers pro rata as payments are made by the Bankers for these bonds. The pro rata amount due in respect of bonds already paid for by the Bankers under said agreement of February 8, 1906 shall be deducted from the payment due from the Bankers on January 15, 1907.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

By F. P. FISH, President.

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

KUHN LOEB & Co.

KIDDER PEABODY & Co.

BARING BROS & Co., LTD.

By KIDDER PEABODY & Co., Atty's.

THIS AGREEMENT made this eighth day of January, 1907, between the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a corporation of the state of New York, (hereinafter called the Company), of the first part, and J. P. Morgan & Company, Kuhn, Loeb & Company, Kidder, Peabody & Company, and Baring Brothers & Company, Limited (hereinafter called the Bankers), of the second part,

WITNESSETH:

Referring to a proposed issue by the Company of $25,000,000 five per cent notes to be dated January 1, 1907, maturing on the average in three years, and redeemable at the option of the Company at 102 and accrued interest, the parties hereto agree as follows:

The Bankers will purchase forthwith at 93 per cent and accrued interest, less a commission of 2 percent upon the par value, said $25,000,000 of five per cent notes and will take the same as follows: $5,000,000 of notes forthwith and the remaining notes in lots not exceeding $5,000,000 each as called for by the Company after ten days notice, but the Bankers reserve the right to take the whole or any part of the remainder at any time.

Said notes shall be made payable in gold and at such dates not exceeding five years and not less than one year from January 1, 1907 as the Bankers may request, provided however that the average date of maturity of all of said notes shall be three years from their date.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
By F. P. FISH, President.
J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
KUHN, LOEB & Co.,
KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
BARING BROS. & Co., LTD.,
By KIDDER, PEABODY & Co., Attys.

KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
115 DEVONSHIRE ST., P. O. Box 7,
Boston, January 12, 1907. G.

PRIVATE

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: We have your letter of January 11th.

Mr. Fish has taken up the matter of bringing his letter down to date, and will try to have it accomplished so that Mr. Winsor can take it over with him on Monday night.

We enclose herewith three sets of Agreements signed by the Telephone Company, Kidder, Peabody & Company and Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., and shall be much obliged if you and Messrs. Kuhn Loeb & Co. will sign these papers, each of you retaining one of the sets and forwarding the third to us.

Very truly yours,

KIDDER PEABODY Co.

Enclosure.

KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
115 DEVONSHIRE ST., P. O. Box 7,
Boston, January 16, 1907. S.

MY DEAR STEELE: I enclose herewith redraft of the Telephone Coupon Note and the original draft of the Registered Note. The issue of the Registered Note has made it necessary to change some of the language in the Coupon Note, which had already been sent to you for approval.

If both Notes meet your approval, will you kindly return them tomorrow, so that there may be as little delay as possible in getting them from the Bank Note Company.

I also enclose the original draft of the Coupon Note, which we sent you before.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT WINSOR.

CHARLES STEELE, Esq.,
Messrs J. P. Morgan & Co., New York, N. Y.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-26

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

EXCERPTS FROM "THE WALL STREET JOURNAL"

July 19, 1906.—On sale of but three bonds, American Telephone & Telegraph 4's declined Monday 2 $\frac{7}{8}$ points to 90 $\frac{3}{4}$. This was coincident with the third call on the convertible syndicate which came as a reminder that seven more calls are to be expected in regular sequence. The sharp decline in the old bonds at this time is to be attributed merely to lack of buying power in the market.

July 23, 1906.—The third and last call for 1906 upon the American Tel. & Tel. Co. $100,000,000 4% convertible bond syndicate will be made early in October. The taking up of this third block of bonds will give the syndicate a total of $30,000,000 bonds.

There is no present intention of offering the Telephone bonds, and it is safe to assert that no offering will be made until the general tone of the bond market has shown a marked improvement.

The total number of calls on the syndicate is nine, one call being for a greater amount than 10%, sufficient to make the difference between 90% and the price which the syndicate paid for its securities.

Boston—The American Tel. & Tel. has borrowed about $5,000,000 for three, four, five, and six months. The financial demands upon the company for telephone expansion are very heavy, and must be complied with as far as necessary.

The next call for 10% upon the telephone underwriters does not mature until Oct. 15, and the company in putting out its notes at this time is practically anticipating that call.

October 25, 1906.—The dividend rate of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. stock was increased recently from $7\frac{1}{2}\%$ to 8% per annum, and yet the price of the stock is only $137\frac{1}{2}$ now as compared with the high of the year of 144%. There is room for inquiry as to the decline in the price of this security especially in view of the increase of the dividend rate.

In the first place, it may be noted that the increase in the dividend rate at this time must have been made mainly to help the market for the $100,000,000 of new convertible bonds. The earnings were satisfactory, but the bonds were awaiting a market, and as the increase in the dividend rate presumably made them more attractive to the investors by increasing the importance of the convertible feature, it is only reasonable to assume that this matter had something to do with the decision to increase the dividend.

The question immediately suggests itself, however, Has the move accomplished its purpose? As far as the price of the stock in the market is concerned, it may be said that the effect has not been great because the stock is actually selling several points lower than it was last January. Any beneficial effect on the price by the dividend increase must be measured by the advance from 130, the low of the year registered on July 18, to the present price, $137\frac{1}{2}$. The stock is still $2\frac{1}{2}$ points below the price at which the bonds may be converted, so that at present conversion would not be profitable.

* * * * *

It is clear to those familiar with the telephone situation that the $100,000,000 of bonds sold by the company in the early part of the year must soon be distributed. They have been in the hands of the bankers now for more than six months, and meantime the period for which the financing made provision is getting shorter and shorter. In the natural course of events, it will only be about two years before more financing will be necessary.

January 17, 1907.—Boston—The avidity with which the investment public recently absorbed $25,000,000 of American Telephone short term notes speaks well for the credit of the company. This means much for the success of the flotation of the convertible bonds when the bankers decide to offer them. At the proper time they will be offered at a figure which will insure their successful absorption beyond peradventure.

January 31, 1907.—The announcement is made that subscription lists for $40,000,000 American Telephone & Telegraph Company's convertible 4 per cent. bonds will be opened on February 5 at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York, and Kidder, Peabody & Co. of Boston. A simultaneous issue of bonds will be made by Baring Bros. & Co., and J. S. Morgan & Co. in London, and Hope & Co. in Amsterdam.

(Excerpt from the "Commercial and Financial Chronicle" of March 30, 1907)

(1) On Thursday, Kidder Peabody & Co. will take up from the subscribers and pay them 91 and interest for the amount of bonds thus far sold for syndicate account. The next payment, 30%, on account of the syndicate will be payable at the office of Kidder, Peabody & Co., April 15. (2) Underwriters of the 4% convertible bonds are today in receipt of checks from the syndicate managers taking up one-tenth of the entire amount of bonds allotted to them. This means that the amount of convertible bonds recently sold was probably slightly in excess of $10,000,000.

(Continuing "Wall Street Journal" quotations)

June 1, 1907.—BOSTON.—* * * President Vail feels that a closer similarity between the amount of stock and bonds issued than now exists should prevail and any new issue of bonds would, of course, simply tend to emphasize the preponderance in favor of the aggregate amount of bonds issued.

Added to this is the fact that the convertible bonds are still very largely in the underwriters' hands, only about 10% of the entire $100,000,000 having as yet been taken by investors.

Under these circumstances it will probably be easier for the company to finance its requirements by making an attractive appeal to its large and constantly growing constituency of stockholders.

At 92½ for the bonds the stock would have to recover but four or five points, to 121 to 122, to make the speculative feature of the convertible bonds immediately attractive, under the reduced conversion price.

It has been said that one reason for the proposed issuance of stock at this time was that the syndicate which purchased the convertible bonds had not been willing to live up to its contract even at the reduction in price which was made last January and that the new money was required to supply the deficiency in payments on account of the bonds. * * *

December 18, 1907.—BOSTON.—There have been more or less persistent rumors for the last two weeks that some of the American Telephone syndicate convertible bonds were being quietly marketed. General market conditions and the offering of several good sized lots have tended to lend color to this report.

It is understood that none of the bonds held by the syndicate have been or will be sold except by general participation. The bonds have been pooled in such a way that no syndicate member even were he so disposed could safely offer any portion of his holdings.

There has undoubtedly been trading in the bonds which were sold to investors in the early part of the year, about $10,000,000 having been disposed of at that time. It is also possible that there has been some selling by syndicate members who paid for their bonds in full in the first few installments and who have had the right at all times to sell their holdings as these bonds were not included in the pool agreement.

April 4, 1908.—BOSTON.—About eight months ago the American Telephone Co. made the important statement that it would require no new financing until the first of January, 1909. If general conditions make it desirable, the American Telephone Co. can get along comfortably until January 1, 1910, without the issuance of additional securities.

This announcement should be pleasing to investors who have been wondering how the underwriters of American Telephone convertible bonds proposed to distribute their unsold balance of $90,000,000 bonds to investors soon enough before the beginning of next year to enable the company to put out additional security by that time.

The situation in regard to the convertible bonds is far less urgent than popularly supposed. Between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 of the bonds are held by English and continental bankers who are not worrying about the marketing of the bonds.

There appears to be developing a real investment demand for American Telephone securities in England. Last year English bankers took over 30,000 shares of new stock. * * *

June 2, 1908.—BOSTON.—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. $100,000,000 4% 30-year convertible bond syndicate has been dissolved, thus anticipating by one month the date when the syndicate agreement formally expires.

According to the terms of the syndicate agreement the syndicate was to expire on July 1, 1907, with the privilege of renewal for one year thereafter, but under no conditions could the syndicate's life be extended beyond July 1 next. Notice extending the syndicate to July 1, 1908, was sent to the underwriters on June 17, 1907.

It is doubtful if in the recent history of American finance an important bond syndicate has never been dissolved with so large a proportion of its bonds undistributed to the public. Of the entire $100,000,000 bonds but a trifle over $10,000,000 have been placed among investors. The remaining $90,000,000 are still in the hands either of the primary or junior underwriters, and the embargo against the sale of these bonds is now removed by the breaking up of the syndicate.

Were the entire $90,000,000 undistributed bonds hanging over the American bond market the situation might easily be one of apprehension. Fortunately, however, so many of the bonds are held by English and continental bankers that a conservative estimate places the total amount of bonds held by bankers in the United States at not exceeding $50,000,000.

In the original allotment foreign underwriters were assigned through Baring Brothers, $25,000,000 of the bonds. In the past four or five months foreign bankers and investors, attracted in part by the excellent showing of earnings made by the Telephone Co., have been buying up syndicate participations at prices fractionally under the board prices for the bonds. It is estimated that fully $15,000,000 of the bonds have been absorbed through this buying. Adding together the three items of the $25,000,000 originally allotted to foreign investors, the $10,000,000 sold to the public in January, 1907, and the $15,000,000 purchased in the last few months gives a total of about $50,000,000 bonds which may be considered as having been permanently removed from the bond market in the United States.

The breaking up of the syndicate at this time is in fact an expression of confidence in the fundamental strength of the bond market and the continuance of easy money conditions. It is assumed that underwriters who have carried their bonds for the past two years and a half will not be in a hurry to sacrifice them at the present level of prices when by waiting a few months better results might be obtained.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-27

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

MAY 29, 1908.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY CONVERTIBLE FOUR PER CENT.
GOLD BONDS SYNDICATE

DEAR SIRS: In accordance with the powers conferred on the Bankers by Article Eighth of the Syndicate Agreement, it has been decided to terminate the above Syndicate on June 1st.

The Syndicate obligations having been fulfilled, there is no further liability on the part of participants, and we beg to notify you that the bonds you have heretofore held subject to the control of the Syndicate Managers are now free.

The final account shows a small debit balance, which the Managers have decided to assume.

Yours very truly,
J. P. MORGAN & Co.,

BARING BROTHERS & Co., Ltd.,
London.

New York.
KUHNS, LOEB & Co.,
New York.

KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
Boston.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-28

THEO. N. VAIL, President
EDWARD J. HALL
BERNARD E. SUNNY
CHARLES F. WARE } Vice Presidents

CHARLES EUSTIS HUBBARD, Secretary
WILLIAM R. DRIVER, Treasurer

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
Boston, September 26, 1908.

MESSRS. J. P. MORGAN & COMPANY,
KUHNS, LOEB & COMPANY,
KIDDER, PEABODY & COMPANY, and
BARING BROTHERS & COMPANY, LIMITED.

DEAR SIRS: Referring to the option which you hold, expiring October 1, 1908, to purchase $50,000,000 of the thirty year convertible four per cent gold bonds of this Company, we beg to say, that if at this time you were to avail of that option it might prove to be, taking all things into consideration, detrimental to the best interests of this Company.

In consideration, therefore, of your refraining from taking up that option, or any part thereof, we offer you the right to take at any time between October 10, 1908 and February 1, 1909, both dates inclusive, the whole or any part of $50,000,000 of such convertible four per cent gold bonds of this Company at the price named in the existing option, that is to say, at 90% of the face value thereof, less 2½% commission, with accrued interest. And this Company agrees that you may exercise from time to time during said period said option in part, provided the amount of said bonds which you elect to take at any one time shall not be less than $5,000,000 par value.

Very truly yours,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Copy]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
WALL ST. CORNER BROAD,
New York, September 30, 1908.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,
President, American Telephone & Telegraph Company,
Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of September 26th, and to say that the arrangement therein suggested is satisfactory to us, and we therefore accept the offer therein contained upon the conditions mentioned.

Very truly yours,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
KUHN, LOEB & Co.,
KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
BARING BROS. & Co., LTD.,
By KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
Attys.

NEW YORK AND BOSTON, November 27, 1908.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,
President, American Telephone & Telegraph Company,
Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your letter of September 26, 1908, and our reply thereto, dated September 30, 1908, we beg to confirm that we purchase at 87½% and interest the $50,000,000. Convertible 4% Gold Bonds of your Company therein referred to. Payment for the bonds to be made on or before March 1, 1909, at our option.

Yours very truly,

[Confidential]

KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.

115 Devonshire St., P. O. Box 7, Boston—
56 Wall Street, P. O. Box 214, New York

BOSTON, September 29, 1908. S.

MY DEAR PERKINS: Enclosed please find letter from the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., to yourselves, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., ourselves and Baring Bros. & Co., Ltd.

Will you please write a letter, tomorrow, to be signed by yourselves and Messrs Kuhn, Loeb & Co., accepting the conditions of the Company's letter, and forward to us for our signature, for ourselves and Messrs Baring Bros. & Co., Ltd., that we may hand the same to the Company.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT WINSOR

P.S.—Though of course they realize it just as well as we do, it might, nevertheless, be as well to remind Messrs Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of the importance of keeping this matter confidential as possible.

GEORGE W. PERKINS, Esq.

KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.

115 Devonshire St., P. O. Box 7, Boston—
56 Wall Street, P. O. Box 214, New York

Boston, September 26, 1908. S.

MY DEAR PERKINS: Enclosed is form of letter which I ~~understand~~ Mr. Vail the Company will be prepared to sign on Tuesday, after his the Executive Committee meeting.

Please let me know, before three o'clock on Monday, if you or Mr. Schiff have any suggestions.

Hastily yours,

ROBERT WINSOR.

GEORGE W. PERKINS, Esq.,
Messrs J. P. Morgan & Co., New York, N. Y.

(Handwritten:) Sunday—I brought this home last night and have talked with Mr. Vail on the telephone today, hence the pencil changes—R. W.
Enclosure.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-29

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

JANUARY 15, 1907.

Hon. W. MURRAY CRANE,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR CRANE: I enclose a copy of a letter received from Mr. Waterbury, which I think is entitled to serious consideration.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

(Enclosure)

[Source: President's Letter Book 46.]

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, Jan. 16, 1907.

Mr. F. P. FISH,
President, 125 Milk St., Boston.

DEAR MR. FISH: Your letter of the 15th instant is received with enclosed copy of one from Mr. Waterbury which I have read with interest. I agree with him that it would be well to have such a committee appointed and I further think that Mr. Baker and Mr. Coolidge would be excellent selections for two members of such committee. Mr. Vail should in my opinion be made a member of that Committee also, and I hope that he will be chosen. I presume that you will call this matter to the attention of the Executive Committee today so that prompt action can be taken.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE.

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, January 21, 1907.

Mr. F. P. FISH,
125 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. FISH: I shall appreciate it very much if the Committee will, at its meeting Wednesday, take favorable action on the letter that you received from Mr. Waterbury, recommending the appointment of a Committee on Organization, etc., and I suggest that that committee be composed of Messrs. Coolidge, Baker, Waterbury and Vail. I am sure that they could make suggestions that would be of value to the Committee and of assistance to you. Many of the larger and stronger companies should be consolidated with the smaller and weaker Companies. For instance New York and companies up state; and the same changes should be made in other parts of the country. This Committee could devise some way for the bringing about of the proper consolidation and do work that the President really does not have time to do. Their report of course would be made to the executive Committee and before any action was taken would have to be satisfactory to that Committee. Other suggestions that they might make would also be helpful and I earnestly hope that some action will be taken.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE.

[Source: President's file 16825.]

[Source: President's file 16851]

[Copy]

A. T. & T. Co., Executive Committee,
January 23, 1907.

Resolved: that Messrs. Crane, Baker, Coolidge, Vail and Waterbury be requested to serve as a special committee to consider the organization of the Company and its relation to the associated Companies and to report to the Executive Committee with recommendations, said special committee to have authority to employ experts.

This letter also sent to the following: T. J. Coolidge, Jr., Ames Building, Boston; T. N. Vail, Lyndonville, Vermont; G. F. Baker, % First National Bank, 2 Wall St., New York City; W. M. Crane, United States Senate, Washington D. C.

(Handwritten:) P. F. 16852, 16851, 16850, 16892, 16895.

JANUARY 24, 1907.

Personal.

JOHN I. WATERBURY, Esq.,
% Manhattan Trust Company, 20 Wall Street, New York.

DEAR SIR: At the meeting of the Executive Committee held yesterday the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That Messrs. Crane, Baker, Coolidge, Vail, and Waterbury be requested to serve as a special committee to consider the organization of the Company and its relation to the associated companies and to report to the Executive Committee with recommendations, said special committee to have authority to employ experts."

I sincerely hope that you will be willing to serve on the committee.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 46.]

(Handwritten:) See L. B. 46/395—16850, 16851, 16852, 16895.

P. O. R. R. Exp. Tel., Lyndonville, Vt.

THE HOUSE, SPEEDWELL FARMS,
Lyndon, Vermont, Jan. 25, 07.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: I shall be pleased to serve on the committee if I can in any way serve the Company or assist you. I suppose notification will be sent of the first meeting, stating time and place.

THEO. N. VAIL.

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, January 30, 1907.

Mr. F. P. FISH,
125 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. FISH: I presume that you have been informed that the recently appointed Committee will meet in New York Friday afternoon and Saturday,

I cannot be present Friday but hope to attend the meeting Saturday. When in New York yesterday I had a short talk with Mr. Waterbury but was unable to see Mr. Baker.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE.

Wall Street.
Corner
Nassau.
New York.

[Source: President's file 16851]

APRIL 2ND., 1907.

See Ex. Com. IV. { 220
240

F. P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Tel. & Tel. Co., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Referring to the outline organization submitted by the undersigned, and acknowledging your favour of the 29th ult., presenting important suggestions with respect thereto, the Committee desires to say that they have given the subject further consideration and are of the opinion that the subject should be dealt with by the Executive Committee directly.

That Committee is in close contact with the affairs and administration of the Company, with opportunities for observation, and prompt consideration of all matters affecting the organization which may not be enjoyed by the special committee.

To facilitate consideration of the subject by the Executive Committee, and enable it to meet the increased labour imposed, the undersigned recommend that the said Committee be increased in number not to exceed seven including the President, and, as the subject, as so clearly set forth in your letter, demands consideration in every particular and from every point of view, the Committee may appoint a Chairman in order that the organization may be formulated without interfering with the regular business of the Company.

Inasmuch as the By Laws will have to be amended to permit such increase of number the undersigned recommend, pending an amendment to the By Laws, that the Board appoint one or more Associate Members of the Executive Committee to attend its meetings and assist in determining a plan of organization and in the consideration of any other matters concerning the interests of the Company, and to unite with the Executive Committee in reporting to the Board.

Yours very truly,

GEO. F. BAKER.
JOHN I. WATERBURY.
W. M. CRANE.
THEO. N. VAIL.
T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, Jr.

FREDERICK P. FISH, President.
EDWARD J. HALL }
THOMAS SHERWIN } Vice Presidents
CHARLES P. WARE }

CHARLES EUSTIS HUBBARD, Secretary
WILLIAM R. DRIVER, Treasurer

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
Boston, Apr. 23, 1907.

To the Board of Directors of the American Bell Telephone Co.

GENTLEMEN: I hereby tender my resignation as President of your Company and request that the same be accepted not later than May 1, 1907.

Very Respectfully Yours,

FREDERICK P. FISH.

FREDERICK P. FISH, President.
EDWARD J. HALL }
THOMAS SHERWIN } Vice Presidents
CHARLES P. WARE }

CHARLES EUSTIS HUBBARD, Secretary
WILLIAM R. DRIVER, Treasurer

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
Boston, Apr. 23, 1907.

To the Board of Directors of the American Bell Telephone Co.

GENTLEMEN: I hereby tender my resignation as a member of your Board and request that the same be accepted not later than May 1, 1907.

Very Respectfully Yours,

FREDERICK P. FISH.

[Source: President's file 17093.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-30

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

[Copy]

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,

MAY 8TH, 1907.

*President, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
125 Milk St., Boston, Mass.*

DEAR SIR: Our interest in the success and prosperity of your Company induces us to repeat to you what we have already said, verbally, to your predecessor, Mr. Fish.

We consider it of vital consequence to the financial welfare of the Company that no expenditures should be entered upon in the near future, except such as are absolutely necessary, no matter what the prospective profits on other expenditures may be,—the credit of the Company being of paramount importance.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
(Signed) KUHN, LOEB & Co.
(Signed) KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.

16 MAY 1907.

MANHATTAN TRUST COMPANY,
20 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: By virtue of the authority given me by vote of the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, I hereby appoint you as the New York agent for the registration of the stock of said Company, such appointment to date June 1, 1907, and your services as such agent to begin on that day.

And I enclose a certified copy of the vote above mentioned.

Yours very truly,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 48.]

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
30 Nassau Street, New York, N. Y.

16 MAY, 1907.

GENTLEMEN: By virtue of a vote of the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, passed May 14, 1907, I beg to notify you that I have appointed the Manhattan Trust Company as the New York agent for the registration of the stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, such appointment to take effect June 1, 1907, your duties in that regard ceasing on May 31st.

Thanking you for your past services, which have been in every way satisfactory, and with the hope that the relations have been as agreeable to you as they have been to this Company, I am,

Yours very truly,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 48.]

John W. Castles, president; Alexander J. Hemphill, vice president; George Garr Henry, vice president; Max May, manager, foreign department; Wm. C. Edwards, treasurer; E. C. Hebbard, secretary; F. C. Harriman, assistant treasurer; R. C. Newton, trust officer; R. W. Speir, manager, bond department

London Office, 33 Lombard Street E. C. Committee: Arthur John Fraser, Cecil F. Parr, P. C. Wise. Cable addresses: New York, Fidelitas—London, Garritus

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK

28 Nassau Street, New York

Capital $2,000,000. Surplus $5,500,000

NEW YORK, May 21, 1907.

MR. THEODORE N. VAIL,

*President, American Telephone and Telegraph Company,
Boston, Mass.*

DEAR SIR: We have your letter of the 16th of May, saying that your Board of Directors had changed the registration of your stock from this Company to another in this city.

As you also state that our services have been satisfactory in every way, would you be good enough to tell us why this change was made? We at all times have done everything we could to cement friendly relations, and as it is so seldom that changes of this kind have been made from us, naturally, we would like to find out the reason for it, if consistent for you to say.

Yours truly,

J. W. CASTLES, President.

MAY 29, 1907.

P. F. 17150.

J. W. CASTLES, Esq.,

President, Guaranty Trust Company of New York,

28 Nassau Street, New York.

MY DEAR SIR: Replying to yours of May 21, I can only say that conditions sometimes arise in the business world which result in change, even with the most pleasant and cordial relations, without in the least possible way implying or indicating anything that is disparaging or unfriendly.

Very truly yours,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 48.]

FEBRUARY 4, 1908.

HON. W. MURRAY CRANE, Washington, D. C.

HENRY S. HOWE, Boston, Mass.

JOHN I. WATERBURY, Esq., New York City.

GENTLEMEN: It seems to me that we must, if any change is to be made, consider soon the names of some possible additions to our directory. Personally, I think that it would be an exceedingly good plan if Mr. Winsor or some other of the leading members of the firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co., Mr. Henry L. Higginson, of Lee, Higginson & Co., Mr. N. W. Harris of the firm of N. W. Harris & Co., and possibly Mr. J. P. Morgan, Jr., or Mr. Steele, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.—could be induced to join.

There have been suggested to me by various shareholders the names of A. Isehn, Jr., of New York, J. J. Mitchell of Chicago, John Claflin of New York, Cornelius Vanderbilt, of New York—all of whom are well known. Other names suggested have been T. de Coppet, of de Coppet and Doremus, Brokers, large dealers in odd lots; A. M. White of Moffat and White, W. L. Roosevelt, an uncle of Theodore Roosevelt and connected with the Chemical Bank; Henry W. DeForrest, trustee of Mrs. Sage's property.

I merely submit the latter names as I have been requested to by others.

Very sincerely yours,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book VI.]

JANUARY 20, 1909.

HON. W. MURRAY CRANE,

1915 Massachusetts Ave., Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR: I was talking last night with Mr. Howe in regard to the coming election, and the filling of the vacancy in the Directory. I think if we could get a good Chicago man, a good Philadelphia man, and some good New York man outside of the present group, that it would be a good plan. Mr. Herbert Terrell seems to me to be as good a man as we could get from New York, and I think he would be willing to serve. If we could get Mitchell of Chicago, it would be a good thing, and my second choice would be Smith who is one of the Directors of the Chicago Telephone Company. I think, however, that Mitchell or a man like him would probably be of more benefit to the Company. In Philadelphia, I am not so well posted, and do not know the groups of people sufficiently to suggest. Have you any idea or suggestions to make in respect to that?

I am very much in hopes that you will come over Tuesday as I have a very important matter that I would like to talk over with you and before I talk very generally.

Very sincerely yours,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book VI.]

[Copy]

MARCH 19, 1909. S.

MY DEAR MR. ELLIS: I am writing this, after a conversation with Mr. Vail, President of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

The Meetings of the Directors of that Company are held in Boston, on the third Tuesday in each month. The New York Directors are in the habit of coming to these Meetings at least three or four times a year.

There is no demand upon the Directors for the reading of papers, either before or after these Meetings. The Statistics, of course, are sent, at regular intervals, to each Director.

We all of us sincerely hope that you can see your way to signifying your willingness to giving this concern the value of your judgment and of your name. It is of national importance that the character of this Directorship should be of the highest possible grade, and, from the other point of view, I believe that the connection would be not only a profitable, but a creditable one to yourself.

Very truly yours,

(Sgd.) ROBERT WINSOR.

RUDOLPH ELLIS, Esq., Personal,
325 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

[Source: President's file 17921.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-31

[Special delivery]

KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.

115 Devonshire St., P. O. Box 7, Boston—56 Wall Street, P. O. Box 214,
New York

BOSTON, March 20, 1909. S.

MY DEAR MR. VAIL: I am very much pleased that Mr. Rudolph Ellis has accepted the position as Director on the Telephone Company.

I had hardly stopped my talk with you, today, when I received the information, direct.

I enclose herewith copy of the letter which I sent him yesterday afternoon.

Very sincerely yours,

ROBERT WINSOR.

P. S.—My information about Mr. Terrell is that he is a man of ability, and of wealth, but that he is not well known and that his name among the Board of Directors would not have meaning to the general public.

(Handwritten:) Mr. Vail wrote Mr. Ellis 2/23/09. Copy herewith—T. D. B. Enclosure.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.

Nov. 19TH, 1909.

GEO. F. BAKER, Esq.,
2 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. BAKER: Referring to your conversation with Senator Crane, I wish to say that it would relieve us of some embarrassment and produce unanimous action on the part of our Board if I should recommend the election of one of the members of Mr. Morgan's firm at the December meeting, and the remaining one at the annual meeting in March.

There are but two vacancies on the Board, and no increase can be made except by the shareholders.

A long time ago with the consent of our Board I asked Mr. J. J. Mitchell of Chicago to joint our Directorate, and he some time since signified his willingness to serve, and our Board think that he should be elected to fill the other vacancy.

I would appreciate it if you would consult with Mr. Morgan and advise me if this course meets with his approval, and if it does, I will see that it is carried out.

Sincerely yours,

THEO. N. VAIL.

[Source: Binder entitled "T. N. Vail Personal May 27 1907 to Jan. 21, 1911."]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-32

APRIL 19, 1910.

Mr. H. P. DAVISON,
% J. P. Morgan & Company,
Cor. Wall & Broad Sts., N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. DAVISON: I was in hopes that you would have arrived before my departure, but I understand you are not expected for a week or so yet. Everything seems to be going smoothly and apparently with less friction. In regard to the directorship, I acted as you suggested. I did not propose Mr. Morgan's name, but instead put in dummy Director to await his pleasure, all of which I trust will be satisfactory. Whenever, in the opinion of Mr. Morgan, Jr., it will be wise for him to take the position of Director, we should be very glad to appoint him.

I trust you have had a pleasant trip and have come back with renewed health and vigor.

I hope to return about the middle of June.

Yours sincerely,

THEO. N. VAIL.

TNV-AMD.

[Source: Binder entitled "T. N. Vail Personal May 27 1907 to Jan. 21, 1911."]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-33

MARCH 27TH, 1905.

DEAR MR. COOLIDGE: Both Mr. Cook and myself have given a great deal of thought to the work which has been done and which should now be done, in connection with The Mackay Companies, and I think it will throw light upon the situation to state the facts as I understand them.

Originally, as you know, we started to get all the stock of the Commercial Cable Company, and for the time being we postponed our efforts towards obtaining control of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The task of acquiring the Commercial Cable Company stock naturally fell to Mr. Cook and myself. None of us believed that we would be able to gather in all of the Commercial Cable Company stock for a long time to come, but by indefatigable work we succeeded, and the result speaks for itself. That part of the work of the organization that Mr. Cook and myself started to accomplish, has now been completed.

To come now to that part of the work which you and Mr. Waterbury undertook to accomplish, namely, the getting in of the Bell Telephone stock, the first thing to be considered was the formulation of a plan which would be fair to all parties and which would bring about the result. You and Mr. Waterbury did not suggest any plan that seemed workable, and finally Mr. Cook and I devised the plan of issuing 15 Mackay preferred shares for 8 Bell Telephone shares. That plan was submitted to all four of the trustees, and approved. I recommended, as you are aware, that exchange to my mother for her holdings of Bell Telephone stock, and I also accepted it in behalf of my holdings. She and I turned in, week before last, over $800,000 of Bell Telephone stock on that basis.

That immediately raises the question as to what you and your father and Mr. Waterbury are willing to do in regard to your holdings of Bell Telephone stock. It certainly seems to me that if you and he approved the plan and voted for it, and were quite willing that my mother and I should turn in our Bell Telephone shares on that basis, you should also turn in yours on the same basis, especially as the getting in of the Bell Telephone stock was yours and Mr. Waterbury's part of the purpose of The Mackay Companies. I accordingly would like to know how you stand in regard to the matter. Are you and your father and Mr. Waterbury willing to do the same as I and my mother did, namely, turn in your Bell Telephone stock for Mackay preferred on the same basis mentioned above?

After you and your father and Mr. Waterbury have turned in your holdings, we can then start in to persuade other Bell Telephone stockholders to do the same, and I think that I can be of assistance in that direction.

I have within the past few days talked this matter over with Mr. Waterbury. Accordingly I am also writing you on the same subject, as I feel very kecnly in regard to the whole situation, and I am strongly of the opinion that, as the great body of Commercial Cable stockholders expected that something would be accomplished in the way of The Mackay Companies acquiring stock in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and as you know, many of them turned in their holdings on that expectation, we should proceed at once without further delay towards bonding all our energies in bringing about the second part of the original scheme.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, Jr.,
Boston, Mass.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-34

OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY
P. O. Box 363

BOSTON, March 30, 1905.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,
253 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. MACKAY: Your letter of March 27th I have read with great care, and note that your understanding of the situation seems to me, if you will pardon me for saying so, confused by the rapid progress of events, in which the original purpose of the creation of The Mackay Companies is overlooked.

The form of organization of the Companies was suggested by me to you, Mr. Cook, Mr. Waterbury, and, I think, Mr. Ward, at one of our early meetings, and after careful consideration we decided to form The Mackay Companies, for the protection of your interests and the interests of the other stockholders of the Commercial Cable Company against possible loss of control by purchase of a bare majority by the Gould, or Rockefeller, or any adverse interest. This was repeatedly and clearly laid down by you and our friends at our meetings, and was the reason why the form of Massachusetts trust suggested by me was favorably received and adopted, after discussion as to its scope and bearings with the gentlemen named above, and by us with Mr. Olney.

A collateral consideration to the holding together of the control of The Commercial Cable Company was that it would permit, and probably facilitate, opportunities of entering into closer relationship with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. What form this closer relationship might take was never decided, nor even seriously considered, but the theory upon which we progressed was that we should show the advantage of cooperation and the joint use of poles and offices to the Telephone Company, and by joint use demonstrate that large savings would be made to both companies, naturally resulting in increased value of The Commercial Cable shares, and the result of such working together along these lines would be a more intimate and correspondingly valuable relationship. It was suggested that the relationship might become so close that some form of amalgamation might eventually become possible, and in that case that you might become a factor of importance in the larger field.

Mr. Waterbury and I, in the full belief that it is desirable for The Commercial Cable Company and the Telephone Company to work more closely together, have discussed the matter many times, and, as you have been frequently advised, always with the favorable appreciation of the Telephone people, who, however, properly declined to take affirmative action, appreciating the inadvisability of antagonizing the Western Union interests. There has, however, been a substantial advance on the lines of relationship indicated, both in the West and South, through the joint use of pole lines and otherwise, to our advantage, and everything has been satisfactory.

No one appreciates more than I do the efforts on the part of yourself and Mr. Cook in acquiring the Commercial Cable Company stock within the time in which it was done.

I cannot quite agree with you that Mr. Waterbury and I did not present a plan with respect to acquiring an interest in the Telephone Company. Such a plan was presented by Mr. Waterbury, at considerable length in detail, and with the reasons why it was believed that the plan presented was the best that could be made and would afford most satisfactory results in the speediest manner. You will recall quite a long discussion upon it at Mr. Waterbury's house, and that Mr. Cook and yourself—he very emphatically—opposed the plan, which involved taking an interest in a syndicate which was to acquire stocks and bonds in financing the Telephone Company, and that I argued at considerable length the advantages which would follow should we act favorably upon the plan proposed, and the very slight risk, if any, that would be run by The Mackay Companies in authorizing us to proceed to carry it into effect. You and Mr. Cook opposed it, and the matter was dropped. The first step in financing has since been carried out successfully and without the Mackay Companies participating in it.

I was surprised some time ago when Mr. Cook raised the question seriously of an exchange of Mackay Companies shares for American Telephone & Telegraph shares, as it showed that he did not appreciate that the Telephone stockholders had not been previously prepared to consider any such proposition. I did not see any object in controverting the suggestion at the time it was made, as it was merely a suggestion.

When Mr. Cook suggested an exchange of your mother's shares as a means of getting an interest in the Telephone Company, and you stated that your mother would be satisfied with the fixed income of the Mackay preferred shares, I very gladly voted to authorize the exchange on behalf of The Mackay Companies up to 10,000 shares of Telephone stock. I thought then that it was desirable for The Mackay Companies to get in ten thousand shares of stock in this way, if they could be obtained, and therefore voted for it, but without expressing my opinion as to the feasibility or desirability of getting in any large amount of stock on these terms. You suggest that I "approved the plan and voted for it". I do not understand that any formal plan was before the trustees. The question before them was whether it was for the interests of The Mackay Companies to exchange on the basis of fifteen Mackay preferred for eight shares of Telephone a limited amount of stock. This I voted for and approved, but I did not seriously consider anything beyond this actual vote. We might pick up from time to time a certain amount of Telephone stock on these lines, but as for making any campaign, it is in my judgment entirely unfeasible at this time. From the point of view of The Mackay Companies, if it were possible to exchange any very large amount of preferred stock for Telephone stock which it is not in my opinion at this time we should have to carefully consider the effect on our Companies of even a temporary reduction in the Telephone dividend. On a small purchase I felt that this could be disregarded.

At the risk of repeating, perhaps, what I have already said above, I must say that as the plan presented to you and Mr. Cook by Mr. Waterbury and myself at Mr. Waterbury's house was not accepted, and we failed to acquire an interest in the Telephone Company under circumstances which could have made us a real factor in the general situation, I am decidedly of the opinion that we cannot now approach the subject and present it in a way which will be favorably received and which can succeed. In other words, in view of existing conditions it seems to me that it is not now feasible to take any steps looking towards securing a substantial financial interest in the Telephone Company or looking towards closer financial relationship, but I think we should follow the original plans outlined, and try, through the business management of our company (The Commercial Cable Co.), to secure continually a closer and closer working arrangement.

Yours very truly,

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, Jr.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-35

APRIL 3RD, 1905.

DEAR MR. COOLIDGE: I have yours of the 30th, and the tone of your letter as well as the statements contained therein are, frankly speaking, nothing short of amazing to me.

Let me at once begin by stating that my mind has not been confused in any way by any events that have transpired since my first meeting with you, and the subsequent formation of The Mackay Companies, and that I have a very clear understanding of everything that has taken place; and further, as you have mentioned Mr. Ward's name in connection with our first meetings, when he was present together with Mr. Waterbury and Mr. Cook, I find that he has identically the same understanding of the situation as I have.

In order that I may refresh your memory, let me begin by stating the different events that have occurred. Mr. Waterbury, at his own solicitation, when my father was alive, had several interviews with him with a view of bringing together the Commercial Cable Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. That was before I knew anything that was going on and before you entered the situation. After my father's death, and on my return to New York, I met Mr. Waterbury through Mr. Ward, and the matter was again broached. He suggested that he would like you to join, and discuss the general situation. I told him I would be very pleased to meet you any time, and one day, you may remember, Mr. Waterbury, yourself and Mr. Ward lunched with me down-town, in the Postal Telegraph Building. The question of bringing these properties together was discussed in an informal way. Both you and Mr. Waterbury were very strongly of the opinion that this should take place and that some plan should be devised. At the very outset both Mr. Ward and I stated that it would be almost impossible to outline a general form of contract between the two companies, and the most feasible way of attaining the end was by obtaining control of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. You may remember my obtaining for you and Mr. Waterbury a mass of figures showing how savings could be made. Both of you concurred, after seeing these statements, as to the desirability of bringing both these properties together; and while no definite plan could then be formulated as to how and when the control of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company could be obtained, the idea was firmly fixed in all our minds that the control of that company was the essential feature of the success of our plans. Permit me to state that the fundamental basis of The Mackay Companies, with its broad powers, was for bringing your and Mr. Waterbury's influence to bear on the American Telephone & Telegraph Company situation; otherwise, I would never have considered its inception for one moment. I could very easily and with very little trouble have placed my companies in trustees' hands, composed entirely of my own people. You and Mr. Waterbury were practically strangers to me at that time, and it was you who came to me.

The control of the Commercial Cable Company was only a part of the scheme, and your statement that this was the basis of the plan formulated under the name of the Mackay Companies I cannot agree with. The plan of The Mackay Companies following certain laws of the State of Massachusetts was suggested by Mr. Cook, who I remember distinctly telling you that we ought to take the plan that had been followed by the Massachusetts Electric Companies, and you may recollect sending both Mr. Cook and myself copies of their organization. When this form was finally decided upon, Mr. Olney and Mr. Cook, after several meetings, drew up the deed of trust under which we are at present operating. The main object was the giving of broad powers to the Trustees so that they might acquire not only Commercial Cable stock, but also as much as possible of the $130,000,000 Bell stock without losing control of our own organization. As further proof of the intent to acquire Bell stock you will remember we at once prepared a Trust Agreement to secure bonds to be issued to buy Bell stock. The first draft of that document was sent to you January 7, 1904, and recited on its face that Bell stock and Commercial Cable Company stock were deposited under it as security. You will recollect that you at that time wrote several letters to Mr. Cook making changes and elaborating that Agreement. This Agreement was prepared in four languages and was intended for use on a large scale.

There has been no substantial advance in the way of joint use of pole lines, etc., with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. On the contrary, we have to pay more than the usual price for the line to Salt Lake City, and in other parts of the country, we have not as yet been able to make any progress worth mentioning.

I note your statement that you and Mr. Waterbury presented a plan for the Mackay Companies becoming interested in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. That plan, as Mr. Cook and I understand it, was that The Mackay Companies should underwrite $37,500,000 of the bonds and stock of the latter company, chiefly bonds. You and Mr. Waterbury were in favor of The Mackay Companies underwriting that amount, but no provision was made or suggested for taking up the bonds, if the underwriters had to respond. If the Mackay Companies had underwritten $37,500,000 of these American Telephone and Telegraph Company bonds, and the bonds had not been sold by the bankers, and The Mackay Companies had been called upon to respond, it would have meant the ruin of The Mackay Companies, because we certainly could not have raised such an enormous amount of money. I do not think you could find any conservative shareholder in The Mackay Companies who would be in favor of such an underwriting. Moreover the plan had no particular advantage to The Mackay Companies, because of the $150,000,000 of stock and bonds only about $25,000,000 was to be stock, and one-fourth of that would have been $6,250,000, which certainly would not go far towards giving us the control of the $155,000,000 of capital stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, as such capital stock would then have been.

At the meeting of the trustees on February 28th, the suggestion was made that we sell Mackay preferred and buy Bell shares. You and Mr. Waterbury opposed it. Then I presented the plan as stated in my former letter, of exchanging 15 Mackay preferred for 8 Bell shares. I note your statement that you did not seriously consider anything beyond acquiring the 10,000 Bell shares. You certainly are wrong in that, because you will recollect that I stated that I hoped to obtain a large amount of Bell on the same terms, and in discussing the plan you suggested that we issue part preferred and part common, as to quote your own words, you "considered the latter might be more marketable than the preferred." The objection Mr. Cook and I made to that was that it so increased our outstanding common shares as to render difficult and improbable any increase in the dividend on the common shares, and you admitted that that was true. As to the suggestion that we should carefully consider the fact of a possible reduction in the dividend on the Bell stock, you will recollect that you mentioned that also at the meeting, and Mr. Cook suggested that we could afford to take chances on that, and that he had confidence in the future of the Bell stock, and that you acquiesced in that view. I think I represent over five-sixths of the preferred and common shares of The Mackay Companies, and it seems to me that if those five-sixths are willing to take the chances on a reduction of the Bell dividend your people can afford to do so. Finally, the fact that several weeks ago, you agreed to obtain for me a list of the shareholders in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company holding 100 shares or more, shows that we all have expected to acquire Bell stock; and in further proof, you will remember when we were all present, Mr. Waterbury told us that he had had a talk with Mr. Baker with a view to acquiring Mr. Baker's Bell stock.

I note your conclusion that inasmuch as your plan for The Mackay Companies underwriting $37,500,000, of bonds and stocks, was not accepted, you do not think we can now approach the subject and present it to the Bell shareholders in any way in which it can succeed. This certainly is true, if you and your father and Mr. Waterbury refuse to turn in your own stock. You cannot expect the other Bell stockholders to do what you refuse to do. Your suggestion that we confine our arrangements to securing a closer working arrangement with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company would accomplish nothing, judging from the experience of the past year; because, as stated above, we get nothing out of the Bell Company except what we pay for at a high price. In other words, your conclusion practically is that The Mackay Companies stop operations, excepting the routine of receiving dividends on its holdings of stock in other companies and paying dividends on its shares. I cannot acquiesce in any such policy.

This brings us back to the original question as to whether you and your father and Mr. Waterbury are willing or decline to turn in your Bell shares on the same basis on which my mother and I turned in ours. If you decline to do so, it seems to me that, in view of the disinclination on the part of the Trustees to even make an effort to acquire Bell stock, the shareholders in The Mackay Companies should be asked to elect a new board of Trustees.

I should be obliged for an answer at your earliest convenience.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, Jr.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-36

OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY

Ames Building

APRIL 11, 1905.

DEAR CLARENCE: I have discussed Mackay Co. affairs with Mr. Waterbury and in consideration of my poor health he has advised me to resign as a trustee.

I agree with him and therefore am writing you that you may know of my intention to resign at an early day.

With best wishes to you & to Mr. Cook & full confidence in the success of the Mackay Companies.

Yours sincerely,

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, Jr.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-37

APRIL 12TH, 1905.

DEAR JEFFY: I had a long interview with Mr. Waterbury the evening before last, and I was about to write you when your letter arrived in the morning's mail. I am very sorry to learn that you have decided to resign as a Trustee of The Mackay Companies, but frankly speaking it is very much better for you to do so and lay up for awhile and give yourself a chance to come around. A man cannot be expected to do good work if he is under the weather.

A little rest and care, I am convinced, is all that you need, and that we shall soon see you back in the saddle again. I appreciate your good wishes for the future and welfare of The Mackay Companies and let me assure you that your interests will be safe guarded.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-38

WALL STREET, CORNER NASSAU, NEW YORK

JUNE 20TH, 1905.

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: Now that the agreement of December 9th, 1903 has been satisfactorily modified, and the control has passed to the shareholders of the Mackay Companies, I deem it proper for me to tender my resignation as Trustee, which I herewith enclose.

In so doing I beg to assure you that I am in no wise withdrawing the interest I feel, and shall always have, in the purposes and success of the Mackay Companies. I have no firmer conviction than of the sound basis on which it was formulated: and no doubt as to its future under the conservative methods on which it was established, and which under your management and the efficient Officers of the Cable Company I am sure will prevail.

I may add that my decision has been reached after much deliberation, and most careful consideration of such differences, regarding methods and not purposes, as have arisen concerning which my own knowledge and experience of affairs has led me to conclusions different from my associates. I therefore feel that I should not continue as Trustee when I might be in full accord with the wishes of others.

I had intended to present my resignation in person, but the immense pressure of attending to details and arrangements for an early sailing tomorrow will prevent me from doing so.

With sincerest wishes for your welfare and continued success, believe me,

Yours faithfully,

JOHN I. WATERBURY.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,
Pr. The Mackay Companies.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-39

JUNE 20, 1905.

MY DEAR MR. WATERBURY: I beg to acknowledge your letter of this date, which I have just received, enclosing your resignation as Trustee and officer of The Mackay Companies, with the request that same shall take effect July 11th, 1905.

I appreciate your good wishes for the future welfare of The Mackay Companies, and in return let me assure you that your interests, as well as those that you represent, will be watched over and zealously safeguarded.

Regretting that I have not been able to say good-bye in person, before you sail, believe me, my dear Mr. Waterbury,

Faithfully yours,

(Signed) CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

JOHN I. WATERBURY, ESQ.,
Manhattan Trust Company.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-40

OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY

P. O. Box 363

BOSTON, July 3, 1905.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, ESQ.,
253 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

DEAR CLARENCE: I have delayed handing in my resignation as a director of the Commercial Cable Company as I thought it better not to make my dropping out any more abrupt than possible. I am sailing for Europe, however, on the 11th of July, and as you are probably considering names for the trustees of the Mackay Companies and would like vacancies on the Commercial Cable Company board at the same time I hand you herewith my resignation as a director of the Commercial Cable Company. You have my best wishes, both for yourself and your companies. Kindly accept my resignation at the first opportunity.

Yours sincerely,

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, JR.

(Enclosure.)

EXHIBIT No. 1659-41

JULY 6th, 1905.

DEAR JEFFY: I have yours of July 3rd, enclosing your resignation as Director of the Commercial Cable Company, and according to your request it will be placed before the Board at its next meeting.

I regret that you seem to think that I would wish to have your place filled on the Cable Board. Nothing was further from my mind. However, I suppose you know your own mind best, and your request will be complied with.

Hoping that your trip abroad will be beneficial in every respect,

Very truly yours,

(Signed) CLARENCE H. MACKAY,

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, JR.,
*Old Colony Trust Company,
Ames Building, Boston, Mass.*

EXHIBIT No. 1659-42

OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY

P. O. Box 363

BOSTON, July 7, 1905.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, ESQ.,
253 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

DEAR CLARENCE: I am very much obliged to you for your kind letter, but as I have resigned as trustee of The Mackay Companies I am not likely to give a proper amount of attention to the management of the Commercial Cable Company, and therefore thought it best to resign as director.

I should have returned, at the same time that I handed in my resignation, the frank which was given me as a director. I enclose it now.

With best wishes to Mrs. Mackay and yourself, I am,

Yours sincerely,

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, JR.

(Enclosure.)

124491-40-pt. 23-24

EXHIBIT No. 1659-43

OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY

P. O. Box 363

BOSTON, January 2, 1906.

F. P. FISH, Esq.,

American Telephone & Telegraph Company, 125 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. FISH: You have probably been informed that some 14,000 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph Company stock were transferred to Mr. Clarence H. Mackay last week. This is in accordance with the previous information that Mr. Mackay or the Mackay Companies was buying additional stock. Apparently this has nothing to do with stock owned by Mrs. Mackay or Mr. Vail, so that the Mackay interests must now have over 20,000 shares if this is correct.

Yours sincerely,

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, Jr.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-44

[Source: President's Boston files]

253 BROADWAY,

New York, March 1st, 1906.

F. P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Telephone & Telegraph Company, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. FISH: As you are aware, Mr. Vail for several years has represented our holdings of stock in the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, but owing to his absence, he has not been able to take much interest in the company, and I understand that he is quite willing to retire whenever desired. In view of the large amount of stock which I own and represent, I would suggest, if agreeable to you, that Mr. George M. Cumming, President of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, who was formerly a Vice-President in your company, should be substituted for Mr. Vail at the coming annual meeting of your stockholders. I have been a director in the United States Mortgage & Trust Company for some time past, and have become well acquainted with Mr. Cumming. I have the highest opinion of his ability, as well as integrity, and I think that he not only would be a fit representative of my people's interests, but would also be an additional source of strength to the Telephone Company itself.

Faithfully yours,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-45

MARCH 2, 1906.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,

President, Postal Telegraph-Cable Co.,253 Broadway, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: Your letter of March 1 comes to hand today.

There are some reasons why it is more difficult than you can imagine to comply with your request at the present time. I will, however, consider the matter and talk it over with my people. You will undoubtedly hear from me again on the subject.

Always wishing to do what we can to meet your views, and with warm regards, I remain,

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's File 42.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-46

253 BROADWAY,

New York, March 3rd, 1906.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: I appreciate your favor of yesterday and your personal inclination to comply with my request that Mr. Cumming be substituted for Mr.

Vail to represent us as a director in your Company. I think you will agree with me that this request is very reasonable, for the following reasons:

This is not asking for a new Trustee, but is merely to substitute for Mr. Vail (who is no longer in position to actively represent us,) the President of a prominent New York Trust Company, whose personal and financial standing is the highest, and who was formerly Vice-President of your Company, and whose relations with you, I understand, are cordial.

The Mackay Companies, which Mr. Cumming would represent, is among the very largest of your stockholders.

By the large acquisition of Telephone stock by The Mackay Companies during the past six months, the market value of the stock has been maintained at about 140. This aided in two ways: first, to sell your $100,000,000. of bonds at a fair price, and, second, to maintain the figure at which the bonds are convertible into your stock at 140, instead of a less figure, as it probably would have been if your stock had dropped to 130, as at one time it did. The value to your company of The Mackay Companies acquiring your stock was clearly recognized in recent statements issued in regard to your issue of bonds, prominence being given to the fact that The Mackay Companies, and I personally, and others, had recently purchased 25,000 shares of your stock.

It seems to me that such things as the above should be recognized, and that a request that Mr. Cumming be substituted in the place of Mr. Vail to represent us, is a reasonable one.

Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

F. P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Tel. & Tel. Co., Boston, Mass.

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-47

MARCH 5, 1906.

Personal.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,

President, Postal Telegraph-Cable Co.,

253 Broadway, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: As I wrote you, I shall have to give very careful consideration to your suggestion, and doubt if it is possible to act upon it at the annual meeting, much as we should like to meet your views wherever we can. The fact is that up to within the last six months none of our people had any idea that Mr. Vail represented your interests on our Board. He was selected by my associates on the Executive Committee, with my own hearty cooperation, on the assumption that he himself was a large stockholder in the Company, and because of his old and intimate relations with the affairs of the Bell organization.

Under these circumstances, it does not seem as if he ought to be dropped from the Board, at least until his return to the United States, when the matter can be taken up with him face to face.

I have not consulted with any of my people as yet, for I have been away and have had no opportunity to do so. I write you upon the subject, however, that if you have anything further to say in addition to your full and complete letter of March 3, you may write me in time to have the matter before me on Wednesday morning of this week.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: Private Letter, Book V.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-48

[Source: President's Boston files.]

253 BROADWAY,

New York, March 6th, 1906.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: Until I read your letter of yesterday, I was unaware that Mr. Vail was abroad.

I, of course, expected to obtain from Mr. Vail his approval of the change in the directory, before any such change should be made, but I wished at first to obtain your approval. Mr. Vail, as you know, was made a director in your company about eight years ago, and that was long before you or I occupied our present respective positions. I am surprised that you should not have known that Mr. Vail represented our interests, because certainly, since my father's death in July, 1902, I have often heard it mentioned. Inasmuch as you prefer to take the matter up with him personally, it will be entirely satisfactory to me to await his return, especially as your board of directors have power to accept a resignation and substitute a new director to fill the vacancy. If Mr. Vail should not return for a considerable length of time, it might be well for either you or myself to communicate with him in regard to the subject.

Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKEY.

F. P. FISH, Esq.

*President, American Tel. & Tel. Co.,
Boston, Mass.*

EXHIBIT No. 1659-49

MARCH 7, 1906.

Personal.

CLARENCE H. MACKEY, Esq.,

*President, Postal Telegraph-Cable Co.,
253 Broadway, New York.*

MY DEAR MR. MACKEY: I thank you for your note of March 6, which comes to hand this morning, and am very glad that the matter can remain open for discussion after Mr. Vail's return.

You are in error in believing that Mr. Vail became a Director in our Company about eight years ago. He was first elected on March 25, 1902, and I was perfectly familiar with the conditions under which he was selected.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book V.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-50

[Source: President's Boston files]

Telephone: 1022 London Wall. Telegraphic address: "Tracollone, London."

62, LONDON WALL,
London, E. C., April 14, 06.

DEAR MR. FISH: I am in receipt of some copies of letters which have passed between yourself and Mr. Mackey. He thinks I do not represent his interests and wants another person in my place on the Board—I have always considered myself as a representative of all the shareholders. I do not understand that Mr. Mackey has any interests in the policy of the company—not common to all shareholders. If he has then certainly I do not represent them. As to my absence, had I considered for one moment that my usefulness to the Co., little as it may be, was only attendance at the Board meetings—I should have retired long ago. As to the individual interest in certain of the shares standing in my name, that is a personal matter between Mr. Mackey and myself or the Mackey estate which I will not go into—Of one thing however you may feel quite sure and that is that I am the absolute owner of a very respectable number of shares, quite enough to qualify me as "Director"—and far greater than the average holding in the Co.

In view of what has taken place, I will try, briefly, to explain that which has been the subject of some comment, my position as to the telegraph business and the acquisition of the Postal system—From the very beginning of the "Telephone" business, so far as I have had to do with the policy of the Co. it was directed toward the ultimate absorption of the "Telegraph" business—I do not remember that I was alone in this, and as I believe and understand, this policy still exists.

I think Mr. Cochrane will recall a remark made by me—when the Western Union agreement was signed—to the effect that, if we were in the position I hoped we would be at the termination of the contract, that we should ask the W. U. for half of its capital stock for the privilege of continuing in business as one of our subordinate companies. Since that time the "Postal" has come prominently into the field. There is however a marked difference in the position and the business of the two companies.

The purpose of the Western Union is a domestic telegraph business—with an international cable business incidental to it—

The purpose of the "Postal" in the collection and distribution of an international cable business—with a domestic telegraph business incidental to it—

Any fight over the domestic telegraph business would result in disaster to the net earnings of the "Western Union" while it is doubtful if it would be particularly noticeable in the make up of the balance sheet of the "Mackey Cos."

The best time and the best way for the Telephone Co. to enter into the telegraph field once determined—it would have its own way.

From the nature of the business—the Executive Administration of the telegraph business should be distinct from that of the telephone business. Although the physical property might be the same.

To build up an efficient administration takes time and costs money—at the same expense these are many reasons why it would be better policy to buy—particularly if you were getting something that could not be easily reached in any other way—I do not claim to be stating any thing new—nor any thing in any way differing from the views of many if not all of the principal telephone managers.

For the above reasons I have thought that when the time was decided upon to start on the telegraph field—and if conditions were the same, that it would be good policy to acquire the Postal system, if it could be got as I believe it could at a cost which was fully represented by useful property, utilizing the organization to carry on the telegraph business and also use it to handle the opposition telephone business—

This done further steps to be determined very largely by the attitude taken by the W. U.

It seems to me that now the financial position of the company is settled and secure and the market for its securities is widening, that the time will soon come when this question will come to the front—whether the above plan is now the best or whether it could be carried out on the lines laid down may be a question—Happily it is not the only course open. The conditions at the time must largely determine the course. It may perhaps needless to say that the interests of the Co. must surely be the determining factor—

I am very sorry to have taken up so much of your time—but I wished my position to be fully understood. Will you kindly show this letter to Mr. Cochrane and to Senator Crane.

THEO. N. VAIL.

Very sincerely,

EXHIBIT No. 1659-51

APRIL 23, 1906.

Personal.

Hon. W. MURRAY CRANE,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR CRANE: I enclose a copy of a letter from Mr. Vail about which I should like to talk with you when I next have the pleasure of seeing you.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

Enclosure.

[Source: Private Letter Book V.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-52

APRIL 23, 1906.

Personal.

HENRY S. HOWE, Esq.,
89 Franklin Street, Boston.

MY DEAR MR. HOWE: I enclose a copy of a letter from Mr. Vail which will interest you. Please return the copy to me, as I have other uses for it.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

Enclosure.

[Source: Private Letter Book V.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-53

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26, 1906.

Mr. F. P. FISH,
15 Dey Street, New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. FISH: Referring to your letter of the 23rd instant, with copy of letter received by you from Mr. Vail, I shall be glad to talk with you about this when I see you. I presume and hope that you have no intention of having Mr. Vail retire from the Board.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE.

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-54

253 BROADWAY,
New York, July 5th, 1906.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: Regarding our conversation of last Friday, I find by referring to your letter of March 7th that Mr. Vail was elected to your board on March 25th, 1902, which was prior to my father's death in the same year.

Very truly yours,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

F. P. FISH, Esq.,
President, American Tel. & Tel. Co., Boston, Mass.

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-55

OCT. 10, 1906.

FINANCE COMMITTEE OF THE MACKAY COMPANIES:

GENTLEMEN: In reply to your request for my opinion as to what effect a combination of the Western Union Telegraph Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company would have upon the telegraph business, I have to say,

The combined influences of the Western Union Company and the American Telephone Company would be very great and would undoubtedly be hurtful to the Postal Company's interest.

Such a combination would permit

The pole and wire facilities of both companies to be utilized, maintained and operated more efficiently and at a minimum cost.

Wires of both companies could be used to a considerable extent for both telegraphy and telephony, saving both companies from the necessity of stringing additional wires for some time to come.

The telegraph company has pole lines and wires to points not now reached by long distance service, which could be utilized by the telephone company and save expenditure of large sums of money for extensions, such as now contemplated by the telephone company to the Pacific Coast and elsewhere.

The use of the telephone wires for telegraph purposes would afford the telegraph company many more telegraph circuits for the handling of its business.

A similar use could be made by the telephone company of at least a portion of the telegraph company's wires, saving expense in construction and extension of lines.

Rights of way and pole privileges exchanged: Additional and superior rights of way on railroads.

Saving of expense for station linemen by using them for both properties.

Saving in pole rentals.

A combination telegraph and telephone service would be very attractive to the railroad companies and would no doubt influence railroad contracts.

Leased wires could be better maintained on account of the increased number of wires and routes.

Inventions owned or controlled by the telephone company could be used to advantage for telegraph purposes.

In the handling of telegraph business many economies could be effected which would reduce the cost of operation sufficiently to enable the telegraph rates to be reduced.

Many telephone pay stations could be utilized for the collection of telegrams, without any increased expense.

The telegraph company could close up many of its telegraph offices in hotels, and probably a number of branch offices in the larger cities, thereby saving rental and operating expense.

Rents in smaller cities and towns might be saved by occupying offices jointly.

Operating expenses could be reduced by employment of combination managers.

Telephones could be used for calling messengers for district service, etc., thereby saving expense of installing messenger callboxes.

In case the telegraph operators should strike, telephone could be used to some advantage for the handling of telegrams. This feature could be used as a strong argument against demands for increased wages.

Rather the strongest argument appealing to the telephone company would be the probable effect upon the public concerning the financing of competing telephone companies. The Bell Company would be rid of its fear of Western Union influence favoring such competing telephone companies. If the telephone company can make it difficult to finance competing companies, it would discourage new enterprises and make existing telephone competition much easier to deal with.

Just what effect such a combination between the Western Union and Bell interests would have upon the cable business, it is difficult to foretell. Inventions and improvements owned by the telephone company might be utilized to reduce the cost of operating and handling business over the ocean cables.

The foregoing is an opinion of what advantages of such a combination would accrue to the Bell Telephone and Western Union.

Such a combination could be used to cause The Mackay Companies to lose money on both its landlines and cables, and thereby force The Mackay Companies to its own terms.

The Postal Company now has about 12,400 offices reached only by telephone from which it exchanges telegrams. Of these about 8,000 are Bell telephone stations. These 8,000 telephone stations which now form a part of the Postal System are at points where the Western Union Company have no offices. These undoubtedly would be taken away from us.

Many other favors we are now enjoying from the Bell Company, such as exchange of pole line facilities and joint occupation of underground conduits in the cities throughout the country, might be withdrawn.

I think it safe to say that there is no likelihood of the Bell Telephone Company leasing or taking over the Western Union property on the 4% guarantee.

There are many reasons why a combination between the Bell Telephone and Postal lines would be a greater advantage and more desirable to the telephone company.

If an arrangement can be brought about by which the telephone company would take the Postal lines on a long term lease and a contract with the Commercial Cable Company for the collection and delivery of cablegrams, it would be to the great advantage of all concerned.

I consider such a combination the salvation of the Postal property and the removal of a possible drag upon The Mackay Companies.

I estimate that $2,000,000 is the maximum net earnings we can expect under the most favorable conditions on our present plant at present rates.*

*The rates have been increased since this was written.

I strongly recommend that efforts be directed towards obtaining from the telephone company a guarantee of $2,000,000 per annum and a fair proportion of any excess net earnings over $2,000,000 from the operation of the Postal plant.

Such an arrangement, if made, would place the Western Union Company at the mercy of the combination and would place the combination in position where it could, if desired, dictate terms and obtain the control of the Western Union property at a low price.

Very respectfully,

WM. H. BAKER,
Vice Pres. & Genl. Mgr.

[Source: Folder, "Western Union Statistics and Suggestions," T. N. Vall's file.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-56

[Source: Folder, "Western Union Statistics and Suggestions," T. N. Vall's file]

[Copy attached to letter of Oct. 10, 1906]

While a combination of the telephone and telegraph might still require separate organizations for the conduct of the telephone and telegraph business, it would seem possible and practicable to consolidate the local companies of the telephone in one organization with one management located at New York or Boston, and do away with the corps of officials of the local organizations, thus effecting uniform methods of operation and management and great saving in expense, inasmuch as each local organization now maintains a managing staff of presidents, vice presidents, secretaries, treasurers, general managers, electricians, engineers, &c., &c., all of whom are paid liberal salaries.

It is thought that such a combination of local telephone companies would result in a saving equivalent to a large percentage of the dividend now paid by the parent company.

If such a combination of the local companies could be effected, the parent company could afford to sell some of its present holdings in the local companies to prominent local firms and individuals, thus recovering local influence, which has, to a certain extent, been acquired by the opposition companies.

The most competent of the officers of the local organizations could either be made members of the Board of Directors of the parent company or members of an advisory committee.

Four men to be selected as the representatives of the Telephone Company in charge of four territorial divisions, to be known as the Eastern, Western, Southern, and Pacific divisions.

Those appointed to the advisory committee would be practical working men, conversant with the details of the business, and would prove of great assistance to the Board of Directors.

A combination of the local companies with uniform management and methods would result in many other economies.

The telegraph business would be incidental to the telephone business and would place the companies in position to handle it more efficiently and at minimum cost.

WM. H. BAKER

EXHIBIT No. 1659-57

CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
President.

THE MACKAY COMPANIES,
(Boston, Massachusetts.)
253 BROADWAY,

NEW YORK, Dec. 24th, 1906.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: We would like to have a list of the stockholders of your Company, with their addresses, in order to send to them a copy of the regular annual report of The Mackay Companies, which will be issued February 15th. Inasmuch as The Mackay Companies is by far the largest stockholder in your Company, we think it desirable that your stockholders should know who we are, and our condition, and we think it to the advantage of both institutions that this should be done.

I trust there will be no objection to this, especially as we understand that you will necessarily prepare such a list next month. We are quite willing to pay any expense connected with the preparation of the same.

Very truly yours,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

F. P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Tel. & Tel. Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-58

DECEMBER 28, 1906.

Personal.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,

The Mackay Companies, 253 Broadway, New York.

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: I will see that you have a list of the stockholders of our Company, as requested in your letter of December 24.

Allow me to say that it seems to me unwise, under the present condition of public sentiment, to advertise the fact that one large corporation is interested to a substantial extent in the stock of another. I sincerely hope that you will refrain from emphasizing the fact of your holdings in the stock of our Company, in the interest of both of our companies.

Do you not agree with me that this course is wise?

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 46.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-59

THE MACKAY COMPANIES
(Boston, Massachusetts)

253 BROADWAY

CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
President.

NEW YORK, December 31st, 1906.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: I am pleased to receive your favor of the 28th inst. stating that you will see that I have a list of your stockholders as requested. I hardly think you will object to the very brief way in which our annual report will refer to your Company. Last February in our report we stated that we were one of the largest stockholders in your Company, and the effect was very good indeed. I think the public will welcome a closer alliance of the telegraph with the telephone. In Europe they are operated together for public convenience. Moreover, it is necessary for us to explain to our stockholders in a general way the purposes for which our outstanding preferred shares have been largely increased during the past year.

If agreeable to you, will you kindly request your Treasurer to insert in the list of stockholders the holdings of those who own one thousand shares or over?

Yours very truly,

F. P. FISH, Esq.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-60

TRUSTEES

CLARENCE H. MACKAY.
WILLIAM W. COOK.
GEORGE G. WARD.
DUMONT CLARKE.
EDWARD C. PLATT.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, President.
GEORGE G. WARD, Vice President.
EDWARD C. PLATT, Treasurer.
ALBERT BECK, Secretary.
WILLIAM W. COOK, General Counsel.

THE MACKAY COMPANIES
(Boston, Massachusetts)

253 BROADWAY

NEW YORK, February 1st, 1907.

FREDERICK P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Telephone and Telegraph Co.,

Boston, Mass.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: The Trustees of The Mackay Companies have requested me to write you and call your attention to the fact that The Mackay Companies owns over 70,000 shares of stock in your company and is by far the largest stockholder, its holdings being over four times those of your next largest stockholder. In view of this great interest which The Mackay Companies now has in your company, the Trustees feel that we should have three representatives on your Board, and they have designated Mr. Dumont Clarke, Mr. Pliny Fisk, and myself as their choice for such positions.

As you, of course, are aware, not one of your eighteen Directors, excepting Senator Crane, owns over 2,000 shares of your stock in his own right; at least that is what your books show, and we submit that it is proper that a stockholder who owns over 70,000 shares should be given representation on your Board. We would also call your attention to the fact that while your company controls the New York Telephone Company, yet the Western Union Telegraph Company which owns only 20% of the stock of the New York Telephone Company, has five out of the thirteen directors of that company. We submit that The Mackay Companies with its large holdings of stock in your company should have representation. We consider that we are entitled to it and expect that it will be granted.

Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
President.

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-61

FEB. 10, 1907.

DEAR MR. FISH:

The Mackay Cos have nerve.

Their interests are opposed to ours and of course at this time cannot secure representation.

I see no reason for more than acknowledging receipt of letter at this time but later on it may be well to record the fact of divergence of interests & actual injury to the Shareholders as a whole from any representation of Mackay Cos.

Yours sincerely,

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, Jr.

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-62

FEBRUARY 13, 1907.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,

President, The Mackay Companies, 253 Broadway, New York.

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: I have just returned from the west and am only now able to answer your letter of February 1.

I have not consulted with any of my Executive Committee or my Directors on the subject of your letter, but take the liberty of expressing at once my own personal views on the subject therein referred to.

Speaking personally, I should be glad to consult with your Company or with any of our large stockholders on the subject of Directors. We have a clear common interest in desiring the best available men for the position, and we cannot get too much help in selecting them. I feel, however, that each and all of the Directors should represent each and all of the stockholders, and that it is unwise to have any stock interest specifically represented on the Board.

If you will allow me to go a little farther, it seems to me that at the present time it would be a very great mistake for one large corporation to have a definite and specific representation on the Board of another large corporation. This probably would be true under any conditions, but is, in my opinion, of special weight in a case like the one we are now considering, where the two companies are to some extent competitors, and where your Company is interested in such a large number of other companies, including some of our most aggressive competitors.

I shall bring the matter before our Executive Committee and shall of course be governed by their views.

I should personally be glad to consult with you with reference to the make-up of the Board, although, as I now look on it, not on the theory that your Company, as a stockholder, is entitled to specific representation.

Allow me to add that I should regard it as an honor to have the three gentlemen whom you name on our Board of Directors, in so far as their character, standing and personality are concerned.

I shall later write you again on the subject.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 47.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-63

[Source: President's Boston files]

CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
President.

THE MACKAY COMPANIES
(Boston, Massachusetts)

253 BROADWAY

NEW YORK, February 19th, 1907.

FREDERICK P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., Boston, Mass.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: I am surprised to receive your letter of the 13th instant, because it is a new theory to me that, inasmuch as a director should represent all stockholders, a large stockholder should not, by reason of his large holdings, be entitled to name one or more directors. I gather that such is your reasoning, but it seems to me that that would mean that it would be better if the directors owned no stock whatsoever, which, of course, is contrary to the theory on which corporations, as well as co-partnerships, are organized.

In reply to your mention that we are interested in some of your most aggressive competitors, I would say that we own stock in six so-called independent telephone companies, our largest holding being in the Michigan State Telephone Company (and even that company is considered your ally), and our holding in that company is worth less than thirty thousand dollars, while our holdings in your company are worth nearly ten millions of dollars.

We repeat that we are entitled to representation on your board and shall not be content until we get it. We own more stock than all your directors combined.

We have men on our staff who were experts on poles and wires before the telephone was invented. We conduct our affairs without extravagance or waste, and we know where our money is coming from before we spend it. We believe our influence in these respects would do your company no harm.

There is another thing more important vastly than the above. We think you will agree with us that you will want several hundred millions of dollars fresh money during the next ten years in your business. How are you going to get it? There are various ways in which we can help you very substantially, and we have every reason for helping you, but how can we help you when you slam the door in our faces as you seem inclined to do?

Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
President.

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-64

WALL STREET, CORNER NASSAU, NEW YORK

FEBRUARY 21, 1907.

MY DEAR MR. FISH: I am in receipt of your favour of the 20th, advising that Mr. Drum is in town, and have written him as you suggested.

I also have your favour referring to the subject of Directors, and will bear your suggestion in mind.

I have also received your letter enclosing copy of letter to you. The letter is an amusing screed, and the suggestion one which I think should be firmly dealt with in the interest of our own company.

I trust you are very well. Kindly let me know when you are to be in New York again, and very greatly oblige,

Yours faithfully,

JOHN J. WATERBURY.

F. P. FISH, Esq.:

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-65

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, Feb. 21, 1907.

Mr. F. P. FISH,
President, 125 Milk St., Boston.

DEAR MR. FISH: Your letter of the 20th instant is received enclosing copy of one which you received from President Mackay. If you have not already replied to the same I wonder if it would not be better to simply write Mr. Mackay that you would refer the matter to the directors and that you would advise him definitely later on. This course might serve to prevent an unpleasant and disagreeable correspondence.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE.

[Source: President's Boston files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-66

FEBRUARY 25, 1907.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,
President, The Mackay Companies, 253 Broadway, New York.

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: Your letters of February 1 and February 19 have been submitted to members of our Board of Directors for consideration, and they will give the matter careful thought and authorize me to communicate with you in a few days.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 47.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-67

MARCH 6, 1907.

JOHN I. WATERBURY, Esq.,
20 Wall Street, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. WATERBURY: At its meeting this morning, the Executive Committee resolved informally to ask Mr. Nathaniel Thayer, yourself and myself to consider the question of Directors. Mr. Thayer will be glad to help in the matter and plans to call on you at eleven-thirty Friday morning.

I shall be in Albany tomorrow. My address will be Ten Eyck Hotel. I do not want to be in New York Friday unless it is necessary. However, if you will telegraph me at the Ten Eyck Hotel that you think I should come to New York tomorrow night, I will do so.

The general feeling of the Executive Committee was that it would be better not to have bankers selected but first class commercial men of high standing, if we can get them; also that preference should be given to those who are active in New York rather than in Boston.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book V.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-68

DALTON, MASS., March 9, 1907.

Mr. F. P. FISH, President,
Boston.

DEAR MR. FISH: Referring to our talk on the telephone to-day, I regret that I cannot attend the meeting Monday afternoon called for the purpose of considering the advisability of inviting Messrs. Pliny Fiske, Schoonmaker and McLean to become members of the A. T. & T. Co. board. I know of the first named gentleman by reputation, but the other two I have never heard of, and I trust that the directors will make very careful inquiry before extending an invitation to them. The directors ought, in selecting new associates, if possible invite such men as either have a thorough knowledge of the business, or that are at present or likely to become heavily interested in the Company. Possibly some one may have assurance that such may be the case with the gentlemen named. Personally I would like to know more about them, and will make careful inquiry at first opportunity.

I would like very much to have Mr. Cutler of New York become a member of the board, provided that he would be willing to serve, as his knowledge of the telephone business and reputation in New York would be of much value to the Company.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. CRANE.

[Source: President's Boston Files.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-69

MARCH 11, 1907.

Hon. W. MURRAY CRANE,
Holland House, New York City.

MY DEAR SENATOR CRANE: All the Directors who are accessible met at my office this afternoon and considered the question of the vacancies on our Board. Mr. Thayer and myself reported that Mr. Schoonmaker and Mr. McLean had been named as desirable men and that it seemed, on the whole, wise to offer a position on the Board to one of the gentlemen suggested by Mr. Mackay in his letters, which you have seen. It was the general opinion of those present that of the men suggested by Mr. Mackay, Mr. Dumont Clarke was the best qualified, all things considered.

Your suggestion that Mr. Cutler should go on the Board was cordially received by all of us.

The Directors present finally united in suggesting that you, Mr. Thayer, Mr. Waterbury, and myself take the responsibility of selecting the gentlemen who shall be asked to become Directors.

There seemed to all of us some objections, not personal in character, to Mr. Pliny Fisk, the chief objection being that he is so active in Wall Street. It seemed to us as if a bank president of the type of Mr. Clarke would, on the whole, add more strength to the Board.

I suggest that you see Mr. Waterbury tomorrow and talk the matter over with him. I sincerely hope that you will let nothing interfere with your being in Boston on Wednesday, when we shall have a large number of important meetings in the afternoon. Wednesday forenoon Mr. Thayer will be very glad to talk matters over with you.

From a telephone conversation with Mr. Waterbury, I judge that he is inclined to think that just at this time it might be better to take a strong man not associated with our Company rather than Mr. Cutler. The more the subject was discussed this afternoon, the more all present seemed to agree that Mr. Cutler would be as likely to strengthen the Board as anyone who could be suggested. Among other things, it was suggested with great force that if he were on the Board, other New York men might be attracted to it and that such New York men as were on the Board would, through him, be in a position to get at the telephone business, in whole or in part, much more easily and completely than if there were no Director in New York thoroughly acquainted with telephone affairs.

As the easiest way of getting at the result, I think that I shall send to Mr. Waterbury a copy of this letter which I am writing to you.

Very truly yours,

F. P. FISH, President.

[Source: Private Letter Book VI.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-70

MARCH 22, 1907.

DEAR MR. MACKAY: It is the opinion of those whom I am obliged to consult that it is not wise to elect upon our board too large a representation of another and to some extent a competing corporation. In this view I am obliged to agree. It seems particularly inexpedient to elect the President of that Company one of our Directors, much as we should regard it as an honor to have him on our board if the conditions of public sentiment were different.

We very much regret that Mr. Dumont Clarke was not inclined to accept our invitation to allow us to elect him as one of our Directors.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) FREDERICK P. FISH.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.:

[Source: President's Letter Book 47.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-71

JULY 14, 1908.

JOHN I. WATERBURY, Esq.,
20 Wall Street, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. WATERBURY: There are a great many statistics and reasons why it would be advantageous to this company to acquire the Western Union Telegraph Company which I think would be rather unwise just at present to put on paper.

As far as the question between acquiring the Western Union and the Postal is concerned, while originally I was very strongly in favor of acquiring the Postal, it was at the time the Postal was capitalized at its true value and could have been acquired at that capitalization. The principal thing that the telephone company wants in acquiring a telegraph company is the organization. If it were not for the difficulty and expense of building up an organization which would extend over the whole country and which is necessarily distinct in certain lines from the telephone company, then the telephone company could probably equip itself for telegraphing as cheaply by building lines as by purchasing. In doing that, however, it would still leave formidable competitors in the field, which it is much better to remove.

It is practically impossible under present conditions to build up a rival telegraph company. The Postal Company may be considered as a telegraph adjunct to a cable company, created and supported for the purpose of delivering and collecting its cable messages, incidentally doing a telegraph business. Whether it is profitable or not under the conditions that exist is not a momentous question, as the profits on the cable business of the Postal Company are fully equal to taking care of both the cable and telegraph.

The Western Union, on the other hand, is more purely a telegraph company with a cable adjunct and under the conditions I doubt whether the Western Union derives any profits whatever from their cable business. The reason, therefore, for acquiring the Western Union, to begin with, rather than the Postal, is that we can get a system which will be immediately of more benefit to the telephone company than the Postal, and probably at less cost to the telephone company. Had the telegraph business of the country been undisturbed, it would have shown relatively as great, if not greater growth, than the business of any other public service corporation, and would have had sufficient increase in net profits to have taken care of all the increased capitalization created by all the companies. As it is, while the growth of the gross revenue has been considerable, the net revenue has actually decreased.

When the telephone business was in its developmental state and during the protracted negotiations between the Bell and the Western Union, it was proposed and for a time seriously considered by a large number of those in the Bell interests to divide the telephone business—the Bell taking the exchange business and limit it to a 15-mile radius, the Western Union to take the extra-territorial business as it was then called—that is, all business from points within to points without the 15 mile radius, and all business between the different exchanges. This would embrace all of what is now known as the toll and long distance business. While this business was as yet undeveloped, both as to practicability or public demand, yet I had conceived a system embracing all subscribers and all exchanges forming a harmonious, universal and interdependent system controlled by one interest and one policy. I therefore opposed giving the Western Union this toll line business and finally won over to my side all of the dissenting elements of the Bell interests. Had the Western Union taken the toll line business, it would have been the controlling factor of the toll line business, and instead of a vanishing net revenue would have continued its expansion and held its relative position in the business field, providing it had managed its business with foresight, and by contract and other legitimate methods, kept control of the toll business. The development of the toll and long distance telephone business has destroyed completely as to net revenue and largely as to gross revenue, the short distance telegraph business, and it has cut very largely into the middle long distance business, taking all that class of business which can afford the cost. With long distance business, cost is largely a secondary consideration—embracing as it does some of the elements and advantages of the “telegraph” in its message and answer, the “mail” or “letter” without limit as to scope and extent, and of “travel” as to its quality of personal interview. The result has been the loss to the telegraph company of the greater part of its most profitable business.

An analysis of the business of the Western Union will show that in the past twenty years, which covers the development of the toll line telephone business, the net profits, after deducting the telephone revenue, have decreased very largely. During this same period, the Western Union has expended in construction many millions of dollars, about half of which has been taken from the so-called net revenue, and half provided by new capital.

I think you will agree with me that any expenditure for construction purposes which does not produce an increase of net revenue should not be capitalized, particularly if in the net revenue existed little or no margin after the payment of charges and dividends.

Under existing conditions, the Western Union can take care of necessary but unprofitable construction, and probably earn for dividends estimated on a safe basis, from a million and a half to two million dollars a year, not including its telephone revenue. During periods of great business activity, this would probably be increased temporarily.

Another cause of trouble in the future with the telegraph company is their competition for rights of way on railroads and privileges in hotels and public places. In the past twenty years, the relative expense of these items alone have fully doubled. Telegraph men who thoroughly understand the situation estimate that from two millions to five millions a year could be saved in these last two items alone. A large saving could also be made in the joint management of the plant department—that is, maintenance and construction—in the right of way department. The time is coming when it will be necessary for the telegraph company to absolutely own their right of way the same as railroads through the country between all the larger towns.

It has been suggested that the Western Union would ultimately have to be reorganized. I do not think that this, under any conditions which may arise in the near future anyway, is likely to come about, as under the existing conditions the Western Union could always earn enough to maintain itself and pay its fixed charges. A destructive competition by reducing the prices of messages between the larger towns would probably wipe out net earnings from the business, but no competition that exists or is possible except the telephone competition, can reach over 40%, and probably not over 30% of the total business of the Western Union, for while it is a fact that 80% of the telegraph business of the country originates or ends in a few of the larger cities, yet not in my opinion, to exceed 30% of it is between those large cities. This fact was the cause of all the failures in the past of telegraph promoters, who depended upon the business alone and not upon other reasons.

The telephone company reaching about twice as many points in the United States as the telegraph company by their wires, of course would not have this trouble to contend with.

The success of Mr. Gould and the Postal Telegraph Company was entirely due to other reasons.

The reason why this matter should be taken up immediately is that if the Western Union were controlled by the telephone company, all its lines could be utilized to a greater or less extent for toll lines and long distance telephone business. The telephone company will be obliged to spend a great many millions of dollars, fully as many as the telegraph company will cost, to provide toll line facilities which could be largely avoided if it had the use of the Western Union facilities, or the control rather—as the mere use without the absolute control—would be of no account.

If the acquisition is delayed and this expenditure is made, then there would be an unnecessary duplication of plant which it would take years to utilize.

The only objection that I can see to the immediate acquisition is that it might affect the distribution and absorption of the convertible bonds among and by the investment public, and thus affect the future credit of the telephone company. There never will be a time, however, when the telephone company from its standpoint along will be as independent of the money market as it is today. The only question to be considered is whether the one balances the other; that is a matter that the financial people can better determine for themselves.

So far as business is concerned, all is showing well.

Five months of operating companies show—

Gross revenue.....	$48,814,700	increase	$3,009,300
Operating Expense.....	36,038,400	"	1,974,700
Net.....	12,776,300	"	1,034,600
Misc. Earnings.....	2,057,600	"	185,600
Total Net.....	14,833,900	"	1,220,200

In the operating increased expenditure, $1,367,800 was due to appropriation for maintenance partly unexpended, and $213,800 to taxes.

The A. T. & T. Co. will show for the six months:

	1907	1908
Earnings.....	$9,736,659	$11,792,327
Expenses.....	1,032,670	1,073,770
Net.....	8,704,089	10,718,557
Net Traffic.....	1,832,114	1,966,865
Total net.....	10,536,203	12,714,622
Interest.....	3,439,792	3,871,676
Balance.....	7,096,411	8,842,946

The construction account of the associated companies is for the first five months largely inside the estimate and the allotments.

The cutting off of undesirable business—by enforced collections and more rigid supervision has made room for a better class of subscribers, giving an increase in revenue.

The toll line business is less in many cases than last year but that fluctuates with business conditions, except that the normal growth as a rule takes care of any reduction from other causes.

The revenue of the A. T. & T. Co. has not been brought about by any increase in dividends as they are in all cases at the same rate as last year. The rate of interest was increased last year and this has had a small effect on the increase; otherwise, it is a legitimate and not forced increase.

Very sincerely yours,

THEO. A. VAIL, President.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-72

(Fekschal).

Nov. 24th, 1909.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,

President, Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., 253 Broadway, New York.

DEAR MR. MACKAY: Yours of the 23d instant received.

The matter will receive immediate attention, and when I return to New York will take up the matter again. Meantime, if you could have gotten together all the matters of which you spoke to me, we will take them up and try and dispose of them.

Sincerely yours,

THEO. A. VAIL, President.

[Source: President's Letter Book 9.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-73

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

15 Dey Street

NEW YORK, Nov. 30th, 1909.

Personal.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,

*President, Postal Telegraph-Cable Co.,
253 Broadway, New York.*

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: Your letter of November 27th was forwarded to me in the country, and I have just returned and hasten to answer.

We regret very much that you feel compelled to take this action, but understand your reasons therefor. Any step looking to the protection of your own interests would of course be also to our own favor—therefore I have no suggestions to make. I would, however, like to see you before you make your plans and dispose of the matter, as I think it possible it may result to our mutual advantage.

Sincerely yours,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-74

DEC. 22d, 1909.

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, Esq.,

253 Broadway, New York.

MY DEAR MR. MACKAY: If agreeable to you, I will be glad to meet you at the Hotel Gotham (55th St. & Fifth Ave.) to-day at 4.30 o'clock.

Sincerely yours,

THEO. N. VAIL.

[Source: Binder entitled "T. N. Vail Personal May 27, 1907 to Jan. 21, 1911."]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-75

DEC. 23RD, 1909.

MY DEAR MR. VAIL: According to our conversation of last evening, I took up the question of the selling of our telephone holdings with my associates this morning, and they take the same view as previously held, namely, that in view of the fixed charge against us of 4% on our preferred shares, we are not justified in selling at less than the figure mentioned; namely, 143 plus the current dividend. As a matter of fact, we believe that if we cared to withdraw entirely for the present, we would have no trouble to sell this stock at 150 or better during the course of the coming year. However, we have no inclination to do that, for the present at least.

As to the other matters, I have had a talk with Mr. Nally, and he will take them up in detail with Mr. Hall at once. Will you kindly so inform Mr. Hall?

With the compliments of the season,

Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.:

EXHIBIT No. 1659-76

CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
President.

THE MACKAY COMPANIES

(Boston, Massachusetts)

253 BROADWAY

NEW YORK, February 18, 1910.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,

President, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., New York.

MY DEAR MR. VAIL: Confirming our talk over the telephone this morning The Mackay Companies and The Commercial Cable Company give you the option for ten days from date to purchase the 82,906 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph Company's stock which they own in the aggregate, at the price of one hundred and forty-three dollars ($143) per share, plus a proportion of the present accruing dividend thereon, figuring it from January 1st to the date of payment, each month being taken by itself.

Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, President.

[Source: Boston President's files, Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., Folder 11.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-77

CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
President.

THE MACKAY COMPANIES
(Boston, Massachusetts)
253 BROADWAY

NEW YORK, February 19th, 1910.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,

President, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, New York.

MY DEAR MR. VAIL: In reply to your favor of yesterday inquiring as to the terms of payment in case you exercise your option, I think there will be no difficulty about it. With a substantial payment down, the balance might remain on the usual time collateral notes. The rate of interest would correspond to the dividend you would be receiving, which figures out a trifle over $5\frac{1}{2}\%$ on the purchase price—the same basis as the option. When you get that far along, if you will indicate to me your wishes, I think I can arrange it to your satisfaction, inasmuch as we have no present use for the money.

Yours very truly,

CLARENCE H. MACKAY, President.

[Source: Boston President's files, Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., Folder 11.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-78

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

WILLIAM A. GASTON, President

THE NATIONAL SHAWMUT BANK
Capital and surplus $8,000,000

BOSTON, MASS., April 27, 1909.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,

*President, American Telephone & Telegraph Company,
15 Dey Street, New York, N. Y.*

DEAR SIR: I enclose at the request of Mr. Robert Winsor, a letter to the National Bank of Commerce, requesting that Bank to transfer from our funds with them tomorrow morning after clearing, $7,500,000, to the credit of Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Company. The funds necessary to transfer we are charging against the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, understanding that a voucher will be given us tomorrow morning by the Assistant Treasurer of your Company, as stated by Mr. Winsor over the telephone.

Yours very truly,

WILLIAM A. GASTON, President.

[Source: Former Boston files, room 1124.]

[Source: Former Boston files, room 1124]

BOSTON, MASS., June 24th, 1909.

Mr. T. L. CHADBOURNE, JR.,
30 Pine Street, New York.

DEAR SIR: In consideration of the efforts heretofore made and hereafter to be made by you to acquire for me Western Union Telegraph Company capital stock, I agree to purchase through or from you, shares of said Company up to but not exceeding in the aggregate one hundred thousand (100,000), and to pay you for the same Seventy-five Dollars ($75) per share, plus Five Dollars ($5) per share commission. All stock which you acquire you will deliver to me in accordance with the terms of this letter.

I agree to take such stock from you from time to time as you purchase the same, the stock to be tendered by you and taken by me at the office of Kidder, Peabody & Co., in New York City, in blocks of not less than ten thousand (10,000) shares at a time, unless I instruct you from time to time to make smaller deliveries. You, however, will always report to me the net price paid by you upon each purchase made by you within twenty-four hours after making same.

It is understood that I shall retain one-half of the difference between the net cost to you of all stock you may acquire and Eighty Dollars ($80) per share, paying you the balance. Your net cost above to include commissions paid by you, but you are to pay no commission above the regular New York Stock Exchange rate.

The above and foregoing offer to purchase stock from you will remain open for three months from the date hereof, and your favorable reply will constitute a contract between us subject to written modifications only.

Very truly yours,

(Handwritten:) Endorsement: Referring to the above proposition accepted by Mr. Chadbourne today. I agree to take all of said stock (not exceeding 100,000 shares) you may offer to me at $75.00 per share plus $5.00 commission.

THEO. N. VAIL,
For the Am. Tel. & Tel. Co.

JUNE 24.

[Carbon copy of letter of Robert Winsor (for Kidder, Peabody & Co.) to T. L. Chadbourne, Jr., and Mr. Vail's endorsement.]

[Source: Former Boston files, room 1124]

MR. ROBERT WINSOR,
Boston, Mass.

JUNE 24TH, 1909.

DEAR SIR: Replying to your proposition of June 24th, 1909, respecting purchase of Western Union Telegraph Company Capital Stock, up to but not exceeding one hundred thousand (100,000) shares, the same is accepted by me.

Very truly yours,

[Carbon copy of letter from T. L. Chadbourne, Jr., to Robert Winsor (for Kidder, Peabody & Co.) accepting proposition as stated in his letter of June 24, 1909, herewith.]

MR. W. SHELMEERDINE,
American Telephone and Telegraph Company,
195 Broadway, New York, New York.

ROOM 1600, 195 BROADWAY,
New York, N. Y., March 30, 1937.

DEAR MR. SHELMEERDINE: In your letter of March 29, 1937, you state with respect to the advance of over $22,000,000 by American Telephone and Telegraph Company to Kidder, Peabody and Robert Winsor in 1909, that "we feel that the records already made available to the Commission's investigators indicate what the Diamond State and the American Company received as a result of the transaction in question."

As the records made available to Commission staff do not clearly indicate the consideration received for this advance to Kidder, Peabody, are you prepared to state definitely that Diamond State Company and American Telephone and Telegraph Company received in exchange for this sum, stock of Western Union Telegraph Company? If so, will you kindly indicate how many shares of stock were so acquired.

Very truly yours,

N. R. DANIELIAN,
Financial and Utility Expert,
Telephone Investigation.

c/c John H. Bickley, Chief Accountant.
NRD: mh.

Exchange 3-9800

Comptroller
 CHARLES A. HEISS
 Assistant comptrollers
 PIERRE W. SAXTON
 CLYDE UHRIG
 ALLAN B. CRUNDEN
 ROY B. SHAVER
 HARRY C. GRETZ

Chief statistician
 SEYMOUR L. ANDREW
 Assistant to comptroller
 JOHN W. VAN SANT

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
 195 BROADWAY NEW YORK
 April 14, 1937.

Mr. N. R. DANIELIAN,
Financial and Utility Expert, Telephone Investigation,
Federal Communications Commission,
New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your letter of March 30 relative to acquisition of Western Union stock, the data summarized in the attached statement have been obtained from the records of the several companies involved in this transaction, which records have previously been made available to members of the Investigating Group of the Commission.

The records do not contain the definite statement that Western Union stock was received for the money in question, but they appear to justify a conclusion that the American Company in the end acquired Western Union stock for the amount of approximately $22,000,000 advanced to Kidder, Peabody and Company and Robert Winsor, such shares being part of the total acquisition by the American Company from Atlantic and Pacific Company of 295,572 shares @ $85 per share for a total amount of $25,123,620, which evidently included acquisitions in addition to those related to the advances in question. We shall be glad to make these records available for your inspection if you so desire.

As a result of further exhaustive search in the last few days among some old papers in the files sent here from Boston, we have found a few additional papers having a bearing on this transaction. Included is a letter dated April 27, 1909 from the President of The National Shawmut Bank to Mr. Vail relative to a transfer of $7,500,000 to the credit of Kidder, Peabody and Company. Another is a carbon copy of a letter dated June 24, 1909 from Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody and Company to T. L. Chadbourne, Jr., agreeing to purchase shares of Western Union stock not exceeding 100,000 shares, to which Mr. Vail added an endorsement agreeing on the part of the American Company to take the stock so acquired at a price of $75 a share plus $5 commission.

Assuming that you would want to review these papers, we are forwarding them herewith. The usual form of receipt covering them is also enclosed for your signature.

Yours truly,

W. SHELMEDEINE

Enclosure

DATA FROM VARIOUS RECORDS RE ACQUISITION OF WESTERN UNION STOCK

On April 28, 1909 the American Company vouchered and paid to Kidder, Peabody & Co. $21,660,902, the voucher reading "amount advanced on account of loan to Diamond State Company to be accounted for."

On April 29, 1909 $1,406,084 was repaid by Kidder, Peabody & Co. leaving a balance of $20,254,818.

On April 29, 1909 the American Company vouchered and paid to Robert Winsor of the firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. $1,945,378, the voucher reading "advance on account of loan to Diamond State Company to be accounted for."

On April 30, 1909 a journal entry was made on the books of the American Company charging Diamond State Company with $22,200,196 for "demand note of Diamond State Co. dated May 1, 1909 with interest at 5% per annum given in settlement of cash advanced during April, 1909" and crediting Kidder, Peabody & Co. with $20,254,818 and Robert Winsor with $1,945,378.

On June 1, 1909 the American Company paid to Diamond State Company $41,092.68 and returned to the Diamond State Company that company's note for $22,200,196 in return for which the American Company received a demand note of the Diamond State Company dated May 1, 1909 for $22,241,288.68.

A report of the Diamond State Company headed "Stocks and Bonds Owned June 30, 1909" shows an item of $22,241,288.68 under "Purchase of Securities as per vote of Executive Committee." Neither the books of the Diamond State Company nor the votes of that company's Board of Directors or Executive Committee have been located and we do not find any other Diamond State Company report or record which gives additional information in respect of these transactions.

On November 16, 1909 the Executive Committee of the American Company approved a loan of $22,625,000 made November 15, 1909 to the Atlantic and Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company evidenced by 4% demand notes of that company and the cash book of the American Company shows the following entries relating to this transaction:

On the credit side:

Atlantic and Pacific Tel. and Tel. Co.—Loan----- $22, 625, 000. 00

On the debit side:

Diamond State Co.—Notes----- ¹$20, 150, 000. 00
 " " " —Interest----- 109, 631. 25
 " " " —C. D. & P. Notes----- 800, 000. 00
 " " " —Interest----- 5, 880. 00

21, 065, 511. 25

Two checks drawn on the National Shawmut Bank:

One for----- $59, 488. 75

One for----- 1, 500, 000. 00

1, 559, 488. 75

$22, 625, 000. 00

¹ This amount represented the balance of Diamond State notes held by A. T. and T. at this date.

Kidder, Peabody & Co. in a letter dated November 15, 1909 acknowledged receipt of the check for $1,500,000. The amount of $59,488.75 was entered as a receipt on the Atlantic and Pacific cash book.

The Atlantic and Pacific Company by journal entry charged the total amount, $22,625,000, to the Diamond State Company and credited the Diamond State Company from the cash book with the $59,488.75 received from the American Company. By further journal entries acquisitions of Western Union Company stock were recorded by the Atlantic and Pacific Company as follows:

Date Purchased	Consideration	Number of Shares	Price per Share	Amount
Nov. 15, 1909.....	Account of Diamond State Co. credited.	266, 068	$85	$22, 615, 780
Nov. 23, 1909.....	4% Demand Notes to A. T. & T. Co. $2,300,000. Cash to Robert Winsor $136,625.	28, 665	85	2, 436, 525
Dec. 15, 1909.....	4% Demand Notes to A. T. & T. Co....	839	85	71, 315
Total (three entries)...		295, 572		$25, 123, 620

A transcript of the account with the Diamond State Company in the ledger of the Atlantic and Pacific Company follows:

Diamond State Company

1909				1909
Nov. 15	Bills pay. (A. T. & T. Co.)	Jul. 1	$22, 625, 000. 00	Nov. 15	W. U. Stock..	Jul. 1	$22, 615, 780. 00
Nov. 16	Cash.....	3	50, 268. 75	Nov. 15	Cash from A. T. & T. Co.	2	59, 488. 75
Dec. 15	Securities Bal.	Jul. 1	300. 00	Dec. 15	Cash.....	2	300. 00
			$22, 675, 568. 75				$22, 675, 568. 75

On December 20, 1910 the records show that the American Company purchased from the Atlantic and Pacific Company the 295,572 shares of Western Union stock at its cost to Atlantic and Pacific Company, $85 per share, ($25,123,620) cancelling notes of the Atlantic and Pacific Company in like amount.

EXHIBIT No. 1659-79

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

[Copy]

SEPT. 29TH, 1915.

N. T. GUERNSEY, Esq.,
General Counsel.

MY DEAR MR. GUERNSEY: This Company has been requested to participate in the proposed loan to Great Britain and France, which is now being placed in this country, on the grounds that this loan is necessary to the continuance of the present industrial conditions created by the state of affairs in Europe.

It is urged that our interest in this situation should warrant our serious consideration, and if no objection is found, to a possible participation.

Please consider this seriously from a legal standpoint whether or not we are warranted should we desire to participate in this loan.

Sincerely yours,

(Sgd.) THEO. N. VAIL.

(Handwritten:) Papers filed with Mr. Buckland 10/7/15. #604608.

[Source: Mailing Department files.]

NATHANIEL T. GUERNSEY,
General Counsel.
 CHARLES D. N. COLE,
General Attorney.

THOMAS J. PERKINS,
Assistant Attorney.

[Copy]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY (MR.)
 15 Dey Street

NEW YORK, October 1, 1915.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,
President.

MY DEAR MR. VAIL: I have before me your note of the 29th ultimo, with reference to the participation of this company in the proposed loan to Great Britain and France, and have carefully considered the question from the legal point of view.

Under its charter, this company has not the right to engage in the business of loaning money. As incidental to its general powers, it, however, has the right from time to time to temporarily invest such surplus funds as it may have on hand. Under this incidental power the company, if it had an idle surplus, might invest in the securities to be issued in furtherance of this loan. The question becomes then one of fact, viz., has the company idle surplus funds for which it is in good faith seeking a temporary investment, and is this such an investment as the company would seek for such funds?

The assumption that a failure of the loan would affect business conditions here and therefore indirectly affect our business goes hardly to the question whether the company has the power to make investments of this character, but rather, (granting the existence of this power as I have stated it) to the question whether the company should make this particular investment. It may properly be a factor in the determination of that question, just as would be the rate of interest, the term of the loan, the fact that the bonds are to be listed, and other like matters.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd) N. T. GUERNSEY.

[Source: Mailing Department files.]

OCTOBER 1ST, 1915.

HENRY S. HOWE, Esq.,
 89 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

MY DEAR MR. HOWE: The question of our Company participating in the loan to England and France has been before the Executive Committee and will again be called to their attention at the next meeting.

I asked our General Counsel to prepare an opinion on the matter, and beg to enclose herewith copy of the same for your consideration.

Sincerely yours,

(Sgd) THEODORE N. VAIL, President.

(Handwritten:) Above letter sent to the following: Ledyard, Lewis Cass; Adams, Charles Francis; Waterbury, John I.; Crane, W. Murray; Baker, Geo. F.

[Source: Mailing Department files.]

23 WALL STREET,
New York, August 21, 1916.

DEAR MR. VAIL: Aside from being very gratifying to us, it also would be very helpful to the general cause if you could see your way clear to buy say $5,000,000 of the new British Two Year Loan. You know it will net a shade better than 5½% and is as good and refined as gold. Any financing in connection with this will be looked after with pleasure.

Sincerely yours,

H. P. DAVISON.

T. N. VAIL, Esq.,
15 Dey Street, New York City.

[Source: Executive Dep't., files in room 2632A.]

D.25

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,

195 BROADWAY,
New York, Aug. 22, 1916.

MR. MILNE:

Our present estimates indicate that without any extraordinary expenditures we shall have cash at Dec. 31, 1916, of $15,000,000 to $18,000,000 of which about $9,000,000 will be immediately required in January for interest and dividends. Any extraordinary expenditures as for British 2 yr. loan or for extensions to 195 Broadway, or for Chicago Tunnel property will have to be specially financed and in any case we shall have to finance by next January or February for ordinary requirements.

DuBois.

[Source: Executive Dept't., files in room 2632A.]

[Copy]

AUGUST 23, 1916.

H. P. DAVISON, Esq.,
c/o Messrs. J. P. Morgan and Company,
23 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. DAVISON: I am sending you a copy of a memorandum from Mr. DuBois, in reference to yours of August 21st.

I will take up the matter at our next Executive Committee meeting or so soon as I can personally confer with some of the members.

Very sincerely,

(Sgd.) THEO. N. VAIL, President.

(Handwritten:) To Mr. Bethell from Mr. Vail.

(Handwritten:) Sept. 11, 1916. Mr. Vail & Mr. Bethell say to file—matter is past before any meeting is held over.

Enclosure:

[Source: Executive Dep't., files in room 2632A.]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.
Wall St. corner Broad.
New York.
DREXEL & Co.
Philadelphia.

MORGAN, GRENFELL & Co.
London.
MORGAN, HARJES & Co.
Paris.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2, 1916.

THEODORE N. VAIL, Esq.,
President, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
15 Dey Street, New York.

MY DEAR MR. VAIL: Before Mr. Davison left today to be absent until Monday, I understand he had some conversation with you about the possible purchase by the Telephone Company of $5,000,000 of the British Government Three and Five Year 5½% Notes, but that no decision on the matter could be reached until next week.

Inasmuch as we are closing the books on Saturday morning, we are subscribing for $5,000,000 of the bonds, divided equally between the two maturities and will hold these until your meeting next week, when if you wish to make a purchase on the basis of the issue prices we shall be glad to turn the notes over to you. If you decide not to take any action in the matter it will be quite satisfactory to us to keep them for our own account.

Yours very truly

T. W. LAMONT.

AMA/HPC.

[Source: Executive Dep't., files in room 2632A.]

Nov. 4TH, 1916.

T. W. LAMONT, Esq.,
Cor. Wall and Broad Street,
New York City.

MY DEAR MR. LAMONT: Yours of November 2d has been received. I told Mr. Davison that it was doubtful if we were in a position to tie up that amount of cash for any period.

Much to my regret, further consideration makes it impossible for me to recommend the matter to our Committee.

Sincerely yours,

(Sgd.) THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: Secretary's files.]

Form V 12

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT CORRESPONDENCE FILE
AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
15 Dey Street, New York

(Handwritten:) 2d & final papers. 11/24/16 Copy sent to Mr. Guernsey.
T D. B.

NOVEMBER 23, 1916

MESSRS. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
23 Wall Street,
New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: In anticipation of its needs for funds for some time to come, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company would like to have you and your associates make us an offer for about $80,000,000 30-year Collateral Trust 5% Bonds, to be callable at 105 and accrued interest on any interest date and to have provision for an annual sinking fund of 1% of the maximum amount of bonds at any time issued to be used in the acquisition of bonds up to or at the callable price.

The collateral originally deposited would be stock of our subsidiary, licensee and connecting companies, which have been continuously dividend paying over a long period and will consist of:

New England Tel. & Tel. Co. stock	(240)
New York Telephone Co. stock	(850)
Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. stock	(215)
Southwestern Bell Tel. System stock	(350)
Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. stock	(230)

(1,885)

to be pledged and maintained at 133½% value for each 100% par of bonds and in the proportion that the number in brackets opposite each company's name bears to the total of the numbers (1885). By mutual consent, these proportions might be varied and other stocks substituted. The valuation would be determined by agreement between you and ourselves, failing which, by arbitration.

The trust deed would be drawn in favor of some New York Trust Company to be mutually satisfactory and would follow substantially the lines of the old 4% collateral indenture of 1899, without the limitations as to mortgages by subsidiary companies, and without the stipulation of the deposit of proportionate shares of securities of sub companies. The details of the indenture would be such as would be mutually satisfactory.

The aggregate amount of bonds of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company outstanding at any time shall not exceed the par value of the then outstanding capital stock of the Company.

We should be glad to have you make us a proposal to purchase the above bonds for delivery on or shortly after December 1st, at such time as might be mutually satisfactory.

Sincerely yours,

(Sgd.) THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: Executive Dep't., files in room 2632A.]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

In response to request of March 16, 1937, of N. R. Danielian of the Federal Communications Commission as to the date on which the A. T. & T. Co. received the proceeds from the sale of the Thirty Year 5% Collateral Trust Bonds of 1946, and also as to the bank balances on the day prior and on the day of the receipt of the money from the sale of the 30 Yr. 5s of 1946, in the banks on which the checks were drawn by A. T. & T. Co. for the Company's participation to the extent of $20,000,000 in a loan¹ to the British Government on December 14, 1916, the following data are provided:

1. A total of $75,733,333.33, which included interest for 12 days at 5%, was received by A. T. & T. Co. from J. P. Morgan & Co. on December 13, 1916, from the sale of the Company's 30 Yr. 5% Bonds of 1946, $49,226,666.67 of which was credited to the Company's account with J. P. Morgan & Co. and the rest, $26,506,666.66 was credited to the Company's account with National Shawmut Bank of Boston.

2. A. T. & T. Co. bank balances in banks on which the checks were drawn for the Company's participation in loan to British Government were as follows:

Bank	Balance at close of business on 12/12/16	Balance at close of business on 12/13/16
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	$1,206,200.57	$22,014,817.21
Bankers Trust Co.....	1,690,895.26	5,373,031.92
1st Nat. Bk. of N. Y.....	1,312,186.48	5,012,186.48
Nat. Bank of Commerce.....	1,503,666.79	5,303,666.79
Columbia Trust Co.....	1,014,964.20	3,014,964.20
Guaranty Trust Co.....	1,468,142.67	4,958,142.67
National City Bank.....	1,024,030.05	4,624,030.05

MARCH 22, 1937.

¹ Repayment of this obligation which was a demand loan was made February 5, 1917.

12194

CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

Duplicate voucher

Voucher No. 12 95

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
December 14th, 1916.P. To J. P. MORGAN AND COMPANY,
Wall Street, New York.

For participation of this Company in a special 6% demand loan to the British Government, as arranged with you by President Vail----- 20,000,000.00 116 20,000,000.00
(Handwritten:) This rate changed to 5% in Jan. 1917. See Voucher Clerk's File #190.

Loan to be made on December 14, 1916.

X.

Entered notes receivable book—F. J. S. Tunison.

Ex. Com. 190.

(Handwritten:)

(Copy to Mr. ----- 3-12-37.)

Twenty million----- 20,000,000.00

[Source: Comptroller's Dep't.]

[Source: Comptroller's file]]

[Copy]

NM
December 14, 1916.MESSRS. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
Wall & Broad Sts., New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: I enclose herewith cheques as noted below amounting to $20,000,000. in payment of the participation of this Company of $20,000,000. in your six per cent. demand loan to the British Government, as arranged with you by President Vail.

Kindly send to me your acknowledgment of this payment, and oblige

Yours very truly,

G. D. M., Treasurer

Enclosures.

J. P. Morgan & Co-----	$3,000,000
Bankers Trust Co-----	3,000,000
First Nat'l Bank, N. Y.-----	3,000,000
Nat'l Bk. of Commerce, N. Y.-----	3,000,000
Columbia Trust Co-----	2,000,000
Guaranty Trust Co-----	3,000,000
National City Bank-----	3,000,000
	<hr/> $20,000,000

(RETURN TO COMPTROLLER'S FILE 422A)

[Copy]

DECEMBER 20, 1916

I hereby certify that the following is a true and correct copy of a resolution adopted by the Executive Committee of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at a meeting held December 20, 1916:

Resolved: that the action of the president in taking in behalf of the Company, on December 14, 1916, a participation of $20,000,000 in a special 6 per cent. demand loan to the British Government secured by the deposit with J. P. Morgan and Company, as trustees, of American securities having an estimated value equal to the face amount of the loan, and in addition, of the obligations of foreign governments having an estimated value of 33½ per cent. of said amount, be ratified and approved.

(Signed) A. A. MARSTERS,
Secretary.

[Source: Comptroller's Department, file 422A.]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.
Wall St. corner Broad.
New York.
DREXEL & Co.
Philadelphia.

MORGAN, GRENFELL & Co.
London.
MORGAN, HARRIS & Co.
Paris.

NEW YORK, December 30th, 1916.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH Co.,
New York City.

DEAR SIR: We enclose herewith our check to your order for $60,000, being interest at the rate of 6% per annum to January 1st, 1917, on your participation of $20,000,000. in a special demand loan to the British Government.

Kindly acknowledge receipt.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Enclosure.

(Handwritten :) Post from cash.

[Source: Secretary's files.]

NM

JANUARY 2, 1917.

836299

MESSRS. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
Wall St. cor. Broad.
New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: I have your favor of the 30th ult. enclosing cheque to the order of this Company for $60,000. covering interest at the rate of 6% per annum to January 1, 1917 on our participation of $20,000,000. in a special demand loan to the British Government.

Yours very truly,

[Source: Secretary's files.]

_____, Treasurer.

Return to Comptroller's File 422B

Mr. U. N. BETHELL,
Senior Vice President.

JANUARY 24, 1917.

DEAR SIR: We are advised by Messrs. J. P. Morgan and Company that the rate of interest on our participation on December 14, 1916 to the extent of $20,000,000. in the loan to the British Government has been reduced from 6% to 5% per annum effective January 9, 1917.

The resolution of the Executive Committee of December 20, 1916 approves the rate of 6%.

This is submitted for appropriate action by the Executive Committee.

Yours truly,

_____, Comptroller.

HBS/R

[Source: Comptroller's Department, file 422B.]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.
Wall St. corner Broad.
New York.
DREXEL & Co.
Philadelphia.

MORGAN, GRENFELL & Co.
London.
MORGAN, HARRIS & Co.
Paris.

NEW YORK, February 5th, 1917.

Strictly confidential.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
New York City.

DEAR SIR: We credit your account today $20,101,666.67, being repayment of your participation of $20,000,000 in a special demand loan to the British Government with interest at 6% per annum to January 9th, 1917, and thereafter at 5% per annum.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

(Written in:)

Int:

8 ds. @ 6%	26,666.67
27 ds. @ 5%	75,000.

101,666.67

EXHIBIT No. 1659-80

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

OCT. 21ST, 1918.

HON. NEWTON D. BAKER,
Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SIR: Some two years ago, at your request, we gave Mr. Walter S. Gifford a leave of absence from his duties here in order that he might serve for a time as Director of the Council of National Defense.

The changes in our organization made necessary by war service of many of our people and the carrying out of our obligations under our agreement with the Post Office Department with respect to Federal control of the telephone service make it necessary that we strengthen our force along lines in which Mr. Gifford is particularly qualified by his past experience with us to take an important part.

If it is possible for him to be spared from his present work for the Government, I would respectfully request that he be released so that he can return to us at as early a date as your convenience will permit.

Sincerely yours,

THEO. N. VAIL, President.

[Source: Binder entitled "T. N. Vail, Corp. Corr. Aug. 1, 1918 to Dec. 18, 1918."]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-81

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

DIRECTORS' MEETING, JUNE 18, 1919

Resolved: that Mr. U. N. Bethell be and is hereby given leave of absence for one year, with pay, and that during such period the powers and authority heretofore possessed by him as Vice President be suspended.

[Source: Secretary's files.]

[Source: Secretary's files.]

AGREEMENT BETWEEN U. N. BETHELL AND A. T. & T Co., JUNE 20TH, 1919

U. N. Bethell agrees:

- (1) To render such services to the Bell System within the State of New Jersey as may be reasonably required by the A. T. & T. Board of Directors or its Chairman, between July 1, 1919, and June 30, 1920.
- (2) To resign any office or position that he may hold in any Bell company when so requested by the A. T. & T. Board of Directors or its Chairman, and waive all claim for compensation for services rendered after July 1, 1919, in connection with any such office or position.
- (3) To transfer and deliver to A. T. & T. upon signing of this contract, the following securities:

1 Share Cleveland Telephone Co.
 10 Shares Central Union Telephone Co.
 150 Shares Chicago Telephone Company.
 150 Shares (Preferred) Michigan State Tel. Co.
 37 Shares Mountain States Telephone Co.
 100 Shares New England Tel. & Tel. Co.
 200 Shares (Preferred) Western Electric Co.

- (4) Relinquish and surrender all claims that he now has or may hereafter have against or upon any company in the Bell System under or because of the plan for disability benefits and pensions of such company.

In consideration of the foregoing, and in payment of traveling and incidental expenses incurred or to be incurred by U. N. Bethell on the company's account, to June 30, 1919, A. T. & T. Company agrees to pay to U. N. Bethell salaries in full as heretofore fixed by the various companies in the Bell system to June 30th, 1919.

(2) To pay to U. N. Bethell, at the First National Bank in Montclair, N. J., without any deduction for taxes imposed by the State of New York, the sum of $155,600,000, payable as follows: Upon signing this contract, $65,600; July 1st, 1919, $7,500; August 1st, 1919, $7,500; September 1st, 1919, $7,500; October 1st, 1919, $7,500; November 1st, 1919, $7,500; January 1st, 1920, $15,000; February 1st, 1920, $7,500; March 1st, 1920, $7,500; April 1st, 1920, $7,500; May 1st, 1920, $7,500; June 1st, 1920, $7,500.

(3) To buy from an insurance company or companies, acceptable to U. N. B., and deliver to him on or before July 1st, 1919, a policy or policies in his favor and behalf, providing for the payment to U. N. B., or his assigns, an annuity or annuities, aggregating $30,000.00 per year payable in equal monthly installments at the end of each month after July 1st, 1920, during the life of U. N. B.

(4) To defend U. N. B. at its expense in actions brought by C. H. Venner, now pending, and in any action or proceeding that may be brought against U. N. B., by any one else, except the Company itself, because of any action of U. N. B. as director or officer of any Bell Company, or when acting in any other capacity by the authority of the Board of Directors of the A. T. & T. Company.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, JULY 2, 1919

Resolved: that the officers be authorized to purchase, for $64,800, the following shares of capital stock:

	Shares;
The Cleveland Telephone Company -----	1 "
Central Union Telephone Company -----	10 "
Chicago Telephone Company -----	150 "
Michigan State Telephone Co., preferred -----	150 "
The Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. -----	37 "
New England Tel. & Tel. Co. -----	100 "
Western Electric Co., Inc., preferred -----	200 "

[Source: Secretary's files.]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, JULY 2, 1919

Resolved: that the Company will, at its own expense, defend any actions now pending or hereafter brought against Mr. Union N. Bethell growing out of or based upon any action by him as director or officer of this Company, or of any other company constituting a part of the Bell System, or upon anything done by him in any other capacity by authority of the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company (except any such action brought by this Company or any such other company), and that it will indemnify and save the said Union N. Bethell harmless as against all such actions.

[Source: Secretary's files.]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, JULY 2, 1919

Resolved: that the full pay granted to Vice President Bethell by resolution of the Board of Directors dated June 18, 1919, during his leave of absence, shall be construed to include, in addition to his salary as Vice President of this Company, the salaries paid to him by associated and subsidiary companies of the Bell System at the rates in effect on said date, upon the discontinuance of such salaries by said companies, and that the payments to be made to Mr. Bethell by virtue hereof and of said resolution shall include his salaries for the full month of June, 1920.

[Source: Secretary's files.]

12198

CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

Duplicate voucher

Voucher No. 7. 8

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
July 3rd, 1919.

158-01

To U. N. BETHELL,

New York;

For purchase of following shares of capital stock:

	Shares
Cleveland Telephone Co-----	1	"
Central Union Tel. Co-----	10	"
Chicago Telephone Co-----	150	"
Mich. State Tel. Co.—Pref-----	150	"
Mtn. States Tel. & Tel. Co-----	37	"
New England Tel. & Tel. Co-----	100	"
Western Elec. Co., Inc.—Pref-----	200	"	64, 800. 00	106 64, 800. 00

Ex. Com. 313. D. L. F.

Entered stock book. B. Ronan.

Sixty four thousand eight hundred-----

[Source: Comptroller's Dep't.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-82

D28A

[From files of Federal Communications Commission]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
December 19, 1924.

Mr. HENRY S. HOWE,

89 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

MY DEAR MR. HOWE: With reference to the problem before the Committee which was appointed at the Tuesday meeting, I think it may be worth while to tell you in some detail what I have had in mind, which led me to suggest the present consideration of the subject and the appointment of a Committee.

Considering it first as an organization problem. This business of ours is in a class by itself. I will not rehearse figures with which the Committee is entirely familiar, but will emphasize one or two things.

Among the 180 odd corporations which the Company directly and indirectly controls are, of course, large and small operating companies. There is a manufacturing company with sales, I think, equalling or exceeding any other electrical manufacturing company in 1924. There are foreign manufacturing companies employing about 15,000 people and producing merchandise this year to the value of about $40,000,000. There are other kinds of business, including utility corporations and even a small railroad. It is a very large and somewhat complicated business. The whole nation is interested in the efficiency of its operation as well as about 350,000 stockholders and as many employees. The business has history and policies and character and morale which would be jeopardized if you ever again had to go outside of the organization for a President. We have, I believe, a very efficient and effective organization with all the elements of self-continuation. Since the election of Mr. Jewett on Tuesday I can say that in our headquarters' organization there is either a younger or an older man technically qualified and experienced, who could carry on, at least temporarily, the work of any department if that department's chief were removed.

That is true as to the position of chief responsibility, assuming that either Mr. Gifford or I could carry the load without the other. However, it seems reasonable to me that, before I lose the ability to carry the load, to avoid a situation where our dependence would be solely upon him, Mr. Gifford should be put in a position to be thinking about and finally establishing in position, someone to take over the responsibility in the event of anything happening to him.

You will see that I am greatly impressed with the responsibilities of the position and the desirability of providing for a succession from within the organization.

Then there is the question of finances and public relations. Because Mr. Vail had arranged for the election of a President when he was supposed to be well and vigorous, there was hardly a ripple of anxiety about the administration of the business when he died. It seems to me that we should try to avoid anything like a change in administration. It should be a continuous administration and the transfer of authority and responsibility should be made at the right time and in the right way as well as to the right man. I have always believed that for the benefit of this business, the change should be gradual—that the President should become Chairman of the Board at the summit of his powers and then as he becomes less necessary to the business, should gradually fade from the picture while his successor is as gradually filling it.

Finally, there is the personal side of the subject and that is the side which prompted me particularly to ask special study of it by a committee. There is no more important question can come before the Directors than the administration and it seems to me that it demands impersonal consideration. I am personally interested and being personally interested, it seems proper that I should avoid making an official recommendation, but should put the Directors in the way of coming to an independent conclusion. Mr. Gifford and I will be glad to be questioned. I have asked Mr. Houston to answer any questions without reserve.

I would suggest the consideration of the following questions but, of course, without the suggestion of limiting the Committee to them:

Is the plan of a gradual change desirable?

Should we take some action soon?

If so, when should we change the By-laws so as to provide for a Chairman of the Board?

When should we elect him?

Should there be any division of authority and responsibility and if so, what should it be?

What, if any, readjustment of salaries should be made?

I am sending a copy of this letter to Messrs. Adams and Alexander.

Yours very truly,

[Source: H. B. Thayer's personal files.]

D28A

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

December 29, 1924.

Mr. HENRY S. HOWE,

89 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

DEAR MR. HOWE: I have arranged for the dinner at the University Club for Tuesday evening, January 6th and have spoken to Mr. Alexander about it and find that he is free for that evening. I assume that you have similarly arranged with Mr. Adams about it. I will put the time for the dinner at 7:15 P. M. so that you would not have to hurry from your train. Mr. Alexander has since told me that he has heard from you and that that hour is satisfactory.

I think it can be arranged very easily so that you will have an opportunity to talk with Mr. Gifford and Mr. Houston by themselves. If Mr. Gifford is to take a larger part of the responsibility, it seems to me that his views as to how things should be set up should be given a good deal of weight and I am sure that he would be embarrassed in discussing such a subject in my presence and that is why I suggested and why I think it is really important that you should have some discussion of the matter with him.

As I mentioned in the meeting, Mr. Houston, besides being a Director of the Company, is, although not directly a part of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's organization, in such close connection with it that he has an opportunity to see the workings of the machine and would be able to consider the whole subject quite impersonally, so, looking forward to seeing you and Mr. Adams at dinner Tuesday evening, January 6th at the University Club at 7:15 P. M. and counting on your passing my invitation to dinner along to Mr. Adams, I am

Yours very truly,

[Source: H. B. Thayer's personal files.]

JUNE 11, 1923.

Mr. GEORGE F. BAKER,
2 Wall Street,
New York City.

MY DEAR MR. BAKER: I enclose a suggestion for a letter which will indicate the general character of what I had in mind.

I shall be very grateful for whatever you may be able to give us and I am sure that it will be of very great help to Mr. Houston.

Yours very truly,

H. B. THAYER.

DEAR MR. HOUSTON: Mr. Thayer tells me that you are going abroad with a view to making European bankers better acquainted with the soundness of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's stock and securities and the securities of its Associated Companies and he suggested that I give you a letter.

If you need an introduction to any of my banker friends abroad, perhaps this letter will serve.

I have been a Director and member of the Executive Committee of the Telephone Company for over twenty years. I have been very much interested in its policies and operations and that interest, together with a considerable financial interest and my duties as Director, has led me to study it with more than ordinary care. Its policies have been sound and have been justified by results. Its organization seems self-perpetuating. Men have come and gone but the steady progress of the company has not been impeded. It has been a great gratification to me to see the Company established as it is, firmly in the Goodwill of the Public and its stock and securities among the premier investments.

You can quote me as saying that I have confidence in the Company's future so far as one may foresee the future.

to be excellent.¹ By reason of the conservative financial and business policies which have always been followed by the management, the financial structure of the Bell System is exceptionally strong, and its earnings are satisfactory, and I know of no reason why they should not continue to be so. The management seems to be self-perpetuating. Men have come and gone but the steady progress of the Company has not been impeded.

I hope you will feel at liberty to use this letter in any way you may see fit.

With best wishes for a pleasant and satisfactory trip, I am

Very sincerely yours,

D. F. HOUSTON, Esq.,
President, Bell Telephone Securities Company,
195 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

[Source: H. B. Thayer's Confidential Company file.]

EXHIBIT No. 1659-83

[From files of Securities and Exchange Commission]

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

195 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Exchange 3-9800

DECEMBER 12, 1939.

Mr. LLOYD C. MATHERS,
Securities & Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. MATHERS: In accordance with your verbal request of yesterday, I am sending you herewith photostat copies of the following items:

Letter F. P. Fish to Charles H. Davis—12/6/05

Letter F. P. Fish to Edgar Speyer—12/16/05

Letter W. Murray Crane to F. P. Fish—1/27/06

Letter Lee Higginson & Co. to F. P. Fish—2/1/06

¹ So in original.

Copy of informal agreement (2/8/06), initialed by J. P. M., K. L. & Co., R. W., F. P. F. and W. M. C.

Copy of stockholders' resolution approved by stockholders at meeting December 21, 1905, authorizing the Board of Directors to issue $150,000,000 convertible bonds.

Very truly yours,

W. SHELMEKDINE.

Enclosures.

EXHIBIT No. 1660

[Letter from Leon Henderson, Commissioner, Securities and Exchange Commission, to Hon. J. Lawrence Fly, Chairman, Federal Communications Commission]

DECEMBER 1, 1939.

HON. J. LAWRENCE FLY,

*Chairman, Federal Communications Commission,
Pennsylvania Ave. & 12th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. FLY: As you are no doubt aware the Securities and Exchange Commission has been directed by the Temporary National Economic Committee, established pursuant to Public Resolution No. 113, 75th Congress, to conduct hearings before the Committee on investment banking. In this connection we intend during the week of December 11 to present aspects of the financing of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. We should like very much to offer in evidence certain exhibits prepared by the Federal Communications Commission at the time of its investigation of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. It is my understanding that the exhibits which we propose to use are all matters of public record.

The bearer of this letter, Mr. Jay Blum, a member of the Staff, would like to pick out the exhibits which we propose to use. These exhibits are to be found, I believe, in Exhibit 2097-A, Docket 1. If it meets with your approval could Mr. Blum tag the exhibits we want and request a member of your Staff to examine them and then permit us to make photostats.

Your courtesy and cooperation will be deeply appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

LEON HENDERSON, Commissioner.

EXHIBIT No. 1661-1

[Memorandum from Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission to Henry C. Alexander]

MEMORANDUM FOR HENRY C. ALEXANDER, ESQ., RE: AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO. FINANCING

In connection with our study of the financing of the Telephone System, this memorandum has been prepared to aid you in making available to us certain data and other information from your files.

- (1) It is our understanding that a telephone group under the leadership of J. P. Morgan & Co. came into existence about 1906 or 1907 and that the financing of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and its associated companies was handled by this group until 1934. Would you be good enough to provide us with the following information as to the make-up and history of this group:
 - (a) How did this group come to be formed?
 - (b) The names of the members of the original group and the percentage interest of the participants in the financing.
- (2) It is our understanding that the make-up and percentage interest of the members of the telephone group changed from time to time. Will you therefore indicate the changes in the composition and percentage interest of the participants of the group. It is to be noted that the changes in the group after 1920 have already been furnished us in the historical memoranda on the financing since 1920.

Will you be good enough to make available to Mr. W. S. Whitehead any memoranda, letters or other documents which bear upon the foregoing questions?

Dated: Washington, D. C., November 15, 1939.

EXHIBIT No. 1661-2

[Prepared by J. P. Morgan & Co.]

Feb. 13, 1906 American Tel. & Tel. Co. Convertible 4% due 3/1/36- $100,000,000
 Nov. 27, 1908 American Tel. & Tel. Co. Convertible 4% due 3/1/36- 50,000,000

Participants:

The original contractors consisted of—

J. P. Morgan & Co.
 Kuhn, Loeb & Co.
 Kidder, Peabody & Co.
 Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd.

each with a several liability of one-fourth and a liability for a total not exceeding one-third of the aggregate obligation.

By agreement with the four original contractors dated February 14, 1906, J. S. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation.

By agreement between J. P. Morgan & Co. and the First National Bank dated March 6, 1907, the First National Bank accepted a participation.

Upon final settlement of the account in 1908 the following percentages prevailed—

Kidder, Peabody & Co.	25%
J. P. Morgan & Co.	18¾
Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd.	22½
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	22½
J. S. Morgan & Co.	5
First National Bank	6¼

100%

Nov. 20, 1906 Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. 1st Mtge. & Coll. Trust 5%
 30 Yr. S. F. Bonds dated Jan. 2, 1907- $10,000,000

J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted an interest from The Bank of California of San Francisco of 8% in the above offering.

Jan. 8, 1907 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 Yr. 5% Notes dated Jan. 1, 1907, due Jan. 1, 1910- $25,000,000

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and	} 47½%
Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	22½
J. S. Morgan & Co.	5
J. P. Morgan & Co.	25

100%

Sept. 29, 1909 New York Tel. Co. 30 Yr. 4½% Bonds- $25,000,000

J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation from Kidder, Peabody & Co. of 10% in the above offering made by Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London.

The said 10% of J. P. Morgan & Co. was further divided, viz.:

J. P. Morgan & Co.	4%
First National Bank	2
National City Bank	2
J. S. Morgan & Co.	2

10%

Mar. 14, 1910 New York Tel. Co. 30 Yr. 4½% Bonds- $10,000,000

J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation from Kidder, Peabody & Co., of 25% in the above offering made by Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London.

The said 25% of J. P. Morgan & Co. was further divided, viz.:

J. P. Morgan & Co.	10%
First National Bank	5
National City Bank	5
Morgan Grenfell & Co.	5

25%

CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

12203

Dec. 9, 1908 Chicago Tel. Co. 1st Mtge. 5% Bonds due Dec. 1, 1923—	$5,000,000
J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted from Lee, Higginson & Co. a 2% participation in the above issue.
Dec. 6, 1910 Western Elec. Co. 1st Mtge. 5% Bonds—	$6,250,000
J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted from Lee, Higginson & Co. a 4% participation in the above issue.
Jan. 25, 1911 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 5½% Notes dated 2/1/11 due Nov. 1/11—	$8,000,000
Missouri & Kansas Tel. Co.-----	$3,500,000
Iowa Tel. Co.-----	2,500,000
Nebraska Tel. Co.-----	2,000,000
	<hr/> $8,000,000

Participants:

Guaranty Trust Co.-----	25%
Bankers Trust Co.-----	12½
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	12½
National City Bank-----	12½
National Bank of Commerce-----	12½
Mercantile Trust Co.-----	12½
Astor Trust Co.-----	3¾
U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co.-----	3½
Liberty National Bank-----	3¼
Chemical National Bank-----	2½

100%

May 27, 1912 and Nov. 22, 1912 New York Tel. Co. 1st & Gen'l Mtge. 4½% Bonds-----	$15,000,000
J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted from Kidder, Peabody & Co. a 10% participation in the above issue. The said 10% participation was further divided as follows:
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	2½%
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	7½

10%

Jan. 10, 1913 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 Months 6% Notes dated	$7,500,000
Jan. 10, 1913, as follows:
American Tel. & Tel. Co.-----	$3,500,000
Northwestern Tel. Exchange Co.-----	2,500,000
Iowa Tel. Co.-----	1,000,000
Cleveland Tel. Co.-----	500,000
	<hr/> $7,500,000

Participants:

National Bank of Commerce-----	26⅔%
Guaranty Trust Co.-----	26⅔
Bankers Trust Co.-----	20
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	16⅔
Liberty National Bank-----	3⅓
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	6%

100%

Jan. 8, 1913 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 20 Yr. Conv. 4½% dated	$67,000,000
Mar. 1, 1913 -----
(These Bonds were offered to stockholders for subscription. $1,556,300 Bonds were unsubscribed for and taken by group.)
Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and }-----	35%
Baring Brothers, Ltd., London }-----
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	15
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	5
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10
National City Co.-----	10
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	25

100%

Oct. 7, 1913 Nebraska Tel. Co. 6 Months 5½% Discount Notes dated 10/10/13	$3,500,000
Oct. 7, 1913 Iowa Tel. Co. 6 Months 5½% Discount Notes dated 10/10/13	1,500,000
Oct. 7, 1913 Northwestern Tel. Exchange Co. 6 Months 5½% Discount Notes dated 10/10/13	2,500,000
Oct. 7, 1913 Southwestern Tel. & Tel. Co. 6 Months 5½% Discount Notes dated 10/10/13	2,500,000

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Brothers, Ltd., London	35%
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	15
Morgan Grenfell & Co.	5
Lee Higginson & Co.	3¼
First National Bank, N. Y.	10½
National City Co.	10½
J. P. Morgan & Co.	20%
	100%

Feb. 21, 1914 Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. 30 Yr. 1st Mtge. S. F. 5% due 1/1/41	$5,000,000
--	-------------

Participants:

Robinson-Humphrey Ward Law & Co.	40%
Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London	18.9
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	8.1
Morgan Grenfell & Co.	2.7
Lee, Higginson & Co.	6.
First National Bank, N. Y.	6.075
National City Co.	6.075
J. P. Morgan & Co.	12.15
	100%

Mar. 31, 1914 Northwestern Tel. Exchange Co. 2 Yr. 5% Coupon Notes dated 4/15/1914	$7,500,000
Mar. 31, 1914 Nebraska Tel. Co. 2 Yr. 5% Coupon Notes dated 4/15/1914	4,000,000
Mar. 31, 1914 Iowa Tel. Co. 2 Yr. 5% Coupon Notes dated 4/15/1914	2,500,000
Mar. 31, 1914 Cleveland Tel. Co. 2 Yr. 5% Coupon Notes dated 4/15/1914	2,500,000
Mar. 31, 1914 Missouri & Kansas Tel. Co. 2 Yr. 5% Coupon Notes dated 4/15/1914	7,500,000
Mar. 31, 1914 Cumberland Tel. & Tel. Co. 2 Yr. 5% Coupon Notes dated 4/15/1914	6,000,000
	$30,000,000

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London	35%
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	15
Morgan Grenfell & Co.	5
First National Bank, N. Y.	11¼
National City Co.	11¼
J. P. Morgan & Co.	22½
	100%

May 25, 1914 Ohio State Telephone Co. Preferred Stock	$3,000,000
J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted from Otis & Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a 15% participation in the above issue.

Jan. 5, 1916 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 2 Yr. 4½% Notes dated 2/1/16 ----- $50,000,000

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and-----	33¼%
Baring Brothers, Ltd., London-----
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	14½
Lee, Higginson & Co.-----	5
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	4¾
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10½
National City Co.-----	10½
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	21¾

100%

Dec. 1, 1916 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 30 Yr. 5% Coll. Trust Bonds dated Dec. 1, 1916, due Dec. 1, 1946 ----- $80,000,000

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and-----	31½%
Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London-----
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	13½
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	4½
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10½
National City Co.-----	10½
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	20¼
Lee, Higginson & Co.-----	5
Harris, Forbes & Co.-----	5

100%

Jan. 5, 1918 Cumberland Tel. & Tel. Co. 1 Yr. 6% Notes dated 2/1/18, due 2/1/19 ----- $6,000,000

Jan. 5, 1918 Iowa Tel. Co. 1 Yr. 6% Notes dated 2/1/18, due 2/1/19 ----- 4,000,000

Jan. 5, 1918 Nebraska Tel. Co. 1 Yr. 6% Notes dated 2/1/18, due 2/1/19 ----- 5,000,000

Jan. 5, 1918 Northwestern Tel. Exchange Co. 1 Yr. 6% Notes dated 2/1/18, due 2/1/19 ----- 10,000,000

Jan. 5, 1918 Southwestern Bell Tel. Co. 1 Yr. 6% Notes dated 2/1/18, due 2/1/19 ----- 15,000,000

$40,000,000

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and-----	31½%
Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London-----
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	13½
Lee, Higginson & Co.-----	5
Harris, Forbes & Co.-----	5
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	4½
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10½
National City Co.-----	10½
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	20¼

100%

June 19, 1918 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 7 Yr. 6% Conv. Bonds dated 8/1/18, due 8/1/25 ----- $48,367,200

(Bonds were offered to stockholders for subscription. $37,522,600. Bonds were unsubscribed for and taken up by Syndicate.)

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and-----	31½%
Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London-----
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	13½
Lee, Higginson & Co.-----	5
Harris, Forbes & Co.-----	5
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	4½
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10½
National City Co.-----	10½
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	20¼

100%

Jan. 8, 1919 New York Tel. Co. 30 Yr. S. F. 6% Debentures dated 2/1/19, due 2/1/49-----	$25,000,000
Jan. 8, 1919 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 5 Yr. 6% Notes dated 2/1/19, due 2/1/24-----	40,000,000

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co. and-----	31½%
Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., London-----
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	13½
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10⅛
National City Co.-----	10⅛
Harris, Forbes & Co.-----	5
Lee, Higginson & Co.-----	5
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	4½
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	20¼

100%

July 3, 1919 Tri State Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 Yr. 6% Notes due July 1, 1922-----	$1,250,000
---	-------------

J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted from the National City Co. a participation of 10½% in the above issue.

Sept. 29, 1919 American Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 Yr. 6% Notes dated 10/1/19, due 10/1/22-----	$50,000,000
--	--------------

Participants:

Kidder, Peabody & Co.-----	31½%
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	13½
Lee, Higginson & Co.-----	5
Harris, Forbes & Co.-----	5
Morgan Grenfell & Co.-----	4½
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10⅛
National City Co.-----	10⅛
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	20¼

100%

EXHIBIT No. 1662

[From the files of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.]

COPY OF TELEGRAM SENT TO KIDDER PEABODY & Co., FOR MR. WINSOR,
BOSTON, MASS., FEBY. 8, 1906

It was not proper to ask us to sign an agreement involving such large responsibility without giving us an opportunity to carefully consider its contents. I signed it in the expectation that it had received your own and the Messrs Morgans careful scrutiny. I now find that the following rectifications need to be made before the agreement is delivered to you. Add a clause that each party of the second part liability shall not exceed thirty percent of the total liability further that the Company shall also advertise redemption and other matters in London and at least two continental centres and shall furnish the Bank with such data and statements as they may require for the purpose of any issue at home and in Europe. Stock in Companys treasury cannot be considered as outstanding its sale at a lower price than 140% would have the same effect, than the sale of new stock, any disposition of stock beyond one hundred thirty odd millions in public hands must therefore be confined to a new issue and affect the conversion price in the manner agreed upon. The prohibition against issue of unsecured obligations beyond one hundred and fifty millions need cover the entire period during which the Bonds run and remain unconverted nor should it be permissible to increase unsecured indebtedness until the twenty seven millions stock being the amount beyond the hundred thirty odd millions actually outstanding in hands of public are first disposed of.

JACOB H. SCHIFF.

EXHIBIT No. 1663

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

JAN. 8th, 1913.

(Hand written:) Confirmed—1/10—#19/1636.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK,
2 Wall Street, New York City.

DEAR SIR: Herewith we enclose to you copies of two communications of this date to Mr. Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in which is therein stated we offer, on behalf of ourselves and our associates, to purchase and take at par any and all convertible bonds of that Company described in such communication which shall have been offered to the stockholders to the amount of 20% of their several stockholdings, and shall not have been taken by them, we to receive, for ourselves and our associates, as compensation for such taking, the sum in cash equal to 2% of the principal sum of all the bonds so offered to stockholders.

An understanding upon the terms of this communication was reached with the President and members of the Executive Committee of the Company, and we are expecting to receive from the President a formal confirmation thereof of which we will send you a copy.

It is understood between us that you are associated with us and others and are interested in this purchase, compensation and expenses, to the extent of 10% thereof.

Later a formal contract will be prepared, in which you, ourselves and other associates will be parties on the one side and the Telephone Company on the other side.

Yours very truly,

Signed: J. P. MORGAN & Co.

P. S.—It is probable that we will have to make some modification of the percentage of allotment. As, however, we are not in a position to state the definite percentage today, we would appreciate it if you will confirm as above, subject to further advice.

(Handwritten:) Same to National City Co. Confirmed 1/13—19/2219.

EXHIBIT No. 1664

[From the files of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.
Wall St. corner Broad.
New York.
DREXEL & Co.
Philadelphia.

MORGAN, GRENFELL & Co.
London.
MORGAN, HARJES & Co.
Paris.

NEW YORK, January 6, 1916.

Confidential.

Messrs. KUHN, LOEB & Co.,
52 William Street, New York City.

GENTLEMEN: We beg to hand you herewith copies of letters which have passed between ourselves and the American Telephone & Telegraph Company covering the purchase, on the terms therein mentioned, of certain notes of its Associated Companies.

We have offered Messrs. Lee, Higginson & Co., and they have accepted, a 5% interest in this purchase on original terms.

If you desire to have the interest of 15% of the remainder in this purchase for yourselves, kindly let us have your confirmation at your early convenience.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

HPD-H1
Enclosures.

EXHIBIT No. 1665

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

[Copy]

Confidential.

NEW YORK, November 27, 1916.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH Co. 30 YEAR COLLATERAL TRUST 5% BONDS

MESSRS. KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.,
15 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Referring to our letter of the 24th instant, in regard to an interest in the purchase of $80,000,000 of the above mentioned bonds, we beg to confirm our understanding that, at the request of Mr. Vail, President of the Company, we have agreed to include Messrs. Lee, Higginson & Co. and Messrs. Harris, Forbes & Co. in the purchase on original terms.

This will make your interest in the above business 31½% instead of 35%, as previously advised.

We shall be glad to have you confirm that this is agreeable to you.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1666

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Participations on "original terms" in Telephone financing headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. 1906-1919

Issue	Amount	Date	Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Bros., Ltd., of London	J. P. Morgan & Co.	First National Bk. of New York	National City Co.	Morgan, Grenfell & Co., Ltd.	Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	Lee Higginson & Co.	Harris, Forbes & Co.
A. T. & T. Conv. 4s of 1936.	$100,000,000	2/13/06	} 47½	18¾	6¼	-----	5	22½	-----	-----
A. T. & T. 5s of 1910.	50,000,000	11/27/08		25	-----	-----	5	22½	-----	-----
A. T. & T. Conv. 4½s of 1933.	67,000,000	3/1/13		35	10	10	5	15	-----	-----
A. T. & T. Sub. Cos. 5½s of 1913.	10,000,000	10/10/13	35	20½	10½	10½	5	15	3¾	-----
A. T. & T. Sub. Cos. 5s of 1916.	30,000,000	4/15/14	35	22½	11¼	11¼	5	15	-----	-----
A. T. & T. 4½s of 1918.	50,000,000	2/1/16	33¼	21¾	10½	10½	4¾	14¾	5	-----
A. T. & T. 5s of 1946.	80,000,000	12/1/16	31½	20¾	10¾	10¾	4¾	13½	5	-----
A. T. & T. Sub. Cos. 6s of 1919.	40,000,000	1/5/18	31½	20¾	10¾	10¾	4¾	13½	5	-----
A. T. & T. Conv. 6s of 1925.	48,367,200	8/1/18	31½	20¾	10¾	10¾	4¾	13½	5	5
New York Telephone Co. 6s of 1949.	25,000,000	2/1/19	} 31½	20¾	10¾	10¾	4¾	13½	5	5
A. T. & T. 6s of 1924.	40,000,000	2/1/19		20¾	10¾	10¾	4¾	13½	5	5
A. T. & T. 6s of 1922.	50,000,000	10/1/19		20¾	10¾	10¾	4¾	13½	5	5

¹ Successors to J. S. Morgan & Co.

Source: Compiled from data supplied by J. P. Morgan & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1667

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

SUMMARY STATEMENT OF PARTICIPATIONS BY J. P. MORGAN & CO. IN ISSUES OF "ASSOCIATED" COMPANIES HEADED BY OTHERS

(1) On November 20, 1906, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted an 8% interest in an issue of $10,000,000. Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., first mortgage and collateral trust 5%, 30 year Sinking Fund Bonds, dated January 2, 1907, from the Bank of California of San Francisco.

(2) On September 29, 1909, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation of 10% in an offering of $25,000,000, 30 year 4½% Bonds of the New York Telephone Co. from Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd. of London. This 10% was further divided, as follows:

J. P. Morgan & Co.....	4%
First National Bank.....	2
National City Bank.....	2
J. S. Morgan & Co.....	2
	<hr/>
	10%

(3) On March 14, 1910, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation of 25% in an issue of $10,000,000 30 year, 4½% Bonds of the New York Telephone Co. from Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., of London. The 25% interest was further divided, as follows:

J. P. Morgan & Co.....	10%
First National Bank.....	5
National City Bank.....	5
Morgan Grenfell & Co.....	5
	<hr/>
	25%

(4) On December 9, 1908, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation of 2% in an issue of $5,000,000 First Mortgage 5% Bonds due December 1, 1923 of the Chicago Telephone Co. from Lee, Higginson & Co.

(5) On December 6, 1910, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation of 4% in an issue of $6,250,000—5% First Mortgage Bonds of the Western Electric Co. from Lee, Higginson & Co.

(6) On May 27, 1912, and November 22, 1912, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted an interest of 10% in an issue of $15,000,000 and L 2,000,000 4½% First and General Mortgage Bonds of the New York Telephone Co. The Morgan participation was further divided 2½% to Morgan Grenfell & Co. and 7½% to J. P. Morgan & Co.

(7) On February 21, 1914, J. P. Morgan & Co. participated in an issue of $5,000,000 5% First Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds of the Southern Bell Telephone Co. The participants in the issue were:

Robinson-Humphrey Ward Law & Co.....	40.0
Kidder, Peabody & Co. and.....	} 18.9
Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd. Lond.....
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	8.1
Morgan Grenfell & Co.....	2.7
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	6.0
First National Bank, N. Y.....	6.075
National City Co.....	6.075
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12.15
	<hr/>
	100.0

(8) On May 25, 1914, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation of 15% in an issue of $3,000,000 of Ohio State Telephone Co. preferred stock from Otis & Co. of Cleveland.

(9) On July 3, 1919, J. P. Morgan & Co. accepted a participation of 10½% in an issue of $1,250,000 3 year 6% Notes, of the Tri-State Telephone & Telegraph Co., due July 1, 1922, from the National City Co.

[Source: From data supplied by J. P. Morgan & Co.]

"EXHIBIT No. 1668," appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11827

EXHIBIT No. 1669

[Telegram from R. S. Peterson, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., to H. L. Stuart]

CHICAGO, ILL., December 15, 1939.

H. L. STUART,

Care Old Caucus Room, Senate Office Building:

In TNEC hearing December thirteen Nebemkis tried to show me we had something to say about placing paying agency public service northern Illinois by reading into record interoffice memorandum from Buck to Shrader dated August seventeen nineteen thirty eight but did not read into record pencil notation across face of letter by FKS reading as follows: quote Answered by wire we will have nothing to say about it and Chase can do whatever they like unquote Without Shrader's notation such letter in record not consistent with facts and conveys wrong impression which you may wish to clear up if opportunity presents itself today.

R. S. PETERSON.

"EXHIBIT No. 1670" appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11795.

EXHIBIT No. 1671

[From the files of the representative of the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.]

American Telephone Proprietary Interests

	Mar. 1906	Am. Tel 5% Notes Jan. 1907	Conv. 4 1/2's April 1913	Tel Stock Dec. 1913	Am. Tel Sub. Notes Aug. 1914	Jan. 1916	Dec. 1916	Sept. 1918	May 1922
J. P. Morgan & Co.	25						25	25	20
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	22.50						13.50	13.50	10
J. S. Morgan & Co.	5
1st Nat'l Bank, N. Y.							10	10	10
Nat'l City Bk, N. Y.							10	10	10
Harris, Forbes & Co.							5	5	5
Lee, Higginson & Co.							5	5	5
Guaranty Trust Co.						5	5	5	5
Bankers Trust Co.									5
New England									15
Kidder, Peabody & Co.	18					35	31.50	31.50	15
Baring Bros. & Co. Ltd.	15								15
Estabrook & Co.	4
Old Colony Trust Co.	6.50
R. L. Day & Co.	4
	100.00
	N. E. 47 1/2 %	N. E. 47 1/2 %	N. E. 35 %	N. E. 35 %	N. E. 35 %	N. E. 35 %	N. E. 31.50 %	N. E. 31.50 %	N. E. 30 %
NEW ENGLAND
R. L. Day & Co.	4	4	2.50	2.50	2.50	2.50	2.25	2.50
Estabrook & Co.	4	4	2.50	2.50	2.50	2.50	2.25	2.50
Old Colony Trust Co.	6.50	6.50	4		4	4	3.60	4
Hayden, Stone & Co.						1.66	1.50	1.66
F. S. Moseley & Co.		10		(1)	(1)
Kidder, Peabody & Co.	18	13	15	19	15	13.34	12	19.50
Baring Bros & Co. Ltd.	15	10	11	11	11	11	9.90
	47.50	47.50	35	35	35	35.00	31.50	31.50

¹ Gave Hayden 1/9th.

(Handwritten): Compiled for R. W. Aug. 16/20.

EXHIBIT No. 1672

[From the files of the representative of the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.]

(Sept. 19, 1918)

Proprietary Interests American Telephone & Telegraph Company

J. P. Morgan & Co.....	25	%
First National Bank.....	10	%
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	13½	%
National City Bank.....	10	%
Harris, Forbes & Co., Inc.....	5	%
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	5	%
Kidder, Peabody & Co. ¹	31½	%
	100	%
¹ Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	14.80	%
Baring Bros. & Co.....	4.70	%
Old Colony Trust Co.....	4.	%
Estabrook & Co.....	2.50	%
R. L. Day & Co.....	2.50	%
Hayden, Stone & Co.....	1.66	%
F. S. Moseley & Co.....	1.34	%
	31.50	%
Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	19.50	%
Old Colony Trust Co.....	4.	%
Estabrook & Co.....	2.50	%
R. L. Day & Co.....	2.50	%
Hayden, Stone & Co.....	1.66	%
F. S. Moseley & Co.....	1.34	%
	31.50	%
	100.000

Italic indicates pencil figures.

EXHIBIT No. 1673

[From the files of the representative of the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.]

NEW YORK, May 5th, 1920.

"Original terms" group on future purchases of A. T. & T.¹ securities as agreed to, at "the Library," this morning between J. P. M., H. P. D. & R. W. K. P. & Co. to manage N. E. & J. P. M. & Co. the rest of the country.

J. P. M. & Co.....	20
First.....	10
City.....	10
K. L. & Co.....	10
Harris, F. & Co.....	5
L. H. & Co.....	5
Guaranty Tr.....	5
Bankers.....	5
	70.
K. P. & Co.....	15
O. C. Tr.....	3
Estabrook.....	2½
Day.....	2½
Moseley.....	1½
Hayden, S. & Co.....	1½
First.....	2
Shawmut.....	2
	30
	100%

Negotiations to be joint but both free to talk with the Co. and to help them in any way in their power.

(¹ Meaning purchase or underwriting of A. T. & T. or Sub-Co. securities.)

EXHIBIT No. 1674

[From the files of the representative of the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.]

September 30, 1920.

New England Proprietary interests.

Interest in Pennsylvania Bell
Selling Syndicate.

Kidder, Peabody & Co.	14 3/4	Old Colony Trust Co.	$250,000.
Old Colony Trust Co.	- 3%	Katzbrook & Co.	250,000.
Katzbrook & Co.	- 2 1/2%	R. L. Day & Co.	180,000.
R. L. Day & Co.	- 2 1/2%	Hayden, Stone & Co.	100,000.
F. S. Moseley & Co.	1 1/3%	F. S. Moseley & Co.	200,000.
Hayden, Stone & Co.	1 2/3%	National Shawmut Bk.	250,000.
First National Bank	- 2%	First National Bk.	200,000.
The Chaumut Corporation	3%

29 3/4

Consolidated Interest with
First Natl. Bank on Jan. 1st, 1921
as per J. H. Chapman Feb. 17/21

Sept-1920

They ask us to make it Haystone Securities Corp.
April 9, 1923

Made change as of Nov. 30/25

EXHIBIT No. 1675

[From the personal effects of the late Robert Winsor]

23 WALL STREET, NEW YORK, August 17th, 1920.

MY DEAR MR. WINSOR: You were good enough to suggest that I make the adjustment of the $\frac{3}{4}$ of 1% in the telephone allotment which is to be given up by some one to furnish another $\frac{3}{4}$ of 1% to Kuhn Loeb & Co. I find almost insurmountable difficulties in taking this out of any of our New York associates. I am also handicapped by not knowing the considerations which affected the original division of 70% to New York and 30% to Boston.

If you have no objection, I will tell Kuhn, Loeb & Co. that they are to have a 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ % interest in the group and we can leave for adjustment between Mr. Davison and yourself whether that is to come from J. P. Morgan & Co. or from Kidder, Peabody & Co., or, if from both, in what proportions. Mr. Davison will be home in about two weeks.

Yours very truly,

DWIGHT W. MORROW.

ROBERT WINSOR, Esq.,

Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Co., 18 Broad Street, New York City.

EXHIBIT No. 1676

[From the personal effects of the late Robert Winsor]

AUGUST 18, 1920.

DEAR MORROW: I have your note of yesterday, and am quite willing that the matter about which you write should be left for adjustment between Mr. Davison and myself after his return in September.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT WINSOR.

DWIGHT W. MORROW, Esq.,

23 Wall St., New York, N. Y.

"EXHIBIT No. 1677" appears in full in the text, p. 11903

EXHIBIT No. 1678

[From the personal effects of the late Robert Winsor]

OCTOBER 1, 1920.

MY DEAR MORROW: I have your letter of September 28th, and confirm the arrangement as to the division of the additional Telephone allotment to be given up to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

I am most thankful that things went along all right on the Pennsylvania issue.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT WINSOR.

DWIGHT W. MORROW, Esq.,

Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., New York, N. Y.

(Hand-written matter on margin reads:) I've just been called up by your friend C. C. and he certainly showed (and in a financial matter) again, an awfully level head.

EXHIBIT No. 1679

[From the files of the representative of the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.]

14

American Tel & Tel Co.

	Dividend Support	Dividend Support
J.P. Co.	20	20
1st	10	10
City	10	10
K.P. Co.	15	15
K.L. Co.	10	10
H.P. Co.	6 1/2	5
L.H. Co.	6 1/2	5
Smart	6 1/2	5
Baker	6 1/2	5
K.C.	9	15
	<hr/> 100	<hr/> 100

May 6th 1920.

21
17
0261

EXHIBIT No. 1680-1

[From the files of the representative of the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. Pencil memorandum by Clifford M. Brewer]

MEMORANDUM

JAN. 31/24,

To Southwestern Bell.

 $\frac{1}{4}$ K. P. $\frac{3}{4}$ J. P. M. & Co. } $\frac{1}{8}\%$ balance $\frac{7}{8}$ divided as usual to proprietors.

EXHIBIT No. 1680-2

[From the files of the representative of the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.]

JANUARY 25, 1924.

At the time of the purchase of Southwestern Bell Telephone First 5%, Series "A", of 1924, the Proprietary Profit was distributed on a different basis, in accordance with letter from J. P. Morgan under date of January 25th, 1924, as follows following extract:

"We are forming a Syndicate in which we shall participate to purchase these bonds from ourselves and associates at 91% and accrued interest and to offer them to the public subscription at 93½% and accrued interest. In accordance with the discussion at the meeting at which the above purchase was reported yesterday, today, we plan to charge a managing commission of one-eighth percent on the principal amount of bonds to be issued. After full consideration of the matter and in line with the understanding that the decision as to the allocation of this one-eighth percent would be left to us, we have thought it was reasonable to charge it against the profit of the original purchasers."

"The above method to be followed in all subsequent telephone issues, i. e., 1% of issue, less ½% for Managers' commission.

"1% of said ½% to go to K. P.

"¾% of " ½% to go to J. P. M.

"Remaining ¼% to be divided among the Proprietors.

"The above paragraph had been crossed out in pencil.]

New England Proprietary Interests

Old Colony Trust Co. ¹	3%
Bank of Boston & Co.	2½%
First Nat. Bank & Co.	2½%
First Nat. Bank	1½%
First Nat. Bank	1½%
First Nat. Bank	2
First Nat. Bank	2
First Nat. Bank	14¾
	29¾

(Footnote written footnote:) ¹ February 17/30—As per J. R. Chapin Old Colony Company with First Natl. & check for 5% interest was sent to First Natl. Bank on American Tel. & Tel. 5% Deb. due 1965.

EXHIBIT No. 1681-1

[Received from J. P. Morgan & Co. to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Wall St. corner Broad, New York

NEW YORK, December 5, 1939.

HENRY R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

Special Counsel, Monopoly Study, Investment Banking Section, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS:

In reply to your telegraphic request of November 30, 1939, I enclose herewith a schedule regarding American Telephone & Telegraph Company and associated company financing from January 1, 1920, to June 16, 1934.

Yours very truly,

HENRY C. ALEXANDER.

Enclosure.

EXHIBIT No. 1681-2

[Table accompanying Exhibit No. 1681-1]

*American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Associated Companies, January 1, 1920, to June 16, 1924*¹

Date of Issue	Title of Issue	Amount of Issue	Our Share of Managing Commission	Original Group		Selling Syndicate or Group		Our Total Profit before Overhead Expenses, Salaries & Taxes
				Amount of Our Interest	Our Net Profit	Amount of Our Interest	Our Net Profit
Nov. 3, 1923	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 20-Yr. S. F. 5½% 11/1/43	$100,000,000	-----	$20,000,000	$200,000	$5,015,000	$84,015.75	$284,015.75
Jan. 8, 1925	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 35-Yr. S. F. 5% Debs. 1/1/60	125,000,000	$184,062.60	25,000,000	206,250	8,000,000	125,587.25	496,899.75
Jan. 13, 1920	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 35-Yr. S. F. 5% Debs. 2/1/65	150,000,000	168,750.00	30,000,000	253,000	10,271,000	194,796.14	618,546.14
Sept. 30, 1920	Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 25-Yr. 1st & Ref. 7½% S. F. "A" 10/1/46	25,000,000	-----	5,000,000	50,000	785,000	24,013.15	104,013.15
Jan. 11, 1923	Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 25-Yr. 1st & Ref. 5½% 1/1/48	35,000,000	-----	7,000,000	70,000	2,260,000	31,970.49	101,600.99
Sept. 16, 1923	Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 1st & Ref. Mlge. 5% "C" 0/1/60	50,000,000	56,250.00	10,000,000	85,000	3,540,000	63,346.57	204,866.57
June 14, 1923	Illinois Bell Telephone Co. 1st & Ref. Mlge. 5% "A" 6/1/65	50,000,000	-----	10,000,000	100,000	3,042,000	44,016.52	144,016.52
May 26, 1922	New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st Mlge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 6/1/52	35,000,000	-----	7,000,000	70,000	2,235,000	39,145.64	109,145.64
May 13, 1928	New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st Mlge. 41½% 5/1/61	50,000,000	45,000.00	8,000,000	48,000	2,610,000	49,407.03	162,407.03
Nov. 12, 1921	New York Telephone Co. Ref. Mlge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 1/1/41	50,000,000	-----	10,000,000	100,000	1,772,000	45,103.79	145,103.79
Jan. 8, 1921	Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. Ref. Mlge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 2/1/41	30,000,000	-----	6,000,000	60,000	955,000	34,693.30	94,693.30
May 2, 1922	Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. Ref. Mlge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 5/1/52	25,000,000	-----	5,000,000	50,000	720,000	13,027.95	63,027.95
Oct. 13, 1923	Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st Mlge. S. F. 5% 1/1/41	32,000,000	33,000.00	5,000,000	55,200	4,940,000	72,672.90	160,872.90
Jan. 24, 1924	Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st & Ref. Mlge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 2/1/44	50,000,000	46,875.00	10,000,000	87,500	3,000,000	52,765.00	187,140.00
Mar. 27, 1924	Western Electric Co. Inc. 20-Yr. 5% Debs. 4/1/44	35,000,000	37,500.00	7,000,000	60,000	1,805,000	25,668.16	123,168.16
	Total	$827,000,000	$551,437.50	$166,400,000	$1,516,950	$50,900,500	$900,933.14	$2,969,320.64

¹ Table first submitted, Dec. 5, 1928.

[Table accompanying Exhibit No. 1681-1]

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Associated Companies January 1, 1930 to June 16, 1934¹

Date of Issue	Title of Issue	Amount of Issue	Our Share of Managing Commission	Original Group		Selling Syndicate or Group		Our Total Profit before Overhead, Expenses, Salaries & Taxes
				Amount of Our Interest	Our Net Profit	Amount of Our Interest	Our Net Profit
Sept. 30, 1920	Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 25-Yr. 1st & Ref. 7% S. F. "A" 10/1/45	$25,000,000	-----	$5,000,000	$50,000	$785,000	$24,013.15	$74,013.15
Jan. 8, 1921	Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. 1st Mtge. 20-Yr. 7% "A" 2/1/41	30,000,000	-----	6,000,000	60,000	953,000	34,663.30	94,663.30
Nov. 12, 1921	New York Telephone Co. Ref. Mtge. 20-Yr. 6% "A" 10/1/41	50,000,000	-----	10,000,000	100,000	1,722,000	45,103.79	145,103.79
May 2, 1922	Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. Ref. Mtge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 5/1/52	25,000,000	-----	5,000,000	50,000	720,500	13,027.95	63,027.95
May 25, 1922	New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st Mtge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 6/1/52	35,000,000	-----	7,000,000	70,000	2,235,000	39,145.64	109,145.64
Jan. 11, 1923	Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 25-Yr. 1st & Ref. 8% 1/1/48	35,000,000	-----	7,000,000	70,000	2,260,000	31,670.99	101,670.99
June 14, 1923	Illinois Bell Telephone Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 5% "A" 6/1/56	50,000,000	-----	10,000,000	100,000	3,042,000	44,019.52	144,019.52
Nov. 3, 1923	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 20-Yr. S. F. 5 1/4% 11/1/43	100,000,000	-----	20,000,000	200,000	5,015,000	84,015.75	234,015.75
Jan. 25, 1924	Southwestern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 30-Yr. 5% "A" 2/1/54	50,000,000	$46,875.00	10,000,000	87,500	3,000,000	62,765.00	187,140.00
Mar. 27, 1924	Western Electric Co. Inc. 20-Yr. 5% Debts. 4/1/44	35,000,000	37,500.00	7,000,000	60,000	1,805,000	25,668.16	123,168.16
Jan. 8, 1925	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 35-Yr. S. F. 5% Debts. 1/1/60	125,000,000	164,062.50	25,000,000	206,250	8,000,000	126,587.25	496,899.75
Sept. 16, 1925	Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 5% "C" 10/1/60	50,000,000	56,250.00	10,000,000	85,000	3,540,000	63,346.57	204,596.57
May 13, 1926	New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st Mtge. 4 1/4% 6/1/61	40,000,000	45,000.00	8,000,000	68,000	2,610,000	49,407.03	162,407.03
Oct. 18, 1929	Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. 1st Mtge. S. F. 5% 1/1/41	32,000,000	33,000.00	6,400,000	55,200	2,940,000	72,672.90	160,872.94
Jan. 13, 1930	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 35-Yr. 5% Debts. 2/1/65	150,000,000	168,750.00	30,000,000	255,000	10,271,000	194,796.14	618,546.10
	Total	$832,000,000	$551,437.50	$166,400,000	$1,516,950	$50,900,500	$900,933.14	$2,960,320.46

¹ Corrected table, subsequently submitted.

EXHIBIT No. 1682

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Bankers' gross commissions on issues of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and associated companies managed by J. P. Morgan & Co. or Morgan Stanley & Company Incorporated, 1906-1939

1906-1919

Company	Issue	Year Issued	Principal Amount	Gross Spread in Points	Bankers' Gross Commissions
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 4s of 1936	1906	$30,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 4s of 1936	1907	60,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	3 year 5s of 1910	1907	25,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 4s of 1936	1908	10,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 4s of 1936	1908	36,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 4s of 1936	1909	14,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	20 year 4½s of 1933	1913	67,000,000	2.00	$1,340,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 5s of 1946	1916	80,000,000	3.50	2,800,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	2 year 4½s of 1918	1916	40,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	7 year 6s of 1925	1918-19	48,367,200	3.00	1,451,016
New York Telephone Co.	30 year 6s of 1949	1919	25,000,000	(1)	(1)
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	5 year 6s of 1924	1919	40,000,000	2.25	900,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	3 year 6s of 1922	1919	50,000,000	2.25	1,125,000
Sub-total 1906-1919			$525,367,200		$7,616,086

1920-1930

Bell Telephone Co. of Pa.	25 year 7s of 1945	1920	$25,000,000	4.50	$1,125,000
Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.	20 year 7s of 1941	1921	30,000,000	4.50	1,350,000
New York Telephone Co.	20 year 6s of 1941	1921	50,000,000	4.00	2,000,000
Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co.	30 year 5s of 1952	1922	25,000,000	3.00	750,000
New England Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 5s of 1952	1922	35,000,000	3.00	1,050,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	20 year 5½s of 1943	1923	100,000,000	3.75	3,750,000
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa.	25 year 5s of 1948	1923	35,000,000	3.00	1,050,000
Illinois Bell Telephone Co.	35 year 5s of 1958	1923	50,000,000	3.25	1,625,000
Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.	30 year 6s of 1954	1924	50,000,000	3.50	1,750,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	35 year 6s of 1960	1925	125,000,000	3.50	4,375,000
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa.	35 year 6s of 1960	1925	50,000,000	3.00	1,500,000
New England Tel. & Tel. Co.	35 year 4½s of 1961	1926	40,000,000	3.00	1,200,000
Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co.	12 year 5s of 1941	1929	32,000,000	2.75	880,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	35 year 5s of 1965	1930	150,000,000	3.00	4,500,000
Subtotal 1920-1930			$797,000,000		$26,905,000

1935-1939

Illinois Bell Telephone Co.	35 year 3½s of 1970	1935	$43,700,000	2.00	$874,000
Southwestern Bell Tel. Co.	29 year 3½s of 1964	1935	44,000,000	2.00	$880,000
Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co.	30 year 3½s of 1966	1936	30,000,000	2.00	$600,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	25 year 3½s of 1961	1936	150,000,000	2.00	3,000,000
American Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 3½s of 1966	1936	140,000,000	2.00	2,800,000
Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 3½s of 1966	1936	25,000,000	2.00	$500,000
Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co.	25 year 3½s of 1962	1937	42,500,000	2.00	$850,000
New York Telephone Co.	30 year 3½s of 1967	1937	25,000,000	2.00	$500,000
Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co.	30 year 3½s of 1968	1938	27,750,000	2.00	$555,000
Southwestern Bell Tel. Co.	30 year 3s of 1968	1938	28,900,000	2.00	$578,000
Southern Bell Telephone Co.	40 year 3s of 1979	1939	22,250,000	1.50	$333,750
Sub-total 1935-1939			$579,100,000		$11,470,750
Grand Total 1906-1939			$1,901,467,200		$45,991,786

¹ Not available.

² Incomplete.

Source: Data supplied by Federal Communications Commission, J. P. Morgan & Co., and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

"EXHIBIT No. 1683" introduced on p. 11892, appears in Hearings, Part 21, appendix, p. 11380

EXHIBIT No. 1684

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

$25,000,000 BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA TWENTY-FIVE YEAR FIRST AND REFUNDING MORTGAGE 7% SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS SERIES "A" SYNDICATE.

Under date of September 29th, 1920 (hand written), we entered into a contract with the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania under the terms of which we agreed to purchase, for account of ourselves and associates, $25,000,000. of the Company's 25-year First and Refunding Mortgage 7% Bonds, Series A, at 90½ and accrued interest. We formed a Syndicate under the same date to purchase the bonds from us at 91½ and accrued interest and to offer them at 95 and interest. Selling commissions of 1½% were allowed on confirmed allotments, on which commission participants were permitted to realow ¼% to dealers or banking institutions. The Syndicate expires December 1st, 1920. The books of the issue were opened September 30th, 1920 and closed the same date at 1.00 P. M. with subscriptions of $68,402,300. Allotments were made as follows:

$100 to	$1,000 inclusive, in full.
$1,100 to $100,000	"	30%, minimum $1,000.
$100,000 up	"	20% " $30,000.

and allotment letters were sent out on October 5th calling for payment on October 14th.

1% profit accruing to the original Group was paid on October 26th in the following proportions:

Names	Percentage
Kidder, Peabody & Company-----	29¾
Kuhn, Loeb & Company-----	10¾
Lee, Higginson & Company-----	5
Harris, Forbes & Company-----	5
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10
National City Company-----	10
Guaranty Trust Company-----	4¾
Bankers Trust Company-----	4¾
J. P. Morgan & Company-----	20

As the issue had not been formally ratified by the stockholders, the proceeds of the bonds were not immediately available to the Company. The American Telephone & Telegraph Company borrowed $11,000,000 from us, repayable December 9th. It was originally arranged that they should pay 7% interest on the loan and should be allowed 7% interest on an account to be set up for an amount equal to the loan and 3% interest on the balance of the funds. Mr. Porter objected to having an account on the books bearing interest at such a high rate, and it was finally figured that, by charging 5% on the loan and allowing 4% on the entire proceeds, practically the same amount of interest would accrue.

EXHIBIT No. 1685-1

[From the files of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.]

J. P. MORGAN & CO.,
Wall St. corner Broad,
New York.
DREXEL & CO.,
Philadelphia.
MORGAN, GRENFELL & CO.,
London.
MORGAN, HARJES & CO.,
Paris.

NEW YORK, September 29, 1920.

MESSRS. KUHN, LOEB & CO.,
52 William Street, N. Y.

DEAR SIRS: We beg to advise that we have today purchased for account of ourselves and associates $25,000,000 Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, 25 Year First and Refunding Mortgage 7% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, Series A, at 90½ and accrued interest.

We are forming a syndicate, in which we shall participate, to purchase these bonds from ourselves and associates at $91\frac{1}{2}\%$ and accrued interest, and offer them, for the account of the syndicate, for public subscription, at 95 and accrued interest.

Your interest in the purchase on original terms is $2,687,500. We have allotted you, in the distributing syndicate, a participation of $750,000.

Will you be good enough to confirm that the foregoing is in accordance with your understanding?

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

AMA AOR

(Handwritten) : \$2,687,500 = $10\frac{3}{4}\%$.

EXHIBIT No. 1685-2

[From the files of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.]

Original Terms

Confidential

SEPT. 30, 1920.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & COMPANY,
23 Wall Street, New York.

DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 29th instant, advising us that you have purchased for account of yourselves and associates \$25,000,000. Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania 25-Year First and Refunding Mortgage Seven Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds Series "A" at $90\frac{1}{2}\%$ and accrued interest, also that you are forming a syndicate to purchase these bonds from yourselves and associates at $91\frac{1}{2}\%$ and accrued interest, and that the bonds are to be offered for account of the syndicate for public subscription at 95% and accrued interest.

We note that our interest in the purchase on original terms is $2,687,500. We hereby confirm that all of the above is in accordance with our understanding.

Expressing our appreciation of your able handling of this transaction, we remain,

Yours very truly,

LS:L

EXHIBIT No. 1686-1

[Letter from J. P. Morgan & Co. to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Wall St. corner Broad, New York

NEW YORK, October 30, 1939.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION,
Washington, D. C.

(Attention of Mr. David Ryshpan.)

DEAR SIR: There are enclosed herewith summaries of the following issues:
The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania 25 Year First & Refunding Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, Series B.

New England Telephone and Telegraph Company First Mortgage $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ Gold Bonds, Series B, dated May 1, 1926, maturing May 1, 1961.

Northwestern Bell Telephone Company Twenty-Year 7% First Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds, Series "A."

Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania First and Refunding Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, Series "C", dated October 1, 1925 and due October 1, 1960.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company First and Refunding Mortgage Thirty-Year 5% Gold Bonds, Series "A", due February 1, 1954.

American Telephone and Telegraph Company Thirty-five Year Sinking Fund 5% Gold Debentures, dated January 1, 1925 and due January 1, 1960.

American Telephone and Telegraph Company 20-Year Sinking Fund $5\frac{1}{2}\%$ Gold Debenture Bonds, dated November 1, 1923, due November 1, 1948.

Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania Twenty-five Year First and Refunding Mortgage 7% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds Series "A."

Illinois Bell Telephone Company First & Refunding Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, Series "A", due June 1, 1956.

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company Refunding Mortgage Thirty-Year 5% Gold Bonds, Series "A", dated May 1, 1922 due May 1, 1952.

New England Telephone and Telegraph Company First Mortgage Thirty-Year 5% Gold Bonds, Series "A."

New York Telephone Company Refunding Mortgage Twenty-Year 6% Gold Bonds, Series A.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1686-2

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

(Stamped:) Please Return to Syndicate Department.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA 25-YEAR FIRST & REFUNDING MORTGAGE 5% GOLD BONDS, SERIES B—INTEREST JANUARY & JULY

On January 10th, 1923, we purchased from The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania $35,000,000 of their First & Refunding Mortgage 5% Series "B" Gold Bonds, dated January 1st, 1923, at 95½% and accrued interest. Associated with us in this purchase on original terms were the following for the amounts shown:

Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	$10,412,500
Kuhn, Loeb & Company.....	3,762,500
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	1,750,000
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	1,750,000
First National Bank.....	3,500,000
National City Company.....	3,500,000
Guaranty Company.....	1,662,500
Bankers Trust Company.....	1,662,500
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	7,000,000

$35,000,000

On the same day a distributing syndicate was formed to purchase these bonds at 96½% and accrued interest and to offer them for public subscription at 98½% and accrued interest. Selling commission of ¾% was allowed participants on confirmed allotments, out of which ¼% was permitted to be given up to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies only. No arrangements were made for withdrawals.

The usual provision regarding commissions on bonds purchased in the market for syndicate account was included. We arranged with the Company to take any part of the outstanding $24,405,700. Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania First & Refunding Mortgage 7% Bonds, Series "A", (which are to be called for payment at 107½% on April 1) at 107.78% and interest in payment for the First & Refunding 5% Bonds allotted. This price was equivalent to a 5% interest basis from January 24th to April 1st, 1923, computed on the redemption price of 107½%.

The subscription books opened at our office on January 11th and closed at 11:05 A. M. the same day, the subscriptions totalling $152,051,600 bonds.

Because of the large total subscriptions, the allotment was made on an arbitrary basis and on January 12th, 1923, participants were notified of their allotments. Payment was made on January 24th at 98½% and interest, against delivery of J. P. Morgan & Co. Interim Receipts.

The Syndicate was to expire March 15, 1923 but on March 14th participants were notified that the syndicate was extended for thirty days from March 15th. This extension was made necessary because we did not receive the temporary bonds from the Company until April 1st. At the same time, the participants were also notified that the Syndicate restrictions as to the sale of the bonds would not be in effect after March 15th.

The profit of 1% accruing to the Purchasers was paid on April 5th. Checks in payment for the commission of ¾%, and profit of 1.1374% due participants, were mailed on April 11, 1923 and the Syndicate dissolved.

(Stamped) : Please return to syndicate department.

$40,000,000 NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY FIRST MORTGAGE
4½% GOLD BONDS, SERIES B, DATED MAY 1, 1926, MATURING MAY 1, 1961

On May 12, 1926, we purchased from the Company, for account of ourselves and associates, $40,000,000 of the above Notes at 91½% and interest. The Original Group consisted of the following for the amounts shown:

J. P. Morgan & Co.	20%	$8, 000, 000
Kidder, Peabody & Co.	29.75%	11, 900, 000
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	10.75%	4, 300, 000
Lee, Higginson & Co.	5%	2, 000, 000
Harris, Forbes & Co.	5%	2, 000, 000
First National Bank	10%	4, 000, 000
National City Company	10%	4, 000, 000
Guaranty Company of N. Y.	4.75%	1, 900, 000
Bankers Trust Company	4.75%	1, 900, 000
	100%	$40, 000, 000

A managing fee of 5% of the gross spread of 3%, amounting to $60,000 was charged against the Original Group Profit. Kidder, Peabody & Co. received one-quarter of this fee; $15,000.

On the same day a Distributing Syndicate, composed of 540 participants, was formed to purchase these Notes from the above Group at 92½% and interest, and to offer them for public subscription at 94½% and interest.

A Selling Commission of ¾% was allowed participants on confirmed allotments. Participants were permitted to realow ¼% to other dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies only.

No arrangements were made for withdrawal. The usual clause regarding commission to be deducted from bonds repurchased in the open market for Syndicate Account was also inserted in the agreement.

Subscription books opened at our office at 10:00 o'clock A. M., May 13th, and closed at 10:10 o'clock A. M. the same day, with subscriptions totaling $240,312,500 Bonds.

An arbitrary allotment was made on May 13th and the participants notified.

Payment for Bonds allotted was made at our office on May 28th, 1926, at 94½% and interest, against delivery of temporary Bonds in the denominations of $1,000., $500. and $100. each.

The net profit accruing to the original Group was paid on May 28, 1926.

We made a total allotment of $39,838,500. Bonds, leaving a balance of $161,500. Bonds for sale.

We sold for account of Syndicate Account $250,500. Bonds at 94½% and interest less ¼%, leaving Syndicate Account short $89,000. Bonds, which were transferred from Syndicate Repurchase Account. We purchased in the open market $160,500. Bonds.

After the transfer from Repurchase Account of the $89,000. Bonds, there remained in Repurchase Account $71,500. Bonds. We sold $50,000. of these at 94½% and interest less ¼%, and $21,500. Bonds were sold through the Stock Department at 94½% and interest.

The commission on $160,000. Bonds was withheld from participants.

On July 8th the commission of ¾% and a profit of 1.1348% were paid participants and the account closed.

Following is an analysis of the distribution of the gross spread of 2%:

Commissions of ¾% on $39,678,500 bonds	$297, 588. 75	. 74397%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate A/c	47, 269. 33	. 11817%
Loss in trading	1, 175. 76	. 00294%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve Account	46. 16	. 00012%
Net profit paid participants	453, 920. 00	1. 1848 %
Total	$800, 000. 00	2. 0000

(Stamped:) Please Return to Syndicate Department.

NORTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY TWENTY-YEAR 7% FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND BONDS SERIES "A" SYNDICATE

Under date of January 8th, we and our associates purchased from the Company $30,000,000, Northwestern Bell Telephone Company 20-year 7% First Mortgage Sinking Fund Series "A" Bonds at 92 and accrued interest. The Bonds were dated February 1st; interest payable February and August. On January 8th we formed a syndicate at 93 and interest to offer the bonds at 96½ and interest, less 1½% commission on allotments up to the amount of participation, and ½% additional commission on amounts allotted in excess of participation. Out of these commissions, participants were permitted to realow a commission of ¼%. The Bonds were offered on January 10, 1921; subscriptions were received to an amount of $91,611,400. As subscriptions in small denominations were reported in what seemed to us an excessive proportion to the whole, allotment was made on a flat 30% basis instead of being scaled, as was theretofore our custom. Allotment letters were sent out on January 12th, calling for payment on January 19th at 96½, less 12 days' discount at the rate of 7% per annum. We credited the Company's account on our books for the purchase price and the Company drew checks on us. Pending the payment to the Company, we had advanced $5,000,000. to the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and this advance was repaid on the 19th. Associated with us in the purchase on the original terms were the following:

	Percent- age	Original Group @ 92
Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	29.75	$8,925,000
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	10.75	3,225,000
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	5.	1,500,000
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	5.	1,500,000
First National Bank, New York.....	10.	3,000,000
National City Company.....	10.	3,000,000
Guaranty Company of New York.....	4.75	1,425,000
Bankers Trust Company.....	4.75	1,425,000
J. P. Morgan & Company.....	20.	6,000,000

The 1% profit accruing to this Group was distributed on Monday, February 7th.

Stamped: Please Return to Syndicate Department.

$50,000,000 BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA FIRST AND REFUNDING
MORTGAGE 5% GOLD BONDS, SERIES "C," DATED OCTOBER 1, 1925, AND DUE
OCTOBER 1, 1960

On September 16th, 1925, we purchased from The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania $50,000,000 of the above Bonds at 97% and interest.

Associated with us in the purchase, on original terms, were the following:

Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	29.75%	$14,875,000.00
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	10.75%	5,375,000.00
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	5.00%	2,500,000.00
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	5.00%	2,500,000.00
The First National Bank of New York.....	10.00%	5,000,000.00
The National City Company.....	10.00%	5,000,000.00
Guaranty Company of New York.....	4.75%	2,375,000.00
Bankers Trust Company.....	4.75%	2,375,000.00
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	20.00%	10,000,000.00
	100.00%	$50,000,000.00

On September 16th, 1925 a Syndicate was formed to purchase these Bonds from the Original Group at 98% and interest. The Syndicate offered these Bonds for public subscription at 100% and interest.

Participants were allowed a commission of $\frac{3}{4}\%$ on confirmed allotments. Out of this commission, participants were permitted to reallocate $\frac{1}{4}\%$ to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies, only.

No arrangements were made for withdrawals.

The usual clause regarding commissions to be deducted on bonds repurchased in the open market for syndicate account was also inserted in the agreement.

Subscription books opened at our office at 10.00 o'clock A. M., Thursday, September 17th, 1925 and closed at 10.05 o'clock A. M., the same day, with subscriptions totalling $321,521,500.

An arbitrary allotment was made on September 17th and participants notified. Payment for the bonds allotted was made at our office on October 1st at par, against the delivery of temporary bonds.

A managing fee of 5% of the gross spread of 3% ($75,000.) was charged against the profit accruing to the Original Group. We paid one-quarter of this amount ($18,750.) to Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Co.

The profit of 1%, less the managing fee due to the members of the Original Group, was paid on October 7th, 1925.

We allotted a total of $49,989,700. Bonds, the balance being sold in the open market for Syndicate account.

On November 10th, 1925, the commission of $\frac{3}{4}\%$ and a profit of 1.1608% were paid to participants and the account closed.

The following is an analysis of the distribution of the gross spread of 2%:

Commission of $\frac{3}{4}\%$ on \$49,989,700. Bonds.....	\$374,922.75=	.74884%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate Account.....	$44,628.15=	.08928%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve Acct..	$68.00=	.00014%
Net profit paid participants 1.1608%.....	$580,400.00=	1.16080%
Total.....	*$1,000,018.90=	2.00004%
*Including Gain in Trading.....	$18.90=	.00004%

(Stamped:) Please Return to Syndicate Department.

$50,000,000. SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY FIRST AND REFUNDING MORTGAGE THIRTY-YEAR 5% GOLD BONDS, SERIES "A," DUE FEBRUARY 1, 1964.

On January 25th, 1924, we purchased from the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company $50,000,000 of the above Bonds at 90% and interest. The Original Group was composed of the following:

Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	29.75%	$14,875,000.
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	10.75	5,375,000.
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	5.00	2,500,000.
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	5.00	2,500,000.
The First National Bank of New York.....	10.00	5,000,000.
The National City Company.....	10.00	5,000,000.
Guaranty Company of New York.....	4.75	2,375,000.
Bankers Trust Company.....	4.75	2,375,000.
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	20.00	10,000,000.
	100.00	$50,000,000.

On the same day, a Distributing Syndicate was formed to take over these Bonds at 91% and interest and to offer them for public subscription at $93\frac{1}{4}\%$ and interest (5.45% yield).

A commission of 1% was allowed to syndicate participants on confirmed allotments. Participants were permitted to reallocate a commission of $\frac{1}{4}\%$ to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies. Participants were permitted to pay this $\frac{1}{4}\%$ concession to insurance companies upon delivery of the Bonds, but were not permitted to pay it to dealers or banking institutions until the expiration of the syndicate.

No arrangements were made for withdrawals.

The usual clause regarding commission to be deducted on bonds purchased in the open market for syndicate account was inserted in the agreement.

Subscription books opened at our office at 10.00 o'clock A. M., January 28th, 1924 and closed at 10.01 o'clock A. M., the same day, with subscriptions totalling $254,297,200.

Allotments were made arbitrarily.

Payment for bonds allotted was made at our office at 93½% and accrued interest against delivery of the temporary bonds of the Company.

A managing fee of ⅛%, amounting to $62,500., was charged against the profit accruing to the Original Group, Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Co. receiving one-quarter of this fee.

The profit accruing to the Original Group was paid on March 7th, 1924.

Of the total allotment of $49,656,700., we purchased in the open market for syndicate account $2,109,500., the commission being deducted upon $1,849,500. of the latter amount.

The commission of 1% and a profit of 1.4076% were paid on April 9th, 1924 and the account closed.

The following is the analysis of the distribution of the gross spread of 2½% :

Commission of 1% on $47,807,200. Bonds-----	$478, 072. 00	.95614%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate Account-----	50, 730. 73	.10146%
Loss in trading-----	17, 390. 09	.03478%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve Account-----	7. 18	.00002%
Net profit paid Participants-----	703, 800. 00	1.40760%
Total-----	$1, 250, 000. 00	2.50000%

Stamped: Please Return to Syndicate Department.

$125,000,000. AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY THIRTY-FIVE YEAR SINKING FUND 5% GOLD DEBENTURES, DATED JANUARY 1, 1925 AND DUE JANUARY 1, 1960

On January 7th, 1925, we purchased from the American Telephone and Telegraph Company $125,000,000. of the above debentures at 91½% and accrued interest. Associated with us in the purchase, on original terms, were the following for the amounts shown:

J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	20.00%	$25, 000, 000.
Kidder, Peabody & Co.-----	29.75%	37, 187, 500.
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	10.75%	13, 437, 500.
The National City Company-----	10.00%	12, 500, 000.
The First National Bank of New York-----	10.00%	12, 500, 000.
Lee Higginson & Co.-----	5.00%	6, 250, 000.
Harris, Forbes & Co.-----	5.00%	6, 250, 000.
Guaranty Company of New York-----	4.75%	5, 937, 500.
Bankers Trust Company-----	4.75%	5, 937, 500.
	100.00%	$125, 000, 000.

A managing fee of 5% of the gross spread of 3½%, amounting to $218,750, was charged against the Original Group profit. Kidder, Peabody & Co. received one-quarter of this fee.

On January 7th, 1925 a Distributing Syndicate composed of 739 members was formed to purchase these debentures from the Original Group at 92½% and accrued interest, and to offer them for public subscription at 95% and accrued interest (5.30% yield).

A selling commission of 1% was allowed participants on confirmed allotments. Participants were permitted to realow a commission of ¼% to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies.

No arrangements were made for withdrawals.

The usual clause regarding commission to be deducted on debentures in the open market for syndicate account was also inserted in the agreement.

Subscription books opened at our office at 10.00 o'clock A. M., January 8, 1925 and closed at 10.45 o'clock A. M., the same day, with subscriptions totalling $392,194,300.

Allotments were made arbitrarily (approximately 30% to 35% (approximately 30% to 35%)) and participants notified on January 9th, 1925. We made a total allotment of $129,144,500.

Payment for debentures allotted was made at our office on January 22nd, 1925 at 95% and interest against the delivery of temporary debentures.

The profit of .825% (1% less the management fee) was paid to the Original Group on January 23rd, 1925.

Of the total allotment of $129,144,500. Debentures, we repurchased in the open market for syndicate account $4,145,500. Debentures at prices ranging from 96% and interest to 96% and interest.

We deducted commissions on $880,000. of the debentures repurchased for syndicate account.

The commission of 1% on the net allotment of $128,264,500. Debentures and the profit of 1.3838% were paid on April 9th, and the account closed.

The following is the analysis of the distribution of the gross spread of 2½% in the Syndicate:

Commission of 1% on $126,264,500. Debentures paid	$1, 282, 645. 00=1. 02611%
Expense transferred to Syndicate Account	72, 561. 80= . 05800%
Loss in Trading	39, 868. 59= . 03189%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve A/c	174. 61= . 00014%
Net Profit paid participants 1.3838%	1, 729, 750. 00=1. 38380%
Total	$3, 125, 000. 00=2. 50000%

(Stamped:) Please Return To Syndicate Department.

$100,000,000 AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY 20-YEAR SINKING FUND
5½% GOLD DEBENTURE BONDS, DATED NOVEMBER 1, 1923, DUE NOVEMBER 1, 1943, INTEREST PAYABLE MAY & NOVEMBER

On November 2nd, 1923, we purchased from the American Telephone & Telegraph Company $100,000,000 of the above Debenture Bonds at 94¾% and interest. Members of the original group were as follows for the amounts shown:

Kidder, Peabody & Co	29. 75%	$29, 750, 000
Kuhn, Loeb & Co	10. 75%	10, 750, 000
National City Co	10. 00%	10, 000, 000
First National Bank	10. 00%	10, 000, 000
Lee, Higginson & Co	5. 00%	5, 000, 000
Harris, Forbes & Co	5. 00%	5, 000, 000
Guaranty Company	4. 75%	4, 750, 000
Bankers Trust Company	4. 75%	4, 750, 000
J. P. Morgan & Co	20. 00%	20, 000, 000

On the same day a distributing syndicate was formed to take over these Debentures at 95¾% and interest, and to offer them for public subscription at 96¼% and interest. A selling commission of 1¼% was allowed participants on confirmed allotments. A commission of ¼% was permitted to be given up to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies only.

No arrangements were made for withdrawals. The usual clause regarding the withholding of commissions on Debentures repurchased in the open market for Syndicate Account was also inserted.

Subscription books were opened at our office ten o'clock A. M., Monday, November 5th, and closed twelve o'clock the same day, with subscriptions totaling $194,606,200.

On November 5th, after an arbitrary allotment had been made (an approximate 50% allotment) participants were notified to make payment at our office on November 15th at 98½% and interest, against delivery of our Interim Receipts.

In payment of the amount due for the Debentures allotted, we offered to accept from subscribers American Telephone & Telegraph Company 5-Year 6% Notes, due February 1, 1924 in bearer form, with February 1, 1924 coupon attached at 100.24406% and accrued interest ($1,019.77 per $1,000 Note). The maturing 5-Year Notes were not accepted of a par value exceeding the par value of Debentures allotted.

The profit of 1% accruing to the Original Group was paid on November 23, 1923. Of a total allotment of \$101,990,900 Bonds we repurchased in the open market for Syndicate Account \$2,300,900 Bonds. Of the Bonds repurchased we deducted commissions on \$2,290,900 Bonds. The commission of $1\frac{1}{4}\%$ and a profit of 1.4134% due Syndicate participants was paid on December 15, 1923 and the account closed.

Following is an analysis of the gross spread of $2\frac{3}{4}\%$:

Commissions of $1\frac{1}{4}\%$ on \$99,700,000 Bonds paid, Dec. 15, 1923-----	\$1, 246, 250. 00=1. 246250%
Expenses Transferred to Syndicate Account, Dec. 11, 1923-----	80, 956. 87= . 080957%
Loss in trading-----	9, 227. 10= . 009227%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve Account, Dec. 12, 1923-----	166. 03= . 000166%
Net profit paid participants, Dec. 15, 1923-----	1, 413, 400. 00=1. 413400%
Total-----	$2, 750, 000. 00=2. 75%

$25,000,000

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

TWENTY-FIVE YEAR FIRST AND REFUNDING MORTGAGE 7%
SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS SERIES "A" SYNDICATE

Under date of September 29th, 1920, we entered into a contract with the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania under the terms of which we agreed to purchase, for account of ourselves and associates, \$25,000,000. of the Company's 25-year First and Refunding Mortgage 7% Bonds, Series A, at $90\frac{1}{2}\%$ and accrued interest. We formed a Syndicate under the same date to purchase the bonds from us at $91\frac{1}{2}\%$ and accrued interest and to offer them at 95 and interest. Selling commissions of $1\frac{1}{2}\%$ were allowed on confirmed allotments, on which commission participants were permitted to realow $\frac{1}{4}\%$ to dealers or banking institutions. The Syndicate expires December 1st, 1920. The books of the issue were opened September 30th, 1920 and closed the same date at 1.00 P. M. with subscriptions of \$68,402,300. Allotments were made as follows:

$100 to $1,000 inclusive, in full.

$1,100 to $100,000 inclusive, 30%, minimum $1,000.

$100,000 up inclusive, 20% minimum, $30,000.

and allotment letters were sent out on October 5th calling for payment on October 14th.

1% profit accruing to the original Group was paid on October 26th in the following proportions:

Names	Percentage
Kidder, Peabody & Company-----	29 $\frac{3}{4}$
Kuhn, Loeb & Company-----	10 $\frac{3}{4}$
Lee, Higginson & Company-----	5
Harris, Forbes & Company-----	5
First National Bank, N. Y.-----	10
National City Company-----	10
Guaranty Trust Company-----	4 $\frac{1}{4}$
Bankers Trust Company-----	4 $\frac{1}{4}$
J. P. Morgan & Company-----	20

As the issue had not been formally ratified by the stockholders, the proceeds of the bonds were not immediately available to the Company. The American Telephone & Telegraph Company borrowed $11,000,000 from us, repayable December 9th. It was originally arranged that they should pay 7% interest on the loan and should be allowed 7% interest on an account to be set up for an amount equal to the loan and 3% interest on the balance of the funds. Mr. Porter objected to having an account on the books bearing interest at such a high rate, and it was finally figured that, by charging 5% on the loan and allowing 4% on the entire proceeds, practically the same amount of interest would accrue.

(Stamped:) Please return to syndicate department.

$50,000,000 ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY FIRST & REFUNDING MORTGAGE
5% GOLD BONDS, SERIES "A", DUE JUNE 1, 1956

On June 14th, 1923, we purchased from the Illinois Bell Telephone Company $50,000,000 of the above Bonds at 92% and interest. Associated with us in the purchase on original terms were the following for the amounts shown:

Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	29.75%	$14,875,000
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	10.75	5,375,000
The National City Co.....	10.00	5,000,000
First National Bank.....	10.00	5,000,000
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	5.00	2,500,000
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	5.00	2,500,000
Guaranty Company.....	4.75	2,375,000
Bankers Trust Co.....	4.75	2,375,000
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	20.00	10,000,000

On the same day a Distributing Syndicate was formed to take over these Bonds at 93% and accrued interest, and to offer them for public subscription at 95½% and interest.

A selling commission of 1% was allowed participants on confirmed allotments, one-half of which was permitted to be given up to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies, only.

The usual clause regarding commissions on bonds repurchased in the market for Syndicate Account was also inserted. Subscription books opened at our office on June 15th, and were closed at 10:30 A.M. the same day, with subscriptions totalling $126,984,200 Bonds.

Allotments were made arbitrarily, participants being notified on June 15th to pay us, on June 28th at our office, at 95½% and interest, against delivery of temporary bonds.

The total Bonds allotted amounted to $51,168,000 Bonds.

It was agreed that we would take Chicago Telephone Company First Mortgage 5% Bonds, due December 1, 1923, with the final coupon attached, at 100% and interest in payment for all or any part of the amount due.

The 1% profit accruing to the Purchasers was paid on July 24th.

$819,000 Bonds were purchased in the market, Guaranteed Investment, at prices ranging from 94¾ to 95 and interest. $3,539,000 Bonds were purchased in the market for Syndicate Repurchase Account at 95½ and interest, of which the commission of 1% was withheld upon $3,475,000 Bonds.

Commission of 1% on $47,693,000 Bonds, being the net allotment, amounting to $476,930, and a profit of 1.106%, amounting to $553,000, was paid on August 15th and the account closed.

Following is the analysis of distribution of the gross spread of 2¼%:
Commission of 1% on $47,653,000 Bonds paid Aug.

15th.....	$476,530.00=	.95306%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate Account Aug. 8th.....	58,696.44=	.11755%
Loss in Trading.....	36,685.32=	.07371%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses, Reserve Account, Aug. 8th.....	88.24=	.00017%
Net profit paid, August 15th.....	553,000.00=	1.106%
	<hr/>
	$1,125,000.00	2.25000%

(Stamped:) Please return to syndicate department.

THE PACIFIC TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY REFUNDING MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR 5% GOLD BONDS, SERIES "A", DATED MAY 1, 1922, DUE MAY 1, 1952, INTEREST PAYABLE MAY 1 & NOVEMBER 1.

Under date of May 2nd, we purchased from the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company $25,000,000 of the above bonds at 91% and interest. Associated with us in this purchase were the following for the amounts shown:

J. P. Morgan & Co.....	$5,000,000
Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	7,437,500
Kuhn, Loeb & Company.....	2,687,500
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	1,250,000
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	1,250,000
First National Bank, N. Y.....	2,500,000
National City Company.....	2,500,000
Guaranty Company.....	1,187,500
Bankers Trust Company.....	1,187,500
	<hr/>
	$25,000,000

On the same day, a Distributing Syndicate was formed to take over these bonds at 92% and accrued interest, and to offer them for public subscription at 94% and interest.

Commission of $\frac{3}{4}\%$ was allowed participants on confirmed allotments, out of which $\frac{1}{4}\%$ was permitted to be re-allowed to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies only.

The usual clause regarding bonds purchased in the market for syndicate account was also inserted. No arrangements were made for withdrawals.

Subscription books opened at our office 10:00 o'clock A. M. on May 3rd, 1922 and were closed immediately with subscriptions totaling $187,423,900.

On May 4th, after participants were allotted 10% of their total subscriptions. (Pacific Coast participants were given special allotments) letters were sent out calling for payment to be made at our office on May 11th, against delivery of our Trust Receipts.

The Syndicate expired July 15th, 1922.

A profit of 1% accruing to the purchasers was paid on May 24th. A commission of $\frac{3}{4}\%$ on \$23,249,700 net Bonds allotted was paid on July 18th. We allotted \$24,817,700 Bonds, of which \$1,575,000 were repurchased as follows:

Bonds purchased on which commissions were withheld.....	$1,568,000
Bonds repurchased and sold for Syndicate Account and repurchased a second time on which no commissions were withheld.....	7,000
	<hr/>
	$1,575,000

The profit of 1.029%, amounting to $257,250, was paid on July 22nd and the account closed.

Following is an analysis of the distribution of the gross spread of 2%:

Commissions of $\frac{3}{4}\%$ on \$23,249,700 Bonds.....	\$174,372.75 = .697491%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate Account.....	33,830.01 = .13532%
Loss in trading.....	34,324.28 = .1372971%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve Account.....	222.96 = .0008918%
Net profit paid participants.....	257,250.00 = 1.029%
	<hr/>
	$500,000.00 = 1.999999 %

(Stamped :) Please Return to Syndicate Department.

$35,000,000. NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY-YEAR 5% GOLD BONDS, SERIES "A." (INTEREST PAYABLE JUNE AND DECEMBER)

June 28, 1922

Under date of May 24th, 1922, we purchased from the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company $35,000,000. of the above bonds at 94½ and interest Associated with us in this purchase on original terms were the following for the amounts shown:

Kidder, Peabody & Company-----	$10,412,500
Kuhn, Loeb & Company-----	3,782,500
Lee, Higginson & Company-----	1,750,000
Harris, Forbes & Company-----	1,750,000
The First National Bank of New York-----	3,500,000
The National City Company-----	3,500,000
Guaranty Company of New York-----	1,662,500
Bankers Trust Company-----	1,662,500
J. P. Morgan & Company-----	7,000,000
	$35,000,000

Under the same date a Distributing Syndicate was formed to purchase these bonds from the Original Group at 95½% and interest, and to offer them for public subscription at 97½% and interest.

A commission of ¼% was allowed participants on confirmed allotments. Participants were permitted to realow ¼% to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies only. No arrangements were made for withdrawals. The usual clause regarding bonds purchased in the market for syndicate account was also inserted.

Syndicate expires August 1, 1922 or earlier, or may be extended for not more than sixty days.

Subscription books opened at our office 10.00 o'clock A. M., May 25th, and were closed immediately with subscriptions totaling $259,395,800.

On the same day, after an arbitrary allotment had been made, allotment letters were sent out calling for payment to be made at our office on June 9th, against delivery of Temporary Bonds.

On June 28th, the 1% profit accruing to the Purchasers was paid.

On August 1st, the commission of ¾% on $33,262,000. Bonds, amounting to $249,465. was paid. The total bonds allotted amounted to $34,912,000., of which $1,650,000. were repurchased for Syndicate Account and the commission deducted.

On August 9th, a profit of 1.1374%, amounting to $398,090. was paid and the account closed.

Analysis of distribution of gross spread of 2% in the $35,000,000. New England Telephone and Telegraph Company First Mortgage Thirty-Year 5% Gold Bonds, Series A.

Commissions of ¾% on $33,262,000. Bonds paid August 1, 1922-----	$249,405. = .71276%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate Account, August 4, 1922-----	$38,450.34 = .10988%
Loss in trading-----	$13,753.69 = .038229%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve Account, August 4, 1922-----	$240.97 = .00069%
Net Profit paid Participants, August 9, 1922-----	$398,090.00 = 1.1374%
Total-----	$700,000. = 2. %

(Stamped:) Please Return to Syndicate Department.

NEW YORK TELEPHONE COMPANY REFUNDING MORTGAGE TWENTY YEAR 6% GOLD BONDS, SERIES A, SYNDICATE

Under date of November 12, 1921, we purchased $50,000,000. of the above bonds from the New York Telephone Company at 93 and interest, payment to be made not later than November 28th against delivery of temporary bonds.

Associated in this purchase were the following for the amounts indicated:

Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	$14, 875, 000
Kuhn, Loeb & Company.....	5, 375, 000
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	2, 500, 000
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	2, 500, 000
First National Bank.....	5, 000, 000
National City Company.....	5, 000, 000
Guaranty Company.....	2, 375, 000
Bankers Trust Company.....	2, 375, 000
J. P. Morgan & Company.....	10, 000, 000

These interests were based on their commitments in the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company financing.

On November 12th, 1921 a syndicate was formed to purchase the bonds at 94 and interest, and to offer them to the public at 97 and interest. A commission of 1% was allowed on confirmed allotments, of which $\frac{1}{4}\%$ was reallowable to dealers and banking institutions. The syndicate to expire February 1, 1922, or earlier in the discretion of the Managers.

The subscription books opened at 10 o'clock A. M., Tuesday, November 12th, and closed immediately with subscriptions amounting to $488,966,300. Allotments were made as follows:

$100 to and including $2,500 Bonds receive 20%, minimum $100 Bonds.

$2,600 to and including $75,000 Bonds receive 10%, minimum $500 Bonds.

$75,100 and over receive 5%, minimum $7,500 Bonds.

Allotments on subscriptions up to $10,000 were adjusted to nearest $100 and on larger subscriptions to nearest $500.

Allotment letters were sent out on November 17th calling for payment on November 28th, against delivery of temporary Bonds.

Profit of 1% accruing to the Purchasing Group was paid on December 1st, 1921. On \$370,000 Bonds a commission of only $\frac{1}{4}\%$ was allowed and this was adjusted at the time of payment. \$175,400 Bonds were sold in the market for Syndicate Account at prices ranging from 99 $\frac{1}{2}$ and interest to 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ and interest.

Expenses amounted to $62,283.35.

Commission of 1% amounting to $494,546, and a profit of 1.8954% amounting to $947,700 was paid on December 23rd and the account closed.

$32,000,000 SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND 5% GOLD BONDS, DATED JANUARY 2, 1911, AND DUE JANUARY 1, 1941.

On October 17, 1929, we contracted to purchase from the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company \$32,000,000 of the above bonds at 97 $\frac{1}{4}\%$ and accrued interest.

The Original Group was composed of the following:

			Profit	Commission on sales to insurance companies
J. P. Morgan & Co.	20.00%	$6,400,000	$55,200	$11,844
Kidder, Peabody & Co.	29.75%	9,520,000	82,110	17,617.95
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	10.75%	3,440,000	29,670	6,366.15
The National City Company ..	10.00%	3,200,000	27,600	5,922
The First National Bank of New York ..	10.00%	3,200,000	27,600	5,922
Lee, Higginson & Co.	5.00%	1,600,000	13,800	2,961
Harris, Forbes & Co.	5.00%	1,600,000	13,800	2,961
Guaranty Trust Company of New York ..	4.75%	1,520,000	13,110	2,812.95
Bankers Company of New York ..	4.75%	1,520,000	13,110	2,812.95
	100.00%	$32,000,000	276,000	59,220

NOTE—Last 2 columns are hand written.

No syndicate was formed, the bonds being offered through a selected list of dealers and banking institutions at 100% and accrued interest, for a gross commission of $1\frac{3}{4}\%$, out of which we reserved the right to retain not in excess of $\frac{1}{4}\%$ for expenses. Out of the gross commission of $1\frac{3}{4}\%$ not in excess of $\frac{1}{4}\%$ could be reallocated to dealers, banking institutions or insurance companies.

It was arranged that we sell to insurance companies, for account of the Original Group, \$4,500,000 of the above bonds at 100%, less $\frac{1}{4}\%$; the balance of the net selling commission to be divided among the members of the Original Group in proportion to their respective interests. The remaining bonds were reserved for purchase by the special list of dealers until 12.00 o'clock, noon, October 18, 1929.

The total subscriptions, including withdrawals, aggregated $32,390,000 bonds.

Payment was called for at our office on November 1, 1929, against delivery of temporary bonds of the company.

The usual clause regarding bonds repurchased in the open market was included in the offering letter.

We retained as our compensation for organizing and managing the business 5% of the gross spread of $2\frac{3}{4}\%$, amounting to \$44,000, which was charged to the Original Group on November 1, 1929. Out of this managing commission, we ceded one-quarter to Kidder, Peabody & Co., amounting to \$11,000.

The Selling Group account was terminated on November 16, 1929, and the net commission of 1.566% paid on December 6, 1929, and the account closed.

The net profit of $276,000, together with the net selling commission on the sale of $4,500,000 bonds to insurance companies amounting to $59,220, was paid to members of the Original Group on December 6, 1929, and the account closed.

The following is an analysis of the distribution of the gross spread of $2\frac{3}{4}\%$:

Managing fee of 5% of gross spread	$44,000.00	. 1375%
Commission of 1.566% on $32,390,000 bonds	507,227.40	1. 585065%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate Account	48,019.16	. 150080%
Loss in Trading	3,779.05	. 011810%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve Acct.	974.39	. 003045%
Net profit paid participants	276,000.00	. 8625%
	$880,000.00	2. 75%

(Handwritten:)

J. P. M. & Co.'s Profit

Account of Managing Comm	$33,000
Account of Original Group	67,044
Account of Selling Group	80,828.90
	$160,872.90

$150,000,000 AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY THIRTY-FIVE YEAR
5% GOLD DEBENTURES DATED FEBRUARY 1, 1930, DUE FEBRUARY 1, 1965, SYNDICATE

On January 10, 1930, we purchased from the American Telephone and Telegraph Company $150,000,000. of the above debentures at 96½% and accrued interest.

The members of the Original Group were as follows:

Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	29.75%	$44,625,000.
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	10.75%	16,125,000.
The National City Company.....	10.00%	15,000,000.
First National Bank, New York.....	10.00%	15,000,000.
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	5.00%	7,500,000.
Harris, Forbes & Co.....	5.00%	7,500,000.
Guaranty Company of New York.....	4.75%	7,125,000.
Bankers Company of New York.....	4.75%	7,125,000.
J. P. Morgan & Co.....	20.00%	30,000,000.
	100.00%	$150,000,000.

On the same day, a Distributing Syndicate of 960 participants was formed to take over these debentures at 97½% and accrued interest and to offer them for public subscription at 99½% and accrued interest.

A selling commission of 1¼% was allowed participants on confirmed allotments, of which they could realow ¼% to dealers, banking institutions and insurance companies, only.

No arrangements were made for withdrawals.

The usual clause regarding commissions to be deducted on debentures repurchased in the open market for syndicate account was also inserted.

Subscription books were opened at our office at 10.00 o'clock A. M., January 13, 1930, and closed at 10.30 o'clock, A. M., the same day, with subscriptions totalling $496,618,500., against which allotments of $150,566,800. debentures were made.

Payment for debentures allotted was made at our office on January 28, 1930, @ 99½%, less an amount equal to interest @ 5% from January 28th to February 1st, against delivery of temporary Debentures.

A managing fee of $225,000., being 5% of the gross spread of 3%, was charged against the profit accruing to the Original Group, of which Kidder, Peabody & Co. received $56,250.

The Original Group profit of $1,275,000. was paid on February 15, 1930.

The syndicate was terminated on February 15, 1930.

We repurchased in the open market for Special Repurchase Account $566,800. debentures, on which no commission was deducted.

The commission of 1¼% and a profit of .684% were paid to participants on February 15, 1930, and the account closed.

The following is an analysis of the distribution of the gross spread of 2% in the syndicate:

Commissions of 1¼% on $150,566,800. Debentures.....	$1,882,085.00	1.25472%
Expenses transferred to Syndicate Account.....	79,200.03	.05280%
Loss in trading.....	10,440.76	.00696%
Cash transferred to Syndicate Expenses Reserve
Acct.....	2,274.21	.00152%
Net Profit paid participants .684%.....	1,026,000.00	.68400%
	$3,000,000.00	2.00000%

Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Co. handled the wholesaling for all of the New England States.

EXHIBIT No. 1687

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Percentage Participations in Issues of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Associated Companies Headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., September, 1920—January, 1930

Issue	Amount	Date	J. P. Morgan & Co.	First National Bank	National City Co.	Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	Harris, Forbes & Co.	Lee, Higginson & Co.	Guaranty Co.	Bankers Trust Co.	Kidder, Peabody & Co.
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 7s of 1945.....	$25,000,000	9/29/20	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	14.75	4.75	29.75
Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. 7s of 1941.....	30,000,000	1/8/21	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
New York Telephone Co. 6s of 1941.....	50,000,000	11/12/21	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. 5s of 1932.....	25,000,000	5/2/22	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. 5s of 1932.....	35,000,000	5/24/22	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 25 yr. of 55.....	35,000,000	1/10/23	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
Illinois Bell Telephone Co. 5s of 1935.....	50,000,000	6/14/23	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 5½s of 1943.....	100,000,000	11/2/23	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. 5s of 1934.....	50,000,000	1/25/24	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 5s of 1930.....	125,000,000	1/7/25	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 5s of 1960.....	50,000,000	9/16/25	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. 4½s of 1961.....	40,000,000	5/12/26	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. 5s of 1941.....	32,000,000	10/17/29	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75
American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 5s of 1936.....	150,000,000	1/10/30	20.00	10.00	10.00	10.75	5.00	5.00	4.75	4.75	29.75

¹ Guaranty Trust Company.

² Bankers Company.

Source: From records of financing supplied to the Temporary National Economic Committee by J. P. Morgan & Co.

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Issues of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Associated Companies Headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., 1920-1930—Length of Time Syndicate Banks Were Open and Relation of Subscriptions to Offering.

Issue	Date of Contract	Amount of Issue	Amount of Subscriptions	Length of Time Books Open			Length of Time Books Open	Number of Times Issue Over-subscribed
				Date	Time Opened	Time Closed
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 25 yr. 7s.	9/29/20	$25,000,000	$68,402,300	9/30/20	10:00 A.M.	1:00 P.M.	3 hours	2.7
Northwestern Bell Tel. Co. 30 yr. 7s.	1/8/21	30,000,000	91,611,400	(1)	(1)	(1)	(1)	3.1
N. Y. Telephone Co. 20 yr. 6s	11/12/21	50,000,000	488,966,300	11/12/21	10:00 A.M.	Immediately	(1)	9.8
Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. 5s due 1932	5/2/22	25,000,000	187,423,900	5/3/22	10:00 A.M.	Immediately	(1)	7.5
New England Tel. & Tel. Co. 30 yr. 5s.	5/24/22	35,000,000	259,335,800	5/25/22	10:00 A.M.	Immediately	(1)	7.4
Illinois Bell Tel. Co. 5s due 1936	6/14/23	50,000,000	120,984,200	6/15/23	10:00 A.M.	10:30 A.M.	30 minutes	2.5
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 25 yr. 5s.	1/10/23	35,000,000	152,051,600	1/11/23	10:00 A.M.	11:05 A.M.	1 hr. 5 min.	4.3
American Tel. & Tel. Co. 6½s due 1943	1/12/23	100,000,000	194,606,200	1/15/23	10:00 A.M.	12:00 noon	2 hours	1.9
Southwestern Bell Tel. Co. 30 yr. 5s.	1/25/24	50,000,000	254,297,200	1/28/24	10:00 A.M.	10:01 A.M.	1 minute	5.1
American Tel. & Tel. Co. 5s due 1930	1/7/25	125,000,000	392,194,300	1/8/25	10:00 A.M.	10:45 A.M.	45 minutes	3.1
Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. 5s due 1930	9/16/25	50,000,000	321,521,500	9/17/25	10:00 A.M.	10:05 A.M.	5 minutes	6.4
New England Tel. & Tel. Co. 4½s due 1931	5/12/26	40,000,000	240,312,500	5/17/26	10:00 A.M.	10:10 A.M.	10 minutes	6.0
Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. 5s due 1941	10/17/29	32,000,000	* 32,300,000	(1)	(1)	(1)	(1)	1.0
American Tel. & Tel. Co. 5s due 1935	1/10/30	150,000,000	496,618,500	1/13/30	10:00 A.M.	10:30 A.M.	30 minutes	3.3

1 Not available.

2 No syndicate was formed, the bonds being offered through a selected list of dealers and banking institutions.

Source: Compiled from data supplied by J. P. Morgan & Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1689-1

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

[Copy]

Please Return to Syndicate Department

$2,155,000 UNITED STATES TELEPHONE COMPANY FIRST MORTGAGE 7% GOLD BONDS
EXTENDED TO JULY 1, 1941

On October 25th, 1921, we entered into an agreement with The Ohio Bell Telephone Company to underwrite the extension for twenty years at 7% of $2,155,000. United States Telephone Company First Mortgage 7% Gold Bonds, to mature July 1, 1941 for a commission of 5% of the aggregate principal amount, reserving the right to pay any part of this commission to holders of the maturing bonds as a consideration for their extending.

We were joined in the underwriting on original terms by the following for the amounts shown:

The First National Bank of N. Y.-----	(22½%) --	$484, 875
The National City Company-----	(22½%) --	484, 875
Huntington National Bank, Columbus, Ohio-----	(10%) --	215, 500
J. P. Morgan & Co.-----	(45%) --	969, 750
		<hr/>
		$2, 155, 000

It was finally decided not to allow extending bondholders any commission and holders desiring to avail themselves of the privilege of extension were required to present bonds to us not later than November 26, 1921, retaining the coupon and cashing it on its due date in the usual manner. On and prior to December 1, 1921, we purchased at par and accrued interest the bonds of holders who did not desire to extend.

The extended coupon bonds are issued in the denomination of $1,000, registerable as to principal and exchangeable for fully registered bonds; interest to be payable January 1st and July 1st in New York, Columbus or Cleveland, Ohio.

The bonds are redeemable at the option of The Ohio Bell Telephone Company as a whole, but not in part, on and after July 1, 1926, at 103½% and accrued interest.

The cost of the preparation of the extension contracts and coupon sheets and of the attaching thereof to the maturing bonds, and the cost of the necessary United States Internal Revenue stamps, was borne by The Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

On October 28th, 1921, the commission of 5% less expenses, amounting to $106,446.45, was distributed to the Original Group.

Up to June 28th, 1922, we had purchased $1,163,000 bonds which were sold at various prices leaving a credit in the account of $32,934.38, which was distributed on June 28th.

On that date there remained outstanding $5,000 bonds.

The remaining $5,000 bonds were subsequently deposited, leaving a profit of $723.65, which was distributed on July 16, 1924.

EXHIBIT No. 1689-2

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

[Copy]

Please Return to Syndicate Department

$2,676,000 CUYAHOGA TELEPHONE COMPANY FIRST MORTGAGE 7% GOLD BONDS
EXTENDED TO JULY 1, 1941

On October 25, 1921, we entered into an agreement with The Ohio Bell Telephone Company to underwrite the extension for twenty years at 7% of $2,676,000 Cuyahoga Telephone Company First Mortgage 7% Gold Bonds, to mature July 1st, 1941; for a commission of 5% of the aggregate principal amount, reserving the right to pay any part of this commission to holders of the maturing bonds as a consideration for their extending.

We were joined in the underwriting on original terms by the following for the amounts shown:

First National Bank-----	(22½%)--	$602, 100
National City Company-----	(22½%)--	602, 100
Huntington Nat'l Bk., Columbus, Ohio-----	(10%)--	267, 600
J. P. Morgan & Company-----	(45%)--	1, 204, 200
		<hr/> $2, 676, 000

It was finally decided not to allow extending bondholders any commission and holders desiring to avail themselves of the privilege of extension were required to present bonds to us not later than November 26th, 1921, retaining the coupon and cashing it on its due date in the usual manner. On and prior to December 1st, 1921, we purchased at par and accrued interest the bonds of holders who did not desire to extend.

The extended coupon bonds are issued in the denomination of $1,000, registerable as to principal and exchangeable for fully registered bonds; interest to be payable January 1st and July 1st in New York, Cleveland or Columbus, Ohio.

The bonds are redeemable at the option of The Ohio Bell Telephone Company as a whole, but not in part, on and after July 1st, 1926, at 103½ and accrued interest.

The cost of the preparation of the extension contracts and coupon sheets and of the attaching thereof to the maturing bonds, and the cost of the necessary United States Internal Revenue stamps, was borne by The Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

On December 28th, 1921, the commission of 5% less expenses, amounting to $182,463.64, was distributed to the Original Group.

Up to June 28th, 1922, we had purchased $1,503,000 Bonds which we sold at various prices leaving a credit in the account of $36,192.26, which was distributed on June 28th and the account closed.

EXHIBIT No. 1690

[From the files of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. Letter from Albert H. Gordon to John Wilkie]

KIDDER, PEABODY & Co.

17 Wall Street, New York. 115 Devonshire Street, Boston.

Branch offices

10 East 45th St., New York. 69 Newbury St., Boston
1416 Chestnut St., Philadelphia

NEW YORK, March 2, 1935.

JOHN WILKIE, Esq.,

Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., Poughkeepsie, New York.

DEAR JOHN: You have my best thanks for sending me ten copies of your report for I was able to make good use of them. If the President realized how well you were carrying out his pet project of rural electrification in his own territory, you might be dear to his heart. However, I have my doubts for I do not believe your progress will get him any votes.

Ben Grant, who represents us in Albany, may call upon you soon. As you know, he has distributed more of your stock than anybody in our organization. In spite of public uncertainty regarding utilities, he feels that he could sell another 2,000 shares should they become available.

Present trends indicate that we are moving into a period of lower interest rates on long term money. Sound companies, such as yours, will wish to consider whether or not to take advantage of the situation by refunding their callable bond issues at lower interest rates. I would be glad to review the situation with you at any time should you desire to do so. I do not think that Drexel & Company would object as evidenced by the fact that within a few days we expect to sign a contract with the Lehigh and New England Railroad to purchase $6,500,000 of its 4% bonds at 98 to refund its General Mortgage 5s, series "A" and "B" due 1954, the last issue of which was offered in June 1927 by Drexel & Company. Brown, Harriman, Inc., E. B. Smith & Co. and the First of Boston Corporation have accepted our invitation to join the purchase group.

It is my guess that there will be much utility refunding within the next six months. At the moment Pacific Gas & Electric Company is working actively on the refunding of its $40,000,000 5½% bonds due 1952. The Telephone Company has been giving serious consideration to refunding its Illinois Bell Telephone and Southwest Bell Telephone issues, but has decided for the time being to do nothing because of political fears. Confidentially, George Whitney told the company that it might be possible to sell these issues on a 3% basis, less 2½ points to the bankers. Whitney feels that the company should proceed on a refunding operation and is endeavoring to obtain reassurances from Washington which will be satisfactory to the management.

Undoubtedly you could effect real economies in a refunding operation and if you ever want our ideas on the subject we should welcome the opportunity of giving them to you.

With best regards, and hoping to see you soon, I am

Sincerely,

AHG:D

AL

EXHIBIT No. 1691

STIPULATION

It is hereby stipulated and agreed that the documents listed below are true copies of original communications or carbon copies from the files of Blyth & Co., Inc. and that they were received or sent, as the case may be, by Blyth & Co., Inc.

Date	Description	To	From
June 27, 1935	Letter.....	Walter S. Gifford, A. T. & T.....	C. E. Mitchell.
June 27, 1935	Memorandum.....	G. Leib, E. Bashore, S. Hawes.....	C. E. Mitchell.
Jan. 23, 1936	Letter.....	Harold Stanley, Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc.....	C. E. Mitchell.
Mar. 2, 1936	Letter.....	C. E. Mitchell, Blyth & Co., Inc.....	Harold Stanley.
Mar. 4, 1936	Letter.....	Charles R. Blyth.....
June 17, 1936	Memorandum.....	C. R. Blyth, E. M. Stevens, R. Shurtleff.....	C. E. Mitchell.
Sept. 23, 1936	Memorandum.....	C. E. Mitchell.....	G. Leib.

(Signed) C. E. MITCHELL.
C. E. Mitchell.

DECEMBER 14, 1939.

"EXHIBIT No. 1692" appears in full in the text, p. 11930

EXHIBIT No. 1693

[From the files of Blyth & Co., Inc.]

JUNE 27, 1935.

DEAR WALTER: As you doubtless have read, I am back in the investment banking business, my connection being that of Chairman of the Board of Blyth & Company.

I would be inclined to chat with you about your financing but I have no doubt that you are being pestered from all quarters, and believing that whether the banking house that has handled your financing in the past is in the investment banking business or not, you will undoubtedly be guided by their views, I am not going to count myself in among the pesterers. I merely remind you that I am again active and if at any time I can be of service in any way, I shall be delighted.

Very sincerely yours,

C. E. MITCHELL.

Mr. WALTER S. GIFFORD,
Pres., American Telephone & Telegraph Co.,
195 Broadway, New York City.

EXHIBIT No. 1694

Chicago
New York
BostonLEE HIGGINSON CORPORATION
231 South La Salle Street

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, December 11, 1939.

Mr. PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,
*Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR SIR: At the request of Mr. W. S. Whitehead, through Mr. N. P. Hallowell in our New York office, we are enclosing a copy of a letter dated April 4, 1935, written by Mr. Hallowell to Mr. Charles H. Schweppe in Chicago.

Very truly yours,

CHARLES A. CAPEK,
*Assistant Treasurer.*CAC:NF
Enclosure.

EXHIBIT No. 1695

[From the files of Lee Higginson Corporation. Letter from N. P. Hallowell to Charles W. Schweppe, Barrett Wendell, Jr., and Charles E. Cotting]

[Copy]

NEW YORK, April 4, 1935.

Confidential

Mr. CHARLES H. SCHWEPPE,
Mr. BARRETT WENDELL, JR.,
Chicago, Ill.
Mr. CHARLES E. COTTING,
Boston, Mass.

DEAR CHARLIE AND B: I had a very interesting luncheon yesterday with Walter Gifford of the Telephone Company. They are considering registering a $50,000,000 issue of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. The bonds outstanding were offered in 1924 by J.P.M. & Co., K.L. & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., First National Bank, Bankers Trust Co., Harris Forbes, National City Co., Guaranty Co. and L.H. & Co. These bonds are callable at 105 whereas most of the telephone issues are callable at 110.

He said they were tied up to no one and they had not discussed how to take up the matter of selling. He said that a great many houses on the street have been to him for telephone refunding and that he realized there was quite a problem ahead of them to do the thing right so as not to stir up enmity among the various houses on the street. I said "Why not use those members of the old telephone group who are still in the business as a starter, and invite in others who are the leading distributors?" He said that very possibly that might be a good way to do it. He told me that J.P.M. & Co. would not be the guiding hand as to who was to come in. I told him that if he wanted to sell us $50,000,000 Southwestern Bell Telephone 3½s at 100 less 2½% commission we would take them. That led to the question which I was hoping he would ask of the set-up of our corporation and our capabilities for doing business and gave me the chance to tell him the amount of business we have been in during 1934. He said it has been suggested that they sell this $50,000,000 issue to one or two insurance companies but he did not think that that was a very good idea but even if they did that they would want to register the bonds as he would have nothing to do with private sales. I told him that if he did have them registered we could sell them to insurance companies as well as anybody else but he said in case they did the Company would do it direct, but there again that probably was not the best thing for the Company to do.

He understands our position in the old telephone group and I am sure would not object, in fact, I think he would be glad, to have us in any group doing telephone financing in the future but he reiterated that they had not discussed any group and that they were beholden to no one. He told me to call him up towards the end of the month and perhaps he could tell me more. He was very friendly and I feel free to go to him at any time and I certainly will not leave it until the end of the month before seeing him again.

In spite of his saying that Morgan would not wield the guiding hand he said of course he would talk everything over with George Whitney and it might be a good idea for me to talk to George Whitney also, which I will do next week on his return. So far so good. If you can offer any suggestions which would help me in making more sure of our position, please let me know.

Sincerely yours,

NPH

NPH: R

"EXHIBIT No. 1696" appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11826.

EXHIBIT No. 1697

[From the files of Lee Higginson Corporation. Memorandum from E. N. Jesup to N. P. Hallowell]

NEW YORK, September 27, 1935.

Memorandum for N. P. H.

Harold Stanley called me over this noon and gave me the set-up on the Illinois Bell Telephone together with numerous documents.

The amount of the issue will be $45,000,000, coupon 3½% and the bonds will be sold at a premium. Participations in the business will be divided as follows. These figures are dollars and not percentages.

Morgan Stanley	$13,000,000
Kuhn Loeb	6,500,000
Kidder Peabody	5,000,000
Lee Higginson	2,500,000
First Boston	4,500,000
Brown Harriman	4,000,000
E. B. Smith	4,000,000

The appearance of names will be in that order. Two of the non-appearing members will be Mellon Securities with a $2,000,000 interest and Bonbright with a $1,000,000 interest. This totals $42,500,000. No mention was made as to the disposition of the remaining $2,500,000.

Harold Stanley emphasized the fact that these interests were for this piece of business only and they were not at the moment forming a telephone group. My guess is that they do not want to be committed to this group in these amounts for future telephone business owing to the possibility of some of the banks being able to underwrite in the future. If this came about I would imagine that they might have to include the First National, Guaranty and National City.

I told Harold that I thought he treated this matter with great fairness and that we were pleased.

E. N. J.

EXHIBIT No. 1698

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE CO.—$45,000,000 35-YEAR 3½% FIRST AND REFUNDING MORTGAGE BONDS

Morgan, Stanley & Co. expect to head a group which will underwrite the above issue which is now in the course of registration and which, in the normal course of events, should come out of registration in October 16th. We have received the voluminous printed documents including registration statement, prospectus, etc. and these are being studied carefully by Mr. Sholten.

Mr. Stanley invited us to join in this business on the basis of having a $4,500,000 interest on original terms. The other members of the syndicate underwriting group in the order in which they will appear are as follows:

Morgan, Stanley & Co., $13,000,000 (handwritten:) +600,000.
 Kuhn, Loeb & Co., $6,500,000 6,800,000
 Lee, Higginson & Co., $2,500,000
 Brown, Harriman & Co., $4,000,000
 Kidder Peabody & Co., $5,000,000 (handwritten:) +300.
 First Boston Corporation, $4,500,000
 Edward B. Smith & Co., $4,000,000

* * * * *
 The Mellon Securities will have an interest of $2,000,000 and Bonbright will have an interest of $1,000,000 but neither of these last two names will appear in the advertising. These amounts add up to $42,500,000 and the remaining $2,500,000 are to be reserved by the company.

While Lee Higginson will appear technically ahead of us in spite of the fact that they have a smaller interest, I assume that the reason for this is that the first four names are the only names that appeared as such in the former advertising of this issue. The old Harris Forbes interest in Bell Telephone financing was approximately 5% and it will be seen under the new arrangement, First Boston will have 10% of the entire issue or 10.59% of the $42,500,000 to be sold by the underwriting syndicate.

Mr. Stanley said that these percentages did not necessarily constitute a precedent for any other Bell Telephone financing that might be done because in special cases other bankers might have to be introduced, etc.

H. M. ADDINSELL

SEPTEMBER 30TH 1935.

EXHIBIT No. 1699

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY—$45,000,000 3½% BONDS 1964

Mr. H. S. Morgan of Morgan Stanley called me up to say that it is contemplated that the above issue will go into registration tomorrow in contemplation of a public offering on December 12th. The issue is to be $44,000,000 as $1,000,000 is to be reserved for the pension fund.

We are offered a $4,000,000 interest which is a slight reduction from our proportionate interest in the Illinois Bells and is occasioned by the fact that Dillon Read will be introduced into the business (in a nonappearing position) and all participants are giving up pro rata to them. The amount of their interest is not stated. Mr. Morgan is sending us the proposed registration statement and prospectus tomorrow morning and in the course of the next few days a meeting will be called of the underwriters which I will plan to attend.

H. M. ADDINSELL.

NOVEMBER 20TH 1935.

EXHIBIT NO. 1700

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co.]

Public Offerings of Securities under Securities Act of 1933 by the A. T. & T. Co. and Subsidiary Companies

Offering date Company	10/16/35 Illinois Bell Tel.	12/12/35 Southwestern Bell Tel.	4/16/36 Pac. Tel. & Tel. "B"	10/15/36 A. T. & T.	12/2/36 A. T. & T.	12/17/36 Pac. Tel. & Tel. "C"	5/5/37 Southern Bell	6/9/38 The Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. 30 Year 3 1/2% Debentures due 6/1/68
Issue	1st & Ref. Mtg. 3 1/2% 1970	1st & Ref. Mtg. 3 1/2% 1964	Ref. Mtg. 3 1/4% 1966	25 Yr. 3 1/2% Debts. 1961	30 Yr. 3 1/2% Debts. 1966	Ref. Mtg. 3 1/4% 1966	25 Yr. 3 1/2% Debts. 1962
Amount	$43,700,000 ¹	$44,000,000 ¹	$30,000,000	$150,000,000 ¹	$140,000,000 ¹	$25,000,000	$42,500,000 ¹	$27,750,000
Bankers Partic. In such issues on orig. terms	Part. on Orig. Terms	Part. on Orig. Terms	Part. on Orig. Terms	Part. on Orig. Terms	Part. on Orig. Terms	Part. on Orig. Terms	Part. on Orig. Terms	Part. on Orig. Terms
	Pos. in Adv.	Pos. in Adv.	Pos. in Adv.	Pos. in Adv.	Pos. in Adv.	Pos. in Adv.	Pos. in Adv.	Pos. in Adv.
Morgan Stanley	31.1	30.45	30.0	16.67	14.29	30.0	17.65	18.02
Kuhn Loeb	12.6	12.33	15.0	8.33	7.14	15.0	8.82	9.00
Kidder Peabody	12.7	11.59	10.0	6.67	5.71	10.0	7.06	7.20
Lee Higginson	10.3	5.23	5.0	4.00	3.43	5.0	3.53	3.60
First Boston	10.3	9.27	7.7	6.00	5.14	7.6	5.88	6.30
Brown Hiram	9.15%	8.64	7.7	6.00	5.14	7.6	5.88	6.30
Edward B. Smith	9.15%	8.64	7.7	6.00	5.14	7.6	5.88	6.30
Metton Securities	4.6	4.09	NA	3.33	2.86	NA	2.35	2.72
Embratel	2.3	2.27	NA	2.67	2.28	NA	2.35	2.72
Dillon Read	NA	4.09	NA	3.33	2.86	NA	NA	NA
Blyth & Co.	NA	NA	7.7	2.67	2.28	7.6	2.35	2.72
Leard & Fries	NA	NA	NA	2.67	2.28	NA	2.35	2.72
Donaldson & Dominick	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
Goldman Sachs	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
Harris Hall	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
Hayden Stone	NA	NA	1.6	1.33	1.14	2.0	1.41	1.44
W. E. Hutton	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
Lehman	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
Messley	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
Seligman	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
White Weld	NA	NA	NA	1.33	1.14	NA	1.18	1.44
Dean Witter	NA	NA	7.6	1.0	0.9	7.6	0.94	1.26
Other Underwriters	NA	NA	NA	16.7	28.57	NA	24.11	18.74
Total	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00

¹ Excludes any amounts sold to Trustees of Company's Pension Fund.² Smith, Barney & Co.³ Did not appear in advertising.⁴ 24 other houses underwrote 11.7% or $24,000,000 of this issue.⁵ 74 other houses underwrote 28.57% or $40,000,000 of this issue.⁶ 27 other houses underwrote 24.11% or $10,250,000 of this issue.⁷ 16 other underwriters underwrote 18.74% or $5,200,000 of this issue.

NA = No interest on original terms or appearance in advertising.

HHS/EF 5/27/87

H. H. SHREVE.

EXHIBIT No. 1701

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

(Handwritten:) Memo. Issue.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY—$45,000,000 3¼% 25-YEAR DEBENTURES

Mr. Stanley of Morgan Stanley telephoned this morning to offer us a $2,500,000 interest in the above business which has gone into registration and is expected to come to the market about May 5th. Of the $45,000,000 to be issued $2,500,000 will be taken by the pension fund of the company, leaving $42,500,000 for purchase by the bankers. The interest offered us therefore amounts to 5.8+%. This is a little smaller than the interests we have had in any of the recent telephone issues excepting the A. T. & T. 3¾s due 1966 where we had a 4.5% interest. Mr. Stanley explained that pursuant to the company's desire they had increased the number of underwriters which resulted in pro rata reduction of the percentage interests of the old principal underwriters including themselves. He mentioned that their interest would be $7,500,000.

This is of course a prime credit. When I commented that 3¼% debentures seemed perhaps a little ambitious, especially when the Pacific Telephone 3¼% Mortgage Bonds which is a better security were currently quoted 99¾-99¾, he replied that the company had no objection to having the bonds sold to the public at a discount and that it was a question of market conditions at the time; that the debenture issue was decided upon instead of a mortgage as it may be that the company will be obliged to segregate its property by states, in which case the release provisions could be more advantageously worked out with a debenture and they thought they had worked out release provisions which would be satisfactory from the point of view of the intrinsic security.

I accepted, with thanks subject to the usual.

H. M. ADDINSELL.

April 14th, 1937.

EXHIBIT No. 1702

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

(Handwritten): Memo. June 26, 1939. Issue.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE¹ Co.—$22,250,000 40-YEAR 3% DEBENTURES

Perry Hall of Morgan Stanley advised me today that the Company expects to file the above issue for registration with the S. E. C. on Thursday, the 29th. The proceeds are to be used primarily to retire advances from the parent company. We are offered a $1,220,000 interest. The same people will participate as did in the mortgage bonds and our interest is proportionate to that in the mortgage bonds.

The gross spread will be 1½ points, of which ½ will be allowed to dealers, underwriters will have ¾ gross (subject to expenses), and Morgan Stanley will have ¼ management. Offering is expected July 20th.

I have accepted subject to the usual.

H. M. ADDINSELL.

June 26th, 1939.

¹(Handwritten:) & Tel. Co.

EXHIBIT No. 1703

Relative Participations in Security Issues of American Telephone and Telegraph and Associated Companies, 1935-1939—Participations of the Principal Underwriters in Relation to the Participation of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Date of Offering Prospectus	Issue	Amount	Morgan Stanley & Co.	Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	Kidder, Peabody & Co.	Lee, Higginson Corp.	The First Boston Corporation	Brown, Harriman & Co.	Smith, Barney & Co. (E. B. Smith & Co.)	Blith & Co. Inc.	Dean, Witler & Co.	Dillon, Read & Co. Inc.	Mellon Securities Corporation	Bonbright & Co.	Lazard Freres & Co.	Harris, Hall & Co.	Clark, Dodge & Co.	Goldman, Sachs & Co.	F. S. Mosely & Co.	Hayden Stone & Co.	White, Weld & Co.	Lehman Brothers	Schoenikopf, Hutton & Tomney, Inc.	Stone & Webster and Blodgett, Inc.	J. & W. Seligman & Co.	C. D. Barney & Co.	Salomon Bros. & Hutzler
10/10/35	Illinois Bell Telephone Co., 3 1/8s of 1940	$43,700,000	100.0	50.0	39.0	18.4	33.1	29.4	29.4	---	---	---	14.7	7.4	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---
12/12/35	Southwestern Bell Tel. Co., 3 1/8s of 1941	44,000,000	103.0	50.0	38.0	17.2	32.1	28.3	28.3	---	---	13.4	13.4	7.5	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---
4/16/36	Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/8s of 1936	30,000,000	100.0	50.0	33.3	16.7	25.6	25.6	25.6	25.6	---	---	---	---	---	5.6	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---
10/15/36	American Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/8s of 1936	150,000,000	100.0	50.0	40.0	24.0	36.0	36.0	36.0	20.0	6.0	20.0	20.0	16.0	10.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	4.0	4.0	4.0	4.0	4.0
12/ 3/36	American Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/8s of 1936	140,000,000	100.0	50.0	40.0	24.0	36.0	36.0	36.0	20.0	6.0	20.0	20.0	16.0	16.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	3.7	3.7	3.7	3.7	3.7
12/17/36	Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/8s of 1936	25,000,000	100.0	50.0	33.3	16.7	25.4	25.4	25.4	25.4	---	---	---	---	---	6.7	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---
5/ 5/37	Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/8s of 1937	42,500,000	100.0	50.0	40.0	20.0	33.3	33.3	33.3	13.3	5.3	---	13.3	13.3	13.3	8.0	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
6/24/37	New York Telephone Co. 3 1/8s of 1937	25,000,000	100.0	50.0	40.0	20.0	32.5	32.5	32.5	---	---	---	---	---	---	5.0	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---
6/ 9/38	Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/8s of 1938	27,750,000	100.0	50.0	40.0	20.0	35.0	35.0	35.0	15.0	7.0	---	15.0	15.0	12.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0	8.0
7/14/38	Southwestern Bell Tel. Co. 3s of 1938	28,900,000	100.0	50.0	40.4	20.2	34.6	34.0	34.6	13.5	5.8	---	13.5	13.5	11.5	7.7	7.7	7.7	7.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
7/20/38	Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. 3s of 1938	22,250,000	100.0	50.0	40.0	20.0	33.3	33.3	33.3	13.4	5.3	---	13.4	13.4	13.4	8.1	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7

Sources: Compiled from the registration statements relating to the respective issues on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Financing of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Associated Companies by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated from Sept. 16, 1935 to June 30, 1939

(Amounts in Thousands of Dollars)

Issues	Date of Offering Prospectus	Underwriters	Order in Which Name of Firm Appeared in Ten Issues	Illinois Bell T Co. 3½'s of 1970		Southwest-ern Bell T Co. 3½'s of 1964		Pacific T & T Co. 3½'s of 1966		American T & T Co. 3½'s of 1961		American T & T Co. 3½'s of 1966		Pacific T & T Co. 3½'s of 1966		Southern Bell T & T Co. 3½'s of 1962		New York Tel. Co. 3½'s of 1967		Mountain States T & T Co. 3½'s of 1968		Southwest-ern Bell T Co. 3's of 1968
				Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated
Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated	1	1	1	113,600	31.0	13,400	30.4	9,000	30.0	25,000	16.6	20,000	14.3	7,500	30.0	7,500	17.6	8,000	32.0	5,000	18.0	5,200	18.0
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	2	2	2	2,800	15.5	6,700	15.2	4,500	15.0	12,500	8.3	10,000	7.1	3,750	15.0	3,750	8.8	4,000	16.0	2,500	9.0	2,600	9.0
Kidder, Peabody & Co.	3	3	3	5,300	12.1	5,100	11.6	3,000	10.0	10,000	6.7	8,000	5.7	2,500	10.0	3,000	7.1	3,200	12.8	2,000	7.2	2,100	7.4
Mellon Securities Corp.	4	4	4	2,500	6.7	2,300	5.2	1,500	5.0	6,000	4.0	4,800	3.4	1,250	5.0	1,500	3.5	1,600	6.4	1,000	3.6	1,050	3.6
Lee Higginson Corp.	5	5	5	4,500	10.4	4,300	9.8	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
The First Boston Corp.	6	6	6	4,000	9.2	3,800	8.6	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Brown, Harriman & Co. Inc.	7	7	7	4,000	9.2	3,800	8.6	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Edward B. Smith & Co.	8	8	8	800	2.3	800	1.8	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Blyth & Co., Inc.	9	9	9	1,000	2.8	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Mellon Securities Corp.	10	10	10	2,000	4.6	1,800	4.1	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Bonbright & Co., Inc.	11	11	11	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Lazard Freres & Co., Inc.	12	12	12	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Clark, Dodge & Co.	13	13	13	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Dominick & Dominick	14	14	14	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Goldman Sachs & Co.	15	15	15	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Harris, Hall & Co., Inc.	16	16	16	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
Hayden Stone & Co.	17	17	17	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2
W. E. Hutton & Co.	18	18	18	1,000	2.3	1,000	2.3	2,300	7.7	9,000	6.0	7,200	5.1	1,900	7.6	2,500	5.9	2,600	10.4	1,750	6.3	1,800	6.2

Financing of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Associated Companies by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated from Sept. 16, 1935 to June 30, 1939—Continued

(Amounts in Thousands of Dollars)

Issues.....	Illinois Bell T Co. 3½'s of 1970	Southwest-ern Bell T Co. 3½'s of 1964	Pacific T & T Co. 3½'s of 1966	American T & T Co. 3½'s of 1961	American T & T Co. 3½'s of 1960	Pacific T & T Co. 3½'s of 1966	Southern Bell T & T Co. 3½'s of 1962	New York Tel. Co. 3½'s of 1967	Mountain States T & T Co. 3½'s of 1968	Southwest-ern Bell T Co. 3½'s of 1968
Date of Offering Prospectus.....	10/16/35	12/12/35	4/10/36	10/15/36	12/2/36	12/17/36	5/5/37	6/24/37	6/9/38	7/14/38
Underwriters	Order in Which Name of Firm Appeared in Ten Issues	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated	Percent Allocated	Amount Allocated
Lehman Brothers.....	1818	2217		2,000	1.3	1,600	1.2		400	1.4
F. S. Mosley & Co.....	1919	37	2322	2,000	1.3	1,600	1.2		400	1.4
J. & W. Seligman & Co.....	2020	44		2,000	1.3	1,600	1.2		400	1.4
White, Weld & Co.....	2121	46	2727	2,000	1.3	1,600	1.2		400	1.4
Hornblower & Weeks.....	2222	30	2020	1,500	1.0	1,200	0.9		400	1.4
Jackson & Curtis.....	2323	32	3231	1,500	1.0	1,200	0.9		400	1.4
Dean Witter & Co.....	2424	948	3033	1,500	1.0	1,200	0.9		350	1.3
The Securities Co. of Milwaukee, Inc.....	25	43	2524	1,000	0.7	1,000	0.7		400	1.4
Bancamerica-Blair Corp.....	2526			1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Chas. D. Barney & Co.....	2627	10		1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Casati & Co., Inc.....	2728	14		1,000	0.7	750	0.5
E. W. Clark & Co.....	2829	15	3134	1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Coffin & Burr, Inc.....	2930	17	2828	1,000	0.7	750	0.5		300	1.1
R. L. Day & Co.....	3031	19	2929	1,000	0.7	750	0.5		350	1.3
Esabrook & Co.....	3132	22	1618	1,000	0.7	750	0.5		400	1.4
Field, Glor & Co.....	3233			1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Graham, Parsons & Co.....	3334	25	3436	1,000	0.7	750	0.5		250	0.9
Halgarten & Co.....	3435			1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Hayden, Miller & Co.....	3536			1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Hempill, Noyes & Co.....	3637	28	30	1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Kean, Taylor & Co.....	3738			1,000	0.7	750	0.5
Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.....	3839			1,000	0.7	750	0.5
O. F. Murphy & Co.....	3940			1,000	0.7	750	0.5

[illegible]

[illegible]

NOTE.--Discrepancies in the total percentage are due to the process of "rounding off."
Source: Compiled from the registration statements relating to the respective issues on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

EXHIBIT No. 1705

[From the files of Blyth & Co., Inc.]

Memorandum to Mr. C. E. Mitchell

SEPTEMBER 23, 1936.

Copy to C. R. Blyth

E. M. Stevens

Roy Shurtleff

J. L. Pagen

Harold Stanley called up while you were out, on the subject of American Telephone & Telegraph. There will be \$175,000,000, 25 year $3\frac{1}{4}$ s filed either today or tomorrow, to be offered about October 15th. \$25,000,000 of this will be retained by the Company for the pension fund.

It will be two point profit business with $\frac{3}{8}$ going to Morgan Stanley. Underwriters will receive $\frac{7}{8}$, subject to expenses and the selling group will receive $\frac{1}{4}$. Price to the public will probably be around 101, which Stanley said he has discussed generally with you. If there is any change above that price it will be taken up again with the underwriters.

There will probably be about 45 underwriters. The only people who will appear are the following, with their amounts:

Morgan Stanley-----	$25, 000, 000
Kuhn Loeb-----	12, 500, 000
Kidder Peabody-----	10, 000, 000
Brown Harriman-----	9, 000, 000
E. B. Smith-----	9, 000, 000
First Boston-----	9, 000, 000
Lee Higginson-----	6, 000, 000

The most substantial amounts in the non-appearing group will be:—

Dillon Reed-----	$5, 000, 000
Blyth-----	5, 000, 000
Mellon Securities-----	5, 000, 000
Lazard Freres-----	4, 000, 000

Mr. Stanley went on to explain that there is absolutely no precedent in this business as the next issue will be a small one and it may be that they will go back to the original seven underwriters who appear publicly.

GL. R.

G. LEIB.

EXHIBIT No. 1706

[From the files of Blyth & Co., Inc. Letter from C. E. Mitchell to Charles R. Blyth]

MARCH 4, 1936.

DEAR CHARLEY: I have had several talks with Harold Stanley regarding Pacific Telephone business and have used every argument that I can muster that we should be up around the top in that offering. He started out with the proposition that it was going to be impossible to revise the old account. Later he conceded us a position of $1,000,000. in the underwriting and the last appearing name. Then he told me that there was just as much pressure from the Coast for the care of Dean Witter as there was for us and if he revamped the account to take us in, he would have to find some place for Dean Witter, and now in a letter written just as he was leaving for a holiday, he writes me as to the set-up as follows:

"As to Pacific Telephone, we have tried to consider all the different aspects of that issue. It is not coming for some time, but I think that the participants will be invited on the following basis:

Morgan Stanley & Co.-----	$9, 000, 000
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-----	4, 500, 000
Kidder Peabody & Co.-----	3, 000, 000
Lee Higginson & Co.-----	1, 500, 000
First of Boston-----	2, 300, 000
E. B. Smith & Co.-----	2, 300, 000
Brown Harriman & Co.-----	2, 300, 000
Blyth & Co.-----	2, 300, 000
Dean Witter & Co.-----	2, 300, 000
Harris Hall & Co.-----	500, 000

"The names to appear in the advertisement in the order given.

"I know you will keep the above confidential, as we haven't spoken to any of the other houses, and the above program may be changed.

"After giving not only your wishes but the entire matter a lot of thought I am convinced that the above arrangement is fair all around and in the best interest of the business.

"I note what you say about your having offered us the participation in Pacific Gas & Electric, which of course we appreciated and which we were very glad to accept, but really there can be no connection between that and the Pacific Telephone business in your mind or ours."

I have about used up my oratory. Have you got any suggestions?

Sincerely,

Mr. CHARLES R. BLYTH,
San Francisco Office.

EXHIBIT No. 1707

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Financing of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and associated companies headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated

Date of Offering Prospectus	Title of Issue	Total Amount of Issue Underwritten	Amount of Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Underwriting Participation	Bankers' Gross Commissions	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Manager's Compensation	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit Before Syndicate Expenses	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit After Syndicate Expenses ¹
10/16/35	Illinois Bell Telephone Co. 3¼% due 1970	$43,700,000	$13,600,000	$874,000	$109,250	$211,345	$211,345
12/12/35	Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. 3¼% due 1964	44,000,000	13,400,000	880,000	110,000	210,500	210,500
4/16/36	Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. 3¼% due 1966	30,000,000	9,000,000	600,000	75,000	142,500	142,500
10/15/36	American Telephone and Telegraph Co. 3¼% due 1961	150,000,000	25,000,000	3,000,000	562,500	781,250	758,200
12/2/36	American Telephone and Telegraph Co. 3¼% due 1966	140,000,000	20,000,000	2,800,000	525,000	700,000	682,848
12/17/36	Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. 3¼% due 1966	25,000,000	7,500,000	500,000	93,750	159,375	142,514
5/5/37	Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. 3¼% due 1962	42,500,000	7,500,000	850,000	159,375	225,000	209,640
6/24/37	New York Telephone Co. 3¼% due 1967	25,000,000	8,000,000	500,000	93,750	163,750	142,457
6/9/38	Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co. 3¼% due 1968	27,750,000	5,000,000	555,000	104,062	147,812	136,007
7/14/38	Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. 3% due 1968	28,900,000	5,200,000	578,000	108,375	153,875	141,707
7/20/39	Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. 3% due 1979	22,250,000	3,900,000	333,750	55,625	85,325	75,898
	Totals.....	$579,100,000	$118,160,000	$11,470,750	$1,996,687	$2,980,732	$2,853,616

¹ Before expenses, taxes, overhead and return on capital.

Source: From data supplied by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

EXHIBIT No. 1708

[From the files of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company]

(Handwritten): P. F. File. 6/3/08. AAM.

44, STATE STREET,
BOSTON.

February 15, 1905.

FREDERICK P. FISH, Esq.,

President, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.,125, Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: As we think we have made it apparent to your Company ever since our firm and Messrs. Speyer & Co. provided for the last capital requirements, we are anxious to be afforded an opportunity to show on what terms we can provide the fresh capital desired by the Company for the coming year. We do not ask or suggest that we should be given the slightest preference over any other banking firms. The Company is in sound financial condition, and we submit that there is no reason, based on the condition of the Company in the present market situation, why the company should not provide for its wants on the best terms available, and we think it a fair statement to say that the Company cannot determine what these are if it permits a single firm only to lay before it a plan to provide for its financial requirements.

The New England market has been of inestimable benefit to the Company in steadily absorbing the larger portion of its securities. In the main, the New England investor is not a speculator or purchaser of securities on a scale which leads to substantial liquidation in times of stock market stress, and if the confidence of the New England investor is retained by a continuation of conservative methods of finance and management it should not be overlooked that in absorbing and holding power he will continue for many years to be the most valuable client which the Company possesses.

At the same time we think all well wishers of the Company realize that if it can also interest a substantial number of investors in its securities in New York in England in Holland and Germany, its position will be greatly strengthened, and we and our friends, Messrs. Speyer & Co., have given this matter much consideration. Holland, for example, seems to us to be a place where a very valuable and tenacious clientele can be built up for the Company, but we are inclined to think that in view of the lack of knowledge in Holland of the Company and its resources, it is not very probable that the Dutch will be disposed to purchase the present outstanding securities of the Company on a substantial scale. The bonds, at present prices, now yield only slightly above 4%, and the danger is that the Dutch investor may be more attracted by the bonds of other large corporations better known to him, and yielding the same rate of interest, such, for example, as last week's sale of $75,000,000 Southern Pacific 4s (sold at 97) a large number of which we have reason to know were sold in Holland.

It is also true that foreign investors might not be strongly attracted by the stock at the present time; for there are securities of other companies better known to them, which are likely to have the preference in their minds.

It seems to us, however, that a convertible bond, as we have taken occasion to say several times during the last year could be made to attract foreign investors, and so gradually interest them in the Company. Such a bond could be made convertible say on the basis of par for the bonds and 150 for the stock. We are aware that under the New York Statutes bonds issued under the present mortgage could only be made convertible for the next six years, but if it seemed desirable to extend this period, we have consulted counsel and believe we could suggest a method by which the two to twelve year period provided for by the statute could be secured.

We have also given a great deal of time and thought to the question of how a preference stock would be received in the several foreign markets. We are certain that a five per cent. preference stock would meet with favor, and could be sold readily in all markets at par. This stock could be made callable at 110 if the Company desired, so that as time goes on, and the Company gets to a four per cent. basis for its preferred stock this five per cent. stock could be called in and quite a saving made for the common stock.

We also think a 4½% preference stock made exchangeable into common stock on the basis of 150 for the common stock could be sold at a price which would be very satisfactory indeed to the Company. Under the conditions obtaining in foreign markets at the present moment this latter plan, in our judgment, is probably the wisest course for the Company to pursue. The stock could be listed on the principal European markets, and we think it would prove decidedly attractive. Its convertible feature will cause every one to keep their eye on the common stock, and brokers and their clients will begin to acquaint themselves with the strength and standing of the Telephone Company. If the stock ever should be converted into common on the basis of 150, this new capital would only have cost five per cent., and will not be represented by an interest bearing obligation, but will share fully whatever risks there may be in the telephone business, and in addition it will have purchased for the Company a standing in all the foreign markets, and, moreover, by such an exchange the way will very likely be cleared for the issue of more preferred stock for future capital requirements, and perhaps on a basis still better for the Company. Meanwhile the money thus obtained from the sale of the $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ preference stock, upon which the Company should earn probably seven or eight per cent., will cause an increasing surplus for the common stock, and ought to enhance its value. It is also true that this increase of capital, without any increase in the interest bearing obligations of the Company, will be a great assurance for the future of the Company, for its indebtedness will be far below that of any other correspondingly large corporation in the country. If there should happen to be a shake up in the market in connection with the next presidential election when there will be the uncertainty of a new Republican candidate and the democratic party very likely led by its radical elements, the position of the Company will be absolutely impregnable.

In this connection, we may add that we should be glad to provide not only for the requirements for the year 1905, but to go further if desired, and take care of the $20,000,000 five per cent. Notes coming due May 1907.

May we say for ourselves, that as a New England firm, we have always taken a great pride in the Company. We have dealt extensively in its securities for many years; we have, with our friends, Messrs. Speyer & Co., provided for its last financial requirements, and inasmuch as there has been no day since the issue of the last securities when we have not made it clear that we were ready and anxious to be considered by the Company when taking up its future capital requirements, we should feel it keenly if we should be kept in our present position of being told that an offer of capital from us could not be considered, and the opportunity should be reserved exclusively for another.

We think we can rightly say that the record of this last year and preceding years shows that Messrs. Speyer & Co. and ourselves are as well fitted as any firm to serve the Company by purchasing and thoroughly distributing a large block of new securities.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) LEE HIGGINSON Co.

[Source: President's file 17614.]

EXHIBIT No. 1709-1

[Letter from The First National Bank of the City of New York to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

HENRY S. STURGIS, Vice President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, December 6, 1939.

Mr. PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,
*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: As requested in your letter of December 2, we enclose herewith a table showing the percentage participations by issues on original terms of the First National Bank or the First Security Company in all American Telephone & Telegraph Company or associated company financing, commencing with the year 1906.

Yours very truly,

HENRY S. STURGIS, Vice President.

Encl.

EXHIBIT No. 1709-2

[Letter from The First National Bank of the City of New York to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

HENRY S. STURGIS, Vice President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, December 7, 1939.

Mr. PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,
*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: In the table sent you yesterday showing percentage participations by issues on original terms of the First National Bank or the First Security Company in American Telephone & Telegraph Company or associated company financing, we did not include an issue of Western Electric Company debentures.

If you wish to add this issue to the table, the comparable information is as follows:

1924 Mar. 26 $35,000,000 Western Electric Co. Inc. Deb 5s, 1944, 10%.

Yours very truly,

HENRY S. STURGIS, Vice President.

EXHIBIT No. 1709-3

[Table accompanying "Exhibit No. 1709-1" as corrected by "Exhibit No. 1709-2"]

DECEMBER 6, 1939.

					Percentage Participation
1906	Feb	15	$100,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, Conv 4s 1936.....	6 1/4 %
1908	Nov	28	50,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, Conv 4s 1936.....	5
1909	Mar	23	10,000,000	Pacific Tel & Tel, 1st Coll 5s 1939.....	16 1/2
	Oct	5	25,000,000	New York Tel, 1st Gen 4 1/2s 1939.....	2
1910	Mar	14	10,000,000	New York Tel, 1st Gen 4 1/2s 1939.....	5
	Mar	23	10,000,000	Pacific Tel & Tel, 1st & Coll 5s.....	6
1913	Jan	8	67,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, Conv 4 1/2s 1933 (Underwrit- ing of subscription by stockholders).....	10
1914	Feb	13	5,000,000	Southern Bell Tel & Tel, 1st 5s 1941.....	9
	Apr	1	30,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel Subsid Cos, 5s 1916.....	11 1/2
1916	Jan	6	50,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel Subsid Cos, 4 1/2s 1918.....	11 1/2
	Nov	24	80,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, 5s 1946.....	10. 125
1918	Jan	3	40,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel Subsid Cos, 6s 1919.....	10. 125
	Jun	19	50,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, Conv 6s 1925.....	4. 32
1919	Jan	6	40,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, 6s 1924.....	10 1/2
	Jan	6	25,000,000	New York Tel, 6s 1949.....	10 1/2
	Sept	25	50,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, 6s 1922.....	10. 125
1920	Apr	10	25,000,000	Southwestern Bell Tel of Mo, Conv. 7s 1925.....	2
	Sept	29	25,000,000	Bell Tel of Pa, 1st Ref 7s 1945.....	10
1921	Jan	8	30,000,000	Northwestern Bel Tel, 1st 7s 1941.....	10
	Feb	1	11,642,000	Southwestern Bell Tel, Conv 7s 1926.....	2. 15
	Nov	12	50,000,000	New York Tel, Ref 6s 1941.....	10
1922	May	2	25,000,000	Pacific Tel & Tel, 1st Ref 5s 1952.....	10
	May	24	35,000,000	New England Tel & Tel, 1st 5s 1952.....	10
1923	Jan	10	35,000,000	Bell Tel of Pa, 1st Ref 5s 1948.....	10
	Jun	14	50,000,000	Illinois Bell Tel, 1st & Ref 5s 1956.....	10
	Nov	2	100,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, 5 1/2s 1943.....	10
1924	Jan	25	50,000,000	Southwestern Bell Tel, 1st Ref 5s 1954.....	10
	Mar	26	35,000,000	Western Electric Co, Inc, Deb 5s 1944.....	10
1925	Jan	7	125,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, 5s 1960.....	10
	Sept	17	50,000,000	Bell Tel of Pa, 1st Ref 5s 1960.....	10
1926	May	12	40,000,000	New England Tel & Tel, 1st 4 1/2s 1961.....	10
1929	Oct	17	32,000,000	Southern Bell Tel, 1st 5s 1941.....	10
1930	Jan	11	150,000,000	Amer Tel & Tel, 5s 1965.....	10

EXHIBIT No. 1710-1

[Letter from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

KUHN, LOEB & Co.,

William and Pine Streets, New York, December 6, 1939.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR SIR: Replying to your letter of December 2nd, 1939, we enclose a schedule, which has been compiled from our records, showing the percentage participation, on original terms, of our firm in issues of securities by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company or associated companies, from the year 1906 to date. We have indicated by note the issues in which we ceded parts of our participations to others on original terms, showing the percentages ceded in each case.

In the accompanying schedule we have omitted reference to the purchase by us from American Telephone & Telegraph Company in 1914 of 296,572 shares of Western Union Telegraph Company stock, which were subsequently offered for subscription to stockholders of Western Union Telegraph Company, inasmuch as this transaction was not an issue of securities by American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Very truly yours,

KUHN, LOEB & Co.

no-hz.
enclosure.

EXHIBIT No. 1710-2

[Table accompanying "Exhibit No. 1710-1"]

Date	Title of Issue	Amount of Issue	K. L. & Co.'s Participation on original terms (Percentage)
1906 Feb. 13	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 4% Conv. Gold Bonds 3/1/36	$150,000,000	22½%	Underwriters originally contracted to purchase $100,000,000 of Bonds and had option to purchase additional $50,000,000. Bonds were offered from time to time between April 16, 1906 and Jan. 8, 1908. Option to purchase additional $50,000,000 was exercised November 27, 1908.
1907 Jan. 8	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 3-Yr. 5% Notes due 1/1/10	$25,000,000	22½%
1909 Sept. 20	New York Telephone Co. I & Gen'l. Mtge. 4½% S. F. 30-Yr. Gold Bonds due 11/1/39	$25,000,000	5%	Original purchasers, Kidder Peabody & Co. and Baring Bros. & Co. Ltd., London-K. L. & Co. were ceded participation on original terms. Of its 5% participation K. L. & Co. ceded 16% to Frank A. Vanderlip and 28% to George J. Gould on original terms.
1910 Mar. 12	New York Telephone Co. I & Gen'l. Mtge. 4½% S. F. 30-Yr. Gold Bonds due 11/1/39	{ $3,000,000 $10,000,000	5%	Original purchasers as above. K. L. & Co. were ceded 5% on original terms.
1912 May 27	New York Telephone Co. I & Gen'l. Mtge. 4½% S. F. 30-Yr. Gold Bonds due 11/1/39	{ $2,000,000 $10,000,000	5%	Original purchasers, Kidder Peabody & Co., Baring Bros. & Co. Ltd., London and Hope & Co., Amsterdam-K. L. & Co. were ceded 10% on original terms.
Sept. 24	New York Telephone Co. I & Gen'l. Mtge. 4½% S. F. 30-Yr. Gold Bonds due 11/1/39	$5,000,000	10%	Kidder Peabody & Co. sold original purchaser-K. L. & Co. were ceded 10% on original terms.
Oct. 14	New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. 5% Gold Bonds due 11/1/32	$10,000,000	10%	Do.
1913 Jan. 8	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 20-Yr. Conv. 4½% Bonds, 3/1/33	$66,997,540	15%	Underwriting of offering to stockholders.
1914 Feb. 11	Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. I Mtge. S. F. 5% Gold Bonds due 1/1/41	$5,000,000	13½%
Mar. 31	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 2-Yr. 5% Notes of Associated Companies, 4/15/18	$30,000,000	15%
1916 Jan. 6	Southwestern 20-Yr. 5% Bonds	$20,000,000
Nov. 24	American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 2-Yr. 4½% Notes 2/1/18	$60,000,000	14½%
	ditto 30-Yr. 5% Coll. Trust 12/1/46	$60,000,000	13½%

		Underwriting of offering to stockholders.
1918	Jan. 3	1-Yr. 6% Gold Notes (Associated Companies) 2/1/19.	13½%
	June 19	7-Yr. 6% Conv. Bds. 8/1/23.	13½%
1919	Jan. 6	5-Yr. 6% Notes 2/1/24.	13½%
	Sept. 25	New York Telephone Co. 30-Yr. 6% Debentures 2/1/49.	13½%
		American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 3-Yr. 6% Notes 10/1/22.	13½%
1920	Sept. 29	Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania 25-Yr. I & Ref. 7½% S. F. Bonds Series A, 10/1/45.	10¾%
1921	Jan. 8	Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. I Mtge. 20-Yr. 7% Bds. A 2/1/41.	10¾%
1922	May 2	Pacific Tel. & Tel. Ref. Mtge. 30-Yr. 5% Bds. A 5/1/52.	10¾%
	May 24	New England Tel. & Tel. I Mtge. 30-Yr. 5% Bds. A 6/1/52.	10¾%
1923	Jan. 10	Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania 25-Yr. I Ref. Mtge. 5% Bonds B 1/1/48.	10¾%
	June 14	Illinois Bell Telephone Co. I Ref. Mtge. 5% Bonds A due 6/1/56.	10¾%
	Nov. 2	American Telephone & Telegraph 20-Yr. S. F. 5½% Gold Bonds 11/1/43.	10¾%
1924	Jan. 25	Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. I Ref. Mtge. 30-Yr. 5% Bds A 2/1/54.	10¾%
1925	Jan. 7	American Tel. & Tel. 35-Yr. S. F. 5% Gold Bds. 1/1/60.	10¾%
	Sept. 17	Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania I Ref. Mtge. 5% Bds. Series C 10/1/60.	10¾%
1926	May 12	New England Tel. & Tel. I Mtge. 4½% Bds. B 5/1/61.	10¾%
1929	Oct. 18	Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. I Mtge. 5% Bds. 1/1/41.	10¾%
1930	Jan. 11	American Tel. & Tel. Co. 35-Yr. 5% Gold Bonds, 2/1/65.	10¾%
1935	Oct. 16	Illinois Bell Telephone 3½% I Ref. Mtge. Bds. B, 10/1/70.	15.56%
	Dec. 12	Southwestern Bell Telephone 3½% I & Ref. Mtge. Bds. B, 12/1/64.	15.22%
1936	Apr. 12	Pacific Tel. & Tel. 3½% I Ref. Mtge. Bds. B, 4/1/60.	15%
	Oct. 15	American Tel. & Tel. 3½% Debentures, 10/1/61.	8.33%
	Dec. 2	ditto 3½% Debentures, 12/1/66.	7.14%
	Dec. 17	Pacific Tel. & Tel. 3½% Ref. Mtge. Bds. C, 12/1/62.	15%
		$40,000,000
		$50,000,000
		$25,000,000
		$40,000,000
		$50,000,000
		$25,000,000
		$30,000,000
		$25,000,000
		$35,000,000
		$35,000,000
		$50,000,000
		$100,000,000
		$50,000,000
		$125,000,000
		$50,000,000
		$40,000,000
		$32,000,000
		$150,000,000
		$43,700,000
		$44,000,000
		$30,000,000
		$150,000,000
		$140,000,000
		$25,000,000

Date	Title of Issue	Amount of Issue	K. L. & Co.'s Participation on original terms (Percentage)
1937 May 5 Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. 25-Yr. 3½% Debts. 4/1/62 June 9 Mountain States Tel. & Tel. 3½% Debts. 6/1/68 June 17 New York Telephone Co. Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bds. B, 7/1/67		$42,500,000 $27,750,000 $25,000,000	8.83% 9% 15%	$45,000,000 issued but only $42,500,000 publicly offered. $30,000,000 issued but only $27,750,000 publicly offered.
1938 July 14 Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. I Mtge. Ref. 3% Bds. C, 7/1/68		$28,900,000	9%	$30,000,000 issued but only $28,900,000 publicly offered.
1939 July 20 Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. 40-Yr. 3% Debts. 7/1/79		$22,500,000	9%	$25,000,000 issued but only $22,500,000 publicly offered.

EXHIBIT No. 1711

[From the files of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York]

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,

140 Broadway, New York, June 6, 1934.

To the Stockholders of theGuaranty Trust Company of New York:

In my letter of January 17th last, addressed to the stockholders of the Guaranty Trust Company, I discussed at some length the problem confronting your management with respect to the disposition of the Guaranty Company of New York.

Since the date of that letter, no change has been made in the Banking Act of 1933 with respect to security affiliates of member banks.

June 16th is the date on which member banks having security affiliates must comply with the provisions of the Banking Act with respect to them.

Three alternative courses were presented and we have given these extended consideration: (a) Distribution of the stock of the Guaranty Company to the stockholders of the Trust Company under some plan whereby the stockholders of the Guaranty Trust Company would of necessity be divested of voting power, which power would rest in the hands of persons who were not stockholders of the Trust Company; (b) Some arrangement with outside interests whereby a substantial interest in the stock of the Guaranty Company would continue to be held by the Guaranty Trust Company, but with voting control in a small group of outsiders; (c) Dissolution.

The first alternative, involving a wide distribution of non-voting stock, appeared undesirable, as it would subject stockholders to all the extraordinary hazards created by the Securities Act without giving these stockholders the right to have any control over the policies of the company. Moreover, a controlling factor was the unwillingness of the leading officers of the Guaranty Company to accept the responsibilities as executive officers if such a plan were carried out.

With respect to the second alternative, since it is the intent of the Banking Act of 1933 to divest commercial banks of a continuing interest in the securities business, this course seemed objectionable. Furthermore, even though the Guaranty Trust Company under the Act might hold a minority interest in the Guaranty Company of New York, it could not escape responsibility, both moral and legal, far in excess of its proportion, in a business which it could not in fact control. It was believed that under the circumstances we could not allow the control of the Guaranty Company to pass to others.

The third alternative presented, accordingly, appeared to be the only course left to be taken; and, therefore, the purpose of this letter is to advise you that the Guaranty Company will be dissolved under the provisions of the General Corporation Law of the State of Delaware, and will cease to do a securities business on and after June 16, 1934. Its assets upon the completion of liquidation and the payment of its liabilities will be distributed to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, the sole stockholder.

Your management had been deeply concerned with the problem facing as large an organization as the Guaranty Company of New York upon its dissolution. Most of the executive officers have been in the employ of the Company since its organization in 1920 and a number of them were in the employ of the Trust Company prior to that date. Arrangements have been made by Mr. Joseph R. Swan, President of the Guaranty Company of New York, and some of the principal executives (all of whom are retiring from the Guaranty Company of New York on or before June 16, 1934) to become members of the firm of Edward B. Smith & Co., a banking house that has for many years conducted a general securities business. It is expected that a majority of the staff of the Guaranty Company will become associated with the new firm. Certain others of the Guaranty Company organization will remain and liquidate its affairs. Others will be taken into the organization of the Trust Company, and the remainder we shall endeavor to assist in finding employment elsewhere.

Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM C. POTTER.
Chairman of the Board.

EXHIBIT No. 1712

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Maturities of certain railroad bonds

Date	Amount	Name of Company	Description of Bonds
3/1/35	$8,000,000	New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio Railroad.... (The New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio Railroad bonds were obligations of the Nypano Railroad Co., 100% owned by the Erie Railway Company)	4½% prior lien gold bonds, dated May 8, 1880.
6/1/35	$2,000,000	Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company....	5% general gold bonds, dated June 1, 1894.
7/1/35	$3,000,000	Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company Eastern Division. (The common and preferred stocks of the Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Co. were and are 100% owned by the New York Central Railroad Company)	5% first gold bonds, dated July 1, 1885.
7/1/35	$3,062,000	Wilmington & Weldon Railroad.....	5% general gold bonds, dated June 1, 1885.
7/1/35	$938,000	Wilmington & Weldon Railroad..... (The Wilmington & Weldon Railroad bonds were obligations of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, which in addition had approximately $6,500,000 of bank loans outstanding at about this time.)	4% general gold bonds, dated June 1, 1885.
10/1/35	$2,500,000	Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company Western Division.	5% first gold bonds, dated October 1, 1892.
10/7/35	$8,109,000	Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company.	6% Collateral trust gold notes, dated October 7, 1920.

Source: Moody's Steam Railroads, 1933.

EXHIBIT No. 1713

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co. Diary entries by J. W. C. (J. W. Cutler), H. D. M. (H. D. Moore), and K. W. (Karl Weisheit)]

NEW YORK CENTRAL RR. CO.

George Whitney spoke to JRS, and a second time to me, as to coming financing of the Road, about three weeks ago. Anderson spoke to me again last week and asked what details, if any, GW had given us. He said he himself was not familiar with the last discussion between GW and H. S. Vanderbilt, and therefore thought it best to wait until Whitney's return about February 18th. He indicated they had not yet, but would probably, also speak to Brown Harriman JWC—2/13/35.

During lunch today at First National Bank with Sam Welldon discussion turned to railroad matters and New York C. was brought up. Continuing the conversation with Welldon after lunch I referred to the financing program recently made public in part, and indicated the hope we might handle the business. He said he knew Mr. Reynolds had us very much in mind and that he, himself, is going to speak to Reynolds about it. Reynolds and Baker are both directors of the railroad. JWC—3/7/35.

Add.—Welldon subsequently called me on the telephone and said that he had had a talk with Reynolds which was of an entirely satisfactory nature from our point of view, and that Reynolds indicated it was not necessary for us to say or do anything further. JWC—3/7/35.

Talked to Mr. Reynolds at the First National Bank. He said the railroad people had been in Washington the last few days talking with Jesse Jones, and that until they knew what could be done there they could not take any action. He seemed gravely concerned about all our railroad situations. JWC—4/12/35.

I estimate that New York Central will receive about $5,000,000 cash as a result of the issuance of $12,000,000 Monongahela First Mortgage 4% Bonds, Series "A", due 1960. HDM—4/22/35.

I learned today that J. P. M. are actively cooperating with the New York Central in the preparation of the new Toledo and Ohio Central mortgage which will be used to finance $7,500,000 of T. & O. C. maturities during 1935. HDM—4/23/35.

Having in mind my conversation with HSV a week ago, I stopped to see Welldon at the First Natl Bank. He said HSV was still in Washington, working with Jones of RFC, who was endeavoring to make banks transform their demand loans into time loans, which neither the banks nor the railroad wanted done. Nothing definite yet and he suggested there was nothing to do but await results. JWC—5/6/35.

Re Toledo & Ohio Central, spoke to G. Whitney. He said nothing would be done for two or three weeks, and that everyone in town had been in to see him about it. Will probably mean that the railroad or JPM&Co. will make up an account and hand it to someone to put thru. (Re Canada Southern, Prudential and Metropolitan went direct to the railroad). JWC—5/3/35.

Working on $12,500,000 Toledo & Ohio Central offering which it is hoped to release last of next week. First Boston will be leader of business. HDM—6/22/35.

A. N. Jones, of Morgan Stanley, said they were not giving any consideration to refunding the Convertible 6s and considered refunding of the bank loans the important problem at the moment. KW—1/21/36.

EXHIBIT No. 1714-1

[From the files of the New York Central Railroad Company]

23 WALL STREET, NEW YORK, June 18, 1935.

DEAR WILLARD: I am enclosing herewith a list concerning which I spoke to you today.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN M. YOUNG.

WILLARD PLACE, Esq.,
New York Central Railroad Company,
230 Park Avenue, New York City.

Enclosure

1. Original Group:

	O. G.	S. G.
Brown Harriman & Co. Inc.....	3,000,000	1,500,000
E. B. Smith & Co.....	3,000,000	1,500,000
First Boston Corporation.....	3,000,000	1,500,000
Lee, Higginson & Co.....	1,750,000	1,000,000
Kidder, Peabody & Co.....	1,750,000	1,000,000
	12,500,000	6,500,000

2. Secondary Group:

Blyth & Co.....	500,000
Clark Dodge & Co.....	400,000
R. L. Day & Co.....	350,000
Dick & Merle-Smith.....	250,000
Dominick & Dominick.....	200,000
Estabrook & Co.....	200,000
Field Glore & Co.....	200,000
Foster & Co.....	400,000
Hayden Stone & Co.....	300,000
Hornblower & Weeks.....	250,000
W. E. Hutton & Co.....	200,000
Kean Taylor & Co.....	250,000
Lazard Freres & Co. Inc.....	500,000
F. S. Moseley & Co.....	200,000
G. M. P. Murphy.....	100,000
Paine Webber & Co.....	150,000
Pressprich & Co.....	500,000
Salomon Bros. & Hutzler.....	250,000
J. & W. Seligman & Co.....	250,000
White Weld & Co.....	300,000
Whiting Weeks & Knowles.....	250,000

12,500,000

June 18, 1935

EXHIBIT No. 1714-2

[From the files of the New York Central Railroad Company]

(Handwritten) :

Stone Webster	-----	100,000
Clark Dodge	-----
Field Gloré	-----	less 50,000 each.

"EXHIBIT No. 1715" appears in full in the text, p. 12013.

"EXHIBIT No. 1716" appears in full in the text, p. 12014.

EXHIBIT No. 1717

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

THE TOLEDO & OHIO CENTRAL RAILROAD—$12,000,000 REFUNDING AND IMPROVEMENT MORTGAGE 3¾% BONDS, SERIES A, DUE JUNE 1, 1960, GUARANTEED BOTH AS TO PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST BY ENDORSEMENT BY THE NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILROAD

Mr. Whitney of J. P. Morgan & Co. invited Mr. Ripley of Brown Harriman & Co., Mr. Swan of Edward B. Smith & Co. and myself to come over to their office today to discuss the above proposed issue. The road wishes to sell these bonds to the public at par and proposes to allow the bankers two points. The principals' interests will be as follows:

First Boston	-----	$3,000,000
Brown Harriman	-----	3,000,000
E. B. Smith	-----	3,000,000
Kidder Peabody	-----	1,750,000
Lee, Higginson	-----	1,750,000

Morgan have a list of, I think, about fifteen or sixteen names of people whom they want to have an amount of bonds, which they have not yet discussed with us, at a set-up of ½ of 1%. At the outset Mr. Whitney said they did not want to decide what the order of precedence should be as between Brown, Smith and ourselves, so we matched for it and that resulted in our being in first place, Brown second and Smith third. In the absence of Mr. Whitney I have advised Mr. Young of J. P. Morgan & Co. to that effect, and also of the meeting referred to below.

Mr. Whitney asked us to speak to Kidder and Lee Higginson about it, which I have done, and there will be a meeting of the five principals at this office Tuesday at two o'clock. The mortgage, circular, etc. are already pretty well lined up under the direction of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, and understand Mr. Howland Auchincloss and Mr. MacVeigh of that firm are handling the matter and will act as counsel for the bankers.

Mr. Young is arranging to get additional sets of the literature to include circulars, supplementary information and mortgage sent to Kidder Peabody and Lee Higginson in the morning. We will have extra copies at the same time. Mr. Nevil Ford will handle the matter for us in cooperation with the writer and Mr. Smyth is making a careful study of the mortgage figures, etc. Doubtless at some point in the proceedings a brief inspection trip will be desirable. Mr. Place will handle the matter for the New York Central. The road is apparently desirous of proceeding in the operation as soon as possible, and after the meeting of the principals tomorrow, probably the next move will be to get in touch with the lawyers and with Mr. Place.

JUNE 17th, 1935.

H. M. ADDINSELL.

EXHIBIT No. 1718

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

[Telegram]

By direct wire from The First Boston Corporation.

BOSTON, MASS., June 21, 1935.

JOHN R. MACOMBER,
Chairman, The First Boston Corporation:

I understand that Toledo & Ohio business has been turned over to you Smith and Brown Harriman much as Albany issue was given to us to handle that the bankers decided among themselves who was to lead the business and that some suggestions were made as to who might be included stop As this is New York Central business and at least distantly related to Albany I dont see how the First Boston Smith and Brown Harriman can fail to include Whiting Weeks & Knowles on terms equal to anyone appearing after the three principals and we feel we are entitled to an interest of five percent as you know Brown and Smith each had seven percent in Albany.

(Handwritten): WHITING WEEKS & KNOWLES,
MAX O. WHITING.

EXHIBIT No. 1719

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

TELEGRAM FROM JOHN R. MACOMBER TO M. O. WHITING

(Handwritten): Toledo & Ohio
Transmit to Boston.

Date June 21st, 1935.

Please deliver following to M. O. Whiting, Whiting Weeks & Knowles.

Telegram received. Understand Nevil Ford went over this situation with you yesterday and explained it fully stop As a matter of fact business referred to came to First group which included two other houses than those you named all set up and with secondary group named by the road with amounts stop We had nothing to do with guiding this and have got to handle as instructed by them stop You are of course included in this but cannot see how we can do anything but accept the schedule as presented and over which we have no control stop Will be in Boston Monday.

J. R. M.

"EXHIBIT No. 1720" appears in full in the text, p. 12020.

EXHIBIT No. 1721

[From the files of The First Boston Corporation]

$12,500,000 The Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company Refunding & Improvement Mite. 3¾% Bonds, Series A, Due June 1, 1960

There was a selling group consisting of 22 names to whom there were allotted $6,000,000 of bonds. The list is given below:

Blyth & Co.....	$500,000
Clark, Dodge & Co.....	400,000
R. L. Day & Co.....	350,000
Dick & Merle-Smith.....	250,000
Dominick & Dominick.....	200,000
Estabrook & Co.....	200,000

Field Glore & Co.....	$150,000
Foster & Co.....	400,000
Hayden Stone & Co.....	300,000
Hornblower & Weeks.....	250,000
W. E. Hutton & Co.....	150,000
Kean, Taylor & Co.....	250,000
Lazard Freres & Co., Inc.....	500,000
F. S. Moseley & Co.....	200,000
G. M. P. Murphy & Co.....	100,000
Paine Webber & Co.....	150,000
Pressprich & Co.....	500,000
Salomon Bros. & Hutzler.....	250,000
Stone & Webster and Blodget.....	100,000
J. & W. Seligman & Co.....	250,000
White Weld & Co.....	300,000
Whiting, Weeks & Knowles.....	250,000
	$6,000,000

EXHIBIT No. 1722

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co. Diary entries by J. W. C. (J. W. Cutler) and K. W. (Karl Weisheit)]

NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA & OHIO RAILROAD

George Whitney spoke to me Dec. 7th reference underwriting extension of the $8,000,000 4½s due March 1st 1935. Said he thought it should be handled 50-50 Brown Harriman and ourselves, and asked me to advise Ripley and arrange a meeting. He suggested the 4% bond be underwritten at par for 1% commission, on theory that about two-thirds of present holders would take new bonds. JWC—12/10/34.

BW and I with Ripley and Davis met with Messrs. Whitney and Anderson yesterday. The above was substantially confirmed, with the exception of maturity, where 10 to 15 years was suggested. Time element involved in underwriting approximately 30 days, and commitment on such basis would have to be made about February 1st. We assume we would head this account as bankers for Van Sweringens but Whitney and Anderson did not want to discuss this phase of it, suggesting we work it out between ourselves and BH&Co. JWC—12/12/34.

BW and I lunched with Messrs. Ripley and Davis. Discussed in some detail the proposed extension and agreed on 4% coupon, 10 to 15 years attractive, also price of par. However, felt that 1% underwriting commission small under present conditions. Would like to see 1% on total underwritten, plus 1% on bonds taken up by underwriters. On question of leadership, we said that we felt as bankers for the Van Sweringens we should handle the account and head the business on a 50-50 basis. This was agreed to. Question of Long Dock Co. 6's due next year, brought up, but was left to be discussed if and when it came up. JWC and/or BW arrange to continue with Anderson of JPM&Co. JWC—12/17/34.

Agreement with Railroad Company and our associates signed today; letter is being sent out tonight and Railroad Company's Extension Offer and our purchase offer to be advertised tomorrow. KW—2/13/35.

EXHIBIT No. 1723

[From the files of the Erie Railroad Company. Extract from minutes of a meeting of the board of directors of the Erie Railroad Company, Dec. 28, 1934]

The Chairman reported that the $8,000,000 principal amount of The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad Company Prior Lien Mortgage Extended 4½% Bonds, as extended by agreement of December 18, 1894, will mature March 1, 1935. That The Nypano Railroad Company, as successor of The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad Company, is arranging for the extension of said bonds for the period of fifteen years from March 1, 1935, with provision for the right to call such bonds for payment at earlier dates on terms set forth in the form of extension contract of The Nypano Railroad Company which he submitted to the meeting, with interest at the rate of four per cent (4%) per annum, payable semi-annually, during the extended period, the principal and interest of the bonds so extended to be payable only in New York and only in such coin or currency of the United States of America as at the time of payment is legal tender for the payment of public and private debts in the United States of America.

The Chairman also stated that preliminary negotiations have been had on behalf of the Company with its bankers with respect to the proposed extension. He stated that while no final arrangements had been concluded the Company was endeavoring to make an arrangement whereby the bankers would agree (contingent upon authorization of the extension by the Interstate Commerce Commission) to purchase such of the bonds as were not surrendered for extension by the holders thereof, and then to present for extension the bonds so purchased; and he also stated that when arrangements with the bankers had been finalized a copy of the definitive agreement would be submitted for authorization to the Board of Directors, or to the Executive Committee. He explained that it was regarded as advisable for the Board to take action at this time on the general question of the extension in order to permit application forthwith to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the necessary authority for the extension under Section 20a of the Interstate Commerce Act.

The Chairman also submitted to the Board a form of Extension Contract for execution by The Nypano Railroad Company and form of coupon sheet to be attached to the bonds upon extension.

The Chairman recommended that this Company approve such extension and the terms thereof.

Whereupon, on motion seconded and carried by the unanimous vote by those present, it was

Resolved, that this Company hereby approve the extension of said The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad Company Prior Lien Mortgage extended 4½% Bonds, for the period of fifteen years from March 1, 1935 upon the terms aforesaid, substantially in the form presented, as may be approved by Counsel.

Resolved, that this Company make application or join in the application of The Nypano Railroad Company to the Interstate Commerce Commission under Section 20a of the Interstate Commerce Act, so far as the same may be necessary in connection with the obligation of this Company to pay the interest on said Prior Lien Bonds as lessee of the premises covered by the Mortgage securing the bonds.

Resolved, that the President, C. E. Denney, and/or the Vice President and Secretary, Geo. H. Minor, and/or the General Counsel, H. A. Taylor, each be and he hereby is, authorized and directed to sign, verify and file for and in the name of, and on behalf of this Company, either by itself or jointly with The Nypano Railroad Company, application or applications or petition or petitions, to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority in so far as such authority may be necessary, to assume obligation and liability as lessee with respect to the payment of the interest on said $3,000,000 principal amount of The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad Company Prior Lien Mortgage Extended 4½% Bonds, and to take any and all actions and proceedings that may be necessary in connection therewith.

Resolved, that the proper officers of this Company be, and they hereby are, authorized to do all acts and things which may be desirable or necessary, and which may be advised by Counsel, for the purpose of carrying out the intent of the foregoing resolutions.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that the foregoing is a true copy of an extract from the minutes of a meeting of the Board of Directors of Erie Railroad Company, duly called and held on December 28, 1934, at which meeting a quorum was present and the foregoing resolutions were duly adopted.

C. B. Post, Assistant Secretary.

EXHIBIT No. 1724

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co.]

(Handwritten) also J. P. M. & Co. Memo.

Memorandum to Mr. J. W. Cutler.

December 11, 1934.

RE: ERIE FINANCING

The Van Sweringen interests started the accumulation of Erie stock in either 1923 or 1924 but did not enter the management of the property until 1926 when Mr. Bernet became a director and was made president in 1927. The major financing from the date of the first accumulation of stock in volume to the present time was as follows:

Date of Offering	Amount	Name of Issue	Syndicate
6/28/24	$10,000,000	Two Year 5% Note.....	J. P. Morgan & Co.
4/10/26	2,190,000	Equipment 4½'s.....	Drexel & Co.
	1,875,000	6% Participation Cfts., due 1930.....	Shawmut Corporation.
			W. H. Newbolds' Son & Co.
			Moore, Leonard & Lynch
			Hambleton & Co.
			Ed. Lowber Stokes & Co.
5/9/27	50,000,000	Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 5's, 1967.....	J. P. Morgan & Co.
			First National Bank of N. Y.
			National City Co.
7/7/27	6,422,000	Equip. 4½'s, 1930-42.....	Drexel & Co.
10/24/28	5,340,000	Equipment 4½'s.....	Salomon Bros. & Hutzler
7/23/29	8,370,000	Equip. 4½'s, 1930-44.....	First National Corp.
			Harrison Smith & Co.
			Kean Taylor & Co.
4/8/30	50,000,000	Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 5's, 1975.....	J. P. Morgan & Co.
			First National Bank of N. Y.
			National City Co.
7/1/30	6,690,000	Equip. 4½'s, 1930-45.....	Drexel & Co.

¹ This issue was purchased from the U. S. Treasury. We considered it with E. Lowber Stokes but dropped out at request of Mr. Sturgis of First National as Company was anxious to obtain a reduction in the rate of interest.

NOTE: Drexel and White Weld underwrote the extension of $4,616,000 New York & Erie Third Mortgage Extended 4½'s which matured March 1, 1933.

The Guaranty did not have an original interest in any of the above Erie financing but did have a 6% interest in the selling groups formed in connection with the two offerings of $50,000,000 of First and Refunding Mortgage 5s. I did not check the smaller issues for selling group interests.

Ownership of Erie Stock.

The initial purchases are not known but in 1929 when Alleghany Corporation was formed the original portfolio included 215,000 shares of Erie common stock (Limited by N. Y. Statute). This stock is now under option to the Chesapeake & Ohio.

In addition Chesapeake Corporation owns 69,000 shares and the following shares were held by Virginia Transportation Co. as of April 30, 1930:

526,700 shares.	Common.
135,605	First Preferred.
50,495	Second Preferred.

There are also 10,900 shares Second Preferred owned by Vaness Company.

Bank Loans.

In connection with the outstanding bank loans, the original interests were to be as follows:

Guaranty Trust.....	$1,250,000
First National.....	1,250,000
Harriman ($400,000 secured, $200,000 unsecured, legal limit $400,000).....	600,000
Chemical.....	600,000
Chatham-Phenix.....	1,050,000
Chase.....	600,000
Commercial Trust Co. of Jersey City.....	950,000
	$6,300,000

The Company received only \$5,500,000 of the above loans which were subsequently reduced $\frac{1}{2}$ with the proceeds of a R. F. C. loan.

These loans were arranged without advice to J. P. Morgan & Co. and when the Guaranty advised them of the loan they decided that they did not wish to go along. It should also be noted that the National City Company was not included.

Miscellaneous.

In February 1930, Mr. Swan spoke to J. P. Morgan & Co. regarding the Guaranty's interest in Erie financing. J. P. Morgan & Co. thought that they should go over all of their financing in which the Van Sweringens were interested and review the Guaranty's interests. They recognized the Guaranty's claim on Pere Marquette financing but did not revise the Guaranty's interest in the Erie financing of $50,000,000 Refunding and Improvement Mortgage Bonds the following April.

Following the acquisition of an interest in the stock by the Van Sweringen interests, the Guaranty received an interest of 26% in Chesapeake and Ohio, 18% in Pere Marquette and 20% in Missouri Pacific. The Missouri Pacific interest was in a Special Purchase Group because of the then interlocking directorate situation.

The syndicate imprints of these various groups were as follows:

C. & O.	P. M.	Mo. Pac.
J. P. Morgan & Co.	J. P. Morgan & Co.	J. P. Morgan & Co.
Kuhn Loeb & Co.	First National Bank of New York.	Kuhn Loeb & Co.
First National Bank.	Guaranty Company.	Guaranty Co.
Guaranty Company.	National City.	First Nat'l. Bk. of N. Y.
National City.	J. & W. Seligman.	National City.
	Chase Securities.	Chase Securities.
		Bankers.

Comments

I am inclined to the belief that we should limit our claim to the leadership of the proposed underwriting of the Erie extension to the basis that it is Van Sweringen financing. If we take the position that the stock is owned by Chesapeake & Ohio it is possible that we may open up the claim of Kuhn Loeb to a leading position whether or not they have been invited to consider the business.

We must also consider the extent, if any, to which we may be committed to Lee Higginson. In this connection they were included in Chesapeake Corporation (initial issue) because part of the C. & O. stock was at that time owned by Nickel Plate. It was stated, however, at the time that their inclusion and interest were not to constitute a precedent. Also, while they appeared in Alleghany financing the Guaranty Company retained the management fee and warrants.

HDM:HBM

HORACE D. MOORE.

EXHIBIT No. 1725

[From the files of Harriman Ripley & Co., Incorporated. Memorandum by Joseph P. Ripley to H. C. Sylvester, Jr., and P. V. Davis]

DECEMBER 17, 1934.

Memorandum to Mr. H. C. Sylvester, Jr., Vice President,
Mr. P. V. Davis, Vice President.

SUBJECT: Erie Railroad

After hearing the whole story I have seen fit to let E. B. Smith Company head the account on New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Extension bond proposition. Their name comes first, ours second; interest to be 50/50; managership is to be shown as it was in the Chicago & Western Indiana. Nobody else should be brought into the account until both of us approve, and we both think only the two of us should do the business.

We have reserved the right to bring this matter up again when the Long Dock bonds mature in October, 1935.

I hope both of you agree with my decision in this matter which I will explain in more detail when I see you.

J. P. R.

EXHIBIT No. 1726

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co.]

Handwritten: Mr. J. Land.
No. 118
Buying Department Memorandum

FEBRUARY 13, 1935.

EXTENSION OF THE $8,000,000
THE NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY
PRIOR LIEN MORTGAGE 4½% BONDS

For Record Purposes Only.

In connection with the participations accepted by Messrs. White, Weld & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Clark, Dodge & Co. and Goldman, Sachs & Co. in our contract with the Nypauo Railroad Company dated February 13, 1935, it was stated in each instance that the respective interests were not to constitute a precedent for future Erie financing. This was stated verbally but was not included in the letters addressed to and accepted by each of these firms.

We were advised by Mr. Arthur Anderson, of J. P. Morgan & Co., that White, Weld & Co. had been associated with J. P. Morgan & Co. or Drexel & Co. in the underwriting of a number of former Erie extensions and commented that they had approached him in connection with the underwriting of this extension. Mr. Anderson did not specifically request that we include White, Weld & Co. but he was pleased when informed that we had offered White, Weld & Co. an interest of 15 %.

After Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had been offered and had accepted an interest of 10%, we learned that they had approached J. P. Morgan & Co. concerning the business.

An interest of 5% was offered to Clark, Dodge & Co. because of Mr. Francis Ward's recent affiliation with the firm.

We considered offering a participation to Morgan Grenfell & Co. Limited, but were advised that they were unwilling to accept an interest before the release of the decision of the Supreme Court on the gold cases. We also offered an interest of 5% to Dillon Read & Co. which was declined.

J. W. CUTLER.

JWC.HDM.HBM

EXHIBIT No. 1727

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co.]

[Diary entries by J. W. C. (J. W. Cutler) and K. W. (Karl Welsheit)]

ATLANTIC COAST LINE R. R. Co.

JRS and I spoke to GW regarding possible financing. Road wants to sell about $12,000,000 bonds when it can. Business pretty fair first six months but falling off now. No reason why we should not approach Lyman Delano direct, which we plan to do. JWC-9/20/34.

JWC and JRS lunched with Lyman Delano, Chairman today. Delano said he had extended his six-months' loan with the banks (JPM&Co loan secured by General 4½% bonds) for another six months from October 1st. In addition to this he would need another $6,000,000 next year and would like to sell not less than $12,000,000 of the General Unified 4½s (82 present market) if and when market would take them. He has been discussing his financial needs with JPM&Co. and will continue. Approx. $80,000,000 General 4½s held in treasury have been approved by Commission and would only need approval on price of issue. The Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio 5s have not been approved by Commission and he would not go to Commission now on this. JWC see GW and follow. JWC-9/26/34.

I reported the above conversation to Anderson of JPM&Co in Whitney's absence abroad. JWC-10/11/34.

Reported to Whitney conversation JRS and I had with Delano as above. Loan extended to April 1st. JWC-12/7/34.

G. Whitney called JRS yesterday and said that Mr. Delano had seen him and he thought it was time to consider doing something. He also spoke of our discussion with him some months ago as reported above. It was left we were to study the situation and decide what, in our opinion, could be done, and go back to G.W. JWC-1/10/35.

JRS and I talked with G. Whitney and told him we would be very much interested in considering the underwriting of $12,000,000 of above bonds, but felt before talking more definitely we would like to have additional information. Bonds are now selling around 92 and we indicated that if issue were made it ought to be a substantial concession from this price. In a firm meeting 2½ to 3 points off 89 seemed to be consensus of opinion. Whitney will speak to Brown Harriman and then advise Delano he has spoken to both of us. He further indicated on account of the old three-way account that he assumed BH&Co. should lead. JWC-1/10/35.

Ran into G. Whitney again and in view of what we thought he indicated yesterday regarding leadership, reminded him that in the three issues of Coast Line securities since the war, JPM&Co. had appeared alone, the last issue for the three-way appearance being in 1915. He said he realized that and merely indicated to us yesterday that he considered ourselves and BH&Co. 50-50, leaving us to work out leadership between us. JWC-1/11/35.

Frank Weld came in today. Said he had talked with Messrs. Delano and and F. B. Adams of the railroad and also Arthur Anderson. He is very anxious to be included in the business. We made no definite commitment but indicated banking group position. JWC-2/6/35.

With Pierpont Davis, I had very satisfactory talk with Lyman Delano followed by talk with Whitney. Under present market conditions, all agreed only thing to do was to wait in hope situation would improve. Felt undecided to ask I. C. C. for price revision. JWC-3/1/35.

Davis and I talked with Messrs. Delano and Elliott, and with the approval of Davis Polk saw no reason why the I. C. C. should not go ahead with its approval of sale. Twice our names appeared, but no commitment indicated. JWC-3/5/35.

George Whitney yesterday mentioned possibility of getting back to collateral trust idea if present condition of bond market continues much longer. He mentioned bank loan maturity of March 30th. JWC-3/7/35.

JRS, Davis and I talked with G. Whitney. Expressed opinion we did not think today's market would take collateral trust issue, to which he agreed. He, however, suggested it might be wise to advise Mr. Delano in order that he might get the necessary authority at his Board meeting tomorrow to issue in collateral trust form, leaving coupon and price to be determined later. When he had done this it would be wise to inform Sweet at the ICC, so that approval of the change in form could be got promptly when we were ready to go ahead. (Whitney had already spoken to Mehaffey about it). Price was not discussed at meeting but majority of ideas here seem to center on 4½% coupon to be sold at a 4.75 basis or better. Ten-year collateral note to be secured two for one. JWC-3/20/35.

Whitney also said Company had made arrangements to extend its bank loan, due March 30th, for a period of six months, payable any time on 15 days' notice. JWC-3/21/35.

$12,000,000 Ten-Year Collateral Trust 5% Notes offered today. KW-5/3/35.

EXHIBIT No. 1728-1

[From the files of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company]

MAY 21st, 1935.

Mr. W. D. McCaig,
Comptroller Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.,
Wilmington, North Carolina.

DEAR SIR: Referring to my letter of May 17th, enclosing certified copy of various resolutions of the Board of Directors and other papers relating to sale of $12,000,000 of this Company's Ten Year Collateral Trust 5% Notes due May 1st, 1945.

I now advise you as follows:

On Thursday, May 16th, 1935, the Indenture, dated as of May 1, 1935, securing the above mentioned Ten Year Collateral Trust 5% Notes was executed on behalf of this Company and the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, as Trustee, and there was delivered on behalf of this Company to said Trustee, as collateral security for the $12,000,000. of Notes to be issued under said Indenture, Temporary General Unified Mortgage Fifty Year Series A 4½% Bond Certificate No. 201, dated May 15th, 1935, in the principal amount of $25,000,000. registered in the name of

"Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee under Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company Collateral Trust Indenture, dated as of May 1, 1935."

On May 21st, 1935, the said $12,000,000. of Notes, executed on behalf of this Company and authenticated by the Trustee, were delivered, in accordance with the contract of sale, copy of which contract is enclosed herewith, to Brown, Harriman & Co., Incorporated, 63 Wall Street, New York, for account of the purchasers. Delivery was then made by the purchasers to this Company of certified checks for amounts aggregating a total of $11,733,333.33 covering payment for said Notes at 97½% and accrued interest from May 1st to May 21st, 1935, the details of such purchasers and payments being as follows:

Purchaser	Par of notes purchased	Payment for—		Total payment made
		Principal	Interest
Brown, Harriman & Co., Inc.	$3,000,000	$2,925,000	$8,333.33	$2,933,333.33
Edward B. Smith & Co.	3,000,000	2,925,000	8,333.33	2,933,333.33
The First Boston Corp.	1,500,000	1,462,500	4,166.67	1,466,666.67
Kidder, Peabody & Co.	1,000,000	975,000	2,777.78	977,777.78
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	1,000,000	975,000	2,777.78	977,777.78
Lee Higginson Corp.	1,000,000	975,000	2,777.78	977,777.78
W. E. Hutton & Co.	500,000	487,500	1,388.89	488,888.89
White Weld & Co.	500,000	487,500	1,388.89	488,888.89
H. M. Bylesby & Co., Inc.	250,000	243,750	694.44	244,444.44
Schoellkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy, Inc.	250,000	243,750	694.44	244,444.44
	$12,000,000	$11,700,000	$33,333.33	$11,733,333.33

Upon receipt of the certified checks, aggregating $11,733,333.33, above mentioned, the same were immediately endorsed by me as follows:

"Pay to the order of J. P. Morgan & Co.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE RAILROAD COMPANY
By H. L. BORDEN, Assistant Treasurer."

and deposited to the credit of this Company with Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. 23 Wall Street, New York City.

Immediately following above mentioned deposit, there was delivered to Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. check dated May 21st, 1935, in amount of $4,000,000, signed by Mr. J. J. Nelligan, Assistant Treasurer of this Company, countersigned on behalf of Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore, drawn against said deposit and payable to

"J. P. Morgan & Co. in trust for Safe Deposit and Trust Co. of Baltimore, Escrow Agent under agreement with Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company".

The said $4,000,000 will be used by direction to J. P. Morgan & Co. given by the Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore, as Escrow Agent, in making payment on and after July 1st, 1935, of the $3,062,000 of 5% Bonds and $938,000 of 4% Bonds of Wilmington & Weldon Railroad Co. maturing July 1st, 1935, under the terms of the escrow agreement between Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. and Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore, dated May 13th, 1935, copy of which is also enclosed herewith. Upon such delivery of said check for $4,000,000, the balance to credit of this Company with Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. amounted to $7,733,333.33.

There has also been drawn as of this date a check for $33,333.33 upon Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., signed on behalf of this Company and countersigned on behalf of Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore, for credit to the Fiscal Agent Account of this Company with Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore. Said amount represents accrued interest from May 1st to May 21st, 1935, paid by the purchasers of the $12,000,000 of Notes in the sale above described. You will, in due course, receive advice from the Fiscal Agent of said withdrawal from Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. and credit to the Fiscal Agent Account. After such withdrawal there will remain a balance of $7,700,000 to the credit of this Company with Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co.

You have previously been advised that on Saturday, May 25th, 1935, payment will be made by this Company of the principal and accrued interest from March 30th, 1935 to May 25th, 1935, on the $6,500,000 of short-term notes, bearing 4% interest, held by various banks, etc., which said notes mature September 30th, 1935, but are payable at this Company's option on fifteen days' written notice, which written notice to pay was given by this Company on May 10th, 1935.

Payment of the principal, $6,500,000, of the several short-term notes will be made by checks drawn on Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. by Mr. J. J. Nelligan, Assistant Treasurer of the Company and countersigned on behalf of Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore. Payment of interest to May 25th, 1935, aggregating $39,890.43, on said short-term notes will be made by checks drawn on behalf of this Company against the Fiscal Agent Account, advice respecting which will, in due course, be furnished to you by the Fiscal Agent.

The details of the holders of the short-term notes and amounts to be paid thereto for principal and interest of said short-term notes are as follows:

	Principal (Payment by check drawn on J. P. Morgan & Co.)	Interest (Payment by check charged to Fiscal Agent Acct.)
Bankers Trust Co.	$1,000,000	$6,136.99
Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co.	1,000,000	6,136.99
The First National Bank of the City of New York	1,000,000	6,136.99
Guaranty Trust Co. of New York	1,000,000	6,136.99
United States Trust Co. of N. Y.	1,000,000	6,136.99
J. P. Morgan & Co.	1,000,000	6,136.99
The New York Trust Co.	500,000	3,068.40
	$6,500,000	$39,890.43

Upon delivery of the checks in payment of principal and accrued interest of the short-term notes as above recited, the canceled notes will be surrendered to this Company, together with the Temporary General Unified Mortgage Series A 4½% Bond Certificates now held by the respective note holders as collateral security for said notes, details of which bond certificates are as follows:

Temporary Bond Certificate Number	Principal amount of Bond Certificate	Held as Collateral by:
182	$1,530,000	The First National Bank of the City of New York.
190	240,000
183	1,530,000	Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co.
191	240,000
184	1,530,000	Guaranty Trust Co. of New York.
192	240,000
185	1,538,000	J. P. Morgan & Co.
193	250,000	United States Trust Co. of New York.
186	1,538,000
194	250,000
187	1,538,000	Bankers Trust Co.
195	250,000
188	780,000	The New York Trust Co.
196	125,000
	$11,022,000

The said Temporary Bond Certificates will be returned to the Treasury of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.

Upon completion of payment of the $6,500,000 of short-term notes by checks drawn on Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., as above described, there will remain on time deposit with that firm to the credit of Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. the sum of $1,200,000, which amount it has been agreed will be repayable to this Company on December 27th, 1935, and will bear interest at the rate of ¼ of 1% for the term of the deposit.

Will be obliged if you will have prepared and sent to me for submission to the Chairman for approval, copy of journal entries to be made on the books of this Company to cover the several transactions above described.

Yours very truly,

H. L. BORDEN, Vice President.

Enc.

Copy.

EXHIBIT No. 1728-2

[From the files of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company]

MAY 22nd, 1935-p.

DEAR ROLAND: I know you will be interested to know that we closed the transaction covering the sale of the $12,000,000 Collateral Trust Notes, and the proceeds, $11,700,000, were deposited with J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday morning.

Sincerely yours,

Original signed by Mr. DELANO.

Personal.

ROLAND L. REDMOND, Esq.,
Carter, Ledyard & Milburn,
2 Wall Street, New York City.

EXHIBIT No. 1729

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co.]

CROSS INDEX: CHICAGO AND WESTERN INDIANA RAILROAD CO. FINANCING CITY OF PHILADELPHIA ACCOUNT

RE: BROWN HARRIMAN & CO., INCORPORATED

Brown Harriman & Co., Incorporated, and Edward B. Smith & Co. were invited by J. P. Morgan & Co. to consider the purchase and sale of a block of $1,658,000 Chicago and Western Indiana R. R. Co. First and Refunding Mortgage 5½% Series C Bonds owned by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy R. R. Co. It also developed that the Chicago and Western Indiana wished to sell $6,340,000 5½% Series A Bonds for refunding purposes. An investigation of the Chicago and Western Indiana was undertaken jointly by Brown Harriman and ourselves without any determination by J. P. Morgan & Co. or the two of us concerned of the question of leadership. Morgan said it was up to the two houses to settle this matter between themselves. Brown Harriman claimed the leadership primarily on the grounds that the National City Company had a historical and appearing position in former syndicate offerings. Our claims to the leadership were based primarily on the ownership of ⅔ of the capital stock of the Company by the Van Sweringen interests which were to acquire an additional ⅓ when and if the Wabash decided to withdraw. Our offer to toss a coin for the leadership was declined and as a counter proposal it was suggested that the question be referred to J. P. Morgan & Co. for decision.

These conversations were concluded on a Friday night by Messrs. Davis, Sylvester and the undersigned and on the next morning Mr. Davis arranged for a meeting with Mr. T. S. Lamont who was the Morgan partner available that morning. In the meantime, however, I talked to several partners and it was decided that we would offer the leadership to Brown Harriman, we, however, to be joint in everything else, including managership.

This resulted in a very satisfactory meeting with Mr. Davis and later with him and Mr. Sylvester, who wrote on July 17, 1934, stating that he appreciated the stand we took on the Chicago & Western Indiana and that they wanted us to feel that they would be glad to be associated with Edward B. Smith & Co. on any piece of business on a give and take basis. In this letter Mr. Sylvester also suggested in connection with the tentative City of Philadelphia 4/4 account that the managership rotate with each bid, that is, on the bid for the first issue the group would be as follows: Brown Harriman & Co., Edward B. Smith & Co., Union Trust Company, Pittsburgh, Kidder, Peabody & Co.

On the next issue Edward B. Smith & Co. would appear on the bid as syndicate manager and Brown Harriman & Co. would appear fourth, and so on down the list with each successive bid. In the advertisement of bonds awarded to the group the syndicate imprint would be the same as the group submitting the bid. This suggestion was accepted by us by telephone and referred to later by letter dated August 3, 1934.

The above correspondence has been placed in the files of the Municipal Department.

B. WALKER

(Handwritten:) Check all this with J. R. K.

EXHIBIT No. 1730

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co.]

EDWARD B. SMITH & Co.,
31 Nassau Street, New York, July 2, 1934

Memorandum to Mr. Burnett Walker.

RE: CHICAGO & WESTERN INDIANA

In connection with the leadership of this financing, the strongest claim of Brown Harriman & Co. is, of course, the appearance of the National City Company with J. P. Morgan & Co. and First National Bank in the offering of $16,000,000 First and Refunding Series A 5½s about 1928. In addition, the National City Company managed an offering of Atchison bonds due to the fact that J. P. Morgan & Co. and Guaranty Company had interlocking directors.

The claims of Edward B. Smith & Co. to the leadership of this financing are as follows:

1. Two of the proprietary roads are now Van Sweringen roads:

Erie (Guaranty Company was unable to obtain important interest due to position of First National Bank)

C. & E. I. (During period Messrs. Potter and Swan were directors to represent Mr. Ryan, we insisted on Company financing through Kuhn Loeb & Co. There has been no public financing since acquisition by Van Sweringen interests.)

2. If the Wabash withdraws, the Nickel Plate is interested in acquiring its stock interest whether or not consolidation along lines of 4 party plan effected. In this event Van Sweringen interest will own 3/5ths of stock.

3. Edward B. Smith & Co. has, in my opinion, better than even chance of handling any Atchison financing if J. P. Morgan & Co. does not reenter investment field.

4. National City Company was not consulted by J. P. Morgan & Co. regarding proposed issuance of guaranteed preferred stock about 1930. This proposal was abandoned due to refusal of Canadian National's refusal, through Grand Trunk Western, to assume an obligation issued by a carrier in the United States in perpetuity.

H. D. MOORE

HDM/n

EXHIBIT No. 1731

[From the files of Brown Harriman & Co., Incorporated. Memorandum from Joseph P. Ripley to H. C. Sylvester, Jr., P. V. Davis, and W. Harmon Brown, Jr.]

FEBRUARY 21, 1935.

Memorandum to Mr. H. C. Sylvester, Jr.
Mr. P. V. Davis.
Mr. W. Harmon Brown, Jr.

RE: ATLANTIC COAST LINE

In view of Kidder Peabody having done the nice thing with Lehigh and New England, I think we really ought to invite them into Atlantic Coast Line on the ground floor.

J. P. R.

EXHIBIT No. 1732

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
April 30, 1934.

DEAR MR. BUDD:

A few days ago I heard a rumor that one of the Burlington's controlled companies had been discussing the sale of $1,700,000. principal amount of Chicago

& Western Indiana 5½% bonds, taken by it in payment for some property sold to the Chicago & Western Indiana.

It so happens that we handled the public issue of the Series A 5½% bonds of the Chicago & Western Indiana and during the last two or three months, we have talked with the President of the company with respect to the maturity next year of a note of the Chicago & Western Indiana held by the United States Government or the War Finance Corporation and secured by bonds of the same issue as that taken by the Burlington's subsidiary recently.

I am writing to ask whether you would be good enough to let me know what your plans are with respect to this issue, as our past and possibly future relations with the company's financing gives us a very real interest in the effect that such a sale, if made, might have because of its relation to the company's problems which we have been discussing with the President.

Thanking you in advance for your courtesy in the matter, believe me

Yours very truly,

A. M. ANDERSON.

RALPH BUDD, Esq.,

President, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co., Chicago, Illinois

AMA/CEC

(Stamped across face:) File copy.

EXHIBIT No. 1733

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

(Handwritten:) File. July.

(Handwritten:) May 17 & 18, '34.

MEMORANDUM

Mr. A. N. Williams, president of the Chicago and Western Indiana Railroad Company, called today and talked with Mr. Anderson and myself with regard to the 6% Collateral Note amounting to approximately $6,000,000. and maturing October 7, 1935, held by the U. S. Treasury and secured by $7,835,000. First and Refunding 5½% Series A Bonds. These First and Refunding 5½% Series A Bonds due September 1, 1962 are now selling at around 101¾ and they recently sold as high as 104. The First and Refunding Series A 5½% Bonds sold as low as 84¾ this year and as low as 66 in 1933, and he naturally is anxious to pay off the 6% Collateral Note held by the U. S. Treasury. He feels that this may be an opportune time to pay off these bonds by sale of the collateral securing same, also to get authority to issue $1,122,539. additional bonds under a new series to capitalize the expenditures that have been made on the property in the last year or two (approximately $715,000. of this amount was from the treasury cash of the Chicago and Western Indiana and $407,000. from the treasury cash of proprietary tenants).

We told him frankly that if it was a question of selling these bonds at the present time we were not sure that we could handle it for him and that we naturally did not wish to deter him in any way from going ahead and permanently financing this maturity at the present time and also replenishing the treasury for expenditures previously made by the sale of additional bonds. He is anxious to do this business through us if possible and it was left that he would proceed to get the authority necessary from the Commission to carry out this plan and then take the matter up with us again. The Series A Bonds securing the Collateral Note held by the U. S. Treasury are guaranteed by the five proprietary roads both as to interest and Sinking Fund. We also told him that he should explore the possibilities of selling to better advantage a new series 5% bond rather than the present Series A 5½% bonds held as collateral. As far as Mr. Williams can determine at the present time, if this financing is accomplished, he sees no need for future financing for a long period ahead as nothing matures prior to the Consolidated 4% Bonds due July 1, 1952.

W. E.

MAY 17, 1934.

P. S.—Mr. Williams called again this morning and showed us a telegram which he received from his Chicago office with regard to the Series A 5½% Bonds. Copy of this telegram is attached.

MAY 18, 1934.

W. E.

EXHIBIT No. 1734

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co.]

Private Wire Telegram Received

EDWARD B. SMITH & Co.

JUNE 28, 1934.

2 CV Walker & Weisheit 905 Confidential.

Your wire received Coe returned last night and will give you results of very satisfactory conversations with C&EI and Atchison Stop For your confidential information he told Willard of Atchison Corner had asked them to form group and referred to us as probable close associates in business Stop In all previous interviews it was on basis that we were looking at this matter together Stop Planning to get in touch with Van Sweringens office now.

(Handwritten :) Confidential.

MOORE CLEVE.

EXHIBIT No. 1735

[From the files of Smith, Barney & Co. Diary entries by K. W. (Karl Weisheit) and J. W. C. (J. W. Cutler)]

CHICAGO AND WESTERN INDIANA

Preparations all made for issue of $6,340,000 First and Refunding 5½s, Series A, when market will permit sale of bonds on basis to enable us to purchase them from the company at 100. In order to sell at a lower price the company would have to reopen question with Interstate Commerce Commission. JRS, BW, KW and HDM have been handling matter. Pierre Davis is handling business in Brown Harriman & Co. KW-8/22/34

Thru JPM&Co. syndicate negotiating with Burlington for their $1,600,000 Series C bonds. Suggested price 98, to sell at 100½. The bonds owned by the railroad will be held for the time being, as they do not wish to sell them below par and are not particularly pressed for money. JWC-10/17/34

After a fully attended meeting at the office, and reviewing the entire situation and discussing it from every angle, we felt that we could not in justice to ourselves or our clients pay 100 for the bonds, to sell at 102½, in spite of the fact that Davis of BH&Co had indicated to JPM&Co. and also to the President of the Company that they might be willing to do so. In view of this JRS placed our position squarely before Anderson of JPM&Co., with all our reasons—net result that business will be put on shelf again for time being, BH&Co acceding to our feeling. JWC-10/13/34

Williams and his Board declined bid of 99, recommended by Mr. Anderson of JPM&Co., to sell bonds at 101 or 101½. Therefore again laid on table. JWC-11/23/34

Transaction completed. KW-2/15/35

EXHIBIT No. 1736

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

(Handwritten): Chicago & West Indiana.

Memorandum for Mr. A. M. Anderson:

Referring to Mr. Williams's telegram just received and my answer attached, Chicago and Western Indiana bonds sold as high as 103 yesterday and are now quoted 102½ bid, offered at 102¾. I talked with Sylvester on the telephone and he feels that if present conditions hold they could go ahead on Tuesday and do this business. He said that he had been more bullish than the others but that he would call them together Tuesday morning and thought he might whip them into line. Sylvester would like to buy both the Chicago and Western Indiana bonds and the bonds held by the Burlington and make one offering of both series. He understands definitely that both parties will not sell below 100.

(Initialed:) WE.
W. E.

NOVEMBER 9, 1934.

EXHIBIT No. 1737

[From the files of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company]

MAY 2, 1934.

DEAR MR. ANDERSON: Replying to your letter of April Thirtieth:

At meeting held today the sale of a block of Chicago & Western Indiana 5½% bonds was authorized, and Mr. Sturgis has been instructed to handle the matter. There were originally $1,700,000 of these, which constitute the entire issue of Series "C". About $40,000 were called for the sinking fund, leaving a balance of $1,660,000.

Prior to today's meeting Mr. Sturgis has been for the last two weeks or more looking into the question of possible sale. I am handing him your letter and I have no doubt you will hear from him soon either by a letter or personal call.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) RALPH BUDD.

A. M. ANDERSON, Esq.,
23 Wall Street, New York City, N. Y.

(Typed on margin of letter:) Actual $1, 700, 000
42, 000
1, 658, 000

B-11

CC-Mr. C. I. Sturgis—ENC

Herewith Mr. Anderson's letter. I think it might be best for you to go to New York in order to get this matter cleaned up promptly and advantageously.

RALPH BUDD.

Talked to Mr. Budd about this.

C; I. S. 5/3/34.

EXHIBIT No. 1738

[From the files of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company. Memorandum by
C. I. Sturgis]

[Copy]

JUNE 13, 1934.

MEMORANDUM

Mr. Anderson of JPMorgan & Co. phoned today and said that the crucial date of June 16th was approaching and that it was the opinion of their attorneys that even after that date they would be authorized to sell in one block an issue of bonds belonging to a party other than the company that issued them; he stated that there were two insurance companies whom they had approached, one the Prudential which was not interested, and the other the Metropolitan which might decide to purchase the bonds but that independent of this particular purchase was going to send a man to Chicago to investigate the general terminal situation here. He stated that this might take two or three weeks or even longer.

He said that if they could not sell them in one block, they could probably put us in touch with a number of distributors who would be in position to place the bonds for us directly, in which case they (JPM & Co.) could not charge any commission. I told him in reply to this that there was no immediate hurry about selling the bonds and that either of those steps would be all right so far as we were concerned.

He said the two present questions, apart from the above, were—

1st, whether the bonds had been properly issued, and

2nd, whether the sinking fund would take care of the whole issue by the maturity of the bonds.

The first question, he said, was with their attorneys, and as to the second he had found that the man of the Bankers Trust Co., to whom I had referred in my letter of June 8th (Meyers), did not agree that the sinking fund would retire the bonds at maturity. On this second question he suggested that I send him either our auditor's figures or those of the auditor of the C. & W. I. for JPMorgan & Co. auditor to check with his; and that later he might ask that one of the auditors go to New York to explain the difference between their figures.

Mr. Anderson reported that the Prudential already had a large block of the C. & W. I. 4s and that the Metropolitan had about $5,000,000 of the same 4s. This was the end of the talk with Mr. Anderson.

CIS H

B-28

EXHIBIT No. 1739

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

FILE MEMORANDUM

First discussion several months ago with Messrs. Ewing and Anderson of J. P. Morgan & Company, who have been our financial advisors for years. We went over very carefully our financial setup, the Government Loan maturing next year, our present bank loans and the necessity for a small amount of working capital. I asked these gentlemen for their suggestions as to the best way to start this matter out.

On my next trip to New York, about ten days later, I again consulted with Messrs. Ewing and Anderson and they suggested that in view of the complexity and intricacy of our corporate setup on these two properties that it would be rather difficult to hock this issue around town as it would result in a corp of investigators swarming on us trying to find out who we are and what we are. Mr. Anderson stated he would give the matter some consideration and that two companies in New York who knew considerable about our two companies, i. e., Brown Harriman & Company and E. B. Smith and Company, would probably be the best to handle this security.

I contacted these two companies at their own offices and had a preliminary discussion with them. They stated that they were interested, would investigate the matter, and we would have a further conference on my next trip East. About a week later I again met these gentlemen. They stated that the best plan they knew of was for one or two reputable houses to underwrite the issue and then market the issue through a large number of retail outlets, probably fifteen or twenty. No price was discussed.

I then sought counsel of personal friends in the Chase National Bank; also Mr. C. T. Jaffray of Minneapolis, Mark W. Potter of New York City, General Dawes of Chicago, and discussed the matter with representatives of J. & W. Seligman & Company and William B. Nichols and Company both of New York City.

Next, I made a trip to Washington with Mr. Barse for a preliminary discussion with the Interstate Commerce Commission. At this discussion we were informed that the best that could be done was 101. I thereupon returned to New York and had several conferences with representatives of Brown Harriman & Company and E. B. Smith and Company, and we started our setup on the basis of 101. They sent engineers and auditors to make a careful check of our property. This took about ten days.

At further conferences in New York it was stated that in their judgment (J. & W. Seligman & Company (Brown Bros Harriman) and E. B. Smith and Company) the best that could be obtained from this offer from any one was 100 net.

A. N. Williams.
7-26-34

(Italics are handwritten.)

EXHIBIT No. 1740

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

NEW YORK, November 13, 1924.

A. N. WILLIAMS:

One of members of group will not go along in making the issue tomorrow. Mr. Davis is going up to talk with Arthur Anderson of J. P. Morgan & Company therefore there may be 24 hour delay. He leaves it up to you if you wish to come this afternoon or not.

W. R. COE.
2:30 PM

EXHIBIT No. 1741

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

[Western Union]

W. EWING,
J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
23 Wall Street, New York City:

CHICAGO, November 9, 1934.

Appreciate if you can talk to Mr. Davis early tomorrow morning. I expect to telephone him around 11 a. m. tomorrow to see if any action can be had.

A. N. WILLIAMS
11:05 A. M.

EXHIBIT No. 1742

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

[Western Union]

Received at 427 So. LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill., Wabash 4321,
A. N. WILLIAMS, 1934 Nov. 9, PM 3 44.
Chicago and Western Indiana R. Co.,
Dearborn Station Chgo.:

Telegram received. Mr. Davis is out of town but will be back tomorrow morning stop. I talked however with H C Sylvester his partner stop My personal feeling is that unless market changes adversely you may be able to close deal Tuesday stop I will be away next week but Arthur Anderson will be here.

WILLIAM EWING.

EXHIBIT No. 1743

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

NEW YORK, November 13, 1934.

A. N. WILLIAMS:

I have advised all members of group that Brown Harriman and Company are prepared sign contract with you tomorrow provided our associates in business are willing to join us. I am still waiting for definite word from two of them. I will wire you through our Chicago office as soon as I get definite answer.

P. V. DAVIS.
BROWN HARRIMAN.
11:50 AM

EXHIBIT No. 1744

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

[Western Union]

CHICAGO, November 14, 1934.

A ANDERSON,
J P MORGAN & Co.,
23 Wall Street, New York City

I asked Mr. Kurrie call on you discuss bond matter Appreciate if you will discuss fully with him

A N WILLIAMS
9:45 A. M.

EXHIBIT No. 1745

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

[Postal Telegraph]

Nov. 14, 1934, 5 49 P. M.

A. N. WILLIAMS,
President, Chicago & Western Indiana Indiana RR Co., Chgo.:

Wire received. Shall be delighted to see Mr. Kurrie.

A. M. ANDERSON.

EXHIBIT No. 1746

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company]

[Western Union]

CHICAGO, November 19, 1934.

W. EWING,
J. P. MORGAN & COMPANY,
23 Wall Street, New York City:

Appreciate you can get touch with group members this morning. I will telephone you sometime this afternoon. Anxious get line on situation. Report to our directors meeting tomorrow morning.

A. N. WILLIAMS.
10:35 A. M.

EXHIBIT No. 1747

[From the files of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company. Letter from A. N. Williams to W. Ewing]

DECEMBER 14, 1934.

My DEAR MR. EWING: I understand from the papers that our bond sale went over very fine. I want to again thank you for your part in it and to say that we deeply appreciate your interest.

I will be in New York on Wednesday and Thursday of next week to close up this matter and I will drop in to say Hello to you.

Very truly yours,

Mr. W. EWING
J. P. Morgan & Company 23 Wall Street New York City, New York.

EXHIBIT No. 1748

[From the files of Blyth & Co., Inc.]

JUNE 17, 1936.

Copy to C. R. Blyth,
E. M. Stevens,
R. Shurtleff.

MEMORANDUM RE: $26,000,000 LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY FIRST
& REFUNDING 3¾% BONDS DUE 2003

Morgan, Stanley & Co. will offer the above mentioned issue probably next week, or possibly the week following.

They will form a sub-underwriting group, and have offered us in that account an interest of $1,500,000, which we have tentatively accepted.

Harold Stanley explained that, owing to the fact that when J. P. Morgan & Co. withdrew from the investment banking business, the First Boston Corporation, Brown Harriman, and E. B. Smith & Co. had handled some Louisville & Nashville financing, they had been obliged to give them a preferential position over us.

The account will be made up of those three houses and Kuhn Loeb, having $3,000,000 each, and another group of $1,500,000 each, which will include (besides ourselves) Lazard Freres, Kidder Peabody, and Lee Higginson.

C. E. MITCHELL.

(Handwritten): Noted. R. O.

EXHIBIT No. 1749

[Memorandum from Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission to Mr. Alexander]

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. ALEXANDER

On October 30, 1939, a request was made to Mr. Alexander with respect to his ascertaining further facts bearing on the underwriting of certain railroad issues in 1934 and 1935. Mr. Alexander suggested that in regard to one phase of the request, namely, the basis of selection of underwriters and members of selling groups, that a conference be held in the near future with Mr. George Whitney and Mr. Arthur M. Anderson. In this connection, Mr. Alexander said that, generally speaking, J. P. Morgan & Co. when requested, advised and recommended various firms to be placed on the underwriting list. He added that the basis of J. P. Morgan & Co.'s advice and recommendations, when given, was upon the distributing performance of various firms in similar type of business.

With respect to the foregoing, it is desired to obtain such records as may exist of the advice and recommendations of J. P. Morgan & Co. in this connection and the record on which the past performance was determined.

Mr. Alexander added that examination of particular transactions was the proper way to ascertain the steps that occurred in any particular case, and, therefore, in connection with the foregoing request, and as an aid to J. P. Morgan & Co. in locating material in their files, the following particulars in connection with the railroad financing in question are noted:

(1) TOLEDO AND OHIO CENTRAL

The first mention of the syndicate list for this issue appears, as the complete list, in a letter from Mr. Young of J. P. Morgan & Co. to Mr. Place of The New York Central dated June 13, 1934. No material so far furnished bears upon the formation of this list. It appears further that Mr. Whiting of Whiting, Weeks & Knowles & Co. was advised to communicate with J. P. Morgan & Co. in order to obtain a participation, and the possibility occurs that there may be a memorandum of conference or other communication in J. P. Morgan & Co.'s files bearing on this request. Likewise, Mr. Peck of Adams and Peck had a conference on June 13, 1935, with Mr. Henry Morgan in connection with a possible participation. Furthermore, the selling group list, as sent to Mr. Place by Mr. Young, differs from the final list in that Stone & Webster and Blodgett were afterwards included for one hundred bonds. No information heretofore furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co. indicates how this change came about.

(2) NYPANO RAILROAD COMPANY

It appears that the underwriting of the extension of the Nypano bonds was discussed with J. P. Morgan & Co. by Mr. Swan of E. B. Smith & Co. as early as September 21, 1934, and that during October, November, and December memoranda on the legal aspects of the problem were prepared by Mr. Meyer for Mr. Anderson. No communications with respect to advice and recommendations from J. P. Morgan & Co. to the Erie Railroad in connection with the division of this underwriting between E. B. Smith & Co. and Brown Harriman & Co., Incorporated, is available. It appears, also, that White Weld & Co. and Kuhn Loeb & Co. both approached J. P. Morgan & Co. for a participation in this underwriting and that J. P. Morgan & Co., in fact, suggested to E. B. Smith & Co. that White Weld be included.

(3) THE LONG DOCK COMPANY

The first mention of the composition of the underwriting syndicate on the extension of the Long Dock Co. bonds is a complete syndicate list dated September 13, 1935. However, from a note of Mr. Meyer to Mr. Ward of Clark Dodge & Co. dated May 7, 1935, it appears that conversations had already been in progress between Mr. Meyer and Mr. Ward. Whether suggestions concerning the make-up of the syndicate list were tendered to Clark Dodge & Co. or the Erie Railroad is not clear from any material heretofore furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co.

(4) ATLANTIC COAST LINE

It appears that the sale of Coast Line bonds was discussed between E. B. Smith & Co. and J. P. Morgan & Co. as early as September 20, 1934, but no correspondence furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co. bears upon any discussion of this matter between J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad prior to April 15, 1935. In the meantime, it appears that Mr. Weld of White Weld & Co. had asked Mr. Anderson to be included in the underwriting syndicate and that Mr. Whitney had discussed some problem in connection with this issue with Commissioner Mahaffie of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

(5) CHICAGO AND WESTERN INDIANA RAILROAD

A memorandum furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co. states as of February 19, 1934, that Mr. Williams, then President of the Railroad, will call on the firm about the 21st of February. No further reference to this call appears. Another memorandum furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co. dated May 17, 1935, discusses Mr. Williams' visit the previous day, but does not mention discussions of possible members of the underwriting syndicate. Mr. Williams, however, appears to be under the impression that at or about that time such discussion took place. Furthermore, in regard to subsequent difficulties of this issue, it appears that E. B. Smith & Co., and Brown Harriman & Co. discussed various problems in connection with the offering with Mr. Anderson and that Mr. Ewing was in frequent correspondence with Mr. Williams. However, no documentation heretofore furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co. bears on the conferences of Mr. Anderson with the underwriting firms, nor does any correspondence with Mr. Williams heretofore furnished, bear upon the composition of the underwriting lists.

LEGAL OPINIONS

The letter of November 1, 1939, from Mr. Allen Wardwell to Mr. Alexander contains the following language concerning the applicability of Section 21a of the Banking Act of 1933:

"We have reviewed this question from time to time and have had no occasion to change our opinion.

"As you know, we consider it advisable for the firm to follow the existing practice of examining with us the character of any particular transaction that may be under consideration in order that the firm be assured that such transaction falls within the scope of the general opinions which we may have given the firm from time to time."

In this connection, it is to be noted that the only general opinion of counsel furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co. is the opinion dated May 29, 1934, and that no specific opinion nor memorandum of specific discussions has been furnished that bear upon the aspect of the question raised by Mr. Wardwell. Three opinions dated July 22, August 21, and December 14, 1935, have been furnished by J. P. Morgan & Co., but each such opinion deals with legal problems connected with the respective bond issues, but not with the position of J. P. Morgan & Co. under Section 21a of the Banking Act of 1933.

RECOMMENDATIONS TO RAILROADS

Inasmuch as a number of distributing houses with wide experience in railroad finance were not included in the underwriting or selling groups in any of the above issues, it would be desirable to ascertain whether J. P. Morgan & Co. offered any suggestions to the railroads or the underwriters indicating the reasons for confining the business solely to those firms represented on the list.

Dated, Washington, D. C.
November 8, 1939.

EXHIBIT No. 1750

[Letter from J. P. Morgan & Co. to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities & Exchange Commission]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Wall St. corner Broad, New York

NEW YORK, November 1, 1939.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

*Special Counsel, Monopoly Study, Investment Banking Section,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: Referring to your telephone request for opinions of counsel, I have found in our files and enclose copies of opinions dated May 29, 1934, July 22, 1935, August 21, 1935, and December 14, 1935.

As a further check, I asked Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed to review their records and I enclose a copy of a letter which I have received from Mr. Wardwell.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) HENRY C. ALEXANDER.

Enclosures.

EXHIBIT No. 1751

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

JOHN W. DAVIS
FRANK L. POLK
ALLEN WARDWELL
GEORGE H. GARDINER
LANSING P. REED
WILLIAM C. CANNON

HALL PARK McCULLOUGH
J. HOWLAND AUCHINCLOSS
EDWIN S. S. SUNDERLAND
TOM GARRETT
THEODORE KIENDL
MONTGOMERY B. ANGELL

OTIS T. BRADLEY
GEORGE A. BROWNELL
WALTER D. FLETCHER
CARROLL H. BREWSTER
LEIGHTON H. COLEMAN
EDGAR G. CROSSMAN

Cable Address: STETSON

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED

(STETSON JENNINGS & RUSSELL)

15 Broad Street, New York

MAY 29, 1934.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,

23 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: We have given you our opinion that under Section 21-a of the Banking Act of 1933 you may continue to remain members of the New York Stock Exchange and execute orders as brokers for your customers on that Exchange without being engaged in the business of issuing, underwriting, selling or distributing, at wholesale or retail, or through syndicate participations, stocks, bonds, debentures, notes or other securities.

We are also of the opinion that you may continue to act as brokers in over-the-counter transactions, that is to say, in buying or selling, for the account of your customers on the open market in the ordinary course of business, securities not listed in any recognized exchange. Certain transactions, however, while purely brokerage transactions, not of the character above listed, would in our opinion involve a definite distribution of securities at wholesale or retail. For example, a company might come to you and ask you to place a block of bonds which it holds in its treasury—these might be bonds of its own or bonds of another company—which bonds you might sell to a selected list of institutions and dealers on a pure commission basis. Although here you would be acting merely as a broker, we would be of the opinion that this would come within the terms of the Act relating to the distribution of securities at wholesale. Nor do we think the situation would be changed if purchasers in turn purchased these bonds through a broker paying the broker a commission for purchasing and you were being paid a commission by the seller for selling, if this transaction were put through pursuant to previous arrangements with the purchasers and the seller for the distribution of these securities.

If you were requested to sell for the account of the seller bonds which were listed on the Stock Exchange, we doubt if the marketing of a large block of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange or the selling of even a substantial amount of bank stock on the over-the-counter market to brokers would be considered a distribution at retail within the meaning of Section 21.

There is nothing in Section 21 which would prohibit your continuing to act as financial advisors to any company whose securities you have previously marketed or in connection with its security business to perform purely banking functions. For example, let us suppose that New York Central Railroad Company proposed to proceed with further financing along the lines of the last financing done by them. We see no reason why you should not assist in getting together a group of underwriters who would underwrite the issue of convertible bonds of the New York Central (though you, yourselves, of course could not participate in the underwriting); nor do we see any reason why the mechanics of the transaction should not be carried through at your office, namely, having the payments made to you for the account of the New York Central and the securities of the New York Central delivered at your office against such payment. Technically, there would be no reason why you could not be paid a fee for your services in such a transaction. If, however, that fee were merely a payment in disguise of a brokerage commission for effecting the distribution of the securities, we would be of the opinion that the transaction in reality would be a transaction in which you were engaged in the distribution of securities and so would come within the provisions of Section 21. On the other hand, if the number of purchasers of the security is so small that the entire operation cannot be called a "distribution", we believe that it would not be contrary to Section 21 for you to receive a fee. How many purchasers must be involved in order to make the transaction one which involves a "distribution" is not a question to which a numerical answer can be given which will fit all cases. You will recall that the same problem has arisen under Section 2 (11) and Section 4 (1) of the Federal Securities Act. All of the factors of any particular case must be considered, but generally speaking, we should think that if only four or five purchasers were involved (who did not themselves buy with a view to distribution), the transaction would not be regarded as a "distribution".

Very truly yours,

DAVIS, POLK, WARDWELL, GARDINER & REED.

EXHIBIT No. 1752

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

JOHN W. DAVIS
FRANK L. POLK
ALLEN WARDWELL
GEORGE H. GARDINER
LANSING P. REED
WILLIAM C. CANNON
HALL PARK McCULLOUGH

J. HOWLAND AUCHINCLOSS
EDWIN S. S. SUNDERLAND
TOM GARRETT
THEODORE KIENDL
MONTGOMERY B. ANGELL
OTIS T. BRADLEY
GEORGE A. BROWNELL

WALTER D. FLETCHER
CARROLL H. BREWSTER
LEIGHTON H. COLEMAN
EDGAR G. CROSSMAN
HENRY CLAY ALEXANDER
RALPH M. CARSON
FREDERICK A. O. SCHWARZ

Cable Address: STETSON

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED

(STETSON JENNINGS & RUSSELL)

15 Broad Street, New York

JULY 22, 1935.

The Nypano Railroad Company

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
23 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: In connection with the extension to March 1, 1950, of The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad Company Prior Lien Mortgage Bonds, previously extended to March 1, 1935, you have furnished us for our examination Bond No. 3667 in the principal amount of $1,000 to which is attached a duly executed counterpart of the Agreement of March 1, 1935, relating to the extension of such bond and a coupon sheet bearing coupons for semi-annual interest from September 1, 1935 to and including March 1, 1950. There is imprinted upon the bond the following legend:

"This bond is further extended to first of March, 1950, with interest at the rate of 4¼% and on further terms and conditions set forth in attached agreement dated March 1, 1935."

On the reverse panel of such bond is imprinted the following legend:

"Extended to March 1st, 1950, at 4¼%".

To the face of the extension agreement and coupon sheet is affixed a federal documentary stamp for one dollar, cancelled by perforation and by appropriate marking.

We are familiar with the proceedings taken by The Nypano Railroad Company to extend the foregoing bonds, with the terms and provisions of the Agreement of March 1, 1935, and with the letter of instructions to your Company as agent of The Nypano Railroad Company dated February 13, 1935. We are of the opinion that the bond which we have examined has been properly extended in accordance therewith and that the other bonds of this issue upon which are similarly imprinted the legends referred to and to which are similarly attached executed counterparts of the Agreement of March 1, 1935, with documentary stamps annexed and cancelled, and coupon sheets, may be redelivered to the holders who deposited the same with your Company in accordance with the provisions of the letter of instructions to your Company above mentioned.

Very truly yours,

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED.

EXHIBIT No. 1753

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

JOHN W. DAVIS
FRANK L. POLK
ALLEN WARDWELL
GEORGE H. GARDINER
LANSING P. REED
WILLIAM C. CANNON
HALL PARK McCULLOUGH

J. HOWLAND AUCHINCLOSS
EDWIN S. S. SUNDERLAND
TOM GARRETT
THEODORE KIENDL
MONTGOMERY B. ANGELL
OTIS T. BRADLEY
GEORGE A. BROWNELL

WALTER D. FLETCHER
CARROLL H. BREWSTER
LEIGHTON H. COLEMAN
EDGAR G. CROSSMAN
HENRY CLAY ALEXANDER
RALPH M. CARSON
FREDERICK A. O. SCHWARTZ

Cable Address: STETSON

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED

(STETSON JENNINGS & RUSSELL)

15 Broad Street, New York

AUGUST 21, 1935.

The Long Dock Company
Extension of Bonds

Mr. JOHN M. MEYER,

*J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street,
New York, N. Y.*

DEAR MR. MEYER: I have returned to you the draft forms of papers enclosed with your memorandum to me of August 20 in regard to the proposed extension of The Long Dock Company Consolidated Mortgage bonds, having examined these papers from the standpoint of J. P. Morgan & Co. who are to act as agents of The Long Dock Company in this transaction.

My examination related particularly to the draft letter of transmittal of bonds by bondholders, letter of instructions from The Long Dock Company to J. P. Morgan & Co. and receipt to be issued by The Long Dock Company through J. P. Morgan & Co. as its agents. I find these three papers as well as the remaining papers in satisfactory form from the standpoint of J. P. Morgan & Co. Although you are not directly concerned, I have raised the question that I do not believe any cash payment necessary as consideration for the extension in this case so long as it is clear that the contract of extension (which is to be performed in New York) is made in the State of New York by the affixing of the extension contract and coupon sheet to the bonds and the imprinting of the extension legend thereon. I also raised the question as to whether the reference in the letter between the Company and the bankers to "associates" of the bankers would be satisfactory.

Very truly yours,

J. HOWLAND AUCHINCLOSS.

EXHIBIT No. 1754-1

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

JOHN W. DAVIS
FRANK L. POLK
ALLEN WARDWELL
GEORGE H. GARDINER
LANSING P. REED
WILLIAM C. CANNON
HALL PARK McCULLOUGH

J. HOWLAND AUCHINCLOSS
EDWIN S. S. SUNDERLAND
TOM GARRETT
THEODORE KIENDL
MONTGOMERY B. ANGELL
OTIS T. BRADLEY
GEORGE A. BROWNELL

WALTER D. FLETCHER
CARROLL H. BREWSTER
LEIGHTON H. COLEMAN
EDGAR G. CROSSMAN
HENRY CLAY ALEXANDER
RALPH M. CARSON
FREDERICK A. O. SCHWARZ

Cable Address: STETSON

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED

(STETSON JENNINGS & RUSSELL)

15 Broad Street, New York

DECEMBER 14, 1935.

The LONG DOCK COMPANY, Consolidated Mortgage 6% Bonds due October 1, 1935,
Extension of Maturity to October 1, 1950.

Messrs J. P. MORGAN & Co.,

23 Wall Street, New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: On your behalf as agent of The Long Dock Company in regard to the extension of maturity of its Consolidated Mortgage 6% Bonds from October 1, 1935 to October 1, 1950, we have examined copies of the letter of instructions of The Long Dock Company to you dated September 13, 1935, the letter of The Long Dock Company to the holders of said bonds dated September 14, 1935 and the form of extension agreement and of coupon attached to said letter, the form of receipt to be delivered by you as agent to depositing bondholders, and specimen form of extension agreement and of coupon sheet prepared by American Bank Note Company. We understand that the bonds deposited with you as agent of The Long Dock Company under the extension plan have had attached thereto the extension contract and coupon sheet in the form examined by us, and that such bonds are now ready for delivery to the holders of the receipts against the surrender of such receipts.

We are of opinion that it is in order for you to give notice to the registered holders of said receipts that the deposited bonds are now ready for redelivery, and thereafter to redeliver such bonds to the holders of the receipts against the surrender of the receipts.

Very truly yours,

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED.

(Handwriting:) Ack: 12/18/25. A. W.

EXHIBIT No. 1754-2

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. J. HOWLAND AUCHINCLOSS

RE: LONG DOCK COMPANY

Attached herewith please find the following papers:

Group A:

1. Draft letter of transmittal
2. Draft of letter of instructions to J. P. Morgan & Co.
3. Draft of receipt to be issued by Long Dock Company, J. P. Morgan & Co. as their agents

Group B:

1. Draft of letter to bondholders
2. Draft of advertisement
3. Draft of Extension Agreement
4. Draft of contract between Erie Railroad and underwriters
5. Draft of Resolutions of Long Dock and Erie Board of Directors.
6. Draft of application to Interstate Commerce Commission

Group A concerns Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. directly as they will act as agent for the Long Dock Company and accept bonds against receipt. Extension Agreement and coupon sheets will be attached to the existing definitives and the bonds then returned to holders of receipts.

Group B includes general papers on which we have proffered general advice to the Erie people. I should appreciate your comments on both Groups.

(Initialed :) J. M. M.
J. M. M.

AUGUST 20, 1935.

EXHIBIT No. 1755

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co.]

[Letterhead of]

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED

(STETSON JENNINGS & RUSSELL)

15 Broad Street, New York

NOVEMBER 1, 1939.

HENRY C. ALEXANDER, Esq.,

J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, New York.

DEAR HENRY: At your request we have reviewed our files, having in mind the points which you mentioned to me, and find no opinions which would be pertinent to your inquiry other than those of May 20, 1934, July 22, 1935, August 21, 1935, and December 14, 1935. I believe the general opinion of May 29, 1934, adequately covers the point that Section 21 (a) 1 of the Banking Act of 1933 does not prevent your firm from acting as financial advisers to any company, including assistance to that company in getting together a group of underwriters who would underwrite its securities, or from accepting a fee for such services, provided, of course, that you do not extend your activities into the field of distribution. We have reviewed this question from time to time and have had no occasion to change our opinion.

As you know, we consider it advisable for the firm to follow the existing practice of examining with us the character of any particular transaction that may be under consideration in order that the firm be assured that such transaction falls within the scope of the general opinions which we may have given the firm from time to time.

Very truly yours,

ALLEN WARDWELL.

"EXHIBIT No. 1756" appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11795.

"EXHIBIT No. 1757" appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11826.

The following three exhibits are in connection with hearings on the development of the beryllium industry, included in Hearings, Part. 5.

Henderson 1064

EXHIBIT No. 1758-1

THE BRUSH BERYLLIUM COMPANY

3714 Chester Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio

Cable address
BRUSH CLEVELAND

DECEMBER 9, 1939.

Senator JOSEPH C. O'MAHONEY,

Congress of the United States, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR O'MAHONEY: At the hearing last spring on the Beryllium Industry I had the privilege of testifying before your committee at which you presided.

You may recall that on the last day of the two day hearing, the committee intended to adjourn its hearings early because other use of the room was intended for the evening. Nevertheless after my last testimony, the hearing was prolonged so that the president of our competing company might make a very considerable final statement. No opportunity was afforded me to make answer to certain statements which seemed to be objectionable and prejudicial.

Consequently under date of May 17th I submitted additional testimony and was advised by Mr. Cox under date of May 22nd that this testimony had been transmitted to the Executive Secretary of the T. N. E. C. with a recommendation that the letter and enclosures be introduced bodily into the record.

Nothing further was heard of this additional testimony until in response to our inquiries, we were advised under date of October 3rd by Mr. Wm. A. Heflin that the testimony was not included in the record "because of the controversial nature of the material."

Please permit me to assure you that the metallurgical facts submitted are not controversial and that the preceding testimony offered by our competitor is in our minds controversial and that our interests are prejudiced, unless our position is simultaneously made clear.

I believe that this material, a copy of which is enclosed, should have been included and should even now be made a part of the record.

I would value your comments and appreciate any action which you might take on our behalf.

Sincerely yours,

C. B. SAWYER, President.

CBS:CN
encl.

EXHIBIT No. 1758-2

[Document accompanying Exhibit No. 1758-1]

MAY 17, 1939.

Mr. HUGH B. COX,

Special Assistant to the Attorney General, Department of Justice, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. COX: This refers to the hearing on the Beryllium Industry before the Temporary National Economic Committee.

During the testimony you asked if I would object to your introducing, bodily, into the record a statement regarding the alleged infringement of Gahagan's patent by our company. This statement was to be returned to you at some later date and I, herewith, enclose it for you to introduce, bodily, into the record. This statement is referred to on page 235, third column of the printed record. It is dated December 28, 1937.

Certain stenographic errors in the printed record of my testimony should be corrected and I have enumerated these here below:

Page 233, 15th line.—This sentence should read "In other words because of the wide coverage of this patent, we may find that we are infringing".

Page 233, middle column, line 45.—Change "vat" to "bath".

Page 233, middle column, 14th line from sub-title Beryllium Patents.—Change "British Company" to "Brush Company".

Page 234, 3rd column, 10th line.—This sentence should read as follows: "There has been some confusion because the Brush Foundation at Cleveland is endowed for the purpose of medical research, etc." (Not "metal" research)

Page 235.—My last testimony in the 3rd column should read: "No, we haven't had that. I suggested it once or twice. No need for action having appeared, we didn't go further with it."

In the way of added facts which appear to me to be pertinent and necessary to the understanding of the facts presented to the committee, I present the following:

(1) A chart designed to amplify exhibit No. 476 appearing on page 180. If it is proper to submit the tensile strength of Beryllium Nickel in the heat-treated condition, it is also proper to incorporate in the chart the tensile strength of heat-treated alloy steels. When this is done, as in the enclosed chart, there may appear two standard well known S. A. E. steels which in the heat-treated condition exceed the strength of heat-treated Beryllium Nickel. These should be included in order to give one a sense of proportion.

(2) On page 180, first column, about the middle, it is stated by the witness that when Beryllium Copper safety tools are used in place of steel tools around oil refineries, gas plants and aeroplane hangers "there can be no explosion from that tool, no spark from that tool". While the above quoted statement is probably strictly accurate, it is nevertheless now understood to be a fact that when a Beryllium Copper tool is used on steel, a spark may proceed from the steel. Since Beryllium Copper tools are commonly used on steel, this liability of sparking remains as an ever present fact. The likelihood of a spark is enhanced whenever the steel is warm and also whenever it is rusty. To produce a spark from steel, the Beryllium Copper tool must be harder than the steel against which it is used. Note that on page 211, middle column, Mr. Randall in speaking of non-sparking tools, states that they should be called safety tools rather than non-sparking. It is a fact that at one time the American Brass Company on discovering the facts set out above, regarding sparks from Beryllium Copper tools when used on steel, recalled all of their catalogues and subsequently deleted all reference to "non-sparking tools". Later Mr. Randall attached stickers to his catalogues and notified his customers that under certain conditions Beryllium Copper tools are not non-sparking. I believe that this circumstance should be recognized by those interested in promoting the Beryllium Copper industry.

On page 182, the middle column, Mr. Gahagan states that he started to work in 1929. This checks with his statement on page 179, first column, that his company first went into the business about 10 years ago. Now it is a fact that U. S. patent No. 1685570, taken out by the Siemens-Halske Company on the subject of Heat-treating Beryllium Nickel Alloys, was issued in this country September 25, 1928. It is also a fact that on March 9, 1929, the Siemens-Halske Company published in Germany their work on beryllium, describing there at great length the precipitation hardening of beryllium copper. The Siemens-Halske publication has some information also on Beryllium Nickel and Beryllium Iron. Moreover, the British patent on the heat-treatment of Beryllium Copper was issued on March 15, 1928. It is hard to understand, in view of these facts, how Mr. Gahagan and Mr. J. Kent Smith, the British Metallurgist, as stated on page 179 of the verbatim testimony, could themselves have discovered the hardening effect of beryllium when added in small quantities to copper, nickel and iron, unless they grossly neglected the literature. Their discovery of the hardening effects of beryllium apparently took place after they had already worked two years on beryllium and aluminum alloys subsequent to commencing their efforts in 1929.

On page 176, first column, Mr. Gahagan states that only three elements in the world are lighter than beryllium and he must, of course, be referring to their atomic weights. Actually the following metals have lower densities than that of beryllium: Lithium, sodium, potassium, rubidium, magnesium and calcium.

On page 181, first column, it is stated that beryllium copper and beryllium nickel still stand 15 or 20 billion bends, whereas a phosphor bronze spring in a similar use, will go only 3 or 400,000 times before it breaks. It is, however, an engineering fact that so long as you do not stress a metallic material beyond its so-called endurance limit, it will not break from fatigue no matter how many billions of times you bend it. Consequently a phosphor bronze spring might show just as many alternations, that is as long a life, as a beryllium copper spring provided you did not stress the phosphor bronze spring beyond its endurance limit. It is a fact, however, that the endurance limit of beryllium copper is about 40,000 lbs. per square inch against 27,000 lbs. for phosphor bronze. Beryllium copper may, therefore, be expected to exhibit freedom from fatigue at stresses forty-eight percent higher than possible for phosphor bronze.

Since Mr. Gahagan has had an opportunity to tell the committee at length about his initial relations with the American Brass Co., I think that the same opportunity should have been accorded to me. Since no such opportunity was made available, I am taking the next best course and writing to the committee for its record.

My earliest correspondence with the American Brass Co., is missing and I believe it is in the hands of the Department of Justice. I believe that there were several exchanges of correspondence culminating finally in a visit by me to Waterbury on July 14, 1933. Mr. Bassett, the very eminent metallurgist of the American Brass Co., and then known as "Dean of American Metallurgists", personally discussed the matter with me at considerable length and took me to lunch at the Waterbury Club. At that time we were not making any beryllium copper master alloy, but were producing beryllium oxide. Mr. Bassett's interest in beryllium copper was of long standing as proved by his article published in the year 1927 in the American Institute of Min. and Met. Engineers.

Mr. Bassett got into touch with us because he wanted beryllium copper, and failing that, he wanted beryllium oxide to use in experiments directed at the production of beryllium to be used in copper. He was evidently determined to obtain another source. Because of some delay on our part he thought we were reluctant to furnish him with beryllium oxide and bought 2 lbs. of it from Foote Mineral. Later, under date of September 6, 1933, we supplied Mr. Bassett with 2 lbs. of our beryllium oxide, without charge. We also discussed the process which Mr. Bassett intended to use and I gave him all the information which we had available.

Mr. Bassett at that time expressed dissatisfaction with his source of beryllium copper (Mr. Gahagan's company) and denied the current rumor that Anaconda had stock in Mr. Gahagan's company.

Mr. Bassett and his assistant Mr. Davis, as I subsequently learned, were not able to make the process operate which I had discussed with him. Subsequently on the strength of Mr. Bassett's representation of the American Brass Company's interest in another source of beryllium copper, we succeeded in introducing modifications of the process which I had discussed with Mr. Bassett and these modifications were responsible for the success which we ultimately achieved in this process.

At the time of my visit with Mr. Bassett, he indicated that when the prices of beryllium got to be only six times as great as that of tin, the use of tin in bronze would be largely replaced by the use of beryllium. Mr. Bassett evidently felt that he had cause to anticipate such a price ultimately and disappointment over the failure to realize this expectation, or even to make progress towards it, probably accounts for the American Brass Company's manifested uncertainty about the future of the beryllium copper business. Such progress as our company has been able to make towards lower prices for beryllium, together with our prompt deliveries and reliable analyses, have, I feel sure, been largely responsible for keeping the American Brass Co., in the business of producing beryllium copper mill forms.

It remains a fact that the American Brass Company's cost of production has been considerably higher throughout than indicated by Mr. Bassett's early estimates, so that their prices have had to increase. We hope and believe that our new price for the master alloy will be very helpful to them.

The essential feature of our initial contacts with the American Brass Co., is that Mr. Bassett himself, with his impeccable reputation, was at this time actively seeking an additional source of supply of beryllium copper and that he must, therefore, almost from the very first have experienced dissatisfaction with Mr. Gahagan's company. There was no change in attitude towards Mr. Gahagan's company after the death of Mr. Bassett. They were simply carrying out policies which he had already indicated and making the best of their disappointment over the costs of the new venture.

Regarding Mr. Gahagan's statements on page 238 of the printed testimony, I feel obliged again to emphasize that the Brush Foundation exists only for medical research and has its offices in the Western Reserve Medical School two miles removed from our offices. The Brush Foundation is in no way connected with the Brush Laboratories Company. On the other hand, I am delighted to note that Mr. Gahagan has "no thought of trying to create a monopoly", as I and others have had the other impression very strongly. I cannot agree that at the time of his visit to us he made any offer to license the use of his patents and certainly any such license fee as $5.00 per pound of beryllium as testified to by Mr. Judd, is an impossible sum to pay. Mr. Gahagan at the time of his visit did suggest that we confine our efforts to the chemical field. I did not agree to this as our company has from the first intended to get into the metal business. We have felt that no metal business could be built on an oxide process which was not entirely satisfactory, and our ability to make progress with our costs has been ample justification for this policy. I did tell Mr. Gahagan that we expected to continue our efforts in the oxide and chemical field and we have done so. I never told him that we were not planning to enter the metal field.

Mr. Gahagan's offer to purchase metal patents from us could hardly be construed as encouraging competition in the production of metal by us, and as a matter of fact I do not recall any such offer at the time of his visit.

Finally, again referring to Mr. Gahagan's testimony on page 238, my comments on so-called "paper patents" as defined by me in my testimony, cannot be construed as indicating that the German patent on beryllium nickel is inoperative. It does seem to me that the coverage afforded by the claims therein, is too wide for the relatively meager disclosure.

In conclusion the U. S. beryllium copper heat treatment patent #1,975,113 taken out by the Germans, Masing and Dahl, under which Mr. Gahagan expects to have "practically complete control of the industry" (which is now practically entirely concerned with beryllium copper) once he "gets finally to the Supreme Court" was in interference in the U. S. Patent Office with U. S. beryllium copper alloy patent #1,893,984 and heat treatment patent #1,990,168 taken out by M. G. Corson under which my Company is licensed. The interference terminated favorably to the Corson patent under which we are licensed and it is hard to see how Mr. Gahagan can extend the field granted under the Masing and Dahl patent to cover the field with nickel additions in which we operate.

Very truly yours,

C. B. SAWYER

CBS: CN
encl.

EXHIBIT No. 1758-3

[Submitted by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.]

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated—Issues underwritten or participated in during period September 16, 1935 through June 30, 1939

[From the files of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated]

No. of Issue	Date of Offering Prospectus	Name of Issuer	Title of Issue	Amount of Issue Underwritten	Name of Syndicate Manager	Amount of Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Participation in Underwriting Group	Gross Spread		Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Manager's Compensation	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Receipts or Loss (i. e. Manager's share of Underwriting Commission, Profit or Loss on securities taken up) before deducting any expenses	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Receipts or Loss after deducting its share of syndicate expenses but before any Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Expenses, Taxes, Overhead or Return on Capital
							In Points	In Amount
ISSUES MANAGED OR CO-MANAGED
1	Sept. 21, 1935	Consumers Power Co.	1st Lien & Unif. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1935, 1965	$19,172,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	$5,711,000	2.00	$383,440.00	$23,965.00	$66,797.50	$60,575.05
2	Oct. 14, 1935	Dayton Power and Light Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge Bonds 3½%, 1960	20,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	5,000,000	2.25	450,000.00	75,000.00	112,500.00	112,499.48
3	Oct. 16, 1935	Illinois Bell Telephone Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½% B, 1970	43,700,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	13,600,000	2.00	874,000.00	109,250.00	211,345.78	211,345.39
4	Nov. 20, 1935	Ohio Edison Co.	1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 4% Series of 1935, 1965	43,963,500	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	8,731,000	2.50	1,099,087.50	82,431.57	180,655.32	180,655.32
5	Nov. 25, 1935	New York and Queens Elec. Lt. and Pwr. Co.	1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1935, 1965	25,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	9,350,000	2.00	500,000.00	93,750.00	175,502.50	175,502.50
6	Dec. 12, 1935	Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½% B, 1964	44,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	13,400,000	2.00	880,000.00	110,000.00	210,500.00	210,500.00
Sub-total—September 16 to December 31, 1935				195,835,500		55,792,000		4,186,527.50	494,396.57	957,361.10	933,245.79
7	Feb. 27, 1936	New York Edison Co., Inc.	1st Lien & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½% D, 1965	55,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	15,000,000	2.00	1,100,000.00	206,250.00	337,500.00	327,405.00
8	Mar. 16, 1936	Central Illinois Light Co.	1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1966	7,178,500	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	2,914,000	2.25	161,516.25	33,459.69	42,599.69	36,130.61
9	Mar. 19, 1936	Consumers Power Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1936, 1970	55,830,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	11,165,000	2.00	1,116,600.00	104,681.25	202,375.00	195,742.99
10	Mar. 23, 1936	Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 4% D, 2003	9,292,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	4,792,000	2.00	185,840.00	(?)	59,170.00	59,170.00
11	Apr. 3, 1936	New York Central Railroad Co.	Serial Sec. Notes, Due 1937 to 1941, incl	15,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	3,180,000	.25	37,500.00	14,775.00	15,750.00	15,749.00
12	Apr. 6, 1936	New York Central Railroad Co.	10 Yr. 3½% Sec. S. F. Bonds, 1946	40,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	8,500,000	1.75	700,000.00	100,000.00	163,750.00	163,750.00
13	Apr. 9, 1936	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc.	10 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1946	35,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	7,500,000	1.75	612,500.00	87,500.00	153,125.00	153,125.00
14	Apr. 9, 1936	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc.	20 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1956	35,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	7,500,000	2.00	700,000.00	131,250.00	196,875.00	196,875.00
15	Apr. 16, 1936	Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.	Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds B, 1966	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	10,362,000	2.00	807,240.00	151,357.50	242,025.00	242,025.00
16	Apr. 30, 1936	Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co.	Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 3½% Bonds D, 1966	40,362,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	6,500,000	2.00	480,000.00	(?)	116,875.00	116,875.00
17	May 1, 1936	Cincinnati Union Terminal Co.	1st Mtge. 3½% Bonds D, 1971	24,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	7,277,000	2.00	454,540.00	85,226.25	148,900.00	148,900.00
18	May 22, 1936	Chicago and Western Indiana R. R. Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. 4½% D, S. F. Bonds, 1962	22,727,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	15,000,000	2.00	1,100,000.00	206,250.00	337,500.00	327,405.00
19	May 25, 1936	Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc.	Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1936, 1966	55,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	9,000,000	2.00	600,000.00	112,500.00	191,250.00	191,250.00
20	May 27, 1936	Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey)	25 Year 3% Deb., 1961	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	6,000,000	2.50	300,000.00	45,000.00	108,858.00	108,858.00
21	June 18, 1936	Crane Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1936, 1966	32,493,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	8,743,000	2.00	649,860.00	121,848.75	198,350.00	198,350.00
22	June 24, 1936	Niagara Falls Power Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds E, 2003	26,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	8,000,000	2.00	520,000.00	(?)	190,000.00	190,000.00
23	June 25, 1936	Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co.	Serial Notes Due 1937 to 1946, incl.	15,300,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	3,600,000	1.00	153,000.00	38,250.00	61,750.00	61,750.00
24	July 14, 1936	Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1966	13,827,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	4,914,000	2.00	276,540.00	51,851.25	94,848.75	94,848.75
25	July 23, 1936	Indianapolis Water Co.	1st Lien & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds, E, 1966	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	8,000,000	2.00	600,000.00	(?)	220,000.00	220,000.00
26	July 24, 1936	New York Edison Co., Inc.	Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 3½% Bonds E, 1966	29,500,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	6,500,000	2.00	590,000.00	110,625.00	170,562.50	170,562.50
27	July 30, 1936	Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co.	10 Yr. 3% Deb., 1946	50,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	7,500,000	1.50	750,000.00	187,500.00	284,375.00	284,375.00
28	Aug. 20, 1936	General Motors Acceptance Corp.	15 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1951	50,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	7,500,000	1.75	875,000.00	187,500.00	236,175.00	236,175.00
29	Aug. 20, 1936	General Motors Acceptance Corp.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1966	35,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	10,000,000	2.00	700,000.00	131,250.00	218,750.00	218,750.00
30	Aug. 26, 1936	Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co.	25 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1961	150,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	25,000,000	2.00	3,000,000.00	562,500.00	781,250.00	781,250.00
31	Oct. 15, 1936	American Telephone and Telegraph Co.	4½% Cum. Pfd. Stock (Par Value $100) (3,404 Shs.)	340,400	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	340,400	2.50	8,510.00	(?)	3,401.00	3,401.00
32	Nov. 2, 1936	Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp.	S. F. Ext. Loan 4½% Bonds, 1971	23,600,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	4,000,000	3.00	705,000.00	88,125.00	128,125.00	128,125.00
33	Nov. 19, 1936	Argentine Republic	30 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1966	140,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	20,000,000	2.00	2,800,000.00	525,000.00	700,000.00	700,000.00
34	Dec. 2, 1936	American Telephone and Telegraph Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1936, 1966	12,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	3,750,000	2.00	240,000.00	22,500.00	55,312.50	55,312.50
35	Dec. 3, 1936	Consumers Power Co.	Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds, C, 1966	25,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	7,500,000	2.00	500,000.00	93,750.00	159,375.00	159,375.00
36	Dec. 17, 1936	Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1937, 1972	25,834,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	5,092,000	2.00	536,680.00	50,313.75	94,868.75	94,868.75
37	Dec. 30, 1936	Ohio Edison Co.
Sub-total—January 1 to December 31, 1936				1,126,183,900		254,479,400		21,860,326.25	3,504,263.44	6,010,416.19	5,991,063.49
38	Jan. 14, 1937	Great Northern Railway Co.	Gen. Mtge. 3½% Bonds, I, 1967	8,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	8,000,000	2.00	1,000,000.00	(?)	257,500.00	257,500.00
39	Jan. 21, 1937	Government of the Dominion of Canada	7 Yr. 2½% Bonds, 1944	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	4,237,000	1.25	375,000.00	75,000.00	101,481.25	101,481.25
40	Jan. 21, 1937	Government of the Dominion of Canada	30 Yr. 3% Bonds, 1967	65,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	7,763,000	2.00	1,100,000.00	200,250.00	274,176.25	274,176.25
41	Feb. 10, 1937	Argentine Republic	Sinking Fund Ext. Loan 4% Bonds, Feb. 15, 1972	70,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	9,000,000	3.00	2,100,000.00	262,500.00	352,500.00	352,500.00
42	Feb. 15, 1937	Philadelphia Electric Co.	Common Stock (Without Par Value) (100,000 Shs.)	10,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	3,000,000	1.50	150,000.00	37,500.00	79,896.28	79,896.28
43	Mar. 11, 1937	Argentine Republic	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1967	130,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	18,000,000	2.00	2,600,000.00	4875

EXHIBIT No. 1763

[Submitted by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.]

Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated¹

No. of Issue	Date of Offering Prospectus	Name of Issuer	Title of Issue	Amount of Issue Underwritten ²	Name of Syndicate Manager	Counsel for Underwriters ³	Advertising Agency ⁴	Engineering and Appraisal Firms ⁵	Accounting Firms ⁶
1	Sept. 21, 1935	Consumers Power Co.	1st Lien & Unit. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1935, 1965.	$19,172,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	None	Arthur Andersen & Co.
2	Oct. 14, 1935	Dayton Power and Light Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1960.	20,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
3	Oct. 16, 1935	Illinois Bell Telephone Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½% B, 1970.	43,700,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery.
4	Nov. 20, 1935	Ohio Edison Co.	1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 4% Series of 1935, 1965.	43,963,500	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Arthur Andersen & Co.
5	Nov. 25, 1935	New York and Queens Elec. Lt. and Pwr. Co.	1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1935, 1965.	25,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
6	Dec. 12, 1935	Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½% B, 1964.	44,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
7	Feb. 27, 1936	New York Edison Co., Inc.	1st Lien & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½% D, 1965.	55,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
8	Mar. 16, 1936	Central Illinois Light Co.	1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1966.	7,178,500	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	None	Arthur Andersen & Co.
9	Mar. 19, 1936	Consumers Power Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1936, 1970.	55,830,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	None	Arthur Andersen & Co.
10	Mar. 23, 1936	Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 4% D, 2003.	9,292,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	Haskins & Sells
11	Apr. 3, 1936	New York Central Railroad Co.	Serial Sec. Notes, Due 1937 to 1941, incl.	15,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	None	None	None
12	Apr. 6, 1936	New York Central Railroad Co.	10 Yr. 3½% Sec. S. F. Bonds, 1946.	40,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	None
13	Apr. 9, 1936	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc.	10 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1946.	35,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
14	Apr. 9, 1936	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc.	20 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1956.	35,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
15	Apr. 16, 1936	Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.	Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds B, 1966.	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
16	Apr. 30, 1936	Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co.	Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 3½% Bonds D, 1966.	40,362,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Ferguson-Gates Engineering Company	None
17	May 1, 1936	Cincinnati Union Terminal Co.	1st Mtge. 3½% Bonds D, 1971.	24,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	None
18	May 22, 1936	Chicago and Western Indiana R. R. Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. 4½% D, S. F. Bonds, 1962.	22,727,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Eppler & Company
19	May 25, 1936	Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc.	Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, Series of 1936, 1966.	55,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
20	May 27, 1936	Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey)	25 Year 3% Deb., 1961.	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
21	June 18, 1936	Crane Co.	15 Yr. 3½% S. F. Deb., 1951.	12,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	Ford, Bacon & Davis Incorporated.	Arthur Young & Company
22	June 24, 1936	Niagara Falls Power Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, Series of 1936, 1966.	32,493,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Ford, Bacon & Davis Incorporated.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
23	June 25, 1936	Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds E, 2003.	26,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Haskins & Sells
24	July 14, 1936	Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co.	Serial Notes Due 1937 to 1946, incl.	15,300,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	None
25	July 23, 1936	Indianapolis Water Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1966.	13,827,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Morgan, Lewis & Bockius	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Arthur Andersen & Co.
26	July 24, 1936	New York Edison Co., Inc.	1st Lien & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds, E, 1966.	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
27	July 30, 1936	Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co.	Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 3½% Bonds, E, 1966.	29,500,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	None
28	Aug. 20, 1936	General Motors Acceptance Corp.	10 Yr. 3% Deb., 1946.	50,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Ferguson-Gates Engineering Company	Haskins & Sells
29	Aug. 20, 1936	General Motors Acceptance Corp.	15 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1951.	50,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Haskins & Sells
30	Aug. 26, 1936	Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1966.	35,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
31	Oct. 15, 1936	American Telephone and Telegraph Co.	25 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1961.	150,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Arthur Young & Company
32	Nov. 2, 1936	Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp.	4½% Cum. Pfd. Stock (Par Value $100) (3,404 Shs.).	340,400	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	None	None	Ford, Bacon & Davis Incorporated.	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
33	Nov. 19, 1936	Argentine Republic	S. F. Ext. Loan 4½% Bonds, 1971.	23,500,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Dr. Adolfo L. Rosenberg	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
34	Dec. 2, 1936	American Telephone and Telegraph Co.	30 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1966.	140,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	Arthur Young & Company
35	Dec. 3, 1936	Consumers Power Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, Series of 1936, 1966.	12,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
36	Dec. 17, 1936	Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.	Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds, C, 1966.	25,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Arthur Andersen & Co.
37	Dec. 30, 1936	Ohio Edison Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, Series of 1937, 1972.	26,834,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
38	Jan. 14, 1937	Great Northern Railway Co.	Gen. Mtge. 3½% Bonds, I, 1967.	50,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Arthur Andersen & Co.
39	Jan. 21, 1937	Government of the Dominion of Canada	7 Yr. 2½% Bonds, 1944.	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	None
40	Jan. 21, 1937	Government of the Dominion of Canada	30 Yr. 3% Bonds, 1967.	55,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	MacDougall, Macfarlane, Scott and Huggess.	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	None
41	Feb. 10, 1937	Argentine Republic	Sinking Fund Ext. Loan 4% Bonds, Feb. 15, 1972.	70,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	MacDougall, Macfarlane, Scott and Huggess.	Doremus & Company	None	None
42	Feb. 15, 1937	Johns-Manville Corp.	Common Stock (Without Par Value) (100,000 Shs.).	10,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	None	Sanderson & Porter	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
43	Mar. 11, 1937	Philadelphia Electric Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1967.	130,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	(Drinker Biddle & Reath)	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Sharp, Milne & Co.
44	Apr. 22, 1937	Argentine Republic	S. F. Ext. Loan 4% Bonds, April 15, 1972.	35,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
45	May 5, 1937	Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co.	25 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1962.	42,500,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	None
46	May 24, 1937	Crane Co.	5% Cum. Conv. Pfd. Shares ($100 Par Value) (192,803 Shs.).	19,280,300	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	None	Ford, Bacon & Davis Incorporated.	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
47	June 1, 1937	Phelps Dodge Corp.	Conv. 3½% Deb., 1962.	20,285,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	None	H. G. Moulton	Pogson, Pelouzet & Co.
48	June 3, 1937	Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co.	Conv. Pfd. Bonds 3½%, 1967.	10,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
49	June 23, 1937	Standard Brands, Inc.	$4.50 Cum. Pfd. Stock (Without Par Value) (200,000 Shs.).	20,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Haskins & Sells
50	June 24, 1937	New York Telephone Co.	Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds B, 1967.	25,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
51	June 25, 1937	Buffalo Niagara Electric Corp.	Gen. & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds C, 1967.	17,029,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
52	June 25, 1937	Buffalo Niagara Electric Corp.	Serial Deb. due 1938 to 1962 incl.	3,420,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
53	June 30, 1937	E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co.	Pfd. Stock $4.50 Cum. (Without Par Value) (500,000 Shs.).	50,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Haskins & Sells
54	July 22, 1937	Westchester Lighting Co.	General Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1967.	25,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
55	Sept. 29, 1937	Ohio Edison Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 4% Series of 1937, 1967.	8,500,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
56	Oct. 7, 1937	Central New York Power Corp.	Gen. Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1962.	48,364,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
57	Jan. 13, 1938	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc.	20 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1953.	30,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
58	Jan. 19, 1938	Consumers Power Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, Series of 1937, 1967.	9,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	None	Arthur Andersen & Co.
59	Mar. 30, 1938	Duluth, Missabe and Iron Range Railway Co.	1st Mtge. 3½% Bonds, 1962.	28,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
60	Apr. 21, 1938	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc.	10 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1948.	60,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
61	June 2, 1938	United States Steel Corp.	10 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1948.	100,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	White & Case	Doremus & Company	Ford, Bacon & Davis Incorporated.	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
62	June 9, 1938	Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co.	30 Yr. 3½% Deb., 1968.	27,750,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
63	July 7, 1938	Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey)	Serial Notes Due 1943 to 1947 incl.	31,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Price, Waterhouse & Co.; Saunders, Cameron & Co.; Broad, Paterson & Co.; Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co.; Cooper & Kenny
64	July 7, 1938	Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey)	15 Yr. 2½% Deb., 1953.	50,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Ernest S. W. Barham, H. B. Allard, Way & Hardie
65	July 14, 1938	Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. 3% Bonds C, 1968.	28,900,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery
66	Aug. 11, 1938	Public Service Electric and Gas Co.	1st & Ref. Mtge. Bonds, 3½%, 1968.	10,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	Doremus & Company	None	Niles & Niles
67	Aug. 12, 1938	New York Steam Corp.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½%, 1963.	27,982,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	Day & Zimmermann, Inc.	Patterson, Teele and Dennis
68	Nov. 3, 1938	Argentine Republic	10 Yr. S. F. Ext. Loan 4½% Bonds, 1948.	25,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	None
69	Nov. 17, 1938	Government of the Dominion of Canada	30 Yr. 3% Bonds, 1968.	40,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Dr. Adolfo L. Rosenberg	Doremus & Company	None	None
70	Dec. 2, 1938	Continental Oil Co.	10 Yr. 2½% Conv. Debts., 1948.	21,071,600	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	None	None	Arthur Young & Company
71	Dec. 22, 1938	Railway Express Agency, Inc.	Serial Notes Series A due 1939 to 1948, incl.	16,000,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Sullivan & Cromwell	J. Walter Thompson Advertising Corporation	None	Price, Waterhouse & Co.
72	Dec. 23, 1938	Consumers Power Co.	1st Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1936, 1966.	10,168,000	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	Doremus & Company	None	Arthur Andersen & Co.
73	Apr. 3, 1939	Eastman Kodak Co.	Common Stock (Without Par Value) (225,092 Shs.).	28,609,230	Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated	Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed	None	None	Price, Waterhouse & Co.

¹ As it is understood that general information concerning issues managed by others in which Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated participated is being obtained from the managers of those issues, this table is confined to issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. Certain minor items of information relating to Morgan Stanley & Co.'s participation in issues managed by others which presumably would not be known to the managers of those issues are given in the footnotes.

² Bonds and debentures are included at their principal amount, preferred and common stocks are included at $100 per share, except in the case of Eastman Kodak Company common stock which is included at the subscription price of $127.50 per share.

³ Counsel for the underwriting group in each issue managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. The names of local counsel who were retained in certain cases such as fees were paid in whole or in part by dealers in the selling group or by the issuer. In the case of participations in issues managed by others, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated also has usually consulted its retained counsel with regard to many legal matters pertaining to the issue.

⁴ Advertising agencies were employed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated in connection with the public offering. Advertising expenses generally were paid by the underwriting group although in certain issues such expenses were paid in whole or in part by dealers in the selling group or by the issuer.

⁵ These firms were employed and paid by the issuer with the exception of $43,963,500 Ohio Edison Co. 1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 4% Series of 1935, 1965 and $8,300,000 Ohio Edison Co. 1st Mtge. Bonds 4% Series of 1937, 1967, in which issues Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Bonbright & Company, Incorporated employed and paid Day & Zimmermann, Inc. to advise them in connection with the issue. In Continental Oil Co. 10 Yr. 2½% Conv. Debts., 1948, the underwriting group paid a conference fee of $100 for consultation with reference to the oil industry which is not construed to be within the scope of this question. In an issue of $60,000,000 Shell Union Oil Corp. Fifteen-Year 3½% Debentures due 1951, offered March 10, 1936, managed by Dillon, Read & Co. and Hayden, Stone & Co., in which Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated had an underwriting participation of $5,000,000, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated retained Mr. V. G. Smith to advise them in connection with the Registration Statement.

⁶ Accounting firms in each instance were employed and paid for by the issuer with the exception of $22,727,000 Chicago and Western Indiana R. R. Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 4½% D. S. F. Bonds, 1962 and $16,000,000 Railway Express Agency, Inc. Serial Notes Series A due 1939 to 1948, incl., in which issues the accounting firms were employed and paid for by the underwriting group.

Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co. mery.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.

mery
 Stanley & Co. lers, Camer-
 Stanley & Co. & Co.; Peat,
 Stanley & Co. er & Kenny;
 Stanley & Co. Allard, Way
 Stanley & Co. mery

Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.
 Stanley & Co.

ing obtained from dating to Mor Edison Co.
 mann, Inc.,
 unan Kodak Co. reference
 al counsel who v. offered writing group, 30, Morgan
 rs, Morgan Sta. 44% D. for by thh
 were paid by th

"EXHIBIT No. 1759-1" appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11797.

"EXHIBIT No. 1759-2" appears in Hearings, Part 22, appendix, p. 11798.

"EXHIBIT No. 1760-1," introduced on p. 12049, is on file with the Committee.

"EXHIBIT No. 1760-2," introduced on p. 12049, is on file with the Committee.

"EXHIBIT No. 1760-3," introduced on p. 12049, is on file with the Committee.

"EXHIBIT No. 1760-4," introduced on p. 12049, is on file with the Committee.

EXHIBIT No. 1761

[Letter from Morgan Stanley & Co. to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities & Exchange Commission]

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED

Two Wall Street, New York

NEW YORK, November 27, 1939.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: I have your letter of November 17, 1939 requesting further information as to Item 2 in your questionnaire of March 6, 1939.

I am sorry that any information is lacking as we understood we had given you all the information you needed in response to this item. At the time of the conference mentioned by you, I showed you a list of the common and preferred stockholders of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. We explained to you that we preferred not listing the number of shares held by each common stockholder and our reasons why, but told you that no one stockholder had more than 20% of the common stock and that three persons, namely, William Ewing, H. S. Morgan and myself each held 20% of the stock and that the remaining stock was divided among the other names shown on the list. We understood that you were satisfied with the sufficiency of this information as to the common stock; you said, however, that you would like a list of the preferred stockholders, and a list of those of record as of March 24, 1939, was furnished you on that date.

Consequently, I trust that this letter and the enclosures herewith will give you a record of all the information you need. The enclosures are:

The names of the common stockholders of this Company at the time of its incorporation and as of August 31, 1939, the end of our last fiscal year.

Preferred stockholders of record as of the same dates.

Sincerely yours,

HAROLD STANLEY.

Enclosures

"EXHIBITS Nos. 1762 and 1763" face this page.

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated—Common Stockholders of Record as at August 31, 1939

Sumner B. Emerson
 William Ewing
 Perry E. Hall
 Allen Northey Jones
 Henry S. Morgan

Alfred Shriver
 Harold Stanley
 Edward H. York, Jr.
 John M. Young

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated—Preferred Stockholders of Record as at September 16, 1935

William Ewing
 Perry E. Hall
 Allen Northey Jones
 Henry S. Morgan

Harold Stanley
 Edward H. York, Jr.
 John M. Young

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated—Preferred Stockholders of Record as at August 31, 1939

	No. of Shares
Arthur M. Anderson.....	1,000
Gaspar G. Bacon and George Whitney, Trustees Under Deed of Trust Dated November 13, 1914.....	1,700
Robert L. Bacon and Gaspar G. Bacon, as Trustees for Martha B. Whitney.....	1,700
Francis D. Bartow.....	1,000
William Ewing.....	1,500
Allen Northey Jones.....	200
Thomas W. Lamont.....	19,500
Russell C. Leffingwell.....	3,400
H. Gates Lloyd, Jr.....	850
H. Gates Lloyd, Jr., and Charles D. Dickey, Trustees for Richard W. Lloyd, Under the Will of Horatio G. Lloyd, Deceased.....	850
Richard W. Lloyd.....	850
Richard W. Lloyd and Charles D. Dickey, Trustees for H. Gates Lloyd, Jr., under the Will of Horatio G. Lloyd, Deceased.....	850
Henry S. Morgan.....	9,800
J. P. Morgan.....	3,000
Junius S. Morgan.....	2,800
Harold Stanley.....	1,000
Charles Steele (Deceased).....	20,000

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated—Preferred Stockholders of Record as at September 16, 1935

	No. of Shares
Arthur M. Anderson.....	1,000
Francis D. Bartow.....	1,000
William Ewing.....	1,500
Thomas W. Lamont.....	21,000
Russell C. Leffingwell.....	3,400
Horatio G. Lloyd.....	3,400
Henry S. Morgan.....	2,500
J. P. Morgan.....	10,000
Junius S. Morgan.....	2,800
Charles Steele.....	20,000
George Whitney.....	3,400

Utility issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, September 16, 1935-June 30, 1939

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Date of Offering Prospectus	Title of Issue	Total Amount of Issue Man- aged	Amount of Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Under- writing Par- ticipation	Bankers' Gross Com- missions	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Man- ager's Com- pensation	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit Before Syndicate Expenses	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit After Syndicate Ex- penses but Be- fore Office Expenses, Taxes, Overhead & Return on Capital
11/25/35	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc., and Subsidiaries:
2/27/36	N. Y. & Queens Elec. Lt. & Pwr. Co., 3 1/4% due 1965	$25,000,000	$9,350,000	$500,000	$83,760	$175,562	$175,312
4/9/36	N. Y. Edison Co., Inc., 3 1/4% due 1965	55,000,000	15,000,000	1,100,000	208,250	337,500	327,406
4/9/36	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y., 3 1/4% due 1946	33,000,000	7,500,000	612,500	87,600	153,125	148,888
5/25/36	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y., 3 1/4% due 1950	33,000,000	7,500,000	700,000	131,250	190,875	182,638
7/24/36	Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc., 3 1/4% due 1966	55,000,000	15,000,000	1,100,000	206,250	337,500	326,880
7/24/37	N. Y. Edison Co., Inc., 3 1/4% due 1966	30,000,000	8,000,000	600,000	(1)	220,000	200,445
7/24/38	Westchester Lighting Co., 3 1/4% due 1967	25,000,000	8,000,000	600,000	83,750	103,750	142,084
1/13/38	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y., 3 1/4% due 1953	30,000,000	6,285,000	800,000	112,500	167,494	153,579
4/21/38	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y., 3 1/4% due 1948	60,000,000	9,000,000	1,050,000	150,000	217,500	203,410
8/12/38	N. Y. Steam Corp., 3 1/4% due 1963	27,982,000	5,666,000	550,640	104,932	154,510	140,105
	Sub-totals (Con. Edison)	377,982,000	91,301,000	7,322,140	1,186,182	2,123,816	2,010,746
9/21/35	Commonwealth & Southern Corp.:
11/20/35	Consumers Power Co., 3 1/4% due 1965	$ 6,356,000	5,711,000	383,440	23,985	66,797	60,575
3/16/36	Ohio Edison Co., 4% due 1965	$ 21,981,750	8,731,000	1,096,088	82,431	180,555	163,012
3/16/36	Central Illinois Light Co., 3 1/4% due 1968	$ 3,598,250	2,614,000	161,516	13,459	42,599	36,130
12/3/36	Consumers Power Co., 3 1/4% due 1970	$ 27,915,000	11,165,000	1,116,600	104,681	202,375	195,742
12/30/36	Consumers Power Co., 3 1/4% due 1966	$ 6,000,000	3,750,000	240,000	22,500	55,312	52,740
9/29/37	Ohio Edison Co., 3 1/4% due 1972	$ 13,417,000	5,092,000	536,690	50,313	94,868	91,964
1/19/38	Consumers Power Co., 4% due 1967	$ 4,250,000	2,200,000	191,250	15,937	35,187	28,115
12/23/38	Consumers Power Co., 3 1/4% due 1968	$ 4,500,000	2,125,000	180,000	16,875	35,468	30,666
	Sub-totals (Comm. & So.)	$ 6,323,000	$ 43,922,000	$ 4,111,934	$ 340,226	$ 751,873	$ 692,545

See footnotes at end of table.

Utility issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, September 16, 1935-June 30, 1939—Continued

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Date of Offering Prospectus	Title of Issue	Total Amount of Issue Man- aged	Amount of Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Under- writing Par- ticipation	Bankers' Gross Com- missions	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Man- ager's Com- pensation	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit Before Syndicate Expenses	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit After Syndicate Ex- penses but Be- fore Office Expenses, Taxes, Overhead & Return on Capital
6/24/36	Niagara Hudson Power Corp.:	$32,433,000	$8,743,000	$649,860	$121,848	$198,350	$190,988
11/2/36	Niagara Falls Power Co., 3¼% due 1969	340,400	340,400	8,510	---	3,404	2,990
6/25/37	Central Hudson Gas & Elec. Corp., 4¼% Cum. Fld	17,029,000	4,684,000	369,810	63,855	104,584	88,950
6/25/37	Buffalo Niagara Elec. Corp., 3¼% due 1967	3,420,000	945,000	42,750	8,555	14,454	12,158
6/25/37	Buffalo Niagara Elec. Corp., Ser. Deb. due 1938-1952	45,364,000	10,064,000	967,280	181,365	268,425	250,826
10/7/37	Central New York Power Corp., 3¼% due 1962	101,646,400	24,746,400	2,008,980	375,621	590,216	545,861
	Sub-totals (Niag. Hudson)
10/14/35	Columbia Gas & Electric Corp.:	20,000,000	5,000,000	450,000	75,000	112,500	112,499
8/26/36	Dayton Power and Light Co., 3¼% due 1960	35,000,000	10,000,000	700,000	131,250	218,750	208,250
6/3/37	Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 3¼% due 1966	10,000,000	2,855,000	200,000	37,500	62,481	54,630
	Sub-totals (Col. G. & E.)	65,000,000	17,855,000	1,350,000	243,750	393,731	375,379
3/11/37	United Gas Improvement Co.:	130,000,000	18,000,000	2,600,000	487,500	642,727	622,711
	Philadelphia Electric Co., 3¼% due 1967	130,000,000	18,000,000	2,600,000	487,500	642,727	622,711
	Sub-totals (U. G. I.)
8/11/38	Public Service Corp. of N. J.:	5,000,000	3,125,000	200,000	18,760	45,093	38,203
	Public Service Electric & Gas Co., 3¼% due 1968	5,000,000	3,125,000	200,000	18,760	45,093	38,203
	Sub-totals (P. S. Corp. of N. J.)
7/22/36	Indianapolis Water Co.:	13,827,000	4,914,000	276,540	61,851	94,949	90,171
	Indianapolis Water Co., 3¼% due 1966	789,778,400	204,843,400	17,869,594	2,712,880	4,643,305	4,375,616
	GRAND TOTALS

1 Issue subunderwritten.

2 In those issues in which there were co-managers, the amount of the issue underwritten was divided equally among the co-managers.

Source: Data supplied by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

Industrial and railroad issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, September 16, 1935-June 30, 1939

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Date of Offering Prospectus	Title of Issue	Total Amount of Issue Managed	Amount of Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Underwriting Participation	Bankers' Gross Commissions	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Manager's Compensation	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit Before Syndicate Expenses	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit After Syndicate Expenses but Before Office Expenses, Taxes, Overhead & Return on Capital
3/23/36	Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., 4% due 2003	$9,292,000	$4,792,000	$186,840	(1)	$59,170	$59,170
4/3/36	N. Y. Central Railroad Co., Ser. due 1937-41	15,000,000	3,180,000	37,500	$14,775	18,750	17,478
4/6/36	N. Y. Central Railroad Co., 3½% due 1946	40,000,000	8,500,000	700,000	100,000	163,750	151,828
4/30/36	Chesapeake & Ohio R. R. 3½% due 1996	40,362,000	10,362,000	807,240	151,358	242,025	212,888
5/1/36	Cincinnati Union Terminal Co., 3½% due 1971	12,000,000	6,500,000	480,000	(1)	116,875	104,070
5/22/36	Chicago & Western Indiana R. R., 4½% due 1962	22,727,000	7,277,000	454,540	85,226	148,900	132,719
5/27/36	Standard Oil Co. (N. J.), 3% due 1961	30,000,000	9,000,000	600,000	112,500	191,250	168,858
6/18/36	Crane Co., 3½% due 1951	12,000,000	6,000,000	300,000	45,000	112,500	98,107
6/25/36	Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., 3½% due 2003 E	26,000,000	8,000,000	520,000	(1)	190,000	169,280
7/14/36	Chesapeake & Ohio Rwy. Co., Ser. due 1937-46	15,300,000	3,600,000	153,000	38,250	51,750	49,212
7/30/36	Chesapeake & Ohio Rwy. Co., 3½% due 1966	29,500,000	6,850,000	590,000	110,625	170,625	158,402
8/20/36	General Motors Acceptance Corp., 3% due 1946	50,000,000	7,500,000	750,000	187,500	234,375	226,800
8/20/36	General Motors Acceptance Corp., 3½% due 1951	50,000,000	7,500,000	875,000	187,500	243,750	236,175
1/14/37	Great Northern Rwy. Co., 3½% due 1967 I	50,000,000	8,000,000	1,000,000	(1)	257,500	239,925
2/15/37	Johns-Manville Corp., Common stock (no par)	19,290,300	3,000,000	150,000	72,301	79,696	74,840
6/24/37	Crane Co., 5% Cum. Conv. Pfd. Shares ($100 par)	10,290,300	4,820,075	385,608	72,301	160,868	153,749
6/23/37	Phelps Dodge Corp., Conv. 3½% Deb. due 1952	20,285,000	6,071,250	304,275	50,712	123,049	116,590
6/30/37	Standard Brands Inc., $4.50 Cum. Pfd. Stock (no par)	20,000,000	4,500,000	550,000	75,000	125,625	103,425
3/30/38	E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Pfd. Stk. $4.50 Cum.	50,000,000	7,000,000	1,250,000	187,500	266,250	242,974
6/2/38	Duluth Missabe & Iron Range Rwy. Co., 3½% due 1962	28,000,000	6,500,000	560,000	(1)	154,000	141,597
6/2/38	United States Steel Corp., 3½% due 1948	100,000,000	12,000,000	1,750,000	250,000	340,000	318,856
7/7/38	Standard Oil Co. (N. J.), Ser. notes due 1943-47	31,000,000	4,410,000	387,500	77,500	105,062	98,237
7/7/38	Standard Oil Co. (N. J.), 2½% due 1953	50,000,000	7,090,000	875,000	150,000	240,675	229,675
12/2/38	Continental Oil Co. (N. J.), 2½% due 1948 Conv. Deb.	21,071,600	3,371,456	316,074	52,679	104,902	100,263
12/2/38	Railway Express Agency, Inc., Ser. notes due 1939-48	18,000,000	8,000,000	160,000	(1)	46,000	33,296
4/3/39	Eastman Kodak Co., Common Stock (no par)	28,699,230	4,878,869	422,048	90,037	156,034	150,161
	TOTALS	788,517,130	166,802,650	14,563,623	2,113,463	4,097,318	3,786,565

¹ Issue subunderwritten.¹ In those issues in which there were co-managers, the amount of the issue underwritten was divided equally among the co-managers.

Source: Data supplied by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

EXHIBIT No. 1765

[From the files of J. P. Morgan & Co. Letter from Thomas S. Lamont to Lansing P. Reed]

(Handwritten:) United Corpn.

J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
January 2, 1929.

DEAR LANSING: At Harold Stanley's suggestion, I am enclosing a batch of advertising circulars regarding various investment trusts. He suggested that I call to your particular attention the Utility Equities Corporation and especially the first paragraph thereof which I have marked. In this connection the names of two other investment trusts occurred to me, the purposes of which are in a way similar to the one proposed, in that they make little if any pretense of diversification, and their purpose is obviously to insure continued control by the bankers (Lee, Higginson & Co.), and their clients. Those are the Swedish American Investment Corporation and the Solvay American Investment Corporation. In the circular advertising the sale of their fixed obligations to the public, no mention is made of diversification.

Sincerely yours,

LANSING P. REED, ESQ.,
15 Broad Street, New York City.

Enclosures

TSL/MK

(Initialed:) TSL. MK.

"EXHIBIT No. 1766-1", introduced on p. 12071, is on file with the Committee.

"EXHIBIT No. 1766-2", introduced on p. 12071, is on file with the Committee.

EXHIBIT No. 1766-3

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

	Approximate percentage of capital in J. P. Morgan & Co. ¹	Approximate percentage of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, preferred stock in comparison with total held by Morgan partners and their assignees ²		Approximate percentage of capital in J. P. Morgan & Co. ¹	Approximate percentage of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, preferred stock in comparison with total held by Morgan partners and their assignees ²
Charles Steele (deceased).....	36.6	34.8	H. P. Davison.....	1.2	-----
Thomas W. Lamont.....	34.2	34.0	Charles D. Dickey.....	.9	-----
J. P. Morgan.....	9.1	5.2	Thomas S. Lamont.....	.6	-----
R. C. Leffingwell.....	6.1	5.9	Edward Hopkinson, Jr.....	(³)	-----
F. D. Bartow.....	2.9	1.7	Arthur E. Newbold.....	(⁴)	-----
J. S. Morgan.....	2.2	4.9	Edward Starr, Jr.....	(⁴)	-----
A. M. Anderson.....	1.9	1.7	H. Gates Lloyd, Jr.....	(⁴)	1.9
George Whitney.....	1.0	-----

¹ As shown by the 1938 partnership income tax returns, 2% was paid to partners who died in that year.² i. e. 70,000 shares less 12,500 held by officers of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., as of 8/31/39. 8.8% is held by assignees of partners.³ Interest debit.⁴ Less than one tenth of one percent.⁵ Acquired under the will of Horatio G. Lloyd who had subscribed for approximately 4.8% of the original issue, and at the time received approximately 4.9% of the income of J. P. Morgan & Co.

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Relative participations in utility issues managed or co-managed by Morgan Stanley & Company Incorporated, 1935-1939 participations of the principal underwriters in relation to the participation of Morgan Stanley & Company Incorporated Schedule B: Issues other than those of Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc. and its subsidiaries.

Date of Offering Prospectus	Issue	Amount	Morgan Stanley & Co.	Bonbright & Co.	Schoellkopf, Hutton & Fomeroy, Inc.	Brown, Hartman & Co.	The First Boston Corporation	Smith, Barney & Co.	(E. B. Smith & Co.)	E. W. Clark & Co.	W. E. Hutton & Co.	Mellon Securities Corp.	Lehman Brothers	Lee, Higginson Corp.	Colm & Burr, Inc.	Kidder, Peabody & Co.	Glore, Forgan & Co.	Lazard Freres & Co.	Byth & Co., Inc.	Stone & Webster and Budgett, Inc.	White, Weld & Co.	J. & W. Seligman & Co.	Kuhn, Loeb & Co.
9/21/35	Commonwealth & Southern Corp.
3/19/36	Consumers Power Co. 3 3/4% of 1935	$19,172,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	30.6	35.0	26.2	17.5	9.0	17.9	17.5	9.0	9.0	8.7	9.0	9.0	9.0	9.0	9.0	9.0	9.0	35.8
12/23/36	Consumers Power Co. 3 3/4% of 1970	55,830,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9
12/23/36	Consumers Power Co. 3 3/4% of 1966	12,000,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	40.0	40.0	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2	33.2
1/19/38	Consumers Power Co. 3 3/4% of 1967	9,000,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	47.0	47.0	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9	33.9
12/23/38	Consumers Power Co. 3 3/4% of 1966	10,168,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	44.7	44.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7	28.7
11/20/35	Ohio Edison Co. 4% of 1945	43,963,500	100.0	100.0	0.0	34.4	28.7	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4
12/30/35	Ohio Edison Co. 3 3/4% of 1972	26,834,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	29.4	29.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4
9/23/37	Ohio Edison Co. 4% of 1947	8,500,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0	33.0
3/16/38	Central Illinois Light Co. 3 3/4% of 1966	7,178,500	100.0	100.0	0.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
7/23/38	Indianapolis Water Co.
11/2/36	Indianapolis Water Co. 3 3/4% of 1966	13,827,000	100.0	100.0	0.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0	100.0
6/24/36	Niagara Hudson Power Corp.
6/25/37	4 1/2% Pfd.	340,400	100.0	100.0	0.0	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9	22.9
6/25/37	Niagara Falls Power Co. 3 3/4% of 1966	32,493,000	100.0	50.0	50.0	50.0	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8
6/25/37	Buffalo Niagara Electric Corp. 3 3/4% of 1967	17,029,000	100.0	50.8	50.8	50.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8
6/25/37	Buffalo Niagara Electric Corp. Ser. Deb. 1938-32	3,420,000	100.0	50.8	50.8	50.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8	22.8
10/7/37	Central New York Power Corp. 3 3/4% of 1962	48,364,000	100.0	40.5	49.5	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7	29.7
10/14/35	Columbia Gas & Electric Corp.
8/26/36	Dryden Power & Light Co. 3 3/4% of 1960	20,000,000	100.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0	40.0
6/3/37	Chicoutimi Gas & Electric Co. 3 3/4% of 1966	35,000,000	100.0	30.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0
3/11/37	Chicoutimi Gas & Electric Co. 3 3/4% of 1967	10,000,000	100.0	30.2	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0
8/11/38	United Gas Improvement Co. Philadelphia Electric Co. 3 3/4% of 1967 Public Service Corp. of New Jersey Public Service Electric & Gas Co. 3 3/4% of 1968	130,000,000	100.0	22.2	5.6	41.7	33.3	41.7	16.7	8.3	33.3	8.3	19.5	8.3	22.2	4.2	16.7	22.2	8.3	8.3	8.3	8.3	35.9

1 Sole participant. Source: Compiled from the registration statements relating to the respective issues on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

"EXHIBIT No. 1767-2," introduced on p. 12096, is on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission

EXHIBIT No. 1768-1

[Letter from Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission, to J. P. Morgan & Co.]

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
23 Wall Street, New York, New York.

MARCH 6, 1939.

GENTLEMEN: Preliminary to certain conferences which we proposed to arrange with you in connection with a study of investment banking which the Commission has undertaken at the direction of the Temporary National Economic Committee, established pursuant to Public Resolution No. 113, 75th Congress, we should appreciate your preparing and submitting to us the following information:

1. The names of all corporations for which you act as (a) fiscal agent, (b) transfer agent, or (c) registrar; and the names of all Governments or instrumentalities thereof for which you act as fiscal agent.

2. A list of the corporations or other institutions (including eleemosynary institutions) of which any partner of your firm is a director or trustee, and the name in each case of such partner.

3. A list of all corporations or institutions (including eleemosynary institutions) of which an employee of your firm is a director or trustee, as a result of an interest of your firm in such corporations or institutions, together in each such case with the name of such employee.

4. A statement of any interest which your firm or any partner thereof may have, or may have had, directly or indirectly, in Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, through stock ownership, options, contracts, loans to directors or officers of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated or otherwise.

5. A brief description of any agreements which your firm or any partner thereof may have, or may have had, with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

6. Lists of the purchases which your firm, each partner therein (otherwise than through his interest in your firm), each personal holding company, if any, of such partner, and through you, all customers of your firm, respectively, made at or about the time of the initial public offering at the initial public offering price (or at the initial public offering price less a concession [of issues underwritten by Morgan Stanley & Co. inc.]¹).

7. A statement with respect to any finders' fee or other compensation (except for services as fiscal agent, transfer agent, or registrar) which your firm may have received after May 31, 1934 in respect of any security offering or proposed security offering by or through other security dealers.

It will aid us in the conduct of our study if we may have your reply by March 16, 1939.

Sincerely yours,

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,
Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study.

RVE:hfl

EXHIBIT No. 1768-2

[Letter from J. P. Morgan & Co. to Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Wall St. corner Broad, New York

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMITTEE, NEW YORK, March 15, 1939.
Washington, D. C.

(Attention of Mr. Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr.)

DEAR SIR: Referring to the request contained in your letter of March 6th, 1939, we have prepared and submit herewith the inclosed schedules.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Enclosures.

¹ Inserted in ink.

ITEM 1

Item 1-A. We have no general fiscal agency agreement with any corporation regarding financial policy, flotation of loans, etc. The following is a list of the corporations for which we perform one or more of the following services: Payment of Coupons; Sinking Fund Administration; Payment of Matured, Called or Converted Securities; Registration or Transfer of Bonds or Stocks; Payment of Dividends:

Alabama Great Southern Railroad Co.
Alleghany Corporation
American Refrigerator Transit Co.
American Telephone & Telegraph Co.
Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.
Atlantic & Yadkin Railway Co.
Baldwin Locomotive Works
Bigelow Sanford Carpet Co.
Boston & Maine Railroad Co.
Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc.
Buffalo General Electric Co.
Buffalo Niagara Electric Corp.
Canadea Power Corp.
J. I. Case Company
J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co.
Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp.
Central New York Power Corp.
Chattanooga Station Company.
Chesapeake Corporation
Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co.
Chicago City and Connecting Railways.
Chicago Great Western Railroad Co.
Chicago Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Co.
Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co.
Cincinnati Inter-Terminal Railroad Co.
Cincinnati New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway Co.
Cincinnati Union Terminal Co.
Cleveland Union Terminals Co.
Consolidated Edison Co. of New York.
Continental Oil Co. of Delaware.
Copper River & Northwestern Railway Co.
Crane Co.
Dayton Power & Light Co.
Detroit & Mackinac Railway Co.
Duluth Missabe & Iron Range Railway Co.
Erie Railroad Company
Federated Department Stores, Inc.
Florida East Coast Railway Co.
Framerican Industrial Development Corp.
General Motors Acceptance Corp.
General Steel Castings Corp.
Glen Falls Insurance Co.
Hocking Valley Railway Co.
Household Finance Corp.
Humble Oil & Refining Co.
Illinois Bell Telephone Co.
Indianapolis Water Co.
Trustees of International Great Northern Railroad.
International Mercantile Marine Co.
International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.
Johns Manville Corp.
Kansas City Terminal Railway Co.
Kentucky & Indiana Terminal Railroad Co.
Lehigh Valley Coal Corp.
Lehigh Valley Railroad Co.
Trustees of Long Dock Co.
Louisville & Jeffersonville Bridge Co.
Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co.
Missouri-Illinois Railroad Co.

Trustees of Missouri-Pacific Railroad Co.
Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co.
Morgan Building Corp.
New Orleans & Northeastern Railroad Co.
New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Co.
New York Central Railroad Co.
New York & Queens Electric Light & Power Co.
Trustees of New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co.
New York Edison Co.
New York Steam Corp.
Niagara Falls Power Co.
Niagara Hudson Power Corp.
Niagara Share Corp. of Maryland
Northern Pacific Railway Co.
Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co.
Pere Marquette Railway Co.
Phelps Dodge Corporation
Philadelphia Electric Power Co.
Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Co.
Philadelphia Electric Co.
Pittston Co.
Trustees of Postal Telegraph & Cable Corp.
Procter & Gamble Co.
Public Service Electric & Gas Co.
Pullman Incorporated
Reading Co.
St. Louis Bridge Co.
St. Paul Union Depot Co.
Scott Paper Co.
Scovill Manufacturing Co.
Solvay American Corp.
Southern Improvement Co.
Southern Railway Co.
Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.
Standard Brands Incorporated
Standard Oil Co., Inc. in New Jersey
Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis
Texas & Pacific Railway Co.
Texas Pacific-Missouri Pacific Terminal Railroad of New Orleans
Tunnel Railroad of St. Louis
United Corporation
United Gas Improvement Co.
United States & Hayti Telegraph & Cable Co.
United States Steel Corp.
Westchester Lighting Co.
Western Pocahontas Corp.
Yonkers Electric Light & Power Co.
Compagnie des Chemins de Fer a Midi
Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Paris a Orleans
FIAT
Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Co. Ltd.
Italian Credit Consortium for Public Works
Nord Railway Co.
Rhokana Corporation Ltd.
Societa Italiana Pirelli
Baldwin Locomotive Works
Barber Asphalt Corp.
Beaver Coal Corp.
Franklin County Coal Corp.
Huntingdon & Broad Top Mountain Railroad & Coal Co.
Keystone Watch Case Corp.
Lehigh Valley Coal Corp. and subsidiaries
Markle Corporation
Niagara Share Corp. of Maryland
Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Corp. and subsidiaries
Continental Passenger Railway Co.
Philadelphia Traction Co. and subsidiaries

Philadelphia Steel & Wire Corp.
 Phoenix Iron Co.
 Public Service Electric & Gas Co.
 Reading Co.
 Scott Paper Co.

Item 1-B. We have no general fiscal agency agreement with any government or instrumentalities thereof regarding financial policy, flotation of loans, etc. The following is a list of governments (or trustees for governmental loans) for which we perform one or more of the following services: Payment of Coupons; Sinking Fund Administration; Payment of Matured, Called or Converted Securities; Registration of Bonds.

Argentine Government—Government of Argentine Nation
 Commonwealth of Australia
 Trustees of the Austrian Government External Loans
 Kingdom of Belgium
 Republic of Cuba
 French Government
 Trustees of the German Government External Loans
 Greek Government (5% Loan of 1914)
 Imperial Chinese Government (Hukuang Rys.)
 Republic of China
 Kingdom of Italy
 Province of Manitoba
 City of Rome
 Swiss Confederation
 United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland
 State of Vermont
 Township of Haverford, Pa.

ITEM 2

MARCH 16, 1939.

Mr. J. P. Morgan:

Associated Parishes of the Episcopal Church
 Church Hymnal Corporation
 Church Life Insurance Corporation
 Church Pension Fund
 Church Properties Fire Insurance Company
 Cooper Union
 Discount Corporation
 Episcopal Fund of the Diocese of New York, Trustees of—
 Flintlock Realty Company
 John and Mary R. Markle Foundation
 Metropolitan Museum of Art
 Metropolitan Opera & Real Estate Company
 Morgan Grenfell & Co., Limited
 Morgan Memorial Park, Glen Cove, N. Y.
 New York Hospital—Cornell Medical College Ass'n.
 New York Public Library
 Parish Securities Corporation
 Pierpont Morgan Library
 Pullman Company
 Pullman Incorporated
 St. John's Church of Lattingtown, L. I., N. Y.
 United States Steel Corporation

Mr. Charles Steele:

Metropolitan Opera & Real Estate Company

Mr. Thomas W. Lamont:

The Academy of Political Science
 American School of Classical Studies at Athens
 Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company
 The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching
 Guaranty Trust Company of New York
 Institute of International Education
 International Agricultural Corporation

¹ A revised schedule supplying this information as of October 26, 1939, appears infra, p. 12325.

International Committee of Bankers on Mexico
 Italy-America Society
 Lamont, Corliss and Company
 The John and Mary R. Markle Foundation
 Metropolitan Museum of Art
 Phillips Exeter Academy
 Pilgrims of the United States
 St. Luke's International Medical Center American Council
 Santa Fe Pacific Railroad Company
 Southwestern Construction Company
 United States Steel Corporation

Mr. Junius S. Morgan:

The American Museum of Natural History
 American Red Cross, New York Chapter
 The Chapin School, Ltd.
 Flintlock Realty Co.
 Frick Collection, The
 General Motors Corporation
 Greater New York Fund, Inc., The
 Harvard College
 Harvard Fund Council
 John and Mary R. Markle Foundation
 Morgan Memorial Park
 New York Public Library
 New York Trade School
 Pierpont Morgan Library
 Police Relief Association of Nassau County
 Seamen's Church Institute of New York

Mr. George Whitney:

Alaska Development & Mineral Company
 Alaska Steamship Company
 Bank for Savings
 Bee Rock Corporation
 Braden Copper Company
 Consolidated Edison Company of New York
 Continental Oil Company
 Corners Corporation, The
 Doctors Hospital
 General Motors Corporation
 Guaranty Trust Company of New York
 Johns-Manville Corporation
 Kennecott Copper Corporation
 Nassau Hospital
 New York Central Railroad
 Pullman Company
 Pullman, Incorporated
 Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association
 Texas Gulf Sulphur
 West Shore Railroad Company

Mr. R. C. Leffingwell:

Carnegie Corporation of New York
 Charity Organization Society
 Council on Foreign Relations, Inc.
 International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation
 North British & Mercantile Insurance Company
 Northern Pacific Railway Company
 Vassar College

Mr. F. D. Bartow:

American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation
 Discount Corporation
 General Electric Company
 Hospital Council of Greater New York
 Greater New York Fund Inc.
 International General Electric Company
 Johns-Manville Corporation
 Roosevelt Hospital
 United Hospital Fund of New York

- Mr. A. M. Anderson:
 International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation
 Japan Society
 New York Botanical Garden
 New York Trust Company
 Northern Pacific Railway Company
 United States Guarantee Company
- Mr. Thomas S. Lamont:
 Beech Corporation
 Charity Organization Society, The
 Continental Oil Company
 Edgewater Creche
 Phelps Dodge Corporation
 Piermont Corporation
 Texas Gulf Sulphur Company
- Mr. H. P. Davison:
 American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company
 American Museum of Natural History
 Boys' Club of New York, The
 Car & General Insurance Corp. Ltd. (U. S. Branch)
 856 Fifth Avenue Corporation
 Montgomery Ward & Co.
 New York Trust Company
 Peacock Corporation
 Peacock Point Corporation
 Provident Fire Insurance Company
 Royal Exchange Assurance of London (U. S. Branch)
 Standard Brands Incorporated
 State Assurance Company
- Mr. Edward Hopkinson, Jr.:
 The Baldwin Locomotive Works and certain of its subsidiaries
 Frankford & Southwark Philadelphia City Passenger Railroad Company
 The Free Library of Philadelphia
 Insurance Company of North America and certain of its subsidiaries
 Keystone Watch Case Corporation and subsidiary
 John D. Lankenau Fund (Lankenau Hospital)
 Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company.
 Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind
 Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce
 Philadelphia Electric Company
 The Philadelphia Saving Fund Society
 Reading Company
 Second & Third Street Passenger Railway Company
 University of Pennsylvania
 Wistar Institute Fund
- Mr. Charles D. Dickey:
 Beaver Coal Corporation
 Estate of Bradish Johnson Inc.
 Fire Association of Philadelphia and its Associated Companies
 General Steel Castings Corporation
 Northeast Harbor Water Company (Northeast Harbor, Maine)
 Philadelphia Contributionship for Insuring Houses from Loss by Fire
 St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire
 Sharp & Dohme, Incorporated
 Stonega Coke & Coal Company
 Virginia Coal & Iron Company
 Western Saving Fund Society of Philadelphia
- Mr. Henry C. Alexander:
 Legal Aid Society
- Mr. W. A. Mitchell:
 Associated Dry Goods Corporation
 Bankers Association for Foreign Trade
 Buxton School
 Hahne & Company, Inc.

ITEM 3

- Mr. Arthur E. Newbold, Jr. :
 Beaver Coal Corporation
 Markle Corporation and certain of its subsidiaries
 Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company
 Transportation Mutual Insurance Company
- Mr. H. Gates Lloyd, Jr. :
 Barber Asphalt Corporation
 Charles E. Hires Company
 1435 Walnut Street Corporation
 Lehigh Valley Coal Corporation and its subsidiaries
 Markle Corporation and subsidiaries
- Mr. Edward Starr, Jr. :
 DeBardeleben Coal Corporation
 1435 Walnut Street Corporation
 Franklin County Coal Corporation
 Saving Fund Society of Germantown and It's Vicinity
 Sharp & Dohme, Inc.
- Mr. Thomas S. Gates, Jr. :
 Scott Paper Company, Chester, Pa.
- Mr. Alfred M. Gray :
 1435 Walnut Street Corporation
- Mr. Orlando C. Maiden :
 1435 Walnut Street Corporation
- Mr. D. Graham Craig :
 1435 Walnut Street Corporation
- Mr. Wm. F. Machold :
 Philadelphia Steel & Wire Company
- Mr. Leonhard A. Keyes :
 Morgan Building Corporation
- Mr. George C. Henckel :
 Morgan Building Corporation
- Mr. E. E. Thomas :
 Morgan Building Corporation
- Mr. William L. Carson :
 Morgan Building Corporation
- Mr. Charles A. Fulcher :
 Morgan Building Corporation

ITEM 4

The essential facts were stated in public announcements upon the formation of Morgan Stanley & Co. September 6, 1935. There has been no material change. These public statements were as follows :

"For release morning newspapers September 6, 1935—Announcement of Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc."

"A group of partners and staff members of J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York and Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia, formerly active in the securities business of the firms, have withdrawn and are forming a new organization for the underwriting and wholesaling of investment securities, to be known as Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. Messrs. Harold Stanley, William Ewing, and Henry S. Morgan of J. P. Morgan & Co., Messrs. Perry E. Hall and Edward H. York, Jr. of Drexel & Co., and Messrs. John M. Young and A. N. Jones, heretofore managers of the Bond and Statistical Departments of J. P. Morgan & Co., are to be the executive officers of the new corporation. Mr. Stanley will be the President of the new corporation."

"The new securities corporation will have a paid in capital of $7,500,000 divided into common and preferred stock. The common shares, which have sole voting rights in the election of the directorate, are to be held exclusively by the officers and staff of the corporation. The preferred shares will be held by members of this group and by certain individual partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. The corporation will open its offices for business at No. 2 Wall Street, New York City, on September 16th next."

"For release morning newspapers September 6, 1935—Statement of J. P. Morgan & Co."

"We have to announce with regret the resignations of the following members of J. P. Morgan & Co. and of Drexel & Co. who, with other valued members of our staffs, have, under the name of Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc., undertaken to organize and carry on a securities business of the character formerly handled by our firms: Harold Stanley, William Ewing, Henry S. Morgan, Perry E. Hall, Edward H. York, Jr."

"The withdrawal of these partners and associates, and their formation of a separate and independent securities company, is, we consider, a logical step following upon our firm's decision a year ago, to carry on our banking business rather than the securities business; thus acting in accordance with the banking and securities provisions of the Banking Act of 1933, recently confirmed by the Banking Act of 1935, just enacted. We believe that the members of the new organization will be able, with the ample experience which they have heretofore had, to serve usefully the investment interests of the community."

"The firms of J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. will continue as heretofore to carry on their business as private bankers."

J. P. Morgan & Co. have no interest whatever in Morgan Stanley & Co. whether through stock ownership, options, contracts, loans to directors or officers or otherwise.

No partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. own or have owned common stock in Morgan Stanley & Co. The following partners in J. P. Morgan & Co. individually are owners or beneficially interested in 55,700 shares in the aggregate of preferred stock in Morgan Stanley & Co.: Arthur M. Anderson, Francis D. Bartow, Thomas S. Lamont, Thomas W. Lamont, R. C. Leffingwell, J. P. Morgan, J. S. Morgan and Charles Steele.

J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont, H. G. Lloyd (deceased) and George Whitney were formerly owners of additional amounts of said preferred stock now owned by officers and directors of Morgan Stanley & Co. and certain estates and trusts.

Neither J. P. Morgan & Co. nor any partners have any loans to Morgan Stanley & Co. or to any of the officers or directors thereof. Two directors and officers of Morgan Stanley & Co., Harold Stanley and Edward H. York, Jr., who were partners in former firms of J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. prior to the formation of Morgan Stanley & Co., have at present debit balances in said former firms which have been dissolved and are in liquidation, in the assets of which former firms some of the present partners, and partners who resigned and estates of deceased partners, but not the present firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., are interested; such debit balances being subject to ultimate ascertainment and settlement on the completion of such liquidation.

ITEM 5

None.

ITEM 6
Morgan Stanley & Co. Bond Issues

Total Amount Issued and Amount Underwritten	Issue	Date of Prospectus	Public Offering Price	Principal Amount of Bonds Purchased by J. P. Morgan & Co.				Prices at which Purchased to Clients	Prices at which offered to Clients	Number of Dealers and Brokers from whom Purchased	Number of Clients for whom Purchased
				For Firm Account	For Partners' Own Account	For Partners' Holding Cos.	As Agents for Clients
19,172,000	Consumers Power Co. 1st Lien and Unflying Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1935, due May 1, 1935.	Sept. 21, 1935	90				$220,000	99	99	7	4
20,000,000	Dayton Power & Light Co. 1st & Refunding Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series due Oct. 1, 1940.	Oct. 14, 1935	99½				$30,000	99	99+2.50	1	1
145,000,000	Illinois Bell Telephone Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "B", due Oct. 1, 1970.	Oct. 16, 1935	102½				472,000	99½	99½	27	15
43,983,500	Ohio Edison Co. 1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 4% Series of 1935, due Nov. 1, 1965.	Nov. 20, 1935	100½				1,485,000	102½	102½	39	17
25,000,000	New York & Queens Electric Light & Power Co. 1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1935, due Nov. 1, 1965.	Nov. 25, 1935	102				730,000	100½	100½	32	14
145,000,000	Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "B", due Dec. 1, 1964.	Dec. 12, 1935	102½				950,000	102	102	39	7
53,000,000	New York Edison Co. Inc. 1st Lien & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "D", due Oct. 1, 1965.	Feb. 27, 1936	100				1,039,000	102½	102½	41	11
7,178,500	Central Illinois Light Co. 1st & Cons. Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series due Apr. 1, 1966.	Mar. 16, 1936	104				1,877,000	100	100	52	18
53,830,000	Consumers Power Co. 1st Mtge. Bonds 3½% Series of 1936, due Nov. 1, 1970.	Mar. 10, 1936	103½				406,000	104	104	16	9
9,292,000	Louisville & Nashville R. R. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 4% Bonds Series "D", due Apr. 1, 2003.	Mar. 10, 1936	100				1,140,000	103½	103½	44	12
15,000,000	New York Central R. R. Secured Serial Notes Issue of 1930 due $3,000,000 annually on Apr. 1, 1937 to Apr. 1, 1941 incl. (rates of interest from 1½% to 2.66%)	Mar. 23, 1936	100				60,000	100	100	7	1
40,000,000	New York Central R. R. 10-Yr. 3½% Secured Sinking Fund Bonds due Apr. 1, 1946.	(3)	100	$4,000,000		None		100
35,000,000	Consolidated Edison Co. N. Y. Inc. 10-Yr. 3½% Deb. 20-Yr. 3½% Deb. Series due Apr. 1, 1946.	Apr. 6, 1936	98				330,000	98	98	24	6
35,000,000	Consolidated Edison Co. N. Y. Inc. 10-Yr. 3½% Deb. 20-Yr. 3½% Deb. Series due Apr. 1, 1946.	Apr. 9, 1936	101				1,077,000	101	101	46	15
30,000,000	Peoples Gas & Light Co. Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "B", due Apr. 1, 1966.	Apr. 9, 1936	99½				640,000	99½	99½	31	7
40,302,000	Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "D", due May 1, 1971.	Apr. 16, 1936	101½				1,305,000	101½	101½	49	16
24,000,000	Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "D", due May 1, 1971.	Apr. 30, 1936	99½				280,000	99½	99½	28	5
	Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Ref. & Imp. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "D", due May 1, 1971.	May 1, 1936	102½				1,828,000	102½	102½	44	17

22,727,000	Chicago & Western Ind. R. R. 1st & Ref. Mgtg. 4½% Series "D" Sinking Fund Bonds, due Sept. 1, 1902.	May 22, 1936	102	319,000	102	102	32	6
55,000,000	Brooklyn Edison Co. Inc. Cons. Mgtg. 3¼% Bonds Series of 1936 due May 15, 1936.	May 25, 1936	101½	1,183,000	101½	101½	53	12
485,000,000 (underwritten)	Standard Oil Co. (Inc. in N. J.) 25-Yr. 3% Deb. due June 1, 1961.	May 27, 1936	98	1,374,000	98	98	45	10
32,483,000	Crane Company 15-Yr. 3½% Sinking Fund Deb. due June 1, 1961.	June 18, 1936	98½	360,000	98½	98½	22	3
26,000,000	Niagara Falls Power Co. 1st & Ref. 3½% Bonds Series of 1936 due Mar. 1, 1960.	June 24, 1936	104	1,140,000	104	104	57	19
26,000,000	Louisville & Nashville R. R. 1st & Ref. Mgtg. 3¾% Bonds Series "E", Apr. 1, 2003.	June 25, 1936	98	50,000	98	98	6	1
15,300,000	Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. Serial Notes Issue of 1930, Maturing 1,500,000 annually on July 15, 1937 to July 15, 1946 Incl. (rates of interest from 4½% to 2½%) Indianapolis Water Co. 1st Mgtg. 3½% Bonds Series due July 1, 1960.	July 14, 1936	100	1,273,000	100	100	41	1
13,827,000	New York Edison Co. 1st Lien & Ref. Mgtg. 3¼% Bonds Series "B", due Apr. 1, 1960.	July 23, 1936	100	424,000	100	100	28	9
30,000,000	Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Ref. & Imp. Mgtg. 3½% Bonds Series "E", due Aug. 1, 1960.	July 24, 1936	102	41,000	102	102	5	1
29,500,000	General Motors Acceptance Corp.: 10-Yr. 3% Series due Aug. 1, 1946. 15-Yr. 3¼% Series due Aug. 1, 1951. Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. 1st Mgtg. 3¼% Bonds Series due Aug. 1, 1960.	July 30, 1936	99½	200,000	99½	99½	16	2
50,000,000	American Tel. & Tel. Co. 25-Yr. 3¼% Deb. due Oct. 1, 1961.	Aug. 20, 1936	101½	2,532,000	101½	101½	56	32
50,000,000	Argentine Republic Sinking Fund External Conversion Loan 4½% Bonds due Nov. 15, 1971.	Aug. 20, 1936	101½	2,354,000	101½	101½	51	21
35,000,000	American Tel. & Tel. Co. 30-Yr. 3¼% Deb. due Dec. 1, 1960.	Aug. 26, 1936	102	916,000	102	102	45	6
1175,000,000	Consumers Power Co. 1st Mgtg. 3¼% Bonds due Nov. 1, 1960.	Oct. 15, 1936	101	5,069,000	101	101	72	61
23,500,000	Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. Ref. Mgtg. 3¼% Bonds "C" due Jan. 1, 1972.	Nov. 19, 1936	92½	320,000	92½	92½	33	15
10 160,000,000	Ohio Edison Co. 1st Mgtg. 3¼% Bonds Series of 1937 due Jan. 1, 1967.	Dec. 2, 1936	102	4,974,000	102	102	70	44
12,000,000	Great Northern Ry. Gen'l Mgtg. 3¼% Bonds Series "A", due Jan. 1, 1967.	Dec. 3, 1936	102½	215,000	102½	102½	13	3
25,000,000	Gov't of the Dominion of Canada 7-Yr. 2¼% Bonds due Jan. 15, 1944.	Dec. 17, 1936	105	448,000	105	105	33	13
26,894,000	Gov't of the Dominion of Canada 30-Yr. 3% Bonds due Jan. 15, 1967.	Dec. 30, 1936	103	145,000	103	103	15	3
50,000,000	Argentine Republic S. F. Ext'l Conv. Loan 4% Bonds due Feb. 16, 1972.	Jan. 14, 1937	97½	152,000	97½	97½	19	4
30,000,000	Philadelphia Electric Co. 1st & Ref. Mgtg. 3½% Bonds Series due Mar. 1, 1967.	Jan. 21, 1937	99½	815,000	99½	99½	47	6
55,000,000		Jan. 21, 1937	98	195,000	98	98	23	3
70,000,000		Feb. 10, 1937	91	1,972,000	91	91	29	17
150,000,000		Mar. 11, 1937	102½	2,218,000	102½	102½	62	19

See footnotes at end of table.

Morgan Stanley & Co. Bond Issues—Continued

Total Amount Issued and underwritten	Issue	Date of Prospectus	Public Offering Price	Principal Amount of Bonds Purchased by J. P. Morgan & Co.				Prices at which purchased to Clients	Prices at which offered to Clients	Number of Dealers and Brokers from whom purchased	Number of Clients for whom purchased
				For Firm Account	For Partners' Own Account	For Partners' Holding Cos.	As Agents for Clients
35,000,000	Argentine Republic S. F. Ext'l Conv. Loan 4% Bonds due April 15, 1972	Apr. 22, 1937	89½		None
45,000,000	Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. 25-Yr 3½% Debs. due April 1, 1932	May 5, 1937	96½				823,000	96½	96½	32	8
10,000,000	Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co. 1st Mtge 3½% Bonds Series due June 1, 1937	June 3, 1937	102½				159,000	102½	102½	23	5
20,285,000	Phelps Dodge Corp. Conv. 3½% Deb. due June 15, 1932	June 1, 1937	100		None
25,000,000	New York Telephone Co. Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "B" due July 1, 1937	June 24, 1937	110				275,000	100	100	22	2
17,028,000	Buffalo, Niagara Electric Corp. Gen'l & Ref. Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series "C" due June 1, 1937	June 25, 1937	102				206,000	102	102	17	1
1,140,000	Buffalo, Niagara Electric Corp. Serial Debentures: 2% Series "A" due June 1, 1938/1942	June 25, 1937	119 9/16				662,000	119 9/16	119 9/16	26	6
1,140,000	3% Series "B" due June 1, 1943/1947	June 25, 1937	119 9/16					119 9/16	119 9/16
1,140,000	3½% Series "C" due June 1, 1948/1952	June 25, 1937	119 9/16					119 9/16	119 9/16
25,000,000	Westchester Lighting Co. Gen'l Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series due July 1, 1937	July 22, 1937	102½			None
8,500,000	Ohio Edison Co. 1st Mtge. Bonds 4% due Sept. 1, 1937	Sept. 29, 1937	100½				10,000	100½	100½	1	1
48,364,000	Central New York Power Corp. Gen'l Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series due Oct. 1, 1932	Oct. 7, 1937	99				211,000	99	99	34	4
30,000,000	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. Inc. 20-Year 3½% Deb. Series due Jan. 1, 1938	Jan. 13, 1938	101½				297,000	101½	101½	31	5
9,000,000	Consumers Power Co. 1st Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series of 1937 due Nov. 1, 1937	Jan. 19, 1938	102				83,000	102	102	14	2
80,000,000	Duluth, Missabe & Iron Range Ry. 1st Mtge. 3½% Bonds due Oct. 1, 1932	Mar. 30, 1938	98				328,000	98	98	27	6
50,000,000	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. Inc. 10-Year 3½% Deb. due April 1, 1948	Apr. 21, 1938	101½				290,000	101½	101½	24	4
100,000,000	United States Steel Corp. 10-Year 3½% Deb. due June 1, 1948	June 2, 1938	100				5,559,000	100	100	87	57
80,000,000	Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. 30-Year 3½% Deb. due June 1, 1938	June 9, 1938	102				515,000	102	102	32	10
50,000,000	Standard Oil Co. (Inc. in N. Y.) 15-Yr. 3½% Deb. due July 1, 1933	July 7, 1938	99				1,191,000	99	99	53	19
24,000,000	Standard Oil Co. (Inc. in N. Y.) Serial Notes maturing 7,000,000 Annually from July 1, 1943 to 1947 Inclusive (Rates of Int. from 1½% to 3½%)	July 7, 1938	100				12,484,000	100	100	69	27

17 30,000,000	Southwestern Bell Tel. Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge 3% Bonds Series "C", due July 1, 1938.	July 14, 1938	100	270,000	100	100	24	8
10,000,000	Public Service Electric & Gas Co. 1st & Ref. Mtge. 3% Bonds due July 1, 1938.	Aug. 11, 1938	104½	402,000	104½	104½	42	4
27,982,000	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mtge. 3½% Bonds due July 1, 1938.	Aug. 12, 1938	100	135,000	100	100	17	3
25,000,000	Argentine Republic 10-Year S. F. Extl. Loan 4½% Bonds due Nov. 1, 1948.	Nov. 3, 1938	95½	263,000	95½	95½	35	13
40,000,000	Gov't. of the Dominion of Canada 30-year 3% Bonds due Nov. 15, 1938.	Nov. 17, 1938	97½	808,000	97½	97½	47	7
21,071,600	Continental Oil Co. 10-Year 2½% Conv. Deb. due Dec. 15, 1948.	Dec. 2, 1938	" 100	None
16,000,000	Railway Express Agency Inc. Serial Notes Series "A", maturing $800,000. each June 1 & Dec. 1 from June 1, 1939 to Dec. 1, 1948 inclusive (Rates of Int. from ¾% to 2½% inclusive)	Dec. 22, 1938	100	1,353,000	100	100	52	14
10,168,000	Consumers Power Co. 1st Mtge. 3½% Bonds Series of 1936 (Add'l. Issue) due Nov. 1, 1936.	Dec. 23, 1938	104½	29,000	104½	104½	6	2

1 43,700,000 underwritten.

2 44,000,000 underwritten.

3 No prospectus, indenture dated Apr. 1, 1936.

4 This issue sold privately by M. S. & Co. J. P. M. & Co. and other banks purchased these notes.

5 Equal maturities.

6 30,000 underwritten.

7 Note due July 15, 1937, July 15, 1938, and July 15, 1939.

8 Note due July 15, 1946.

9 150,000,000 underwritten.
 10 140,000,000 underwritten.
 11 42,500,000 underwritten.
 12 Offered by company to stockholders.
 13 Average.
 14 28,000,000 underwritten.
 15 27,750,000 underwritten.
 16 31,000,000 underwritten.
 17 28,900,000 underwritten.

Morgan Stanley & Co. Stock Issues

Total Amount Issued and Amount underwritten	Issue	Date of Prospectus	Public Offering Price	Amount of Shares purchased by J. P. Morgan & Co.				Prices at which purchased to Clients	Number of Dealers and Brokers from whom purchased	Number of Clients for whom purchased
				For Firm Account	For Partners' Own Account	For Partners' Holding Cos.	As Agents for Clients
500,000 1.....	E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. $4.50 Cum. pfd. Stock...	June 30, 1937	100	None	None	None	5,782	100	48	35
200,000 1.....	Standard Brands Inc. $4.50 Cum. pfd. Stock.....	June 23, 1937	95	None	None	None	12,830	95	36	16

1 Shares.

None.

ITEM 7

EXHIBIT NO. 1769

[Prepared by J. P. Morgan & Co.]

Date	Title	Amount of Issue	Original Group		Intermediates Group		Syndicate & Selling Group		Our Total Profit	Participation Received from—
			Amount of Our Interest	Our Profit	Amount of Our Interest	Our Profit	Amount of Our Interest	Our Profit
Dec. 10, 1919	Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. 5-Yr. 7% Conv. Notes due Feb. 1, 1925.	$25,000,000	$4,000,000	$20,000.00	-----	-----	$1,000,000	$11,019.95	$31,019.95	National City Co.
Dec. 4, 1920	Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. 8% sec. notes due Dec. 1, 1921.	25,000,000	4,000,000	20,000.00	-----	-----	860,000	9,521.01	29,521.01	" "
July 27, 1921	Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc. Gen. Mfge. 7% Series "P" due Dec. 1, 1940.	3,000,000	300,000	5,250.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	5,250.00	National City Co.
Nov. 19, 1921	Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. 1-Yr. 7% sec. Notes.	20,000,000	3,200,000	22,705.82	-----	-----	-----	-----	22,705.82	National City Co.
Nov. 28, 1921	New York Edison Co. 1st Lien & Ref. Mfge. Series "A" 6½% due Oct. 1, 1941.	30,000,000	5,000,000	46,875.00	-----	-----	28,000	385.00	47,260.00	" "
May 26, 1922	Brooklyn Union Gas Co. 1st Lien & Ref. Series "A" 6% due May 1, 1947.	6,000,000	1,000,000	10,000.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	10,000.00	" "
June 24, 1922	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mfge. Series "A" 6% due 1947.	5,000,000	1,250,000	35,734.14	-----	-----	-----	-----	35,734.14	" "
Nov. 3, 1924	Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc., Gen. Mfge. 5% Series "A" due January 1, 1949.	25,000,000	1,875,000	23,428.93	-----	-----	-----	-----	23,428.93	" "
Feb. 6, 1925	Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. 20-Yr. 5½% Debts. due Feb. 1, 1945.	50,000,000	9,521,000	76,168.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	76,168.00	" "
Feb. 6, 1925	New York Edison Co. 1st Lien & Ref. Mfge. Series "B" 5½% due Oct. 1, 1944.	30,000,000	5,500,000	46,750.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	46,750.00	" "
Apr. 20, 1926	New York Edison Corp. 1st Mfge. 5% Bonds due May 1, 1931.	2,500,000	625,000	7,500.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	7,500.00	" "
Jan. 19, 1927	Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. 5% cum. P'd. Bonds due May 1, 1931.	1,200,000	150,000	76,000.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	75,000.00	" "
Feb. 15, 1927	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mfge. 5% Bonds due May 1, 1931.	3,000,000	750,000	9,812.50	-----	-----	-----	-----	9,812.50	" "
Apr. 5, 1927	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mfge. 5% Bonds due May 1, 1931.	1,000,000	250,000	2,812.50	-----	-----	-----	-----	2,812.50	" "
June 25, 1927	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mfge. 5% Bonds due May 1, 1931.	1,500,000	375,000	8,000.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	8,000.00	" "
Apr. 28, 1928	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mfge. 5% Bonds due May 1, 1931.	4,000,000	1,000,000	1,750.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	1,750.00	" "
Mar. 21, 1929	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mfge. 5% Bonds due May 1, 1931.	2,000,000	500,000	6,875.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	6,875.00	" "
May 23, 1930	Brooklyn Union Gas Co. 20-Yr. 5% Debts. due June 1, 1951.	18,000,000	1,833,333	96,900.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	111,900.00	" "
May 27, 1931	Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. 20-Yr. 4¼% Debts. due June 1, 1951.	50,000,000	11,400,000	96,900.00	-----	-----	1,200,000	15,000.00	111,900.00	" "

Jan. 28, 1932	New York Edison Co. 1st Lien & Ref. Mtge. Series "C," 5% due Oct. 1, 1951.	25,000,000	4,750,000	28,500.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	28,500.00	"
Feb. 17, 1932	Brooklyn Edison Co. Inc. Gen. Mtge. 5% Series "E," due Nov. 1, 1952.	25,000,000	4,750,000	28,500.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	28,500.00	"
Mar. 16, 1932	New York Steam Corp. 1st Mtge. 5% Bonds due Nov. 1, 1956.	8,700,000	1,707,375	5,075.81	1,365,900	$6,829.50	-----	-----	-----	12,805.31	"
July 13, 1932	Brooklyn Union Gas Co. 1st Lien & Ref. Series "B," 5% due May 1, 1957.	10,000,000	1,166,750	3,612.92	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	3,612.92	"
July 15, 1932	Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. 25-year. 5% Debts. due July 15, 1957.	30,000,000	5,887,500	32,970.00	-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	32,970.00	"
	Total.....	408,700,000 1,200,000	70,640,958 150,000	615,120.62	1,365,900	6,829.50	3,188,000	37,600.96	-----	659,551.08

1 Shares.

EXHIBIT NO. 1770

Participations of Blyth & Co., Inc., in issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., Sept. 16, 1935, to June 30, 1939

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Date of Offering Prospectus	Issue	Amount of Issues Managed by Mor- gan Stanley & Co., Inc. in which Blyth & Co., Inc. Was a Participant	Amount of Blyth & Co., Inc. Par- ticipation	Percent of Blyth & Co., Inc. Par- ticipation	Blyth & Co., Inc. Prof- its (Before Overhead, etc.)
11/20/35	Ohio Edison Co. 4s of 1965	(000)	(000)		$27,272
11/25/35	New York & Queens Elec. Lgt. & Pwr. Co. 3 1/2s of 1965	43,964	$2,000	4.5	44,988
	Sub-total (1935)	$68,964	$8,000	8.7	$72,280
2/27/36	New York Edison Co. Inc. 3 1/4s of 1965	55,000	5,000	9.1	98,072
3/10/36	Consumers Power Co. 3 1/2s of 1970	27,915	500	1.8	7,579
4/6/36	New York Central R. Co. 3 1/4s of 1946	40,000	2,000	5.0	19,395
4/9/36	New York Central R. Co. Serial Notes	15,000	750	5.0	812
4/9/36	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3 1/2s of 1946	33,000	3,000	8.0	35,421
4/9/36	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3 1/2s of 1956	33,000	3,000	8.0	37,781
4/16/36	Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/2s of 1966	30,000	2,300	7.7	25,530
4/30/36	C. & O. Ry. Co. 3 1/2s of 1966	40,362	2,500	6.2	25,734
5/1/36	Cincinnati Union Terminal 3 1/2s Series D	12,000	500	4.2	5,378
5/27/36	Brooklyn Edison Co. Inc. 3 1/4 Series of 1936	55,000	5,000	9.1	57,684
6/27/36	Standard Oil Co. (N. Y.) 3s of 1965	30,000	2,000	6.7	19,563
6/28/36	Standard Oil Co. (N. Y.) 3s of 1965	30,000	2,000	6.7	15,914
7/15/36	C. & O. Ry. Co. Serial Notes of 1937-46	15,300	1,500	9.8	5,766
7/24/36	N. Y. Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/2s of 1966	30,000	2,700	9.0	24,090
7/30/36	C. & O. Ry. Co. 3 1/2s E of 1966	28,500	1,800	6.1	19,337
8/20/36	General Motors Acceptance Corp. 3 1/2s of 1951	50,000	1,750	3.5	20,701
8/20/36	General Motors Acceptance Corp. 3s of 1946	50,000	1,750	3.5	16,482
10/15/36	American Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/2s of 1961	175,000	5,000	2.9	70,832
11/19/36	Argentine Republic 4 1/2s of 1971	23,500	1,250	5.3	19,439
11/19/36	Argentine Republic 4 1/2s of 1971	140,000	4,000	2.9	68,722
12/1/36	Amelcan Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/2s of 1966	25,000	1,900	7.6	18,540
12/1/36	Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. 3 1/2s of 1966	13,417	550	4.1	6,608
12/30/36	Ohio Edison Co. 3 1/2s of 1972	$852,994	$49,650	5.2	$870,340
	Sub-total (1936)
1/4/37	Great Northern Ry. Co. 3 1/2 Bonds Serial I	50,000	2,000	4.0	21,226
1/10/37	Government of Canada 4s of 1964	30,000	850	2.8	27,279
2/10/37	Argentine Republic 4s of 1972	55,000	1,618	2.9	47,420
2/10/37	Argentine Republic 4s of 1972	70,000	3,000	4.3	35,001
2/10/37	Argentine Republic 4s of 1972	130,000	4,500	3.5	16,061
2/10/37	Argentine Republic 4s of 1972	30,000	1,000	3.3	16,061

5/5/37	Southern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co. 3½% of 1962.	42,500	1,000	2.4	11,892
6/7/37	Standard Oil Co. 5% Pfd. Stock.	19,280	964	5.0	16,791
6/23/37	Standard Oil Co. 5% Pfd. Stock.	18,000	950	5.0	11,248
6/30/37	E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. 4½% Pfd. stock.	50,000	1,500	3.0	21,754
7/1/37	Phelps Dodge Corp. Conv. 3½%.	20,285	761	3.8	0,784
7/22/37	Westchester Lighting Co. 3½% of 1967.	25,000	2,500	10.0	23,211
10/7/37	Central New York Power Corp. 3½% of 1962.	48,364	1,500	3.1	18,038
	Sub-total (1937).....	$594,429	$22,175	3.7	$260,773
1/13/38	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3½% of 1958.	30,000	2,575	8.6	26,620
3/30/38	Duluth, Missabe & Iron Range Rwy. Co. 3½% Bonds.	28,000	1,200	4.3	13,643
4/21/38	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3½% of 1948.	60,000	3,700	6.2	44,862
6/2/38	U. S. Steel Corp. 3½% of 1948.	100,000	3,300	3.3	40,539
6/9/38	Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. 7½% of 1953.	30,000	750	2.5	9,592
7/7/38	Standard Oil Co. (N. J.) 2½% of 1963.	50,000	2,160	4.3	19,467
7/14/38	Southwestern Bell Tel. Co. 3½% of 1968.	31,000	1,340	4.3	11,654
8/12/38	New York Steam Corp. 3½% of 1963.	28,900	700	2.4	9,198
11/3/38	Argentine Republic 4½% of 1948.	27,982	2,275	8.1	24,027
11/17/38	Government of Canada 3½% of 1963.	25,000	1,000	4.0	19,816
12/19/38	Continental Oil Co. 2½% Conv. Debts.	40,000	1,000	2.5	13,233
	Sub-total (1938).....	21,072	738	3.5	10,394
	Sub-total (1937-1938).....	$471,954	$20,738	4.4	$242,045
5/1/39	Eastman Kodak Co. Common Stock.	28,699	1,148	4.0	14,146
	Sub-total (1939).....	$28,699	$1,148	4.0	$14,146
	Grand Total September 16, 1935 to June 30, 1939.....	$2,117,040	$99,711	4.7	$1,158,564

NOTE.—In those issues in which there were co-managers, the amounts of the issues and each firm's participation were divided equally among the co-managers. In those issues in which there were co-managers, the source of the profits was allocated equally among the co-managers.

Source: Data supplied by Blyth & Co., Inc.

EXHIBIT NO. 1771

Relative participations in utility issues managed or managed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, 1935-1939—Participations of the principal underwriters in relation to the participation of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated—Schedule A: Issues on Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc., and its subsidiaries.

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Date of Offering Prospectus	Issue	Amount	Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc.	Blyth & Co. Inc.	Bonbright & Co.	The First Boston Corporation	Smith, Barney & Co. (E. B. Smith & Co.)	Lazard Freres & Co.	Clark, Dodge & Co.	Hayden Stone & Co.	Lee, Higginson Corp.	Kiddier, Peabody & Co.	Goldman Sachs & Co.	Brown, Hartman & Co.	Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	Lehman Brothers	Dillon, Read & Co., Inc.	Schoelkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy, Inc.	Mellon Securities Corp.	Keane, Taylor & Co.	F. S. Mosley & Co.	White, Weld & Co.	Stone & Webster and Blodgett, Inc.	Bancamerica Corp.	Harris, Hall & Co., Inc.	J. & W. Seligman & Co.	Spencer Trask & Co.
4/ 9/36	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc. 3½% of 1936	$35,000,000	100.0	40.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	23.3	33.3	1.6	6.6	13.3	13.3	13.3	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
4/ 9/36	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc. 3½% of 1946	35,000,000	100.0	40.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	20.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0	23.3	33.3	3.1	6.6	13.3	13.3	13.3	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
1/13/38	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc. 3½% of 1938	30,000,000	100.0	41.0	20.4	20.4	20.4	20.4	10.3	10.3	10.3	10.3	10.3	23.8	34.2	2.1	17.1	15.9	13.5	13.5	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
4/21/38	Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc. 3½% of 1943	60,000,000	100.0	41.1	21.1	21.1	21.1	21.1	11.1	11.1	11.1	11.1	11.1	13.9	13.9	24.4	33.3	16.7	21.1	14.4	16.7	8.3	8.3	8.3	8.3	8.3	8.3	8.3
11/23/38	New York & Queens Elec. Light & Power Co. 3½% of 1945	25,000,000	100.0	42.8	10.7	10.7	10.7	16.0	6.3	6.3	6.3	6.3	6.3	18.7	26.8	10.7	10.7	10.7	10.7	10.7	4.3	4.3	4.3	4.3	4.3	4.3	4.3	4.3
2/27/38	New York Edison Co., Inc. 3½% of 1945	55,000,000	100.0	33.3	20.0	20.0	20.0	16.7	10.0	10.0	6.7	6.7	6.7	10.0	23.4	26.7	16.7	13.3	13.3	13.3	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
7/24/38	New York Edison Co., Inc. 3½% of 1946	80,000,000	100.0	33.3	18.7	18.7	18.7	16.7	12.5	9.4	7.5	7.5	7.5	9.4	23.0	26.7	16.7	13.3	13.3	13.3	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
5/25/38	Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc. 3½% of 1946	55,000,000	100.0	33.3	20.0	20.0	20.0	16.7	10.0	10.0	6.7	6.7	6.7	10.0	23.4	26.7	16.7	13.3	13.3	13.3	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7	6.7
7/22/37	Westchester Lighting Co. 3½% of 1947	25,000,000	100.0	33.1	15.6	15.6	15.6	15.6	9.4	9.4	6.2	6.2	6.2	21.9	26.0	12.5	12.5	9.4	9.4	9.4	6.2	6.2	6.2	6.2	6.2	6.2	6.2	6.2
8/12/38	New York Steam Corporation 3½% of 1943	27,982,000	100.0	40.0	20.0	21.6	21.6	20.0	11.6	11.6	11.6	11.6	11.6	15.5	11.6	30.8	34.0	17.0	15.5	15.5	7.0	7.0	7.7	7.7	7.0	7.0	7.0	7.0

Source: Compiled from the registration statements relating to the respective issues on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Financing of Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. Inc., and its subsidiaries by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, Sept. 16, 1935 to June 30, 1939

[Prepared by the staff of the Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission]

Date of Offering Prospectus	Title of Issue	Total Amount of Issue Underwritten	Amount of Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Underwriting Participation	Bankers' Gross Commissions	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Manager's Compensation	Morgan Stanley & Co.'s Gross Profit Before Syndicate Expenses	Gross Profit After Syndicate Expenses but Before Office Expenses, Taxes, Overhead & Return on Capital
11/25/35.....	N. Y. & Queens Elec. Lt. & Pwr. Co., 3½% due 1965.....	$25,000,000	$9,350,000	$500,000	$93,750	$175,562	$175,312
2/27/36.....	N. Y. Edison Co., Inc. 3½% due 1965.....	55,000,000	15,000,000	1,100,000	206,250	337,500	327,405
4/9/36.....	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3½% due 1946.....	35,000,000	7,500,000	612,500	87,500	153,125	148,888
4/9/36.....	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3½% due 1956.....	35,000,000	7,500,000	700,000	131,250	196,875	192,638
5/29/36.....	Brooklyn Edison Co., Inc. 3½% due 1966.....	55,000,000	15,000,000	1,100,000	206,250	337,500	326,880
7/24/36.....	N. Y. Edison Co., Inc. 3½% due 1966.....	30,000,000	8,000,000	600,000	(1)	220,000	200,445
7/22/37.....	Westchester Lighting Co. 3½% due 1947.....	25,000,000	8,000,000	500,000	93,750	163,750	142,084
1/13/38.....	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3½% due 1958.....	30,000,000	6,285,000	600,000	112,500	167,494	153,579
4/21/38.....	Consolidated Edison Co. of N. Y. 3½% due 1948.....	60,000,000	9,000,000	1,050,000	150,000	217,500	203,410
8/12/38.....	N. Y. Steam Corp. 3½% due 1963.....	27,982,000	5,656,000	559,640	104,932	154,510	140,105
Totals		377,982,000	91,301,000	7,322,140	1,186,182	2,123,816	2,010,746

1 Issue subunderwritten.

Source: Data supplied by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

SUPPLEMENTAL DATA

(The following letter is included at this point in connection with testimony, supra, p. 11844.)

UNITED STATES SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION AND LABOR,
247-C Senate Office Bldg., January 10, 1940.

HON. JOSEPH C. O'MAHONEY,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR O'MAHONEY: During my testimony before the Temporary National Economic Committee on December 15, 1939, the question was raised as to whether the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has taken exception to any of the facts pertaining to which I testified. Limitations of time did not permit me to go extensively into the position taken by the A. T. & T., and you requested me to communicate with you in regard to this matter.

I have again considered this subject and have come to the conclusion that the A. T. & T. has at no time taken exception to the facts presented in my testimony. My book, A. T. & T., The Story of Industrial Conquest, has been out since October 17, 1939, and I have heard not a word from the company, which indicates that the company has been unable to take exception to the facts therein stated.

I testified to the same facts before the Federal Communications Commission on June 23, 1937. At that time my report on the control of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was placed into the record of Special Investigation Docket No. 1 of the Commission. The Bell System submitted a pamphlet in criticism of my testimony on this report, but a perusal of their comments indicates that they do not take exception to the facts, but differ on their conclusions.

When the Federal Communications Commission issued the Proposed Report on the Telephone Investigation on April 1, 1938, A. T. & T. submitted to the Commission a brief in criticism of this report. There, too, the company was unable to take exception to the facts, but differed in their interpretations.

As I endeavored not to give opinions during my testimony, but to confine myself to a statement of the facts, I am justified in saying, therefore, that the company has taken no exception to the accuracy of the facts revealed in my testimony.

I am at your service to supply any further information you desire.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) N. R. DANIELIAN.

(Typed) N. R. DANIELIAN.

(The following information was submitted by Mr. Dean in connection with Mr. Gordon's testimony, supra, p. 11949.)

EXTRACT FROM "MEMORANDUM OF CORRECTIONS" SUBMITTED BY ARTHUR H. DEAN OF SULLIVAN & CROMWELL, COUNSEL TO ALBERT H. GORDON, TO THE INVESTMENT BANKING SECTION, MONOPOLY STUDY, SECURITIES & EXCHANGE COMMISSION

* * * * *

What happened was that a group of bankers headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. had advanced $10,000,000 to the old firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. of which neither Webster, Hovey nor Gordon (partners in the present firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.) were partners. As a condition to the advancing of the $10,000,000 the banking syndicate had insisted that the partners in the old firm raise an additional $5,000,000 as capital. Due to a very substantial decline in the value of the securities held by the old firm, it was obvious that they needed still more working capital. An arrangement was thereby made whereby a new firm was formed with approximately $5,000,000 of new capital. All of the assets of the old firm had been pledged as collateral for the agreement with the banking syndicate. The new firm selected the assets and liabilities which it wished to take over and the other assets and liabilities were liquidated from time to time by the banking syndicate.

(The following letter is included at this point in connection with Mr. Whitney's testimony, supra.)

[Copy]

APRIL 30th, 1935-p.

Mr. WILLIAM C. POTTER,
Chairman, Guaranty Trust Company of New York,
140 Broadway, New York City.

DEAR MR. POTTER: The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company has agreed to sell to Brown, Harriman & Co., Incorporated, and Edward B. Smith & Co. \$12,000,000. Ten-Year Collateral Trust Notes, secured by \$25,000,000. of our General Unified $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ Bonds.

At the suggestion of Mr. George Whitney, we have designated the Guaranty Trust Company of New York to act as Trustee of this indenture.

If it is agreeable to your Company to act as Trustee, will you kindly advise me the name of the officer of your Company with whom Mr. H. L. Borden, our Vice-President, should communicate to arrange the necessary details.

Yours very truly,

(Original Signed by Mr. Delano Chairman.)

(The following letters were submitted by Mr. Whitney in connection with his testimony, supra.)

[Copy]

J. P. MORGAN & Co.
Wall St. corner Broad, New York

NEW YORK, January 25, 1940.

Honorable LEON HENDERSON,
Securities and Exchange Commission,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. HENDERSON: At the end of the afternoon session on Tuesday, December 19th, you asked me a question reading as follows: "Leaving aside for a minute the legal phases, or leaving them aside entirely, a number of those functions you performed in this switchover period are functions which are performed by underwriting houses, is that not correct?" I have now had an opportunity to read the testimony, including your further questions and, pursuant to your suggestion contained in your last question, I am glad to submit an amplification of my answers, which I have made as brief as possible. I should like to have this placed in the record if agreeable to the Committee.

The questions which you ask cannot be answered categorically "Yes" or "No," nor can they be answered without regard to the purpose and effect of Section 21 (a) of the Banking Act of 1933.

The functions of the banker in this country and so far as I know in all other countries, have been manifold. They have, of course, acted as depositaries for the safekeeping of their clients' balances; they have assisted in the development of business and industry through the making of loans; they have aided commerce between the nations in the discount and negotiation of bills; they have acted as financial advisors to their clients, thus assisting in the orderly and successful conduct of their clients' business and personal affairs, and they have assisted in providing industry with capital through the making of loans and, except in this country since the Banking Act of 1933, through the underwriting and flotation of security issues. These are among the historic functions of a banker. Some of them, however, are not necessarily peculiar to a banker. Investment bankers, dealers, and brokers also give financial advice and perform other functions helpful in the conduct of their clients' affairs.

Section 21 (a) of the Banking Act of 1933 prevents any person engaged in the business of issuing, underwriting, selling, or distributing securities from engaging at the same time in the business of receiving deposits. This section of the Act became effective June 16, 1934, and, as I have previously testified, from that date our firm ceased in any manner to engage in its former business of underwriting, issuing, selling, or distributing securities. The language of that section of the Act is clear, even to a layman like me. However, we of course consulted counsel, and you have in evidence their opinion of May 29, 1934. Although not asked for by your investigators, I am enclosing herewith a further opinion of our counsel dated September 13, 1935, having to do with the Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated phase of the Banking Act question, and request that the opinion be received in evidence, as I believe it makes more clear how complete the segregation was and is between our firm and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

As I stated several times in my testimony, we have given financial advice to our clients since the effective date of the Banking Act. As a part of such advice we have recommended to our clients the names of underwriting houses which we have felt were best equipped to handle their business for them. We feel that the giving of such advice is part of the essential functions of a banker. These functions may be likened to those of the family physician. It is part of the banker's job to look after the day to day needs of his customers, and to know when a capital operation is needed and when to call in a specialist, and to be able to recommend a good one for the work. This was particularly necessary during what you refer to as the "transition period." The investment banking business had been torn to pieces by the Banking Act, established relations had been disrupted, and existing organizations had disintegrated. Few new organizations were well known. Few had adequate capital or experience. It was very necessary for the borrowing companies, greatly in the public interest, and essential to the reopening of the capital markets, which were at a dead stop, that bankers should be prepared to give the best advice they could to their customers to help them find and establish satisfactory relations with investment houses of issue. Throughout the period and today every commercial bank of any size in this country has performed and is performing this service in greater or less degree as a part of its daily routine. This does not mean, however, that only a banker is entitled to perform such service. Investment bankers are entitled to perform it, and they are doing it more and more, as they become established and better known to borrowing companies, who now less frequently seek the intervention of banks of deposit. It must, of course, be apparent to you that the giving of such advice by a banker to his client in no way puts that banker in the business of issuing, underwriting, selling, or distributing securities.

The purpose of Section 21 of the Banking Act of 1933 was to place the depositors' fund beyond the risks of the underwriting business and I am certain that my firm has lived up to the spirit, as of course it has to the letter, of that law. I have always felt that the complete elimination of banks of deposit from the business of entering into any commitments for the underwriting of private investment securities—leaving aside the question of the elimination of banks of deposit from the business of distributing securities to investors—has not been in the interest of the capital markets and, in turn, of the American economy. A commitment to take up and pay for sound securities in amounts bearing a reasonable relationship to resources may well be far more conservative, and present less risk to depositors' funds—or even capital funds of the institution, which bear the whole risk to the extent of such funds—than other types of less sound and less liquid commitments.

Yours very truly,

/S/ GEORGE WHITNEY.

DAVIS POLK WARDWELL GARDINER & REED

(STETSON JENNINGS & RUSSELL)

15 Broad Street, New York

SEPTEMBER 13, 1935.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & Co.,
23 Wall Street,
New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: We have given careful consideration, from your point of view, to the incorporation and organization of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., and take pleasure in giving to you our opinion on certain questions in connection therewith which relate to your firm.

Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. is a corporation formed pursuant to Article Two of the Stock Corporation Law of the State of New York. Its original Certificate of Incorporation was filed in the office of the Secretary of State on September 5, 1935, and its first meeting of incorporators and its first meeting of stockholders were held September 12, 1935. Its Board of Directors consists of Messrs. Harold Stanley, William Ewing, Perry E. Hall, Edward H. York, Jr., and John M. Young. The officers of the Corporation are at present: Mr. Harold Stanley, President; Mr. William Ewing, Vice-President; Mr. Henry S. Morgan, Treasurer and Secretary; Mr. Perry E. Hall, Vice-President; Mr. Edward H. York, Jr., Vice-President; Mr. John M. Young, Vice-President; Mr. Allen N. Jones, Vice-President; and Mr. Archer M. Vandervoort, Assistant Secretary and Assistant Treasurer. Mr. Harold Stanley, Mr. William Ewing, and Mr. Henry S. Morgan have been, until their recent resignations, partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Perry E. Hall and Mr. Edward H. York, Jr., have, until their recent resignations, held an interest in the business done by J. P. Morgan & Co. in Philadelphia under the firm name of Drexel & Co. Mr. John M. Young, Mr. Allen N. Jones, and Mr. Archer M. Vandervoort have been, until their recent resignations, employees of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The Certificate of Incorporation of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. provides for Preferred and Common Stock. The authorized Preferred Stock consists of 100,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, which shares entitle the holders thereof to receive dividends at the rate of 6% per annum, subject to various conditions and limitations more fully set forth in the Certificate of Incorporation. The holders of the Preferred Stock have no right to vote at any meetings of stockholders except as provided generally by the Stock Corporation Law of New York, and particularly the holders of the Preferred Stock have no right to vote for directors of the Corporation. Seventy thousand shares of the Preferred Stock have been issued for a consideration aggregating $7,000,000 to certain of the individuals above named, and also to a few individual partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. The amount of such stock which has been taken by the individual partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. comprises the greater part of the Preferred Shares issued.

The authorized Common Stock consists of 50,000 shares having a par value of $5 each, all of which shares have been issued for a consideration aggregating $500,000 to individuals who are directors or officers of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.

The above named directors and officers of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. have not only resigned from the positions formerly held by them as partners or employees of J. P. Morgan & Co., but they have fully divorced themselves from the business done by J. P. Morgan & Co. except in one or two special instances where, for a few months only, work undertaken prior to the organization of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. is being completed. There are no special agreements or arrangements between the two organizations, and the right to use the name "Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc." is derived from Mr. Henry S. Morgan and Mr. Harold Stanley. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. have opened offices at 2 Wall Street, New York City, which offices are, of course, entirely separate from the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. at 23 Wall Street, New York City.

The general business to be carried on by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., is to be a securities business, and will include underwriting, issuance and sale of securities. In no case will Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., perform such business as agents for J. P. Morgan & Co., but if it chooses Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., may avail itself of the usual banking facilities offered by J. P. Morgan & Co., just as it may use the facilities of other banks and bankers. For example, delivery of bond issues and payment therefor may take place at the banking offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., and deliveries of bonds to purchasers by Morgan Stanley & Co., and its associates may also take place at J. P. Morgan & Co. windows. In such matters J. P. Morgan & Co. will render the same banking service to Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. as it would render to any other investment house.

The provisions of Section 21 (a) of the Banking Act of 1933, as amended, would today bar J. P. Morgan & Co. from carrying on the same general business as that in which Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. plans to engage. This section provides in part as follows:

"Sec. 21. (a) After the expiration of one year after the date of enactment of this Act it shall be unlawful—

"(1) For any person, firm, corporation, association, business trust, or other similar organization, engaged in the business of issuing, underwriting, selling, or distributing, at wholesale or retail, or through syndicate participation, stocks, bonds, debentures, notes, or other securities, to engage at the same time to any extent whatever in the business of receiving deposits subject to check or to repayment upon presentation of a passbook, certificate of deposit, or other evidence of debt, or upon request of the depositor: Provided, That the provisions of this paragraph shall not prohibit national banks or State banks or trust companies (whether or not members of the Federal Reserve System) or other financial institutions or private bankers from dealing in, underwriting, purchasing, and selling investment securities to the extent permitted to national banking associations by the provisions of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (U. S. C., title 12, sec. 24; Supp. VII, title 12, sec. 24): * * *

We are of the opinion, on the facts as summarized above, that no claim can properly or successfully be made that J. P. Morgan & Co. is violating the above prohibitions because of the fact that Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. is engaged in the general business of issuing, underwriting, selling or distributing securities. The separate ownership of the common stock of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., its completely separate Board of Directors, and the absence of any interlocking between its officers and employees and the partners and employees of J. P. Morgan & Co., all demonstrate the complete separation of the two organizations and rebut any contention that the separate existence of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., should be disregarded as a "corporate fiction". Ownership of preferred stock of the type here involved does not result in any prohibited participation by the preferred stockholders, or by a firm to which such stockholders may belong, in the business of the corporation issuing the preferred stock. No contention that Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. is an agent or instrumentality of J. P. Morgan & Co. can be successfully advanced inasmuch as the businesses and activities of the two organizations are separate, and the affairs of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. are controlled by an independent Board of Directors and officers, left to their own initiative and responsibility in respect of each transaction as it arises.

The Securities Act of 1933, as amended, imposes in Section 15 thereof certain liabilities upon persons who control persons who may become liable under Section 11 or Section 12 of said Act. Because of the type of business in which Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. plans to engage it is possible that that Corporation may at times become subject to such liabilities. In our opinion neither J. P. Morgan & Co. nor any of the partners thereof can be held, on the facts above summarized, to "control" Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., within the meaning of Section 15 of said Act, and neither the firm nor any of the partners thereof can be held liable therefor.

Very truly yours,

[S] DAVIS, POLK, WARDWELL, GARDINER & Rzed.

The following letters are included at this point in connection with Mr. Whitney's testimony, supra, pp. 12067, 12099, and 12100.

JANUARY 23, 1940.

Mr. GEORGE WHITNEY,

*J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street,
New York, New York.*

DEAR MR. WHITNEY: You will recall that in the hearing of December 20, 1939, there was discussion of how many companies that had formerly financed through J. P. Morgan & Co., subsequent to the organization of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, financed through some other house. In that discussion (page 256 of the record), I asked you if you would submit a memorandum to the Committee on this matter. Could I inquire whether any progress has been made on this matter.

Likewise, I find on page 268 (col. 2) that you agreed to ascertain whether the credits to Corporation No. 6 were from a loan underwritten by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated and (col. 3) whether the credit to Corporation

No. 9 represented part of the proceeds of an issue underwritten by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated.

May I inquire whether these matters have been ascertained.

Sincerely yours,

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,

Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study.

LBrown:jmk

23 Wall Street, New York, January 26, 1940.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

*Special Counsel, Monopoly Study, Investment Banking Section,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: Replying to your letter of January 23rd, it had not occurred to me that any further answer was required from me in connection with the discussion to which you refer, since Mr. Stanley undertook to cover the matter in his testimony. In any event, I do not think it would be possible for me to answer the question because it involves research among figures to which I have no access.

As to Corporation No. 6, there was a credit to the account of that Corporation with us in the amount of $18,487,500 on June 30, 1937, which was the date on which that Corporation received from underwriters the proceeds of sale of 200,000 shares of its preferred stock.

As to Corporation No. 9, I have been advised by that Corporation that during the month of January, 1938, it had a substantial cash intake, including the proceeds of an issue of securities sold to underwriters. The Corporation deposited these proceeds with various banks of deposit, among which was J. P. Morgan & Co.

Trusting this will give you the information you require, I beg to remain

Yours very truly,

GEORGE WHITNEY.

The following letters are included at this point in connection with Mr. Stanley's testimony, supra, p. 12067.

MORGAN STANLEY & Co., INCORPORATED

Two Wall Street, New York

NEW YORK, February 15, 1940.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS,

*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section,
Monopoly Study, Securities and Exchange Commission,
Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: This is in reply to your letter of January 23, 1940 to Mr. Stanley which he acknowledged while he was in Washington. Your letter refers to the discussion in the T. N. E. C. hearing of December 20, 1939 of whether "any company for which J. P. Morgan & Company was formerly principal banker * * has floated securities through some other house than Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc.?" Later in the hearing you asked for a memorandum on this subject which Mr. Stanley agreed to send you.

As Mr. Stanley tried to point out elsewhere in his testimony (particularly, he thinks, in connection with American Telephone and Telegraph financing) any question as to the scope or amount of any company's financial transactions, through any banker or handled otherwise, cannot be completely or adequately shown unless the question covers private placements as well as public offerings. The following list, which we cannot be sure is complete, has been compiled from published sources and from such data as we have available in our office, and shows the large amount of financing since September 1935 by companies for which J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. sold securities in the period from 1921 to 1933, in which financing Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated had no participation whatever.

			Purchaser or Underwriter
1935
Sept.	$2, 500, 000	Allentown-Bethlehem Gas Co. 1st 3½s, 1965.....	Sold privately.
Oct.	5, 000, 000	Atlanta Gas Light Co. ¹ General 4½s, 1955.....	First Boston Corp. etc.
Nov.	1, 300, 000	Cambria & Indiana R. R. Co. 1st 3½s, 1948.....	Sold privately.
Dec.	4, 152, 000	Rochester Gas & Elec. Corp. ² General 4s, 1960.....	Sold privately.
1936
March	600, 000	Savannah Gas Co. 1st 4½s, 1965.....	Sold privately.
May	25, 000, 000	Public Service El. & Gas Corp. 1st & Ref. 4½s, 1966.....	Sold privately.
Sept.	5, 500, 000	Southern Indiana Gas & El. Co. 1st 3.35%—1961.....	Sold privately.
Sept.	400, 000	Rochester Gas & El. Corp. ³ 4.8% Preferred Stock.....	First Boston Corp. etc.
Oct.	7, 000, 000	Connecticut Light & Power Co. 1st & Ref. 3½s, 1966.....	Putnam & Co. etc.
Oct.	7, 500, 000	Connecticut Light & Power Co. 20 Yr. 3½% Debs. 1956.....	Putnam & Co. etc.
Oct.	8, 589, 500	Southern Indiana Gas & El. Co. 4.8% Cum. Preferred Stock.....	Bonbright & Co. etc.
Dec.	6, 978, 000	Pennsylvania Power Co. 1st 3½s, 1961.....	Sold privately.
Dec.	10, 848, 000	Rochester Gas & El. Corp. ³ General 4s, 1960.....	Sold privately.
Dec.	16, 000, 000	Connecticut Light & Power Co. 1st & Ref. 3½s, 1966.....	Putnam & Co. etc.
1937
Jan.	600, 000	Southern Indiana Gas & Elec. Co. 1st 3.35%—1961.....	Sold privately.
Feb.	3, 000, 000	Rochester Gas & El. Corp. ³ General 3½s, 1966.....	Sold privately.
March	7, 000, 000	Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R. Co. 2¼% Coll. Tr. Notes 1937-46..	Sold privately.
May	2, 000, 000	Pennsylvania Power Co. 1st 4s, 1961.....	Sold privately.
May	550, 000	Pennsylvania Power Co. $6 Cum. Preferred Stock.....	Sold privately.
May	600, 000	Southern Indiana Gas & El. Corp. 1st 3.35%—1961.....	Sold privately.
August	683, 000	Chicago & Western Indiana R. R. 1st & Ref. 4½s, 1962.....	Sold privately.
Sept.	2, 500, 000	Central Hudson Gas & El. Corp. 1st & Ref. 3½s, 1967.....	Sold privately.
Sept.	3, 000, 000	Rochester Gas & El. Corp. ³ General 3½s, 1967.....	First Boston Corp. etc.
Sept.	875, 000	Atlanta Gas Light Co. ¹ General 4½s, 1955.....	Chandler & Co. etc.
1938
Jan.	20, 000, 000	New England Tel. & Tel. Co. 1st 3½s, 1968.....	Sold privately.
March	800, 000	Southern Indiana Gas & El. Co. 1st 3½s, 1961.....	Sold privately.
May	1, 000, 000	Public Service El. & Gas Co. 1st & Ref. 3½s, 1966.....	Sold privately.
July	1, 657, 000	Rochester Gas & El. Corp. ³ Gen. 3½s, 1967.....	First Boston Corp. etc.
August	2, 375, 000	Buffalo Niagara Electric Corp. Gen. & Ref. 3½s, 1968.....	Sold privately.
Dec.	15, 000, 000	Connecticut Light & Power Corp. 1st & ref. 3½s, 1968.....	Sold privately.
Dec.	15, 000, 000	International Tel. & Tel. Co. 4½% Notes—1948.....	Sold privately.

Footnotes on next page.

					Purchaser or Underwriter
1938
Dec.	4, 200, 000	Pennsylvania Power Co.	$5	Bonbright & Co. etc.
		Preferred Stock.
Dec.	30, 000, 000	Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co.		Halsey, Stuart & Co.
		Ref. & Imp. 3½s, 1963.		etc.
1939
Feb.	12, 000, 000	Cincinnati Union Terminal Co.		Lehman Brothers, etc.
		1st 3½s, 1969.
March	240, 000	Allentown-Bethlehem Gas Co.		Sold privately.
		1st 3½s, 1965.
May	400, 000	Jacksonville Terminal Co.	Ref.	First Boston Corp. etc.
		& Ext. 4½s, 1967.
June	8, 323, 000	Rochester Gas & El. Corp.(?)		First Boston Corp. etc.
		General 3½s, 1969.
August	7, 000, 000	Terminal Railroad Assn. of St. Louis.		Halsey, Stuart & Co.
		Ref. & Imp. 3½s, 1974.		etc.
October	75, 000, 000	New York Telephone Co.	Ref.	Sold privately.
		3½s, 1964.

Very truly yours,

MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED
E. H. YORK, JR., Vice President.

[Copy]

E. H. YORK, Esq., NEW YORK, March 4, 1940.
Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated,
Two Wall Street, New York, New York.

DEAR MR. YORK: The data contained in your letter of February 15th in reply to mine of January 23rd have been examined and we have the following questions in connection therewith:

1. The list submitted covers companies for which J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. sold securities. The request was for issues of companies for which J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. were formerly principal bankers.

2. The list submitted covers private placements, whereas the request was for publicly offered issues.

3. The list submitted covers issues of companies for which J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. had ceased to be principal bankers prior to June 16, 1934, the date when J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. retired from the underwriting business.

4. The list submitted covers issues sold by competitive bid, a type of purchase and sale which both J. P. Morgan & Co. and Morgan Stanley & Co. incorporated voluntarily have refrained from underwriting.

5. The list submitted contains an issue in the nature of a bank loan, the major portion of which was taken by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

In view of the foregoing, I do not believe that the data which you have submitted is responsive to the question which was put to Mr. Whitney and Mr. Stanley. The intent of my question—and I believe that Mr. Stanley clearly understood its intent at the time—was for a list of publicly offered issues of companies for whom J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. were principal bankers at the time they retired from the underwriting business on June 16, 1934, whose publicly offered securities when not sold by competitive bid, were underwritten by an investment house other than Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

I feel that the proper procedure for answering the question put to Mr. Stanley at the hearing would be the preparation of (1) a list of issues which conforms to the terms of the question, and (2) a supplementary list together with any explanations or data he thinks necessary to qualify his answer.

I think upon further reflection you will agree that the list which you have supplied is misleading and not completely responsive to the question. I am, therefore, not disposed to offer it for the record in its present form.

If there are any questions in your mind, I shall be glad to hear from you.

Sincerely yours,

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, JR.,
Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study.

¹ Company acquired by Southern Cities Public Service Co. from Georgia Power Co. in May 1929.

² Control of company acquired by Ellis L. Phillips from New York Central Railroad in June 1924.

[Copy]

MORGAN STANLEY & Co., INCORPORATED
Two Wall Street, New York

MARCH 12, 1940.

MR. PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,
*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: This is to acknowledge your letter of March 4th addressed to Mr. York, who wrote you on February 15th while I was away.

It is quite true that your question when I was testifying referred to companies for which J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. were "formerly principal bankers" and that the list we furnished covers companies for which those firms "sold securities." However, I am not sure just what distinction you are drawing between selling securities and being principal bankers, and I do not know how to make up a list based on such a distinction. In your letter of January 23rd you ask for a memorandum of concerns "that had formerly financed through J. P. Morgan & Co."

You will recall in column one of page 256 of the testimony you were asking Mr. Whitney about accounts of J. P. Morgan & Co. and he asked what you meant, to which you replied, "any form of financing, bonds, notes, stocks." I didn't realize at the time that you were differentiating between the questions asked Mr. Whitney regarding accounts in column one on page 256 and the question you asked of Mr. Whitney in column three of the same page about principal bankers; nor do I know today what distinction you desire to draw.

It is quite true that your question to me on page 256 of the testimony referred to flotations of securities, which might or might not be taken to mean public offerings, but in my answer I mentioned the Connecticut Light & Power Company, some of the transactions of which were private placements through Putnam & Co., etc., and in column one of page 257 I specifically pointed out that the utility companies for which we had managed issues had made substantial amounts of sales direct by private placements to institutions.

Your third point refers to companies for which J. P. Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co. at one time had been bankers and had ceased to be bankers prior to June 16, 1934. There is no reference to this in the testimony nor in your letter of January 23rd asking us for a memorandum. It is an entirely new thought brought up perhaps by the fact that our letter of February 15th included two such companies in the interest of completeness with, however, footnotes indicating changes in ownership in the case of these two companies. That such changes have taken place does not alter the fact that relations formerly existed. The general tenor of your question and your specific question to Mr. Whitney in column one on page 256 refers to any form of financing—bonds, notes or stocks—at any time, and your question to me in column three on the same page has reference to companies for which J. P. Morgan & Co. was formerly principal banker without limiting the time.

Your fourth point mentions cases of competitive bidding of which there are two in the list, but as stated in our letter of transmittal, the list may not be complete. Certainly it did not include a large number of equipment trust issues which were bid for competitively during the period mentioned.

Referring to your fifth point, the International Telephone and Telegraph issue was, we have ascertained, a bank loan and was included in our list through a misunderstanding of its nature.

In view of the foregoing I trust that you will agree that the list furnished—with the International Telephone transaction eliminated—is a proper reply to the question on page 256 which was repeated in your letter of January 23rd. I should prefer not to follow your suggestion of furnishing two lists, partly because I think if your question was intended to apply only to public issues it is too narrow a question. Bankers received commissions for services in connection with some of the private placements contained in our letter of February 15th—such cases were obviously handled "through some other house." No commissions were paid on other private sales in the list, but complete information on this point for all issues in the list is not available. I submit it is impossible to obtain a correct picture of financing done by any company without consideration of issues privately placed whether or not bankers received a commission for such private placement.

Sincerely yours,

(signed) HAROLD STANLEY.

The following data is included at this point as a supplement to "Exhibit No. 1768-2," Item 2; supra, p. 12298 at p. 12301.

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Wall St. corner Broad, New York

NEW YORK, October 26, 1939.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: Referring to the schedule marked Item 2 enclosed to you with our letter of March 15, 1939, setting forth the names of the corporations or other institutions (including eleemosynary institutions) of which any partner of our firm is a director or trustee, and to your request to Mr. Whitney and Mr. Alexander last week that you be advised of any changes which have occurred, we beg to enclose herewith a schedule marked Item 2 revised as of this date.

Yours very truly,

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Enclosure.

ITEM 2

Mr. J. P. Morgan

Associated Parishes of the Episcopal Church
Church Hymnal Corporation
Church Life Insurance Corporation
Church Pension Fund
Church Properties Fire Insurance Company
Cooper Union.
Discount Corporation
Flintlock Realty Company
John and Mary R. Markle Foundation
Metropolitan Museum of Art
Metropolitan Opera & Real Estate Company
Morgan Grenfell & Co., Limited
Morgan Memorial Park, Glen Cove, N. Y.
New York Hospital—Cornell Medical College Ass'n
New York Public Library
Parish Securities Corporation
Pierpont Morgan Library
Pullman Company
Pullman Incorporated
St. John's Church of Lattingtown, L. I., N. Y.
United States Steel Corporation

Mr. Thomas W. Lamont

The Academy of Political Science
American School of Classical Studies at Athens
Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company
The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching
Guaranty Trust Company of New York
Institute of International Education
International Agricultural Corporation
International Committee of Bankers on Mexico
Italy-America Society
Lamont, Corliss and Company
The John and Mary R. Markle Foundation
Metropolitan Museum of Art
Phillips Exeter Academy
Pilgrims of the United States
St. Luke's International Medical Center American Council
Santa Fe Pacific Railroad Company
Southwestern Construction Company
United States Steel Corporation

- Mr. Junius S. Morgan
The American Museum of Natural History
American Red Cross, New York Chapter
The Chapin School, Ltd.
Flintlock Realty Co.
Frick Collection, The
General Motors Corporation
Greater New York Fund, Inc., The
Harvard College
Harvard Fund Council
John and Mary R. Markle Foundation
Morgan Memorial Park
New York Public Library
New York Trade School
Pierpont Morgan Library
Police Relief Association of Nassau County
Seamen's Church Institute of New York
United States Steel Corporation
- Mr. George Whitney
Alaska Development & Mineral Company
Alaska Steamship Company
Bee Rock Corporation
Braden Copper Company
Consolidated Edison Company of New York
Continental Oil Company
Corners Corporation, The Doctors Hospital
General Motors Corporation
Guaranty Trust Company of New York
Kennecott Copper Corporation
Nassau Hospital
New York Central Railroad
Pullman Company
Pullman Incorporated
West Shore Railroad Company
- Mr. R. C. Leffingwell
Carnegie Corporation of New York
Community Service Society of New York
Council on Foreign Relations, Inc.
- Mr. F. D. Bartow
American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation
Discount Corporation
General Electric Company
Hospital Council of Greater New York
Greater New York Fund, Inc.
International General Electric Company
Johns-Manville Corporation
Roosevelt Hospital
United Hospital Fund of New York
- Mr. A. M. Anderson
International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation
Japan Society
New York Botanical Garden
New York Trust Company
Northern Pacific Railway Company
United States Guarantee Company
- Mr. Thomas S. Lamont
Beech Corporation
Community Service Society of New York
Continental Oil Company
Edgewater Creche
North British & Mercantile Insurance Co.
Phelps Dodge Corporation
Pierpont Corporation
Texas Gulf Sulphur Company

- Mr. H. P. Davison
 American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company
 American Museum of Natural History
 Boys' Club of New York, The
 Car & General Insurance Corp. Ltd. (U. S. Branch)
 856 Fifth Avenue Corporation
 Montgomery Ward & Co.
 New York Trust Company
 Peacock Corporation
 Peacock Point Corporation
 Provident Fire Insurance Company
 Royal Exchange Assurance of London (U. S. Branch)
 Standard Brands Incorporated
 State Assurance Company
- Mr. Edward Hopkinson, Jr.
 The Baldwin Locomotive Works and certain of its subsidiaries
 Frankford & Southwark Philadelphia City Passenger Railroad Company
 The Free Library of Philadelphia
 Insurance Company of North America and certain of its subsidiaries
 Keystone Watch Case Corporation and subsidiary
 John D. Lankenau Fund (Lankenau Hospital)
 Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company
 Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind
 Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce
 The Philadelphia Saving Fund Society
 Reading Company
 Second & Third Street Passenger Railway Company
 University of Pennsylvania
 Wistar Institute Fund
- Mr. Charles D. Dickey
 Beaver Coal Corporation
 Estate of Bradish Johnson Inc.
 General Steel Castings Corporation
 Lumbermens Insurance Co.
 Northeast Harbor Water Company (Northeast Harbor, Maine)
 Philadelphia Contributionship for Insuring Houses from Loss by Fire
 Philadelphia National Insurance Co.
 St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire
 Sharp & Dohme, Incorporated
 Stonega Coke & Coal Company
 Virginia Coal & Iron Company
 Western Saving Fund Society of Philadelphia
- Mr. Henry C. Alexander
 Johns Manville Corporation
 Legal Aid Society
- Mr. W. A. Mitchell
 Associated Dry Goods Corporation
 Bankers Association for Foreign Trade
 Buxton School
 Hahne & Company, Inc.
 Lord & Taylor
 James McCreery & Co.

The following letters are included at this point in connection with testimony, supra, p. 12096.

NOVEMBER 15, 1939.

HENRY C. ALEXANDER, Esq.,
Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street,
New York, New York.

DEAR MR. ALEXANDER: This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of November 13, 1939, in response to my communication of October 12, 1939.

The information which you were good enough to make available is not in sufficient detail for our requirements. Accordingly, I should very much appreciate your furnishing me with the answers to the following questions for each of the security issues enumerated on page 2 of my letter of October 12, 1939:

1. The name of the partner or partners of your firm present at the meeting of the Board of Directors which authorized the issue.

2. Whether the partner or partners participated in the discussion with respect to the proposed offering.

3. Whether the partner or partners present at such meetings (a) voted on the proposed offering, or (b) refrained from voting on the proposed offering.

May I suggest that the information be set forth in the following tabular form:

Name of Corporation	Name of Security Issue	Partner or Partners Present	Partner Participated in Discussion (Answer "Yes" or "No")	Action of Partner
				Voted	Refrained

Sincerely yours,

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,

Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study.

PRNehekmis: ok.

J. P. MORGAN & Co.

Wall St. corner Broad, New York

New York, December 7, 1939.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

*Special Counsel, Monopoly Study, Investment Banking Section,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: Referring to your letter of November 15, 1939, I have tried to comply with your request for further details in answer to your inquiry of October 12, 1939, and am setting forth below the information which I have obtained. However, I am now not entirely certain just what you intend your inquiry to cover. In your letter of October 12th on this subject you referred only to the action of the directors in authorizing the transactions with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated while in your letter of November 15, 1939, you refer to the action of the directors in authorizing the issue and offering of the securities. You will appreciate that the two things are not the same. As I said to you when we discussed the subject in your office, a director might participate in the discussion and vote upon the advisability of issuing securities and upon the character, terms, and amount of the securities, and at the same time refrain from discussing and voting upon the making of the underwriting arrangements.

In none of the situations about which you have inquired do the minutes, so far as I have been able to ascertain, indicate that the directors who are partners in J. P. Morgan & Co. refrained from discussing and voting upon the advisability of issuing the securities or upon the character, terms, and amount thereof. On the contrary, the best recollection of those directors is that they participated in the deliberations and in the voting upon such matters. I think, therefore, that I need attempt to cover in detail only the question whether the directors refrained from discussing and voting upon the underwriting arrangements with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. I really covered this phase in my letter of November 13, 1939, but will here give you more details.

In view of what I have said above and in view of some of the comments below, you will appreciate that it is difficult, if not impossible, to put the information into the tabular form which you have suggested but I trust that this will not unduly complicate the matter for you.

1. Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc. $35,000,000 3¼% Debentures due 1946 and $35,000,000 3½% Debentures due 1956.—The Board of Trustees at a meeting on December 23, 1935, at which Mr. Whitney was present, authorized the Chairman to continue negotiations for the sale of debentures to underwriters. On April 6, 1936, at a meeting at which Mr. Whitney was present, the Board of Trustees authorized the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and the minutes do not indicate, nor does Mr. Whitney recall that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the authorization.

2. Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc. $30,000,000 3½% Debentures due 1958.—Because of a protracted illness, Mr. Whitney was not present at the several meetings of the Board of Trustees or Executive Committee at which the issuance and sale of the Debentures were considered, nor was he present at the meeting at which the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated was finally authorized.

3. Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc. $60,000,000 3½% Debentures due 1948.—The Board of Trustees at a meeting on February 28, 1938, at which Mr. Whitney was present, approved in principle the issuance of debentures and authorized the Chairman to negotiate with underwriters. Mr. Whitney was not present at the meetings of the Board of Trustees at which the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated was finally authorized and ratified.

4. The New York Edison Company, Inc. $55,000,000 3¼% Bonds due 1965.—At meetings held on December 23, 1935, at which Mr. Whitney was present, the Board of Directors of The New York Edison Company, Inc. and the Board of Trustees of Consolidated Gas Company approved in principle the issuance and sale of new bonds by New York Edison Company, Inc. to underwriters. Mr. Whitney was not present at the meeting at which the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated was finally authorized.

5. The New York Edison Company, Inc. $30,000,000 3¼% Bonds due 1966.—The Board of Trustees of Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc. at a meeting on June 8, 1936, at which Mr. Whitney was present, approved in principle the issuance and sale of new bonds by The New York Edison Company, Inc. to underwriters. The Board of Directors of The New York Edison Company, Inc. at a meeting held on July 21, 1936, authorized the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. Mr. Whitney was present at the meeting and the minutes do not indicate, nor does Mr. Whitney recall, that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the authorization of the underwriting agreement.

6. Brooklyn Edison Company, Inc. $55,000,000 3¼% Bonds due 1966.—Mr. Whitney was not a director of this Company.

7. New York Steam Corporation $27,982,000 3½% Bonds due 1963.—Mr. Whitney was not a director of this Company. Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc. was a party to the underwriting agreement and the Board of Trustees of that Company at a meeting held on June 6, 1938, at which Mr. Whitney was present, approved in principle the issuance and sale of new bonds by New York Steam Corporation to underwriters and authorized the guarantee of such bonds by Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc. and at a meeting held on August 10, 1938, approved the underwriting agreement to which the Company was a party. Mr. Whitney was present at this meeting and the minutes do not indicate, nor does he recall, that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the authorization of the agreement.

8. Continental Oil Company $21,071,600 2¾% Convertible Debentures due 1948.—The Board of Directors at a meeting held on November 25, 1938, authorized and, at a meeting held on November 28, 1938, ratified the execution of the underwriting agreement. Mr. Whitney was unable to be present at either meeting but was fully familiar with the transaction to be considered. Mr. T. S. Lamont was present at both meetings and the minutes do not indicate, nor does Mr. Lamont recall, that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the authorization of the agreement.

9. Johns-Manville Corporation 100,000 shares of Common Stock.—The Board of Directors at a meeting held on January 15, 1937, at which both Mr. Whitney and Mr. Bartow were present, authorized the officers to negotiate an underwriting agreement. The underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated was authorized at a meeting of the Board of Directors held on February 8, 1937. Mr. Whitney was unable to be present at the meeting but was fully familiar with the transaction to be considered. Mr. Bartow was present at the meeting and the minutes indicate that he refrained from voting upon the authorization of the underwriting agreement.

10. Phelps Dodge Corporation $20,285,000 3½% Convertible Debentures due 1952.—The Board of Directors at a meeting held on April 26, 1937, authorized financing through the issuance of $20,000,000 of debentures and authorized the executive officers to work out with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated the terms of the issue and underwriting arrangements. Mr. T. S. Lamont was present at the meeting and the minutes do not indicate, nor does Mr. Lamont recall, that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the proposal. The Board of Directors on May 27, 1937, authorized the issuance of the Debentures and approved the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. The minutes do not indicate, and Mr. Lamont does not recall, that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the authorization.

11. Philadelphia Electric Company $150,000,000 3½% Bonds due 1967.—The Board of Directors at a meeting held on March 9, 1937, authorized the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. Mr. Hopkinson was present and the minutes indicate that he refrained from voting upon the authorization.

12. Standard Brands Incorporated 200,000 shares of Preferred Stock.—The Board of Directors at a meeting held on June 2, 1937, directed the presentation to the stockholders of authorizations to the President or the Treasurer to negotiate the sale of 200,000 shares of Preferred Stock to a group of underwriters which might include Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. Mr. H. P. Davison was present at the meeting and the minutes do not indicate, nor does he recall, that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the proposal. The Board of Directors at a meeting held on June 21, 1937, authorized the underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. Mr. H. P. Davison was present at the meeting and the minutes do not indicate, nor does he recall, that he refrained from discussing or voting upon the authorization.

Yours very truly,

HENRY C. ALEXANDER

The following letter and document are included at this point in connection with testimony, supra, p. 12096.

UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION,
71 Broadway, New York, October 10, 1939.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,

*Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section, Monopoly Study,
Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington,, D. C.*

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: In reply to your letter of October 9th, I am enclosing herewith a copy of the minutes of the Board of Directors of United States Steel Corporation held on May 31, 1938.

Sincerely yours.

IRVING S. OLDS.
(Irving S. Olds.)

ISO:MRW
Enclosure

[To be Returned to Secretary at Close of Meeting.]

UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION BOARD OF DIRECTORS—NEW YORK,
MAY 31ST, 1938

MEETING MAY 31ST, 1938

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation was duly held at No. 71 Broadway, in the City of New York, on Tuesday, the 31st day of May, 1938, at 12:15 o'clock P. M.

The following Directors were present:

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr.,
Sewell L. Avery,
Philip R. Clarke,
Benjamin F. Fairless,
James A. Farrell,
William J. Filbert,
Leon Fraser,
Walter S. Gifford,

William A. Irvin,
Thomas W. Lamont,
Nathan L. Miller,
J. P. Morgan,
Junius S. Morgan,
Irving S. Olds,
George A. Sloan,
Enders M. Voorhees.

Vice President Hughes was present by request.

The Chairman of the Board, Mr. Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., occupied the Chair.

APPROVAL DIRECTORS' MINUTES APRIL 26TH AND MAY 10TH, 1938

The minutes of the previous meetings of the Board of Directors, held April 26th and May 10th, 1938, were read and considered; and, on motion, duly seconded, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved: That the proceedings of the Board of Directors at its meetings held April 26th and May 10th, 1938, as recorded in the minutes thereof, be, and hereby the same are, approved, ratified, adopted and confirmed.

APPROVAL FINANCE COMMITTEE MINUTES APRIL 26TH TO MAY 24TH, 1938, INCLUSIVE

The Secretary submitted a summary of the proceedings of the Finance Committee at its meetings held on April 26th, May 3rd, 10th, 17th and 24th, 1938, and presented the minutes of said meetings; and, on motion, duly seconded, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved: That the proceedings of the Finance Committee at its meetings held on April 26th, May 3d, 10th, 17th and 24th, 1938, as the same are recorded in the minutes of such meetings, be, and hereby the same are, approved, ratified, adopted and confirmed.

REGISTRATION STATEMENT ON FORM A-2—TEN YEAR DEBENTURES.

The Chairman submitted to the meeting copies of the Registration Statement on Form A-2 and Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 thereto, covering an issue of \$100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of the Corporation, which Registration Statement and two amendments he stated had been filed by the Corporation with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D. C. on May 11, 1938, May 25, 1938 and May 27, 1938, respectively, pursuant to the resolutions adopted by the Board of Directors of the Corporation at its meeting on May 10, 1938.

STATEMENTS AND AMENDMENTS PRESENTED—REPORT ON INTEREST RATE AND REDEMPTION PRICES.

The Chairman reported that the Finance Committee, pursuant to said resolutions, had fixed $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ as the annual rate of interest to be borne by such Debentures and had determined the redemption prices to be the following percentages of the principal amount of the Debentures to be redeemed: To and including June 1, 1941, 103%; thereafter, to and including June 1, 1944, 102%; thereafter, to and including June 1, 1947, 101%; and thereafter, 100%.

PROPOSED INDENTURE AND UNDERWRITING AGREEMENT PRESENTED.

The Chairman also submitted to the meeting a copy of the proposed Indenture, dated as of June 1, 1938, between the Corporation and The First National Bank of the City of New York, as Trustee, under which such \$100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ Debentures are to be issued, and a copy of the proposed Underwriting Agreement, dated May 31, 1938, between the Corporation and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, acting on behalf of itself and the other underwriters named therein, covering the purchase of such issue of Debentures by the underwriters.

AMENDMENT NO. 3, NAMING PRICES, PRESENTED.

The Chairman also submitted to the meeting a copy of Amendment No. 3 to such Registration Statement, naming $98\frac{1}{4}\%$ as the price of such Debentures to the underwriters and 100% as the price of such Debentures to the public. He stated that such Amendment No. 3 would be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D. C. after the conclusion of this meeting.

PROSPECTUS AND SPECIMENS OF TEMPORARY DEBENTURES PRESENTED.

The Chairman also submitted to the meeting the final amended Prospectus and a proposed form of Newspaper Prospectus both relating to such issue of Ten Year $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ Debentures, also specimens of the temporary Debentures to be issued in the first instance.

The Chairman reported that it was expected that such Registration Statement would become effective on June 1, 1938, and that the Debentures would be offered by the underwriters for sale on June 2, 1938.

After a full discussion, on motion, duly seconded, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

ACTION OF OFFICERS IN EXECUTING AND FILING FORM A-2 AND AMENDMENTS NOS. 1 AND 2, RATIFIED.

Resolved: That the action of the Chairman of the Board of Directors, the President and the Secretary of this Corporation, in executing in the name and for and on behalf of this Corporation, under its corporate seal, and in filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, a Registration Statement upon Form A-2, dated May 10, 1938, and Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 thereto, dated May 24, 1938, and May 27, 1938, respectively, with accompanying financial statements and schedules, exhibits and drafts of Prospectus, all as presented to this meeting and hereby approved and ordered initialed for identification and filed with the records of this Corporation, for the purpose of registering under said Securities Act an issue of $100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year Debentures of this Corporation, due June 1, 1948, as heretofore authorized at the meeting of the Board of Directors of this Corporation held on the 10th day of May, 1938, be, and the same hereby is, in all respects ratified, approved, confirmed and adopted; and further ACTION OF FINANCE COMMITTEE IN FIXING INTEREST RATE AND REDEMPTION PRICES, RATIFIED. TITLE OF DEBENTURES FIXED.

Resolved: That the action of the Finance Committee of this Corporation in determining $3\frac{3}{4}\%$ as the annual rate of interest to be borne by said Debentures of this Corporation, due June 1, 1948, pursuant to the authority granted to the Finance Committee at the meeting of the Board of Directors of this Corporation held on May 10, 1938, and in fixing the redemption and sinking fund prices and in determining the period or periods to which such redemption and sinking fund prices apply, viz.: To and including June 1, 1941, 103%; thereafter, to and including June 1, 1944, 102%; thereafter, to and including June 1, 1947, 101%; and thereafter, 100%, be, and the same hereby is, in every respect ratified, approved, confirmed and adopted; and that the title of the said Debentures is hereby declared to be the "Ten Year $3\frac{3}{4}\%$ Debentures, due June 1, 1948," of this Corporation.

After a full discussion (in which Messrs. Leon Fraser and Walter S. Gifford, who are directors of The First National Bank of the City of New York, and Messrs. J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and Junius S. Morgan, who are members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., which firm is named in the below mentioned Indenture as paying agent, sinking fund agent and bond registrar, did not participate) and upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously carried (Messrs. Leon Fraser, Walter S. Gifford, J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and Junius S. Morgan not voting), it was

OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO EXECUTE INDENTURE

Resolved: That the Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or the President or any Vice President of this Corporation, for and in its name and as its corporate act and deed, be, and hereby he is, authorized to execute, acknowledge and deliver, under the corporate seal of this Corporation, attested by its Secretary or any Assistant Secretary, an Indenture between this Corporation and The First National Bank of the City of New York, as Trustees, dated as of June 1, 1938, covering said issue of \$100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year $3\frac{3}{4}\%$ Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation, in the form or substantially in the form of the Indenture presented to this meeting and hereby approved and ordered initialed for identification and filed with the records of this Corporation; and further

OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO SIGN AND DELIVER DEBENTURES

Resolved: That the President or any Vice President of this Corporation, for and in its name and as its corporate act and deed, be, and hereby he is, authorized, upon the execution and delivery of said Indenture, to sign said Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation in the aggregate principal amount of $100,000,000 and, pursuant to the provisions of Article Second of said Indenture, to deliver said $100,000,000 principal amount of said Debentures, executed by this Corporation in accordance with said Indenture, to The First National Bank of the City of New York, as Trustee, and to request such Trustee to authenticate and deliver said Debentures upon the written order of this Corporation signed by the Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or the President or any Vice President of this Corporation, and by the Treasurer or any Assistant Treasurer of this Corporation, under its corporate seal attested by the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of this Corporation, and that the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of this Corporation be, and hereby he is, authorized and directed to affix the corporate seal of this Corporation to said Indenture and to said written order and to cause a facsimile of such corporate seal to be affixed to said Debentures and to attest such affixings of said seal, and that The First National Bank of the City of New York, as Trustee, be, and hereby it is, authorized and directed to authenticate and deliver such Debentures pursuant to said request and written order; and further

OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO ISSUE, SIGN AND DELIVER TEMPORARY DEBENTURES

Resolved: That, pursuant to the provisions of Section 7 of Article First of said Indenture, until definitive Debentures are ready for delivery, the President or any Vice President of this Corporation be, and hereby he is, authorized, empowered and directed, subject to the provisions and limitations set forth in said Indenture, to execute in the name and on behalf of this Corporation, and to cause to be authenticated and delivered by the Trustee, upon a written order of this Corporation signed in the manner set forth in the preceding paragraph of these resolutions, and to issue temporary printed Debentures without coupons in the denominations of $1,000 and $500, exchangeable for definitive Debentures, when ready for delivery, said temporary Debentures to be in the form of the specimens presented to this meeting and hereby approved; and that the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of this Corporation be, and hereby he is, authorized and directed to cause a facsimile of the corporate seal of this Corporation to be affixed to said temporary printed Debentures and to attest such affixings of such seal; and The First National Bank of the City of New York, as Trustee, be, and hereby it is, authorized and directed to authenticate such temporary Debentures and deliver the same in accordance with a written order of this Corporation signed in the manner set forth in the preceding paragraph of these resolutions; and further

Resolved: That the officers of this Corporation be, and hereby they are, authorized, empowered and directed to do or cause to be done all such acts and things deemed by them necessary or advisable and proper to effect the intents and purposes of the foregoing resolutions.

After consideration and discussion (in which Messrs. J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and Junius S. Morgan did not participate) and upon motion, duly made, seconded and unanimously carried (Messrs. J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and Junius S. Morgan not voting), it was

AUTHORIZING J. P. MORGAN & CO., PAYING AGENT, ETC. TO EMPLOY COUNSEL AND INDEMNIFYING SAID FIRM

Resolved: That when the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. deems it expedient in connection with any of its agencies in respect of which it has been appointed or will act under the said Indenture between this Corporation and The First National Bank of the City of New York, dated as of June 1, 1938, it may apply to counsel for this Corporation, or to its own counsel, for instructions or advice, and for any action taken by it in good faith in the performance of any of its aforesaid agencies, this Corporation will fully protect and indemnify it and hold it harmless from any and all liability; and said J. P. Morgan & Co. may employ agents or attorneys-in-fact, and shall not be answerable for the default or misconduct of any agent appointed in pursuance hereof, if such agent or attorney-in-fact shall have been selected with reasonable care; nor shall J. P. Morgan & Co. be liable for anything whatsoever in connection with any of its aforesaid agencies except for its negligence or bad faith; and, except as aforesaid, this Corporation agrees to reimburse and indemnify said J. P. Morgan & Co. for and against any liability or damage it may sustain or incur in acting as such agent.

PROPOSED UNDERWRITING AGREEMENT PRESENTED

The Chairman submitted to the meeting a proposed Underwriting Agreement, dated May 31, 1938, with an underwriting group represented by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated for the purchase from this Corporation by the several purchasers named in said Underwriting Agreement of \$100,000,000 principal amount of said Ten Year $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation, at $98\frac{1}{4}\%$ of their principal amount, plus interest accrued thereon from June 1, 1938, to the date of payment and delivery.

Messrs. J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and Junius S. Morgan advised the meeting that each of them owns a substantial amount of the outstanding 6% preferred stock (4% cumulative) of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and that, because of their ownership of such preferred stock, they preferred not to vote on any question concerning the aforesaid Underwriting Agreement.

Mr. Irving S. Olds advised the meeting that the firm of White & Case, of which he is a member, has acted as counsel for Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and the other underwriters in connection with the proposed purchase of said issue of Debentures, and that accordingly he preferred not to vote on any question concerning the aforesaid Underwriting Agreement.

After consideration and discussion (in which Messrs. J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont, Junius S. Morgan and Irving S. Olds did not participate) and upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously carried (Messrs. J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont, Junius S. Morgan and Irving S. Olds not voting), it was

UNDERWRITING AGREEMENT APPROVED—OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO EXECUTE

Resolved: That the form of Underwriting Agreement, dated May 31, 1938, between this Corporation and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, acting severally on behalf of itself and the several Underwriters named therein, together with the exhibit thereto attached, presented to this meeting and ordered initialed for identification and filed with the records of this Corporation, covering the sale by this Corporation and the purchase by the several Underwriters of an issue of \$100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year $3\frac{1}{4}\%$ Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation, at $98\frac{1}{4}\%$ of their principal amount, plus interest accrued thereon from June 1, 1938 to the date of payment and delivery, be, and the same hereby is, approved, and the Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or the President of this Corporation be, and each hereby is, authorized and directed in the name and on behalf of this Corporation to execute such Underwriting Agreement, with such changes and modifications therein as, with the advice of counsel, the officer executing such Underwriting Agreement may deem necessary or advisable and, upon the acceptance of such Underwriting Agreement by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated acting on behalf of the several Underwriters, to deliver such Underwriting Agreement as so executed; and further

Resolved: That the officers of this Corporation be, and hereby they are, authorized, empowered and directed to do or cause to be done all such acts and things deemed by them necessary or advisable and proper to effect the sale and delivery of said Debentures pursuant to such Underwriting Agreement, and otherwise to carry out the obligations of this Corporation under such Underwriting Agreement.

After a full discussion, on motion, duly seconded, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO EXECUTE AND FILE AMENDMENT NO. 3

Resolved: That the Chairman of the Board of Directors, the President and the Secretary of this Corporation are hereby authorized and directed in the name and for and on behalf of this Corporation, under its corporate seal, to execute and to file with the Securities and Exchange Commission Amendment No. 3, dated May 31, 1938, to said Registration Statement, in the form or substantially in the form presented to this meeting, with accompanying schedules and exhibits and the final amended Prospectus, all as presented to this meeting and hereby approved and ordered initialed for identification and filed with the records of this Corporation, such Amendment No. 3 to be so filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission after the execution and delivery of the above mentioned Indenture and Underwriting Agreement; and further

CHAIRMAN AUTHORIZED TO EXECUTE AND FILE PROSPECTUS

Resolved: That the Chairman of the Board of Directors of this Corporation is hereby authorized and directed, in the name of and on behalf of this Corporation, to execute and file with the Securities and Exchange Commission said final amended Prospectus, in the form or substantially in the form presented to this meeting and hereby approved and ordered initialed for identification and filed with the records of this Corporation; and further

NEWSPAPER PROSPECTUS APPROVED

Resolved: That the Newspaper Prospectus relating to said $100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation, in the form or substantially in the form of the Newspaper Prospectus presented to this meeting, is hereby approved and ordered initialed for identification and filed with the records of this Corporation, and the Chairman of the Board of Directors of this Corporation is hereby authorized and directed to approve said Newspaper Prospectus on behalf of this Corporation and to deliver the same to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

After a full discussion, on motion, duly seconded, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

AUTHORIZING QUALIFICATION OF DEBENTURES FOR SALE IN ILLINOIS

WHEREAS, this Corporation desires to qualify for sale in the State of Illinois, in accordance with the Illinois Securities Act, $100,000,000 aggregate principal amount of its Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948; and

WHEREAS, in connection with such qualification it is necessary that this Corporation submit the following agreements, which said agreements are to remain in full force and effect so long as said $100,000,000 aggregate principal amount of Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948, shall be offered for sale in the State of Illinois under this qualification, addressed to the Secretary of State of Illinois and executed by this Corporation as the "Issuer" of said Debentures:

a. That no changes in the methods of sale of the proposed issue as set forth in the application and exhibits will be made without first notifying the Secretary of State.

b. That no changes in the organization or capital structure of "Issuer" will be made or any escrow, contract, agreement or other document filed with or made a part of the application will be altered, amended or cancelled, without first notifying the Secretary of State.

c. That the "Issuer" will promptly notify, and furnish full information to, the Secretary of State of any action taken by any public official or public authority or any litigation or action of any kind that substantially affects adversely the "Issuer", its securities, or the sale and distribution of its securities.

Now, therefore, be it resolved: That Enders M. Voorhees, the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or Adolph W. Vogt, the Comptroller, of this Corporation, be, and hereby he is, authorized and directed for and on behalf of this Corporation to enter into agreements with the Secretary of State of Illinois, as hereinabove set forth, and to execute and deliver the same to said Secretary of the State of Illinois for and on behalf of this Corporation; and further

Resolved: That Geo. K. Leet, the Secretary of this Corporation, be, and hereby he is, authorized and directed for and on behalf of this Corporation to deliver to said Secretary of the State of Illinois, a certified copy of the above and foregoing resolutions in connection with the application of this Corporation for permission to sell said $100,000,000 aggregate principal amount of Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948, in the State of Illinois.

After a full discussion, on motion, duly seconded, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO REGISTER DEBENTURES UNDER S. E. C. ACT OF 1934

Resolved: That the Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or the President, or any Vice President, or the Comptroller, and the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of this Corporation, be, and hereby they are, authorized to prepare or cause to be prepared an application on Form 8-A for the purpose of registering said issue of $100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended; and that the said officers be, and hereby they are, authorized and directed in the name and on behalf of this Corporation, and under its corporate seal, to execute such application in such form as, with the advice of counsel, they deem necessary or advisable, and that upon the execution of such application as required by the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, and under the rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission promulgated thereunder, the Comptroller and Secretary of this Corporation be, and hereby they are, authorized and directed to file or cause the filing of the same with the Securities and Exchange Commission and the New York Stock Exchange, on such date or dates as may seem advisable to the Chairman of the Board of Directors, the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or the President or the Comptroller of this Corporation; and further

OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO LIST DEBENTURES ON NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

Resolved: That the Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors, or the Chairman of the Finance Committee, or the President, or any Vice President, or the Comptroller and the Secretary or any Assistant Secretary of this Corporation, be, and hereby they are, authorized to prepare or cause to be prepared a form of listing application, with any required financial statements, schedules and exhibits, for the purpose of listing on the New York Stock Exchange said issue of $100,000,000 principal amount of Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation; and that the said officers be, and hereby they are, authorized and directed, in the name and on behalf of this Corporation and under its corporate seal, to execute said listing application in such form as, with the advice of counsel, they may deem necessary or advisable, and that, upon the execution of said listing application as required by the rules and regulations of the New York Stock Exchange, Enders M. Voorhees, the Chairman of the Finance Committee, Adolph W. Vogt, the Comptroller, and Geo. K. Leet, the Secretary, of this Corporation, be, and hereby they are, authorized and directed to file the said application or cause the same to be filed with the New York Stock Exchange, and that they or any one or more of them be, and hereby they are, designated by the Corporation to appear before the Committee on Stock List of the New York Stock Exchange, with authority to them or any one or more of them to make such changes in said application or in any agreements relative thereto as may be necessary to conform with the requirements for listing; and further

Resolved: That the officers of this Corporation be, and hereby they are, authorized, empowered and directed to do or cause to be done any and all such further acts and things and to execute any and all documents as, with the advice of counsel, they may deem necessary or convenient to carry out and to execute the purpose and the intent of the foregoing resolutions in order to effect the registration of the Ten Year 3¼% Debentures, due June 1, 1948, of this Corporation under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, and to effect the listing of said Debentures on the New York Stock Exchange.

On motion, duly seconded, the meeting adjourned.

Geo. K. Leet, Secretary.

The following letters and list are included at this point in connection with Mr. Leffingwell's testimony, supra, 12103.

JANUARY 29, 1940.

RUSSELL C. LEFFINGWELL, Esq.,
Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co.,
23 Wall Street, New York, New York.

DEAR MR. LEFFINGWELL: I regret deeply the delay in acknowledging your letter of January 2, 1940, in which you were good enough to send a memorandum amplifying some of the views which you expressed to the Committee at the time of your appearance. As you are no doubt aware, the memorandum has been offered in evidence.

You may recall in connection with your testimony before the Temporary National Economic Committee on December 20, 1939 the following colloquy (Page 269 of the Verbatim Record) took place:

"MR. NEHEMKIS. The increase in deposits, I take it, permitted the large increase in Government securities, would you say?"

"MR. LEFFINGWELL. Excuse me.

"MR. NEHEMKIS. The question was, did the increase in deposits over this period of time permit the large increase in holdings of Government securities?"

"MR. LEFFINGWELL. Yes, sir, I should think so.

"SENATOR KING. You utilize your profits for the acquisition of Government securities so you can get some little interest.

"MR. LEFFINGWELL. Of course, it all goes into one total, it is not earmarked but the increase in deposits is reflected in part.

MR. NEHEMKIS. Now most of these Government securities are wholly tax exempt, are they not, sir?

"MR. LEFFINGWELL. Well, I would have to get an analysis of that. I wouldn't be able to say, because, as you know, the Government issues a variety of issues, some of which are wholly tax exempt and some of which are not wholly tax exempt, and I am not at all sure how that stands in relation to the portfolio.

"MR. NEHEMKIS. Would you make it available at some later date at your convenience?

"MR. LEFFINGWELL. Yes."

Could you advise me whether you wish to add anything to the record in connection with the foregoing?

Sincerely yours,

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr.,
Special Counsel, Investment Banking
Section, Monopoly Study.

PRNchemkis: ok

23 WALL STREET, NEW YORK, February 2, 1940.

DEAR MR. NEHEMKIS: I received your courteous letter of January 29th. Yes, I was glad to see that my Notes had been put in the record. I quite understood how busy you must be and did not expect an early answer to my previous letter.

I am obliged to you for reminding me of the colloquy which is quoted in your letter. I enclose a list of our holdings of United States Government obligations at par on September 30th, the date of our then last published statement. I trust that this gives you the information which you desire.

If there is anything else you need to explain or amplify my testimony or my pamphlet Notes please do not hesitate to call upon me.

With appreciation of your courteous reminder, I am

Very truly yours

R. C. LEFFINGWELL.

PETER R. NEHEMKIS, Jr., Esq.,
Special Counsel, Investment Banking Section,
Securities & Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.
Enclosure

J. P. Morgan & Co.-Drexel & Co.—Par Value of United States Government Obligations Held September 30, 1939

Description	Tax Exempt	Taxable as to Surtax
U. S. of America $\frac{3}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "A" due June 15, 1944	\$28,000,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "A" due June 15, 1943	27,100,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "B" due December 15, 1943	4,012,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "C" due December 15, 1941	6,400,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes due December 15, 1939	22,350,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "B" due June 15, 1941	23,600,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "C" due December 15, 1940	19,000,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "C" due December 15, 1940	39,750,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "A" due March 15, 1941	37,000,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "A" due March 15, 1942	23,000,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "C" due December 15, 1942	13,500,000	-----
U. S. of America $\frac{1}{4}$ % Treas. Notes "A" due March 15, 1940	25,363,000	-----
U. S. of America 2% Treas. Notes due September 15, 1942	1,000,000	-----
U. S. of America 2% Treas. Bonds due December 15, 1947	-----	$1,000,000
U. S. of America $\frac{3}{4}$ % Treas. Bonds due December 15, 1945	-----	1,000,000
U. S. of America $\frac{3}{4}$ % Treas. Bonds due September 15, 1945/47	-----	1,000,000
U. S. of America Conv. 3% due January 1, 1946	45,000	-----
U. S. of America Conv. 3% due January 1, 1947	10,000	-----
Commodity Credit Corp. $\frac{3}{4}$ % Notes "C" due November 2, 1939	-----	8,400,000
Commodity Credit Corp. $\frac{3}{4}$ % Notes "D" due August 1, 1941	-----	8,870,000
Home Owners Loan Corp. $\frac{3}{4}$ % due May 15, 1941	-----	1,000,000
Home Owners Loan Corp. $\frac{3}{4}$ % due July 1, 1944/42 "G"	-----	12,000,000
Reconstruction Finance Corp. $\frac{3}{4}$ % Notes "N" due July 20, 1941	-----	4,350,000
Reconstruction Finance Corp. $\frac{3}{4}$ % Notes "R" due January 15, 1942	-----	15,420,000
Federal Land Bank 4% due July 1, 1946/44	200,000	-----
Federal Land Bank 3% due January 1, 1956/46	250,000	-----
United States Housing Authority $\frac{3}{4}$ % Notes "B" due February 1, 1944	-----	320,000

The following document was entered in the record on January 18, 1940, and is printed at this point in connection with the testimony of R. C. Leffingwell, supra, p. 12107.

EXHIBIT No. 2163

MEMORANDUM PREPARED BY R. C. LEFFINGWELL, PARTNER IN J. P. MORGAN & COMPANY, SUPPLEMENTING HIS TESTIMONY BEFORE THE INVESTMENT BANKING STUDY OF THE TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE.

I. IDLE MONEY.

The amount and velocity of individual bank deposits are determined by the depositor, not by the bank. A depositor selects his bank for safety, for financial accommodation and service, and because of propinquity and convenience. It is the depositor who decides when and with whom and in what amount he deposits his money. It is the depositor who decides when and from whom and how often to draw checks. The banker has nothing to do with these things, or precious little. His business is to keep himself in a position to honor the checks when they are presented, to run a safe and sound bank. And the banker who undertook to tell the depositor how to manage his business, when he could and when he could not draw checks, how often or how seldom, would soon have no deposits to worry about. That is the depositor's business.

But the amount and activity of the depositor's account is influenced and indeed almost controlled by economic conditions and policies. His account will be active if his business is active; and nowadays his business is not active, or not as active as it should be, because of conditions and and policies which retard recovery.

In times of good business, deposits are often created by the banks lending money and crediting the depositors with the proceeds of the loans, subject to withdrawal by the depositors at once or from time to time as required. In bad times, such as we have had for ten years, deposits are not so much created that way. In these times the immense expansion of bank deposits is the result of the inflow of fright money from Europe, the devaluation of the dollar, and our own Government's spending and deficit financing.

Evidently these three major factors in the expansion of bank deposits are of a character to discourage velocity of bank deposits rather than to stimulate it, because they upset business confidence.

I cannot agree with those who criticize the Government for going off gold in 1933. Then all the banks, including the Federal Reserve Banks, had to close their windows and stop payment. It was sheer grim compulsion that took us off gold. But it is evident that there was nothing very bright and cheerful and encouraging for business about it.

Similarly the flight money from Europe expanded bank deposits here. But these deposits were running away because of the fear of war and revolution in Europe and Asia. The same fear tended to keep deposits idle here.

Government spending and deficit financing also carried their own antidote against recovery. They are perhaps at first stimulants. But, too long continued, they become depressants. Nobody doubts that the Government was bound to look after the poor and the unemployed liberally and freely and generously. Government spending for relief was most necessary. But Government spending for recovery defeats itself. Government spending for materials and made work, that is work that does not need to be done, is definitely discouraging to business, retards recovery and deprives deposits of their velocity. When the Government bids for materials and supplies and for labor, in competition with business, and, still more, when Government itself engages in or subsidizes enterprises directly competitive with business, for instance housing, public utilities, inland waterways, transportation and banking, there is a plain indication to enterprise to stay out of those fields. No business man supposes that he can compete successfully with the Government of the United States in any field whatever.

Furthermore, the fact of the immense deficit which results from Government spending fills the minds of business men with a sense of apprehension. The public debt, including guaranteed debt, of the United States has been multiplied by about three in the last nine years, while the United States is at peace. It is about 20 billion dollars greater than at the war peak twenty years ago. Sensible people are concerned about this. This fear retards recovery and keeps bank deposits still and sterile.

Our tariff system and our tax system have not been devised with a view to producing revenue so much as with a view to retarding imports in the one case, and redistributing the wealth of wealthy persons and corporations in the other. The tariff, and the excessive burden, and the wholly unequal burden, of taxation, retard trade and recovery, and therefore retard the circulation of bank deposits.

The Government itself has had latterly a definite policy to prevent a rise in prices. In pursuance of that policy in 1936 and 1937 it increased the reserve requirements of member banks, sterilized gold and announced that some prices were too high. These drastic deflationary steps brought on a severe depression. Even now Government is considering measures to prevent a rise in prices. Now if Government does as it has been doing, take steps to increase the cost of labor and taxes on the one hand, and, on the other hand, prevents prices from rising, it is obvious that business is going to be ground between the upper and nether millstone. Rising costs and frozen prices will surely take the profit out of the profit system. This discourages enterprise and freezes deposits.

Another thing that keeps money idle is that business finds itself perplexed by ever-increasing bureaucratic interference with its normal processes. Government manages our money and plans our economy. Government creates more and more bureaus, and sometimes puts the bureaus in charge of men without large practical experience either in the civil service or in business. Business must and should, and on the whole it does, obey the law. It is difficult however for business to adjust to the changing decrees of bureaus. This is one of the things that retards recovery and slows down the velocity of deposits. I do not say that critically. I don't believe any group of Government managers, however able, can manage the business of 130 million Americans successfully. I think you have to leave it to the individual enterprise and initiative of all these people in all these cities and towns and hamlets and farms and mines. And I do not believe, even if you could make a success of a central bureaucratic government, it would be worth doing, because the people would become just a nation of robots. And then we shouldn't be worth saving.

II. MANAGED MONEY AND PLANNED ECONOMY

Turning now to more detailed consideration of managed money and planned economy: Few persons seem to realize how far economic conditions in this country are due, not only to the Great War of 1914, and the international policies and disturbances which followed, but also to monetary management and economic planning by our own governmental authorities. Until twenty-two years ago we had on the whole a free economy, subject to the laws but not to the management of Government authorities. But since the United States entered the war in 1917, the Government has in large measure managed our money and planned our economy.

I do not say this critically. For the Government's monetary and fiscal policies from 1917 to 1920 I was, as war-time Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in part responsible. With some other and more recent policies—such as going off gold in 1933, to mention one of the most controversial—I was in full sympathy, and publicly expressed my approval. I have been outspoken in my approval of the easy-money policy, of the tripartite agreements and of the able administration of the Treasury by Secretary Morgenthau. Government could not do otherwise than face and deal with the war crisis in 1917, the deflation crisis in 1933. Government must and should minister without stint to the relief of the poor and the unemployed.

It is our duty, not to criticize, but to learn from experience, not to waste time justifying or blaming past decisions, but to weigh them and their effects for our future guidance.

The point is that Government has for twenty-two years managed our money and to a great extent planned our economy.

The inflation of 1917-1919 was caused by war-deficit financing. The deflation of 1920-1921 was caused by raising the Federal Reserve Bank rate to 6% and then to 7% in the first half of 1920. The recovery from the end of 1922 on was facilitated, and the disastrous inflation of 1927-1929 was stimulated, by easy-money policies of the Federal Reserve Banks, which were always beneficent in intention though they worked out very badly in the latter period. The inevitable collapse of 1929 was precipitated by raising the Federal Reserve Bank rate to 6% in August 1929, a step too long deferred by the Federal Reserve Board. The deflation of 1931-1933 was caused by upholding nobly the pre-war gold standard for a year and a half after England had gone off it. Honorably and to keep our pledged word, for a year and a half, we let the gold go cheap to foreigners who were willing to pay more for it; and deposits were necessarily deflated many times the gold withdrawn, until the banks all closed.

Wisely, and of necessity, the Government suspended gold payments in the spring of 1933. Unwisely, under Professor Warren, Government bid up the price of gold and sold the dollar down in the last half of 1933. Having thus cheapened the dollar and overvalued gold, Government raised the official price of gold from $20.67, the price before April 1933, to $35 an ounce in January 1934.

The dollar was cheapened with the intention of raising the commodity price level, some said to the 1926 level. However, having, after N. R. A. was abolished, got real recovery and a lift in prices in 1936 and early 1937, Government's commodity price policy was reversed, and deflationary measures were adopted to prevent the rise of commodity prices for fear of inflation.

These deflationary measures brought on in the latter part of 1937, the swiftest and most abrupt depression recorded. Steps in this managed deflation were (1) the increase in the reserve requirements of the member banks, (2) the sterilization of gold imports (3) the official announcement that some prices were too high. Simultaneously Government expenditures were curtailed, and the Government collected in the fiscal year 1937-1938 in taxes and social security payments about as much money as the Government was spending, resulting in the elimination of net deficit financing during that fiscal year and some reduction in the publicly owned public debt of the United States.

These deflationary policies were in part reversed in 1938, and a measure of recovery has followed.

That is the economic history in a nutshell of twenty-two years of managed money and planned economy in the United States.

Let us consider some by-products of these policies, and some collateral policies.

On the one hand, by paying $35 an ounce instead of $20.67 Government is paying foreigners a premium, of nearly 70%, above the old gold price, for gold we don't want and can't use since the banks' reserves are excessive already. On the other hand, Government is again using its authority or influence to prevent some prices from rising at home in response to increased demand. So we are selling dollars cheap for gold and keeping prices of commodities cheap too. This gives a double discount to foreign buyers of American goods and securities, but it has not brought full recovery or employment here.

That is partly because our policies have been undermining other currencies, have had a deflationary influence upon world gold prices, and have hampered the trade of the world.

The Fordney-McCumber and Hawley-Smoot tariffs contributed to the world breakdown and to our own. I agree wholeheartedly with Secretary Hull and what, against great handicaps, he has been trying to do about this. I wish he could go faster and farther.

The chief use of gold in the modern world is to settle international balances, to move to and fro across the boundaries of nations—like a shuttle, to and fro. When we make a one-way street for it, all to and no fro, we deprive it of much of its usefulness. When we restrict our buying and lending abroad, when we try to sell everything and to buy little, except gold, and for that one thing we are prepared to outbid that world and pay a fancy price, we imperil the economy of the world and measurably impair the usefulness of gold itself as a monetary metal. When on top of that we sterilize the gold we buy, and, by such deflationary measures as I have described, prevent it from reflecting itself in our price level, we make an immense contribution to world deflation and so to world distress and disorder.

We used to call India the Sink of the Precious Metals because her princes and peoples drained all the gold and silver they could away from the mines and currencies of the world and buried them. But today America has outdone India as a hoarder. The most forward-looking country of the West has replaced India as the Sink of the Precious Metals. We have blind faith in our tariff against imported goods, goods which would be of use to us, and we are gluttons for gold, which we cannot use and have to bury.

We subsidize exports, penalize imports, embargo loans and credits, and suck gold out from the mines and currencies of the world. So we do our bit to make the world a worse place for us and our democracy to live in.

Notwithstanding the evils I have pointed out, I do not favor changing the price of gold again. It is too bad to have to change it at all. To increase the price of gold again when we are already paying too much for it, and have too much of it, would be sheer lunacy. That would be a hair from the tail of the dog that bit us. To decrease the price of gold would be politically impossible, deflationary, and destructive of what confidence remains in our monetary stability. We don't want more deflation. We have had enough of that. We don't want to destroy what confidence remains. We have not enough of that. It is well to have something fixed, in a shimmying world.

Therefore the wise course is to allow commodity prices to rise somewhat, and thus reduce the present gross disparity between the gold price and the commodity price level. A gently rising level of prices is to be desired. This should reduce the burden of debts, bring recovery of business and employment, increase profits, increase incomes and Treasury tax receipts, reduce and ultimately remove the need of relief and made work, and so balance the budget.

Rising costs, for taxes, wages, working conditions and social security on the one hand, and low prices for manufactured goods on the other, tend to make business wholly unprofitable, or at best not profitable enough to attract enterprise and initiative to new undertakings.

Capital is plentiful. It is not timid. It is always ready to take a chance. But when enterprise is confronted by Government policies which tend to make business unprofitable, then enterprise won't hire the money. It knows it hasn't got a chance. Rising costs and low prices will surely make enterprise unprofitable. We cannot permanently keep the profit out of the profit system without making unemployment permanent, nor without bankrupting the Treasury.

Our record peace-time deficit has nearly tripled the public debt, including guaranteed debt, in nine years. It is 20 billions greater than at the wartime peak. Extraordinary budgets, recoverable budgets, and financing through subsidiary corporations of the United States Government cannot help matters much. Everybody knows that there is only one test, whether the public debt is rising. And it is. And that scares business and retards recovery.

This deficit has latterly been financed by the fear of Hitler. Flight money from Europe has been financing our deficit for us. That, and the depression at home, keeps money plentiful, idle and cheap while the Government borrows and spends.

There are other things that we could do better than we have done:

We should have cooperation between business and Government. And I mean cooperation, not dictation by Government, nor vituperation by business. No economy can work well when business and Government are at loggerheads.

We need cooperation between Government, management and labor, to increase the output, and the efficiency, and the real income, of labor as a whole. Present labor policies seem to retard recovery and reemployment, and to perpetuate unemployment of the millions who are unable to get or keep jobs in a depressed economy. High wage rates and short hours for the lucky ones who have jobs do not help the unemployed millions who are out of work.

We should have taxes for revenue only, and not to penalize thrift, or to distribute or destroy wealth, or to stop trade. We should not increase taxes. We can never balance this budget by increasing the burden of taxes. We can do it by increasing the incomes and profits of the people so that tax receipts, instead of tax rates, will be bigger, and the people will be better able to pay the taxes.

Finally, I believe we have had twenty-two disturbed years and a ten-year depression, we have idle men and idle dollars, partly because our money has been managed and our economy has been planned by Government.

The American economy isn't worn out. We are in our adolescence as a people. We have only scratched the surface of the resources of this great continent. Our inventive genius puts new tools and new toys forever at our disposal. Our appetites, our desires, our needs are insatiable. We shall succeed in the struggle for existence and for the common welfare if more reliance be placed on the old-fashioned virtues of individual enterprise and thrift.

I suspect that no man or group of men chosen to govern us can be wise enough to manage our money and plan our economy for us. The infinite variety of human affairs, the infinite desires and aspirations of tens of millions of self-willed people, with their hopes and fears, their loves and hates and ambitions, are too much for any central Government to control and regulate wisely and well. The citizens themselves are likely to produce a healthier, happier and more prosperous country. I suspect that the more money is managed, the more economy is planned, the more business is canalized and regimented, the more the individual is controlled by Government,—then so much the more the national economy will run down hill, will deteriorate and be depressed, at first slowly to be sure, then faster and faster, until the rulers of that economy are forced to seek more desperate remedies, more autocratic powers. It is a vicious circle. I believe the future of the human race, and above all the future of the Americans of the United States, is in the freedom of the individual, not in the aggrandizement of the powers of the State. I long for peace in our time and a government of laws and not of men.

December, 1939.

INDEX

Academy of Political Science, The.....	12325, 1768-2
Accountants for issuers of securities managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	1763
Adams, Charles Francis.....	1659-79, 1659-82
Adams & Peck.....	12014-12015, 1716, 1749
Addinsell, Harry M.....	11967,
11972-11973, 11983, 12015-12016, 1698-1699, 1701-1702, 1717
Advertising agencies for security issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	1763
Agreements and understandings for the division of securities business:
Between Bonbright & Co. and Morgan Stanley & Co. on Niagara Hudson Power System financing.....	12087-12093, 1767-1, 1771
Between J. P. Morgan & Co., First National Bank, N. Y., and National City Bank.....	11853-11854, 11922, 12036-12038, 1727
Example of.....	1659-22
See also A. T. & T. System financing, "library agreement"
Alabama Great Southern Railroad Company.....	1768-2
Alaska Development & Mineral Company.....	12326, 1768-2
Alaska Steamship Company.....	12326, 1768-2
Alexander, Henry C.:
Directorships and trusteeships of.....	12327, 1768-2
Letters concerning documents.....	12326-12330,
1666-1, 1681-1, 1749-1750, 1755, 1768-1
Testimony of.....	11846, 11916, 12044-12045, 12095-12096
Alexander, — —.....	1659-82
Allard, H. B., Way & Hardie.....	1763
Alleghany Corporation.....	12028, 1724, 1768-2
Allentown-Bethlehem Gas Company financing.....	12322-12323
Almstedt Bros.....	1704
American Appraisal Company.....	1763
American Bank Note Company.....	1754-1
American Bell Telephone Company:
Expansion of, through stock purchases.....	11833
Long term debt issues of, 1880-1900.....	1659-6
Officers and directors of.....	1659-2-1659-3
Stock interests in:
By A. T. & T. Co.....	1659-9
By officers, directors and their families.....	1659-4
See also American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; American Telephone & Telegraph System.
American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company.....	12327,
American Museum of Natural History, The.....	12327, 1768-2,
American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation.....	12326, 1768-2
American Red Cross, New York Chapter.....	12326, 1768-2
American Refrigerator Transit Company.....	1768-2
American School of Classical Studies at Athens.....	12325, 1768-2
American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (early history):.....	11829-11844,
1659-1-1659-83, 1708
Control of:
Attempt by Mackay Companies to secure.....	1659-33-1659-43
Degree of, by large stockholders, 1881-1926.....	1659-5
Number of outside stockholders needed to control annual meeting, 1901-1926.....	1659-5

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (early history)—Continued.

- Directors, officers, etc.:
 Agreements with U. N. Bethell on leave of absence..... 1659-81
 Arrangement making G. F. Baker a director..... 11835, 1659-8
 Changes in directorate..... 1659-30-1659-32, 1659-60-1659-70
 Efforts of Mackay companies to secure representation on board..... 1659-60-1659-70
 List of directors prior to 1900..... 1659-2
 Request to government for release from war duties of W. S. Gifford..... 1659-82
 Financial needs, 1900..... 11834, 1659-7
 Operating results, 1907-1908..... 1659-71
 Participation in 1915 loan to Great Britain and France..... 1659-79
 Plan for large scale financing submitted by J. I. Waterbury associates (1905)..... 11835-11836, 1659-9-1659-13
 Proposed combination with Western Union Telegraph Company..... 1659-50, 1659-55-1659-66, 1659-71, 1659-78
 Relations with Mackay Companies..... 1659-33-1659-70
 Relations with bankers:
 Deposits with J. P. Morgan & Co. and others..... 1659-79
 Fear of control by bankers' syndicate..... 11835-11836, 1659-9
 Letter from bankers' syndicate advising economy, 1907..... 1659-30
 Selection of Manhattan Trust Co. as registrar in place of Guaranty Trust Co..... 1659-30
 See also A. T. & T. System financing
 Sale of stock to George F. Baker, 1902..... 11835
 Securities owned by, 1905, value of..... 1659-9
 Security issue of 1906..... 11837-11842, 11847-11851, 1659-7, 1659-15-1659-23, 1661-2
 Stockholders, number of 1881-1926..... 1659-5
 Stock interests in:
 By officers and directors..... 1659-4-1659-5, 1659-60, 1659-63
 By Mackay companies..... 1659-57-1659-60, 1659-62-1659-63, 1659-72-1659-77
 By large stockholders, 1881-1926..... 1659-5
 Stock outstanding, shares, 1881-1926..... 1659-6
 See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing
 American Telephone & Telegraph Co.:
 Criticism by, of F. C. C. report..... 11843-11844, 12316
 Security issues of..... 11837-11842, 11847-11856, 11870-11872, 11916-11918, 11921-11923, 11976-11978, 11980, 1659-79, 1661-2, 1663, 1665-1666, 1680-2, 1681-2-1682, 1686-1688, 1700-1701, 1703-1705, 1707-1708, 1709-3, 1710-2, 1762-1763, 1768-2, 1770.
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing
 American Telephone & Telegraph System, assets of, amount..... 11829
 American Telephone & Telegraph System financing:
 Advertisement of security issue, underwriters' positions in..... 11983, 1700
 Bankers gross commissions on..... 11874-11875
 Banking Act of 1933, effect of..... 11928-11931, 11934-11935, 11963-11964
 Change from New England to national distribution..... 11834-11835, 1659-7
 Competitive bidding on securities:
 Attempt of Halsey Stuart & Co., Inc., to bid on Illinois Bell issue..... 11935-11941, 11986
 Attempt of Lee Higginson & Co. and others to bid on 1906 issue..... 11835-11838, 1659-18-1659-19, 1708
 Change from competitive to non-competitive financing..... 11838-11841, 11843
 Instances of competitive bidding..... 11833, 11835
 Difficulties in disposing of the 1906 bond issue..... 11841-11842
 Documents, sources of, discussed..... 11831-11832, 11845-11846, 11883-11884, 11904-11909, 11920-11921, 11929, 11979-11980, 1660
 Ease of disposing of recent security issues..... 11988
 "Frozen" character of underwriting groups..... 11850-11857, 11870-11872, 11910-11912, 11961, 11965-11968, 11971-11981, 11995-11998, 1644, 1661-2, 1666, 1687, 1697-1699, 1705.
 See also A. T. & T. System financing, proprietary interests in.

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

American Telephone & Telegraph System financing—Continued.

Introductory statement by Commissioner Leon Henderson.....	11829-11830
"Library Agreement" of 1920.....	11867-11870, 11872-11878, 11882-11886, 11892-11903, 11924-11928, 1673, 1679
Transmittal of terms to banking houses concerned, question of.....	11898- 11902, 11942-11943
See also A. T. & T. System financing, proprietary interests in
Long term debt issues, 1900-1905, summary.....	1659-6
Management fees received by bankers on.....	11923- 11924, 11989, 1680-2, 1707
Management of:
Division between Kidder, Peabody & Co. and J. P. Morgan & Co.....	11875, 11923-11924, 1673
Sole management obtained by J. P. Morgan & Co.....	11946-11953
Morgan Stanley & Co. and J. P. Morgan & Co.:
Exclusive nature of financial relations with A. T. & T.....	11830, 11843-11844, 11930-11937, 11970-11971, 11992, 1692-1694, 1708
Introduction of Morgan syndicate to business, 1906.....	11841- 11842, 11847-11848, 11997, 1661-1662
Security issues headed by.....	1661-2, 1681-2-1681-3, 1686-2-1688
Oversubscription of security issues in.....	11917-11919, 1688
Participations in:
Issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.....	11960, 11963-11967, 11975-11980, 1700, 1703, 1703-1707, 1709-3, 1710-2
Issues subsequent to "library agreement" of 1920.....	11885- 11886, 11909-11912, 11922, 11926-11927, 1681-2-1681-3, 1684, 1686-1-1687, 1689-1-1689-2
Participations relative to Morgan Stanley & Co. participations..	11973- 11976, 1703
Percentage interests in early issues.....	11850- 11857, 11861, 11870-11872, 1661-2, 1666
Percentage of total issues purchased by principal underwriters, 1935-39.....	11974-11978, 11864-11866, 11869-11870
Sub-participations of New England group....	11893-11898, 1671-1674
Profits and commissions on.....	11874, 11913-11914, 11988-11990, 1681-2-1682, 1707
Program of financing initiated by W. S. Gifford..	11880-11881, 11933-11934
"Proprietary interests" in.....	11864- 11870, 11875-11876, 11942-11943, 1671-1674, 1680-2
See also A. T. & T. System financing, "library agreement" of 1920.
Risk for underwriters in.....	11984-11986
Sale of stock to stockholders.....	11847, 11986-11987
Security issues:
Issues headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.....	1661-2, 1681-2-1681-3, 1686-2-1688
Issues headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated..	1703-1704, 1707
Public offerings under Securities Act of 1933.....	1700
Sole management of, secured by J. P. Morgan & Co.....	11946-11953
Subscription period in, length of.....	11916-11918, 11988, 1688
Summary of testimony by Counsel.....	11892-11893
Underwriting group:
Appearance in group, of First National Bank and National City Co., 1913.....	11852-11853, 1661-2, 1663
Appearance in group of Guaranty Co. and Bankers Trust Co.....	11880
Appearance in group of Lee, Higginson & Co. and Harris, Forbes & Co., 1916.....	11856-11857, 1661-2, 1664-1665
Changes in allotments, sought by J. P. Morgan & Co.....	11880-11881, 11893, 11996-11997
Effort of Blyth & Co. to secure participation.....	11930-11931, 11933-11934, 11961, 1690-1695
Effort by new Kidder, Peabody & Co. to retain participation..	11942- 11953
Elimination of four New England houses by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	11964-11965, 1644

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

American Telephone & Telegraph System financing—Continued.

Underwriting group—Continued.
Existence of underwriting group under Morgan Stanley & Co., question of.....	11965-11967, 11971-11981, 11995-11997, 1644, 1697-1699, 1703, 1705
Financial responsibility of, guaranteed by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	11968, 11981-11982, 11990-11991
Increase in allotment to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	11886, 11901-11903, 11909-11910, 1675-1678, 1685-1-1685-2
Number of underwriters purchasing issues, 1935-39.....	11974-11978
See also A. T. & T. System financing, proprietary interests in.
A. T. & T., The Story of Industrial Conquest	11831, 12316
Andersen, Arthur, & Co.....	1763
Anderson, Arthur M.: Activities in railroad refundings, 1935: Securities of: Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co.....	12036, 1727, 1749
Chicago Union Station Co.....	11862, 1676
Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Co.....	1732-1733, 1735-1740, 1742, 1746, 1749
Nypano Railroad Co.....	12010, 12023, 12034, 1722, 1726, 1749
Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company.....	12008, 12010, 1713, 1749
Directorships and trusteeships of.....	12326, 1768-2
Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12083, 1768-3
Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co.....	12054, 12083, 1761, 1768-3
Testimony of.....	11999-12046
Appraisal firms. See Engineering firms.
Argentine Republic financing.....	12065, 1762-1763, 1768-2, 1770
Armory, C. W.....	1659-2-1659-3
Associated Dry Goods Corporation.....	12327, 1768-2
Astor Trust Co.....	11855, 1661-2
Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co. financing..	12325, 1730, 1734, 1768-2
Atlanta Gas Light Company financing.....	12322
Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. financing.....	12005, 12035-12039, 1712, 1727-1728-2, 1749, 1768-2
Atlantic and Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company.....	1659-78
Atlantic Refining Co. financing.....	1762
Atlantic and Yadkin Railway Co.....	1768-2
Atterbury, W. W.....	1766
Attorneys for underwriters in issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	1763
Auchincloss, J. Howland.....	12016, 1717, 1753, 1754-2
Australia, Commonwealth of.....	1768-2
Austrian Government External Loans, Trustees of.....	1768-2
Avery, Lewell L.....	12330
Bache, J. S., & Co.....	1659-24
Backus, C. D.....	1659-3
Bacon, Gaspar G.....	12054, 1761
Bacon, Robert L.....	12054, 1761
Bacon, Whipple & Co.....	1704
Bailey, F. B.....	1659-3
Baker, George F.: Activities as director of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. 11836-11837, 1659-12, 1659-14, 1659-29, 1659-30, 1659-79, 1659-82
Holdings of A. T. & T. securities.....	11835, 1659-3, 1659-24, 1659-35
Baker, Newton D.....	1659-30
Baker, Watts & Co.....	1704
Baker, William H.....	1659-55, 1659-66
Baker, —.....	1713
Baldwin Locomotive Works.....	12327, 1768-2
Bancamerica Blair Corporation.....	1704, 1771
Bank of California of San Francisco.....	11851, 1661-2, 1667
Bankers Association for Foreign Trade.....	12327, 1768-2
Bankers Company of New York.....	1686-2-1687
See also Bankers Trust Company.

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Bankers Trust Company:
Compliance with Banking Act of 1933.....	11963
Deposits by A. T. & T. Co. in.....	1659-79
Loan to Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.....	1728-1
Participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System.....	11855,
11877, 11880, 11883, 11886, 11893, 11899, 11909, 11911, 11914,
11926, 11931, 1659-24, 1661-2, 1671, 1673, 1679, 1684, 1686-2-
1687, 1695.
Missouri Pacific Railroad Co.....	1724
Banking Act of 1933:
Compliance with:
By Guaranty Co. and Guaranty Trust Co. of N. Y.	11963, 12002, 1711
By J. P. Morgan & Co.....	11934-11935, 12011-12002,
12039, 12044-12045, 12073, 12317-12320, 1749-1755
Legal advice to J. P. Morgan & Co. concerning.....	12044-12045,
12317-12320, 1751-1755
Purpose of.....	12001-12002, 12038-12039, 1711
See also Investment banking.
Barber Asphalt Corporation.....	1768-2
Barham, Ernest S. W.....	1763
Baring Bros. & Co. Ltd., participations in A. T. & T. System security issues.....	11848-11852,
11854, 11856-11857, 11863-11864, 11866, 11892, 11896, 1659-6,
1659-20-1659-22, 1659-25-1659-28, 1661-2, 1666, 1667, 1671,
1672.
Barney, Charles D., & Co.....	1659-24, 1704
See also Smith, Barney & Co.
Barse, J. R.....	1739
Bartow, Francis D.....	12054, 12083, 12326, 12329, 1761, 1766-3, 1768-2
Bashore, Eugene.....	11930, 11933, 1692
Beaver Coal Corporation.....	12327, 1768-2
Becker, A. G. & Co., Incorporated.....	1704
Bee Rock Corporation.....	12326, 1768-2
Beech Corporation.....	12326, 1768-2
Belgium, Kingdom of.....	1768-2
Bell, Alexander Graham.....	11832, 1659-2
Bell Telephone Company:
Control of, by Boston interests.....	11832-11833
Control of, by Mackay interests.....	1659-33-1659-35
Directors of.....	1659-2
Stock interests in, by officers and directors.....	1659-4
See also A. T. & T. Co.
Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania financing.....	11885-11886, 11893-11894, 11907-
11910, 11917, 1674, 1681-2-1881-3, 1684-1688, 1709-3, 1710-2
See also A. T. & T. System financing
Bell Telephone Securities Corporation.....	1659-82
Bernet, W. G.....	1724
Bethell, W. W.....	1659-79, 1659-81
Bickley, John H.....	11831, 1659-78
Biddle, Whelen & Co.....	1704
Bigelow Sanford Carpet Co.....	1768-2
Blair & Co.....	1659-24
Blair, Bonner & Co.....	1704
Blake, Francis, Jr.....	1659-1-1659-3
Blake, S.....	1659-2
Blue Ridge Corporation.....	1757
Blum, Jay.....	1660
Blyth & Co., Inc.:
Document made available by, to the T. N. E. C.....	11979, 1691
Negotiations with A. T. & T. Co. for participations in security issues.....	11930-
11933, 11961-11962, 11980, 11983-11984, 1690-1695, 1705, 1706

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Blyth & Co., Inc.—Continued.

Participations in security issues and negotiations therefor:
Issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	12096, 1767-1, 1770-1771
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System	11975, 11983-11984, 1700, 1704
Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company	12043, 1748
Toledo & Ohio Central Railroad Co.	1714-1, 1721
Stock interests in	12046, 1757
Blyth, Charles R.	11961, 11983-11984, 1706, 1748
Boettcher & Co.	1704
Bonbright & Company, Incorporated:
Agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. on Niagara Hudson Power System securities	12087, 12093, 1767-1, 1771
Organization of	12086-12087
Organization of United Corporation by, question of	12070-12071, 12086
Originations of, and participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System	11960, 11967, 1698, 1700, 1704
Consumers Power Co.	12058-12059, 1762-1763
Niagara Hudson Power System	12087-12093, 1767-1, 1771
Predecessor companies	12087
Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	12087-12093, 1767-1, 1771
Testimony of Sidney A. Mitchell	12086-12095
Borden, H. L.	1728-1
Boston & Albany R. R. Co. financing	12013-12014, 12018-12019, 12048, 1718
Boston & Maine Railroad Co.	1768-2
Bosworth, Chanute Loughridge & Co.	1704
Bovenizer, George W.	11963-11964, 12030, 12047, 1756, 1759-1-1759-2
Bowditch, C. P.	1659-2-1659-3
Boys' Club of New York, The	12327, 1768-2
Braden Copper Company	12326, 1768-2
Bradley, C. L.	12025
Bradley, C. S.	1659-1-1659-2
Bradley, George L.	1659-1-1659-2
Brewer, Clifford M.	11869, 1680-1
Broads, Patterson & Co.	1763
Broderick, Joseph A.	11934
Brooklyn Edison Company, Inc. financing	12065, 12329, 1762-1764-1, 1768-2, 1769-71
Brooklyn Union Gas Co. financing	1769
Brown, Alex & Sons	1704
Brown Brothers & Co.	1659-24
Brown, Harriman & Co., Incorporated
Originations of, and participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System	11960, 11963, 11974-11979, 1700, 1703-1708
Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.	12036-12038, 1727-1728-1, 1749
Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Co.	12041, 1727, 1735, 1739-1743, 1749
Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co.	12043, 1748-1749
Nypano Railroad Co.	12030-12031, 1722, 1725, 1749
Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company	12008-12009, 12011, 12015-12019, 1713-1714-1, 1717-1718, 1749
Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	12091-12092, 1767-1, 1771
Succession to underwriting interests of National City Co.	11963-11964, 12030-12031, 12036-12038, 12041, 1727, 1729-1730
Brown, W. Harmon, Jr.	1731
Brownell, George A.	12055
Brush Beryllium Co., The	1759-1-1759-3
Buckland, —	1659-79
Budd, Ralph	1732, 1737, 1756

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

INDEX

VII

Buffalo General Electric Co.....	1768-2
Buffalo Niagara Electric Corp. financing.....	12068, 12088, 12322, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2
Burr, Gannett & Co.....	1704
Business depression, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell.....	2163
Buxton School.....	12327, 1768-2
Byllesby, H. M. & Co., Inc.....	1728-1
Callaway, Fish & Co.....	1704
Cambria & Indiana Railroad Company financing.....	12322
Canada, Government of the Dominion of, financing.....	12065, 1762-1763, 1768-3, 1770
Canada Southern Railway Company financing.....	12008, 1713
Canadea Power Corporation.....	1768-2
Capek, C. A.....	11931, 1694
Capital, importance of, in selecting underwriting groups.....	12033
Car & General Insurance Corp. Ltd.....	12327, 1768-2
Carnegie Corporation of New York.....	12326, 1768-2
Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, The.....	12325, 1768-2
Carter, Ledyard & Milburn.....	1728-2
Case, J. I., Company.....	1768-2
Case, J. I., Threshing Machine.....	1768-2
Cassatt & Co., Incorporated.....	1704
Castles, John W.....	1659-30
Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co.....	1728-1
Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation financing.....	11929, 12065, 12068, 12322, 1690, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2
Central Illinois Light Company financing.....	12065, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2
Central Illinois Public Service Company financing.....	11939
Central New York Power Corporation financing.....	12065, 12068, 12089, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2, 1770
Central New York Telephone Co.....	1659-9
Central Republic Company.....	1704
Certificate of incorporation of investment banking firm, example of.....	1760-1
Central Union Telephone Co.....	1659-9, 1659-81
Chadbourne, T. L., Jr.....	1659-78
Chandler & Company, Inc.....	12322
Chapin, John R.: Activities in A. T. & T. System financing.....	11867, 11870, 11924, 1680-2
Testimony of.....	11863-11870, 11882, 11926-11928
Chapin School, Ltd., The.....	12326, 1768-2
Charity Organization Society, The.....	1768-2
Chase National Bank of the City of New York, The.....	11948, 1659-24, 1724, 1739
Chase Securities Corporation.....	1724
Chatham-Phenix National Bank & Trust Co.....	1724
Chattanooga Station Company.....	1768-2
Chemical Bank & Trust Co.....	1724
Chemical National Bank.....	11855, 1659-30, 1661-2
Chesapeake Corporation.....	12028, 1724, 1768-2
Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company financing.....	12028-12029, 12065, 12067, 12323, 1724, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company, The.....	1659-9
Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company financing.....	12005, 12012, 12030, 12040-12041, 12065, 12322, 1712, 1725, 1729, 1730, 1732, 1733, 1735, 1736, 1737, 1738, 1739, 1740, 1741, 1742, 1743- 1747, 1749, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2
Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company financing.....	12040-12041, 12322, 1659-7, 1735-1736, 1738
Chicago City and Connecting Railways.....	1768-2
Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway Company financing.....	1734
Chicago Great Western Railroad Company.....	1768-2
Chicago Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company.....	1768-2
Chicago Telephone Company financing.....	1659-81, 1661-2, 1667
Chicago Union Station Co. financing.....	11862, 12047, 1670, 1756, 1759-1-1759-2, 1762
China, Republic of.....	1768-2
Chinese Government, Imperial.....	1768-2
Church Hymnal Corporation.....	12325, 1768-2

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Church Life Insurance Corporation.....	12325, 1768-2
Church Pension Fund.....	12325, 1768-2
Church Properties Fire Insurance Company.....	12325, 1768-2
Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company financing.....	12065, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2
Cincinnati Inter-Terminal Railroad Company, The.....	1768-2
Cincinnati New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway Co., The.....	1768-2
Cincinnati Union Terminal Co. financing.....	12065, 12067, 12323, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
Claffin, John.....	1659-30
Clapp, C.....	1659-2-1659-3
Clark, Dodge & Co. Participations in various security issues and negotiations therefor: Securities of A. T. & T. System.....	1659-24, 1700, 1704
Securities of Nypano Railroad Co.....	12030-12035, 1714-1714-2, 1721, 1726, 1749
Relative participations in Consolidated Edison Co. issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	1771
Clark, E. W. & Co.....	12091, 1704, 1767-1
Clarke, Dumont.....	1659-60, 1659-69-1659-70
Clarke, Philip R.....	12330
Cleveland Telephone Company financing.....	1659-81, 1681-2
Cleveland Union Terminal Co.....	1768-2
Cochrane, Alexander.....	1659-2-1659-3, 1659-15, 1659-50
Coe, W. R.....	1734, 1740
Coffin & Burr, Inc.....	1704, 1767-1
Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation financing.....	12068, 1764-1, 1767-1
Columbia Trust Co.....	1659-79
Commercial and Financial Chronicle, quoted.....	1659-26
Commercial banking, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell.....	2163
Commercial banks: Fiscal services performed by.....	12039, 1768-2
Interests in underwriting groups after Banking Act of 1933.....	11971, 12006, 1697
Investment by, in tax exempt securities discussed.....	12103-12105, 12111-12112
Commercial Cable Company, The: Control of, by Mackay Companies.....	1659-33-1659-35
Disposal of holdings of A. T. & T. Co. stock.....	1659-72-1659-77
Proposed combination with the A. T. & T. Co.....	1659-33-1659-35
Resignation of T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr. as trustee.....	1659-40-1659-42
See also A. T. & T. Co., Mackay Companies.
Commercial Trust Co. of New Jersey.....	1724
Commodity Credit Corporation, securities of.....	12338
Commonwealth Edison Co. financing.....	11939, 12092
Commonwealth & Southern Corporation financing.....	12059, 12068, 12071, 1764-1, 1766-2, 1767-1
Community Service Society of New York.....	12326
Compagnie des Chemins de Fer a Midi.....	1768-2
Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Paris a Orleans.....	1768-2
Competition in investment banking.....	11848-11849, 11858-11859, 11939-11941, 12031-12032, 12064
Distinguished from competitive bidding.....	11848-11849
See also Competitive bidding for securities.
Competitive bidding for securities: Advantages and disadvantages of, discussed.....	11838-11841, 11915-11916, 11969-11970, 11993-11994
In A. T. & T. System financing: Abandonment of, for non-competitive financing.....	11838-11841, 11843
Attempt of Lee, Higginson & Co. and others to bid on 1906 issue.....	11835-11838, 1659-18-1659-19, 1708
Instances of competitive bidding.....	11833, 11835
Distinguished from competition.....	11848-11849
Memorandum on, by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	11993-11994
On Government issues.....	11955
Required by I. C. C. on equipment trust certificates.....	11968-11969
See also Competition in investment banking.

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Connecticut Light & Power Company financing.....	12067, 12322
Connelly, Emmett F., statement by.....	11887-11889
Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc.:
Security issues of.....	12065,
12067, 12328-12329, 1762-1764-1, 1768-2, 1770-1772
Stock interest of United Corporation in.....	12071, 1766-2
Consolidated Gas Company of New York financing.....	12096, 1769
Consumers Power Co. financing.....	12058-12059,
12065, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2, 1770
Continental Oil Company financing.....	12065,
12326, 12329, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
Continental Passenger Railway.....	1768-2
Cook, —.....	1659-33-1659-36
Coolidge, T. Jefferson, Jr.....	1659-2,
1659-29, 1659-33-1659-37, 1659-40-1659-43, 1659-61
Cooper & Kenny.....	1763
Cooper River & Northwestern Railway Co.....	1768-2
Cooper Union.....	12325, 1768-2
Copper, C. P.....	11968
Cornell Medical College Ass'n.....	1768-2
Corners Corporation, The.....	12326, 1768-2
Council of National Defense (War of 1914-1918).....	1659-80
Council on Foreign Relations, Int.....	12326, 1768-2
Counsel for underwriters in issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	1763
County, A. J.....	1756
Courts & Co.....	1704
Crane Co.....	12065, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
Crane, Senator W. Murray:
Activities as director of American Telephone & Telegraph Co.....	11834,
1659-11, 1659-16, 1659-19, 1659-29-1659-30, 1659-50-1659-51,
1659-53, 1659-65, 1659-68-1659-69, 1659-79
Stock interest in American Telephone & Telegraph Co.....	1659-60
Cranston, Francis A.....	1659-17
Cravath, de Gersdorf, Swaine & Wood.....	1763
Cuba, Republic of.....	1768-2
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co. financing.....	1661-2
Cumming, George M.....	1659-44-1659-46
Currie, Lauchlin.....	12106
Cutler, John W.....	12008,
12021-12023, 12034-12038, 1713, 1722, 1724, 1726-1727, 1735
Cutler, —.....	1659-68-1659-69
Cuyahoga Telephone Company financing.....	11921-11922, 1689-2
Danielian, N. R.:
Sources of documents used by.....	11831-11832, 11861, 12316, 1659-78-1659-79
Testimony of.....	11830-11845
Davis, Charles H.....	1659-16
Davis, Pierpont V.....	12022,
12030, 12041, 1722, 1725, 1729, 1731, 1735, 1740-1743, 1756
Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed.....	12016, 12044-12045,
12070, 12318-12320, 1717, 1749-1754-1, 1755, 1763, 1765
Davison, Henry P.:
Activities in A. T. & T. System financing.....	11873-11886,
11897-11903, 11925-11926, 1659-30, 1659-32, 1659-79, 1673,
1675-1676, 1679.
Directorships and trusteeships of.....	12327, 12330, 1768-2
Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12083, 1766-3
Dawes, Charles D.....	1739
Day & Zimmermann, Inc.....	1763
Day, R. L., & Co.....	11864, 11866,
11877, 11927, 11964, 1659-6, 1671-1674, 1680-2, 1704, 1714-1, 1721
Dayton Power and Light Company financing.....	12065, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2
Dealer, position of, in investment banking since Securities Act of 1933.....	11991-11992
Dean, Arthur H.....	12316-12317
DeBardeleben Coal Corporation.....	1768-2
Debovoise, Stevenson & Plimpton.....	1763

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

de Coppet, —	1659-30
DeForrest, Henry W.	1659-30
Delano, Lyman	12024, 12035-12036, 12317, 1788-2
Denney, C. E.	1783
Detroit & Mackinac Railway Company	1763-2
Deutsche Bank	1659-19
Devonshire Corporation	11945
See also Kidder, Peabody & Co. (old firm).
Devonshire, R. W.	1659-2
Diamond State Company	1659-78
Dick & Merle-Smith	1704, 1714-1, 1731
Dick, Fairman	1766
Dickey, Charles D.	12054, 12083, 12327, 1761, 1766-3, 1768-2
Dillon, Read & Co.	1699, 1700, 1704, 1705, 1726, 1771
Discount Corporation	12325, 1768-2
Distributing ability in selection of underwriting groups	11858-11859
Divorcement of investment banking from commercial banking	12001-12002, 1711
See also Banking Act of 1933.
Doctors Hospital	12326, 1768-2
Dominick & Dominick	1700, 1704, 1714-1, 1721
Doremus & Company	1763
Drexel & Co.	12034, 12050, 12068-12069, 12323
See also Morgan, J. P., & Co.
Drinker, Biddle & Reath	1763
Driver, William R.	11835-11836, 1659-2-1659-3, 1659-9, 1659-15-1659-16
Drum, —	1659-64
Du Bois, —	1659-79
Duluth, Missabe and Iron Range Railway Co. financing	12065, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
du Pont, E. I., de Nemours and Company financing	12065, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
Eastman, Dillon & Co.	1704
Eastman Kodak Company financing	12066, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1770
Economic planning, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163
Edgewater Creche	12326, 1768-2
856 Fifth Avenue Corporation	12327, 1768-2
Elkins, Morris & Co.	1704
Ellis, Rudolph	1659-30-1659-31
Emerson, C.	1659-2
Emerson, Sumner B.	12050, 12053, 1761
Endicott, Johnson Corporation financing	1762
Engineering firms hired by issuers of securities managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	1763
Episcopal Church, Associated Parishes of	12325, 1768-2
Episcopal Fund of the Diocese of New York, Trustees of	1768-2
Eppler & Company	1763
Equitable Securities Corporation	1704
Erie Railroad Company:
Bank loans of	1724
Security issues of	12021-12031, 1723-1724, 1725, 1768-2
Stock interests in	12023, 1724
Erie Telephone and Telegraph Company	1659-6
Estabrook & Co.	11864, 11866, 11877, 11895
	11896, 11927, 11964-11965, 1671-1674, 1680-2, 1714-1, 1721
Ewing, William	12007, 12010, 12050, 12053
	12073, 1733, 1736, 1739, 1741-1742, 1745, 1747, 1749, 1761
Fahnestock, H.	1659-3
Fahnestock, H. C.	1659-3
Fairless, Benjamin F.	12330
Farrell, James A.	12330
Fay, Joseph S. Jr.	1659-17
Fay, R. S.	1659-1-1659-2
Federal Communications Commission:
Documents made available by, to T. N. E. C.	11831-11832, 1659-78
Investigation into A. T. & T. System	11830-11832, 11843-11844-12316
Federal Land Bank, securities of	12333

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Federal Reserve Bulletin, quoted.....	12106
Federal Reserve System.....	11916, 2163
Federated Department Stores, Inc.....	1768-2
Ferguson-Gates Engineering Company.....	1763
Fiat.....	1768-2
Field, Glore & Co.....	1704, 1714-1-1714-2, 1721, 1767-1
See also Glore, Forgan & Co.
Filbert, William J.....	12330
Financing.
See name of company financed.
Fire Association of Philadelphia.....	12050, 1768-2
First Boston Corporation, The:
Originations of, and participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System.....	11960, 11963, 11967, 11972-11979, 1698-1706
Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co.....	1728-1
Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co.....	12043, 1748
Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company.....	12008-12011, 12015-12021, 1713-1714-1, 1717-1720
Other companies.....	12322-12323
Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.....	12091-12092, 1767-1, 1771
Succession to underwriting interests of Harris Forbes Companies.....	11963, 11967, 1698
First National Bank of Boston.....	11877, 11924, 11927, 11948, 1673, 1680-2
First of Michigan Corp.....	1704
First National Bank, New York City:
Agreement with J. P. Morgan & Co. and National City Bank for the division of securities business.....	11853-11854, 11922, 12036-12038, 1727
Compliance with Banking Act of 1933.....	11963
Deposits by A. T. & T. Co. in.....	1659-79
Introduction to A. T. & T. Group, 1913.....	11852-11853, 1661-2
Loans of.....	1724, 1728-1
Participations in A. T. & T. system security issues.....	11851-11857, 11866, 11871, 11877, 11883, 11892, 11910, 11922, 11931, 1659-24, 1661-2, 1666-1667, 1671-1673, 1679, 1684, 1688-2-1687, 1689-1, 1689-2, 1695, 1709-1-1709-3.
Participations in security issue of Erie Railway Company.....	1724
Trusteeship in U. S. Steel Corp., financing.....	12332-12333
First National Corporation, The.....	1724
Fiscal services performed by banks.....	12039, 1768-2
Fish, Frederick P., activities as president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co.....	11830, 11834, 11848, 11858, 1659-4, 1659-7-1659-20, 1659-23, 1659-25, 1659-29, 1659-43-1659-54, 1659-57-1659-70, 1708
Fish, Irving D.....	12003
Fish, Harvey, & Sons.....	1659-24
Fisk, Pliny.....	1659-60, 1659-68-1659-69
Flintlock Realty Company.....	1768-2, 12325
Florida East Coast Railway Co.....	1768-2
Fly, Chairman J. Lawrence.....	11845, 1660
Forbes, J. Malcolm.....	1659-1-1659-2
Forbes, W. H.....	1659-1-1659-3
Ford, Bacon & Davis Incorporated.....	1763
Ford, Nevil.....	12019, 1717, 1719
Fordney-McCumber tariff.....	2163
Foster & Co., Inc.....	1704, 1714-1, 1721
1435 Walnut Street Corporation.....	1768-2
Framerican Industrial Development Corp.....	1768-2
France, Republic of, loan to, 1915, by J. P. Morgan & Co. and others.....	1659-79
Frankford & Southwark, Philadelphia City Passenger Railroad Company.....	1768-2
Franklin County Coal Corp.....	1768-2
Fraser, Leon.....	12330
Free Library of Philadelphia, The.....	12327, 1768-2
French, C. J.....	1659-2
French Government.....	1768-2
Frick, Collection, The.....	12326, 1768-2

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

"Frozen accounts." See Proprietary interests; Underwriting groups.

Gardner, John L., Jr.	1659-1
Gardner, Y. S., Jr.	1659-1
Garrett, Robert & Sons	1704
Gaston, William A.	1659-73
General Electric Company	12326, 1768-2
General Motors Acceptance Corporation financing	12065,
	1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
General Motors Corporation financing	11879, 12326, 1768-2
General Steel Castings Corporation	12327, 1768-2
German Government External Loans, Trustees of	1768-2
Gifford, Walter S., activities of, as President of A. T. & T. Co.	11859, 11876,
	11880-11881, 11893, 11898-11900, 11915, 11930, 11936-11937,
	11941, 11959, 11968, 12330, 1659-80, 1659-82, 1692-1693, 1695.
Glass, Senator Carter	12105
Glen Falls Insurance Co.	1768-2
Glore, Forgan & Co.	1704, 1767-1
Gold policy of U. S., discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163
Goldman, Sachs & Co.	12031, 1659-24, 1700, 1704, 1771
Goodspeed, J. H.	1659-2
Goodwill, acquisition of from predecessor organizations:
By reorganized Kidder, Peabody & Co. from old firm	11942-11945
See also Succession to underwriting interests.
Gordon, Albert H.:
Activities in A. T. & T. system financing	11929, 11942-11955, 1690
Testimony of	11942-11955
See also Kidder, Peabody & Co. (new firm).
Gould, —	1659-34, 1659-71
Government intervention in business, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163
Graham, Parsons & Co.	1704
Great Britain, loan to, 1915, by J. P. Morgan & Co. and others	1659-79
Great Northern Railway Company, The, financing	12065,
	1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
Greater New York Fund, Inc., The	12326, 1768-2
Greek Government	1768-2
Green, Ellis & Anderson	1704
Griswold, J. W. A.	1659-1
Guaranty Company of New York:
Banking activities for Van Sweringen interests	12022, 12028, 1722, 1724
Compliance with Banking Act of 1933	12002
Dissolution of	12002-12003, 1711
Erie Railroad Co. financing	12027-12028, 1724, 1730
Officers and directors of, subsequent affiliation with E. B. Smith & Co.	12003, 12032, 1711
Participations in A. T. & T. System security issues	11931, 1688-2, 1687, 1695
Position as distributor of securities	12032
Succession to underwriting interests of, by E. B. Smith & Co.	11963,
	12003, 12027-12034, 1711-1724
See also Guaranty Trust Co.
Guaranty Trust Company of New York:
A. T. & T. System financing:
Deposits by A. T. & T. Co.	1659-79
Participations in security issues of A. T. & T. Co.	11855,
	11877, 11880-11883, 11886, 11899, 11909, 11910-11912, 11926,
	1661-2, 1671, 1673, 1679, 1684.
Replaced as registrar for A. T. & T. Co. stock	1659-80
Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co. financing	12039, 1728-1
Compliance with Banking Act of 1933	11963, 12002, 1711
Directorships held by partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. in	12325, 1768-2
Loan to Erie Railroad Company	1724
Relation to Guaranty Co. of New York	12002, 1711
See also Guaranty Co. of New York.
Guernsey, N. T.	1659-79
Hahne & Company, Inc.	1768-2, 12327
Hall, —	1659-75
Hall, Perry E.	12050-12051, 12053, 12069, 12073, 12087

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Hallgarten & Co.	1659-24, 1704
Hallowell, N. Penrose	11862, 11931, 11966, 1670, 1694-95, 1697
Halsey, Stuart & Co. Inc.:
Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. financing	12067, 12323
Negotiations with A. T. & T. Co. for participations in security issues	11935-11941, 11986, 12092
Paying agency in Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois financing	11862
Testimony of Harold L. Stuart	11935-11941
Hambleton & Co.	1724
Haring, Albert	11892, 1683
Harriman, E. H.	1659-24
Harris, Norman W.	1659-30
Harris, Forbes companies:
Participations in A. T. & T. security issues	11857-11859, 11866, 11872, 11877, 11883, 11892, 11896, 11899, 11910, 11931, 1661-2, 1665-1666, 1671-1673, 1679, 1684, 1686-2-1687, 1695
Succession to underwriting interest of, by The First Boston Corp.	11963, 11967, 1698
Harris, Hall & Company	11974, 1700, 1701, 1703, 1704, 1706, 1771
Harvard College	12326, 1768-2
Harvard Fund Council	12326, 1768-2
Haskins & Sells	1763
Haverford, Pa., Township of	1768-2
Hawes, Stewart S.	11930, 1692
Hawley-Smoot Tariff	2163
Hayden, Miller & Co.	1704
Hayden, Stone & Co.	11866, 11877, 11896, 11927, 11964-11965, 1671-1674, 1700, 1704, 1721, 1771
Haystone Securities Corporation	11927, 1674, 1680-2
See also Hayden, Stone & Co.
Hemphill, Noyes & Co.	1704
Henderson, Commissioner Leon:
Introductory statement on American Telephone & Telegraph Co. financing	11829-11830
Letter to Chairman J. L. Fly of Federal Communications Commission	11845, 1660
Higginson, Francis L.	11992, 1708
Higginson, Henry Lee	1659-1, 1659-7, 1659-30
Hilliard, J. J. B., & Son	1704
Hine, Francis L.	1659-3
Hires, Charles E., Company	1768-2
Historical relationship in selecting underwriting groups	11963-11966, 12027-12028
See also A. T. & T. financing, "frozen" character of.
Hitler, Adolf	2163
Hocking Valley Railway Co.	1768-2
Home Owners Loan Corporation, securities of	12338
Hornblower & Weeks	1704, 1714-1, 1721
Hope & Co.	1659-26
Hopkinson, Edward, Jr.	12083, 12327, 12380, 1766-3, 1768-2
Hospital Council of Greater New York	12326, 1768-2
Household Finance Corporation	1768-2
Houston, D. F.	1659-82
Hovey, Chandler	11929
Howe, Henry S.	1659-2-1659-3, 1659-30, 1659-79, 1659-82
Hubbard, Charles Eustis	1659-2-1659-3, 1659-15
Hubbard, Gardiner G.	11832, 1659-2
Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Co. Ltd.	1768-2
Hudson, J. E.	1659-2-1659-3
Hughes, H. L.	12330
Hull, Secretary Cordell	2163
Humble Oil & Refining Co.	1768-2
Huntington & Broad Top Mountain Railroad & Coal Co.	1768-2
Huntington National Bank, Columbus, Ohio	11922, 1689-1-1689-2
Hutchinson, W. S.	1659-2
Hutton, W. E., & Company	1700, 1704, 1714-1, 1721, 1728-1, 1767-1
Idle money, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Illinois Bell Telephone Company financing	11917, 11935-11941, 11943-11944, 11952, 11958-11961, 11966, 11975, 11988-11989, 12065, 1681-2-1681-3, 1686-1-1688, 1690, 1697- 1698, 1700, 1703-1704, 1709-3, 1710-2, 1762-1763, 1768-2.
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
Illinois Company of Chicago, The	1704
Indianapolis Water Company financing	12065, 12069, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2
Inland Steel Company Financing	12065, 1768
Institute of International Education	12325, 1768-2
Insurance Company of North America	12327, 1768-2
International Agricultural Corporation	12325, 1768-2
International Committee of Bankers on Mexico	12325, 1768-2
International General Electric Company	12326, 1768-2
International Great Northern Railroad, Trustees of	1768-2
International Mercantile Marine Co.	1768-2
International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation	12326, 1768-2
Interstate Commerce Commission	11968, 1735, 1739, 1749
Investment bankers:
Defaults by	11982
Deposits by, with J. P. Morgan & Co.	11861-11862, 1668
See also Investment Banking.
Investment Bankers Association of America:
Membership in	11887
Statement by Emmett F. Connely	11887-11889
Investment banking:
By partnerships and corporations, advantages and disadvantages	11954
Competition in	11848-11849, 11858-11859, 11939-11941, 12031-12032-12064, 12094
Competitive bidding in:
Advantages and disadvantages of, discussed	11838-11841, 11915-11916, 11969-11970, 11993-11994
See also under A. T. & T. System financing.
Documents used in, examples of:
Agreements among underwriters	1659-22
Certificate of incorporation	1760-1
Letter terminating syndicate	1659-27
Letter to stockholders	1711
Notice of annual meeting	1659-15
Proxy	1659-16
Purchase contracts	1659-20, 1659-25
Purchase group letters	1663-1665
Increased expense of, under Securities Act of 1933, alleged	11990
Leadership in, advantages from	12025-12026
Management fee in	11923-11924, 11989, 1702, 1707
Management of security issues by single firms, advantages of	11944, 11946-11947
Negotiations with issuing company by one or several bankers, discussed	11877-11879, 1673
Overhead expenses in	12063
Oversubscription of security issues in 1920's	11917-11919, 1688
Position of small dealer in, since Securities Act of 1933	11991-11992
Professional character of	11840, 11858-11860, 11915-11916, 11940, 11970, 11982, 12006, 12011, 12029, 12094
Reciprocity in	11983-11984, 12026
Risks in	11983-11986, 12032
Several liability of underwriters since Securities Act of 1933	11981, 12093
"Spread" in	11875, 11913-11914, 11985, 11989
Subscription period in, length of	11916-11918, 11988
See also Banking Act of 1933; investment bankers; underwriting groups.
Iowa Telephone Co. financing	1661-2
Irvin, William A.	12330
Iselin, A., Jr.	1659-30
Italian Credit Consortium for Public Works	1768-2
Italy-America Society	12325, 1768-2
Italy, Kingdom of	1768-2

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For page on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Jackson & Curtis	1704
Jackson, C. C.	1659-1
Jacksonville Terminal Company financing	12323
Jaffrey, C. T.	1739
Japan Society	12326, 1678-2
Jesup, Edward N.	11862, 11966, 11972, 1670, 1697
Jewett, —	1659-82
Johns-Manville Corporation financing	12065,
	12326-12327, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2
Johnson, Bradish, Estate of	12327
Johnson, Lane Space & Co.	1704
Jones, Allen Northey	12050-12051, 12053, 12073, 1713, 1761
Jones, Jesse	1713
Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation financing	1762
Kansas City Terminal Railway Company	1768-2
Kean, Taylor & Co.	1704, 1714-1, 1721, 1724, 1771
Kennecott Copper Corporation	12326, 1768-2
Kentucky & Indiana Terminal Railroad Co.	1768-2
Keyes, Leonhard A.:
Question of J. P. Morgan & Co. documents furnished by, to T. N. E. C.	11885, 11904-11909, 11920-11921
Testimony of	11904-11909
Keystone Watch Case Corporation	12327, 1768-2
Kidder, Peabody & Co. (old firm):
A. T. & T. System financing:
Documents concerning, made available to the T. N. E. C.	11906-11908, 11920-11921
Management fee received on security issues	11923, 1680-2
Originations of, and participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor	11848-11857, 11863, 11885-11886, 11910-11912, 11929, 11949-11952, 11967, 1659-6, 1659-9-1659-12, 1659-20-1659-23, 1661-2-1662, 1665-1667, 1684, 1686-2, 1695, 1698.
Participations relative to Morgan Stanley & Co.	11974-11976, 1703
"Proprietary interest" in	11864-11870, 11875-11876, 11883, 11892-11896, 11927, 11997, 1671-1680-2
Subdivision of "Proprietary interests"	11864-11870, 1671, 1672
Other relations with A. T. & T. Co.	11835, 1659-30, 1659-78
Borrowings from J. P. Morgan & Co. and others	11944, 11948-11949
Liquidation of	11944-11945, 11949
Relations with Baring Bros. & Co., Ltd.	11851, 11863, 1661-2
Testimony of John R. Chapin	11863-11870, 11882, 11926-11928
See also A. T. & T. System financing; Kidder, Peabody & Co. (new firm); Winsor, Robert.
Kidder, Peabody & Co. (new firm):
Acquisition of good will of Kidder Peabody & Co. (old firm)	11942-11945
Capital of	11945, 11948
Participations in security issues and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System	11929, 11942-11945, 11949-11953, 11960, 11975-11979, 1690, 1700, 1704-1706
Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co.	1728-1
Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Co.	1729, 1731
Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company	12010, 12015-12016, 1714-1, 1717
Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	1767-1, 1771
Testimony of John R. Chapin	11863-11870, 11882, 11926-11928
Testimony of Albert H. Gordon	11942-11955
Kimball, Ritchie	12003
Kinnicut, Herman R.	11929
Knickerbocker Trust Co.	1659-24
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.:
A. T. & T. System financing:
Increase in participations in, subsequent to "library agreement" of 1920	11886, 11901-11903, 11909-11910, 1675-1678, 1685-1-1685-2
Participations relative to Morgan Stanley participations	11973, 1703

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co.—Continued.

Co-managership of security issues with Morgan Stanley & Co.	12062
Organizations of, and participations in security issues and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System	11848
11857, 11866, 11871, 11877, 11885-11886, 11892, 11899-11901, 11909, 11914, 11926-11927, 11931, 11960-11963, 11967, 11974-11979, 11997, 1659-20-1659-28, 1659-30, 1661-2-1662-1664, 1666-1667, 1671, 1679-1684-1687, 1695, 1698, 1700, 1704, 1706, 1710-2.
Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co.	1728-1
Chicago & Western Indiana R. R. Co.	1750
Erie Railway Company	12028, 1724
Nypano Railroad Co.	12034, 1726, 1749
Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	1767-1, 1771
Specialization in railroad issues.	12062
Kurrie, —	1744, 1746
Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.	1659-24, 1704
La Follette, Senator Robert M., Jr.	11832
Lamont, Corliss and Company	12325, 1768-2
Lamont, Thomas S.	12041, 12070, 12326, 12329, 1729, 1765, 1766-3
Lamont, Thomas W.:
Directorships and trusteeships of	12326, 12330, 1768-2
Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co.	12079, 12083, 1766-3
Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co.	12054, 12083-12084, 1761, 1766-3
Testimony before Wheeler Railroad Committee, cited	12076
Land, James N.	1728
Langley, W. C. & Co.	1704
Lankenau, John D., Fund.	12327, 1768-2
Lazard Freres & Co. participations in security issues.	1700, 1704-1706, 1714-1, 1721, 1767-1, 1771
Lazard Speyer-Ellissen	1659-19
Leadership of security issue, advantages from	12025-12026
Ledyard, Lewis Cass	1659-79
Lee, Higginson & Co.:
American Telephone & Telegraph System financing:
Attempt to secure leadership of, 1906	11830, 11992, 1708
Competitive bids made or attempted on	11830, 11835, 11837, 11841, 1659-19, 1708
Introduction to underwriting group in 1916	11856-11857, 1661-2
Participations in, and negotiations therefor	11854-11859, 11866, 11872, 11877, 11880, 11883, 11893, 11896, 11910-11914, 11926, 11931, 11974-11979, 1659-6, 1661-2, 1664-1667, 1671-1673, 1679, 1684, 1686-2-1687, 1695, 1703.
Chicago Burlington & Quincy R. R. financing	1659-7
Former dominant position in distribution of securities	11859
Participations in security issues and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
Toledo and Ohio Central Railway Company	12010, 12015-12016, 1714-1, 1717
United Corporation	12070, 1765
See also Lee Higginson Corporation.
Lee Higginson Corporation:
Participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System	11931-11932, 11960-11967, 1694-1695, 1697, 1698, 1700, 1704-1706
Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.	1728-1
Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	1767-1, 1771
Relation to Lee, Higginson & Co.	11912
See also Lee, Higginson & Co.
Leet, George K.	12336

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Leffingwell, Russell C.:
Directorships and trusteeships of.....	12326, 1768-2
Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12083, 1766-3
Proposals on public policy.....	12104-12109, 2163
Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co.....	12054, 12083, 1761, 1766-3
Supplementary information submitted by.....	12337, 2163
Testimony of.....	12101-12112
Legal Aid Society.....	12327, 1768-2
Lehigh Valley Coal Corporation.....	1768-2
Lehigh Valley Railroad Company.....	1768-2
Lehman Brothers.....	12067, 1659-24, 1700, 1704, 1767-1, 1771
Leib, George.....	11930, 11979 1692, 1705, 1757
Lesser, Lawrence S.....	11995-11996, 12089
Letter terminating syndicate, example of.....	1659-27
Letter to stockholders, example of.....	1711
Leverett, George V.....	11835-11836, 1659-9, 1659-25
Liberty Bonds, sale of.....	11918-11919
Liberty National Bank.....	11855, 1661-2
"Library Agreement".
See under American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
Lloyd, H. Gates, Jr.....	12054, 12083, 1761, 1766-3
Lloyd, Horatio G.....	12054, 1766-3
Lloyd, Richard W.....	12054, 1761
Lochranets, A.....	1659-1
Long Dock Company, The, financing.....	12023,
	1722, 1725, 1749 1753-1754-2, 1768-2
Lord & Taylor.....	12327
Louisville & Jeffersonville Bridge Co.....	1768-2
Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company financing.....	12035,
	12043, 12065, 1748, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
See also Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.
Low, Seth.....	1659-17
Lumberman's Insurance Co.....	12327
Lyband, Ross Bros. & Montgomery.....	1763
Lyons, Barrow, testimony of.....	12001
Lyons, W. L. & Co.....	1704
MacDugal, Macfarlane, Scott and Hugessen.....	1763
Mackay, Clarence H., relations with A. T. & T. Co.....	1659-33-
	1659-54, 1659-57-1659-70, 1659-72-1659-77
Mackay Companies:
Acquisition of Bell Telephone Co. stock.....	1659-33
Attempt to acquire control of A. T. & T. Co. stock.....	1659-33-1659-43
Attempts to influence selection of A. T. & T. Co. trustees and directors.....	1659-44-1659-54, 1659-57-1659-70
Proposed combination with A. T. & T. Co.....	1659-55-1659-56
Purpose in organization of.....	1659-33-1659-35
Resignation of J. I. Waterbury and T. J. Coolidge, Jr. as trustees.....	1659-36-1659-39
Stock interests of, in A. T. & T. Co.....	1659-57-1659-63, 1659-72-1659-77
MacKubin, Legg & Co.....	1704
Macomber, John R.....	12019-12021, 1719-1720
MacVeagh, —.....	12016, 1717
Madden, O. E.....	1659-2
Mahaffie, Commissioner Charles D.....	1749, 1756
Managed money, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell.....	2163
Management fee in investment banking, justification of.....	11923-11924
Management of security issues by single firm, advantages of.....	11944, 11946-11947
Manhattan Trust Co.....	1659-24, 1659-30
See also Waterbury, J. I.
Manitoba, Province of.....	1768-2
Markle Corporation.....	1768-2
Markle, John and Mary L., Foundation.....	12325, 1768-2
Marks, Lawrence M., & Co.....	1704
Marssters, A. A.....	1659-79
Massachusetts Electric Companies.....	1659-35
Mathers, Lloyd C.....	1659-82

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

McAdoo, William G.	12105
McCaig, W. W.	1728-1
McCreery, James & Co.	12327
McLean, —	1659-68-1659-69
Mellon Securities Corporation	11960,
	11967, 11976, 1698, 1700, 1704-1705, 1767-1, 1771
Mercantile Trust Co.	11855, 1661-2
Merrill, Turben & Co.	1704
Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.	12008, 1713, 1738
Metropolitan Museum of Art	12325, 1768-2
Meyer, Commissioner Balthasar H.	1766
Meyers, —	1738, 1749
Michigan State Telephone Company	1659-63, 1659-81
Middle West Utilities Company financing	11939
Miller, Nathan L.	12330
Milne, G. D.	1659-2, 1659-79
Minor, George H.	1723
Minturn, R. B.	1659-2
Missouri-Illinois Railroad Company	1768-2
Missouri & Kansas Telephone Co. financing	1661-2
Missouri-Pacific Railroad Company financing	12030, 1724, 1768-2
Mitchell, Charles E.
Activities in A. T. & T. System financing	11929-
11931, 11960-11961, 11983-11984, 1691-1693, 1706
Activities in Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. financing	12043, 1748
Testimony of, cited	11859, 11978-11979, 11984
Mitchell, J. J.	1659-30
Mitchell, Sidney A., testimony of	12086-12095
Mitchell, W. A.	12327, 1768-2
Mitchurn, Tully & Co.	1704
Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company	1768-2
Moffat, George Barclay	1659-17
Moffat and White	1659-30
Monetary policy, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163
Montgomery Ward & Co., Incorporated	12327, 1768-2
Moody's Steam Railroads, cited	12004, 1712
Moore, Horace D.	12008, 12027-12028, 12030, 1713, 1724, 1730, 1734, 1735
Moore, Leonard & Lynch	1704, 1724
Morgan Building Corporation	1768-2
Morgan Grenfell & Co., Ltd.:
Directorships in, by partners of J. P. Morgan & Co.	12325, 1768-2
Participations in security issues:
Securities of:
A. T. & T. System	11852,
11855-11857, 11871, 1661-2, 1666-1667
Nypano Railroad Co.	12034-12035, 1726
Predecessor companies	11852
See also Morgan, J. S., & Co.
Morgan, Henry S.	12014, 12049, 12051-12054, 12073, 1699, 1716, 1749, 1761
Morgan, J. P., & Co.:
Advisory relations with railroad companies after Banking Act of	1933
12004-12007, 12010-12011
A. T. & T. System financing:
Attempts to change participation in underwriting group	11880-11881,
11893, 11996-11997, 1685-1, 1685-2
Bankers' commissions on security issues managed by	11874-11875,
1682
Exclusive nature of financial relations	11830, 11970-11971, 1708
First appearance of Morgan syndicate in business, 1906	11841-11842,
11847-11848, 1897
Influence over selection of underwriting group after Banking Act
of 1933	11928-11934, 1692-1693, 1695
Letter to A. T. & T. Co. advising economy	1659-30
Management fees from	11923-11924, 1680-2

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Morgan, J. P., & Co.—Continued.

A. T. & T. System financing—Continued.

Originations of, and participations in, security issues, and negotiations therefor.....	11847-11865, 11874-11877, 11883, 11892-11893, 11910-11911, 11922-11923, 1659-9-1659-12, 1659-20-1659-28, 1659-79, 1661-2-1662, 1664- 1667, 1671-1680-2, 1681-2, 1681-3, 1684-1689-2, 1695.
Profits from.....	11874, 11913-11914, 11988-11990, 1680-2, 1681-2, 1681-3
Sole management of, obtained.....	11946-11953
Arrangement for the division of securities business with National City Bank and First National Bank of N. Y.	11853-11854, 11922, 12036-12038, 1727
Availability of records to T. N. E. C.	11883-11884, 11904-11909
Compliance with Banking Act of 1933.....	11934-11935, 12001-12002, 12039, 12044-12045, 12073, 12317-12320, 1749-1755
See also Morgan, J. P., & Co., selection of underwriting groups after Banking Act of 1933.
Departmental organization of.....	11845, 11900
Deposits with:
By A. T. & T. Co.	1659-79
By investment bankers.....	11861-11862, 1668
Increase of, since 1934.....	12102
Of proceeds of security issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	12097-12101, 12320-12821
Distribution of income of.....	12080-12085
Dominant position in banking field.....	11843, 12075
Fiscal services performed by:
For companies financing through Morgan Stanley & Co.	12100-12101
List of governments and corporations served.....	12096, 1768-2
Former accounts of, managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	12064-12075, 12094
Former accounts of, managed by other firms.....	12067, 12320-12324
Government obligations held by, increases in, 1934-1939.....	12102-12105, 12111-12112, 12337-12338
Loans by:
To Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.	12035, 12038, 1728-1-1728-2
To Great Britain and France, in 1915.....	1659-79
To Kidder, Peabody & Co.	11944, 11948-11949, 12316-12317
Originations of, and participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor:
Securities of:
Consolidated Gas Co. of N. Y. and subsidiaries.....	12096, 1769
Erie Railway Company.....	12028, 1724
United Corporation.....	12070-12072, 1765
Partners of:
Affiliation with Morgan Stanley & Co.	12049-12050, 12073, 12319
Directorships of.....	1768-2
Participation in directors' meetings authorizing financing through Morgan Stanley & Co.	12328-12337, 1766-3
Stock interests in Morgan Stanley & Co., relation to partnership interests.....	12076-12085, 1766-3
Purchases by, of security issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co.	1768-2
Selection of underwriting groups after Banking Act of 1933, See financings of Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co.; Chicago & Western Indiana R. R. Co.; Nypano Railroad Co.; Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Co.; Wilmington & Weldon R. R.
Tax exempt income of.....	12111-12112
Testimony of Henry C. Alexander.....	11846, 11916, 12044-12045, 12095-12096
Testimony of Arthur M. Anderson.....	11999-12046
Testimony of Leonhard A. Keyes.....	11904-11909
Testimony of Russell C. Leffingwell.....	12101-12112
Testimony of George Whitney.....	11845-11861, 11871-11887, 11894-11903, 11909-11919, 11921-11926, 11928- 11935, 11995-12048, 12064-12085, 12097-12101.

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

- Morgan, J. P., & Co.—Continued.
 United Corporation, organization of..... 12070-12071, 12086
See also A. T. & T. System financing; Morgan, J. S., & Co.; Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated; Whitney, George.
- Morgan, J. Pierpont:
 Activities in A. T. & T. System financing..... 11873,
 11876-11877, 11898, 11925, 1659-19, 1659-30, 1659-32, 1673
 Directorships and trusteeships of..... 12325, 12332, 1768-2
 Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co..... 12079-12080,
 12082-12083, 1766-3
 Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated..... 12054,
 12083, 1761, 1766-3
See also Morgan, J. P., & Co.
- Morgan, J. S., & Co.:
 Participations in A. T. & T. System financing..... 11847,
 11851, 11892, 1659-24, 1659-26, 1661-2, 1666-1667, 1671
See also Morgan Grenfell & Co.
- Morgan, Junius S.:
 Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co..... 12083, 1766-3
 Directorships and trusteeships of..... 12326, 12330, 12332, 1768-2
 Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co..... 12054, 12083, 1761, 1766-3
- Morgan, Lewis & Bockios..... 1763
- Morgan Memorial Park, Glen Cove, N. Y..... 12325, 1768-2
- Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated:
 Agreement with Bonbright & Co. on Niagara Hudson Power System
 financing..... 12087-12093, 1767-1, 1771
 A. T. & T. System financing:
 Bankers commissions on security issues managed by..... 11874-11875, 1682
 Changes in underwriting group made by..... 11964-11965, 11982
 Exclusive nature of financial relations..... 11930-
 11937, 11970-11971, 11992
 Originations of, and participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor..... 11960-
 11961, 11974-11979, 1661-2, 1666-1667, 1681-2-1681-3, 1700,
 1704-1707.
 Participations relative to other members of group..... 11973-
 11976, 1703
 Profits and management fees from..... 11988-11990, 1681, 1702, 1706, 1707
 Advertising agencies for security issues managed by..... 1763
 Accountants for issuers of securities managed by..... 1763
 Bankers gross commissions on issues managed by..... 1764-1-1764-2
 Capital stock of:
 Amount..... 12050-12051
 Limitations on disposition of, under articles of incorporation..... 12055-
 12057, 1760-4
 Co-management with other firms..... 12062
 Counsel for security issues managed by..... 1763
 Deposits of proceeds of issues managed by, with J. P. Morgan & Co., question of..... 12097-12101, 12320-12321
 Engineers and appraisers for issuers of securities managed by..... 1763
 Fiscal services performed by J. P. Morgan & Co. for companies issuing securities through..... 12100-12101
 Guarantee of financial responsibility of underwriting groups by..... 11968,
 11981-11982, 11990-11991
 Gross spread on security issues, summary..... 12059-
 12063, 1762, 1764-1-1764-2
 Leading position in banking field..... 12075
 Loss on Shell Union Oil Corp. security issue..... 12061, 1762
 Memorandum on competitive bidding by..... 11993-11994
 Management fees..... 12060, 12063, 1762, 1764-1-1764-2
 Officers and directors of, and their prior affiliations..... 12049-
 12050, 12073, 12319
 Organization of..... 12073, 12318-12320, 1760-1-1760-4

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated—Continued.

Originations of, and participations in security issues, and negotiations therefor:
Companies in which partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. were directors.....	12327-12336
Companies invested in by United Corporation.....	12070-12072
Former accounts of J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12064-12075, 12094
Industrial issues.....	12066, 1764-2
Issues managed by others.....	12060, 1762
Issues not previously managed by J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12065
	12068-12069
Railroad issues.....	12066, 1764-2
Securities of:
Consolidated Edison Co. and subsidiaries.....	1771-1772-12328-12329
Consumers Power Co.....	12058-12059, 1762-1763
Continental Oil Co.....	12329
Niagara Hudson Power System.....	12087-12093, 1767-1, 1771
U. S. Steel Corp.....	12330-12336
Other companies.....	11862, 12043, 1670, 1748
Summary.....	12058-12061, 1762-1763
Utility issues.....	12065, 12070-12072, 12088-12091, 1764-1, 1767-1
Profits.....	12059-12063, 1762, 1764-1-1764-2
Reciprocity with other banking firms, question of.....	11983-11984
Relative participations in issues managed by.....	12090-12092, 1767-1, 1771
Security issues managed by, sold to J. P. Morgan & Co.....	1768-2
Stock interests in:
By former partners and employees of J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12051-12054, 1761
Proportions of preferred stock held by partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. related to their partnership interests.....	12076-12085, 1766-3
Succession to underwriting interests of J. P. Morgan & Co.....	12064-12075
Testimony of Perry E. Hall.....	12069
Testimony of Harold Stanley.....	11958-11995, 12049-12084
See also Morgan, J. P., & Co.
Morgenthau, Secretary Henry S.....	2163
Morrow, Dwight W.....	11869, 11901-11902, 11907, 11920, 1675-1678
Moseley, F. S., & Co.....	11866, 11877, 11896, 11927, 11964, 1671-1674, 1680-2, 1700, 1704, 1714-1, 1721, 1771
Moulton, H. G.....	1763
Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Co. financing.....	11977, 12065, 1659-81, 1700, 1703-1704, 1707, 1710-2, 1762-1763, 1768-2, 1770
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
Murphy, G. M.-P., & Co.....	1704, 1714-1, 1721
Nally, —.....	1659-75
Nassau Hospital.....	12326, 1768-2
National Bank of Commerce.....	11855, 1659-78-1659-79, 1661-2
National Bell Telephone Company.....	1659-1-1659-2, 1659-4
See also A. T. & T. Co. (early history); A. T. & T. System financing.
National City Bank of New York, The:
Arrangement with J. P. Morgan & Co. and First National Bank of New York for the division of securities business.....	11853-11854, 11922, 12036-12038, 1727
Deposits of A. T. & T. Co. in.....	1659-79
Participations in A. T. & T. System security issues and negotiations therefor.....	11854-11856, 11866, 11871, 11877, 11883, 11892, 1659-24, 1661-2, 1666-1667, 1671-1673, 1697
See also National City Company.
National City Company:
Arrangement with J. P. Morgan & Co. and First National Bank of New York for the division of securities business.....	11853-11854, 11922, 12036-12038, 1721
Compliance with Banking Act of 1933.....	11963

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

National City Company—Continued.

Participations in security issues and negotiations therefor:

Securities of:

A. T. & T. System..... 11852-
 11853, 11857, 11871, 11910-11914, 11922, 11931, 1661-2, 1666-
 1667, 1684, 1686-2-1687, 1689-1-1689-2, 1695.

Other companies..... 12028-12030, 1724, 1730, 1759-1-1759-2

Succession to underwriting interests of, by Brown Harriman & Co.,

Incorporated..... 11963-11964,
 12030-12031, 12036-12038, 12041, 1727, 1729, 1730

See also National City Bank of New York.

National City Union Co..... 1724

National Recovery Administration..... 12110

National Shawmut Bank..... 11927, 1659-78-1659-79, 1673-1674, 1680-2

See also Shawmut Corporation, The.

National Steel Corporation financing..... 1762

Nebraska Telephone Co. financing..... 1661-2

Nehemkis, Peter R., Jr., special counsel:

A. T. & T. testimony summarized by..... 11892-11893

Correspondence concerning exhibits..... 12047-12048,
 12320-12338, 1681-1, 1709-1-1709-2, 1710-1, 1749, 1750,
 1759-1-1759-2, 1761, 1768-1, 1768-2.

Newbold, Arthur..... 12083, 1766-3

Newbold's, W. H., Son & Co..... 1704, 1764

New England Telephone Company:

Directors of..... 1659-2

Stock interests by officers and directors in..... 1659-4

See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.

New England Telephone & Telegraph Company:

Security issues of 11917, 12322, 1681-2-1681-3, 1686-1-1688, 1709-3, 1710-2

Stock interest in, by A. T. & T. Co..... 1659-79, 1659-81

See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.

New Orleans & Northeastern Railroad Company..... 1768-2

New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company..... 1768-2

Newton, Abbe & Co..... 1704

New York Botanical Garden..... 12326, 1768-2

New York Central Railroad Company financing..... 11878,

12009-12014, 12065, 12326, 1712, 1713-1714-2, 1715, 1751,
 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770.

New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company financing. 12020, 1724, 1730

New York Edison Company, Inc. financing..... 12065,

12329, 1762-1764-1, 1768-2, 1769-1771

New York Hospital..... 12325, 1768-2

New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, The Trustees of... 1768-2

New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio Railroad, financing.

See Nypano Railroad Co. financing.

New York & Pennsylvania Telephone Co..... 1659-9

New York Public Library..... 12325-12326, 1768-2

New York & Queens Electric Light & Power Company financing..... 12065,

1762-1764-1, 1768-2, 1770-1771

New York Steam Corporation financing..... 12065,

12329, 1762-1764-1, 1768-2, 1769-1771

New York Stock Exchange..... 11955, 1751

New York Telephone Company:

Securities issues of..... 11917-11918,
 11977, 12065, 12323, 1661-2, 1667, 1681-2-1682, 1686-1-1688,
 1703-1704, 1707, 1709-3, 1710-2, 1762-1763, 1768-2.

Stock interests in..... 1659-60, 1659-79, 1762-1763

See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.

New York Trade School..... 12326, 1768-2

New York Trust Co., The..... 12327, 1728-1, 1768-2

Niagara Falls Power Company financing... 12065, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2

Niagara Hudson Power Corporation:

Hearings concerning, under Public Utility Holding Company Act... 11995-11996, 12083-12089

Securities issues of..... 12068, 12088-12093, 1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2

Stock interest of United Corporation in..... 12071, 1766-2

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Niagara Share Corporation of Maryland	1768-2
Nichols, Terry & Dickinson, Inc.	1704
Nichols, William R., & Company	1739
Nickel Plate Railroad, See New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co.
Niles & Niles	1763
Nolligan, J. J.	1728-1
Nord Railway Company	1768-2
North British & Mercantile Insurance Co., Ltd.	12326, 1768-2
Northeast Harbor Water Company	12327, 1768-2
Northern Indiana Public Service Co. financing	11939
Northern Pacific Railway Company financing	11879, 12326, 1768-2
Northwestern Bell Telephone Company financing	11917, 1681-2-1681-3, 1686-1-1688, 1709-3, 1710-2
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
Northwestern Telephone Exchange Co. financing	1661-2
Notice of annual meeting, example of	1659-15
Nypano Railroad Co. financing	12005, 12021-12023, 12030-12034, 1712, 1722-1723, 1725-1726, 1749, 1752
Ohio Bell Telephone Company, The	1689-1-1689-2
Ohio Edison Company financing	12065, 12069, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2, 1770
Ohio Power Company financing	1762
Ohio State Telephone Co. financing	1661-2, 1667
Old Colony Trust Company	11864, 11866, 11877, 11896, 11924, 11927, 1659-9, 1671-1674, 1680-2
See also Coolidge, T. Jefferson, Jr.
Olds, Irving S.	12330
Olney, —	1659-34-1659-35
O'Mahoney, Senator Joseph C.
Correspondence concerning testimony	12316
Statement by, concerning purposes of T. N. E. C.	11859-11860
Otis & Co.	12067, 1661-2, 1704
Pacific Gas & Electric Company financing	11929, 1690, 1762
Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company financing	11851, 11965, 11976, 11984, 12065, 1644, 1659-79, 1661-2, 1667, 1681-2- 1681-3, 1686-1-1688, 1700-1701, 1703-1704, 1706-1707, 1709-3, 1710-2, 1762-1763, 1768-2, 1770.
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
"Padding," See investment banking, oversubscription.
Paine, Webber & Co.	1704, 1714-1, 1721
Parish Securities Corporation	12325, 1768-2
Partnership in investment banking, advantages of	11954
Patterson, Teele and Dennis	1763
Peabody & Co.	11852
Peacock Corporation	12327, 1768-2
Peacock Point Corporation	12327, 1768-2
Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co.	1763
Peck, E. Stuart	12014-12015, 1716, 1749
Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company	12327, 1768-2
Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind	12327, 1768-2
Pennsylvania Power Company financing	12322
Pennsylvania Railroad Company financing	1762
Pennsylvania, University of	12327, 1768-2
People's Gas Co. financing	11939
Pere Marquette Railway Co. financing	12023, 12030, 1724, 1768-2
Perkins, C. E.	1659-1-1659-2
Perkins, George W.	1659-28
Perry, Arthur, & Co., Incorporated	1704
Perry, Marsden J.	1659-16
Peterson, R. S.	11862, 1689
Phelps Dodge Corporation financing	12065- 12066, 12326, 12329-12330, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce	12327
Philadelphia, City of, financing	1729
Philadelphia Contributionship for Insuring Houses from Loss by Fire	1237, 1768-2

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Philadelphia Electric Company financing	12065, 12330, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2, 1770
Philadelphia Electric Power Company	1768-2
Philadelphia National Insurance Co.	12327
Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Corporation	1768-2
Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, The	12327, 1768-2
Philadelphia Steel & Wire Corporation	1768-2
Philadelphia Traction Company	1768-2
Philips Exeter Academy	12325, 1768-2
Phillips, G. L.	1659-2
Phoenix Iron Company	1768-2
Pierpont Corporation	12326, 1768-2
Pierpont Morgan Library	12326, 1768-2
Pilgrims of the United States	12325, 1768-2
Pittston Co.	1768-2
Place, Willard F.	12007-12014, 1714-1, 1715-1717, 1749
Pogson Peloubet & Co.	1763
Police Relief Association of Nassau County	12326, 1768-2
Post, C. B.	1763
Postal Telegraph & Cable Corp.	1659-50, 1659-71, 1768-2
See also Commercial Cable Co., The; Mackay Companies.
Potomac Edison Co., The, financing	11953
Potter, Mark W.	1759
Potter, William C.	12003, 12039, 1711, 1730
Pressprich, R. W., & Co.	1704, 1714-1, 1721
Price policy, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163
Price, Waterhouse & Co.	1763
Private placement of securities	12322-12323, 12008, 1713, 1758
Proctor & Gamble Company	1768-2
Professional character of investment banking	11840
11858-11860, 11915-11916, 11970, 11982, 12006, 12029, 12094
See also Investment banking, competition in.
"Proprietary interests" in A. T. & T. System financing	11864- 11870, 11875-11876, 11942-11943, 1671-1674, 1680-2
Provident Fire Insurance Company	12327, 1768-2
Proxy, example of	1659-16
Prudential Insurance Co. of America, The	12008, 1713, 1758
Public debt, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163
Public Service of Indiana, Inc. financing	11939
Public Service Company of Northern Illinois financing	11862, 1669
Public Service Corporation of New Jersey financing	12068, 12071, 1764-1, 1768-2, 1767-1
Public Service Electric & Gas Company financing	12065, 12322, 1762-1764-1, 1767-1, 1768-2
Pullman Company	12326, 1768-2
Pullman, Incorporated	12326, 1768-2
Purchase contracts, examples of	1659-20, 1659-25
Purchase group letters, examples of	1663-1665
Putnam & Co.	12067, 12322
Putnam, W. L.	1659-17
Railway Express Agency, Incorporated financing	12065, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2
Reading Company	12327, 1768-2
Reciprocity in selection of underwriting groups	11983-11984, 12026, 1706
Reconstruction Finance Corporation	12338, 1713
Redmond, Roland L.	1722-2
Reed, Lansing P.	12070, 1765
Refunding, amount of, relative to new financing	11998
Reinholdt & Gardner	1704
Reynolds, —	1713
Rhokana Corporation Ltd.	1768-2
Ripley, Joseph P.	12015, 12021-12022, 12030, 1717, 1722, 1725, 1751
Riter & Co.	1704
Robinson-Humphrey Co., The	1704
Robinson-Humphrey Ward Law & Co.	1667
Rochester Gas & Electric Corporation financing	12322-12323

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Rockefeller, John D.	1659-24, 1659-34
Rollins, E. H., & Sons, Inc.	1704
Rome, City of	1768-2
Roosevelt Hospital	12326, 1768-2
Roosevelt, President Franklin D., letter of May 16, 1939, to Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, cited	11888
Roosevelt, W. L.	1659-30
Rosenberg, Adolpho L.	1763
Rothschild, L. F., & Co.	1704
Royal Exchange Assurance of London (U. S. Branch)	12327, 1768-2
Russell, H. S.	1659-1
Ryan, —	1730
Safe Deposit & Trust Co. of Baltimore	1728-1
St. John's Church of Lattingtown, L. I., N. Y.	12325, 1768-2
St. Louis Bridge Company	1768-2
St. Luke's International Medical Center American Council	12325, 1768-2
St. Paul Union Depot Company	1768-2
St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire	12327, 1768-2
Salomon Bros. & Hutzler	1704, 1714-1, 1721, 1724
Salomon, William	11838, 1659-18
Salomon, William, & Co.	1659-18, 1659-24
Saltonstall, W. G.	1659-1-1659-3
Sanders, Camon & Co.	1763
Sanders, Thomas	1659-1-1659-2
Sanderson & Porter	1763
Santa Fe Pacific Railroad Company	12325, 1768-2
Savannah Gas Company financing	12322
Saving Fund Society of Germantown and Its Vicinity	1768-2
Scandrett, Henry A.	1766
Schiff, Jacob	11850, 1659-28, 1662
Schoelkopf, Hutton & Pomeroy, Inc.	1704, 1728-1, 1767-1, 1771
Schoonmaker, —	1659-68-1659-69
Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc.	1704
Scovill Manufacturing Company	1768-2
Schwabacher & Co.	1704
Schweppe, Charles H.	11931, 1694-95
Scott Paper Company	1768-2
Seamen's Church Institute of New York	12326, 1768-2
Second & Third Street Passenger Railway Company	12327, 1768-2
Securities Act of 1933:
Increased expense of investment banking business under, alleged	11990
Liabilities under	12317-12320
Public offerings of securities under, by A. T. & T. System	1700
Registration of various security issues under	12094-12095, 12331-12332
Securities and Exchange Commission, See Henderson, Commissioner Leon;
Nehemkis, Peter R., Jr.; Securities Act of 1933; Whitehead, William S.
Securities Co. of Milwaukee, Inc., The	1704
Seligman, J. & W., & Co.	1659-24, 1700, 1704, 1714-1, 1721, 1739, 1767-1, 1771
Sharp & Dohme, Incorporated	12327, 1768-2
Sharp, Milne & Co.	1763
Shawmut Corporation, The	11927, 1674, 1724
See also National Shawmut Bank.
Shell Union Oil Corporation financing	12061-12066, 1762
Shelmerdine, W.	11831, 1659-78, 1659-82
Sherburne, H. H.	1700
Sherwin, Thomas	11835, 1659-2, 1659-9
Shields & Co.	1704
Shriber, Alfred	12050, 12053
Shurtleff, Roy	1748
Silsbee, G. Z.	1659-2
Simon, J. M., & Co.	1704
Singer, Deane & Scribner	1704
Slake, Arthur W.	1659-1
Sloan, George A.	12330
Small business, financing of	11887-11888

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

- Smith, ———— 1659-80
- Smith, Barney & Co.:
 Participations in A. T. & T. System security issues 1700-1704
 Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley
 & Co. 12090-12092, 1767-1771
 Testimony of Joseph R. Swan 11999-12046
See also Barney, Charles D., & Co., Smith, Edward B., & Co.
- Smith, Edward B., & Co.:
 Historical relation of, to Erie Railroad Co. financing 12027-12028, 1724
 Officers and directors of, prior affiliation with Guaranty Co. 120002-12003,
 12032, 1711
 Originations of, and participations in, security issues, and negotiations therefor:
 Securities of:
 A. T. & T. System 11963, 11974-11979, 1700, 1703-1708
 Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. 12035-12038, 1727-1728-1
 Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Co. 12041,
 1729, 1734-1735, 1739
 Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. 1748-1749
 Nypano Railroad Co. 12021-12025,
 12027-12031, 12033-12036, 1722, 1724-1727
 Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company 12007-12019,
 1718-1714-1, 1717-1718
 Relative participations in utility issues managed by Morgan Stanley
 & Co. 12090-12092, 1767-1, 1771
 Succession to underwriting interests of Guaranty Co. 11963,
 12003, 12027-12034, 1711, 1724
See also Smith, Barney & Co.
- Smith, Harrison, & Co. 1724
- Smith, Moore & Co. 1704
- Snow, Frederick B. 1659-25
- Snow, W. G. 1659-3
- Societa Italiana Pirelli 1768-2
- Solvay American Investment Corporation 12070, 1765, 1768-2
- Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company financing 11977,
 11987, 12065, 1659-9, 1659-79, 1667, 1681-2-1681-3, 1687-1688,
 1700-1704, 1707, 1709-3, 1710-2, 1762-1763, 1768-2, 1770
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
- Southern Improvement Co. 1768-2
- Southern Indiana Gas & Electric Company financing 12322
- Southern Railway Company 1768-2
- Southwestern Bell Telephone Company:
 Security issues of 11880,
 11917, 11924, 11929-11932, 11954, 11972, 11976-11977, 12065,
 1661-2, 1680, 1680-1-1680-2, 1681-2-1681-3, 1686-1-1688, 1690,
 1695, 1699-1700, 1703-1704, 1707, 1709-3, 1710-2, 1762-1763,
 1770.
 Stock interests in 1659-79, 1762-1763, 1768-2
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
- Southwestern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. financing 1710-2
- Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of Missouri financing 1709-3
- Southwestern Telephone & Telegraph Co. financing 1661-3
- Southwestern Construction Company 12325, 1768-3
- Sparrow, W. W. K. 1768
- Speyer Brothers 1659-19
- Speyer & Co. 11830,
 11834, 11836-11837, 11992, 1659-6-1659-7, 1659-19, 1704, 1706
 1659-19
- Speyer, Edgar 1659-19
- Splawn, W. W. M. 11831
- "Spread" in investment banking 11875, 11913-11914, 11985, 11989
- Standard Brands, Incorporated financing 12065-12066,
 12327, 12330, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770
- Standard Oil Company (N. J.) financing 11918,
 12065, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For page on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Stanley, Harold:
Activities in A. T. & T. Co. financing	11943-11944, 11951-11953, 11958-11995, 1644, 1697-1699, 1705-1706
Activities in other financings	11862, 12043, 12070, 12087, 12324, 1670, 1748, 1765
Affiliation with Morgan Stanley & Co.	12073
Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co.	12051-12054, 1761
Testimony of	11958-11995, 12049-12084
See also Morgan Stanley & Co.
Starkweather & Co.	1704
Starr, Edward, Jr.	12083, 1766-3
State Assurance Company	1768-2
Steele, Charles W.:
Activities in A. T. & T. System financing	1659-10, 1659-25, 1659-30
Directorships and trusteeships of	1768-2
Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co.	12079, 12082-12083, 1766-3
Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co.	12054, 12083-12084, 1761, 1766-3
Stein Bros. & Boyd	1704
Stern Brothers & Co.	1704
Stern, Lawrence, and Company Incorporated	1704
Stettinius, Edward R. Jr.	12330-12332
Stevens, Eugene M.	1748
Stix & Co.	1704
Stock Corporation Law of New York, cited	12319, 1659-9
Stockton, H.	1659-2
Stokes vs. Continental Trust Co., cited	1659-9
Stockes, Edward Lowber, & Co.	1724
Stone, P. S.	1659-2
Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc.	1704, 1714-2, 1721, 1749, 1767-1, 1771
Stonoga Coke & Coal Company	12327, 1768-2
Storrow, James	1659-7, 1659-19
Stout, Charles H.	1659-8
Stroud & Co., Inc.	1704
Stuart, Harold L.:
Activities in various financings	11862, 11935-11941, 1669
Testimony of	11935-11941
See also Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc.
Sturgis, C. I.	1737-1738
Sturgis, Henry S.	1709-1-1709-2, 1724
Sturgis, J.	1659-2
Subscription period, length of, in security issues	11916-11918, 11988
Succession to underwriting interests:
Brown, Harriman & Co., Inc., to interests of National City Co.	11963-11964, 12030-12031, 12036-12038, 12041, 1727, 1729-1730
The First Boston Corporation to interests of Harris Forbes com- panies	11963, 11967, 1698
Morgan Stanley & Co. to interests of J. P. Morgan & Co.	12064-12075
Edward B. Smith & Co. to interests of Guaranty Co. of N. Y.	11963, 12003, 12027-12034, 1711, 1724
Sullivan & Cromwell	1763
Swan, Joseph R.:
Activities in various railroad financings	12008-12009, 12012-12013, 12015-12017, 12028-12029, 12036, 1713, 1717, 1724, 1727, 1730, 1735, 1749.
Testimony of	11999-12046
See also Guaranty Company of N. Y.; Smith, Barney & Co.; Smith, Edward B., & Co.
Swedish American Investment Corporation	12070, 1765
Sweet, Oliver E.	1766
Swiss Confederation	1768-2
Sylvester, Horace C., Jr.	12030, 12041-12042, 1725, 1729, 1731, 1736, 1742
Tax policy, discussion by R. C. Leffingwell	2163
Taylor, H. A.	1723
Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association	1768-2
Teixeira de Mattos Brothers (Holland)	1659-19
Telephone patents, early control of	11832

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Telephones, number in use, increase of	11820, 11833
Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis	12067, 12323, 1768-3
Terrell, Herbert	1659-30-1659-31
Texas Gulf Sulphur Company	12326, 1768-3
Texas & Pacific Railway Company, The	1768-3
Texas Pacific-Missouri Pacific Terminal R. R. of New Orleans	1768-2
Thayer, H. B.	1659-83
Thayer, Nathaniel	1659-67, 1659-69
Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Company financing	11900, 12007-12020, 12048, 1712-1721, 1749
Transportation Mutual Insurance Company	1768-3
Trask, Spencer, & Co.	1659-24, 1704, 1771
Tri-State Telephone & Telegraph Co. financing	1661-2, 1667
Tucker, Anthony & Co.	1704
Tunison, F. J. S.	1659-79
Tunnel Railroad of St. Louis	1768-3
Twentieth Century Fund	11831
Ullafer, John	1679
Underwriting groups:
Factors considered in selecting members	11858-11859, 11900, 11954, 11961-11962, 11983-11984, 12032-12034
Capital position	12032-12033
Distributing ability	11858-11859
Historical relationship	11961-11967, 12027-12028, 1724
Personal relationships	12033-12034, 1728
See also Successions to underwriting interests.
Reciprocity	11983-11984, 12020, 12026, 1706
Technical knowledge	11858
Wishes of issuing corporation	11954
Limited liability of, in early A. T. & T. System financing	11842-11843
Negotiations with issuing company by one or several bankers, discussed	11877-11879, 1673
Permanence of	11938-11941
See also under A. T. & T. System financing.
Several liability of underwriters since Securities Act of 1933	11981-11982, 12093
Union Pacific Railroad Co. financing	1768
Union Trust of Pittsburgh, The	1729
United Corporation	12069-12071-12086, 1765, 1768-2, 1769-2
United Gas Improvement Co., The	12067, 12071, 1764-1, 1768-2, 1767-1, 1768-2
United Hospital Fund of New York	12326, 1768-2
United Kingdom, fiscal services performed by J. P. Morgan & Co. for	1768-2
U. S. Government securities:
Holdings of, by J. P. Morgan & Co.	12102-12104, 12337-12338
Liberty Bonds	11916-11919
Pricing of	11918
United States Guaranty Company	12326, 1768-2
United States & Hayti Telegraph & Cable Co.	1768-3
U. S. House of Representatives Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce	11830
U. S. Housing Authority, securities of	12338
United States Mortgage & Trust Company	1659-44, 1661-2
U. S. Senate Civil Liberties Committee	11831-11832
United States Steel Corporation financing	11839, 12065, 12325-12326, 12330-12336, 1762-1763, 1764-2, 1768-2, 1770.
United States Telephone Company financing	1659-1
United States Trust Co. of New York	1728-1
Utility Equities Corporation	12070, 1765
Vail, Theodore N.:
Activities as President of American Telephone & Telegraph Co.	11834- 11835, 11857, 1659-2, 1659-26, 1659-28-1659-32, 1663, 1665, 1659-71-1659-77, 1659-79-1659-80, 1659-82.
Resignation as trustee in A. T. & T. requested by C. H. Mackay	1659-45- 1659-54 1659-30
Vanderbilt, Cornelius	1659-30

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Vanderbilt, Harold S.....	12007, 1713
Vandervoort, Archer M.....	12050
Vaness Company.....	1724
Van Sweringen interests.....	12022,
12023-12029, 12041, 1722, 1724, 1729-1730, 1734
Vassar College.....	1768-2
Venner, C. H.....	1659-81
Vermilyne & Co.....	1659-6
Vermont, State of.....	1768-2
Virginia Coal & Iron Company.....	12327, 1768-2
Virginian Railway Company, The, financing.....	1762
Virginia Transportation Co.....	1724
Vogt, Adolph W.....	12335
Voorhees, Enders M.....	12330, 12335
Walker, Burnett.....	12003, 12022, 12029, 12041, 1722 1729, 1730, 1734, 1735
Walker, G. H., & Co.....	1704
Wall Street Journal, quoted.....	1659-26
Walsh, —.....	12023-12024
Walters, Henry.....	12035
Ward, —.....	1659-34-1659-35
Ward, Francis.....	12034, 1749
Wardwell, Allen.....	12044-12045, 1749-1750, 1754-1, 1755
Ware, C. P.....	1659-2
Warren, George F.....	2163
Washburn & Co., Inc.....	1704
Waterbury, John I., activities as director of A. T. & T. Co.....	11835-11839,
1659-8, 1659-9-1659-12, 1659-14-1659-15, 1659-29, 1659-33-
1659-39, 1659-64, 1659-67, 1659-69, 1659-71, 1659-79.
Watson, Thomas A.....	1659-1-1659-2
Webster, Edwin S., Jr.....	11947
Weisheit, Karl, diary entries by.....	12023, 1713, 1722, 1726, 1734, 1735
Weld, Francis M.....	1749
Welldon, Samuel A.....	12009, 1713
Wells-Dickey Company.....	1704
Westchester Lighting Company financing.....	12065,
1762-1764-1, 1768-2, 1770-1771
Western Electric Company financing.....	1659-81,
1661-2, 1667, 1681-2-1681-3, 1709-2-1709-3
See also American Telephone & Telegraph System financing.
Western Pocahontas Corp.....	1768-2
Western Saving Fund Society of Philadelphia.....	12327, 1768-2
Western Telephone and Telegraph Company.....	1659-6, 1659-9
Western Union Telegraph Co.:
Proposed combination with A. T. & T. System.....	1659-34,
1659-50, 1659-55, 1659-71
Purchase of stock in, by A. T. & T. Co.....	1659-78
Stock interest in New York Telephone Co.....	1659-60
West Shore Railroad Company.....	12326, 1768-2
Whitcomb, C. M.....	1659-2
White, A. M.....	1659-30
White and Case.....	12334, 1763
Whitehead, William S.:
Documents made available to.....	11906, 11909, 11931, 1661-1, 1666-1, 1694
Testimony of.....	11849, 11856, 11920-11921, 11999-12000
White, Weld & Co.....	12031,
12034, 1700, 1704, 1714-1, 1721, 1728-1, 1749, 1767-1, 1771
Whiting, Max O.....	12013, 12018-12019, 1715, 1718-1719, 1749
Whiting, Weeks & Knowles, Inc.....	12013,
12018-12019, 1714-1, 1715, 1718-1719, 1721, 1749

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

Whitney, George:

Activities in financing of:

A. T. & T. System	11845-11846, 11880-11882, 11893-11895, 11928-11930, 11933-11934, 11949- 11950, 11996-11997, 1679, 1690, 1692, 1695.
Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.	12035-12039, 1727, 1749
Nypano Railroad Co.	12021-12022, 1722
Toledo & Ohio Central Railroad Co.	12007-12020, 1713, 1716-1717
Other companies	12328-12329
"Aide memoire" for "library conference" on A. T. & T. financ- ing.	11882-11885, 11892, 11904-11908, 11926, 1679
Directorships and trusteeships of	12070, 12326, 1768-2
Partnership interest in J. P. Morgan & Co.	12083, 1766-3
Stock interest in Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.	12054, 12083, 1761, 1766-3
Supplementary information submitted by	12317-12321
Testimony of	11845-11861, 11871-11887, 11894-11903, 11909-11919, 11921-11926, 11928- 11935, 11995-12048, 12064-12085, 12097-12101.
Testimony in Niagara Hudson Power Co. hearing, cited.	11995-11997
Whitney, Martha B.	12054
Willard,	1734
Williams, A. N.	12024, 1733, 1735, 1736, 1739-1, 1747, 1749
Williams, C., Jr.	1659-1
Williams, Harrison	12046, 1757
Williams, M.	1659-2
Willkie, Wendell L.	12058-12059
Wilmington & Weldon Railroad financing	12005, 1712, 1723-1
Wilson, Woodrow	12102, 12105
Winsor, Robert:
Activities in A. T. & T. System financing	11848-11850, 11863-11865, 11873, 11876-11883, 11892-11894, 11897, 11901- 11903, 11906, 11925, 11943, 11996-11997, 1659-13, 1659-19, 1659-25, 1659-28, 1659-30-1659-31, 1659-78, 1662, 1671, 1673, 1675-1679.
See also Kidder, Peabody & Co. (old firm).
Winthrop, Stinson, Putnam & Roberts.	1763
Wistar Institute Fund	12327, 1768-2
Witter, Dean, & Co.	11983, 1700-1701, 1704, 1708
Yarnall & Co.	1704
Yonkers Electric Light & Power Co.	1768-2
York, Edward H., Jr.	12050-12051, 12053, 12073, 12323
Young, Arthur & Company	1763
Young, John M.	12009, 12011-12012, 12016, 12050-12051, 12053, 12073, 1714-1, 1717, 1749

NOTE.—Figures in ordinary type refer to page numbers; figures in italics are exhibit numbers. For pages on which exhibits appear, see Schedule of Exhibits.

INVESTIGATION OF CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

HEARINGS

BEFORE THE

TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES

SEVENTY-SIXTH CONGRESS

THIRD SESSION

PURSUANT TO

Public Resolution No. 113

(Seventy-fifth Congress)

AUTHORIZING AND DIRECTING A SELECT COMMITTEE TO MAKE A FULL AND COMPLETE STUDY AND INVESTIGA-TION WITH RESPECT TO THE CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER IN, AND FINANCIAL CONTROL OVER, PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF GOODS AND SERVICES

PART 24

INVESTMENT BANKING

GOLDMAN, SACHS & CO.

LEHMAN BROTHERS

SMITH, BARNEY & CO.

KUHN, LOEB & CO.

GLORE, FORGAN & CO.

THE FINANCING OF
CLEVELAND-CLIFFS IRON CO.
STANDARD GAS & ELECTRIC CO.
SHELL UNION OIL CORPORATION

CONCENTRATION IN THE MANAGEMENT, UNDERWRITING
AND SALE OF REGISTERED BOND ISSUES

JANUARY 8, 9, 10, 11, AND 12, 1940

Printed for the use of the Temporary National Economic Committee

UNITED STATES
GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE
WASHINGTON : 1940

TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE

(Created pursuant to Public Res. 113, 75th Cong.)

JOSEPH C. O'MAHONEY, Senator from Wyoming, Chairman
HATTON W. SUMNERS, Representative from Texas, Vice Chairman
WILLIAM H. KING, Senator from Utah
WILLIAM E. BORAH, Senator from Idaho
CLYDE WILLIAMS, Representative from Missouri
B. CARROLL REECE, Representative from Tennessee

THURMAN W. ARNOLD, Assistant Attorney General
*WENDELL BERGE, Special Assistant to the Attorney General Representing the Department of Justice

JEROME N. FRANK, Chairman
*LEON HENDERSON, Commissioner
Representing the Securities and Exchange Commission

GARLAND S. FERGUSON, Commissioner
*EWIN L. DAVIS, Commissioner
Representing the Federal Trade Commission

ISADOR LUBIN, Commissioner of Labor Statistics
*A. FORD HINRICHS, Chief Economist, Bureau of Labor Statistics
Representing the Department of Labor

JOSEPH J. O'CONNELL, Jr., Special Assistant to the General Counsel

*CHARLES L. KADES, Special Assistant to the General Counsel¹
Representing the Department the Treasury

CLARENCE AVILDSEN, Special Adviser to the Secretary
Representing the Department of Commerce

JAMES R. BRACKETT, Executive Secretary

¹ Alternates.

¹ Appointed January 9, 1940.

CONTENTS

Testimony of—	Page
Altman, Dr. Oscar L., Investment Banking Section, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.....	12688-12711
Briggs, Joseph H., chairman, executive committee, and executive vice president, H. M. Byllesby & Co., Chicago, Ill.....	12547-12561
Coulson, William H., Smith, Barney & Co., New York, N. Y.....	12539-12543
Duhig, S. W., vice president and treasurer, Shell Union Oil Corporation, New York, N. Y.....	12626-12651
Dulles, Allen Welch, Sullivan & Cromwell, New York, N. Y.....	12607-12623
Emanuel, Victor, president, Standard Power & Light Corporation, and chairman, finance committee, Standard Gas & Electric Company, New York, N. Y.....	12561-12623
Fennelly, John F., Glore, Forgan & Co., Chicago, Illinois.....	12469-12476
Fuller, Carlton P., president, Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.....	12565, 12568-12623
Greene, Richard V., president, Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., Cleveland, Ohio.....	12415-12432, 12434
Hall, Perry E., vice president, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, New York, N. Y.....	12658-12687
Hancock, John M., Lehman Bros., New York, N. Y.....	12344-12413
Huff, Charles H., associate utilities financial analyst, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.....	12682-12683, 12687
Lyons, Barrow, associate financial economist, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.....	12682-12683
Mathey, Dean, vice president, Dillon, Read & Co., New York, N. Y.....	12651-12657
Sachs, Walter E., Goldman, Sachs & Co., New York, N. Y.....	12344-12413
Schiff, John M., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, N. Y.....	12477-12508
Stanley, Harold, president, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, New York, N. Y.....	12658-12687
Strauss, Lewis L., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, N. Y.....	12477-12508
Swan, Joseph R., Smith, Barney & Co., New York, N. Y.....	12477-12538
Tompkins, B. A., vice president, Bankers Trust Co., New York, N. Y.....	12432-12468
van der Woude, R., president, Shell Union Oil Corporation, New York, N. Y.....	12626-12651
Wels, Richard H., assistant attorney, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.....	12688
Whitehead, William S., securities analyst, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.....	12468, 12682-12683
Statement of—
Henderson, Leon, Commissioner, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C.....	12343-12344

GOLDMAN, SACHS & CO.—LEHMAN BROTHERS

Earliest financing by the two houses.....	12346
Relations between the firms to 1920.....	12346
Relations from 1920 to 1926.....	12348
Events leading to memorandum of 1925.....	12350
Memorandum of January 5, 1926.....	12353
Directorships in companies financed through investment bankers.....	12356
Paragraph eight of memorandum of 1926.....	12364
Paragraph seven of memorandum of 1926.....	12364
Sharing commissions on trading and brokerage accounts.....	12367
Life of memorandum of 1926.....	12373
Handling financing under the memorandum of 1926.....	12374

	Page
Stockholder and officer participation in trading accounts.....	12375
Stockholder and officer participation in underwriting syndicate.....	12376
Abrogation of memorandum of 1926 in 1936.....	12379
Origin of the management fee.....	12381
Attitude toward Morgan Stanley & Co.....	12383
Relations after the abrogation in 1936.....	12385
The national scope of investment banking.....	12386
Underwriting group for Continental Can Co. financing.....	12388
Financing by General Foods Corporation, 1938.....	12389
Financing by National Dairy Products Corp., 1936.....	12393
Financing by Cluett, Peabody & Co., 1937.....	12395, 12410
Role of directors who are investment bankers.....	12401
Competition with market conditions.....	12403
Conflicts of interest.....	12405
Competitive bidding.....	12406
Agreement of 1938.....	12412

FINANCING OF CLEVELAND-CLIFFS IRON CO.

Bank debt of the company.....	12416
Discussions with Bankers Trust Co. with regard to a bond issue.....	12417
Agreement of January 30, 1935.....	12419, 12433
Paragraph 7 of the agreement of Jan. 30, 1935.....	12420
Composition of underwriting syndicate.....	12429
The commission earned.....	12430
Selection of underwriters.....	12438
Meaning of underwriting and the Banking Act of 1933.....	12444
Authority to select the underwriting syndicate.....	12447
Discussion of underwriting terms, June 28, 1935.....	12450
Position of Bankers Trust under agreement of June 28, 1935.....	12452
Memorandum of July 8, 1935.....	12457
Arrangements as of October 28, 1935.....	12458
Bank loan of $5,000,000.....	12461
Agreement Re: management of Cleveland Cliffs.....	12462
Brokerage transactions for Cleveland Cliffs.....	12466
Fees paid to Lehman Bros. and Bankers Trust Co.....	12467

GLORE, FORGAN & CO.

Indianapolis Power & Light Co. financing, 1938.....	12469
Agreement on leading positions in future financing of Indianapolis Power & Light and Utilities Power & Light.....	12471
"Moral commitment" resulting from membership in an account.....	12472
Agreement on future financing of Associated Gas & Electric Co. and subsidiaries—1937.....	12475
Agreement re management of Cleveland-Cliffs Co.—Resumed—Statement by Mr. John F. Fennelly.....	12476

SMITH, BARNEY & CO.—KUHN, LOEB & CO.

Financing of the Armstrong Cork Co.—1935 and 1930 issues.....	12478
M. L. Freeman discusses Armstrong financing with Kuhn, Loeb & Co.....	12480
Seeking assurance that a company has made a "clean break" with its prior banker before discussing financing.....	12481
Traditional attitude of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. toward competition where a satisfactory banking relationship exists.....	12484
Payments by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to M. L. Freeman.....	12489
Professional character of investment banking.....	12491, 12535
Competition in investment banking.....	12492
Agreements for future financing between underwriters and between issuer corporations and underwriters.....	12494
The element of price in investment banking competition.....	12498
Financing of the Armstrong Cork Co.—1935 issue (Resumed)—Edward B. Smith & Co. believes Armstrong is its account.....	12500
"Shopping around".....	12504

	Page
Kuhn, Loeb & Co. informs Edward B. Smith & Co. of conversations with Armstrong Cork Co.-----	12506
Edward B. Smith & Co.'s relations with issuer corporations and with Guaranty Trust Co.-----	12509
Financing of Wilson & Company—1935 issue.-----	12512
Edward B. Smith & Co. discusses Wilson & Co. financing with E. A. Potter, vice president of Guaranty Trust Co. and director of Wilson & Co.-----	12514
White, Weld & Co.'s interest in Wilson & Co.'s financing.-----	12516
Conversations with E. A. Potter—Resumed.-----	12520
Formation of the Wilson & Co. syndicate.-----	12524
Inclusion of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in the Wilson & Co. syndicate.-----	12529
Relation of the investment banker to the issuer and the investor.-----	12530
Failure of White, Weld & Co. to be included in the syndicate.-----	12533
Financing an underwriting transaction—the day-loan procedure.-----	12538

STANDARD GAS AND ELECTRIC CO.

Agreements between underwriters and corporations issuing securities.---	12546
Relationship of H. M. Byllesby & Co. to Standard system of utility companies.-----	12548
The Standard system—Constituent companies—Assets.-----	12549
Standard's acquisition of interest in Philadelphia Co. system—Agreement with Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.-----	12551
Agreement with respect to future financing of Standard Power & Light Co., holding company of Philadelphia Co. utilities, March 1926.-----	12553
Security issues pursuant to agreement of March 1926.-----	12554
Stockholders' suits against H. M. Byllesby and Company, and Standard Power & Light Co., 1929.-----	12555
H. M. Byllesby & Co.'s control of Standard Power & Light Co. through holdings of management preferred stock.-----	12556
Acquisition of Standard Power & Light Co. stock by the Loewenstein and Emanuel interests.-----	12558
United States Electric Power Corporation (USEPCO) and its organizers.-----	12559
General settlement between USEPCO and Standard Power & Light Co.—the Banking Memorandum of December 1929.-----	12560
Program of utility acquisitions of Victor Emanuel and Alfred Loewenstein.-----	12562
Legal moves against Standard Power & Light Co.-----	12567
General settlement between USEPCO and Standard Power & Light Co.—resumed.-----	12573
Security issues pursuant to Banking Memorandum of December 1929.-----	12576
$15,000,000 loan to USEPCO secured by Standard Power & Light Co. stock—efforts to regain collateral.-----	12577
J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, desires assurance on future Standard Power & Light Co. financing.-----	12595
Summary of the record by counsel—comments by Mr. Emanuel.-----	12602
The group purchasing notes and collateral—continuing effectiveness of Banking Memorandum of December 1929.-----	12606
Enforceability of the 75-25 percent agreement for future financing.-----	12610
Nature of and parties to the Banking Memorandum.-----	12616
"Moral force" of the Banking Memorandum.-----	12620

SHELL UNION OIL CORPORATION

Symbols and abbreviations used in documents.-----	12627
Discussions with bankers leading up to 1936 financing.-----	12629
Purpose of previous negotiations to pave way for formal bids.-----	12632
Shell procedure in issuing securities.-----	12633
Formation of the 1936 syndicate.-----	12634
Waiver of management fee.-----	12636
Discussions with bankers in 1937 for redemptions of outstanding preferred stock.-----	12637
Negotiations with Morgan, Stanley & Co. Inc.-----	12640
Negotiations with Equitable Life Assurance Society.-----	12643
"Shopping around"-----	12644

	Page
Shell endeavors to obtain reduction in interest rate from Equitable.....	12646
Execution of purchase contract with Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.....	12649
The Mathey-Addinsell conversation.....	12652
Desire for "a solid front".....	12652
The custom of "clearing".....	12654
"The solid front".....	12656
The operative effect of the 1936 Dillon, Read & Co. underwriting agree- ment.....	12659
The 1939 Shell syndication.....	12660
Familiarity of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, with financial condi- tion and distributing ability of other underwriters in syndicate.....	12661
Articles II and IV of the Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., underwriting agree- ment.....	12664
Article VIII of the Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, underwriting agreement.....	12665
Overoffering to selling group.....	12667
Criteria used in determining the amounts reserved for underwriters.....	12669
Notification to underwriters relating to amounts of debentures reserved for offering to dealers and for their own retail distribution.....	12671
Operative effect of Article VIII.....	12673
Position of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, under Article VIII.....	12675
Underwriting agreement provisions with reference to unsold debentures in 1936 Dillon, Read & Co. agreement compared with the 1939 Morgan Stanley & Co. agreement.....	12676
Purchases for stabilization.....	12679
Extent to which Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, is familiar with distributing ability of dealers—resumed.....	12681
Performance records of dealers kept by other investment banking firms.....	12682

CONCENTRATION IN THE MANAGEMENT, UNDERWRIT- ING, AND SALE OF REGISTERED BOND ISSUES

Definition of terms.....	12689
Concentration in management of all registered issues.....	12690
Quality of registered bonds managed by selected firms: all industries.....	12692
Bonds of manufacturing companies.....	12696
Electric light and power, gas, and water companies.....	12698
Transportation and communication companies.....	12700
All other issues.....	12700
Summary of concentration by quality and industry.....	12702
Interparticipations in originations of eight firms.....	12704
Distribution of sales by the distributing group.....	12706
Summary.....	12710
Schedule and summary of exhibits.....	vii
Monday, January 8, 1940.....	12343
Tuesday, January 9, 1940.....	12415
Wednesday, January 10, 1940.....	12477
Thursday, January 11, 1940.....	12545
Friday, January 12, 1940.....	12625
Appendix.....	12713
Supplemental data.....	13007
Index.....	i

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1773. Letter, dated April 21, 1920, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers transmitting profits from joint participation in B. F. Goodrich Co. $30,000,000 five-year 7% convertible gold note selling syndicate.	12349	12713
1774. Letter, dated April 15, 1920, from B. A. Tompkins, Bankers Trust Company, to Goldman, Sachs & Co. transmitting underwriting commission of Goldman, Sachs & Co. on the $30,000,000 B. F. Goodrich Co. 7% convertible gold note issue.	12349	12713
1775. Letter, dated April 17, 1920, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers transmitting Lehman Brothers' share in the underwriting commission on the $30,000,000 B. F. Goodrich Co. 7% convertible gold note issue.	12349	12714
1776. Letter, dated February 9, 1920, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers notifying them of their one-half interest in the obligation of Goldman, Sachs & Co. in underwriting The B. F. Goodrich Company $30,000,000 five-year 7% convertible gold notes.	12349	12714
1777. Letter, dated September 9, 1922, without signature (initialed S. J. S. of Lehman Brothers) to Goldman, Sachs & Co. transmitting payment on half share of Goldman, Sachs & Co. in their joint interest in Detroit City Gas Company $13,500,000 First Mortgage 6% Gold Bond issue.	12350	12714
1778. Copy of letter dated September 9, 1922, without signature (initialed S. J. S., Lehman Brothers) to Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., acknowledging payment of profit due jointly to Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. derived from the Detroit City Gas Company $13,000,000 First Mortgage 6% Gold Bond issue.	12350	12715
1779. Letter, dated September 7, 1922, from Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., to Lehman Brothers transmitting payment of Lehman Brothers' share of profit derived from the Detroit City Gas Company $13,000,000 First Mortgage 6% Gold Bond issue.	12350	12715
1780. Letter, dated September 2, 1926, from Lehman Brothers to Goldman, Sachs & Co. referring to underwriting of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc. $7,500,000 5¼% Serial Gold Debenture Bonds, and stating understanding that Goldman, Sachs & Co. has a 50% interest in the underwriting, which Lehman Brothers is to manage.	12350	12716
1781. Memorandum listing members of the purchase group for R. H. Macy & Co., Inc. stock offering of 1922 giving participation on original terms and in selling syndicate.	12350	12716
1782. Memorandum, dated October 26, 1925, by Herbert H. Lehman, Lehman Brothers, regarding conference at Mr. Sachs' home relative to future relations between Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers.	12352	12717
1783. "Memorandum of recent conversations between Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers regarding the future relationship between the two firms", dated January 5, 1926, with a list of sixty corporations to whose financing the memorandum related.	12353	12718

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1784. Letter, dated June 26, 1933, from A. B. Klepper, Goldman, Sachs & Co., to Lehman Brothers enclosing check for Lehman Brothers' half share in the disposition of 50,000 shares of Sears, Roebuck & Company capital stock for the estate of Julius Rosenwald.	12367	(1)
1785. Copy of letter dated June 27, 1933, from The Julius Rosenwald Fund, Alfred K. Stern and Lessing J. Rosenwald to Goldman, Sachs & Co. authorizing sale of 26,000 shares of Sears, Roebuck & Company capital stock.	12367	(1)
1786. Copy of letter dated June 27, 1933, from A. B. Klepper, Goldman, Sachs & Co., to Lehman Brothers stating understanding that Lehman Brothers and Goldman Sachs & Co. each have a 50% interest in the sale of 26,000 shares of Sears, Roebuck & Company capital stock.	12367	(1)
1787. Copy of letter dated July 21, 1933, from O. Krause, Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers transmitting compensation representing Lehman Brothers' 50% interest in the disposition of Sears, Roebuck & Company capital stock.	12367	(1)
1788. Letter, dated January 26, 1927, from Waddill Catchings, Goldman, Sachs & Co., to Philip Lehman, Lehman Brothers, confirming the substitution of a new provision for paragraph 7 of the agreement dated January 5, 1926.	12374	12720
1789. Letter, dated October 3, 1929, from Walter Sachs, Goldman, Sachs & Co., to Lehman Brothers confirming 50% interest of Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. in compensation and obligations of syndicate managers in underwriting of 168,000 shares of common stock of Gimbel Brothers, Inc.	12374	12720
1790. Letter, dated October 10, 1929, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers confirming 50% interest of Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. in compensation and obligations of syndicate managers in underwriting of 116,934 shares of common stock of May Department Stores Company.	12374	12721
1791. Letter dated March 14, 1928, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers transmitting payment of Lehman Brothers' share in profits of B. F. Goodrich Company common stock underwriting.	12374	12721
1792. Copy of letter dated April 22, 1930, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers confirming the subrogation to Lehman Brothers of one-half the interest of Goldman, Sachs & Co. in the underwriting of the B. F. Goodrich Company $30,000,000 15-year 6% convertible gold debentures.	12374	12722
1793. Letter dated, October 30, 1930, from A. B. Klepper, Goldman, Sachs & Co., to Lehman Brothers transmitting payment of Lehman Brothers' share in profits of B. F. Goodrich Company $30,000,000, 6% debentures underwriting.	12374	12723
1794. Letter, dated May 5, 1926, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers transmitting payment of Lehman Brothers' share in profits of underwriting of Pillsbury Flour Mills, Incorporated $1,000,000 serial 5½% collateral trust notes.	12374	12723

1 On file with the Committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1795. Letter, dated May 31, 1927, from A. C. Loring, president, Pillsbury Flour Mills, Incorporated, to Goldman Sachs & Co. expressing desire that Goldman, Sachs & Co. offer not participation to Lehman Brothers or anyone else-----	12374	12724
1796. Letter, dated March 13, 1925, without signature (from Lehman Brothers) to Goldman, Sachs & Co. and others stating participations in purchase of Cuyamel Fruit Company $5,000,000 fifteen-year 6% sinking fund gold bonds-----	12377	12724
1797. Letter, dated October 15, 1928, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers confirming interests of Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. in underwriting of 55,161 shares of Pet Milk Company common stock-----	12379	12725
1798. Letter, dated February 6, 1936, from Lehman Brothers to Goldman, Sachs & Co. declining to accept further commitments under agreements of October 26, 1925 and January 5, 1926-----	12380	12726
1799. Letter, dated June 25, 1935, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers regarding proposed financing of Brown Shoe Company, Inc.-----	12383	12727
1800. Letter, dated June 26, 1935, from W. J. Creely to Walter E. Sachs, Goldman, Sachs & Co., regarding inclusion of St. Louis dealers in selling group for Brown Shoe Company issue-----	12383	12727
1801. Letter, dated June 28, 1935, from Walter E. Sachs to Walter J. Creely regarding inclusion of St. Louis dealers in selling group for the Brown Shoe Company issue-----	12383	12728
1802. Letter, dated September 27, 1935, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers transmitting partial payment of Lehman Brothers' share in profits of Brown Shoe Company debenture underwriting, after deducting compensation due Goldman, Sachs & Co.-----	12383	12728
1803. Letter, dated December 16, 1935, from Goldman, Sachs & Co., to Lehman Brothers transmitting final payment of Lehman Brothers' share in profits of Brown Shoe Company debenture underwriting-----	12383	12729
1804. Letter dated January 31, 1936, without signature (from H. S. Bowers, Goldman, Sachs & Co.) to George W. Johnson, Endicott Johnson Corporation, regarding underwriting group for Endicott Johnson Corporation issue and referring to high opinion held by investment bankers of the company and its labor policy-----	12383	12729
1805. Letter, dated February 7, 1936, from Goldman, Sachs & Co. to Lehman Brothers in response to letter of February 6 accepting conclusion that arrangement between the two houses has been terminated-----	12385	12730
1806. Copy of letter dated September 20, 1937, from Lehman Brothers to the board of directors, Continental Can Company, Inc., declining participation in Continental Can Company financing because of minor position offered, and reciting history of association of Lehman Brothers with the company-----	12388	12730
1807. Letter, dated September 29, 1937, from O. C. Huffman, president, Continental Can Company, Inc., to Lehman Brothers stating that the company has regarded Goldman, Sachs & Co. as its primary bankers and regretting Lehman Brothers' declining the participation offered-----	12388	12732

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1808. Copy of letter dated October 4, 1937, without signature (from Philip Lehman, Lehman Brothers) to O. C. Huffman, president, Continental Can Co., Inc., stating that in the financing of the company, the relationship of the bankers was on a basis of equality.	12388	12732
1809. Letter, dated January 5, 1940, from C. L. Austin, vice president, Mellon Securities Corporation, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., confirming telegram identifying memorandum dated January 11, 1936, concerning inclusion of Goldman, Sachs & Co. in Johns & Laughlin Steel Corporation syndicate.	12389	12733
1810. Letter, dated February 11, 1938, from Sidney J. Weinberg, Goldman, Sachs & Co., to C. M. Chester, Chairman of board, General Foods Corporation, discussing, with reference to proposed issue of preferred stock, the inadvisability of joint management and of omitting compensation to the manager by other syndicate members.	12391	12733
1811. Letter, dated February 11, 1938, from Sidney J. Weinberg to C. M. Chester regarding inability to compose differences with Lehman Brothers and stating conditions under which Goldman, Sachs & Co. is prepared to proceed with General Foods Corp. financing.	12391	12734
1812. Copy of letter dated February 18, 1936, from Robert Lehman, Lehman Brothers, to Thomas McInnerney, president, National Dairy Products Corporation, tendering resignation as director.	12394	12735
1813. Letter, dated February 21, 1936, from Thomas McInnerney to Robert Lehman accepting his resignation as director.	12394	12736
1814. Copy of letter dated May 18, 1937, from John M. Hancock, Lehman Brothers, to C. R. Palmer, Cluett, Peabody & Co., discussing disagreement on financing plans of Cluett, Peabody & Co.	12397	12736
1815. Copy of letter dated May 13, 1937, from G. A. Cluett to Sanford L. Cluett, Cluett, Peabody & Co., regarding early relations of Cluett, Peabody & Co. with Lehman Brothers.	12397	12738
1816. Letter, dated May 24, 1937, from G. A. Cluett to John Hancock, Lehman Brothers, stating that he has equal treatment for Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. in proposed Cluett, Peabody & Co. financing.	12397	12739
1817. Memorandum, dated June 30, 1938, signed by Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers covering relations between the two houses in the financing of 39 enumerated companies.	12413	12739
1818. Extract from prospectus of The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company in connection with $16,500,000 of 1st mtge. 4½'s of 1950, offered in December 1935, showing holders of the company's 6% Notes.	12416	12741
1819. Letter, dated January 30, 1935, from E. B. Greene, president, The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company, to Bankers Trust Company and agreed to by B. A. Tompkins, Bankers Trust Company, appointing Bankers Trust Company agent to procure underwriters for $24,000,000 bond issue.	12419	12741

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1820. Memorandum concerning refunding of Cleveland Cliffs bank indebtedness dated June 28, 1935, by E. B. Greene entitled "Brief summary of negotiations with Bankers Trust Company, represented throughout by Mr. B. A. Tompkins, and at times by Dana Kelly and Mr. Graham, and also Lehman Brothers represented by Mr. Gutman and Mr. Szold"-----	12423	12743
1821. Telegram, dated February 2, 1935, from Dana Kelly, Bankers Trust Co., to V. P. Geffine, vice-president, The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., regarding his arrival in Cleveland with Lehman Brothers representatives-----	12428	12428
1822. Copy of letter dated July 5, 1935, from E. B. Greene to W. P. Belden, counsel, The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company regarding the price at which the bonds of The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. are to be sold-----	12431	12746
1823. Copy of memorandum dated June 13, 1935, by E. B. Greene regarding financing arrangements discussed at meeting with B. A. Tompkins, Dana Kelley and Mr. Graham of Bankers Trust Company-----	12431	12747
1824. Letter dated December 6, 1935, from E. B. Greene to Lehman Brothers, Field, Gloré & Co., Hayden, Stone & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. regarding consultation with them on choice of successor of W. G. Mather or E. B. Greene should either cease to hold office with The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.-----	12431	12462
1825. Letter, dated January 30, 1935, from White & Case to Bankers Trust Company approving form of proposed letter of appointment of Bankers Trust Company as agent for The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.-----	12434	12748
1826. Letter, dated February 1, 1935, from E. B. Greene to B. A. Tompkins, Bankers Trust Company, regarding firm commitment for underwriting Cleveland-Cliffs bond issue for presentation to stockholders' meeting--	12436	12749
1827. Letter, dated February 4, 1935, without signature (from B. A. Tompkins) to E. B. Greene, stating that Bankers Trust Company may not legally underwrite, but that it may attempt as agent to find underwriters for The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. issue-----	12436	12749
1828. Letter, dated May 25, 1935, from E. B. Greene to B. A. Tompkins, discussing relations between The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. and Bankers Trust Co. with respect to forthcoming bond issue-----	12436	12750
1829. Letter, dated May 28, 1935, from B. A. Tompkins to E. B. Greene regarding the financing plans and the formation of an underwriting group-----	12436	12751
1830. Letter, dated February 2, 1935, from B. A. Tompkins to E. B. Greene, regarding participation in the Hayden, Stone & Co.'s purchase of Mr. Mather's stock---	12439	12751
1831. Letter, dated June 6, 1935, from B. A. Tompkins to E. B. Greene, regarding conclusion agreed upon at meeting with members of Lehman Brothers, Field, Gloré, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Hayden, Stone & Co. relative to Cleveland-Cliffs and Cliffs Corporation merger and a refunding bond issue of Cleveland-Cliffs-----	12450	12752
1832. Letter, dated July 9, 1935, from Lewis Strauss, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., to B. A. Tompkins, regarding selection of counsel for the bankers in connection with the financing of Cleveland-Cliffs-----	12451	12753

¹ Marked for identification only,

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1833. Memorandum by Lewis L. Strauss, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., relative to the meeting at B. A. Tompkins' office regarding proposed financing of Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.-----	12451	12753
1834. Letter, dated June 28, 1935, from B. A. Tompkins to E. B. Greene, regarding the underwriting group to handle Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company financing.-----	12456	12754
1835. Letter, dated July 2, 1935, from E. B. Greene to B. A. Tompkins regarding disappointment of the terms upon which Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company bonds are to be handled.-----	12456	12755
1836. Memorandum, dated July 8, 1935, by B. A. Tompkins to Monroe Gutman of Lehman Brothers, and others, containing three items supplementing previous memo ["Exhibit No. 1833"] regarding Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company financing.-----	12457	12457
1837. Memorandum, dated August 28, 1935, by Dana Kelley, Bankers Trust Company, regarding meeting with Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company underwriting group relative to Mr. Greene's report that the management had decided to abandon the Cliff's merger plan and the change in financing plans which followed.-----	12458	12756
1838. Letter, dated January 5, 1940, from Lehman Brothers to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr. enclosing stipulation for six documents.-----	12458	12756
Stipulation covering six letters that were prepared, received, or sent as the case may be from Lehman Brothers.-----	12458	12757
1839. Letter, dated October 28, 1935, from Lehman Brothers to Hayden, Stone & Co., confirming understanding regarding Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company financing.-----	12458	12757
1840. Letter, dated October 28, 1935, from Lehman Brothers to Field, Gloré & Co., confirming understanding regarding Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company financing.-----	12458	12758
1841. Letter, dated October 28, 1935, from Lehman Brothers to Kuhn, Loeb & Co., confirming understanding regarding Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company financing.-----	12458	12758
1842. Memorandum, dated December 2, 1935, by M. C. Gutman to Douglas Dimond, both of Lehman Brothers, relative to Mr. Tompkins' request for position in Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company financing for C. D. Barney & Co.-----	12458	12759
1843. Extract from registration statement of Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. for $16,500,000 of 1st mtge. 4½'s of 1950, showing participations in a bank loan of $5,000,000 to supplement the bond issue.-----	12461	12759
1844. Letter, dated December 18, 1935, from B. A. Tompkins to E. B. Greene regarding sub-participation in bank loan supplementing The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company bond financing.-----	12462	12760
1845. Letter, dated November 22, 1935, from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to Lehman Brothers, regarding the sharing of commissions in sale of 10,000 shares of Republic Iron & Steel common stock by Cleveland-Cliffs.-----	12466	12761
1846. Memorandum, dated August 24, 1936, by M. C. Gutman to Mr. I. Sack, both of Lehman Brothers, relative to sharing of commissions on sale of Republic Iron & Steel common stock for Cleveland-Cliffs.-----	12466	12761

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1847-1. Extract from registration statement, showing agreement dated October 31, 1935, between Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and others with regard to the sale of 20,000 shares of Republic Steel Corporation common stock-----	12467	12761
1847-2. Extract from registration statement, showing agreement dated October 31, 1935, between McKinney Steel Holding Company and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and others, with regard to the sale of $5,500,000 principal amount of Republic Steel Corporation purchase money first mortgage convertible 5½% bonds due November 1, 1954-----	12467	12762
1847-3. Extract from registration statement, showing agreement dated October 31, 1935, between McKinney Steel Holding Company and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and others, with regard to the sale of 10,000 shares of 6% cumulative convertible prior preference Series A stock of Republic Steel Corporation-----	12467	12763
1848. Copy of letter dated May 22, 1930, from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to J. R. Swan, Guaranty Company of New York confirming agreement between Guaranty Trust Co. and Kuhn, Loeb relative to future financing by American Smelting and Refining Company-----	12468	12764
1849. Letter, dated May 26, 1930, from J. R. Swan to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. regarding agreement between Guaranty Company and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. relative to future financing by American Smelting and Refining Company-----	12468	12764
1850. Letter, dated May 21, 1930, from Frank P. Shepard, Guaranty Company, to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. regarding 175,000 shares of American Smelting and Refining Company 6% cumulative second preferred stock, confirming Kuhn Loeb's 22% interest on original terms in purchase of this stock-----	12468	12765
1851. Copy of letter dated May 21, 1930, from J. R. Swan, Guaranty Company, to F. H. Brownell, Chairman of the Board, American Smelting and Refining Company, enclosing prospectus of the second preferred stock to be offered at 103-----	12468	12765
1852-1. Letter, dated July 19, 1937, from H. T. Pritchard, President, Indianapolis Power & Light Company, to Lehman Brothers giving to Lehman Brothers the right to head the syndicate, authority to act as sole agent in Indianapolis Power & Light Company financing-----	12468	12766
1852-2. Letter, dated July 21, 1937, from O. C. Johnston, Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, to Robert Lehman, Lehman Brothers, relative to proposed reply to Indianapolis Power & Light Company regarding contemplated financing-----	12468	12766
1852-3. Copy of letter dated July 21, 1937, from Robert Lehman to H. T. Pritchard, president, Indianapolis Power & Light Company accepting position to head Indianapolis Power & Light Company financing-----	12468	12766
1853. Copy of letter dated May 24, 1938, from J. F. F. (John F. Fennelly), Glore, Forgan & Co., to J. Russell Forgan, Glore, Forgan & Co., regarding views of Charles Glore relative to Indianapolis Power & Light Company financing and position of Lehman Brothers in this financing-----	12468	12767

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1854-1. Memorandum, dated June 26, 1939, by Joseph A. Thomas, Lehman Brothers, regarding agreement between Lehman Brothers and Goldman Sachs and The First Boston Corporation on Indianapolis Power & Light Company financing and future financing of subsidiary companies of Utilities Power & Light Co.	12468	12768
1854-2. Letter, dated June 26, 1939, from Joseph A. Thomas to G. D. Woods, The First Boston Corporation, putting in writing the agreement regarding the financing or refinancing of Indianapolis Power & Light Company between Lehman Brothers, Goldman, Sachs & Co. and The First Boston Corporation having equal percentages.	12468	12768
1854-3. Letter, dated June 26, 1939, from Joseph A. Thomas to Sidney Weinberg, Goldman, Sachs & Co. putting in writing the agreement regarding the financing or refinancing of Indianapolis Power & Light Company between Lehman Brothers, Goldman, Sachs & Co., and The First Boston Corporation having equal percentages.	12468	12769
1855-1. Letter, dated July 11, 1938, from Floyd Odium, Atlas Corporation, to Robert Lehman regarding Lehman Brothers' position in proposed financing of Indianapolis Power & Light Company and suggesting better treatment for other firms.	12468	12769
1855-2. Copy of letter dated July 13, 1938, from J. A. Thomas to Floyd B. Odium setting forth the considerations which prompted Lehman Brothers to act as they did in the Indianapolis Power & Light Company financing.	12468	12770
1855-3. Letter, dated July 13, 1938, from F. B. Odium to J. A. Thomas regarding Shields & Company dissatisfaction with their position in Indianapolis Light & Power Company financing.	12468	12771
1855-4. Letter, dated July 18, 1938, from F. B. Odium to J. A. Thomas requesting the Shields & Company matter be straightened out with reasonable satisfaction.	12468	12771
1856. Transcription of telephone conversation on October 20, 1932, between J. A. W. Iglerhart, Glore, Forgan & Co., and P. N. Russell, N. W. Harris & Co., regarding New York State Electric & Gas financing.	12468	12772
1857-1. Letter, dated January 5, 1940, from Arthur H. Dean, Sullivan & Cromwell, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., authorizing use of certain documents for the record relating to New York State Electric & Gas Corp. financing.	12475	12773
1857-2. Memorandum, dated January 25, 1937, by G. D. Woods, The First Boston Corporation, regarding inclusion of Lehman Brothers in underwriting group for issues of New York State Electric & Gas Corporation and other subsidiaries of Associated Gas & Electric Company.	12475	12774
1857-3. Letter, dated January 25, 1937, from M. C. Gutman, Lehman Brothers, to The First Boston Corporation, enclosing memorandum embodying understanding on financing of New York State Electric & Gas Corp. and other financing of the Associated Gas & Electric systems.	12475	12775
1857-4. "Memorandum regarding relationship of The First Boston Corporation and Lehman Brothers in connection with Associated Gas & Electric financing," dated January 25, 1937.	12475	12775

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1857-5. Letter, dated January 29, 1937, from George D. Woods, The First Boston Corporation, to Lehman Brothers, correcting memorandum concerning Associated Gas & Electric Co. financing-----	12475	12775
1858. Memorandum, dated July 27, 1934, by J. M. Schiff, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., regarding discussion with M. L. Freeman relating to possible financing of Armstrong of Armstrong Corp Company-----	12484	12776
1859. Memorandum, dated November 18, 1927, by Jerome J. Hanauer, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., regarding discussion with Seward Prosser, Bankers Trust Co., explaining efforts made by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to be sure they were not competing with Bankers Trust Co. for financing of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. Memorandum, dated November 18, 1927, by Jerome J. Hanauer giving telephone statement by James A. Campbell, president, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., regarding negotiations with Bankers Trust Co. for bond issue-----	12487	12776
1860. Extracts from diary entries, dated October 22, 1934, to July 24, 1935, by John W. Cutler and J. N. Land, Edward B. Smith & Co., regarding Armstrong Cork Company financing-----	12508	12779
1861. Memorandum, dated February 4, 1935, initialed W. W. (Webb Wilson, Edward B. Smith & Co.) entitled "Outline of Guaranty Company of New York's relationship to public financing of The American Rolling Mill Company"-----	12509	12781
1862-1. Memorandum, dated December 16, 1937, by K. Weisheit to J. W. Cutler, Edward B. Smith & Co., referring to inquiry by Fred Krayner, Brown, Harri- man & Co., Inc., as to desires of Edward B. Smith & Co. on formation of account for purchase and sale of rights to preferred stock of Dow Chemical Co.-----	12510	12781
1862-2. Memorandum, dated July 23, 1935, by C. L. Austin, Edward B. Smith & Co., summarizing discussions with officials of Pure Oil Co. on proposed refunding, and commenting on various items in registration statement for $32,000,000 15 year 4¼% notes, due 1950..	12510	12782
1863. Memorandum, undated, by C. L. Austin, Mellon Securities Corporation, discussing reasons for selection of underwriters of $25,000,000 Koppers Com- pany first mortgage and collateral trust bonds, series A, 4%, due November 1, 1951-----	12511	12787
1864. Memorandum, dated August 17, 1936, by C. L. Austin, Mellon Securities Corporation, regarding invitations to Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., and Edward B. Smith & Co. to participate in Jones & Laughlin Steel Cor- poration financing. Memoranda, dated October 29, 1935, and November 8, 1935, by Frank R. Denton, Mellon Securities Corporation, relating to deferring the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation bond issue and discussions with Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., and Edward B. Smith Co.-----	12511	12788
1865. Memorandum, dated October 18, 1934, by C. L. Austin, then of Edward B. Smith & Co., giving list obtained from the Guaranty Co., of purchase group members in Wilson & Co., Inc., note offering in January 1927 and in offering of first mortgage bonds in April 1921....	12514	12789

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1866-1. Memorandum, dated September 10, 1934, by C. L. Austin to Joseph R. Swan, Edward B. Smith & Co., regarding possibility of recapitalization of Wilson & Co., Inc., and suggesting approach to the company through E. A. Potter, Jr.	12515	12790
1866-2. Memorandum, dated September 5, 1934, by Herman Safro to Karl Weisheit, Edward B. Smith & Co., reporting discussion with Paul Appenzellar regarding plan of recapitalization approved by Wilson & Co., Inc.	12515	12790
1867. Copy of letter dated July 8, 1935, from Faris R. Russell, White, Weld & Co., to John W. Cutler, Edward B. Smith & Co., containing chronological history of discussions regarding position of White, Weld & Co., in Wilson & Co. issue of July 1935 and their failure to be included. (Carbon copy of "Exhibit No. 1886.")	12517	12791
1868. Letter, dated February 25, 1935, from M. L. Freeman to Gurdon Wattles, White, Weld & Co., giving financial position of Wilson & Co., Inc., and referring to discussions with its president concerning bond issue.	12519	12792
1869. Copy of letter, dated February 21, 1935, from Edward Foss Wilson, president, Wilson & Co., Inc., to M. L. Freeman expressing willingness to discuss sale of bonds.	12519	12793
1870. Memorandum, dated February 26, 1935, by G. W. Wattles to Mr. Timpson, White, Weld & Co., regarding M. L. Freeman's proposal on Wilson & Co. refunding issue and attitude of two insurance companies toward purchase of the bonds.	12519	12793
1871. Telegram, dated February 27, 1935, from M. L. Freeman to E. F. Wilson, president, Wilson & Co., Inc., suggesting meeting with bankers on Wilson & Co. financing.	12519	12794
1872. Copy of telegram, dated February 27, 1935, from E. F. Wilson, president, Wilson & Co., Inc., to M. L. Freeman stating that J. D. Cooney, vice president, will visit New York and discuss financing.	12519	12794
1873. Letter, dated February 28, 1935, from M. L. Freeman to Gurdon W. Wattles, White, Weld & Co., enclosing copies of communications between M. L. Freeman and E. F. Wilson.	12519	12795
1874. Letter, dated February 28, 1935, from M. L. Freeman to G. W. Wattles proposing discussion prior to calling E. F. Wilson.	12519	12795
1875. Letter, dated February 28, 1935, without signature (from White, Weld & Co.) to M. L. Freeman stating compensation to be paid to him if White, Weld & Co. completes refunding operation for Wilson & Co., Inc.	12519	12795
1876-1. Letter, dated March 1, 1935, without signature (from White, Weld & Co.) to M. L. Freeman enclosing a signed letter.	12519	12796
1876-2. Letter dated March 27, 1935, from M. L. Freeman to Gurdon W. Wattles, White, Weld & Co., requesting a new agreement.	12519	12796
1877. Diary entries, dated September 11, 1934, to May 12, 1937, by John W. Cutler and others, Edward B. Smith & Co., regarding Wilson & Co. financing.	12520	12796

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1878. Letter, dated March 15, 1935, initialed J. R. S. (Joseph R. Swan, Edward B. Smith & Co.) to Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the board, Wilson & Co., Inc., regarding conversations with E. A. Potter, Jr., relating to possible financing of Wilson & Co., Inc., and readiness of Edward B. Smith & Co. to submit definite proposal.	12521	12799
1879. Memorandum, dated March 8, 1935, initialed J. W. C. (John W. Cutler) to C. L. Austin, Edward B. Smith & Co., referring to denial by Wilson & Co. of M. L. Freeman's authority to speak for it and mentioning suggestion by E. A. Potter, Jr., that Edward B. Smith & Co. inform Wilson & Co. of willingness to negotiate on bond issue.	12521	12799
1880. Copy of letter dated May 18, 1935, initialed D. R. L. (from D. R. Linsley, vice president, The First Boston Corporation) to J. H. Briggs, H. M. Byllesby & Company, regarding The First Boston Corp.'s unwillingness to enter into highly competitive negotiations for Wilson & Co. financing and suggestion to Edward B. Smith & Co. to include H. M. Byllesby & Co. in the Wilson syndicate.	12526	12799
1881. Memorandum, dated May 16, 1935, by H. M. Addinsell, The First Boston Corporation, regarding J. R. Swan's invitation to The First Boston Corporation to join in refinancing of Wilson & Co. and suggestion by Addinsell that H. M. Byllesby & Co. also be included.	12526	12800
1882-1. Copy of telegram dated March 15, 1935, from D. R. Linsley, The First Boston Corporation, to Miles Warner, H. M. Byllesby & Company, stating condition under which The First Boston Corporation would be willing to discuss financing with Wilson & Co., Inc.	12527	12526
1882-2. Memorandum, dated September 9, 1935, by J. J. B. (J. J. Buckley, Edward B. Smith & Co.) discussing conferences on the inclusion of investment banking firms in The Wilson & Co. bond syndicate.	12527	12801
1883. Letter, dated May 23, 1935, by James D. Cooney, vice president, Wilson & Co., Inc., to Mr. Wilson regarding details of forthcoming issue and selection of one or two underwriters as leaders.	12528	12802
1884. Pencil memorandum (apparently draft of cablegram) in response to J. D. Cooney's letter, suggesting leading underwriters.	12528	12803
1885. Memorandum, dated June 27, 1935, by D. R. Linsley, The First Boston Corporation, listing the underwriters and their percentage participations in financing of Wilson & Co., Inc., along with names of companies to head business.	12532	12803
1886. Letter, dated July 8, 1935, from Faris R. Russell, White, Weld & Co., to John W. Cutler, Edward B. Smith & Co., containing chronological history of discussions regarding position of White, Weld & Co. in Wilson & Co. issue of July 1935 and their failure to be included. (Original of "Exhibit No. 1867.") Memorandum, initialed M. D. to John W. Cutler, stating that letter was discussed personally with Russell and reply by Cutler is thought unnecessary.	12534	12804

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1887-1. "Schedule of operations followed by Smith, Barney & Co. when acting in capacity of head manager in wholesaling a new issue," dated August 1, 1939-----	12535	12806
1887-2. "Buying Department Work Sheet form," dated March 9, 1937, used by Edward B. Smith & Co. when manager or comanager-----	12535	12811
1887-3. Memorandum, for Industrial Division of Buying Department entitled "Industrial Investigations, Outline for use as guide in conducting investigations of Industrial Companies"-----	12535	12819
1887-4. Memorandum, dated January 1, 1937, entitled "Buying Department Work Sheet form for use in connection with issues headed by other houses in which we have a position as an underwriter"-----	12535	12829
1888. Specimen of dealer performance record card used by Smith, Barney & Co-----	12535	12831
1889-1. Letter, dated September 1, 1939, from W. H. Coulson, Smith, Barney & Co., to the Securities & Exchange Commission describing methods used by underwriters in financing the purchase of securities from issuing corporations-----	12543	12832
1889-2. Schedules showing day loan and collateral loan for The Pure Oil Company 5% cumulative preferred stock underwritten by Edward B. Smith & Co., and activity of loan and collateral-----	12543	12833
1889-3. Schedules showing day loan and collateral loan for Bethlehem Steel Corporation 15-year sinking fund convertible 3½% debentures underwritten by Edward B. Smith & Co., and activity of loan and collateral-----	12543	12834
1889-4. Schedule showing day loan for Shell Union Oil Corporation 15-year 2½% debentures underwritten by Smith, Barney & Co-----	12543	12836
1889-5. Schedule showing day loan for Pennsylvania Power & Light Company first mortgage 3½% bonds and 4½% debentures underwritten by Smith, Barney & Co-----	12543	12836
1890. Trust receipt form used by the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Company of Chicago. Trust receipt form used by the City National Bank & Trust Company of Chicago. Day loan agreement form used by The National City Bank of New York. Day loan agreement form used by the Chase National Bank of the City of New York. Day loan agreement form used by the Manufacturers Trust Co. of New York-----	12544	12837
1891. Loan agreement form used by the National City Bank of New York-----	12544	12840
1892. General loan and collateral agreement form used by the Bank of the Manhattan Company, New York. General loan and collateral agreement form used by the Chase National Bank of the City of New York. General loan and collateral agreement form used by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York-----	12544	12842
1893. Day loan agreement form used by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York-----	12544	12849
1894. Letter, dated August 29, 1939, from Kidder, Peabody & Co. to the Securities & Exchange Commission submitting information regarding financing of their participation in Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. 4s, due 1952, Commercial Credit Co. 2½s due 1942 and Pure Oil Company 5% cumulative convertible preferred stock-----	12544	12850

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1895. Copy of letter dated September 1, 1939, from Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr. to Nevil Ford, The First Boston Corporation, requesting information regarding method of financing participations in issues of securities. Letter, dated September 7, 1939, from H. M. Addinsell, The First Boston Corporation, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., submitting memorandum. Memorandum, dated September 6, 1939, by E. J. Costello, assistant treasurer to H. M. Addinsell, Chairman of executive committee, The First Boston Corporation, describing method of financing participations in issues of securities	12544	12852
1896. Letter, dated September 11, 1939, by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., to the Securities & Exchange Commission describing method of financing participations in issues of securities	12544	12854
1897. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated April 28, 1939, between Airplane Manufacturing & Supply Corp. and G. Brashears & Co. ¹	12547	12854
1898. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated November 7, 1924, between South Carolina Electric & Gas Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. ¹	12547	12854
1899. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated October 10, 1919, between Metropolitan Edison Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. ¹	12547	12855
1900. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated December 14, 1927, between Lexington Water Power Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. ¹	12547	12855
1901. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated August 29, 1917, between Binghamton Light, Heat & Power Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. ¹	12547	12855
1902. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated September 30, 1919, between General Gas & Electric Co. re New Jersey Power & Light Co. Securities and Halsey, Stuart & Co. ¹	12547	12855
1903. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated February 17, 1937, between Brown, McLaren Manufacturing Co. and the six directors and Alison & Co. ¹	12547	12856
1904. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated February 20, 1937, between Bender Body Co. and Wm. J. Mericka & Co. ¹	12547	12856
1905. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated July 7, 1937, between Cinecolor (Inc.) and G. Brashears & Co. ¹	12547	12856
1906. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated September 13, 1937, between Mode O'Day Corp. and three officers and directors and Banks Huntley & Co. ¹	12547	12856
1907. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated September 15, 1922, between Land & Sea Investment Co. re Wisconsin Public Service Corp. securities and Halsey, Stuart & Co. ¹	12547	12856

¹ The full text of the contract is on file with the committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1908. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated July 14, 1938, between eight stockholders of Dixie Home Stores and J. G. White & Co. and nine others ¹ -----	12547	12857
1909. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated July 10, 1936, between Bell Aircraft Corp. and G. M. P. Murphy & Co. and four others. ¹ -----	12547	12857
1910. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated May 5, 1939, between Rands and the stockholders and Floyd D. Cerf Co. ¹ -----	12547	12857
1911. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated January 17, 1939, between Norwich Pharmacal Co. and two stockholders and F. Eberstadt & Co. ¹ -----	12547	12857
1912. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated April 6, 1937, between Houston Oil Field Material Co. and Robinson Miller & Co. ¹ -----	12547	12857
1913. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated September 28, 1937, between L. E. Carpenter & Co. and Whittaker Bros. & Co., Inc. (New York) ¹ -----	12547	12858
1914. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated July 9, 1937, between Reed Drug Company and Floyd D. Cerf Co. ¹ -----	12547	12858
1915. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated April 12, 1938, between General Plastics Inc. and Fuller Cruttenden & Co. ¹ -----	12547	12858
1916. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated October 26, 1939, between Continental Motors Corp. and Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. ¹ -----	12547	12858
1917. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated August 23, 1939, between Butler's Inc. and R. S. Dickson & Co. ¹ -----	12547	12858
1918. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated August 4, 1939, between Finch Telecommunications, Inc., and Distributors Group Incorporated ¹ -----	12547	12858
1919. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated March 25, 1939, between Hayes Body Corp. and A. W. Porter, Inc. ¹ -----	12547	12859
1920. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated February 4, 1937, between Burd Piston Ring Co. and certain stockholders and Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. ¹ -----	12547	12859
1921. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated January 19, 1937, between Brewster Aeronautical Corp. and a stockholder and Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. ¹ -----	12547	12859
1922. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated May 15, 1922, between Commonwealth Power Railway & Light Co., Commonwealth Power Corp. and Federal Securities Corp. ¹ -----	12547	12859

¹ The full text of the contract is on file with the committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1923. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated September 24, 1921, between Central Illinois Light Co. and Federal Securities Corp. ¹ -----	12547	12859
1924. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated March 1, 1923, between Illinois Electric Power Co. and Federal Securities Corp. ¹ -----	12547	12860
1925. Abstract of provision granting preferential rights to future financing, from contract dated November 29, 1921, between Illinois Power Co. and Federal Securities Corp. ¹ -----	12547	12860
1926. Agreement, dated June 19, 1925, between Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., H. M. Byllesby & Company, and Standard Gas & Electric Company granting H. M. Byllesby & Co. an interest in Pittsburgh Utilities Corporation. (Holding company of Philadelphia Company Utilities system.)-----	12552	12860
1927. Memorandum of agreement between H. M. Byllesby & Company and Standard Gas & Electric Company dated June 19, 1925, granting Standard Gas & Electric Company an interest in Pittsburgh Utilities Corporation.-----	12552	12865
1928. Agreement, dated March 22, 1926, between Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., H. M. Byllesby & Company and Standard Gas & Electric Company altering interests of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. and associates in Pittsburgh Utilities Corporation and related companies, and including provisions regarding future financing, management and engineering fees, and counsel of the companies.-----	12553	(2)
1929. Table: Securities sold to the public by Standard Power & Light Corp. and its subsidiaries, March 22, 1926-December 31, 1929, and percentages of participations therein.-----	12555	12867
1930. Table: Names of issues, and participants therein, of securities sold to public from January 1, 1924, to December 31, 1929, by Standard Gas & Electric Company or any of the corporations in its system.-----	12555	(3)
1931. Memorandum, dated December 21, 1929, entitled "Banking," signed by J. H. Briggs, H. M. Byllesby & Co., Victor Emanuel, United States Electric Power Corporation, and Walter Rosen, Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., allocating participations, leadership, and management in future financing of Standard Gas & Electric, Standard Power & Light, and Philadelphia Company systems.-----	12561	12868
1932. Memorandum, dated May 15, 1928, by Victor Emanuel, United States Electric Power Corporation, regarding agreement covered in conversation between Alfred Lowenstein and Victor Emanuel relative to Standard Gas & Electric Co., American Water Works & Electric Company, Inc., and Middle West Utilities Company.-----	12564	12563
1933. Memorandum, dated May 16, 1929, by Carlton P. Fuller, Schroder, Rockefeller & Company, Inc., regarding status of Standard Gas & Electric Company for London interests.-----	12569	12870

¹ The full text of the contract is on file with the committee.

² On file with the Securities & Exchange Commission, Docket 31 420, vol. 2, Exhibit No. 21.

³ On file with the committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1934. Cable, dated October 15, 1928, from Frank Tiarks, to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) with regard to acquiring control of Standard Gas & Electric Company.....	12571	12871
1935. Copy of Cable dated October 19, 1929, from C. L. Fisher, vice president, Hydro-Electric Securities Corp. to Loewenstol, Brussels, (Hydro-Electric Securities Corp., Brussels office), regarding agreement as to terms in gaining control of Standard Gas & Electric Company.....	12574	12872
1936. Copy of cable dated September 12, 1929, from Schroder, Rockefeller & Co., Inc. to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) regarding invitation to Baron Schroder to accept directorship in United States Power Corporation.....	12575	12873
1937. Cable from Baron Schroder, J. Henry Schroder & Co., to J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation for C. L. Fisher, Hydro-Electric Securities Corp., accepting position on the board of directors.....	12575	12873
1938. Cable, dated September 13, 1929, from J. Henry Schroder Banking Corp. to Baron Schroder, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, regarding position in United States Electric Power Corporation business.....	12575	12873
1939. Cable, dated September 13, 1929, from Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) to Schrobanco (J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York) giving reason for accepting directorship of United States Electric Power Corporation.....	12575	12873
1940-1. Table: Securities sold to the public by Standard Gas & Electric Company or any of the corporations in its system, January 7, 1930, to June 1, 1936, and percentages of participations therein.....	12576	Facing 12874
1940-2. Supplementary Exhibit A to Table: Securities sold to the public by Standard Gas & Electric Company or any of the corporations in its system, January 7, 1930, to June 1, 1936, and percentages of participations therein.....	12576	12874
1940-3. Supplementary Exhibit B to Table: Securities sold to the public by Standard Gas & Electric Company or any of the corporations in its system January 7, 1930, to June 1, 1936, and percentages of participations therein.....	12576	12874
1940-4. Supplementary Exhibit C to Table: Securities sold to the public by Standard Gas & Electric Company or any of the corporations in its system January 7, 1930, to June 1, 1936, and percentages of participations therein.....	12576	12875
1941. Table: Names of issues, and participants therein, of securities sold to the public from January 1, 1930, to April 22, 1938, by Standard Gas & Electric Company or any of the corporations in its system.....	12576	(1)
1942. Letter, dated June 11, 1938, from W. G. Pohl, H. M. Byllesby & Co., to C. Roy Smith, Securities and Exchange Commission, giving names of syndicate managers in Standard Gas & Electric Company, January 1, 1924, to April 22, 1938.....	12576	(1)

¹ On file with the Committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1943. Memorandum, dated August 10, 1934, by Carlton P. Fuller, Schroder, Rockefeller & Co., Inc., regarding general evaluation of future prospects of Standard Gas & Electric Company-----	12578	12875
1944. Cable, dated September 13, 1934, from Mr. Vanderstraten, Hydro-Electric Securities Corp., to Alemanuel (Albert Emanuel Co.) regarding Chase National Bank negotiating with group for Harrison Williams concerning pledged Usepco securities-----	12579	12876
1945. Cable, dated September 16, 1934, from Alemanuel (Albert Emanuel Co.) to Mr. Vanderstraten, Hydro-Electric Securities Corp., regarding arrangement with H. M. Bylesby & Company giving Hydro-Electric Securities Corp. option on Usepco securities-----	12580	12876
1946. Cable, dated September 21, 1934, from Schrobancro (J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York) to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) for Major Pam regarding further financial interest by Hydro-Electric Securities Corp. in United States Electric Power Company-----	12583	12877
1947. "Extract from Mr. Mocarski's letter of December 17, 1934" regarding Hydro-Electric's bid for Usepco indebtedness-----	12583	12878
1948. Cable, dated November 6, 1934 (from J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York), to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) for Major Pam regarding necessary readjustments among operating companies to make Standard Power or Standard Gas equity attractive-----	12583	12878
1949. Memorandum, dated December 18, 1935, by Robin Wilson, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, regarding possible sale of $3,000,000 claim against Usepco by Chase Bank, Chemical Bank and Guaranty Trust-----	12585	12879
1950. Cable, dated December 19, 1935, from Robin Wilson, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, to Neil Adshead, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, regarding Victor Emanuel, Hydro Electric and Leadenhall Securities Co. acquiring Usepco's holdings in Standard Power & Light shares and 75 percent of Standard Gas System financing-----	12585	12879
1951. Cable, dated December 19, 1935, from Neil R. Adshead, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, to C. F. Beal, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York, with regard to delaying until more definite plan for Usepco available-----	12586	12880
1952-1. Cable, dated December 20, 1935, from J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, to (J. F. Beal) J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York, regarding possible value of 75% financing of Standard Gas System-----	12586	12880
1952-2. Memorandum, entitled "Standard Gas & Electric Co.—Information obtained by Robin Wilson from Victor Emanuel"-----	12586	12880
1953. Letter, dated December 26, 1935, from Carlton P. Fuller, Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc., to John L. Simpson, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York, regarding plan to pay banks $1,500,000 for their claim against Usepco-----	12588	12882
1954-1. Letter, dated January 10, 1936, from Carlton P. Fuller to John L. Simpson reviewing situation with respect to Schroder interests and future prospects-----	12591	12884

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1954-2. Cable, dated January 8, 1936, from Emanuel to Schroder, London, for Major Pam and Robin Wilson regarding respective participations in future financing of London and American interests.....	12591	12886
1955. Cable, dated January 14, 1936, from Carlton P. Fuller to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London), regarding active competition for Usepco securities by Harrison Williams and stating that American group must be prepared to put in cash and/or reciprocity in order to retain position in Standard financing.....	12594	12887
1956. Cable, dated January 15, 1936, from Schrodpriv, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, to Schrobanco, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York, regarding Hydro Schroder group agreeing to take participation in purchase group of Usepso loan.....	12595	12887
1957. Cable, dated February 14, 1936, from Schrodpriv, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, to Schrobanco, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York, requesting information regarding advisability of Hydro and other clients participating in Usepco loan.....	12596	12887
1958. Letter, dated February 17, 1936, from Victor Emanuel, Emanuel & Co., to C. P. Fuller, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, offering suggestions for reply to J. Henry Schroder & Co.'s cable of February 14, 1936.....	12597	12888
1959. Cable, dated February 18, 1936, from C. P. Fuller, Schroder Rockefeller & Co., to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) regarding attractiveness of Usepco loan acquisition and future underwriting of Standard Gas System securities.....	12597	12889
1960. Cable, dated February 20, 1936, from Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) to C. F. Beal, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation (New York) regarding J. Henry Schroder & Co., or Leadenhall Securities Co. sharing directly in American underwriting.....	12597	12890
1961-1. Cable, dated February 24, 1936, from C. P. Fuller, Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc., to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) regarding disqualification of Leadenhall Securities Co. or new company and suggesting Conti-Trust as appropriate participant for American underwritings.....	12597	12890
1961-2. Letter, dated March 27, 1936, from Robin Wilson, London, to Victor Emanuel, New York, regarding Usepco deal having "gone completely to sleep for the moment".....	12597	12891
1962. Cable, dated May 22, 1936, from Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) to Robin Wilson, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, regarding promise to Hydro-Electric Securities Corp. of participation in financing profits and other details on American underwriting.....	12600	12892
1963. Cable, dated May 25, 1936, from Robin Wilson, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, to Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) regarding possible returns on investment of Hydro-Electric Securities Corp.; difficulties of foreign underwriters enforcing reciprocity and advising underwriting risk still exists although limited to few hours.....	12600	12892

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1964. Letter, dated August 24, 1936, from J. Henry Schroder & Co. to Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc., regarding the taking over from J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation by Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc., of its interest in United States Electric Power Corporation and Schroder Rockefeller & Co. to become agent for London interests in financing of Standard Gas System-----	12600	12893
1965. Memorandum, dated May 28, 1936, by E. G. Diefenbach, Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, regarding acquisition of notes of United States Electric Power Corporation and agreement between latter and H. M. Byllesby & Co. for 75% of the financing of the Standard Gas & Electric System-----	12606	12894
1966. Cable, dated January 6, 1936, from Schrodpriv (J. Henry Schroder & Co., London) to Schrobanco (J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York) requesting legal advice on Usepco program and whether contract assuring 75% future group financing to Emanuel and Hydro is binding-----	12611	12895
1967-1. Cable, from Victor Emanuel, Emanuel & Co. to Robin Wilson, J. Henry Schroder & Co., London, regarding difficulties with respect to Sullivan and Cromwell-----	12611	12895
1967-2. Cable, dated January 7, 1936, to Major Pam, Hotel Meurice, Paris, from Carolton P. Fuller, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York, regarding Sullivan & Cromwell's comments with reference to cable of January 6, 1936-----	12611	12896
1968. Memorandum, dated March 10, 1936, by Carolton P. Fuller, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corp., New York, to Messrs. Beal and Simpson, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corp., New York, regarding comments of Mr. R. Crispell, Sullivan & Cromwell, on Byllesby-Usepco agreement-----	12616	12896
1969. Memorandum, dated March 13, 1936, by Carlton P. Fuller regarding the three agreements entered into between H. M. Byllesby & Co. and Usepco-----	12622	12897
1970. Copy of letter dated March 13, 1936, from J. L. Simpson, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, to Frank Common, Messrs. Brown, Montgomery & McMichael, confirming view that financial agreement between Byllesby and Usepco is not legally binding-----	12623	12899
1971. Memorandum, dated May 18, 1928, regarding Standard Gas & Electric Company, American Water Works & Electric Company, Inc., and Middle West Utilities Company covering statistical information, earnings and dividends per shares, financial and statistical information along with explanation of certain items-----	12623	12899
1972. Letter, dated January 4, 1940, from S. W. Duhig, vice president, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., Special Counsel, with stipulation covering communications or memoranda sent or received by Shell Union Oil Corporation-----	12628	12903
1973. Letter, dated June 7, 1935, from J. C. Van Eck, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to F. Godber, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation with regard to prospective financing by Hayden, Stone, Lee Higginson group approach by a banking syndicate consisting of Lehman Brothers and others-----	12628	12904
1974. Memorandum showing public offerings of Shell Union Securities with principal underwriters prior to 1935-----	12629	12905

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
1975. Letter, dated July 22, 1935, from S. Belither, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to J. C. Van Eck, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding discussions with Dillon, Read & Co. relative to refinancing-----	12629	12905
1976. Cable, dated August 14, 1935, from Condeteck (Shell Union Oil Corporation, New York) to Sir Henri Deterding, director, Royal Dutch Company, regarding offer of Dillon, Read & Co. to underwrite $50,000,000 4% debentures of Shell Union Oil Corporation-----	12629	12905
1977. Cable, dated October 14, 1935, from Sir Henri Deterding to J. C. Van Eck, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding introduction of Pierre David Weill, Lazard Frères & Co., Paris, in view of possible future financing of Shell Union Oil Corporation, and to introduce Stanley Russell-----	12629	12906
1978. Cable, dated July 29, 1935, from Sir Henri Deterding to Condeteck (Shell Union Oil Corporation) attention J. C. Van Eck, et al, suggesting Dillon, Read & Co. first make their offer in Shell Union Oil Company refinancing with suggestion that Lehman Brothers be considered next-----	12629	12906
1979. Cable, dated November 1, 1935, from Condeteck (Shell Union Oil Corporation, New York) to Sir Henri Deterding regarding terms of Dillon, Read & Co.'s offer in Shell Union Oil Corporation refinancing with suggestion that "other banker friends" be given opportunity to submit terms-----	12630	12906
1980. Letter, dated December 16, 1935, from Dillon, Read & Co. to Shell Union Oil Corporation regarding $50,-000,000, 3½% fifteen year debentures-----	12631	12907
1981. Letter, dated December 18, 1935, from Lee Higginson Corporation and Hayden, Stone & Company to Shell Union Oil Corporation regarding their interest in Shell Union refinancing as soon as market conditions reach the point where issue can successfully be made-----	12631	12908
1982. Cable, dated January 14, 1936, from Sir Henri Deterding, Royal Dutch Company, to Shell Union Oil Corporation regarding refinancing proposal and Pierre David Weill's phone call. Recommends careful consideration of any proposal more attractive than that of Dillon, Read & Co.'s-----	12631	12908
1983. Cable, dated January 13, 1936, unsigned (from Shell Union Oil Corporation) to Condeteck, London, regarding Clarence Dillon's verbal offer and relative to obtaining in writing an offer regarding $50,000,000 refinancing from all interested parties-----	12632	12908
1984. Cable, dated January 22, 1936, from Shell Union Oil Corporation to Sir Henri Deterding remarking about undesirable complications of competitive bidding and reporting that Dillon, Read & Co. and Hayden, Stone & Co. are to be joint syndicate managers-----	12632	12909
1985. Table: List of participants showing the dollar amount of participations of the Shell Union Oil Corporation group dated February 10, 1936-----	12634	12910
1986. Telegram, dated March 6, 1936, from R. van der Woude, president, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to F. Godber, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding Dillon's desire to express views to Mr. Godber relative to Shell, Union Oil Corporation issue-----	12634	12910

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
1987. Telegram, dated March 6, 1936, from F. Godber to R. van der Woude relative to maintaining view already expressed to Dillon-----	12635	12911
1988. Letter, dated November 3, 1939, from Wilbur C. DuBois, Dillon, Read & Co., to O. L. Altman, Securities & Exchange Commission, enclosing photostatic copies of accounts connected with $60,000,000 Shell Union Oil Corporation 15-year, 3½% debentures, and copy of underwriting agreement dated March 7, 1936 between Dillon, Read & Co., Hayden, Stone & Co. and Shell Union Oil Corporation for $60,000,000 15-year, 3½% debentures, due March 1, 1951-----	12635	12911
1989. Telegram, dated March 11, 1936, from J. W. Watson, Shell Petroleum Corp., to S. W. Duhig, treasurer, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding fact that $60,000,000 15-year, 3½% debentures moving slowly-----	12636	12914
1990. Telegram, dated March 11, 1936, from J. C. Van Eck, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to F. Godber, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding necessary time before $60,000,000 15-year, 3½% debentures are absorbed as result of slow sale of issue-----	12636	12636
1991-1. Letter, dated January 9, 1940, from H. H. Egly, Dillon, Read & Co., to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., confirming memorandum submitted regarding distribution of Shell Union 3½% debentures in 1936 and explaining why no management fee was charged-----	12636	12915
1991-2. Memorandum, prepared by Investment Banking Section of Securities and Exchange Commission dated November 17, 1939, headed "Distribution of Shell Union 3½% debentures in 1936" showing underwriting group and amount of participation of each-----	12636	12915
1992. Letter, dated April 3, 1936, from J. C. Van Eck, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to G. Legh-Jones, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, London, regarding report of Mr. Clarence Dillon, Dillon, Read & Co., relative to Shell Union issue, and telling amount of bonds still in hands of several underwriters-----	12637	12918
1993. Cable, dated January 20, 1937, from R. G. Van der Woude, president, Shell Union Oil Corporation to Vanwood, London, regarding Tide Water Associated financing-----	12637	12919
1994. Letter, dated February 4, 1937, from R. G. A. Van der Woude to J. C. Van Eck regarding financial standing of Shell Union Oil Corporation and possibility of refunding outstanding preferred stock and raising additional capital-----	12637	12919
1995. Cable, dated March 5, 1937, to Vanwood from R. G. Van der Woude relative to it being best not to disturb grouping of bankers as was formed in 1936 financing. Mentions fact that Dillon Read, Hayden Stone, and Lee Higginson have come to understanding among themselves-----	12639	12922
1996. Memorandum, dated March 16, 1937, by S. W. Duhig, treasurer, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding proposal underwriting group were prepared to make in refinancing Shell Union preferred stock and the proportion each banker would share in the underwriting-----	12639	12923

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appear on page
1997. Cable, dated March 16, 1937, from R. G. Van der Woude, president, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to Vanwood, regarding unsatisfactory offer of Dillon, Read & Co. in proposed new financing of Shell Union Oil Corporation-----	12640	12924
1998. Cable, dated March 17, 1937, from R. G. Van der Woude to Vanwood, regarding 10-day limit set for Dillon, Read & Co. to revise the offer in Shell Union financing at end of which period company considers itself "entirely free to approach others."-----	12640	12924
1999. Letter, dated January 18, 1938, from J. C. Van Eck, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to R. G. Van der Woude regarding a possible new banking connection with Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated and latter's ideas about restrictions on proposed financing-----	12640	12925
2000-1. Letter dated January 8, 1940, from C. B. Stuart, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., enclosing stipulation identifying letter initialed C. B. S. dated May 11, 1938-----	12641	12925
2000-2. Letter, dated May 11, 1938, from C. B. S. (Charles B. Stuart), Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., to H. L. Stuart, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., relative to Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated working on Shell Union Oil Corporation financing-----	12641	12926
2001. Letter, dated April 13, 1938, from R. G. Van der Woude, president, Shell Union Oil Corporation, to J. C. Van Eck, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding preliminary discussions with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated for new financing of Shell Union-----	12643	12926
2002. Memorandum dated April 22, 1938, by S. W. Duhig, treasurer, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding discussions with M. C. Laffey of Equitable Life Assurance Society of U. S. A. regarding proposed $25,000,000 loan-----	12644	12927
2003. Cable, dated April 30, 1938, from R. G. Van der Woude to Vanwood regarding various financing opportunities and opinion insurance companies most preferable to Shell Union-----	12644	12927
2004. Letter, dated June 1, 1938, from R. G. Van der Woude to A. Fraser, Shell Petroleum Corp. requesting comprehensive preliminary report so Equitable Life Assurance Society of U. S. A. will be justified in closing deal prior to receiving final report-----	12646	12929
2005. Letter, dated May 23, 1939, from S. W. Duhig, treasurer, to R. G. Van der Woude, president, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding attempt to negotiate an adjustment in the interest rate on $25,000,000 loan with Equitable Life-----	12646	12929
2006. Letter, dated May 24, 1939, from S. W. Duhig to R. G. Van der Woude giving summary of talk with William Ewing and Perry E. Hall, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, regarding Shell Union financing-----	12647	12930
2007. Cable, dated June 6, 1939, from R. G. Van der Woude to Vanwood, regarding Equitable Life's willingness to reduce interest rate in exchange for bonus and suggestion that company proceed to finance through Morgan Stanley-----	12647	12931
2008. Cable, dated June 26, 1939, from R. G. Van der Woude to Vanwood regarding tentative agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated for the public

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
2009. offering of $85,000,000, 15-year, 2½% debentures at 98½, as result of Equitable's refusal to make changes in existing agreements -----	12647	12931
2010. Cable, dated July 13, 1939, by R. G. van der Woude to Vanwood regarding discussion with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated. Due to market changes a successful issue was impossible at an offering price better than 97½ -----	12649	12932
2011. Telegram, dated July 17, 1939, from R. G. van der Woude to S. Belither, director, Shell Union Oil Corporation, regarding the signing of underwriting agreement with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated at 97½ -----	12650	12933
2012. Purchase contract between Shell Union Oil Corporation and Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, covering the $85,000,000 Shell Union Oil Corporation 15-year, 2½% debentures dated July 1, 1939, due July 1, 1954 showing list of participants and amount each received in underwriting. Selling group letter from Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, covering dealer participations in the above described issue -----	12650	12933
2013-1. Cable, dated July 20, 1939, from R. G. van der Woude, president, Shell Union Oil Corporation to Vanwood, regarding slow response of Shell Union Oil Corporation $85,000,000, 15-year, 2½% debentures -----	12650	12650
2013-2. Stipulation by Arthur Dean, Sullivan & Cromwell, counsel to The First Boston Corporation, identifying memorandum dated March 10, 1937 by H. M. Addin-sell, The First Boston Corporation -----	12651	12942
2014. Memorandum, dated March 10, 1937, by H. M. Addin-sell, The First Boston Corporation, regarding tele-phone conversation with Dean Mathey of Dillon, Read & Co. concerning Shell Union's proposed preferred stock issue. Mentions "well-known trading proclivities of the Shell people." -----	12651	12942
2015. Letter, dated November 20, 1939, from Perry E. Hall, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, to P. R. Nehemkis, Jr., enclosing a memorandum relating to Shell Union Oil Corporation 3½% debentures -----	2660	12943
2016. Underwriting agreements between Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Shell Union Oil Corporation regarding the $85,000,000 Shell Union Oil Corporation 15-year 2¼% debentures dated July 1, 1939, due July 1, 1954, listing group of eighty-five underwriters and amount of participation of each -----	12660	12944
2017. Extract of underwriting agreement dated July 17, 1939 between Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company for $22,250,000 3% debentures due July 1, 1979, con-taining Morgan Stanley & Co.'s guarantee of per-formance by underwriters -----	12663	12956
2018. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Appalachian Electric Power Co. $57,000,000 first mortgage 4% bonds, due 1963 and $10,000,000 sinking fund debentures 4½% series, due 1948, dated January 28, 1938, Bonbright & Co. Inc. syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12957

¹ The full text of the contract is on file with the Committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
2018. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Bethlehem Steel Corporation, $25,000,000 consolidated mortgage 20-year sinking fund 3¼% bonds, Series F, due 1959, dated June 26, 1939, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Smith Barney & Co., Mellon Securities Corporation syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12957
2019. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Central Illinois Public Service Company $38,000,000 first mortgage bonds, Series A, 3¼%, due 1968, dated December 5, 1938; Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12957
2020. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Central Maine Power Company, $4,500,000 first and general mortgage bonds, Series J, 3½% due 1968, dated February 17, 1939; Coffin & Burr, Incorporated, syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12958
2021. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Company of Baltimore, $7,000,000, Series P, 3% first refunding mortgage sinking fund bonds due 1969, dated June 5, 1939; White, Weld & Co., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12958
2022. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling groups but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Dallas Power & Light Company, $16,000,000 first mortgage bonds, 3½%, due 1967, dated February 6, 1937; Lee, Higginson Corporation, syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12958
2023. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Firestone Tire & Rubber Company $50,000,000 10-year 3¼% debentures, due 1948, dated October 24, 1938 Brown, Harriman & Co., Incorporated and Otis & Co. (Incorporated) syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12959
2024. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Gatineau Power Company $52,500,000 first mortgage 3¼% bonds, Series A, due 1969, dated April 21, 1939 The First Boston Corporation, syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12959
2025. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Indianapolis Power & Light Company $32,000,000 first mortgage bonds, 3¼% series, due 1968 and $5,500,000 serial notes, dated August 3, 1938 Lehman Brothers, syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12959
2026. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, $34,000,000 first mortgage bonds, 4% series, due 1963, dated October 4, 1938; Dillon, Read & Co., Mellon Securities Corporation, syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12960

¹ The full text of the contract is on file with the Committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
2027. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. $9,000,000 first mortgage sinking fund bonds, 4½% series, due 1954, dated May 20, 1939; Blyth & Co., Inc. and Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12960
2028. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for National Distillers Products Corporation $22,500,000 10-year convertible 3½% debentures, due March 1, 1949, dated March 17, 1939; Glore, Forgan & Co., Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12960
2029. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for National Steel Corporation $50,000,000 first (collateral) mortgage bonds, 3% series, due April 1, 1965, dated April 24, 1939; Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Harriman Ripley & Co., Incorporated, syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12961
2030. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for New York State Electric & Gas Corporation $13,000,000 first mortgage bonds, 3¾% series, due 1964, dated June 19, 1939; The First Boston Corporation and Glore, Forgan & Co., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12961
2031. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for North Shore Gas Company and North Shore Coke & Chemical Company $5,100,000 joint first mortgage 4% bonds, series A, due January 1, 1942; A. G. Becker & Co., syndicate manager ¹ -----	12667	12961
2032. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Pennsylvania Power & Light Company $95,000,000 first mortgage bonds, 3½% series, due 1969, $28,500,000, 4½% debentures due 1974, dated August 7, 1939; Smith Barney & Co., The First Boston Corporation, Bonbright & Company, Incorporated, and Dillon, Read & Co., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12962
2033. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Public Service Company of Colorado $40,000,000 first mortgage bonds, 3¾% series, due 1964, dated November 25, 1939; Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., syndicate manager ¹ -----	12667	12962
2034. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Rochester Gas & Electric Corporation, $8,323,000 general mortgage 3¾% bonds, Series J, due 1969, dated June 19, 1939; The First Boston Corporation, syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12963

¹ The full text of the contract is on file with the Committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
2035. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Shell Union Oil Corporation $60,000,000 15-year 3½% debentures, due March 1, 1951, dated March 7, 1936; Dillon, Read & Co. and Hayden, Stone & Co., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12963
2036. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Southern Indiana Gas & Electric Company 85,895 shares 4.8% preferred stock, dated October 23, 1936; Bonbright & Company, Incorporated, syndicate manager ¹ -----	12667	12963
2037. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Texas Corporation $40,000,000, 3% debentures due 1959, dated April 10, 1939; Dillon, Read & Co., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12964
2038. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Union Oil Company of California $30,000,000, 3% debentures, due 1959, dated August 14, 1939; Dillon, Read & Co., syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12964
2039. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for West Texas Utilities Company $18,000,000 first mortgage bonds, series A, 3½%, due 1969, dated June 2, 1939; Harris, Hall & Company (Inc.), syndicate managers ¹ -----	12667	12964
2040. Provisions governing disposition of securities reserved for dealers in selling group but not purchased by them, from underwriting contract for Wisconsin Electric Power Company $54,500,000 first mortgage bonds 3½% series, due 1968, dated October 21, 1938; Dillon, Read & Co., syndicate manager ¹ -----	12667	12965
2041. Table: Shell Union Oil Corporation debentures purchased by underwriters from company and reserved to underwriters for retail distribution by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated-----	12669	12965
2042-1. Telegram, dated August 29, 1938, from T. E. Hough, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., to J. H. Carlson requesting information regarding amount set aside for special sales and selling groups in certain specified security issues-----	12671	12670
2042-2. Copy of telegram dated August 30, 1938, from J. H. Carlson to T. E. Hough stating he will check around and advise as to information requested-----	12671	12670
2042-3. Copy of telegram dated August 30, 1938, from J. G. Carlson to T. E. Hough regarding "giveups" in issues headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, as reported by various houses-----	12671	12671
2042-4. Copy of telegram dated August 31, 1938, from J. H. Carlson to T. E. Hough stating "giveups" in issues headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, as reported by Blyth & Co., Inc.-----	12671	12671

¹ The full text of the contract is on file with the Committee.

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
2042-5. Copy of telegram dated August 30, 1938, from J. H. Carlson to T. E. Hough regarding "giveups" in certain other security issues-----	12671	12966
2043. Sample of dealer performance record card used by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated-----	12681	12967
2044. Sample of dealer performance record card used by Kidder, Peabody & Co.-----	12682	12975
2045. Sample of dealer performance record card used by White, Weld & Co.-----	12682	12975
2046. Sample of dealer performance record card used by Mellon Securities Corporation-----	12682	12977
2047-1. Sample of dealer performance record card used by Harriman Ripley & Co. Incorporated-----	12683	12977
2047-2. Memorandum prepared by Harriman Ripley & Co. Incorporated entitled, "The syndication of new issues of corporate securities," describing formation of selling groups and manner of keeping performance cards-----	12683	12978
2048. Stipulation by George A. Brownell, counsel to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, identifying documents from the files of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated-----	12683	12983
2049. Telegram, dated July 18, 1939, from H. B. Cohle & Co. to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, asking for offering and participation in Shell Union Oil Corporation syndicate-----	12683	12985
2050. Letter, dated July 18, 1939, from Sumner B. Emerson, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, to H. B. Cohle & Co. requesting information as to distributing ability, etc., before making an offering of Shell Union Oil Corporation debentures-----	12683	12985
2051. Letter, dated July 14, 1939, from Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, to Messrs. Surdam & Co. requesting information as to distributing ability, etc-----	12683	12985
2052. Letter, dated July 14, 1938, from J. Lyle Osborne, Schwabacher & Co., to John Young, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, reporting on company's distribution of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey issues-----	12683	12985
2053. Letter, dated October 26, 1936, from John M. Young, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, to E. O. Dorbritz, Messrs. Moore, Leonard & Lynch, expressing dissatisfaction with firm's excessive distribution of American Telephone & Telegraph Company debentures to country banks-----	12684	12683
2054-1. Letter, dated January 14, 1937, from George V. Rotan, George V. Rotan Co., to John M. Young expressing hope that standing of George V. Rotan Co. will not be impaired for declining an offering-----	12684	12986
2054-2. Letter, dated January 19, 1937, from John M. Young to George V. Rotan saying that "single instance" of declination will not affect standing of George V. Rotan Co. with Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated-----	12684	12987
2055. Letter, dated July 19, 1939, from Earle F. Spencer, Spencer, Swain & Co., to William L. Day, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, hoping firm's future position with Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, as result of returning $10,000 of Shell Union Oil Corporation bonds will not be jeopardized-----	12685	12685
2056. Letter, dated July 19, 1939, from F. L. Dabney & Co. to William L. Day, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, regarding acceptance of $10,000 debentures (although not sold) and return of $40,000 of Shell Union Oil Corporation 15-year 2½% debentures-----	12685	12685

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appear on page
2057. Letter, dated July 19, 1939, from Leland M. Bell, Kerr & Bell, to Sumner B. Emerson, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, regarding firm's return of Shell Union Oil Corporation 2½% debentures.....	12685	12987
2058. Letter, dated July 19, 1939, from Philip H. Gerner, George D. B. Bonbright & Co., to Sumner B. Emerson, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, regarding future participation in other deals as result of small sales of Shell Union Oil Corporation debentures.....	12685	12988
2059. Memorandum, dated November 6, 1935, by Blyth & Co. to the sales managers relative to Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, checking through brokers for 60 or 90 days after selling groups are closed to find out who among underwriters and selling group are not selling bonds for permanent placement.....	12685	12686
2060. Letter, dated July 21, 1939, from C. H. Hyams, 3rd, Hyams, Glas & Carothers, to Perry Hall, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, expressing regret at failure to sell Shell Union Oil Corporation debentures or Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company debentures.....	12686	12989
2061. Letter, dated July 20, 1939, from Arthur H. Bosworth, Bosworth, Chanute, Loughridge & Company, to Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, regarding high price of Shell Union Oil Corporation debentures and Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company debentures.....	12686	12989
2062. Table: Securities offered for cash by type of offering, January 1934-June 1939, covering registered and unregistered issues publicly and privately offered.....	12690	12990
2063. Table: Securities offered for cash by type of security, January 1934-June 1939, showing bonds, notes and debentures, preferred stock and common stock and total.....	12690	12990
2064. Table: Amount and percent of registered bond and preferred and common stock issues managed by selected investment banking firms, January 1934-June 1939.....	12691	12991
2065. Table: Distribution among bonds and preferred stock and common stock in registered issues managed by selected investment banking firms, January 1934-June 1939.....	12692	12992
2066. Chart: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—all industries, January 1934-June 1939.....	12693	12694
Table: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—all industries, January 1934-June 1939.....	12693	12993
2067. Table: Amount and percent of registered bond issues of each quality grade managed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, from organization to June 30, 1939.....	12696	12994
2068. Chart: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—manufacturing companies, January 1934-June 1939.....	12696	12697
Table: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—manufacturing companies, January 1934-June 1939.....	12696	12996
2069. Chart: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—electric light and power, gas, and water companies, January 1934-June 1939.....	12698	12699
Table: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—electric light and power, gas, and water companies, January 1934-June 1939.....	12698	12997

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Introduced at page	Appears on page
2070. Chart: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—transportation and communication companies, January 1934–June 1939.....	12700	12701
Table: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—transportation and communication companies, January 1934–June 1939.....	12700	12998
2071. Chart: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—companies other than manufacturing or public utility, January 1934–June 1939.....	12702	12703
Table: Quality of bond issues managed by 38 investment banking firms—companies other than manufacturing or public utility, January 1934–June 1939.....	12702	12999
2072. Table: Distribution by grades of registered bond issues managed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, and 37 other leading investment banking firms, September 16, 1935–June 30, 1939.....	12704	13000
2073. Table: Amount and percent of participations of selected investment banking firms in issues managed or co-managed by those firms, June 14, 1934–June 30, 1939: Part I, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated. Part II, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Part III, The First Boston Corporation. Part IV, Blyth & Co., Inc. Part V, Dillon, Read & Co. Part VI, Mellon Securities Corporation. Part VII, Harriman Ripley & Co., Incorporated. Part VIII, Smith, Barney & Co.....	12704	13001
2074. Chart: Distribution of sales to various classes of purchasers by the distributing group, six bond issues, 1936–1938.....	12707	12708
Table: Distribution of sales to various classes of purchasers by the distributing group, six bond issues, 1936–1938.....	12707	13005
2075. Chart: Distribution by states of the sales made by the distributing group of six bond issues, 1936–1938.....	12707	12709
Table: Distribution by states of the sales made by the distributing group of six bond issues, 1936–1938.....	12707	13006
SUPPLEMENTAL DATA
Unnumbered. Letter dated January 27, 1940, from Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., to John M. Hancock, Lehman Brothers, requesting amplification of testimony.....		13007
Unnumbered. Letter dated February 16, 1940, from John M. Hancock to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., replying to above.....		13008
Unnumbered. Letter dated January 27, 1940, from Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., to Walter Sachs, Goldman Sachs & Co., requesting amplification of testimony.....		13010
Unnumbered. Letter dated February 6, 1940, from Walter E. Sachs to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., replying to above.....		13011
Unnumbered. Letter dated January 22, 1940, from Arthur H. Dean, Sullivan & Cromwell, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., enclosing letter from C. R. Palmer, Cluett Peabody & Co., to John M. Hancock for inclusion in the record.....		13012
Unnumbered. Letter dated May 25, 1937, from C. R. Palmer, Cluett Peabody & Co., Inc., to John M. Hancock, Lehman Brothers, replying to points raised in Mr. Hancock's letter of May 18th ("Exhibit No. 1814").....		13012

SCHEDULE OF EXHIBITS—Continued

Number and summary of exhibits	Intro- duced at page	Appears on page
SUPPLEMENTAL DATA—continued
Unnumbered. Letter dated January 30, 1940, from Edwin Gibbs, Lehman Brothers, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., enclosing stipulation identifying documents from the files of Lehman Brothers-----		13013
Unnumbered. Letter dated December 22, 1937, without signature (from Robert Lehman, Lehman Brothers), to C. M. Chester, General Foods Corporation, stating points which would constitute an equal basis for handling of General Foods financing by Goldman Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers-----		13014
Unnumbered. Letter dated February 1, 1938, without signature (from General Foods Corporation) to Lehman Brothers, enclosing resolution of Board of Directors and copy of letter to Goldman Sachs & Co.-----		13014
Unnumbered. Resolution dated January 27, 1938, of the Board of Directors of General Foods Corporation authorizing the offer of joint syndicate management of proposed stock issue to Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers-----		13015
Unnumbered. Letter dated February 1, 1938, from C. M. Chester, Chairman of the Board, General Foods Corporation, to Goldman Sachs & Co. enclosing resolution of Board of Directors and copy of letter to Lehman Brothers-----		13015
Unnumbered. Letter dated May 19, 1937, from R. O. Kennedy to Sanford L. Cluett describing regret at differences between Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. and efforts at compromise-----		13015
Unnumbered. Letter dated August 20, 1937, from John M. Hancock, Lehman Brothers, to Cluett Peabody, & Co. submitting resignation as a director-----		13016
Unnumbered. Letter dated January 24, 1940, from C. P. Fuller, Schroder, Rockefeller & Co., Incorporated, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., describing considerations leading to conclusion that agreement for the division of underwriting profits need not be included in registration statement-----		13017
Unnumbered. Memorandum dated July 17, 1934, by Webb Wilson, Edward B. Smith & Company, entitled "General Arrangements Pursuant To Which Investment Bankers Are Selected and Companies Comprising the Standard Gas & Electric Gas System-----		13018
Unnumbered. Letter, dated February 5, 1940, from Perry E. Hall, vice president, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., adding the names of three investment banking companies to those mentioned in testimony as having been suggested by Shell Union Oil Corporation for inclusion in underwriting syndicate-----		13020
Unnumbered. Supplement by Oscar L. Altman, Securities and Exchange Commission, to testimony on concentration in the management, underwriting and sale of registered bond issues, entitled "The Role of Commercial Banks in the Distribution of Registered Bond Issues and Some Aspects of Bond Acquisitions by Life Insurance Companies."-----		13021

INVESTIGATION OF CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

MONDAY, JANUARY 8, 1940

UNITED STATES SENATE,
TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE,
Washington, D. C.

The committee met at 10:40 a. m., pursuant to adjournment on Wednesday, December 20, 1939, in the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building, Senator William H. King presiding.

Present: Senator King (acting chairman); Representative Williams; Messrs. Lubin, O'Connell, Henderson, and Brackett.

Present also: Clifton M. Miller and Robert McConnell, Department of Commerce; Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., special counsel, and Oscar L. Altman, associate financial economist, Securities and Exchange Commission.

Acting Chairman KING. The committee will be in order.

Mr. Henderson, have you anything on your mind?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes; I have an introductory statement, Mr. Chairman.

STATEMENT BY MR. HENDERSON

Mr. HENDERSON. Prior to the committee's recess, the S. E. C.'s Investment Banking Section presented testimony on "frozen accounts" and the realignments in the investment banking industry resulting from the divorce of the bank security affiliates pursuant to the Banking Act of 1933. This committee may sometime have to make a judgment as to whether actual divorce took place, or whether merely separate establishments were set up. There was also presented in the former hearings evidence with respect to certain aspects of the concentration of economic power in this industry.

Today and throughout this week, the witnesses to appear before the committee will testify, among other things, as to the treaties, agreements, and understandings which exist among investment banking houses and between investment banking houses and the corporations whose securities are issued.

The committee will recall that, prior to our recess, evidence was offered with respect to a number of "understandings" existing between various underwriting firms. There was testimony on the "understanding" relating to former National City Co. business¹ and the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. financing;² Mr. Sidney Mitchell testified concerning his "understanding"—or as he characterized it, his "hope and expectation"—with Mr. Harold Stanley on Niagara Hudson Power Co. business;¹ there was offered in evidence the written agreement between the Harris Trust & Savings Bank and Harris Forbes & Co. concerning the respective division of the security originations and participations of those two organizations.² Finally, the committee heard considerable testimony on the now famous "library understanding" of May 5, 1920, between Messrs. J. P. Morgan and H. P. Davison, of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Robert Winsor, of Kidder, Peabody & Co., relating to A. T. & T. financing.³

¹ Supra, Part 22, pp. 11417, 11484 and 11511.

² Ibid, p. 11500 ff.

In my considered opinion, the testimony on agreements and understandings which is being presented before this committee by the S. E. C.'s Investment Banking Section is highly significant. These treaties, agreements, and understandings are the sinews of the prevailing method of doing business; they form the framework of banker-issuer relations and are the essence of the system of negotiated prices.

According to the resolution of the Congress which created this committee, restrictions upon competition and concentration of economic power—wherever they may appear in the American economic scene—are matters of concern.

This morning, Mr. Nehemkis will present to the committee testimony on the first of a series of understandings or agreements between investment banking firms—the understanding between Lehman Bros. and Goldman, Sachs & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Walter E. Sachs, Mr. John Hancock, please.

Acting Chairman KING. Do you solemnly swear that the evidence you will give in this hearing will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. SACHS. I do.

Acting Chairman KING. Mr. Hancock, do you solemnly swear that the testimony you will give in this hearing will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. HANCOCK. I do.

TESTIMONY OF WALTER E. SACHS, GOLDMAN, SACHS & CO., NEW YORK CITY, AND JOHN M. HANCOCK, LEHMAN BROS., NEW YORK CITY

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. SACHS. Walter E. Sachs, 120 East End Avenue, New York City.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock?

Mr. HANCOCK. John M. Hancock, Scarsdale, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, when did you first become a partner of the firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co.?

Mr. SACHS. January 1, 1910.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When was Goldman, Sachs organized as a partnership, Mr. Sachs?

¹ Part 23, p. 12088.

² "Exhibit No. 1626-2," Part 22, p. 11525.

³ Part 23, p. 11872 ff.

Mr. SACHS. Well, the original partnership was organized in the year 1869; not under the name Goldman, Sachs & Co., but that was the origination of the partnership.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not Goldman, Sachs & Co. originally a commercial paper house?

Mr. SACHS. That was our original business; yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And a commercial paper house acts as an intermediary between business enterprises and banks, does it not?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It buys commercial paper from business enterprises and sells this paper to one or more banks?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, as a result of its activities——

Acting Chairman KING (interposing). And the bank, I suppose, sold to individuals as they cared to purchase the paper.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; but in 99 percent of the cases I should say the buyers are banks, national banks, or trust companies.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a result of its activities in handling commercial paper, did not Goldman, Sachs become well acquainted with many business enterprises, their officers, their finances, and their credit needs?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; we established over the years many intimate relationships of that kind.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But Goldman, Sachs never engaged in any underwriting activities during the first years of its existence despite these commercial contacts?

Mr. SACHS. No. As far as I can recollect, our first underwriting activity was about the year 1906.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I should say that we had hoped this morning to have Mr. Robert Lehman as a witness. Unfortunately, Mr. Lehman was taken ill with an attack of appendicitis last night. His partner, Mr. John Hancock, is appearing in his stead.

Mr. Hancock, when did you first become a partner of Lehman Brothers?

Mr. HANCOCK. 1924.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. There are some questions which I am going to ask you which were directed toward Mr. Lehman, and you may have some difficulties. If so, I will understand, and I am sure the committee will. Do you know when Lehman Brothers was first organized as a partnership?

Mr. HANCOCK. The date isn't a matter of history; it was about 1848; it might have been 1850, within that range of those 2 years.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was the nature of the original business of Lehman Brothers prior to its becoming an underwriting house?

Mr. HANCOCK. Traditionally, and I don't know more than that, primarily a banker in the cotton industry.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A banker or a factor?

Mr. HANCOCK. A banker.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A banker in the cotton industry.

Mr. HANCOCK. That is right; dealing in commodities in large degree, of course.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall when Lehman Brothers first engaged in underwriting activities?

Mr. HANCOCK. 1906 or 1907, around the turn of the century.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. About the same time as Goldman, Sachs?

Mr. HANCOCK. I believe that they were together in the first venture.

EARLIEST FINANCING BY THE TWO HOUSES

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, was not the earliest financing undertaken by Goldman, Sachs & Co. with respect to a preferred stock issue about the year 1906 of a company that later became the General Cigar Company?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct. It was then known as the United Cigar Manufacturers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Two other houses were associated with you in this financing, Lehman Brothers and Kleinwort & Co., of London. Is that correct, sir?

Mr. SACHS. Lehman Brothers were—I would have to refresh my memory. Kleinwort Sons & Co. were associated with us in some businesses in subsequent years. I am not quite clear whether they were associated in the United Cigar Manufacturers business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We can correct the record at our convenience.

Mr. SACHS. I would think they were not but you may be entirely correct.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Suppose we correct the record if there is a difference.

Assuming, however, that I am correct, suppose we proceed on that basis. Did not Goldman, Sachs, Lehman Brothers, and Kleinwort have equal shares in their financing?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; very likely it was a 3-3 account.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And at this time Kleinwort & Co. was a very well recognized London banking house?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; they were one of the great merchant bankers of London, and are today.

Acting Chairman KING. Those associations were temporary?

Mr. SACHS. No, sir; our association with Kleinwort Sons & Co. dated from about the year 1898, and we still have a very close association with them, have had for a great many years.

Acting Chairman KING. In all activities or just some of the transactions?

Mr. SACHS. No, sir; in certain activities and certain specified businesses, and also a running relationship in the commercial banking business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The General Cigar Store financing, Mr. Sachs marked, I believe, the first underwriting transaction in which your firm was associated with the firm of Lehman Brothers on an equal basis?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE FIRMS TO 1920

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not the relationship between the two firms, Goldman, Sachs & Co., and Lehman Brothers, so close at this time that if at any stage of the negotiations either firm had refused to go on, the other firm would in all probability have withdrawn from the financing?

¹ Mr. Sachs, under date of February 6, 1940, informed the committee that Kleinwort Sons & Co., were not associated with Goldman, Sachs & Co. as originating bankers in the financing in 1906 of United Cigar Manufacturers. See appendix, p. 13011.

Mr. SACHS. Very likely. I might explain, if I may, that the relationship was initiated at that time because of a very close personal friendship and personal relationship between Mr. Philip Lehman, who was the senior partner of Lehman Brothers, and Mr. Henry Goldman, who was one of the seniors of my firm.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact, Mr. Sachs, that at this time the two firms had in effect decided to go into the investment-banking business as partners, although they would continue to operate under separate names and, of course, with separate physical establishments?

Mr. SACHS. I don't think it was quite like that. I think that that original business was done—and I don't know that in 1906 there was any preconceived plan as to the future—but I think it developed as a perfectly natural situation that subsequent businesses the following years were done together in the same way. In other words, at that time there was no written memorandum or anything, but it just developed because of this personal relationship between these two men whom I have mentioned.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The two firms were associated together in many other pieces of financing after 1906, were they not?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; my recollection is that between 1906 and 1916—1917—that we financed initially about fourteen or fifteen different industrial companies.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it be correct for me to say, Mr. Sachs, from 1906 until the World War, all of the financing of Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs was undertaken jointly?

Mr. SACHS. All the issue business, of course.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Issue business, originations.

Mr. SACHS. Originations—that is definitely my recollection.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Am I also correct in understanding, Mr. Sachs, that where Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs were the only underwriters, each firm usually shared in the participations on a 50-50 basis?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And where other firms were brought in, the participations of the two firms remained equal?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Acting Chairman KING. Were these firms partnerships or did they become partnerships later?

Mr. SACHS. Goldman, Sachs was a partnership. I cannot speak for Lehman Brothers. My impression is it was also a partnership. During these years Goldman, Sachs was a partnership.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And still is?

Mr. SACHS. It is a partnership today. I may say there was an intervening period when Goldman, Sachs & Company was organized as a joint-stock association under New York State laws.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have already indicated that during this period we have been discussing, 1906 up to the World War, there was never any written agreement between the two firms. The close relationship was based upon the close ties between the heads of the two houses and their friendship, so may I summarize the relationship as follows: that it was that kind of close relationship which exists between any two close business associates?

Mr. SACHS. Right.

Acting Chairman KING (to Mr. Nehemkis). Where the element of friendship becomes paramount.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. SACHS. It was kind of an informal partnership for that type of business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By 1920 had not the partners of Goldman, Sachs and their respective interests in the firm changed somewhat from what they had been before the World War?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, is it not also true that about this time the partnership interests of Lehman Brothers had changed somewhat from what it had been prior to the World War?

Mr. HANCOCK. My impression is that there was a moderate change of interest, but I was the first one outside the Lehman family to join the firm as a partner. I didn't come into the firm until 1924.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, when did Mr. Waddill Catchings and Mr. Sidney Weinberg become admitted as members of the firm?

Mr. SACHS. Mr. Catchings was admitted on January 1, 1918. Mr. Weinberg, although a very important member of our organization, only became a partner on January 1, 1927. I might also say Mr. Henry Goldman retired from the firm at the end of the year, December 31, 1917.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I take it there were during this subsequent period that is to say after the World War, other changes in the partnership from its original membership.

Mr. SACHS. There may have been minor changes. Those were the major ones. There were no other partners admitted until the 'thirties after that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, you were admitted as a partner on August 1, 1924, were you not?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Monroe C. Gutman was admitted as a partner on January 1, 1927, is that correct?

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Robert Lehman, who was to have appeared here this morning, was admitted as a partner July 1, 1921?

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Those were the major changes that took place in the partnership immediately after the war?

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

RELATIONS FROM 1920 TO 1926

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, between the years 1920 and 1928, was there not a change in the previous underwriting relationship between the two firms, that is to say, Goldman, Sachs for instance engaged in pieces of financing in which Lehman Brothers did not participate?

Mr. SACHS. Well, if my recollection is correct, those changes only began to take place around 1926. There was a difference of feeling developing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is to say in some of these financings Lehman Brothers was not offered a participation.

Mr. SACHS. Well, not prior to 1925.

Mr. HANCOCK. Not that I know of.

Mr. SACHS. Not that I know of. There was little financing during the war. The first piece of issue business was in 1918, which was Endicott Johnson Corp. business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I attempt, subject to your corroboration, which is always difficult with two witnesses, to summarize this relationship. Please tell me if I have it correctly. There were financings in which Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Brothers had equal participations and equal profits—bear in mind our time period, if you will. There were financings in which Goldman, Sachs alone participated but shared its profits with Lehman Brothers, and finally there were a few isolated cases where Lehman Brothers had neither participation nor profits in Goldman, Sachs business; is that correct?

Mr. SACHS. That was subsequent to 1915 or 1916, however.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. With that qualification, you accept my characterization of the situation?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. HANCOCK. May I add, by participations you also mean obligations, I take it. You include the obligations in the participations.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What do you mean by obligations?

Mr. HANCOCK. The risk in the contract.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; but I am not interested in that now, Mr. Hancock.

Acting Chairman KING. It is a fact, I suppose, if there were losses they would be deducted from the profits, and all participating would have to share those losses according to their respective interests.

Mr. HANCOCK. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I assumed that.

Mr. HANCOCK. I wanted to be sure; that is all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As illustrative of the situation where Goldman, Sachs alone participated but divided the profits with Lehman Brothers, there are a number of exhibits relating to the financing of B. F. Goodrich Company which I should like you to identify for the record, if you will. I now show you four letters. Would you be good enough to examine them and tell me if you recognize them to be copies of originals in your files and in your custody?

For your convenience, may I say, Mr. Sachs and Mr. Hancock, each of the exhibits that will be offered to you for identification bears on the top of the exhibit a legend indicating the respective files from which it was obtained. I think you may assume that we have been accurate in that respect and that will save you considerable time.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; I recognize these.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I offer in evidence the four letters identified by the witness.

(Committee conference off the record.)

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received. Do you want them printed?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think in this case they are all relevant.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1773 to 1776" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12713-12714.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, during this same period did not Lehman Brothers observe a similar practice with respect to financing in which Goldman, Sachs was not a member of the underwriting or purchase group?

Mr. HANCOCK. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now show you three letters which are illustrative of this practice and involve an issue by Detroit City Gas Co. in 1922. That, as you recall, was an issue of $13,500,000 first mortgage 6's of 1947, series "A." Will you examine these three documents, Mr. Hancock, and tell me whether or not they are true and correct copies of originals in your possession and custody?

Mr. HANCOCK. They are.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And as further illustration of the same practice, I ask you to examine two documents relating to the financing of R. H. Macy & Co. in 1922 and 1926. Will you be good enough to examine these two documents? Are they true and correct copies of originals in your possession and custody?

Mr. HANCOCK. They are.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These five documents, Mr. Chairman, identified by the witness are offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1777 to 1781" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12714-12716.)

EVENTS LEADING TO MEMORANDUM OF 1925

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, did not Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. have an equal underwriting participation in the financing in 1924 which resulted in the creation of the National Dairy Products Corporation?

Mr. HANCOCK. My impression is they did. I can verify it by the summary I have here.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Give me your best recollection at this time, subject to your privilege of checking the record later. What is your answer?

Mr. HANCOCK. My answer is their participation was equal.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, at this time were not two partners of your firm, Mr. Catchings and Mr. Dauphinot, devoting a great deal of time to the affairs of National Dairy Products?

Mr. SACHS. Yes. I must make the correction that Mr. Dauphinot was not a partner. Mr. Catchings was. Mr. Dauphinot was a very trusted member of the organization. Other than that, your statement is correct.

Acting Chairman KING. In other words, he was an employee but not a partner.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct; a very trusted employee.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not Goldman, Sachs feel as the result of the efforts of these two men and others in the organization devoting a great deal of their time to the development of the company, that Goldman, Sachs was entitled to a larger compensation in connection with any transactions that might be effected?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

¹ Mr. Hancock, under date of February 16, 1940, confirmed this statement. See p. 13008, paragraph numbered 1.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Goldman, Sachs also believed that the same situation might develop with respect to Lehn & Fink.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And if this situation should materialize, did not Goldman, Sachs feel this preferential position should also be recognized by Lehman Bros.?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Acting Chairman KING. That is to say, there were some transactions in which one side of the two firms, or one of the two firms, occupied a more important position than the other, by reason perhaps of former associations with the business enterprises.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; or a great amount of work being done in that particular situation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As the result of this view which we have been discussing, Mr. Sachs, did not various conferences take place between the two firms with respect to rearranging their relative interests in future financing by these two companies?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not these conferences finally terminate in a conference at the home of Mr. Arthur Sachs on the night of October 25, 1925?

Mr. SACHS. I take your word for the date. I know it was the latter part of 1925.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you state the partners of Goldman, Sachs who were present at this conference at the home of Mr. Arthur Sachs?

Mr. SACHS. I think Mr. Catchings and Mr. Arthur Sachs were at that particular conference.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was Mr. Arthur Sachs then the senior partner of the house of Goldman, Sachs?

Mr. SACHS. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A senior partner?

Mr. SACHS. A senior partner, but we have no senior partner. He was a senior partner.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, are you familiar with the names of the partners who were present at the conference in behalf of the House of Lehman?

Mr. HANCOCK. I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And their names, please?

Mr. HANCOCK. Herbert Lehman and Arthur Lehman.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Herbert H. Lehman is now Governor of the State of New York?

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And is Arthur Lehman now connected with the firm?

Mr. HANCOCK. He is deceased.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not Mr. Arthur Lehman senior partner of the firm at that time?

Mr. HANCOCK. It looks like collusion, but my answer is the same as Mr. Sachs'. We have older partners. We have no senior partners.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I have to keep checking up on you two, you see.

Mr. Sachs, as the result of the conference which took place at the home of Mr. Arthur Sachs, was there not prepared a memorandum, the purpose of which was to govern the future relations between the two firms?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; that is a fair statement.

Acting Chairman KING. All relations, or just some?

Mr. SACHS. Relations in connection with what is popularly known as the issue business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We are going into that, Senator, in a moment.

I show you, Mr. Sachs, a memorandum dated October 26, 1925. I ask you to examine this memorandum and tell me if that is not the memorandum resulting from that conference.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; it is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you pass it on to Mr. Hancock, and will you tell me, Mr. Hancock, whether you recognize that as the memorandum of October 26, 1925? Incidentally, it was obtained from your files, Mr. Hancock.

Mr. HANCOCK. It must be the right one. I had the impression it was signed by Herbert Lehman.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just answer my questions, Mr. Hancock, as we proceed.

Mr. Sachs, who was the draftsman of this memorandum?

Mr. SACHS. My impression is that it was Herbert Lehman.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, what is your impression?

Mr. HANCOCK. That is my impression.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can either of you be more positive and tell me it was drafted by him?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; because there is a subsequent letter which substantiates that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, what is your answer?

Mr. SACHS. I know it was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, what is your answer?

Mr. HANCOCK. I know it was drafted by him.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The memorandum is now offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1782" and is included in the appendix on p. 12717.)

Acting Chairman KING. Is the material merely for the purpose of showing that these two firms cooperated together in work subsequent to this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Sir, it is rather difficult for me to answer that question. I expect to develop precisely the implications of your question through these two witnesses.

Mr. Sachs, was not one of the problems settled by the conference the relationship of the two houses with respect to the future financing of Lehn & Fink and National Dairy Products Co.?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read a portion of that memorandum to you [reading from "Exhibit No. 1782"]:

Our joint relation to all Companies previously financed by the two houses was to remain exactly as it had been in the past, save that a different arrangement be entered into now with regard to the National Dairy Products Co. and later possibly with regard to Lehn & Fink.

With the exception of these two companies, Mr. Sachs, was it not determined that the relationship of the two firms to all of the old business would remain on an absolutely equal basis?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

MEMORANDUM OF JANUARY 5, 1926

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, it would appear, Mr. Sachs, would it not, that Governor Lehman's efforts at mediation between the two firms did not result in a clear definition of the rights and responsibilities of the two houses to each other?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; that would be indicated by the later memorandum of January 5.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And on January 5, 1926, did not the two firms again attempt to codify their relationship to each other with a memorandum?

Mr. SACHS. With respect to these old businesses; yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Sachs, I show you a memorandum dated January 5, 1926, and I ask you to identify this as being a true and correct copy of that memorandum to which reference has been made.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you show it to Mr. Hancock? Do you identify it as a true and correct copy of the memorandum in question?

Mr. HANCOCK. I do. I would like to make a little explanation. The first memorandum didn't purport to be a final agreement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will give you full opportunity to develop that.

Acting Chairman KING. I think that is a proper interpretation of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The memorandum identified by the witnesses is offered in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1783" and is included in the appendix on p. 12718.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who was the draftsman, Mr. Sachs, of this memorandum?

Mr. SACHS. I couldn't say who the actual individual was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It was more or less a cooperative effort by various people?

Mr. SACHS. I think very likely.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What is your recollection?

Mr. HANCOCK. My impression is Mr. Catchings and Mr. Lehman worked it out together.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which Mr. Lehman?

Mr. HANCOCK. Herbert Lehman.

Mr. SACHS. That may be.

Mr. HANCOCK. I never saw any drafting work done. The two men were working together on the draft, I know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, I note that this memorandum is divided into nine sections or articles and contains an appendix, and the appendix lists 60 corporations. Mr. Sachs, is it not a fact that the corporations covered by this memorandum issued approximately $200,000,000 of securities within the next decade, and that the issuance of these securities was governed by the memorandum of 1926?

Mr. SACHS. The next decade from where?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. From 1926.

Mr. SACHS. I can't substantiate your figure because I haven't gone back to the record. There was a very substantial amount of financing done by some, not all, of these companies in the subsequent years.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now I want to read from paragraph 1 of the memorandum dated January 5, 1926, which reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

With respect to the corporations specified on the attached list it will be the desire of the two firms to do any financing which may arise in the future upon the basis of the same relative interest in such financing which the firms had in the original business with respect to such company.

Mr. Sachs, does not the phrase "same relative interest" in this paragraph 1 mean that the interests of Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Brothers were to be equal?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Where only Lehman Bros. and Goldman, Sachs were to be involved, the interest of each under paragraph 1, was to be 50 percent?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Where other houses in addition to Lehman Bros and Goldman, Sachs were involved, the interests of each would be equal to half of the remainder after allotment to any of the other houses.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct, always with the exception of the two companies.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Paragraph 1 continues as follows [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

Such business shall be handled either in the office of Goldman, Sachs & Co. or in the office of Lehman Brothers as indicated on the attached list.

According to the list attached to the memorandum, Mr. Sachs, was not the financing of 41 companies to be handled in the office of Goldman, Sachs, while the financing of 19 companies was to be handled in the office of Lehman Bros.?

Mr. SACHS. I accept your count.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This division, therefore, Mr. Sachs, reflected, did it not, the sphere of interest of each house in the joint venture?

Mr. SACHS. May I ask what you mean by the sphere of interest?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just what you meant when you set down in two categories 41 corporations under Goldman, Sachs, and 19 under Lehman Bros.; nothing different.

Acting Chairman KING. 19 might issue more than the 41.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, but I think in fact they did not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, this division, therefore, reflected the sphere of each interest in the joint venture, did it not?

Mr. HANCOCK. I think not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What did it mean, then?

Mr. HANCOCK. It reflected the historical record as to what firm had handled the business originally in their office.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Neither house, however, Mr. Sachs, was to receive any additional compensation for handling the financing in their own office.

Mr. SACHS. No; not at that time.

¹ Mr. Sachs, under date of February 6, 1940, submitted supplemental information on this point. See appendix, p. 13011. See also Mr. Hancock's comment under date of February 16, 1940, appendix, p. 13010, paragraph beginning "Regarding page 485—."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yet of course there were expenses involved in handling the financing.

Mr. SACHS. The expenses were generally charged to the banking syndicate formed in connection with such issue rather than to joint account.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, paragraph 2 of the memorandum of January 5, 1926, reads and provides that [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

Each firm shall endeavor to maintain the present relationship of the other firm or of any of its members with the respective listed companies.

If each house maintained its relationship with the issuer, I take it the participations of the two houses together would be larger, would it not?

Mr. SACHS. I don't follow that question; I am sorry.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I say, if each house, your house and Lehman Bros., maintained its relationship with the issuing corporation, continued that relationship, the participations you each would have in the business would of course be larger than if you did not maintain the relationship.

Mr. SACHS. You mean if we didn't have the business at all, yes, it is quite obvious.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I just want you to tell me that.

I want to read to you the first clause of paragraph 3 of the memorandum [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

If any of the listed companies refuses in the future to have either firm participate in a piece of financing, the other firm will endeavor to have such excluded firm afforded a full opportunity of presenting its case.

This provision meant, in effect, did it not, Mr. Sachs, that if both firms were not jointly designated to handle this financing, either Goldman, Sachs, or Lehman Bros., as the case might be, would use its good offices to permit the excluded firm to present oral argument, so to speak, before the board of directors? Correct, sir?

Mr. SACHS. Correct; but I also think it brings out one very interesting fact, that in spite of this mutual agreement between Goldman, Sachs, and Lehman Bros., corporations in every instance were perfectly free agents and were under no obligation, contractual or otherwise, to do business with either firm or both firms.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think that is correct; they could have gone to anybody.

Mr. SACHS. They could have gone to anybody.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. However, as the subsequent testimony shows, they preferred not to.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Nehemkis, may I ask a question? Did you regard the agreement as binding upon each other?

Mr. SACHS. At that time it was an understanding as expressed in these terms; yes, sir. It wasn't from our point of view, at least, an agreement that that could not have been changed at any future time; it had no term; it didn't last so and so many years.

Mr. HENDERSON. Your point is this wasn't binding on the 60 firms that were mentioned in their relationships with each other.

Mr. SACHS. My point is exactly that; it is the relationship between the two banking houses and had nothing to do with the relationship of these various industrial and mercantile firms with either or both of the banking houses; that there was no contractual relationship as to future business.

Mr. HENDERSON. But in the past the business had generally followed the lines that had been indicated.

Mr. SACHS. These were old relationships, old clients, with whom we had a very pleasant and a very intimate relationship. They considered us as their financial advisers, just as a man goes to his lawyer or to his physician, and without contract the relationship had continued because apparently in the minds of those who conducted these corporations we were giving effective financial service.

Mr. HENDERSON. But assuming that there was no overthrow or any extraordinary circumstance, you had reason to believe that the financing would go about like that in the future; that is, go in the future as it had in the past.

Mr. SACHS. Yes. To put it quite simply, we believed as long as we did a good job we would get future business from these companies.

Acting Chairman KING. You understood that there were other banking and investment organizations throughout the United States who perhaps were soliciting business and you were in competition with them?

Mr. SACHS. We not only understood it, Senator; we knew it. We suffered from it occasionally.

Mr. HENDERSON. But in relation to these 60 companies, competition had never been effective enough to get it away from them, had it?

Mr. SACHS. I will have to look at the list for just a moment. I think my answer would agree to that, but I want to be quite sure.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think you did lose some part of that business.

Mr. SACHS. I think there are certain exceptions; yes, sir. My associate just reminds me that—I don't see their name here—Underwood Typewriter, yes, Underwood Typewriter—new elements came in; I think we might consider the fact, for instance, while the B. F. Goodrich business was originally done between the three houses, the Bankers Trust Co., the Guaranty Trust Co., and Kleinwort & Sons, became associated in that. There was always the element, the danger, of competition.

Mr. HENDERSON. There was the danger, but it didn't come to fruition to such an extent that you lost much business.

Mr. SACHS. No. I think the answer was that we did a good job, if I may say so.

Acting Chairman KING. At any rate, these firms whose paper you had taken and made the extension of credit, they were satisfied with the terms upon which they did business with you?

DIRECTORSHIPS IN COMPANIES FINANCED THROUGH INVESTMENT BANKERS

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir; and I think there is another element to be taken into consideration, and that is that in the periods between successive financings, we spent a great deal of time as financial advisers; we were on the boards of directors in most instances, and we gave a great deal of our time and a great deal of our thought to the welfare and the development of these companies. In other words, we were not the investment bankers only at the time when there was an issue to be made, but we were their financial advisers and investment bankers in the intermediate periods.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Did I understand you to say for most of these companies your firms were represented on the board of directors?

Mr. SACHS. In most cases, sir yes.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Would you say that was an element helpful to you people, to your firm in maintaining the business?

Mr. SACHS. I think it was. I would be very glad to state what our theory on that was. I am speaking for the moment for Goldman, Sachs & Co. We went on the board of directors because we sold these securities to the public and we in a sense represented the interests of the public in being on the board of directors and in that way knowing what was going on in a company. In many instances I think we probably could not have sold the securities as successfully if we had not indicated that we were going on the board because the general American public in these early years was not as investment minded, and certainly as far as equity securities were concerned, and we considered an element of strength all around to go onto these boards, and it became a very common practice in our instance. I think, in practically every instance we had some member of our firm who was represented on the board of directors.

Mr. NEHEMIS. In fact, in some instances, Mr. Sachs, not only did your firm and Lehman Brothers act from the very beginning, you were instrumental in putting together many of these corporations, and as the testimony will subsequently show, one of the conditions of the very financing was that you would be represented on the board and have a continuing perspective over financial plans and programs. Isn't that correct?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; it was not part of the contract, but it was an understanding that we should go on the board. After all, it was subject to reelection by the stockholders.

Acting Chairman KING. You felt a moral responsibility, if not a legal responsibility, having issued the securities through your firm, to see that the organization whose securities you issued were in a solvent and going condition all the time.

Mr. SACHS. Exactly. We felt a certain moral responsibility for having sold these securities.

Acting Chairman KING. You didn't want to sell securities of companies whose solvency or ability to maintain themselves in the market you doubted.

Mr. SACHS. We tried to do business with companies that had the possibility of continued growth and development and profitable operation.

Acting Chairman KING. Some of those companies were babies, so to speak, were they, when the securities were first issued?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir; many of them were very, very much smaller. I could show you a balance sheet in our office of Sears, Roebuck & Co., in 1897, showing a net worth of $275,000. Ten years later we bought $10,000,000 of their 7-percent preferred stock. Today the company makes an annual profit of $40,000,000 a year. We are very proud of that record.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I was interested in your statement to the effect that you would be represented on the board of directors of your companies as a sort of representative of the public, feeling you were protecting the public interest in that respect. That is somewhat different from the function of the other members of the board of directors of an issuing corporation, I should take it. Sort of a public obligation, an obligation to the public as a member of the board of directors of the issuing company.

Mr. SACHS. I can't see quite that it is different, because, after all, every member of the board of directors is interested primarily in the success and development of the company. As we wished our public to have and hold securities that would increase in value, our interest was exactly the same, it seems to me. We were primarily interested in the soundness and development of the company.

Mr. O'CONNELL. You think that the interest of the issuing company, and the interest of the public, and the interest of Goldman, Sachs in the underwriting of securities are all one?

Mr. SACHS. I think very identical, yes; except the fact I might add when there was occasionally a new issue, we made a banker's fee out of it, which we were very glad to make.

Acting Chairman KING. You assume that if you sold an issue of a corporation, and that corporation failed, that it would be more or less of a reflection upon you, and to that extent might injure the public who had bought the securities and at the same time perhaps have some little effect upon the reputation of your firm.

Mr. SACHS. Why, certainly. I mean every firm can make mistakes, of course. They try to make as few mistakes as possible.

Acting Chairman KING. So there was an interest in the public and your interest was in seeing that your issues were sound and that the corporation or partnership with which you identified yourself in the sale of securities was continued along reasonable lines so as to insure safety and the public confidence.

Mr. SACHS. That is right.

Mr. MILLER. May I ask a few questions of the witness? I notice, Mr. Sachs, that on this list, they are all industrial companies, with the exception of one railroad, the French railroad, Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean, and the American Light & Traction Co. All the rest were industrials. In most of these instances, were the securities that were sold equity securities? By equity securities I mean common stocks or preferred stocks instead of bond obligations.

Mr. SACHS. I think we would find by checking up in most instances the sale was a combination of preferred stocks and common stocks. There were some instances, I think, where only common stocks were sold, and a few, a very few where only a preferred stock was sold. Generally speaking, it was a combination sale of some preferred shares and common shares; subsequently, in some instances it was debentures, or bonds, but these were somewhat rarer.

Mr. MILLER. As a matter of fact, when you did a good deal of this financing, was that not really the introduction to the public, to investing public, of that type of security? That was not the generally accepted thing that had prevailed during the earlier period.

Mr. SACHS. I think it was very definitely a new departure; yes, sir; and not only the preferred stocks, but certain provisions that were put in them which were somewhat new, notably that if the preferred dividend was passed for four periods, then the preferred stock had a vote. Also, I think it was a new departure that companies of this kind sold their equity securities to the public. There were some very definite reasons for that, I mean the necessity of men who owned private businesses in toto, because of the development of the inheritance tax, and so forth, the necessity of liquefying the investment in these companies in the face of death duties.

Mr. MILLER. In these equity issues, the question of management—and particularly in some of these industries, these mercantile concerns—was of utmost importance, and was that one of the main concerns, reasons for your putting directors on these boards because of the fact that if the management wasn't good, the company probably would have a very precipitous downward career? It isn't like a railroad, it isn't like a public utility, which has a better organized base.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct. We consider management of utmost importance in companies of this sort. It has always been our policy not to interfere with management if management was sound and getting along well; it was only in occasional instances where the board of directors, of whom we were one, had to consider the question of finding management. That did occur, of course.

Mr. MILLER. There were instances where you were able to assist in finding management of particular ability?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We were speaking earlier, Mr. Sachs, of the clause of paragraph 3¹ which provided that in case one of the two firms were excluded, the other would afford the excluded firm an opportunity to be heard. Do you recall any instances in which Goldman, Sachs attempted to secure a hearing for Lehman Bros.?

Mr. SACHS. I think the Pillsbury case was one. I don't know if that is the case you have in mind.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know of any others?

Mr. SACHS. Goodrich—I wish you would refresh my memory.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you, in the interest of making the record complete on that, Mr. Sachs, have one of your associates prepare a little statement about that and let us have it at the earliest convenience?

Mr. SACHS. I would be glad to.²

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, do you recall any instance in which Lehman Brothers afforded Goldman, Sachs an opportunity for oral argument, so to speak, before a corporation covered by the list?

Mr. HANCOCK. I believe it was done in the case of Macy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. R. H. Macy?

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know of any others?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't recall any.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you sure?

Mr. HANCOCK. I am sure I don't recall; I am not sure it didn't happen.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I make the same suggestion to you, if you will let us have a memorandum?

Mr. HANCOCK. I will be glad to.³

Mr. MILLER. Were you always successful when you went to the mat for the other fellow?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1783."

² Mr. Sachs, under date of February 6, 1940, submitted the information requested. It is included in the appendix on p. 13011.

³ Mr. Hancock, under date of February 16, 1940, submitted the information requested. It is included in the appendix on p. 13008, paragraph numbered 2.

Mr. SACHS. No, sir.

Mr. HANCOCK. I make the same answer.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Continuing from Paragraph 3, this clause reads, [reading from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

but if the corporation in question still maintains its refusal the other firm shall be free to do the business itself either alone or with other houses.

Mr. Sachs, wasn't either Goldman, Sachs or Lehman Bros. free to do business with the company that objected to one of the firms?

Mr. SACHS. Well, my recollection is that it hadn't come up prior to this time. We just had this practice of doing business each with the other.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't it also true, Mr. Sachs, that in the years prior to the time we are discussing, because of the close personal friendship and business relationship between the partners, there was a general feeling that if something wasn't good for one firm, well, it wasn't good for the other firm?

Mr. SACHS. Well, there was a feeling, yes, of these two men whom I mentioned before who were intimate associates. I presume if one didn't like the business, the other one said, "Let's drop it," that kind of relationship.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But prior to the memorandum of January 5, 1926, and the business experience of the two firms preceding that period, would it not be correct to say that such a situation as was covered by Article 3 would never have arisen?

Mr. SACHS. Very likely not. I will admit that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think I have one other point in article 3 to call your attention to. I continue reading [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

offering to the other firm its participation in the profits and losses provided the company in question does not object to such offering.

Now, I take it, Mr. Sachs, the effect of this provision was that even if one firm were excluded from the financing, it would still share in the underwriting profits.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; it could still be offered its share. That did happen in some instances.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Under this covenant, it was not necessary to ask the company for permission to divide such profits, was it?

Mr. SACHS. No; unless the company specifically would object to it. I mean they might inquire into it, I suppose.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had you up to the time of this agreement always asked for such permission in such cases?

Mr. SACHS. I think not; I wouldn't say positively.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had you ever asked for permission? Did you usually ask for permission?

Mr. SACHS. No; not usually. It may have come up in some instances in the course of discussion of a piece of business with one of these issuers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me ask you to turn to paragraph 5 of the agreement of January 5, 1926. I read from that clause [reading from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

If the future financing results from, or pertains to a corporation resulting from, a consolidation of one or more of the corporations included in the ac company list, and such corporation or corporations or its or their stock holders receive (including a proportionate share of what the Bankers acquire) less than one-half of the total securities, including cash, issued in connection with the consolidation, then the firm originating the consolidation shall endeavor to give the other firm an interest in the financing substantially equivalent to the proportion which such other firm's interest in the original financing of the listed corporation in question bears to the total new securities issued on the consolidation.

As I read that, as I have read that clause on other occasions, I take it it means that the "proprietary interest," to use the phrase associated with A. T. & T. financing, of each firm in a company's financing, was recognized, shall we say through thick and thin, through merger, consolidation, absorption, or purchase. Is that substantially correct.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; except that "proprietary interest" is perhaps a strong term.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I qualified it as being used in another connection.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, Mr. Sachs, is it too strong a term in view of the historical banking relation? Didn't you acquire or seem to acquire some kind of a continuing interest that amounts almost to a "proprietary interest" in that financing?

Mr. SACHS. It was only a "proprietary interest" if the business was done, if the issuer agreed to do the business.

Mr. HENDERSON. We agreed a little while ago, did we not, that the business was done? That is, you had something there which was a valuable interest, did you not?

Mr. SACHS. If the interest was there it was to be divided in certain ways, that is perfectly correct, but I really must repeat that there was no contractual relationship with the issuer which would indicate definitely that the interest was to be there.

Mr. HENDERSON. If you had reduced it to a contract and made it binding on all the firms, which is quite logical to assume, of course, there would have been something which you could have peddled around and divided up and sold, and the like; in other words, you could have obtained a considerable financial return for it. But in effect, without the contractual relationship, without anything binding on the issuer, you did have something which was still extremely valuable.

Mr. SACHS. Yes. I also must repeat what Mr. Hancock indicated, that was, it was an obligation as well as a possible piece of profitable business. It worked both ways.

Mr. HENDERSON. I didn't presume you had a one-way franchise or a one-way vested interest here. I am not suggesting that, but you took issue with the strength of the term "proprietary interest". Is that it?

Mr. SACHS. Yes. Property is something that you actually own. We didn't actually own the business as far as financing was concerned.

Mr. HENDERSON. You were on the boards of directors of firms which you financed?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; we were 1 director out of 10 or 20, whatever the board of directors was. That meant nothing. We didn't control these boards of directors. We didn't own any shares of stock in these companies, except perhaps a nominal amount. I would like to make that point while we are discussing it, that the fact that we were on these boards of directors meant in no sense of the word that we or our firm in any sense of the word controlled these companies or these businesses.

Mr. HENDERSON. These companies followed proprietary interests in financing; I didn't assume you were dominating the corporations.

Mr. SACHS. No, indeed.

Acting Chairman KING. This agreement to which counsel has called your attention could be terminated at any moment?

Mr. SACHS. That was my understanding of it; yes, sir.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Terminated how, by mutual consent?

Mr. SACHS. By either party.

Acting Chairman KING. It wasn't a hard and fast rule that bound you for 1 year or 10 years; you could repudiate it the next day!

Mr. SACHS. That is my understanding.

Acting Chairman KING. Either one.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. Without the consent of the other.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, the interest of the two firms in the financing of a merger or consolidated company under the covenant that we have been addressing ourselves to, was equal to an interest, and now I quote from paragraph 5 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

substantially equivalent to the proportion which such other firm's interest—

That is to say, Goldman, Sachs, or Lehman, depending upon who had originated the financing of the consolidation—in the original financing of the listed corporation in question bears to the total new securities issued on the consolidation.

I take it that the merger of any of the corporations listed in the appendix to the agreement did not relieve Goldman, Sachs, or Lehman Bros., of their partnership obligations to each other. Is that correct?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I ask you to turn with me, if you will, to clause 6 of the agreement [reading further]:

With regard to any financing not pertaining to any of the listed corporations either firm is at liberty at any time to make proposals to the other firm, but neither firm is under any commitment to the other excepting to the extent voluntarily made in each case.

I take it, Mr. Sachs, this article meant in effect that the relationships governing the 60 corporations was fixed, but that with respect to new business, each firm was under no restriction to the other.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, prior to the date of this treaty, if I may so refer to it, did either firm have any commitment to the other with regard to new financing?

Mr. SACHS. Prior to this date?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. SACHS. No; but as I pointed out, in those early years it seems to have been just practice that one firm went to the other in case there was a new piece of business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I want you, if you will, to turn to the last part of paragraph 6 [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1783"]:

In thus relieving each firm of such commitments, banks, or security houses committed through either firm were similarly relieved.

Will you be good enough, Mr. Sachs, to explain which banks, which investment banking firms, were also joined to Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. by commitments?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I haven't a list in mind. There were a number of people that were associated at one time or another, notably Kleiwort, Sons & Co., in London, and in a number of instances I think some business was done with Halsey Stuart in the traction business, I believe, and with the Bankers Trust Co. and the Guaranty Trust Co. in the Goodrich business. There may have been some other businesses.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If I correctly understand the situation, it may be explained as follows: Where one firm was relieved of its commitment, all other firms or banks associated with that firm were likewise released from any commitment.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; I think that is a correct interpretation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that your understanding, Mr. Hancock?

Mr. HANCOCK. Substantially so. I think you have given a little too tangible a meaning to that, because there are commitments that are oral in character that survive, with reference to finder's fees, for example.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you generalizing about legal draftsmanship, or are you confining yourself to the meaning of the last part of clause 6?

Mr. HANCOCK. I am confining myself to the last three lines of clause 6.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you proceed, sir?

Mr. HANCOCK. The effort in that was to cover that kind of commitment. That was recognized in good morals, but was not a legal commitment.

Mr. HENDERSON. Could you give me a tangible instance that comes to your mind as to how this took place?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't recall instances; I can recall a type. For example, a piece of business might have been under discussion on the part of Lehman Bros. with a certain industrial company, and there might have been anyone in the finder's position who had brought that business to us. We might have talked with Goldman, Sachs about the possibilities of doing that business some day and then when we change our relationship as to that, they are relieved of any obligation to that firm. We carry it ourselves. That is the character of transaction referred to here.

Mr. HENDERSON. Does that pertain only to a finder's fee?

Mr. HANCOCK. It might be any other kind of an obligation.

Mr. HENDERSON. Would it be a reciprocal obligation?

Mr. HANCOCK. There was no reciprocal obligation.

Mr. HENDERSON. No; but if you had gotten, say, a piece of business through bankers, and a commitment originated there, then they would have a participation in any new business that you got. Would that be the kind of commitment that was involved?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't know; that never happened in our firm, so far as I know.

Mr. SACHS. You say "findings"; sometimes a security house, naturally—

Mr. HENDERSON. I wanted to find out whether it ran further than just a finder's fee.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs did indicate, Mr. Commissioner, I think, in part in answer to your question that other houses associated with, let us say, the Goldman, Sachs group would be relieved of any obligation to continue as members of the Goldman, Sachs group, if Goldman, Sachs pursuant to the clause in question were relieved of its commitment. It follows also that all members of the Lehman group, including any number of houses, I take it, in a particular piece of financing, previously associated with the Lehman group, would a fortiori be likewise relieved of their commitments to Lehman Bros. provided Lehman was relieved of its commitment to Goldman, Sachs. Does that sum it up?

Mr. HANCOCK. In general terms; yes.

PARAGRAPH EIGHT OF MEMORANDUM OF 1926

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I ask you, if you will, to turn to paragraph 8 [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1783"].

Wherever joint financing business is done for any of the listed corporations the names of the two firms shall be used.

Mr. Hancock, in the matter of the appearance of a banking house, advertising is purely a prestige question, is it not?

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Nevertheless, under paragraph 8 it was specifically covered.

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

PARAGRAPH SEVEN OF THE MEMORANDUM OF 1926

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, under paragraph 7 of the agreement, each firm also had the right to participate in trading accounts of the other with respect to the 60 corporations set forth in the appendix to the agreement. Is that correct?

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you explain briefly to the committee, Mr. Hancock, what is meant by a trading account?

Mr. HANCOCK. I think trading accounts were of several types but the most important type and the one that has recurred most through the history of our firm has been in connection with a distribution of a new issue. The underwriters, not necessarily all, but the leaders, and those who chose to join in, would form a trading account for the purpose of insuring a good distribution of the stock, of this new stock, to the public. I suppose its major purpose was stabilization; it was hoped of course that it would be profitable, too. The same character of transaction would take place in a secondary distribution, where the large initial block had to be distributed, where some large holder would like to distribute his large holding. The trading account might then be handled and those securities would be sold customarily on the exchange, occasionally through dealers if that seemed to be the need of the situation.¹

¹ Mr. Hancock, under date of February 16, 1940, supplemented this testimony. See appendix, p. 13009, reference to "Page 480, first column."

Mr. HENDERSON. Making a market, or stabilizing, and if any profit accrued, it was to be jointly divided.

Mr. HANCOCK. By the ratio set up in the account.

Mr. HENDERSON. And to be managed by the two houses?

Mr. HANCOCK. Ordinarily it was managed by one.

Mr. HENDERSON. Stabilizing operations would be managed by one of the two houses?

Mr. HANCOCK. In fact, but also in fact the men in the two firms would be talking to each other on the 'phone very frequently and seeing each other very frequently. They knew each day what they were doing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, will you follow me as I read to you paragraph 7 of the agreement [reading further from Exhibit No. 1783]:

Any trading account formed by either firm in association with any of the listed corporations or any official thereof shall be managed by the firm specified on the accompanying list with respect to such corporations, but each firm shall be free to determine its relative participation in such trading account, having the option to participate in the primary profit and losses thereof up to its proportion in the original business of the two firms with respect to such corporation. Except as herein provided each firm shall be free to form and manage trading accounts in any securities of the listed corporations.

Is it not a fact, Mr. Hancock, that the provisions with respect to trading accounts apply to trading in outstanding securities of the 60 corporations as well as their newly issued securities?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And under paragraph 7, is it not a fact that officers and stockholders of the 60 companies likewise participated in such trading accounts?

Mr. HANCOCK. Sometimes; not always.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They had that privilege if you so elected.

Mr. HANCOCK. If they so requested and we consented.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you elected to permit them to share.

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. That is, in connection with any of the older underwritings which you undertook, it was permissible at that time for the corporation itself, or for the officers or the stockholders, to enter into a trading account with either of you people?

Mr. HANCOCK. So far as I know the corporation never entered the trading account.

Mr. HENDERSON (reading):

* * * any of the listed corporations * * *.

Mr. HANCOCK. It is conceivable; I don't think it happened; as far as I recall it didn't. It happened with regard to large stockholders of the corporation.

Mr. HENDERSON. It would be independent of the underwriting agreement?

Mr. HANCOCK. As a document contract, yes; but it might happen about the same time.

Mr. HENDERSON. It would be almost sure to happen about the same time. I mean that in connection with an underwriting there was usually a stabilizing operation, was there not?

Mr. HANCOCK. It might have followed thirty days afterwards. There was no pattern; it would depend upon the needs of the situation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I don't think you quite answered Mr. Henderson's question. Under clause 7 of the agreement, theoretically it was possible for a trading account to be formed with any of the listed corporations.

Mr. HANCOCK. In theory that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact, Mr. Hancock, that Lehman Bros. and Goldman, Sachs each had a one-third interest in various trading accounts in securities of Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. between the years 1927 and 1933.

Mr. HANCOCK. I think so, but I can verify it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you accept that subject to future correction? I merely say that in the interest of time.¹

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, did not Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. each have various trading interests in the accounts of Sears, Roebuck & Co.?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And many others?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. act jointly and divide commissions in trading accounts involving outstanding securities held or owned by officers or directors covered by the agreement of January, 1926?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. Did that cover commissions from such trading operations?

Mr. SACHS. Commissions—I suppose you mean commissions involved in connection with sales of securities on the exchanges.

Mr. HENDERSON. That is what I mean. If one of the two handled all the trading operations and there was a commission derived, it was to be split.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; in these particular accounts we were referring to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. For example, Mr. Sachs, when the estate of Julius Rosenwald attempted to dispose of 50,000 shares of stock in 1933, did not Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. act jointly in arranging for the sale?

Mr. SACHS. I don't know who arranged it originally, but it is a fact that commissions earned from the sale of those securities were divided between the two firms.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Your recollection is correct. Do you happen to recall the amount of the commissions you divided?

Mr. SACHS. I don't.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I refresh your recollection by telling you it was $30,964?

Mr. SACHS. I will accept that.

Acting Chairman KING. That is your commission for disposing of 50,000 shares amounted to $30,000.

Mr. SACHS. Those are the ordinary Stock Exchange commissions, I presume, laid down by the Stock Exchange. There was an additional commission. I beg your pardon, I would like to correct that statement. Plus some additional commission which was arranged between the estate and the firms.

¹ Mr. Hancock, under date of February 16, 1940, confirmed the preceding testimony. See appendix, p. 13008, paragraph numbered 3.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that the record may be complete, I am going to ask you a full question and give you a chance to respond to it. Did you not jointly share commissions with Lehman Bros. in connection with an additional 26,000 shares of Sears for the Rosenwald Fund later in the same year?

Mr. SACHS. I don't recall your figures.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You may accept them subject to correction.

Mr. SACHS. Right.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to ask you, Mr. Sachs, to identify for me four letters pertaining to these transactions, if you will. You have before you a letter from Goldman, Sachs to Lehman Bros. dated June 26, 1933, a letter from the Rosenwald Fund to Goldman, Sachs dated June 27, 1933, and a letter from Goldman, Sachs to Lehman Bros. dated June 27, 1933, and another one dated July 21, 1933. Are those letters true and correct copies of originals in your custody?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. There is no controversy? I am asking that as a preliminary to the question. Do you think it is necessary to insert the letters in the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If you wish, they need not.

Acting Chairman KING. You may summarize them later if you desire. They will be identified and filed with the clerk.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will the reporter mark the letters identified for the record?

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1784 to 1787" and are on file with the committee.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, in December of 1933, did not Goldman, Sachs purchase 8,966 shares of Lehn & Fink common stock for the account of Lehn & Fink Products Co.?

Mr. SACHS. I will have to ask my associate about that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If you want to ask any one of your associates to join you on this I think it might be helpful.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And were not these commissions on brokerage transactions shared with Lehman Bros.?

Mr. SACHS. That is my recollection; yes, sir.

SHARING COMMISSIONS ON TRADING AND BROKERAGE ACCOUNTS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, is not the privilege of sharing in trading or brokerage accounts generally extended to the underwriters who are regarded as the bankers for a company?

Mr. HANCOCK. Generally not, so far as I know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Usually?

Mr. HANCOCK. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Sometimes?

Mr. HANCOCK. Occasionally; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in the case of Goldman, Sachs and Lehman, usually?

¹ Mr. Sachs, under date of February 6, 1940, confirmed these figures. See appendix, pp. 13010-13011.

Mr. Robert V. Horton, of Goldman, Sachs & Co., subsequently stated to the committee, by way of clarification, that the 26,000 shares of capital stock of Sears, Roebuck & Co. were sold for a trio account, as shown by "Exhibits Nos. 1784 through 1787."

Mr. HANCOCK. With regard to these companies, I think invariably.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much. For example, did not Lehman Bros. share commissions on trades for the account of the Aviation Corporation and affiliates during 1933 with Brown Brothers Harriman & Co.?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And also with respect to stock of Columbia Broadcasting System in 1934?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And did not Lehman Bros. share commissions with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in connection with purchases of the $3\frac{1}{2}$ percent sinking fund debentures of 1952 for the account of Tidewater Associated Oil Co.? That was in 1938.

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this sharing of commissions resulted from the fact, did it not, that Kuhn, Loeb and Lehman Bros. were joint managers of the syndicate?

Mr. HANCOCK. No; I wouldn't say entirely that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did any other members of the syndicate share in the commissions?

Mr. HANCOCK. Not so far as I know. Maybe I can explain how it happened. There is no mystery about it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want you to explain, but I do want the record to show what your answer was, if you can give me an answer to my question. I will repeat my question to you. This sharing of commissions resulted, did it not, from the fact that Kuhn, Loeb and Lehman Bros. were joint managers in the syndicate. Can you answer that?

Mr. HANCOCK. In some cases, yes; in some cases, no.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, you want to make some explanation. Will you proceed?

Mr. HANCOCK. The handling of the case would depend upon the facts in the individual case. It would be perfectly easy in the case of the Rosenwald estate, which you have referred to, to give us orders to sell, and we would have the commissions on the one-half which we would do for their account. They could then turn to Goldman, Sachs and ask them to handle a similar amount and they would have had their own commission on their direct share of it. In order to simplify the operation it was put into one place, one man handled the whole transaction all through, and being a fellow member of the Stock Exchange we were allowed to share commissions and we did. That is the usual procedure, and that is usually the way it happens.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How many years have you been in the investment-banking business?

Mr. HANCOCK. About 15 plus.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. 15 plus. In your vast experience do you know of any instance where members of a syndicate, other than the manager or managers, have ever shared in the commissions derived from a trading account?

Mr. HANCOCK. I haven't thought of your question before, and I don't think of a case at the moment, but please leave out the words "vast experience," will you?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will withdraw that phrase if it makes you feel better. Will you give the committee the benefit of your advice by a memorandum on that point? Discuss it with your associates.

Mr. HANCOCK. On the question of whether—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Whether you know of any case where a member of a group other than the manager or comanager has shared in the commissions derived from trading-account operations.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Nehemkis, aren't we talking about two types of commissions? If you are talking about Stock Exchange commissions you would be precluded under the rules of the Stock Exchange, would you not, from sharing with anybody but a member of the Exchange?

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

Mr. MILLER. If you are talking about commissions that weren't Stock Exchange commissions, then you might be free, would you not, to share with others if you cared to do so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am sorry if my question wasn't clear, Mr. Miller. I was addressing myself to the latter.

Mr. MILLER. To the commissions that were not Stock Exchange? You were addressing yourself to commissions which were not Stock Exchange commissions?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. HANCOCK. I misunderstood your line of questioning. These things we were talking about were Stock Exchange commissions. I will be very glad to get a statement of the kind you want.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that whenever the co-manager of an issue, Mr. Hancock, buys or sells that security for the account of the issuing company or directly for important stockholders of the issuer he is under an obligation to share profits on such transactions with the co-manager?

Mr. HANCOCK. No; he is not. In the case of our two firms; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But in the case of other such transactions, such as you have just testified for Kuhn, Loeb, Brown Bros. Harriman transactions, how did it happen that you shared in those commissions?

Mr. HANCOCK. I am satisfied in the case of the Aviation Corporation that there were two members of the board, one partner from our firm, one from Brown Harriman and rather than divide the exchange business and let two men handle them separately they put them in the hands of one and the two men agreed to divide equally when they got through.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me see if I follow you on that. Let's take the trades for the account of Aviation Corporation and affiliate. In whose hands was the account placed, Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. or yourself?

Mr. HANCOCK. I have no recollection. The memorandum shows it was in our office.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On what basis of morality, ethics, or obligation, or however you want to characterize it, was your firm constrained to share those commissions with Brown Brothers Harriman & Co.? Why didn't you share any of the others with someone else? Why was it just Brown Brothers Harriman & Co.? That is why I am trying to get you to give me a response.

¹ Mr. Hancock, under date of February 16, 1940, submitted the information requested. See appendix, p. 13008, paragraph numbered 4.

Mr. HANCOCK. I wasn't the man who made the arrangement, but I am confident beyond any question that Averell Harriman, of the Brown Harriman firm, and Robert Lehman, of our firm, were asked to do a piece of business, and this was merely a method, a convenient method, of handling it. There was no question of ethics or anything else involved—a convenient way of handling a simple business operation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am merely trying to explore your answer to see if I understand it and the committee does.

Mr. MILLER. Were these Stock Exchange commissions in the Aviation Corporation case or were they other commissions?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These were Stock Exchange commissions.

Mr. MILLER. I think that is what you have got to make clear.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These were Stock Exchange Commissions.

You have also testified, Mr. Hancock, a moment ago that Lehman Bros. shared commissions with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in connection with purchases of the 3½ percent sinking-fund debentures of 1952 for the account of Tidewater Oil. How did it happen that commissions were shared there? This is a Stock Exchange commission. Let me ask you a preliminary question; perhaps this will aid you. Who was the leader of the account, Lehman Bros. or Kuhn, Loeb?

Mr. HANCOCK. It was a divided management and they led the bonds and we led the stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right. How did it happen you both shared commissions on that deal?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't personally know. I can do some surmising.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I don't want you to do that. You wouldn't want to do that yourself. Will you follow our usual practice and let us have a memorandum on that point? I am going to repeat the question which caused the argument, retracing our tracks, and see if now, having tracked and double-tracked, we will come out with a conclusion. Wherever the co-manager of an issue buys or sells that security for the account of the issuer or directors or important stockholders of the issuer, is he not under some obligation to share profits on such transactions with the co-manager of the account?

Mr. HANCOCK. I know of no such obligation generally prevailing, though it was specifically covered with regard to our two firms, and the reason for the obligation in our case was that it had been specifically stated in the agreement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you want this committee to understand that in several instances concerning which you have testified, the sharing of commissions was just a pure coincidence?

Mr. HANCOCK. No, I didn't say that.

Acting Chairman KING. Will you make such explanation as you care to make?

Mr. HANCOCK. So far as I know, the relatively few cases in all the activity over the years arose because of the set of facts in each case. In the great majority of cases I would say it was a convenient way of handling it and it was handled that way for no other reason than that it was convenient.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I accept your statement. I think there are probably other factors involved, but then you have agreed to see if you can't enlighten the committee on it.¹

(Mr. Henderson took the chair.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I ask you this question. May not this sharing of commissions be one of the reasons why a managership of an account is so attractive, Mr. Hancock? I will repeat the question. Is not the sharing of commissions one of the reasons why the managership of an account is considered to be rather attractive?

Mr. HANCOCK. Do you mean being a member of a management?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No; being the manager.

Mr. HANCOCK. Is attractive to him because he gives something away?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is attractive to him because he has the right to bring someone else in on the sharing of commissions and therefore may place that other party under a reciprocal obligation to him?

Mr. HANCOCK. No. He cannot give a sharing except for services rendered, or with the consent of the Exchange.

Mr. O'CONNELL. What were the services rendered by Brown Harriman & Co.² in connection with this Aviation stock handled by your company?

Mr. HANCOCK. The two firms had originated the business. The origination of it and the developing of the business was the important part of it. The purely mechanical worth of handling it was the minor part.

Mr. O'CONNELL. But after the business had been originated and the issue floated, the trading account continued, I take it, or was set up even after that point, and the trading account was handed by Lehman Bros.

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. O'CONNELL. And the commissions received by you through the operation of the trading account were shared with Brown Harriman & Co.

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Now, at that time what services were being rendered by Brown Harriman & Co. in connection with the operation of the trading account?

Mr. HANCOCK. There was undoubtedly discussion every day between the man in our firm who was managing the account and the man in their firm who was supervising it for them. I am talking usual practice; that has been the usual practice, done without exception, so far as I know.

Mr. O'CONNELL. So that the successful operation of the trading account by Lehman Bros. was dependent upon services rendered by Brown Harriman & Co. in connection with the operation of the trading account. Is that what you mean?

Mr. HANCOCK. No.

Mr. O'CONNELL. What services were rendered?

Mr. HANCOCK. There were services rendered by two people which were merged and agreed to be paid for in the division.

¹ Mr. Hancock, under date of February 10, 1940, submitted the information requested. See appendix, p. 13008, paragraph numbered 4.

² The reference is to Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. See p. 12374, infra.

Mr. O'CONNELL. You are talking about the origination of the business now.

Mr. HANCOCK. No. This particular business with Brown Harriman¹ involved a sharing of Stock Exchange commissions, the purchase of securities by the Aviation Corporation on the New York Stock Exchange—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Now, that was Lehman Bros.' business. How did Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. figure in it?

Mr. HANCOCK. That wasn't Lehman Bros.' business. They didn't think so, certainly. Both had an interest in the original interest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Since the question has arisen, how did you receive your instructions to enter into the transaction; from whom?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As far as your recollection serves at the present time, precisely what did Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. do in connection with this transaction? What were the physical labors performed; the mechanical services rendered? Do you know?

Mr. HANCOCK. I can't speak with certainty on this particular case. I speak only of the general practice, the general procedure that applied to all cases.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does Mr. Gibbs, your associate, know?

Mr. EDWIN GIBBS (Lehman Bros.). No—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Give your answer to Mr. Hancock and off the record. Let me ask you a formal question. Do you accept as being your answer the answer that Mr. Dean has furnished you and Mr. Gibbs?

Mr. HANCOCK. I haven't given you the answer yet.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You are about to give it.

Mr. HANCOCK. I am not going to give you the answer Mr. Dean gave me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Fine. It will be your own information?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Don't take offense.

Mr. HANCOCK. I'm not taking offense.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Proceed, Mr. Hancock.

(The question was read: "Precisely what did Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. do in connection with this transaction? What were the physical labors performed, the mechanical services rendered? Do you know?")

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't know. I'll be glad to get all the facts about it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And submit it later?

Mr. HANCOCK. I can answer in a general line, however, that will cover all this kind of cases.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like to proceed to the particulars and then give you an opportunity, if you will, to send the committee a memorandum on the general practice. Let me go over once again certain testimony you have given. You have testified that Lehman Brothers shared commissions with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in connection with the purchases of 3½ percent sinking fund debentures of 1952 for the account of Tidewater Associated Oil Co. That was a transaction which took place in 1938. Was that a joint account between Lehman Brothers and Kuhn, Loeb or was Kuhn, Loeb the manager alone? I am referring to the original offering.

Mr. HANCOCK. In the original offering we were—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Joint managers?

¹ See footnote 2, preceding page.

Mr. HANCOCK. Joint managers. As I explained, however, they were on the bonds and we on the stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right. Now, what work in connection with the purchases of those debentures did Kuhn, Loeb do? Do you know?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't as a matter of fact; no. It is a general practice, though, that—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Let me just—excuse me, sir; I want to afford you every opportunity to complete your testimony, but it is necessary for my purposes that this record be complete in all respects, and so, if I interrupt, it is only because I want the record to show a logical sequence. Now, what did Lehman Brothers do in connection with this transaction?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you will furnish the answer to that question?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you also have very graciously agreed to make available a memorandum to the committee on the general practice.

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Very well.¹

LIFE OF MEMORANDUM OF 1926

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Sachs, may I turn to you for a moment? This document,² the agreement of January 5, 1926, which we have been discussing, which Mr. Hancock has been giving testimony about likewise, was considered so vital to the interests of your respective firms that you requested advice of counsel as to its form, did you not?

Mr. SACHS. I have no doubt it was submitted to counsel; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know the name of counsel?

Mr. SACHS. Our counsel was Sullivan and Cromwell.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not this agreement remain operative until February 6, 1936?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I should say that on February 6, 1936, or thereabouts, there was an exchange of letters between Lehman Brothers and Goldman Sachs & Co. which certainly put into the discard this memorandum; there had been differences of opinion that had arisen before that date of February 6.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But actually the treaty was operative up until that date, in terms of identifying it.

Mr. SACHS. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. During this decade, am I correct in understanding that only one provision was modified; namely, clause 7 dealing with trading accounts?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; there was a letter, an exchange of letters.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter which purports to have been written by Mr. Waddill Catchings to Mr. Philip Lehman, dated January 26, 1927, and ask you to examine this document and tell me whether or not it is a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; it is.

¹ Mr. Hancock, under date of February 16, 1940, submitted the information requested. See appendix, p. 13008, paragraphs numbered 4 and 5.

² "Exhibit No. 1783."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine it, Mr. Hancock, and tell me whether you find that to be a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document, Mr. Chairman, is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman HENDERSON. The document, having been identified, may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1788" and is included in the appendix on p. 12720.)

HANDLING FINANCING UNDER THE MEMORANDUM OF 1923

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, I now show you letters on four cases which illustrate the manner in which the two firms handled specific pieces of financing under the agreement. Will you examine the following exhibits, which I propose to offer in evidence, and tell me whether you recognize them to be true and correct copies of originals in your possession and custody? One refers to Gimbel Brothers, another to May Department Stores, a third to B. F. Goodrich Co., and the last to Pillsbury Flour Mills.

Will the record show that these are but seven exhibits, referring to four cases, of a number of other letters which are not being offered?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir; I recognize those letters.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, sir. Mr. Chairman, may I offer in evidence the documents just identified by the witness?

Acting Chairman HENDERSON. Do you wish them inserted in the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like them printed, sir.

Acting Chairman HENDERSON. The documents, having been identified, may be received and printed in the record.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1789 to 1795" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12720-12724.)

Acting Chairman HENDERSON. We will recess until 2:30.

(Whereupon, at 12:15 p. m. the committee recessed until 2:30 p. m. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

The hearing was resumed at 2:30 p. m. upon the expiration of the recess.

Acting Chairman HENDERSON. The committee will be in order.

TESTIMONY OF WALTER E. SACHS, GOLDMAN, SACHS & CO., NEW YORK CITY; JOHN M. HANCOCK, LEHMAN BROS, NEW YORK CITY—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, I wonder if you wouldn't care to correct the record. In the course of your testimony this morning you referred to Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. as Brown Harriman & Co.¹ Would you like to indicate that you had in mind Brown Brothers Harriman & Co.?

Mr. HANCOCK. Right, I would.

¹ Supra, pp. 12371-12372.

STOCKHOLDER AND OFFICER PARTICIPATION IN TRADING ACCOUNTS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, you recall this morning that we were speaking of trading accounts. Under article 7 of the agreement¹ it is possible, is it not, for a trading account to be formed in association with any of the listed corporations, or any official of such corporations. That is correct, is it not, sir?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall whether or not such trading accounts have been formed with officials of any of the listed corporations in the past?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; I do. I can specifically recall in connection with, for instance, the May Department Stores Co; I think that is one.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall who the individuals were?

Mr. SACHS. My recollection is they were the wives of some of the principals. I am not certain of that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does this refresh you: Mrs. Rosa May and Mrs. Florence G. May, each of whom had a 25-percent participation?

Mr. SACHS. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact that in connection with trading accounts of Cluett, Peabody & Co., E. H. Benson and associates had a 50-percent participation and D. G. Cluett and associates also had a 50-percent participation?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in connection with a trading account of Continental Can Co., Carle Conway, Charles Rich, and J. Horace Harding each had a 20-percent participation.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; but J. Horace Harding was not an official of the company. He was a partner of C. D. Barney & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But Carle Conway and Mr. Rich were officials.

Mr. SACHS. Carle Conway was. I don't think Rich was. Carle Conway definitely was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in the case of the May Department Stores Co., as you have indicated, the two individuals previously mentioned had participations. Do you recall whether in the Munsing Wear, Inc., any individuals had participations in the trading account?

Mr. SACHS. I don't recall.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would this refresh your memory—a Mr. F. M. Stowell?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; he was the president of the company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. His participation was equal, was it not, to 25 percent?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I don't recall; but I accept your figure.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in the case of Sears, Roebuck & Co. do you recall whether or not the Employees' Profit Sharing Fund of Sears Roebuck had a 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ -percent participation?

Mr. SACHS. I do recall they had a participation and I accept that percent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in the case of Spear & Co., is it not a fact that Nathaniel Spear had a 25-percent participation?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1783," appendix, p. 12718.

Mr. SACHS. I don't recall that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By the way who is Nathaniel Spear?

Mr. HANCOCK. He was the head, principal stockholder, and the president.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you have any information that would confirm that statement?

Mr. HANCOCK. It was a trading account, No. 2, so-called in our books, March 21, 1935.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was the percentage of participation? The same as that which I mentioned, 25 percent.

Mr. HANCOCK. Twenty-five percent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in the case of the Studebaker Corporation, Mr. Sachs, do you recall whether Mr. Erskine, Mr. F. S. Fiske, and Mr. James Studebaker, 3d, had participations in the trading account?

Mr. SACHS. Mr. Frederick Fish—I recall that was subject to confirmation; I don't know that specifically.

STOCKHOLDER AND OFFICER PARTICIPATION IN UNDERWRITING SYNDICATE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, is it not also true, Mr. Sachs, that individuals from time to time have been given positions in the purchase group of originations brought out by Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros., pursuant to the terms of the treaty?

Mr. SACHS. Well, there have been instances of that sort; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And would not one of the purposes of giving an individual who might perhaps have been an officer of the company whose security was being brought out an opportunity to participate in the purchase group—would not the purpose have been to cement relationships between the firms and such company?

Mr. SACHS. Well, not necessarily. These very individuals were, of course, selling their own—a portion of their own—interest in these companies, and then if they wanted to participate—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't it rather unusual to have an officer of a company take a position in a purchase group?

Mr. SACHS. Well, in those days it occurred from time to time; it wasn't universal at all; it wasn't, perhaps, frequent, but it did occur.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you in conjunction with Lehman Bros. bring out an issue for the Cuyamel Fruit Co. in 1920?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was not Mr. S. Zemurray given the largest single participation in the purchase group?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I don't recall.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter from Lehman Brothers addressed to your firm, among others, containing the statement I just made. I ask you to examine this letter and tell me whether or not it doesn't refresh your recollection. Does that refresh your recollection, Mr. Sachs?

Mr. SACHS. Yes. Of course, this company at the time was a privately owned company and I take it Mr. Zemurray was by far the chief stockholder. That is my recollection of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, will you, while you have the letter in your hand, tell me the amount of the participation taken by Mr. Zemurray?

Mr. SACHS. $1,000,000 out of the $5,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that was the largest individual participation of any taken by the group?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, who was Mr. Zemurray and what was his official position?

Mr. SACHS. He was the president and chief stockholder of the Cuyamel Fruit Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a matter of fact that participation offered to Mr. Zemurray at that time involved Mr. Zemurray in no risk whatsoever; is not that correct?

Mr. SACHS. As to that I would have to refresh my memory on the terms of the—I should think he took his share of the risks involved in the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How could he when he was a member of the purchase group and you had subsequent groups organized thereunder who were going to take on the various commitments?

Mr. SACHS. Well, we might not have been able to form those selling groups; it might have been incumbent on this group of two, four, six, eight people to take up their share of the bonds, all or such part as was not syndicated.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall in this particular case that the deal was syndicated?

Mr. SACHS. I believe it was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Therefore, do you care to withdraw your previous statement that Mr. Zemurray did not assume any risk whatsoever?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I should suppose that the purchase group was formed first and the selling group afterwards.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Right; and the purchase group received a profit on the transaction when it passed the deal on to the banking group, did it not?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; but I say it might not have been able to form the banking group.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But in this case it did?

Mr. SACHS. It was successful; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, what is the relation between the Cuyamel Company and the United Fruit Co.?

Mr. SACHS. Oh, subsequently the United Fruit Co. purchased the Cuyamel Fruit Co. That was sometime after.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And is it not a fact that one of the benefits to be derived by a banking house in permitting an officer of the company for whose securities underwriting is being done to share in the purchase group, as Mr. Zemurray did, is to solidify and cement good relations with that company?

Mr. SACHS. There might have been various reasons. I mean it might have been a question of the distribution of the risks. That is possible.

(Representative Williams assumed the Chair.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You identify this letter as a true and correct copy?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter is offered in evidence.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit 1796" and is included in appendix on p. 12724.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, do you recall bringing out an offering for the Pet Milk Co. in 1928 in which your firm and Lehman Brothers each had equal interest?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall who your other associates in the purchase group were?

Mr. SACHS. I don't recollect of my own memory, but my memory has been refreshed that Mr. J. S. Alexander and associates were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you tell me who J. S. Alexander and associates are, or were?

Mr. SACHS. J. S. Alexander at that time was president of the National Bank of Commerce, and the associates I suppose were some of the other officials in that bank. My recollection, I now remember, is that that business was brought to us through one of the vice presidents of the bank, Mr. Rovensky.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was not Mr. John Rovensky also a member of the purchase group?

Mr. SACHS. I believe he was; I think through one of the associates. He may have been independent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. He acted as an independent.

Mr. SACHS. So he did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that the participations in that group were Goldman, Sachs, 33 $\frac{1}{3}$; Lehman Brothers, 33 $\frac{1}{3}$; J. S. Alexander and associates, 16 $\frac{2}{3}$; and John Rovensky, 16 $\frac{2}{3}$. Now, may I ask you with reference to John Rovensky, will you tell me once again who he was?

Mr. SACHS. He was at that time a vice president of the National Bank of Commerce.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did Mr. Rovensky take that 16 $\frac{2}{3}$ percent participation for himself or was he acting for the bank?

Mr. SACHS. That I can't say; I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have no knowledge at all?

Mr. SACHS. I certainly don't recall.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it be fair for me to assume that it is most unlikely that Mr. John Rovensky could have taken 16 $\frac{2}{3}$ -percent participation in an underwriting syndicate?

Mr. SACHS. I don't know what his question of wealth was at that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So you would not care to say.

Mr. SACHS. I believe that Mr. Alexander was reputed to be a wealthy man. I don't recall, that is so many years ago.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't think I would be justified in stating at this time that Mr. John Rovensky could not conceivably have taken that 16 $\frac{2}{3}$ participation for himself individually and that he must have been acting for the bank?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I can't say positively of my own knowledge. I wish I could, I would be glad to answer it.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Nehemkis, what was the nature of the underwriting, was it bonds or stocks?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think probably we had better ask Mr. Sachs.

Mr. SACHS. It was a common-stock issue.

Mr. MILLER. Would a bank be apt to underwrite a common stock?

Mr. SACHS. This was done by the individuals.

Mr. MILLER. What was the dollar value involved in the 16½ percent?

Mr. SACHS. Not very large. It was a relatively small issue.

Mr. HANCOCK. Roughly a million and half.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. There were 55,161 shares without par value, $33 share.

Mr. SACHS. Sixteen percent was about $300,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. About that.

Mr. SACHS. Sixteen percent was about $300,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were you through, Mr. Miller?

Mr. MILLER. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine this letter and tell me whether you recognize it is to be a true and correct copy of the original in your possession?

Mr. SACHS. I don't see the final page of the letter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You see the caption, Goldman, Sachs & Co.

Mr. SACHS. Oh, yes; it is our letterhead, and I have no question about it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think the legend we used probably has fallen off.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter, Mr. Chairman, is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit 1797" and is included in the appendix on p. 12725.)

(Discussion off the record between Mr. Hancock and Mr. Nehemkis.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like Mr. Hancock to make a statement for the record.

Mr. HANCOCK. I think it might help to an understanding of the whole facts in connection with the Cuyamel Fruit Co. testimony and the interest of Mr. Zemurray of $1,000,000 in the largest single participation in the account. I think it would help if it were understood that Mr. Zemurray took no profits out of that; that he showed his good faith in the value of the securities underwritten by him without expectation of profit. It was done on his part, as I believe, to convince the banking firm that the security was good and in fact had his personal guaranty of a million dollars expressed in that form.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do I understand correctly, Mr. Hancock, that Mr. Zemurray took no profit comparable to that taken by the other bankers?

Mr. HANCOCK. He took no profit in the group; the 1¾ percent on his share was divided among the remainder of the group.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was your statement predicated upon some documentation that you have in your possession?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir; and memory, too.

ABROGATION OF MEMORANDUM OF 1926 IN 1936

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, you have previously testified¹ before the recess that the treaty of January 5, 1926, remained operative until February 1936.

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

¹ Supra, p. 12373.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, on February 6, 1936, did not Lehman Brothers declare the treaty of 1926 without force and effect and no longer binding upon the signatories thereto.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct; they wrote us a letter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter from Lehman Brothers to Goldman, Sachs dated February 6, 1936, and ask you to tell me whether or not that is a true and correct copy of the original in your possession.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; that is. It is a true copy of a copy of a letter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Subject to that correction.

Mr. Hancock, will you examine that letter and tell me whether you recognize that to be a true and correct copy of an original in the files of Lehman Brothers?

Mr. HANCOCK. This is a true and correct copy of a carbon copy in the files of Lehman Brothers. I am sorry to be captious; I hope it didn't appear so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I might ask what happened to the original.

Mr. SACHS. We have it.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1798" and is included in the appendix on p. 12726.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, was not the reason for Lehman Bros' abrogation of the treaty the fact that Lehman Bros. regarded Goldman, Sachs had breached the spirit of the terms of the treaty?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The particular instances of the violation of the terms of the treaty, according to Lehman Bros., were the financing plans of Goldman, Sachs with respect to Brown Shoe Co., National Dairy Products Corporation, and Endicott Johnson Corporation. Is that correct?

Mr. HANCOCK. That is correct, as I recall them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I want to read to you, Mr. Hancock, from the letter of February 6, 1936, now in evidence [reading from "Exhibit No. 1798"]:

As of October 26, 1925, and January 5, 1926, you and we agreed to memoranda setting forth a mutual understanding that appeared to both of us equitable and satisfactory. Briefly and generally stated, these memoranda outlined the arrangements as they related to both of us and our equal participation in future financing for a list of corporations. The list embraced those corporations with which our two firms had a relationship over a great many years.

We believe we have proceeded completely in accordance with these memoranda and their spirit. The recent instances of the financing plans for Brown Shoe, National Dairy, and Endicott Johnson indicate clearly that you have not felt bound by your agreement with us, in spite of the fact that no notice has as yet been given us of the termination of the arrangement to which both firms were parties.

In view of the situation, we see no alternative for us but to inform you that inasmuch as the arrangement has not been controlling upon you for some time, we cannot accept any longer any commitments inherent within our written arrangements which we have always assumed as controlling upon us.

Mr. Hancock, just what had Goldman, Sachs proposed in these financing plans which caused Lehman Bros. to accuse Goldman, Sachs of having breached the arrangement?

Mr. HANCOCK. I suppose an unequal division of a new factor in security underwriting called the management fee.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, Goldman, Sachs wanted to charge a management fee.

Mr. HANCOCK. It was determined——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Also, Goldman, Sachs in a number of issues wanted to act as sole manager.

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Goldman, Sachs wanted the real privilege of handling the syndicate books.

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Goldman, Sachs wanted a relatively larger underwriting for themselves. Does that summarize the casus belli, shall I say?

Mr. HANCOCK. I think so. They might not all have been pertinent to any one case, but they were the kind of difficulties that were arising in the situation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just like sovereign powers, there is never one specific incident, but a concatenation of events?

Mr. HANCOCK. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Lehman Bros. was opposed to the idea of the management fee on the grounds that there was neither principle nor precedent for such a fee in the past relations between the two houses?

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

ORIGIN OF THE MANAGEMENT FEE

Mr. HENDERSON. Could I ask a question there? This is for my own information. Do you know when the management fee first got into the underwriting?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir; it came in with the law of 1933, the Securities Act of 1933.

Mr. HENDERSON. There had been management fees charged before that. What I am trying to get is the historical background.

Mr. HANCOCK. No, not quite; it was conceivable that there were, but it was a different kind of situation. I would like to have counsel state the question, and maybe I can explain it in laymen's terms.

That provision came into the law in an effort to safeguard the provision to prevent an underwriting firm with capital from creating a dummy corporation to do the underwriting under which the real corporation, the real firm, would be getting all the profits and the liabilities would be put, under the Securities Act, upon the dummy. The management fee came in as a part of that protective device.

Mr. HENDERSON. I am talking historically. What underwriting house first instituted it? It was before 1933 because last week or the week before last the question of management fee came up in connection with A. T. & T. financing, and Morgan instituted it somewhere in the twenties, 1928, wasn't it? I am wondering, to the best of your knowledge, if it antedated that. Do you recall?

Mr. HANCOCK. I have no doubt there were cases, but it wasn't a general practice.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In those days, Mr. Hancock, there used to be something that was called by the business "over-writing fee" that occasionally made itself known.

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But it would perhaps be correct to say that the term as we now use it, "management fee," is perhaps more clearly associated with contemporaneous financing than with financings that took place in an earlier period, and that is largely due to the change in the nature of syndication which has arisen as a result of the 1933 act.

Mr. HANCOCK. That is right.

(Senator King assumed the Chair.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It was Goldman, Sachs' position, was it not, Mr. Sachs, that in essence, since the Goldman, Sachs accounts were at that time the only ones which were very active, your firm had the right to charge a management fee for itself and not share this with Lehman Bros.?

Mr. SACHS. Well, our theory of charging a management fee was just this, that under the Securities Act the nature of doing business was changed, the amount of preliminary work that had to be done in connection with being helpful in the preparation of registration, statements, and these long prospectuses and what not, was such that that required a special amount of work that under ordinary instances it was simpler and more effective for one house to do, and therefore we felt that if that work was done it ought to be compensated. My recollection is quite clear that that question of management fee and this question of compensation because of the Securities Act came up first in the instance with Brown Shoe Co. financing that you mentioned, and that was in 1935, and if I might answer Mr. Henderson's question, according to my best recollection the whole question of the management fee had become alive and active just prior to 1935, back in 1934, perhaps early in 1934, I don't remember exactly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, I should like to show you five letters which I ask you to examine and identify and tell me whether they are true and correct copies of originals. I don't intend to examine you on the contents of those letters, Mr. Sachs, but I want to offer them for the record.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir: I recognize them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I ask that these letters be admitted in evidence and that they be spread on the records of the committee. Acting Chairman KING. What is the object?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The relevancy of the letters? They show various discussions that were taking place on the questions that I have put to the witnesses and are the foundation for subsequent testimony that I will elicit and tie up at a later time.

Acting Chairman KING. I suppose they are offered for the purpose of showing the character of business conducted, and the conclusions to be drawn therefrom would be for the committee.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. And you are making no contention that these transactions to which you refer are violations of the Sherman antitrust law or Securities Act?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, you know me better than that. I never make allegations of that sort.

Acting Chairman KING. I just wanted to probe a little and ascertain what the relevancy of this testimony was. Of course, as a mere fishing expedition it is unimportant, but if it has some relation to the transaction—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). You have my word for it that the evidence will be tied up before this hearing is concluded.

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed. The letters may be received.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibit Nos. 1799 to 1803," and are included in the appendix on pp. —.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, turning to the financing of Endicott-Johnson Corporation, did you not proceed and form a syndicate without Lehman Bros. after they had declined to participate in the underwriting?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter from H. S. Bowers to Mr. George W. Johnson, dated January 31, 1936. Will you tell me whether this is a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. SACHS. We have the copy of this letter in our possession; yes. This is a photostat of the copy of the letter that was sent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I should like to read the first sentence of the second paragraph of this letter [reading from "Exhibit No. 1804"]:

It is the custom for the house leading such a business privately to sound out by word of mouth important possible underwriters well ahead of the actual signing of the contract.

By "contract" was meant here, I take, the contract between the underwriters and the company?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

ATTITUDE TOWARD MORGAN STANLEY & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I continue with that letter:

We therefore approached Morgan, Stanley & Co.—this is the investment security end of J. P. Morgan & Co. . . .

Acting Chairman KING. What is the date of that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. January 31, 1938. I offer the letter in evidence.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1804" and is included in the appendix on p. 12729.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I should say that Mr. Bowers, in accordance with the previous testimony before this committee, was not alone in that understanding.

Mr. SACHS. I would not, if I may be permitted to say so, take that remark, which was in a conversational letter, too seriously. I don't think Mr. Bowers would write that today. Morgan Stanley had been formed, it was the same name, and in writing to Mr. Johnson in a very informal manner he may have made that remark, and I feel confident he wouldn't say that today.

Mr. HENDERSON. Does that mean you would not say it?

Mr. SACHS. I don't believe it, and I don't believe Mr. Bowers believes it.

Mr. HENDERSON. You don't believe Morgan Stanley is the investment end of the Morgan business?

Mr. SACHS. No, sir; I do not.

Mr. HENDERSON. How about you, Mr. Hancock? Do you want to be heard?

Mr. HANCOCK. I have no desire to be heard.

Acting Chairman KING. They can hardly be called upon as character witnesses as to which is the better of the members of that firm or any other firm.

Mr. HENDERSON. No; but, Mr. Chairman, last week, or the week before, the evidence at this hearing showed that at one time there were certain partners and certain capital in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. Following the formation of Morgan Stanley & Co., what seemed to have happened was a division between partners and capital, and running throughout the various items of evidence that the part of people in the same business that Morgan Stanley & Co. is—perhaps not in a legal, contractual relationship—the investment end of the Morgan business.

Mr. SACHS. I think the "Street" felt at the time, and feels today, that certain individuals decided to go into the investment banking business, certain individuals who had been connected with J. P. Morgan, rather than to remain with them, but that the two things were entirely separated. It followed perfectly naturally that some of these individuals had certain personal contacts and were able to build up a business for Morgan Stanley & Co. as members of that organization.

Acting Chairman KING. My observation was directed to the question of whether this committee should determine or ask you to pass upon the qualifications or the moral turpitude of one firm or another.

Mr. SACHS. I have no definite—

Acting Chairman KING (interposing). It wasn't our business to do that.

Mr. HENDERSON. I wasn't asking a moral question. Mr. Sachs and Mr. Hancock are still in the same business of people similarly situated, and partners in other great houses have chosen in their private and public expressions to indicate that, and I was just giving them an opportunity to comment if they wanted to. It is evident Mr. Hancock doesn't want to.

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't want to be dragged into the conversation. I didn't write the letter.

Mr. SACHS. The point I want to make, Mr. Chairman, is this remark in this letter written many years ago was a conversational letter and was not considered a particularly important or well-thought-out remark, nor was it intended to be a statement of fact.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think we will assume all of this, Mr. Sachs, and had Mr. Bowers known that in 1939 this letter was to be used for this purpose he wouldn't have written it.

I want to show you a letter dated February 7, 1936, from Goldman, Sachs & Co., to Messrs. Lehman Bros., in reply to the notice of termination of the treaty. Would you be good enough to examine this and identify it for me so I may offer it in evidence?

Mr. SACHS. Mr. Nehemkis, may I make one observation in regard to a letter that was put into the record a little while ago? There was a letter¹ put into the record which I wrote to our manager in St. Louis regarding the Brown Shoe Co. business, in which I said Mr. Horton, who was associated with us, was spending a day or a day and a half in St. Louis. I didn't want to create the impression that that was all the work that was involved in connection with the preparation of registration statements, and so forth, and therefore the earning of the management fee. There was a great deal more than the spending of a day or two in a foreign city.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1801."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Having once had the pleasure of being an associate of Mr. Horton, I know that is impossible.

Mr. SACHS (examining letter). Yes; this is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may I offer in evidence the letter identified by the witness?

Acting Chairman KING. You want it printed in the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1805" and is included in the appendix on p. 12730.)

RELATIONS AFTER THE ABROGATION IN 1936

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, did not some of the companies covered by the agreement in 1926 issue securities after the agreement had been abrogated in 1936?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. For example, there were security flotations by Continental Can Co. in 1936 and 1937.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And by the B. F. Goodrich Co. in 1936.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And by Sears, Roebuck & Co. in 1937.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By Cluett, Peabody in 1937.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By General Foods Corporation in 1937.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And by R. H. Macy in 1937?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I can't—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Mr. Hancock?

Mr. HANCOCK. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not Goldman, Sachs manage the issues of Continental Can?

Mr. SACHS. They did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Goodrich?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Sears, Roebuck?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Cluett, Peabody?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not Lehman Bros. manage the issue of R. H. Macy & Co.?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I summarize, subject to your correction, the situation with regard to the financing of Continental Can Co.? In the five pieces of financing involving common and preferred stock between 1912 and 1936, Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. shared equally in the leadership and in the public offerings. In May of 1936 Continental Can Co. offered $10,000,000 of common stock to its stockholders and the offering was underwritten by a syndicate headed by Goldman, Sachs & Co. Goldman, Sachs were managers of this issue, but Lehman Bros. did not have a position as co-managers, is that substantially correct, sir?

Mr. SACHS. You made the statement there was an equal participation in five pieces of business. I don't think that is correct. There was an equal participation in probably the first three, and then subsequently we managed the business and received a management fee.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On the last two pieces of business?

Mr. SACHS. On the latter two, according to my recollection.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, when Continental Can Corporation issued 20,000,000 of cumulative preferred stock in 1937, did not Lehman Bros. refuse to accept the participation offered by Goldman, Sachs?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This was because Lehman Bros. had not been offered co-managership and a participation equal to that taken by Goldman, Sachs?

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct, largely that. I wouldn't say that tells the whole story.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that for the first time in a quarter of a century of close personal relationship with this company, Lehman Bros. was no longer able to participate in its financing. That is a simple statement.

Mr. HANCOCK. No, your last two or three words—"was no longer able to." We did not participate, I agree. I don't want to get in an argument about the wording.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will correct that: so that for the first time in a quarter of a century Lehman Bros. did not participate in that financing.

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct, so far as I know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, I show you three letters dated September 20, 1937, September 29, 1937, and October 4, 1937, correspondence between yourself and Mr. Huffman, and Mr. Philip Lehman and Mr. Huffman. Will you be good enough to examine these letters and tell me whether they are true and correct copies of originals in your possession?

THE NATIONAL SCOPE OF INVESTMENT BANKING

Acting Chairman KING. While the witness is examining those proposed exhibits, I would like to ask Mr. Sachs a question, whether by and large during the past quarter of a century there have been different houses or corporations or partnerships or organizations to whom persons seeking capital have gone, in Chicago, New York, San Francisco, or other important industrial or financial sections, for the sale of their securities or for the obtaining of capital with which to expand their business activities or to launch new activities?

Mr. SACHS. Certainly; many. I might point out that although (I am sure Mr. Hancock would agree) both Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lehman Brothers were important banking houses and are important banking houses of large capital, nevertheless their combined capital was only a small part of the underwriting capital available in the country, not only in New York City but in Chicago and Boston and some other centers. Does that answer your question?

Acting Chairman KING. I think so. And if they accepted as a client a man who was trying to obtain finances to launch a mining company in Utah or Nevada or in the West, or a manufacturing company in St. Louis, they would then have to unload—I don't use that term opprobriously—but they would have to find markets for the securities in various parts of the United States.

Mr. SACHS. They would have to go to—or would go to—some investment banking house whom they knew as people of standing and who were accustomed to make original issues of securities. They were perfectly free, of course, to go to any one of a number of people.

Acting Chairman KING. Those investment houses, whether Lehman or Goldman, Sachs, would open up channels through which they might dispose of securities to various persons throughout the United States who had money to invest in securities or reputable organizations.

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir; we were essentially merchants of securities; in other words, according to the nature of the particular security that we underwrite, we have the channels, which may be partly through private investors, partly through what are known as investment dealers throughout the country, institutional buyers—we have the channels through whom we can market these securities we originate.

Acting Chairman KING. I have in mind the fact that years ago, when I was a lawyer, I represented an organization that wanted funds with which to develop a property. Funds were not available in the immediate vicinity, and representatives of the corporation came East because it was believed there were in New York or Chicago banking or investment companies who would, through the channels that were open to them, find markets for those securities. Now, has that been the custom for many years for organizations, new organizations, or those which have been in existence for some time and desired to expand their business, to approach these various business houses and banking houses and investment companies for the purpose of obtaining capital with which to prosecute their activities?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir; I just believe that in any country there must of necessity be money centers; one, or two, or perhaps three. That is true all over the world; it is the natural place where these investment bankers make their headquarters. If they are to do national business—and we know it to be a fact that while very small pieces of financing may be done locally in some smaller cities, pieces of financing that are of national size, of national importance—they naturally drift to the money centers like Chicago and New York, and that is where the investment banker establishes his main office.

Acting Chairman KING. Have you discovered in your business activities that from various parts of the United States, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, from the Canadian border to the Gulf, persons who would have some surplus funds in remote parts of the United States would send those funds or make them available to the banking and investment houses in Chicago or Denver—I remember in Denver we had an investment company, Rollins & Co., that took many of our securities from Utah—hoping or expecting to obtain from those investment and banking houses funds with which to prosecute their business and find the market for the surplus funds which they who had them desired?

Mr. SACHS. Except the business is done, perhaps, just a little differently. The funds that are available for investment in Denver or Kansas City or Sioux City, or wherever it may be, are made available through the local investment dealer, and the New York or the Chicago house forms these large selling groups. We sometimes have as many as three or four, perhaps five or six or seven hundred dealers who become members of this selling group and who then sell to their individual customers in their particular territory.

Acting Chairman KING. All parts of the United States?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think the last two big issues in the S. E. C. have had anywhere from 60 to 100 different distributors. The last one had upwards of 90, if I recall.

Acting Chairman KING. The point I am trying to make is that—

Mr. SACHS. May I just reply to that? Are you referring, Mr. Henderson, to underwriters?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes.

Mr. SACHS. I was speaking of underwriters, but underneath that this selling group which is a very much larger group ordinarily.

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes.

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed.

UNDERWRITING GROUP FOR CONTINENTAL CAN CO. FINANCING

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These documents identified by Mr. Hancock are offered.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibit Nos. 1806 to 1808" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12730-12732.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, at the time of the offering of Continental Can's securities to which reference has been made, in 1936 and 1937 was not your partner, Mr. Weinberg, a director of Continental Can Co.?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; he was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Among other things Mr. Weinberg was a director of the company by virtue of Goldman, Sachs' long public sponsorship of the issues of that company, was he not?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now when Mr. Weinberg became a director of Continental Can Co. it was presumably intended that he would take an active interest in the affairs of that company?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that his interest would attach to all matters of corporate policy and not merely to matters of prospective financing?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now shortly before the time this issue was offered do you recall, Mr. Sachs, whether or not Goldman Sachs & Co. was interested in the possible financing by Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation of an offering which was managed subsequently by the Mellon Securities Corporation?

Mr. SACHS. We were associate underwriters; we were offered a participation as an associate underwriter in that business; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, is it not a fact that Mr. Weinberg used his position as a director of Continental Can Co. to bring pressure on Jones & Laughlin to have Goldman, Sachs included in that financing?

Mr. SACHS. He may very likely have said to Carle Conway, "You know the Jones & Laughlin people, and we will see whether we can't have a participation in that attractive business." I don't recall the exact circumstances, but that may have very likely occurred.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I should like to offer in evidence a letter from Mr. C. L. Austin, Vice President of the Mellon Securities Corporation, Pittsburgh, Pa., and then when you have admitted it, if you will, may I read from it?

Acting CHAIRMAN KING. Who is Austin?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Vice President of the Mellon Securities Co.

Acting CHAIRMAN KING. It may be received.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1809" and is included in the appendix on p. 12733.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read to you, Mr. Sachs, from a diary entry made by Mr. C. L. Austin, dated January 11, 1936.

Mr. SACHS. Who is Mr. Austin?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Vice President of the Mellon Securities Corporation. He used to be with E. B. Smith.

Mr. SACHS. I know him personally.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading from "Exhibit No. 1809"]:

Mr. Hackett spoke to me yesterday about pressure being exerted on them on the part of Continental Can on the inclusion of Goldman, Sachs & Co. Goldman, Sachs & Co. has a director on the Board of Continental Can. Continental Can, of course, is an important customer of Jones and Laughlin.

Now was not Goldman, Sachs included in the Jones & Laughlin 1936 offering of \$30,000,000 $4\frac{1}{4}$ s of '61?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

FINANCING BY GENERAL FOODS CORPORATION, 1938

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On May 4, of 1938, did not General Foods Corporation issue $15,150,000, $4.50 cumulative preferred stock?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. During the latter part of 1937 did not Goldman, Sachs discuss possible financing with Mr. C. M. Chester, chairman of the board? Do you recall that?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And had you not requested the managership for the proposed offering?

Mr. SACHS. Oh, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, is it not a fact that Lehman Bros. also wanted the position of co-managership?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter from Mr. Robert Lehman to Mr. C. M. Chester dated December 22, 1937. Be good enough to examine this and tell me whether this is a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. HANCOCK. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This is a letter¹ from Mr. Robert Lehman, whose place Mr. Hancock is taking this afternoon, to Mr. C. M. Chester:

Dear Clare: I want to tell you that I deeply appreciate the very fair way in which you handled the matter we discussed today. As I told you, I feel that the suggestion which you made is thoroughly satisfactory to me and my firm.

¹ Included in the appendix, p. 13014.

In order that there may be no misunderstanding as to what should be considered "an equal basis," I am giving you the following notes which cover the more important points so that you may have them before you.

Your suggestion that G. S. & Co. should handle the business in their office is entirely satisfactory to me, although, of course, I consider that that is a real privilege.

And now Mr. Lehman lists the points as follows:

1. Both firms to share equally in the profits and to take the same commitment. Any step-up to be shared equally by both firms.
2. Both firms to be syndicate managers and both signatures to appear on all syndicate and selling group letters and letters of confirmation.
3. Both names to appear on the same line in all newspaper advertising and any syndicate, selling groups and other letters. Both names to be included on a parity basis in newspaper publicity as jointly heading the business.
4. Syndicate and selling groups to be formed jointly as to who should be included therein.

Now on or about January 27, 1938, Mr. Hancock, did not the board of directors of General Foods Corporation offer to create a joint management for the proposed security issue?

Mr. HANCOCK. I understood so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, was not this decision transmitted to Goldman, Sachs and to Lehman Bros. on or about February 1, 1938?

Mr. SACHS. I so understood.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you understand, Mr. Sachs, that you, too, received such a proposal?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, the board of directors, Mr. Hancock, of General Foods had decided that Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. were to be joint managers, but that either firm might do the actual work without, however, getting a management fee, and furthermore that if neither firm accepted this offer, "then neither of said firms shall be selected as syndicate manager or as joint syndicate manager." Do you recall that?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, both firms refused this proposal, did they not, Mr. Sachs?

Mr. SACHS. Well, in the first instance, I think.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, your firm refused that?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't recall that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Suppose you consult with Mr. Gibbs.

Mr. HANCOCK. What was the date on that last one?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was February 1, 1938.

Mr. HANCOCK. I will have to verify; my recollection is not clear.²

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, we will put it in later. When the issue was finally offered on May 4, 1938, Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. were joint managers with equal participations, were they not?

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [to Mr. Hancock]. Is that your understanding, sir?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, may I now call your attention to certain letters written by Mr. Weinberg to Mr. Chester, chairman of the board of General Foods Corporation, on February 11, 1938. My associate will show you these two letters. Be good enough, please, to examine them and tell me whether you recognize them as true and correct copies of original letters in your possession and custody? I believe the legend there carries your firm's name.

¹ See letters, February 1, 1938, C. M. Chester to Robert Lehman and to Goldman, Sachs & Co., appendix, p. 12390.

² Mr. Hancock, under date of February 16, 1940, submitted additional information on this point. See appendix, p. 13009, paragraph numbered 6.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I have them, please. These two letters, Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, are offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. You desire them inserted in the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If you will; sir.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1810 and 1811" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12733-12734.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to read, if I may, Mr. Sachs, a paragraph from one of these letters from Mr. Sidney J. Weinberg, your partner, to Mr. Chester [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1810"]:

First, the resolution contemplates that the transaction should be handled by two firms jointly, and this I believe to be fundamentally unsound and inefficient. Under present day conditions, an offering of this kind covers a wide field. There is the negotiation with the company and the determination of the characteristics of the security. There is the registration with the S. E. C., a complex matter. Also, there is the problem of syndication, which calls for expert handling. Experience confirms that this is done best if responsibility and the making of decisions are centered in one firm. The company should be called upon to deal with only one firm in the negotiations; one firm should make the primary and detailed investigation and supervise the preparation of the registration statement and the handling of it with the S. E. C., and one firm can best deal with the intricacies of syndication. The centralization of responsibility is desirable and productive of the best results. If inefficiency and delay, and all the other evils of divided authority and responsibility are to be avoided, joint management must develop into formalism, with one party the real manager; and for many reasons that usually is undesirable.

Now at the time of this financing, Mr. Sachs, was not Mr. Weinberg, a director of General Foods Corporation?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a director was he not under a duty to see that the General Foods Corporation made the best possible arrangements with respect to financing?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, despite the low opinion held by Mr. Weinberg of joint managerships, Goldman, Sachs accepted a joint managership, did it not?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Therefore did not Goldman, Sachs consent to a method of security flotation which Mr. Weinberg was on record as not being in the best interests of the General Foods Corporation?

Mr. SACHS. Well, my answer to that is perfectly simple, Mr. Nehemkis.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will take it any way you want to give it to me, Mr. Sachs.

Mr. SACHS. Mr. Weinberg believed then, and he still believes today, I am sure, as I certainly believe, that the statements made as to efficiency of management are best handled by one firm. In other words, that was our theory then; that is our theory today. In spite of that, in life, as in business, compromises have to be made; General Foods Company apparently didn't—or the officials of the General Foods Co. didn't—agree with that theory. They insisted that the matter be handled in the other way, and it was just a question, therefore, of trying to make some division of the work and dividing the fee, and we sometimes do things, even if we don't think they are the best way of doing it, even if there is no alternative, and that was the basis of our whole theory of why we believed the management fee should not be divided and should go to one house.

Now we had to in this instance, on the insistence of the General Foods officials, make that compromise.

Acting Chairman KING. Let me ask a question there, for my own information. Where an investment or banking company underwrites or floats a considerable number of issues, there must come a time, it would seem to me, if they did not have cooperation with or collaboration with other investment or banking houses, they might have obligations which might be a little too great for them and therefore they would seek cooperation or collaboration of organization with some other investment or banking house?

Mr. SACHS. You mean obligations in underwriting?

Acting Chairman KING. In underwriting.

Mr. SACHS. Well, we always are seeking associates in the underwriting; what I was referring to was the actual work undertaken in preparing an issue for the market. Now, all of us maintain large and expensive organizations for conducting just that work. Unfortunately in the last few years those organizations haven't had as much to do as we would like them to have to do; we have, nevertheless, had to maintain them at great expense to ourselves. I think that is true of most investment-banking houses in recent years.

Acting Chairman KING. It has organizations to prepare the necessary papers to present to the S. E. C.?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; and prepare the whole issue—the registration, the prospectuses, the working with lawyers, the preparation of trust indentures, and all the many things that have to be done to prepare an issue for the market. As I say, I can only hope that the day will come, Senator, where we will find ourselves short-handed; that there would be too many burdens of that sort, but I think we would be very quick then—of course quite seriously—to increase our organization in order to handle it.

Acting Chairman KING. But it isn't an uncommon thing—indeed, experience has justified it, has it not—the cooperation of two or three or four investment or banking houses to handle very large issues of corporate securities?

Mr. SACHS. In the way of finding underwriting associates to spread the financial responsibility, and that, of course, was true in all these instances. In all these instances in which we said that we thought the management fee should be given to one house we were ready to associate with ourselves other underwriters, and certainly Messrs. Lehman Brothers had equal underwriting participations with our own. I mean there was no question about that, and that is quite a different thing from the actual working of managing and preparing the issue for sale.

Acting Chairman KING. I didn't refer to the managing and preparing of the issue for sale, but generally the distribution of the securities throughout the United States, or wherever there was a field in which they would absorb those issues.

Mr. SACHS. Certainly; because any conservative house would naturally limit the amount of its underwriting obligation at any one time in accordance with its own capital.

Dr. LUBIN. May I ask a question? This has a little different bearing but I might for my own enlightenment ask this question: Has it always been customary in the industry for one house to compete one against the other for the right to have its name on the first line?

Mr. SACHS. Well, it is the recognized custom that the leader in the business appears either on the first line alone or on the left side of the first line. That is more or less traditional. I can recall, however, if I may just add, that curiously enough back in 1906 and 1907, when we first did this business, it was the leading house who had its name on the right-hand side on the first line, but that custom changed in subsequent years.

Dr. LUBIN. Evidently the movie stars have good precedent for competing one against the other for their names in the footlights.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In the case of the General Foods Corporation, Mr. Sachs, being a director of the corporation and at the same time a partner in an underwriting firm might have resulted in conflicts of interest, as we have been speaking earlier?

Mr. SACHS. Well, I can't follow you.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But if there had been any conflict of interest in this situation it would appear, would it not, that Mr. Weinberg resolved them in favor of Goldman, Sachs & Co.?

Mr. SACHS. No; I think the facts show that he was of necessity negotiating at arm's length with General Foods Co. and General Foods Co.'s decision prevailed in the matter. He may have thought that the other course was the wiser course, but they made the decision.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Hancock, may I ask you a question? In this particular piece of financing, did your house ever consider the possibility of competing on terms for business and getting it for yourself?

Mr. HANCOCK. You mean and breaking the partnership agreement, so-called partnership agreement, or treaties referred to? Not as far as I know; not during the life of the agreement.

Mr. HENDERSON. Did you try in this particular case to get the exclusive managership?

Mr. HANCOCK. So far as I know we did not; never intimated it, so far as I know.

Mr. HENDERSON. In other words, you suggested if you couldn't get it on a proper basis you would withdraw?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't know; that question never arose in that form in the case of General Foods; as far as I recall it did not. It did arise in other cases.

FINANCING BY NATIONAL DAIRY PRODUCTS CORP., 1936

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which we will come to in a moment.

Mr. Hancock, on or about April 10, 1936, do you recall whether National Dairy Products Corporation floated $63,000,000 of debentures?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir; it did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not Goldman, Sachs the manager of this offering, Mr. Sachs?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Lehman Brothers was not given the joint managership or a position equal to that of Goldman, Sachs?

Mr. SACHS. They did not participate in the management fee, that is correct.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this was true despite the fact that Lehman Brothers had been associated along with Goldman, Sachs as the company's bankers for over a decade?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; I suppose about 10 years.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a matter of fact the two firms were the original bankers responsible for the organization of the company?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now prior to this offering had not Mr. Lehman been a director of the National Dairy Products Corporation, Mr. Hancock?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir; he had been a director.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did he not resign as a director in February of 1936?

Mr. HANCOCK. I know he resigned; I am ready to accept that date; I have forgotten about the time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This was some 3 months prior to the public offering of the company's securities, I believe?

Mr. HANCOCK. I think there was delay on the issue for some reasons I have now forgotten.²

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now was not the motivating reason for Mr. Lehman's resignation from the board of directors the fact that he believed that Goldman, Sachs had violated the agreement of January 5, 1926?

Mr. HANCOCK. That was one of the reasons stated, yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you two letters dated respectively February 18, 1936, and February 21, 1936, which purport to come from the files of Lehman Brothers. Will you be good enough to examine them and tell me whether you recognize them as true copies?

Mr. HANCOCK. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I ask that these be admitted into evidence and spread on the records of the committee.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits No. 1812 and 1813" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12735 and 12736.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read you, Mr. Hancock, from a letter dated February 18, 1936, by Mr. Robert Lehman to Mr. Thomas H. McInnerney, president of the National Dairy Products Corporation (reading from "Exhibit No. 1812"):

About January 9, 1936, Goldman Sachs & Co. advised us that they had arranged with National Dairy Products Corporation that they should receive an overwriting fee—

¹ Mr. Robert V. Horton, of Goldman, Sachs & Co., subsequently offered supplemental information in regard to this point, to the effect that not only did Lehman Brothers not share in the joint managership nor have a position equal to Goldman, Sachs & Co. in the National Dairy financing of 1936, but they did not have any interest at all in that financing.

² Mr. Arthur H. Dean, of Sullivan & Cromwell, counsel to Mr. Hancock, subsequently informed the committee that the convertible debentures of National Dairy Products Corporation were offered in April, 1936 according to schedule and that there was no delay in the offering.

That is another expression for management fee, is it not?

Mr. HANCOCK. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (reading further):

of 3% (about $240,000.) upon the proposed financing, and that we would receive no share in such overwriting fee, but that we would be permitted to participate in the underwriting upon identically the same basis as other investment bankers would be offered participations (except that our name would appear with theirs on the top line of any prospectus and that we would be joint syndicate managers with them). We protested to them that this proposal not only was a clear violation of a written agreement dated January 5, 1926, which existed between Goldman Sachs & Co. and ourselves, but wholly apart from that was an unwarranted attempt to deprive us of the position which we had had over many years as one of the two bankers of the Corporation on a parity with Goldman Sachs & Co.

The agreement provided generally for equal participation, but there was an exception as to National Dairy, in which case my firm was entitled to an interest smaller in amount than Goldman Sachs & Co.'s interest but on the identical basis. In discussing the agreement with Mr. Weinberg on September 13, 1935, Mr. Hancock was told that "the interests will be equal" in any National Dairy financing (though it must be pointed out that this discussion was not embodied in a modification of the agreement, as a general modification was under discussion).

I continue:

We believe that your Corporation will not wish to take the position that the sole question involved is a dispute between Goldman Sachs & Co. and ourselves and a violation by them of their agreement with us, to which National Dairy Products Corporation is not a party.

Now, was not the motivating reason for Mr. Lehman's resignation from the board of directors the fact that he believed that Goldman, Sachs had violated the agreement of January 5, 1926?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

FINANCING BY CLUETT, PEABODY & CO., 1937

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, did not a similar situation arise in connection with the proposed financing of $2,500,000 of common stock in 1937 by Cluett, Peabody & Company? In that case, you recall, Goldman, Sachs won the sole managership.

Mr. HANCOCK. Slightly different set of facts, slightly different conditions, but essentially the same main problem.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In view of the fact that Lehman Brothers had, along with Goldman, Sachs been instrumental in organizing the company, your firm felt that such treatment wasn't justified?

Mr. HANCOCK. Will you examine a letter which is now shown you from Mr. R. O. Kennedy to Sanford L. Cluett, dated May 19, 1937, and tell me whether you recognize that as having come from your files?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, I do; it has some of my own handwriting on the margin.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am going to ask you to hold that for a moment because I would like you to explain those notations. First, if I may, Mr. Chairman, I would like to read the letter to the committee. This is a letter, you recall, from Mr. R. O. Kennedy. Who is Mr. Kennedy, by the way?

Mr. HANCOCK. Vice President of Cluett, Peabody.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who is Mr. Sanford L. Cluett? Will you identify him?

Mr. HANCOCK. He was a director—I am not sure he was an officer at that time—of Cluett, Peabody Company.

Acting Chairman KING. That is addressed to whom?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter is from Mr. Kennedy to Mr. Sanford Cluett and is dated May 19, 1937.¹

Thank you a lot for telling me about Mr. G. A. Cluett's letter. I can understand exactly Mr. Cluett's reaction. I feel sure that he does not understand the situation, just as we did not in the very beginning.

What did hurt me about his letter, though, was the implication that something is being done that would mar the long record of fair and honorable dealings. As you know, the Board faced a situation that was not only embarrassing, but most upsetting. Naturally our inclination was to have both of these houses work together as they always have. We have always felt very close to each one, and particularly so to the representatives on our Board. But there has grown up between the two houses an antagonism that we simply could not break through. As you know, I had dinner twice with Mr. Hancock and met with Sidney—

Mr. Sidney Weinberg?

Mr. SACHS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (reading further):

two or three times. We told them how we felt, what we wanted, but we just could not get it. Goldman, Sachs just would not work with Lehman Brothers, for reasons which to them seemed sound, although to an outsider may seem just a little childish, and Mr. Weinberg admitted that they might be so.

The feeling is so intense, however, that in all recent financing they have not shared, even though it be for companies in which they are both represented.

Sears, Roebuck would not have Lehman Brothers. National Dairy gave all of the work to Goldman, Sachs. Endicott-Johnson had Goldman, Sachs do it alone. Continental Can was recently refinanced with Goldman, Sachs cooperation.

We pleaded and put all the pressure we could, requesting that they overlook their differences, but those differences were too fundamental and we could do nothing about it. As late as last Friday night, Mr. Weinberg said he would think it over again and see if they could not make an exception. As you know, he has already offered Lehman Brothers full participation as to the amount that each is to have, but he called me up yesterday and said that he could not consent to go along with Lehman Brothers' name appearing along with theirs.

Mr. Weinberg did suggest that we drop Goldman, Sachs altogether and give it all to Lehman Brothers. He promised he would do everything he could to help if we did. Lehman Brothers gave us no such assurance and have not today. Lehman Brothers feel that Goldman, Sachs have taken the position that they would have it all or would not play. That is not the case, whereas I do believe that Lehman Brothers up to now are taking the position that they will not go along if not offered all that they want—half of the participation and the prestige of being a joint principal.

As you know, the Board felt that Goldman, Sachs were in a position to do a better job in this particular instance than Lehman Brothers could alone. We have been supported in this by the examples of other companies who have had similar work to do. Also it is true that Lehman Brothers have been helpful to us, but it is quite as true that Goldman, Sachs have. Goldman, Sachs' interest has been a warm and very cordial one during the last few years, and particularly during the dark years of 1932 and 1933, where, on the other hand, I have an impression that Lehman Brothers were willing to drop us altogether back in 1932 and 1933.

It is most unfortunate that this has happened. I know that it has bothered Mr. Palmer, as it has bothered all of us, all out of proportion to its importance. But what can we do? Goldman, Sachs will give Lehman Brothers much of which they ask, but will not accept their name as cooperator. No one could have tried harder to bring about the cooperation than have we. If Mr. G. A. Cluett would talk to Mr. Weinberg for just a few minutes, I am sure he would appreciate that our situation is a difficult one, and that our decision has not been an altogether unwise or unfair one.

¹ Included in appendix, p. 13015.

Acting Chairman KING [to Mr. Nehemkis]. That controversy seems to have been as to which would be the prima donna, but that didn't compel Cluett, Peabody to accept either as prima donna, they could go some other place if they desired.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I suppose so. As a result of further discussions with the Cluett people, Mr. Hancock, was it not generally understood that the financing would be handled on a basis of equality between Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Brothers?

Mr. HANCOCK. There was at one time, but there was confusion of thinking.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But the board of directors subsequently altered that decision, did they not?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter from yourself to Mr. Palmer dated May 18, 1937. Will you be good enough to examine this letter and tell me whether you recognize it as a true copy of an original in your possession and custody?

Acting Chairman KING. Apparently there was some disagreement between these two companies. What effect would that disagreement have upon the ethical, the moral, or the legal status?

Mr. HENDERSON. I think that the chairman asks a very pertinent question. This testimony shows a long line of joint managership, a rather unusual one, I think, in the history of American financing.

Acting Chairman KING. Based upon the friendship between Philip Lehman and the founder of Goldman Sachs.

Mr. HENDERSON. Philip Lehman and others, and shows an introduction of new conditions and new concepts. While it may be personally painful for some of these expressions and these conversations to be brought forth, I think there is nothing more revealing than the explicit and implicit connotations of some of these letters. Certainly if you studied the whole prospectuses that come to S. E. C. you would never get really to understand what is going on in this kind of group financing. I think it is very germane to have these introduced.

Acting Chairman KING. I express no opinion as to whether it is relevant or germane. It only shows that human nature exists among bankers and among investment people as well as among lawyers and representatives of this committee. We differ in our views and our concepts in various policies and I can understand that business people disagree.

Mr. HENDERSON. If it served no purpose other than showing that bankers are human it is very pertinent. [Laughter.] I think ours will stand out as one congressional inquiry that undertook to show that.

Acting Chairman KING. Well, I discovered they were human when I tried to borrow money. [Laughter.]

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer these three letters.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The letters referred to were marked respectively "Exhibits Nos. 1814, 1815 and 1816" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12736-12739.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. One of the letters which you have just been good enough to identify is a copy of a letter to Mr. Sanford L. Cluett from his father, G. A. Cluett.

Mr. HANCOCK. Not his father.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who is Mr. G. A. Cluett?

Mr. HANCOCK. A cousin, I believe.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who had at the time been retired from the business?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes—son of the original owner, I believe, and retired.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading from "Exhibit No. 1815"]:

I hesitated for some time the other day before calling you on the telephone regarding the proposed new financing and I did so finally only because Mr. John Hancock of Lehman Brothers had urged me to do so. Since my retirement from business some ten years ago, I have endeavored scrupulously to avoid offering advice or making suggestions to those who are now directing the affairs of the company. In this particular instance, I thought best to call you, as it often happens that the active directors of a company are not familiar with arrangements or commitments entered into by their predecessors.

I call your attention, Mr. Chairman, to the next paragraph particularly:

At the time the present company was organized through the joint efforts of Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs and Co., a representative of each banking firm was elected to the board. It was clearly understood at the time that each firm would have a voice in the financial affairs of the company and that any new financing that the company might be called upon to do in the future would be handled by both firms.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Nehemkis, did you say that this firm was organized jointly?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By both of the houses.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Hancock, is that correct?

Mr. HANCOCK. He used an unfortunate word when he said "organized." I think he referred only to the sale of the securities.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. To use banking language, Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs sponsored the first issue of Cluett, Peabody.

Mr. HANCOCK. There might have been a change of name at that time and therefore a new incorporation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In connection with another letter which you were good enough to identify for me and which is now in evidence, Mr. Hancock, I want to read this to you, if I may. This, you will recall, is a letter which you wrote to Mr. C. R. Palmer.

Mr. HANCOCK. President of the company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This letter which I just read, Senator, was from the first president, who had been retired for some years. This is Mr. Hancock now writing to the present president [reading from "Exhibit No. 1814"]:

If the board at its last meeting did carefully consider and decide that the stock split-up and offering of rights was best, then it should have considered its relations to its bankers and how best to use them for Cluett's benefit.

After three men, you, G. A. Cluett, and E. H. Cluett, all separately told me that none knew a reason why the financing should not be handled on a basis of equality of the two banking firms represented on the board, and after R. O. told me on Tuesday afternoon that the board would drop the financing unless it were so worked out, and after Green and I both advised that there was no interference to the company plans in a week's delay in which this equal basis could be agreed upon, I was confronted on Wednesday, May 12, with a statement that the board had changed its mind and had decided to go ahead on its original plan which subordinated us to the other firm.

I am ready to accept the opinion of the Cluett board as to what is best for Cluett in connection with its relations with bankers, if the facts are examined before a decision is reached. In this case I doubt that the facts were looked into, and sometime I want you to learn more about them.

In the course of the discussions some matters have arisen which I think are worth further consideration so I am going to present one. R. O. referred to the fact that our difference with Goldman Sachs put Cluett in a squeeze. I told him that I was sorry Cluett was in that position but that I had not put it there, but rather Cluett had put itself there by not consulting with me or the board at an early date and before it made any commitment to Goldman Sachs. I think you will find R. O. agrees with my position on this. I did not say to him at the time but it is obvious that Goldman Sachs is using Cluett in its dispute with us. It is also obvious that Cluett chose to squeeze me and be itself squeezed by submitting to an unfair demand rather than squeeze the man making the unfair demand. If he threatened to resign in case Cluett did not give him undisputed leadership in its financing, did he not control the Cluett financing by the threat which the Board undoubtedly felt would, if carried out, harm the company. After the Board took its position Tuesday and when it reversed its position Wednesday in the face of that threat, Cluett surrendered its judgment to a man who was willing to harm Cluett for his own purposes. Instead of threatening to resign as I too might have done, I made no demands and it now seems that I get the rough end of the stick because I was reasonable in my request for an equal position. The man who would not work on this basis does not claim to me that my suggestion of a fair plan was not fair. He only asserts that he owes no consideration to Lehman Bros. and that he will not do what I proposed. If my suggestion was not fair, in fact, then he should object to it on that ground. I did not feel that I was asking him to do me or my firm a favor. I felt I was asking him to do what Cluett wanted done.

Mr. Hancock, who is this mysterious "he" and "him" referred to in your letter?

Mr. HANCOCK. The only one that I recall is Mr. Weinberg.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (reading further from "Exhibit No. 1814") :

I have been given no reason and I know of none why my position is not fair. The net fact is that one man will not accept my suggestion, regardless of its fairness, and he governs the action of the Cluett Board. When the Board reversed its former position and accepted his demand, it made a decision in effect that my suggestion was not in the best interest of Cluett to accept. It may have concluded that my suggestion was not a fair one. I do not accept either conclusion as sound or soundly arrived at.

Now, as to the purely personal aspects of the situation, it was personally embarrassing to be left out of the discussions, but that is a very minor point. The main point is whether the action taken by Cluett is wise and sound and in Cluett's best interests.

Acting Chairman KING. From this letter it appears there is some controversy between your company and Goldman, Sachs, and you complained because Cluett didn't accept your view, and you blame, as I understand your letter, Weinberg for insinuating himself too much into the activities of the control of Cluett Bros. and to the disadvantage of your company.

Mr. HANCOCK. That is a partial summary; insofar as it goes, it is accurate; it isn't the whole story.

Acting Chairman KING. You are complaining because Cluett Co. didn't avail themselves of your organization to facilitate the disposition of their funds, of their issue.

Mr. HANCOCK. In the first place, they didn't discuss the matter until after the issue had arisen. They had made a decision without discussion.

Acting Chairman KING. Didn't they have the right to do that?

Mr. HANCOCK. I think a legal right; yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. Were you on the board at the time?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. HENDERSON. But you were not present at any discussions of the board?

Mr. HANCOCK. No, sir.

Mr. HENDERSON. And was it the board, the management, that made the decision?

Mr. HANCOCK. I think, from information I have gathered since, that the management in the form of an executive committee made the decision.

Mr. HENDERSON. And from that statement you understood that the board would drop the financing if it could not be arranged for a joint managership?

Mr. HANCOCK. Came to me from a vice president and the president of the company at the time.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, now, as I understand, to go further, you said that Senator King gave a partial summary. Included would be two other things that you were relying on. One was this understanding that had been reduced to a pretty clear agreement, and the other was mentioned not in your letter, but in another which has been read into the record,¹ that it was clearly understood at the time the company was organized that Sachs and Lehman were to have membership on the board, and they were very clearly to have quite a bit to say about the financing. Were you relying on the letter, also?

Mr. HANCOCK. I didn't know of Mr. Cluett's statement at that time, and so far as I know, there was no such agreement. The traditional practice of the firm had been that they would ask for representation on the board for 1 year, or the shortest term for which directors were elected, and then during that year the management or control was satisfied with the representative of our firm, or they were not. If they were satisfied, they continued; if they were not, they were dropped.

Mr. HENDERSON. You are putting your complaint mainly, then, on the agreement and on the lack of consideration of the financing on its merits.

Mr. HANCOCK. And the fact that I had worked on that board for a longer time than Mr. Weinberg had, and had done as much work, I thought, as he had done. Opinions in that might naturally differ.

Acting Chairman KING. There is no question as to the right, the legal right of the Cluett board to give greater consideration to Goldman, Sachs than to your organization.

Mr. HANCOCK. None whatever, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. And there was no legal agreement which would compel Cluett Co. to accept your organization as an underwriter or as a coequal partner, if that is the proper term, with Sachs Bros. in handling their securities.

Mr. HANCOCK. Not so far as I know, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. You just felt there was a breach of contract, a breach of understanding the terms of which—

Mr. HANCOCK (interposing). A breach of precedent, too, over the years.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1815."

Acting Chairman KING. But there was no agreement under the terms of which that precedent was to be perpetuated indefinitely.

Mr. HANCOCK. That is correct.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Hancock, as I understood that letter, though, there apparently was some question in your mind as to the propriety of Mr. Weinberg, as a member of the board of directors of Cluett, Peabody, in taking the position he did as regards that financing. Did you not have in your mind the fact that Mr. Weinberg was in a dual position in that he was a member of the board of directors of Cluett, Peabody and also a member of the banking firm interested in the financing of Cluett, Peabody?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't recall that I did. I would assume in that case, as in every case where I am working—I assume Mr. Weinberg would be governed by the same ethics and standards—that he would not have taken part in any decision. I have no reason to assume he did.

Mr. HENDERSON. You did say, however, if I recall, that he was using the Cluett case in the fight with you and putting the squeeze on you.

Mr. HANCOCK. That is right.

Mr. HENDERSON. You did raise a question of propriety in that, did you not?

Mr. HANCOCK. I wasn't raising the question of propriety as affecting any counter interests of him as a director against him as a member of the firm of Goldman, Sachs.

Mr. HENDERSON. But it would be very clear in your mind, would it not, that there would be a conflict?

Mr. O'CONNELL. There is one portion of that letter that I would like to have reread that would illustrate the point I had in mind.

ROLE OF DIRECTORS WHO ARE INVESTMENT BANKERS

Acting Chairman KING. The primary obligation of Mr. Weinberg would be, would it not, to Cluett Co. rather than to Goldman, Sachs, the same as if you had been on that board; your primary interest, duty, would be to serve the Cluett Co. rather than to serve Lehman Bros.?

Mr. HANCOCK. I wouldn't take a position in an individual transaction where I was on the two sides.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You mean to say you would not vote or participate?

Mr. HANCOCK. I would not participate in any discussions.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that a fixed policy of the House of Lehman, for directors to adhere to that position?

Mr. HANCOCK. I can't govern other partners; I know it is a fixed policy on my part.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You are speaking, then, for Mr. John Hancock.

Mr. HANCOCK. I believe it is true for every other partner, but I can't vouch for it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you say, Mr. Sachs, that was the policy of the House of Goldman, Sachs, that partners who serve as directors never participate in discussions of financing matters on the boards of which they serve on the part of Goldman, Sachs?

Mr. SACHS. It seems to me that is absolutely a, b, c.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you sure about that? You are testifying, now.

Mr. SACHS. Yes; I understand. Certainly I should think that when the decision came as to the accepting of terms of a proposal a banking firm made that the director or partner of that banking firm who was a director would be absent himself, or would not vote on that actual decision.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You mean he leaves the room?

Mr. SACHS. In many instances; yes. In some of these very discussions he wasn't there, he didn't come to the board of directors' meeting.

Acting Chairman KING. It seems to me, even under the highest form of ethics that if you or Mr. Hancock were a director in Cluett Co. and a bond issue were necessary, and funds were to be secured, I can't see any impropriety in his participating with the board in discussing as to the best means of obtaining the funds at the lowest price or the best price in the interest of the company, but if a controversy arose as between determining what organization should be the vendor of the securities and the underwriter of the securities, then another question would arise, but it would seem to me that it would be his duty as a director, notwithstanding his affiliation with Lehman Bros., if he were on the board to give his best judgment as to what would be the best interest of Cluett Co., and what course should be pursued in order that the company might reap the highest rewards and the best terms in the disposition of the security.

Mr. HANCOCK. Clearly so, Senator; no question.

Mr. SACHS. He would do that in the discussions that led to the final proposal, the fact that he made a proposal to purchase such and such securities he would participate in those discussions.

Acting Chairman KING. He wouldn't be muzzled in discussing the question of issuing securities in the best interest of the company.

Mr. O'CONNELL. May I read to you from your letter? [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1814"]:

If he threatened to resign in case Cluett did not give him undisputed leadership in its financing, did he not control the Cluett financing by the threat which the Board undoubtedly felt would, if carried out, harm the company. After the Board took its position Tuesday and when it reversed its position Wednesday in the face of that threat, Cluett surrendered its judgment to a man who was willing to harm Cluett for his own purposes.¹

Reading that in connection with your testimony, is it not fair for me to assume that this conduct described here is conduct which you have indicated you would not think proper for a member of the board of directors of your company?

Mr. HANCOCK. You have forgotten the first word. I said "If" he did so-and-so.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Did you understand he did not?

Mr. HANCOCK. I have been told he did not.

Mr. O'CONNELL. At the time you wrote this letter, did you know that he had?

Mr. HANCOCK. I did understand at that time he had.

Mr. O'CONNELL. If these facts, as stated, are correct, it indicates a course of conduct on the part of a director which you would not think proper?

Mr. HANCOCK. Correct.

¹ For additional information on this point, see letter of January 22, 1940, from Arthur H. Dean to Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., enclosing letter of May 25, 1937, from C. E. Palmer, president, Cluett, Peabody & Co. to John M. Hancock, appendix, p. 13012.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Sachs, an underwriting contract is a contract to purchase an issue, is it not?

Mr. SACHS. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. An underwriter buys an issue from the issuer. Now, in the negotiations leading up to the dealing with the underwriter, a man who is on the board of directors of the issuer and is a partner in the banking house does have a very serious conflict, does he not?

Mr. SACHS. Well, in a sense I can see what you mean, that he is a buyer as a member of the banking house and a seller as a director of the company; yes, sir.

Mr. HENDERSON. He does have a distinct conflict of interests there?

Mr. SACHS. I know of no relationship in life or in business in which occasionally conflicts of interest don't arise. I know that subject has been up many times. You just can't go through life, certainly not through business life, without occasional conflicts of interest.

Mr. HENDERSON. I agree with you there. We occasionally have them in government. We have conflicts, but this type of conflict I am instancing here is bound to arise, is it not, every time there is a question of financing when a member of an underwriting house is on the board?

COMPETITION WITH MARKET CONDITIONS

Mr. SACHS. Except for this, and I think this is as good a place, if I may be permitted to say it, as any, that in these dealings with companies for the purpose of buying and then marketing the securities, we are always in competition with market conditions. We couldn't attempt for a moment to buy an issue of securities from Cluett Peabody & Co. or Sears, Roebuck & Co., or any other industrial or mercantile concern without being faced with the problem that if we don't make the proper price in accordance with market conditions, that that company won't accept it and that they have got a dozen or 25 other investment banking houses who will make the proper price. In other words, do all the discussion about competitive bidding that you like, these relationships that we are talking of have always got the competition of the market, and I have, if I may be permitted to say so, followed these hearings before the committee for the last week or two, and I haven't seen that point properly brought out. In 25 years of experience, I find that we are continually, even though we have done business with Sears, Roebuck & Co. for 25 years, in competition with the market.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Commissioner, would you permit me to break in for a moment?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, I think it is probably fair for me to say that during the numerous weeks that we have plagued you, you have turned over everything in your files, have you not, to us?

Mr. SACHS. As far as we have been requested.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And I think it is also fair to say, Mr. Hancock, that your firm, too, has very graciously given us full data and information of everything in your files pertaining to this treaty that we have been discussing today. Is that correct?

Mr. HANCOCK. It is correct, so far as I know; it was certainly our intention.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We lived there for many weeks. Now, I am literally amazed—I have studied this correspondence with great care—that I find nowhere in any of this correspondence anything that bears out the statement that you just made, Mr. Sachs, that your respective firms were at any time concerned with competition from any other house with reference to the 60 corporations covered by the appendix to the agreement.

Mr. SACHS. I can answer that very simply, that the memoranda in our files, or the letters, are just a fraction of what goes on in the discussions or in the placing of an issue. In other words, nine-tenths of it, or 99 percent is done by word-of-mouth discussion, and in these discussions, certainly in any of the negotiations that I have had to do with in the last twenty-odd years of experience, questions have always come up of price, conditions underlying the issues, and what others would do. We are constantly meeting the competition of the market. That hasn't found its way, it is quite true, into the files because into the files come your final documents of agreement, your final contracts, and so forth. But we have days and weeks and months of discussion before we make an issue.

Acting Chairman KING. Let me ask a question there. Did you consider that those corporations or companies that have been referred to were bound hook, line, and sinker to take their securities, or rather to have you, or Lehman Bros., handle all their securities?

Mr. SACHS. Most certainly not. I stated earlier in the day that there was never any contractual arrangement, any contract or contractual arrangement between these companies and ourselves, and I presume I can speak for Lehman Bros. when I say that.

Acting Chairman KING. Is that your understanding, Mr. Hancock?

Mr. HANCOCK. That is my understanding.

Acting Chairman KING. Then each of those companies had a right to seek underwriters or investment houses for the purpose of handling their securities as they pleased.

Mr. SACHS. Exactly.

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

Acting Chairman KING. And was there competition in the markets? Did you encounter prospective or active competition from other investment or banking houses for the securities or underwritings of issues of these?

Mr. SACHS. There were sometimes threat of competition on price, because time and again those questions came up. We sometimes had verbal agreements with companies that we thought such-and-such would be the price, but if market conditions improved between the time that we were having our preliminary discussions and the final period of issue, we would give that company the benefit of price simply because our spread, so-called, was to be so-and-so much and not more.

May I enlarge on one other thing?

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed.

Mr. SACHS. My associate reminds me of it. In connection with this Brown Shoe issue, we bought $4,000,000 of 3¾-percent bonds. The first I knew that the Brown Shoe Co., which company I was a director of, was contemplating any business was that I received a letter from them one day saying that they had received an offer from a certain investment banking house in St. Louis, such-and-such an offer, and as an active and energetic banker, the first thing I did was to jump on the very next train and go to St. Louis. I certainly had competition to get that business in that particular instance. I got the business; and probably would have gotten it because of the past, I will say frankly; on equal terms I probably would have been given the preference, but I certainly wouldn't have been the preference on unequal terms.

Mr. HENDERSON. Leaving out any discussion of competition, Mr. Sachs—I can clearly see you and I would have quite a violent disagreement as to where competition actually takes place—if I thought that over that period of years in those 60 firms any large part of business actually passed on competition, I would feel more sympathetic to your present sentiments.

But, getting away from that, was Mr. G. A. Cluett the first president of the Cluett Peabody Co.?

Mr. SACHS. I think not.

Mr. HANCOCK. An interim president, after the original organization and before Palmer went in.

Mr. HENDERSON. He says in that letter of May 13, 1937, to Sanford Cluett [reading from "Exhibit No. 1815"]:

it was clearly understood at the time each firm would have a voice in the financial affairs of the company and any new financing that the company might be called upon to do in the future would be handled by both firms.

Mr. SACHS. All right; that was their general intention, but there was no obligation on their part.

Mr. HENDERSON. You mean no legal obligation?

Mr. SACHS. Certainly not; and if we hadn't proved satisfactory as investment bankers and a satisfactory relationship they would have immediately gone elsewhere. Any businessman would have done that. We maintained our relationship simply by reason of the fact that we gave good and efficient service, and we couldn't have maintained it for one moment—Goldman, Sachs & Co. have had clients in other departments of their business for 50 or 60 years, and they couldn't maintain those relationships if they didn't perform service.

Mr. HENDERSON. I am prepared to accept that.

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Mr. HENDERSON. I go on to this question of the conflicts of interest. With this situation here, partially foreclosed, shall we say, doesn't a director have a difficult job in connection with any new financing?

Mr. SACHS. I am sorry to disagree. I don't want to be controversial.

Mr. HENDERSON. I see no reason why you shouldn't be controversial. This is an arena of controversy here.

Acting Chairman KING. We are not presumed to be judges.

Mr. SACHS. I consider that the investment-banking business is a profession of the highest professional type. It has high standards; it takes long experience; it takes a lot of qualities that we hope some of us have. Now, I don't think due consideration is given to that, and I think that where investment bankers have attained a high position in their profession that that is recognized by their clients, just as if we have an attorney—we have no contract with him; there are lots of other good attorneys; but we go back to the man whom we know and the man that knows us; the same thing is true in the investment-banking business.

Acting Chairman KING. The attorneys do not have a partner on your board?

Mr. SACHS. Attorneys sometimes are on boards.

Mr. HENDERSON. We are seeking an analogue here that he has used himself, Mr. Chairman. A legal firm would have to have a partner on the board of Goldman, Sachs. I am just pointing out—is Mr. Dean [of Sullivan and Cromwell] on your board?

Mr. SACHS. No.

Mr. HANCOCK. But, Mr. Dean has partners on the boards of industrial companies.

Mr. HENDERSON. Of what?

Mr. HANCOCK. It has been true at some time

Mr. HENDERSON. Oh, the partners.

Mr. HANCOCK. On the boards of industrial companies for which his firm is general counsel.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That would create in itself a conflict of interest, but that is another field of discourse.

Mr. MILLER. Is Mr. Dean counsel for both of your firms?

Mr. SACHS. He is.

Mr. HANCOCK. At times.

Mr. SACHS. I think we should modify that by saying usually the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell are counsel for both firms; different partners in those firms usually represent our two banking houses.

Mr. LUBIN. Mr. Sachs, how many members were there on the board of Cluett Co.?

Mr. HANCOCK. Thirteen or fourteen. I would like to make just one point clear, that you may have overlooked, and I am presuming you can straighten it out quickly. How does this question of relationship or counter-interest arise? The first time a piece of business is done? The first time that Cluett, Peabody, came to Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros., isn't it a fair assumption that at that time, having an important piece of financing to be done, that they had satisfied themselves and that these two firms could probably, in their opinion at least, do the best job that could be done in this country at that time.

Mr. HENDERSON. I will accept that.

Mr. LUBIN. I don't think anybody would deny that fact, but does that necessarily mean that if they shopped around in an open market that they may not have found somebody who could have done it still better than you two?

Mr. HANCOCK. No; I wouldn't say it necessarily meant that, no; but it meant an independent judgment by men certainly at arm's length at that stage of the transaction.

COMPETITIVE BIDDING

Mr. LUBIN. I think that raises the whole question of responsibility of management, if a corporation where the stock is owned by stockholders spread throughout the country, whether or not a group of that sort doesn't have a moral, if not legal, responsibility to see to it that they are sure after actual competitive bidding that they are getting the best returns for their stockholders and their organization that it is possible to be gotten.

Mr. HANCOCK. If I may comment, that question splits itself in two. These cases we are talking about were not that kind of case. In the first place, they were industrial companies, where the sale was made on the whole by the largest stockholder. They were not made by a management owning no stock. That is the first differentiation on that. So there was found to be actual arm's-length transaction.

Now, I can readily conceive that as of any minute someone might get a better price for the sale of a security, but that isn't going to mean that necessarily over the years it is the best thing to have gotten a higher price merely because it could have been gotten at the moment.

Acting Chairman KING. Might have gotten a higher price on one issue and on the next got a much lower price?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes; or if a large holder of securities wants to deaden public interest in securities by design, the most effective way would be to try to sell them at too high a price, so that the people who buy it the first time lost their money in part, and the public will be chilled in that security for years and years ahead.

Mr. HENDERSON. Getting past this initial financing, at which time the issuer accepts the conditions of the underwriter or member of the board for a year and in succeeding years for new financing, those conditions are not present and there is bound to be a conflict of interest, is there not?

Mr. HANCOCK. There has to be; but it can relate to a very minor point. It can relate only to the amount of the spread which the banker may accept as gross profit. Let me make an illustration. Suppose a security was bought at a hundred and sold at a hundred and two. The outside interest of the banker is two points. Now, if by competitive bidding we forced the banker to purchase the security from the issuer at 101, and if the two points spread was fair value for the services rendered by the banker, the result would be a price to the public of 103.

Now, who is wise enough to say what is wise or right at that moment?

Mr. HENDERSON. I will tell you what I think could have been the wisdom there that could be well trusted; that is the competitive market, and that is the thing on which America over a long period has relied. Once there has been a determination in a free and open and competitive market, people are willing to lay aside any kinds of doubts as to whether or not it is the fairest price. The fairest price in that situation, Mr. Hancock, to re-cite, might have been 97, and people would have been willing to accept that as being entirely free from any doubts.

Mr. HANCOCK. Would they buy a large block of securities at that same price? Let's take a concrete case.

Mr. HENDERSON. I am taking a market for the full amount of the issue.

Mr. HANCOCK. That market doesn't exist.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Commissioner, you may perhaps have overlooked at the moment that Mr. Hancock's firm has contradicted everything he has been saying, because they purchased by competitive bids the last successful offering of the Cincinnati Union Terminal Co.

Mr. HANCOCK. No; we didn't; we purchased the security.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You were the leader of the syndicate.

Mr. HANCOCK. Your fact is correct but your conclusion isn't.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Perhaps there is room for a difference of opinion.

Mr. HENDERSON. There is a conflict of interest, you say, but it is a minor matter.

Mr. HANCOCK. There is a possible conflict, I will agree, and it could be a cause of difficulty, unless you have men who are going to handle it in a fair, honest way.

Acting Chairman KING. In your opinion, Mr. Hancock, with respect to those companies referred to in this memorandum which has been produced, if all of those issues, whether they were original or renewals, or what not, had been offered at public auction, in your opinion would the results to the company have been better than those which attended the disposition of those securities?

Mr. HANCOCK. I don't think over the long time they would have been. There might have been differences at the moment in small measure for a short time.

Acting Chairman KING. When you are auctioning off a large issue you must underwrite it, and would there not be difficulties in finding companies who would bid on it?

Mr. HANCOCK. It has been so found.

Mr. SACHS. I may interject the observation that we are talking, I think, or thinking a good deal about times like the present which are what we know as seller's markets. There have been times when it has been very difficult to place securities, and where bankers who have had a continuing relationship with a company have had to put their shoulder to the wheel and take great financial responsibility in order to tide over a company over a difficult situation.

Now, if you have competitive bidding, there will be nobody that will feel any responsibility for these companies that are being financed, and then you will see the difficulties and the losses that will come to security holders and to stockholders. I think we must take a long point of view instead of a short point of view.

Acting Chairman KING. Have there not been losses by underwriters, especially where there was a very large issue?

Mr. SACHS. Yes, sir. In 1937 there were two very notable cases, one of a very prominent oil company and one of a steel company.

Acting Chairman KING. I think we all familiar with the fact that in many instances the banks or investment companies, to use your expression, have put their shoulders to the wheel, and to strengthen the market have sustained great losses in underwriting business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have testified earlier that you believe that your fellow partners when they served on boards of corporations did not participate in discussions or in the voting of matters pertaining to the underwriting agreements or the terms, and so on.

Mr. SACHS. They didn't participate in, I should say, the final vote.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Presumably when a partner of your firm—and this would be true of Lehman Bros. as well as of any of the great banking houses of this country—consents to serve as a director of a corporation, the corporation expects from that banker his judgment, his wisdom, his maturity, and experience in financial affairs, does it not?

Mr. SACHS. Right.

¹ Mr. Hancock, in a letter of February 16, 1940, submitted additional information in connection with this point. See appendix, p. 13010, paragraph beginning "Page 506, first column, after your suggestion," etc.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now if, as you have just testified, a partner of a banking firm, who is also a director, has to withdraw from the discussion and participation, even if it be the final discussion, hasn't he created an absurd situation? He can't then give to the corporation what it expects of him, and he ceases to be of any usefulness to the board?

Mr. SACHS. I don't think so. I think when we speak of this withdrawal from the final vote it is just to lean backward so that a man is not voting for a financial operation in which he eventually, it is true, takes a responsibility, but also may be making a profit.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So we now have this situation, according to your testimony, that all that really happens is that a director leans back in his chair so that when the law clerk draws up the corporate minutes he can write, "did not participate in the voting and did not participate in the discussion," whereas, as a matter of fact, he participated all along and hence was involved in a specific conflict of interest?

Mr. SACHS. No; I don't think it is quite that way. Let's look at it this way, that if there should be a close division in the board, supposing there were nine directors and he cast the fifth vote, he wouldn't want to be put in that position. He would want the directors to decide finally without him actively having the vote that would put over this particular financial operation. But he would certainly give his best advice and his best judgment as to what he believed was best for the corporations. I don't think——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I think we have your position very clearly.

Mr. MILLER. You have spoken back a little further about always having the competition of the market. I wonder if the committee understands just what you mean by the competition of the market that you always have.

Mr. SACHS. I mean by that exactly this. If we are negotiating with the General Foods Co. or any other company for the purchase of its $4\frac{1}{2}$ percent preferred stock, we have the competition in the market in that we know that other comparable preferred stocks have dividend rates of, let us say $4\frac{1}{2}$ percent, that they are selling in the market at such and such prices, that the provisions under the line are so and so, that statistically these other companies compare approximately to the company we are dealing with in such and such a way, and that it has been customary for bankers to charge such and such a spread. We cannot undertake a negotiation in which we would be blind to those conditions in the market in other securities. That is what I mean by the competition of the market. If we tried to buy the General Foods $4\frac{1}{2}$ percent preferred stock at par when similar stocks were selling at 106, let us say, the General Foods officials would know that, and we would know it. In other words, we have that measure before us every moment of the day. Does that answer your question?

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Sachs, the word "competition" is really a wonderful word and it means something different to various people, but I think you would agree, would you not, that the competition you are talking about is a different type of competition than what I would mean when I think of competition between buyers for an article. You are a representative of a buying group, you are buying securities. Now, in the buying there is no competition, in general, isn't that correct? You do not generally, in this type of situation we have been discussing, compete with other buyers in the commodities with which we are dealing?

Mr. SACHS. Not in the sense that we all stand in the market at the same time.

Mr. O'CONNELL. It is very different; more analogous to a negotiated price between buyer and seller, so it is not the ordinary competitive price you arrive at in dealing in an issue of securities.

Mr. HENDERSON. Isn't it true also that the price finally fixed comes along after all the mechanics and the work and the understandings have been accomplished? It is on the eve of the issue.

Mr. SACHS. But in the preliminary discussions, we don't make a commitment, but we give a general idea of what we think the market is and will be, subject to slight modification in the interim of a 30- or 60-day period.

Mr. HENDERSON. I would like you to be clear, although I am grateful for Mr. Miller's suggestion to you, that I did not mean to suggest for one minute that underwriting does not have to take into account what the prevailing price for like securities is. I think I am not naive enough to take that position. I think we have stated our position in terms of what Mr. O'Connell has said.

Mr. HANCOCK. I think I have seen one case where negotiations were in progress where the management showed a tabulation of at least 100 comparable security issues showing the price, the spreads, the character of the underwriting obligations. I have seen 100 such items drawn off the S. E. C. records.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think I can show you, John, once that price has been fixed within a very short time out of a high percentage of the cases, the underwriter was shown to have guessed wrong as to what the market would pay for that particular security.

Mr. HANCOCK. I would hope he would have. He doesn't claim to have foresight, you know. I don't claim it.

Mr. HENDERSON. That is a point in my argument.

FINANCING BY CLUETT, PEABODY & CO., 1937¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hancock, in connection with the Cluett, Peabody financing, as the result of Lehman Bros.' displeasure with the way the financing was finally handled, did you not resign from the board of directors?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir; after the underwriting was finished.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, you have not identified that letter before you. Will you tell me if that is not a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. HANCOCK. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I should like to read the second paragraph of this letter of August 20, 1937, from you to Messrs. Cluett, Peabody & Co., attention Mr. C. R. Palmer:

After such long service on your board on the part of myself and Mr. Lehman, there cannot longer be any obligation on our part toward the stockholders who bought the stock from us at the time of the original underwriting. Though feeling free of any obligation I have delayed resigning so that the underwriting should be completed and I would be free of any possible charge of harming the company. My firm did not take any interest in the underwriting as it was desirous of making it clear that a possible profit does not affect our view of the principles involved in this case.¹

¹ This subject is resumed from p. 12401.

Now, really, did you not feel compelled to resign, Mr. Hancock, because you thought you would no longer be a director who directed?

Mr. HANCOCK. That was made clear in various parts of the correspondence, and that was quite clearly demonstrated by that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In the committee's "Exhibit No. 1814," now in evidence, you had this to say in your communication of May 18, 1937, to Mr. Palmer:

I have no desire to dominate any industrial company as to its financing, but I do object to being asked to ratify a plan arrived at as this one was. In all the talk of the last year that "directors must direct" and of the present day that "bankers must not dominate industrial companies" I feel there was need for very careful handling of the problem and I do not see that this case had that kind of handling.

In other words, you objected, Mr. Hancock, to the kind of financing plan agreed upon by the company, feeling it was not to the best interests of Cluett, Peabody.

Mr. HANCOCK. Well, I had reservations about certain parts of it, but I never had a chance to discuss them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; yet the dispute in this case essentially centered about whether Lehman Bros. was being given an adequate participation in the plan of financing which Lehman Bros., through yourself, did not approve or think to be in the best interests of the company.

Mr. HANCOCK. There were certain parts of the plan, as I recall, that stood up, that were approved in principle. The matter of the handling of the preferred stock was, and still is, a matter of doubt.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But when Goldman, Sachs was given its participation and you felt the company was not treating Lehman Bros. the same as Goldman, Sachs, you therefore resigned.

Mr. HANCOCK. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. However, the corporation did not have any intention of eliminating Lehman Bros. from the underwriting group, did it? In other words, the participation offered Lehman Bros. was the same as the participation that Goldman, Sachs was going to take.

Mr. HANCOCK. The obligation was the same and not the return for it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is a neat way of putting the problem.

Mr. HANCOCK. That is an accurate way of putting it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would call that, if I may, a distinction without a difference.

Mr. HANCOCK. But I differ on that very markedly.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think, Mr. Counsel, you have a partial point there. I want to be recorded as partially in favor of the witness. Acting Chairman KING. And I want to be recorded as entirely in favor of the witness in that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The difference so far as the affairs of the corporation were concerned, between having Goldman, Sachs managers of an issue and having Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Bros. as co-managers of an issue, were really not matters of vital corporation policy so as to affect the future functioning of the corporation?

¹ Included in the appendix, p. 13016.

Mr. HANCOCK. I hope not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Even though Lehman Brothers did not have its name in the advertising alongside Goldman, Sachs, your ability, your wisdom, had you remained on the board, would still have been available to the company?

Mr. HANCOCK. It still is on request today.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you are not on the board?

Mr. HANCOCK. No, sir; I am not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now you will recall both I, and I think Mr. Commissioner Henderson, have had occasion to refer to Mr. G. A. Cluett's letter to Mr. Sanford Cluett, in which he said [reading from "Exhibit No. 1815"]:

At the time the present company was organized through the joint efforts of Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co., a representative of each banking firm was elected to the board. It was clearly understood at the time that each firm would have a voice in the financial affairs of the company.

Mr. HANCOCK, would it be incorrect for the committee to assume that in view of this circumstance your concern about directors who don't direct, and bankers dominating industrial concerns was, shall I say, somewhat of a rationalization?

Mr. HANCOCK. It would not be correct to say that. I didn't even know that letter existed at the time and I don't believe it is a factual statement of the facts at the time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. G. A. Cluett knew something about the affairs of the company.

Mr. HANCOCK. I wasn't in the negotiation. I am satisfied he wasn't when the first sale was made.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am perfectly happy to accept your explanation.

AGREEMENT OF 1938

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Sachs, did not this internecine warfare, so to speak, cause a number of the companies for whom the two firms had been bankers considerable irritation?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; a certain amount of, shall I say, temporary irritation?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And to repeat your excellent phrase, such temporary irritation, if permitted to continue, would eventually create a situation where the business of both houses would be materially reduced.

Mr. SACHS. Both houses?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; your house and Lehman Brothers.

Mr. SACHS. Possibly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now the partners of Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Brothers being essentially statesmen, did they not determine to end this hostility between the two firms?

Mr. SACHS. They did; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the two houses reached a rapprochement and joined hands in a new agreement on June 30, 1938.

Mr. SACHS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you an agreement of June 30, 1938, between the houses of Goldman, Sachs and Lehman Brothers. Will you be good enough to identify it?

Mr. SACHS. Yes; that is it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document identified by the witness is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1817" and is included in the appendix on p. 12739.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As statesmen, however, you were prepared for any contingency, so in article IV of the said agreement it was provided as follows:

These arrangements may be terminated by either house at any time after January 1, 1939, upon three months' written notice to the other house.

Mr. Sachs, up to the time of your testimony has either house as yet given notice of termination?

Mr. SACHS. No, sir.

Mr. HENDERSON. In other words, the high contracting parties have not denounced under article IV; is that it?

Mr. SACHS. Not yet.

Mr. HANCOCK. Nor anything else.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We might, then, perhaps, appropriately conclude your testimony, Mr. Sachs, in the words of Father Divine, "Peace, it's wonderful"?

Mr. SACHS. Correct.

Acting Chairman KING. The committee stands adjourned until 10:30 tomorrow morning.

(Whereupon at 3:45 o'clock the committee recessed until 10:30 Tuesday morning.)

INVESTIGATION OF CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

TUESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1940

UNITED STATES SENATE,
TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE,
Washington, D. C.

The committee met at 10:40 a. m., pursuant to adjournment on Monday, January 8, 1940, in the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building, Senator William H. King presiding.

Present: Senator King (acting chairman); Representative Williams; Messrs. Henderson, Lubin, O'Connell, and Brackett.

Present also: Clifton Miller, Department of Commerce; Thomas C. Blaisdell, National Resources Board; and Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., special counsel, and Oscar L. Altman, associate financial economist, Securities and Exchange Commission.

Acting Chairman KING. The committee will be in order.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Edward Greene, will you take the witness stand, please?

Acting Chairman KING. Do you solemnly swear the evidence you give in this hearing shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. GREENE. I do.

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, in the presentation this morning, the S. E. C. Investment Banking Section, as I understand it, is utilizing this particular case of Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. as an example of the difficulties which banks found in accomplishing the divorcement that was intended by the Banking Act of 1933.

TESTIMONY OF EDWARD B. GREENE, PRESIDENT, CLEVELAND-CLIFFS IRON CO.,¹ CLEVELAND, OHIO

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. GREENE. Edward B. Greene, Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you not president of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., Mr. Greene?

Mr. GREENE. I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does not the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. own major iron mines in Lake Superior, and is it not one of the major ore producers in the United States?

Mr. GREENE. I think that is a fair statement.

¹ Mr. Greene previously testified during hearings on the iron ore industry; see Hearings, Part 18.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Prior to your appointment as president of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., had you not been a vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co.?

Mr. GREENE. I was chairman of the executive committee and vice president.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had not the Cleveland Trust Co. been a large creditor of Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.?

Mr. GREENE. They had been for something like 3 years.

BANK DEBT OF THE COMPANY

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not the company have considerable bank debt outstanding, occasioned largely by the purchase of steel securities?

Mr. GREENE. They had, by the purchase of one particular investment of the Corrigan, McKinney Steel Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not the bank debt amount to about $25,000,000 held chiefly by a group of eight creditor banks?

Mr. GREENE. Practically that is correct, held by eight banks and one or two others.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And among those banks who were in a creditor position was the Bankers Trust Co. of New York?

Mr. GREENE. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I offer in evidence an extract from the prospectus of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. in connection with the first mortgage sinking fund 4¾ percent bonds due November 1, 1950, principal amount $16,500,000, taken from the registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

(The extract referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1818" and is included in the appendix on pp. 12741.)

Acting Chairman KING. How did you incur such a large indebtedness?

Mr. GREENE. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.?

Acting Chairman KING. Yes. As I understand, $25,000,000 was held by eight banks and some smaller ones.

Mr. GREENE. In March of 1930 the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. purchased a 62½ percent interest, or rather securities that represented a 62½ percent interest, in the Corrigan McKinney Co. That covered practically an investment of thirty-seven and a half million dollars, part of which was cared for in other ways.

Acting Chairman KING. You were on the stand before and I remember some testimony given respecting the holdings of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.

Mr. GREENE. That was The Cliffs Corporation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I might add, Senator, that this story this morning picks up where the committee left off in its earlier hearing on the subject.

Acting Chairman KING. Sort of an addendum.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You might call it that, or an appendix, as it were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, is it not a fact that you were really placed in charge of the affairs of the company in order to clean up this debt situation in 1933?

Mr. GREENE. No; that is partially correct only. I had been asked by the banks to take that position and had declined it until I was asked by the management to do so. I did not go in as a representative of the banks. I went in at the request of the management, and you might say on account of representing one of the largest interests in the company. I represented a very substantial interest in the company.

DISCUSSIONS WITH BANKERS TRUST CO. WITH REGARD TO A BOND ISSUE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. About the middle of January 1935 did not the Bankers Trust Co. of New York suggest to you that it might be possible to refund the $25,000,000 of outstanding bank loans with a long-term bond issue?

Mr. GREENE. They did. I would have said possibly December 1934.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had not the Bankers Trust Co. already been at work on such a plan by which the then bank creditors, including Bankers Trust, would take the first five or six million, the balance to be sold wholesale to a number of life insurance companies or investment trusts?

Mr. GREENE. The plan, as time went along, between, we will say, January '35 and possibly November of '35, changed a number of times. It gradually evolved into something very different in the final consummation of the plan that went through in December, if I recall, but was agreed upon in November. Now the original plan——

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I will ask you to develop that in the course of your testimony, if you will, Mr. Greene.

At the time of your discussion, or discussions, I should say, with the Bankers Trust Co., were you aware that the Bankers Trust Co. was forbidden by law to engage in underwriting to refund an issue concerning which you were holding discussions at the time?

Mr. GREENE. I was aware of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. None the less you discussed the possibility of a bond issue with Mr. Tompkins, vice president of the Bankers Trust Co., and other members of the staff and associates of Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. GREENE. No; that is not correct. I discussed with Mr. Tompkins a plan of their acting as agent in disposing of an issue of bonds to other institutions in which I was told they would not be interested and was told that they would not be acting contrary to that Banking Act, and I understood that perfectly from the first day on.

Mr. HENDERSON. You say, Mr. Greene, you were told. Was that advice of counsel?

Mr. GREENE. I discussed it with Mr. Tompkins and Mr. Tompkins advised me that their position as agent was supported and approved by eminent counsel.

Mr. HENDERSON. But when you went down to talk to Mr. Tompkins you had not been advised whether or not they could act as agent; is that it?

Mr. GREENE. When I went down there, I didn't exactly know what was coming up. I went down to discuss it.

Mr. HENDERSON. You went down to discuss the refinancing?

Mr. GREENE. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. So to that extent you didn't go down to discuss his agency. I mean you went down to see how this particular perplexity of yours could be cleared up.

Mr. GREENE. No; but what I meant was I did not have the plan we were going to discuss before me before I had my first talk with Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That evolved as the result of a number of discussions?

Mr. GREENE. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And it was only after you had formulated a program that seemed feasible that the problem of whether or not Bankers Trust could fulfill that program was reached, and it was at that point that the agency matter was discussed?

Mr. GREENE. No; quite the contrary. That came up at the first discussion, the very first discussion which I think was the last week in January. In other words, this came up immediately in my first talk with Mr. Tompkins and of course it was answered. While it did not pertain to me it was answered to the satisfaction of both of us.

Acting Chairman KING. The situation was such that you had to have some financial relief, that is, these companies did? Those obligations were due and efforts were being made to secure the adoption of some plan that would relieve the situation, was that it?

Mr. GREENE. Of course, but it was more than that. We were operating under a creditors' committee, and if you know what it means to operate under a creditors' committee of eight, you know that it is rather slow work and it is a condition that you are very glad to reach the end of.

Acting Chairman KING. So it was important that some disposition be made of the matter, and a plan worked out under which the obligations could be met and a continuation of the business proceeded with.

Mr. GREENE. Correct; we reestablish the credit of the company; better everything, better our ability to sell.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At this time was there not under consideration a merger of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. and the Cleveland-Cliffs Co., which in turn held the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. common stock?

Mr. GREENE. At the first discussion, that is correct. We had been discussing that for some time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is all I wanted you to give me at this time. There was also under discussion the merger of Corrigan-McKinney and the Republic Steel Corporation, was there not?

Mr. GREENE. Yes; that was in process.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was my question. Your answer is "yes"?

Mr. GREENE. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, sir. Now at this time the collateral under the Bankers Trust loan included, did it not, directly and indirectly, important holdings of Corrigan-McKinney stock?

Mr. GREENE. At what time?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. During the time that you were discussing the matter with the Bankers Trust.

Mr. GREENE. Not at the beginning. Let me see.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was this true immediately prior to your first discussion with Mr. Tompkins?

Mr. GREENE. I don't know as I quite understand your question. Would you repeat the first question?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would the reporter repeat the first question I asked of the witness, please?

(The reporter read the question: "Now at this time the collateral under the Bankers Trust loan included, did it not, directly and indirectly, important holdings of Corrigan-McKinney stock?")

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a matter of fact, is it true or isn't it?

Mr. GREENE. The answer would be not only Corrigan-McKinney stock, but a holding company that held Corrigan-McKinney stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct. Hence, Mr. Greene, the good will of Bankers Trust Co. was essential, was it not, in effecting both mergers?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I wouldn't go so far as to say that, only to the extent that they were represented on a creditors' committee.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now at the end of January 1935, after several days of negotiations, did not you and Mr. Tompkins agree that Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. would float an issue of $24,000,000 of first mortgage and collateral trust bonds, and that part of the proceeds would be used to pay off the bank creditors, including Bankers Trust Co.?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I would say that at our first interview—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Let me repeat the question.

Mr. GREENE. We did not reach the full conclusions.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was not my question. I made my question very specific, Mr. Greene. I said "At the end of January 1935, after several days of negotiations," that was the question. Can you answer my question?

Mr. GREENE. The latter part is correct. I would say this. At the first negotiation—and I do not recall that there was but one session—the agreement was only that the Bankers Trust Co. should endeavor as agent to place with one or more institutions a loan of $25,000,000, that that was as far as we got.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All right. Now the understanding that you reached with Mr. Tompkins was reduced to writing, was it not?

Mr. GREENE. It was.

AGREEMENT OF JANUARY 30, 1935

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you, Mr. Greene, the document which purports to be the agreement which was reduced to writing. Will you examine it and tell me if you recognize the photostat copy as a true and correct copy of the original?

(Acting Chairman King made an off-the-record remark regarding the relevancy of the testimony.)

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman—

Acting Chairman KING. It is off the record. Proceed.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, I think your statement, however, makes it almost incumbent on me to say that I think that as we go forward in this presentation, the relevancy will be very clear. In this particular case, Bankers Trust held part of the loan, this $25,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Mark this and return it.

(The agreement referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1819" and is included in the appendix on p. 12741.)

Mr. HENDERSON (continuing). There had been an act passed by the Congress of the United States which was intended to separate, as you know, underwriting from banking, and Mr. Greene went to the Bankers Trust, and there was entered into this agreement which has been offered in evidence here—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). It is being marked for identification, sir.

Mr. HENDERSON. Which poses the question that I stated at the beginning of this hearing. If at any time in the proceedings it is not clear that that is relevant I will be perfectly willing to withdraw the entire hearing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As the Senator knows, the question of relevancy always relates to counsel's work, and the Senator is too distinguished a lawyer to want me, a much younger man, to proceed without laying a very careful foundation.

Acting Chairman KING. I assume from what Mr. Henderson—I beg your pardon—the Commissioner has just stated that it deals with the question of a possible infraction of the law calling for separation of banking.

Mr. HENDERSON. I said the difficulty that confronted the bank which formerly occupied a dual position and it was not intended to have a separation.

If you will recall, Senator King, you were not here at the beginning of the investment-banking hearings. We are undertaking to present almost as complete a case as if we were on trial. We could shorten it very considerably, but I think, in fairness to the witnesses, that there ought to be a full documentation of the things presented here.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. According to the terms of that agreement, the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. contemplated a merger or consolidation with the Cliffs Corporation, which owned all of its common stock, did it not?

Mr. GREENE. I would say the management contemplated that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As part of this merger or consolidation, did not Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. propose to issue some $24,000,000 of first-mortgage and collateral-trust bonds?

Mr. GREENE. Either $24,000,000 or $25,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which is it?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I will have to refer to that. The amount that was—

Mr. GREENE. Very well.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Suppose you accept my figures, subject to later correction.

PARAGRAPH 7 OF THE AGREEMENT OF JAN. 30, 1935

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read to you now paragraph 7 of this agreement which was entered into by the respective parties. It reads as follows.

Acting Chairman KING. Has he identified that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. He has, sir. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1819"]:

You [that is to say, the Bankers Trust Company] are to use your best efforts to secure a group or syndicate of investors who will purchase the entire issue of said bonds as above stated, or who will enter into an underwriting agreement in form acceptable to us [that is, Cleveland Cliffs] for the purchase of the entire issue of said bonds.

I want you to pay rather careful attention, if you will, Mr. Greene, to the next sentence [reading from "Exhibit No. 1819"]:

You shall not be liable under any conditions for your failure to secure the group or syndicate referred to above or for the purchase yourselves or for the underwriting of all or any part of said bonds.

End of the quotation from article 7 of the agreement.

Would you be good enough to explain the occasion for the inclusion of the last part of this provision limiting the liability of the bank, which I have just read to you?

Mr. GREENE. Well, the contract was prepared by the Bankers Trust Co. and at that time we had no definite plan; it was merely that they as agents were going to endeavor to place a bond issue of an amount to pay off what we called our special bank loan and relieve the company from its short-time loans, and just how it was to be done wasn't then determined.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, may I ask whether Mr. Tompkins was not responsible for the inclusion of that provision?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I think he was—no more than the rest of them. Mr. Tompkins or his department drew that informal agreement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I ask whether you insisted upon that particular provision; was it a suggestion that came from you?

Mr. GREENE. Not that portion. The whole agreement was drawn by Mr. Tompkins, or his department, the whole agreement. It wasn't that Mr. Tompkins drew that; the whole agreement was drawn—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then just to summarize briefly in response to my first question to you, the particular provision which I am now questioning you about was not incorporated into the contract at your request, but rather at the insistence of Mr. Tompkins. That is what you have just testified, substantially.

Mr. GREENE. That is correct, but that leaves the impression that I might have drawn the rest of it, and he might have put that in.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I quite understand that the whole agreement was drawn at the instance of the Bankers Trust Co., and while we are discussing the agreement, do you happen to know the firm of counsel that was responsible for the drafting of that agreement?

Mr. GREENE. I don't think I could tell you.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If I mention to you White and Case, would that help you?

Mr. GREENE. I only recall that White and Case quoted to me as approving of their acting as agents in this matter.

Acting Chairman KING. Reported to you as approving?

Mr. GREENE. In my conversation with Mr. Tompkins when we were discussing the question of the Banking Act of 1933, the question of their acting as agent in such a matter, it was quoted to me that Bankers Trust had been advised by their counsel that they were acting well within their rights.

Acting Chairman KING. For my own information, as I understand the situation—if I am in error I want to be corrected—the companies that you represented, temporarily, I suppose, owed about $25,000,000, and the Bankers Trust Co. was one of the creditors. The obligations were due, they were short-term obligations, and it was believed necessary to adjust the situation and to get a new financing plan adopted. The Bankers Trust Co. owned about one-eighth of the $25,000,000 obligation.

Mr. GREENE. About one-sixth.

Acting Chairman KING. And the rest of it was held by other banks.

Mr. GREENE. Mostly by seven other banks, and two individuals or other corporations.

Acting Chairman KING. And you went to the Bankers Trust Co. for the purpose of discussing the steps necessary to be taken in order to accomplish the desire, namely, to convert the short terms into long terms or to make some arrangement to meet the situation which was then developed.

Mr. GREENE. That is a correct general statement of the situation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, did you understand by this provision, paragraph 7,¹ which we have been discussing, that Bankers Trust Co., in fact, could take a share on original terms of the bonds which were to be underwritten but that they were not liable to you if they did not?

Mr. GREENE. I don't think I gave it any particular thought.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not this provision that we have been discussing, article 7, give Bankers Trust Co. all of the advantages of an underwriter with none of the risks?

Did you happen to think of that?

Mr. GREENE. I am quite sure my mind was entirely devoted to the troubles of getting a company that had a $25,000,000 short-term loan on its hands with four or five million of regular indebtedness, my thoughts were more than occupied with that problem.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You left the details, the mechanics of providing for those arrangements, to your friend Mr. Tompkins?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I think very properly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I wasn't inferring in the slightest, Mr. Greene, and don't want you to think for a minute that I had any other thought in mind. I want to continue reading from the contract that you entered into with the Bankers Trust, and I now quote [reading from "Exhibit No. 1819"]:

Upon the purchase by said group or syndicate of the entire issue of said bonds, or upon the sale of said entire issue of bonds under said underwriting agreement, we [meaning Cleveland Cliffs] agree to pay to you [meaning Bankers Trust] for your services hereunder in cash, a fee of one per cent (1%) of the entire principal amount of said bonds.

Mr. Greene, what return did Cleveland-Cliffs expect from Bankers Trust Co. for this fee of $240,000; that is to say, 1 percent of $24,000,000?

Mr. GREENE. We expected that placing of a $24,000,000 or $25,000,000 bond issue at a 1-percent fee—now, the cost of the Cleveland-Cliffs for their credit situation at that time, that was a very satisfactory arrangement. In other words, that was, in our opinion, better than we had expected to get at that time.

Mr. HENDERSON. That is, you expected that this fee, without the risks that were specifically eliminated in the contract, would be worth while to the Cleveland-Cliffs if they could in some manner get an underwriting group to handle the thing for you.

Mr. GREENE. That is it exactly.

Mr. HENDERSON. You expected to pay the underwriting fee in addition to this.

Mr. GREENE. Oh, no; no; that is the point. At this time this was to be a placing of this entire issue at par, and we would get all the proceeds.

Mr. HENDERSON. This would be the sum total of the expenses.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1819."

Mr. GREENE. Then we pay the Bankers as agent a fee for services. Now, I think we ought to state here so that the members of the Commission will have those facts in mind that this contract was never carried out and was declared by both parties to it to be out the window some time in the spring, so that we are discussing a contract, or really not a contract, a memorandum, which in fact was never carried out.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We will develop that in due course, Mr. Chairman. I would prefer that the witness confine himself to the questions immediately directed to him and as is our usual procedure, he is at liberty to make statements after the line of inquiry has been developed.

Acting Chairman KING. It seems to me if this contract was never carried out it is not very material to proceed with it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I don't like to take issue with the statement of the witness, but that is not, strictly speaking, a correct statement, as the evidence will show.

Acting Chairman KING. Then proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, I show you a memorandum which purports to have been prepared by you dated June 28, 1935. Will you examine this and tell me whether you recognize it as a true and correct copy?

Mr. GREENE. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The memorandum identified by the witness, may it please the committee, is offered in evidence.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit 1820" and is included in the appendix on p. 12743.)

SIGNING THE AGREEMENT OF JANUARY 30, 1935

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Greene, were you not somewhat reluctant to execute the contract to which reference has been made?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I was reluctant only because the matter hadn't been submitted to the board of directors. I covered that point by writing above the signature—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). I will come to that in just a moment.

Mr. GREENE. Well, I can't answer your question. You asked if I wasn't reluctant. I wasn't reluctant to execute the contract as it is drawn with a memorandum included in it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Correct.

Mr. GREENE. I had to explain that, Mr. Nehemkis.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Fine; thank you, sir. Now, you also wrote in the memorandum which you identified and which is now in evidence as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1820"]:

At the time this contract was drawn, the writer assumed that he would take it to Cleveland and submit it to the Board and execute it only after approval by the Board. Mr. Tompkins objected to this procedure and wanted the writer to sign it at this time.

In other words, Mr. Tompkins insisted upon your executing the contract.

Mr. GREENE. Mr. Tompkins regarded that as more or less—and I did, too—as a personal memorandum between the two of us, as a matter of good faith on my part to recommend such a plan to the Board, which I was not only willing to do but very eager to do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, do I understand you correctly to say that this seven-page document which I show you, drafted by the law firm of White and Case, together with a formal letter of transmittal approving this contract as to form was regarded by you and Mr. Tompkins, the principals, as an informal document?

Mr. GREENE. I not only do, but I said so to Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I just wanted to be sure I thoroughly understood you on the point. You continue in the memorandum which you identified a moment ago as follows [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1820"]:

I explained to him that I had no authority to do so and that my signature would not be binding on the company and would only be a matter of good faith on my part to exert my best efforts to secure the approval of the Board.

Now, Mr. Greene, your previous statement becomes relevant. Under these circumstances you inserted above your signature the following, "Subject to approval of the board of directors." That is correct, isn't it?

Mr. GREENE. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, you further wrote in your memorandum which you have identified and which is in evidence as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1820"]:

Mr. Tompkins stated this was entirely agreeable to him and wanted it signed with that understanding. After some further protest the writer signed the instrument but wrote in above his signature "Subject to the approval of the Board of Directors."

Now, can you tell me, Mr. Greene, why Mr. Tompkins wanted you to sign that agreement before you left New York City?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I think I can. He was thoroughly familiar with the Cleveland-Cliffs situation. He felt that the matter of time was important, and he felt that if he had a commitment on the part of the president of the company, even though it was an informal understanding, that that would enable him in a better way to approach the institutions who would be the purchasers of this issue. In other words, until he had something in writing it probably put him in a weak position to approach those institutions he had in mind, which I assume were insurance companies.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, I show you the contract of January 1935, which has been previously identified by you, and ask whether that is not your signature, "E. J. Greene, President."

Mr. GREENE. It is E. B. That is my signature.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that your handwriting immediately above your signature which reads, "Subject to the approval of the Board of Directors"?

Mr. GREENE. That is a photostatic copy of my writing.

Mr. HENDERSON. You signed this as president and also subject to approval of the Board of Directors.

Mr. GREENE. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. Did you sign that "Subject to the approval of the Board of Directors" standing up, or were you mad, or something at the time?

Mr. GREENE. Oh, no, indeed; it was a very happy occasion as far as I was concerned.

Mr. HENDERSON. Maybe it registers happiness, then.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In these negotiations, Mr. Greene, did you not consider the Bankers Trust Co. was your agent acting in behalf of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.?

Mr. GREENE. I think that is what I considered.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And as agent, Bankers Trust Co. was to organize a syndicate to underwrite a bond issue for Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.

Mr. GREENE. You may call it a syndicate—a group of institutions.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is the same thing, I believe.

Mr. GREENE. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to read to you from a memorandum which you previously identified and which is in evidence, as follows: The caption of this memorandum which you will recall has the following [reading from "Exhibit No. 1820"]:

Brief summary of Negotiations with Bankers Trust Company, represented throughout by Mr. B. A. Tompkins, and at times by Dana Kelly and Mr. Graham, and also Lehman Brothers represented by Mr. Gutman and Mr. Szold.

And then on page 1 of the memorandum there appears the following:

A few days after the extension was granted the writer returned to New York and took the matter up with Mr. Tompkins and his associates—

And then on page 2 appears the following [reading further]:

Mr. Tompkins stated this was entirely agreeable to him and wanted it signed with that understanding.

So that at these conferences with your agent, Bankers Trust Co., there were also present investment banking firms who likewise participated in the negotiations. Is that correct in accordance with your memorandum?

Mr. GREENE. Well, that, unless I am rather permitted to tell the story, it is hard to answer your question. This is another deal. This is a gradual evolving of this deal into the thing that couldn't be accomplished and then we began to explore other things, and you are getting into either the second or third phase of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In 1934, had not some of the partners of Field, Glore & Co., suggested to you that their firm might be interested in financing Cleveland-Cliffs?

Mr. GREENE. I can't remember the specific occasion, but I am inclined to think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact, Mr. Greene, that Hayden, Stone & Co., a firm of investment bankers in New York, had been in contact with Mr. Mather, a large stockholder in Cleveland-Cliffs with reference to buying a block of his stock?

Mr. GREENE. I think they had bought a block of both kinds of stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had not Hayden, Stone & Co. also been in contact with you in regard to possible Cleveland-Cliffs financing prior to the time you entered into the contract with Bankers Trust Co.?

Mr. GREENE. I think not; I believe that the discussions that I had with the man who might be said to represent the Charles Hayden interests (they are a group of things) were mainly interested in the question of the terms of a possible merger between Cleveland-Cliffs and Cliffs. I believe Bankers Trust were the first one in a concrete and important way to take up the question of financing our loan. I do not think that Hayden, Stone or Charles Hayden interests had up to the time of January 1935, ever been specific about any possibility of financing.

MR. GREENE'S SUGGESTIONS FOR THE UNDERWRITING GROUP

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you not ask Mr. Tompkins to include Hayden, Stone in the final underwriting syndicate?

Mr. GREENE. Now, you are getting again into the next phase and the one after the plan as outlined in that informal agreement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which informal agreement, the seven-page legal document that I waved up here a moment ago?¹

Mr. GREENE. Yes; the one that I said was subject to approval of the Board of Directors. It was after that plan was entirely given up that we got into other discussions and other possibilities and at that time, it is true that I suggested not only Hayden, Stone, but Kuhn, Loeb and Field, Glore.

Acting Chairman KING. What do you mean by the words "given up" after that contract Mr. Nehemkis said he waved before you? What do you mean by "given up"? You regarded it, as I understood you in your testimony, as an informal understanding or contract or agreement that had to be subject to the approval of the Board and then you state now it was given, as I understand you, that the plan that was outlined in that informal agreement was given up.

Mr. GREENE. The story, and I won't go into any more particulars than necessary to answer your question, Senator King, the situation was this: In the mining business, while there is a parent company, it is very necessary to have a great many subsidiary mining companies for the reason that you often tie in minor interests; consequently, when we came to take this matter up, our bankers or agent took it up, either one. We found that the relationship between our property, which was represented by land in fee and that which is represented by the stocks of mining companies, were not in the proportion that the regulations required for insurance companies of the State of New York. That was a very big obstacle, and led to some considerable discussions and study of our figures. In addition, in February, the Federal Government filed a suit against Republic and against the merger, and our attorneys felt that we should make no move in the way of attempting to consolidate Cleveland-Cliffs and Cliffs Corporation until that litigation at least was tried. For those two reasons, the financing as outlined in this seven-page document had to be given up for the time, and then we began to discuss the other means of financing, and that led to an entirely different situation, and the question that Mr. Nehemkis has asked me a couple of times refers to that second phase, and I couldn't very well go from one to the other without explaining that that developed after we gave up the possibility of this entire thing, so that we approached it from an entirely different way and in the way of going to the regular investment bankers in the standard or conventional way.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You testified a moment ago, Mr. Greene, that you asked the Bankers Trust Co. to include Hayden, Stone & Co., Field, Glore & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., did you not?

Mr. GREENE. I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, had not all three of these investment banking firms had dealings with Cleveland-Cliffs at one time or other in the past, or its associated companies?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1819."

Mr. GREENE. That is correct, and that is why I suggested, I didn't limit it. I just said it wasn't up to me to indicate only those that should be in the group, but I did want those three given the invitation, that was all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in view of the previous association of these three investment banking firms with the interests of Cleveland-Cliffs, they might, perhaps, by the customs and mores of the investment banking world, be said to have had an interest in Cleveland-Cliffs financing?

Mr. GREENE. I don't exactly know what you mean by interest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I mean they were concerned about it, they had rendered previous services to your companies and therefore they were interested in anything that pertained to financing, they were very much concerned about the future of the situation. That is what I mean by interest.

Mr. GREENE. I think they took a friendly and cooperative attitude toward us and we wanted to be courteous enough to see that they were included.

Acting Chairman KING. Did they hold any of the securities or obligations of the Cliff or any of those organizations that owed the twenty-five million? Did they have any stock?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I just spoke about Mr. Charles Hayden's interest, having made a purchase. I am quite sure that none of the others had any interest whatsoever.

Acting Chairman KING. You mean stock interest?

Mr. GREENE. I don't think they had any stock or obligation of bonds or securities, so far as I know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These four firms that we have just enumerated were finally included in the syndicate, were they not?

Mr. GREENE. It was my understanding that when they got together to make a deal they wanted to keep it to themselves.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That isn't my question, Mr. Greene. I think you and I will get along much better if you will try to answer my simple questions a little less cryptically. I said to you: These four firms were finally included in the syndicate, were they not?

Mr. GREENE. They were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That's fine, thank you, sir. Was not Lehman Brothers finally selected as the manager of the underwriting syndicate? Do you recall?

Mr. GREENE. They were selected.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall, Mr. Greene, how it happened that Lehman Brothers was selected as the manager of the syndicate?

Mr. GREENE. At the suggestion of Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins being the vice president of the Bankers Trust Co.

Mr. GREENE. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now I show you a telegram from a Mr. Kelley to a Mr. Geffine, dated February 2, 1935, obtained from the files of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company. Will you be good enough to identify this as being a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody?

Mr. GREENE. Did you ask me to identify this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; just tell me whether you recognize that as being a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody.

Mr. GREENE. I haven't the slightest idea.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't know what is in your files?

Mr. GREENE. Well, it was 5 years ago; I wouldn't remember a telegram to another officer.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then you will have to assume that in response to our request you did make this available, shall we say?

Mr. GREENE. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you accept that?

Mr. GREENE. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This telegram is offered in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

Acting Chairman KING. It will be received.

(The telegram referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1821" and appears in full below.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to read from this telegram signed by Dana Kelly of the Bankers Trust Co., addressed to Mr. Geffine, vice president of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company [reading from "Exhibit No. 1821"]:

Plan be Cleveland Monday morning with Lehman representatives if satisfactory to you. Regards.

And I want to call your attention, if I may, Mr. Greene, the date of that telegram, February 2, 1935. Now your agreement¹—and by agreement I am now, for the sake of precision and accuracy, referring to that seven-page legal document which you had signed with the Bankers Trust Company—was signed on January 30, 1935. The telegram which I have just read from was dated February 2, 1935. So that within 3 days after you had concluded your negotiations with Mr. Tompkins he had apparently already interested one underwriter in the deal, Lehman Brothers. Had Mr. Tompkins discussed with you, Mr. Greene, prior to the execution of the contract of January 30, 1935, the possibility that Lehman Brothers would manage the issue?

Mr. GREENE. My best recollection is that we didn't discuss that on January 30, but we discussed it some later. I am surprised to note that Lehman Brothers were in the picture as early as that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is always very interesting to have the witnesses enlightened about their own affairs, Mr. Greene.

In November, did you not request the bankers that $2,000,000 of the issue be granted on original terms to various Cleveland investment banking houses?

Mr. GREENE. I went over the list and urged that the investment bankers of Cleveland, where I knew there would be a market, be included. I couldn't tell you whether it was just $2,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Substantially that.

Mr. GREENE. Substantially that amount.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall whether the houses that you suggested for participation of $2,000,000 actually received the participation in that actual amount?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1819," appendix, p. 12741.

Mr. GREENE. It is my recollection that they did, possibly slightly more.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think we had better stick to the $2,000,000 figure; that is in the registration statement.

Did you not ask Mr. Tompkins to grant A. G. Becker & Co., of Chicago, a participation of $200,000? Do you recall that?

Mr. GREENE. I believe we did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall whether or not A. G. Becker & Co. was granted such a participation?

Mr. GREENE. I am quite sure they were.

COMPOSITION OF UNDERWRITING SYNDICATE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not the syndicate, as finally constituted, consist of 4 principal underwriters and 10 secondary underwriters, Mr. Greene?

Mr. GREENE. I know it was four principal; I couldn't give you the exact secondary.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you accept my number subject to your further confirmation?

Mr. GREENE. I will.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And of the 4 principal underwriters and the 10 secondary underwriters in the syndicate, did you not select 13?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I couldn't testify that I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Recall your previous testimony. You have been developing this with me.

Mr. GREENE. I know I suggested a good many.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am afraid I shall have to take you over your previous testimony unless you give me a more positive answer. Suppose I repeat my question. Perhaps that will help you, Mr. Greene. I said, if I recall correctly, of the 4 principal underwriters and the 10 secondary underwriters in the syndicate, did you not select 13?

Mr. GREENE. I would have to see the list. I know I selected those that I testified but I don't remember.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then assuming my arithmetic is correct, if your testimony were before you it would add up to 13?

Acting Chairman KING. How did you select, using that term as used by Mr. Nehemkis, just indicate or name them, or go to see them and agree to get them to become part of the syndicate?

Mr. GREENE. They were selected with a view to recognizing past services and also to recognizing what I thought would take care of the market that would exist for these bonds.

Acting Chairman KING. That is to say, to whom did you recommend them, if you made any recommendation?

Mr. GREENE. I recommend those that I thought would be helpful to placing this particular bond, would have some knowledge of the iron-ore business, and in addition those that I thought the company was under some obligation to.

Acting Chairman KING. Were some of them creditors?

Mr. GREENE. Yes.

Mr. O'CONNOR. May I ask, to whom did you recommend?

Mr. GREENE. To Lehman Brothers, the head of the group.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that we have this situation, if I may briefly recapitulate, Mr. Greene. You made suggestions to the syndicate manager concerning the selection of various underwriters and as a result of the various suggestions that were advanced it happened that 13 of your suggestions out of a list of 14 in the ultimate syndicate were accepted, and Mr. Tompkins therefore actually selected but one underwriter, namely Lehman Brothers. Is that correct, sir?

Mr. GREENE. Well, I had no right to select them. I suggested them. I wouldn't say that I selected them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Just a moment, sir. I suggest that you attempt to answer my question. If you don't understand it—

Acting Chairman KING (interposing). I think that is an answer.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think it is an irrelevant, immaterial and inconsequential answer.

Acting Chairman KING. I don't agree at all. You indicated how they were selected and you indicated that 13 of them, did you? What number? And to whom did you indicate their names?

Mr. GREENE. To one of the partners of Lehman Brothers. I think I should explain that for 33 years I was connected with a trust company and most of that time we operated a bond department. Here was a rather unusual bond that pertained to an industry that isn't particularly well known in Wall Street. Now, I was familiar with a group of distributors of securities that did know something about this and all I was attempting to do as the president of the company, the debtor company, was to assist in the wise distributing of those securities. Now, I didn't have the right to dictate; I merely suggested people that I thought would be good people to be purchasers of the bonds.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think the chairman and counsel didn't suggest there was any impropriety in it. The result was there were four principal underwriters and ten others.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is to Mr. Greene's great credit that he was that much interested in this syndicate that he made the suggestions.

Acting Chairman KING. I thought he made the proper selection. Proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that as far as you know Lehman Brothers, the manager of the syndicate, did not select any of the underwriters?

Mr. GREENE. I couldn't name any right now.

THE COMMISSION EARNED

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Greene, will you tell me exactly what Bankers Trust Co. did in this transaction to earn their commission as your agent in organizing and selecting and underwriting a syndicate to float $24,000,000 of bonds?

Mr. GREENE. Do you mean the commission finally paid?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was finally paid.

Mr. GREENE. Well, I will state they were very helpful all the way through in the original deal. They were to secure the purchasers of the entire issue. They took it up with Lehman Brothers and introduced me to that firm. They counseled me about rates of interest, maturities, and so on. In the final financing which we haven't come to, $16,500,000 of bonds and a $5,000,000 bank loan, they placed the $5,000,000 bank loan. A number of times when we were at grips on the negotiations they were helpful not only in their advice to us but they attended the meetings and placed before the investment bankers the situation in a way better than I could. We finally paid them a fee of $25,000, as I recall it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is correct. Mr. Greene, would you be good enough to glance at three letters which my associate will show you and tell me whether you recognize them as true and correct copies of originals in your possession and custody? One is a letter from yourself to Mr. Belden, dated July 5, 1935; another is a memorandum by you, dated June 13, 1935; and the third is a letter by you, dated December 6, 1935.

Mr. GREENE. I do. May I see this a moment?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene, I might say I don't intend to examine you about them. These documents, Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, are offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. Yes. Would one mark do, put them together?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think the reporter prefers they be marked separately.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1822 to 1824." "Exhibits Nos. 1822 and 1823" are included in the appendix on pp. 12746 and 12747. "Exhibit No. 1824" appears in full in the text on p. 12462.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may the witness be dismissed and may I have leave of the committee to call Mr. Tompkins of the Bankers Trusts Company?

Acting Chairman KING. Before leaving the stand, is there any explanation you care to make in addition to those which you have made to counsel respecting matters which he interrogated you concerning?

Mr. GREENE. I would like to make this statement, if I may, to give the members of the committee a chance to see the reason for this gradual change in the situation. Not only were conditions in the iron-ore industry continually improving, but our condition was getting better all the time. Now, we start in with one deal and as general conditions and our particular conditions improved, this deal shifted around, and in the course of the 10 months between the time of its origination and the consummation it was something very different.

It was an entirely satisfactory matter for the company and inasmuch as the bonds sold readily, remained at a slight market premium above and were called at the full call price and refunded into a lower rate, why I think that as far as the company goes I want to go on record as saying it was an extremely happy and fortunate deal.

Acting Chairman KING. Was the entire amount of $25,000,000 ultimately paid?

Mr. GREENE. All paid in full. The total issue as finally concluded was $16,500,000 of bonds and $5,000,000 bank loan. The bank loan, I believe, was a 5-year loan, paid off in half that time. The other issue was paid in full in February of this year and was reduced to a 3½ percent issue and a 2.16 percent 5-year bank loan.

Acting Chairman KING. Were those bonds guaranteed?

Mr. GREENE. No, sir; and they were on Cleveland-Cliffs alone. The two companies are still separate.

Acting Chairman KING. You may retire.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I ask Mr. Greene while he is here—
(Off the record.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I say on behalf of the committee we are deeply grateful to him? He has inconvenienced himself several times to be available to us. I want to express my thanks in the committee's behalf to him.

Acting Chairman KING. Yes. Is he excused?

(Mr. Greene was excused.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. B. A. Tompkins, please take the witness stand.

Acting Chairman KING. Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in this proceeding shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I do.

TESTIMONY OF B. A. TOMPKINS, VICE PRESIDENT, BANKERS TRUST CO., NEW YORK CITY

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. TOMPKINS. B. A. Tompkins, 16 Wall Street.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you not an officer and director of the Bankers Trust Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What position do you hold?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Vice president.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you not also a director of the following companies—the Coronet Phosphate Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The Detroit Edison Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The Otis Elevator Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Babcock & Wilcox Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. International Paper & Power Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. National Aviation Corporation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. U. S. Leather Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Flintkote Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Southern Kraft Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have gone off that?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't think I was ever on that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins, prior to the Banking Act of 1933 did not the Bankers Trust Co. have a security affiliate known as Bankers Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were you not an officer of the Bankers Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And pursuant to the terms of the Banking Act the Bankers Co. was dissolved, was it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Long before the Banking Act was passed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I didn't know that; I am glad to have that. And thereafter, that is to say following the dissolution of the affiliate you became an officer of Bankers Trust Co., did you not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I continued as an officer of the Bankers Trust Co.

Acting CHAIRMAN KING. That is, you have been an officer of the Bankers Trust Co. before the dissolution of the Bankers Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In December of 1935, the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. sold \$16,500,000 first mortgage $4\frac{3}{4}$ percent sinking fund bonds due November, 1950, did they not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Acting Chairman KING. Are you the Mr. Tompkins to whom Mr. Greene referred?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As part of and in addition to this financing, did not Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. borrow $5,000,000 from three banks?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And these were on notes which were due from 1936 through to 1940?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I believe so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Of this sum, was not $2,000,000 borrowed from the Bankers Trust Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And another $2,000,000 from the First National Bank of Chicago?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And $1,000,000 from the Cleveland Trust Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I believe that you have been present in this room during Mr. Greene's testimony, have you not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you hear that testimony?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You followed it?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene's testimony shows that about the middle of January 1935 Cleveland-Cliffs owed about $25,000,000 in short-term loans to various banks. That is correct, is it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that included about $4,000,000 to the Bankers Trust Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Correct.

AGREEMENT OF JANUARY 30, 1935¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, as a result of Mr. Greene's conversation with you, Bankers Trust entered into an agreement with Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. whereby the bank was appointed an agent to form an underwriting syndicate to handle the sale of the proposed $24,000,000 bond issue. Is that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Not necessarily to form an underwriting syndicate. It was to find purchasers for that amount of bonds. It might have taken the form of an underwriting syndicate, but it wasn't the intention for us to make the sales to institutions.

¹ This subject is resumed from p. 12425, supra.

Acting Chairman KING. That is a different document, is it, from the one which you waved?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The one I was referring to in my question and to which the witness referred?

Acting Chairman KING. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No; that is the seven-page legal document¹ we have been referring to.

Acting Chairman KING. That is the one you still call a contract?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, sir.

Mr. Tompkins, I show you a letter which purports to be written from White & Case to your attention, dated January 30, 1935. Will you examine this and tell me whether you recognize it as a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I read from this letter.

Acting Chairman KING. Has Mr. Greene gone?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No; he is here.

Acting Chairman KING. I would like to ask him one question. Excuse the interruption. Come forward, Mr. Greene, I want to ask you one question.

TESTIMONY BY EDWARD B. GREENE, PRESIDENT, CLEVELAND-CLIFFS IRON CO., CLEVELAND, OHIO—Resumed

Acting Chairman KING. You stated that you interlined in that contract, "subject to the approval of the Board." When you went back to the Board, did they approve the instrument?

Mr. GREENE. It is my recollection, Senator, that we were unable to get a quorum, that I discussed this with some of the directors and members of the Executive Committee and we were not able to secure a quorum; and before we could get the quorum, suit was started and the possibility of carrying this out was laid aside, so that while I later reported to the board, everything that was reported to the board was a matter of past history and not as a positive transaction.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read from the letter of January 30, 1935 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1825"]:

Enclosed herewith are several final copies of the proposed letter of appointment of Bankers Trust Company as Agent for The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company . . . and The Cliffs Corporation.

We have examined the enclosed letter of appointment on your behalf and write to advise you that, in our opinion, the same is in satisfactory form and sufficient for the purposes indicated.

The letter is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1825" and is included in the appendix, on p. 12748.)

¹ "Exhibit No. 1819."

TESTIMONY OF B. A. TOMPKINS, VICE PRESIDENT, BANKERS
TRUST CO., NEW YORK CITY—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read to you from paragraph 7, Mr. Tompkins, of the contract of January 30, 1935, to which reference has been previously made [reading from "Exhibit No. 1819"]:

You—

That is to say Bankers Trust Company—are to use your best efforts to secure a group or syndicate of investors who will purchase the entire issue of said bonds as above stated, or who will enter into an underwriting agreement in form acceptable to us—

That is Cleveland-Cliffs—

for the purchase of the entire issue of said bonds. You shall not be liable under any conditions for your failure to secure the group or syndicate referred to above or for the purchase yourselves or for the underwriting of all or any part of said bonds.

Mr. Greene has previously testified that the latter part of that provision was included in the contract mainly at your request. Does Mr. Greene correctly understand the situation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't recall it exactly, but I know that I would want that clause in any agency contract.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Greene has also testified that whether or not the provision was included was not material to his considerations at the time, he was leaving it pretty much to your judgment, do you recall that line of testimony?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; I recall that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you understand by the provision in question that Bankers Trust Co. could in fact take a share on original terms of the bonds underwritten, but that the bank was not liable to Cleveland-Cliffs if it didn't take the bonds?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I didn't understand that we had a right to participate in the underwriting of the bonds. We did have a right in case the bonds were underwritten by investment bankers; if after that fact they were offered to us for investment, we had a right to buy them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene has testified that he was somewhat reluctant to sign the contract at the time, and the testimony in evidence before the committee indicates that he did execute the document mainly upon your insistence. Why did you want him to sign that document prior to his obtaining approval of the board of directors?

Mr. TOMPKINS. The purpose of that document was to set forth clearly what our understanding was, and the type of issue that I was to attempt to sell if I could. I had planned as soon as possible to take this issue of securities to a group of insurance companies, or perhaps to a group of investment bankers, and I wanted two things definitely: First, some evidence of my right to represent the Cleveland-Cliffs Co.; and second, a description of the type of issue that had been given to me to sell if I could.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you felt that you would be better fortified to engage in preliminary negotiations if you had a formal instrument in the way of an agency contract?

Mr. TOMPKINS. An agency contract. As far as Mr. Greene and I were concerned, we didn't need any contract at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Bankers Trust Co., pursuant to the contract, was made an agent because, I presume, under the Banking Act, Bankers Trust could not engage at the time in underwriting activities itself?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, examine, if you will, four documents which are now shown to you, and tell me whether you recognize them to be true and correct copies of originals in your possession.

Acting Chairman KING. Before you answer that, do you recognize the Bankers Trust Co. as an agent for the purpose of carrying out the suggestions contained in that so-called contract?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes, sir.

Yes; I recognize those.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May it please the committee, the documents identified by the witness are offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The documents referred were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1826 to 1829" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12749-12751.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In Mr. Greene's letter to you, Mr. Tompkins, dated February 1, 1935, being Committee's "Exhibit No. 1826," he stated as follows:

We both understand that this is an appointment of the Bankers Trust Company as agent to buy or underwrite a first mortgage and collateral issue of bonds.

You pointed out immediately that Mr. Greene was under a misapprehension in regarding the bank as an underwriter. In committee's "Exhibit No. 1827," your letter of February 4, 1935, you stated as follows:

I have just had your letter of the first. I think that it fairly sets forth our understanding, with this exception. Under the law Bankers Trust Company is prohibited from underwriting. We can, however, act as your agent on a commission basis to find underwriters for the issue.

And again when Mr. Greene wrote to you on May 25, 1935, committee's "Exhibit No. 1828," that—the Bankers Trust Company are willing to include as equal partners in the deal, two or three firms whose participation would be of advantage to the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company—

You again were quick to point out that Bankers Trust Co. was not an underwriter.

On May 28, committee's "Exhibit No. 1829," you wrote:

I am a little concerned as to just how to handle the commission of 1% which under the contract we are to receive for our services. Under the law we cannot become a partner in an underwriting and I will therefore have to make it clear to the houses which eventually constitute the underwriting group that we are acting in an agency capacity for a commission.

You felt, did you not, Mr. Tompkins, that you had to make it quite clear to the investment bankers who might be included in the syndicate that Bankers Trust was not an underwriter?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't know that I felt I had to make that clear to them, because I could assume that they were familiar with the law. I did have to make clear to them that I was acting for the Cleveland-Cliffs Corporation and that a commission was payable to me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You had to make it clear that you were acting as an agent and that was the sole role that you found yourself in and in which you were authorized to act.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is correct.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Nehemkis, have you available there the provision in the Banking Act of 1933 which forbids that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We have requested one of the gentlemen to find the mimeographed copy that was offered in evidence earlier. If that is not available, in the first day's proceedings before the committee there was offered in evidence the relevant portions.

Mr. O'CONNELL. My memory isn't entirely clear, but I wasn't under the impression that the Banking Act merely prohibited underwriting in terms. My impression is that it referred to engaging to any extent—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Or dealing in securities; that is my recollection.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Sometime before we finish with this witness I should like to have it read for my information. It seems to me a little obscure to talk about underwriting if we are referring to the Banking Act of 1933.

Acting Chairman KING. You and your counsel, as you interpreted the Banking Act it did not prevent you or prohibit you from acting as agent for the Cliff Company in finding purchasers for the securities which they had issued?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is the way I was advised by counsel.

Mr. O'CONNELL. May I understand, have you that in a formal opinion from your counsel? Have you a formal opinion from your counsel to the effect that the activities you were engaging in in this instance would not be in violation of the Banking Act of 1933?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; in the form of a letter of transmittal which accompanied the contract which they drew up.

Mr. O'CONNELL. You mean the letter which says [reading from "Exhibit No. 1825"]:

We have examined the enclosed letter of appointment on your behalf and write to advise you that, in our opinion, the same is in satisfactory form and sufficient for the purposes indicated.

Am I to understand that is in response to an inquiry from you as to whether or not this particular transaction was in violation of the Banking Act of 1933?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't know that I made the specific inquiry. I told counsel what the Cleveland-Cliffs Co. had asked us to do, and I asked for a contract or memorandum of agreement to be drawn, and naturally I assumed they would present to me a legal document.

Mr. O'CONNELL. What I am interested in is what consideration you gave to the specific question, which undoubtedly was in the front of your mind, as to whether or not what you were doing was in violation of the Banking Act, and whether or not you asked your lawyers as to whether it was in violation, and whether or not what your lawyers told you is what we have here.

Mr. TOMPKINS. You asked if I had a written document. That is all I have as a written document. I had naturally, upon the passage of the Banking Act, studied it myself and talked about it with counsel. And this contract was in consonance with their advice to me.

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins, in the four letters from which I have read and which are in evidence, reference is made in those letters in various places to the following characterizations of this 7-page document.¹ It is referred to as a "gentlemen's agreement," it is referred to as an "informal contract," and it is referred to as a "contract." Now all of these terms, I take it, do refer to this instrument?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this instrument was approved by counsel, your counsel?

Mr. TOMPKINS. It was drawn by the counsel of both companies—drawn by my counsel with the counsel of Cleveland-Cliffs.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now when Bankers Trust executed this agreement on January 30, 1935, you didn't think that the bank was merely initialing a gentlemen's agreement, did you? You understood that this was at the time a binding and valid agreement, didn't you?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

SELECTION OF UNDERWRITERS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have heard Mr. Greene's testimony in regard to the selection of the underwriters, that of the 14 principal and secondary underwriters, he selected 13. Do you think Mr. Greene accurately understands the role played by Bankers Trust in the selection of the underwriters for the syndicate?

Mr. TOMPKINS. You are dealing now, Mr. Nehemkis, with an operation that wasn't contemplated by that agreement. You are in the second phase of this thing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I have leaped a hurdle and I have gone into the second pasture, and you are right with me.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Greene's testimony on that point, I think, was accurate. He suggested to Lehman Bros., and in some instances to me, the names of houses that he believed would be helpful in this business. I don't think it can be fairly said that he selected them, because the selection was in the last analysis in the hands of Lehman Bros.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes; I will withdraw my use of the term "selection." It is perhaps not quite accurate. He suggested, and the suggestions were followed.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Acting Chairman KING. Were there suggestions made that were not followed? Were any other companies suggested other than the 14 companies to whom counsel has referred?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't know, Senator, I would doubt it. I really don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will have occasion to refer to that later, sir, and you will have a specific answer on it.

Do you recall, Mr. Tompkins, in January of 1935, Hayden, Stone & Co. were negotiating with Mr. W. G. Mather, an important stockholder and director of Cleveland-Cliffs, for the sale of Mr. Mather's holdings of the preferred stock?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I don't remember that. I recall that they were negotiating with Mr. Mather for purchase of Cliffs common.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1819."

HAYDEN, STONE & CO.'S REQUEST FOR AN UNDERWRITING PARTICIPATION

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, when Hayden, Stone learned of the possibility of a bond issue by the Cleveland-Cliffs and of the contract of January 30, did they not ask you for a participation in the proposed underwriting?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I have forgotten the time, but I know they did ask for an interest in the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did they ask you?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter from yourself to Mr. Greene, dated February 2, 1935. Will you examine that letter and tell me if you recognize it to be a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; I remember this.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter is offered in evidence, may it please the committee.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1830" and is included in the appendix on p. 12751.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This is a letter from Mr. Tompkins to Mr. Edward Greene, dated February 2, 1935. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1830":]

This is just to put you up to date on the matter of the purchase of Mr. Mather's stock by Messrs. Hayden Stone et als and our hope that we would be given an opportunity to participate in that purchase.

You will recall that when you told me that Hayden Stone & Co. had been in negotiation on that matter and asked what my point of view would be with reference to ceding that firm an interest in the bond financing, I told you that we would be very happy to offer them an interest. I believe that you advised Mr. Hayden of our attitude on that point. At that time I suggested that I thought it would be very gracious, and helpful to the whole situation, if in return for our offering them an interest in the bond business they offered us an opportunity to join them in their purchase of the stock. It was your feeling that that would make a happy party all around and you expressed that feeling to Mr. Mitchell.

And Mr. Mitchell is Mr. Steele Mitchell at that time at Hayden, Stone?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further]:

You will recall the conversation which you and I had with Messrs. Mather and Belden—

And Mr. Belden is counsel to Mr. Greene, is he not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. He was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (continuing):

just before they were leaving for their final talk with Mr. Mitchell. I pointed out to Mr. Mather that I was unwilling to have my request for a participation in the stock purchase in any way interfere with his selling his stock. I merely pointed out that I thought it would be in the interest of all parties concerned if Hayden, Stone & Co. through Mr. Mitchell offered us an opportunity to share in the purchase.

Mr. Mather and Mr. Belden came to my office late that afternoon and advised me that Mr. Mitchell had stated that the two transactions were separate and distinct, that he was prepared to purchase the full 200,000 shares and that any participation which Hayden Stone & Co. might be offered in the bond issue was a separate matter. I thereupon told Mr. Mather and Mr. Belden what I had already said to you, namely that that attitude on the part of Messrs. Hayden Stone & Co. relieved me from any possible obligation to offer them an interest in the bond purchase. I said that I would immediately telephone Mr. Mitchell and advise him of that fact.

Mr. Tompkins, in this letter from which I have just read, you indicate that you were prepared to offer Hayden, Stone an original position in the bond syndicate in exchange for an original position in their preferred-stock syndicate.

Mr. Tompkins, as agent for Cleveland-Cliffs, to arrange a syndicate for the proposed financing, was it not your duty to find the strongest syndicate, to obtain the best rate of interest and terms for Cleveland-Cliffs?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Exactly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But in this letter from which I have read, it would appear, Mr. Tompkins, that you were attempting to use your position as agent for Cleveland-Cliffs to obtain a trade for Bankers Trust in a deal which was of no possible interest to Cleveland-Cliffs. In other words, you were acting as any underwriter might act under similar circumstances. In short, you were expecting an exchange of reciprocal favors.

Mr. TOMPKINS. You say "it would appear," Mr. Nehemkis. You mean by that, that is the way it would appear to you. It doesn't appear that way to me in the slightest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is what you are here to testify about.

Mr. TOMPKINS. You have asked me the question, and the answer to it is "No."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You think my interpretation is not a correct one?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; and I think I can explain it if you would like to have me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would be very happy to have you.

Acting Chairman KING. Proceed, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. You said you thought it was my function as agent to obtain the best terms I could for my principal, to which I agree. The Cleveland-Cliffs job at that time was not an easy one. The company had lost money, a substantial amount of money, for a number of years. It was not known in the East, it had never come to market for financing. My problem was to try to take the company out of the creditors' committee and arrange to place some $24,000,000 of its bonds, form a syndicate for that purpose, if necessary.

I had formed in a preliminary way a group which I believed could handle the business, consisting of Lehman Bros., Kuhn, Loeb, and Field, Glore, and at that point it was already apparent to me that while they were interested in the business, they themselves were not sure that it could be done. I wanted, of course, to make the business as attractive to them as I could. When Hayden, Stone applied for an interest in the bond business, if it were done, and there was an opportunity to receive from them a participation in a piece of business which they had at their disposal, which I could use in turn for the benefit of the syndicate that I had formed, it was natural in the interest of my principal to do it, and that is what I sought to do. That interest was not for the Bankers Trust Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I beg your pardon, sir. Do I understand you correctly to have testified that at this time, in February 1935, specifically February 2, 1935, that you had already formed an underwriting group consisting of the three firms I have mentioned?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I am not sure I had called them into a meeting, but I knew the firms I was going to select.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't that in conflict with Mr. Greene's previous testimony that he suggested three of the four principal underwriters?

Mr. TOMPKINS. We discussed them together and decided that they would be the right people for the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that you mean to state, then, that after the discussion with Mr. Greene and the passing upon the names, you did the mechanical steps of transmitting that to the group?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I hoped that the service was a little more than mechanical.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I'm sorry, I didn't intend to infer in the use of the word "mechanical" anything other than carrying out your agency duties.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I mean, Mr. Nehemkis, that we discussed the thing among ourselves and decided which houses, in the light of their experience in this particular type of business, would be the best.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, one other point that I would like you to clear up, if you will, which relates to the same matter. Mr. Greene testified, if I recall correctly, that he transmitted suggestions concerning the ultimate make-up of the syndicate to Lehman Bros. Did you both do that?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That was when it became apparent that I couldn't do what I proposed to do at the outset, that is to place $24,000,000 of bonds. The property would not stand that issue. What Mr. Greene was testifying to had to do with a later phase when we were not talking in terms of $24,000,000 of bonds, but Lehman Bros. were going to sell $16,500,000 of bonds. At that stage in the proceedings, he was having discussions with Lehman Bros. about possible participants in the issue with which I had no concern whatsoever.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in the letter from which I had previously read, Committee "Exhibit No. 1830," on February 2, 1935, you also informed Mr. Greene as follows:

Today he—

meaning Steele, Mitchell—

telephoned me that he had discussed the matter with his partners—

that is to say, the partners of Hayden, Stone—and they had decided to offer us no participation in the stock purchase. I said I was sorry but that I would have to accept that and that of course he understood that I had no obligation to offer his firm an interest in the bond matter. He confirmed that that was his understanding.

I regret that Mr. Mitchell and his associates reached that decision, but I could do nothing but accept it. I thought, however, that I should immediately write you and tell you the story.

In other words, Mr. Tompkins, regardless of whether it was good or bad for Cleveland-Cliffs' bond issue, you excluded Hayden, Stone because they had not seen fit to give you, the bank, a participation in their stock purchase?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No, not at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, will you explain to me what the meaning of the two paragraphs from which I have just read is, if it doesn't connote the meaning I have just placed upon those two paragraphs?

Mr. TOMPKINS. It means this, that this was in the early part of February.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. February 2, to be exact, is the date of your letter?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Right. That was shortly after the drafting of this informal contract between Cleveland-Cliffs and the Bankers Trust Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is, January 30, you mean?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right, and this whole thing was in a formative stage. I had in my mind to invite Lehman Bros. to head this syndicate and with them would be associated Kuhn, Loeb and Field, Glore; others might later come in, but not necessarily on original terms. I at that time thought that if Hayden, Stone wanted to come in and make a friendly gesture to those other three houses by giving them an interest through me, if you will, that would make for a very happy party, but all I told Mr. Mitchell, when he declined to do that, was, "Then, will you understand I have no obligation from here in to take you into this business?"

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Assuming that you meant what you said in these last two paragraphs, would you be good enough to explain to me how it was possible, under the terms of the Banking Act, for Bankers Trust to participate in a Hayden, Stone syndicate?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is what I have just pointed out to you; that that interest in the syndicate which you suggested I was taking for Bankers Trust Co. was never contemplated for Bankers Trust Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, you want the committee to understand that in your activity you were merely a conduit by which favors could be exchanged and other arrangements effected which would benefit various parties to the syndicate?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I wouldn't call it the exchange of favors. I would say that I was acting as an agent for the Cleveland-Cliffs Corporation, doing the best I could to get the best terms for them possible.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, now, I want to read back to you once again, if I may, those last two paragraphs. I have identified the personalities involved in here, and I won't do it this time. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1830":]

Today he telephoned me that he had discussed the matter with his partners and they had decided to offer us no participation in the stock purchase. I said that I was sorry but that I would have to accept that and that of course he understood that I had no obligation to offer his firm an interest in the bond matter.

Now, in that statement, assuming that Hayden, Stone had offered you a participation under the proposal then contemplated, you would have been obligated to bring Hayden, Stone into the deal on original terms, would you not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. With the agreement of the other members of that syndicate.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes. Assuming they all agreed. Now, when you made that suggestion to Hayden, Stone, for whom were you acting; for the bank or for Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Cleveland-Cliffs; they were my principal.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But it was of no consequence, was it, to Cleveland-Cliffs whether or not Hayden, Stone offered you an exchange in their stock deal?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Decidedly, because that was to be for the benefit of the other participants in the syndicate; not for the Bankers Trust Co. We couldn't have taken it under the law, anyway.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then why were you making these suggestions, if upon your own admission you could not have taken it under the law?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Because I was doing it for the account of the participants in the syndicate.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now I want to read a bit further, if I may. [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1830":]

He—

Meaning Steele Mitchell—

confirmed that that was his understanding.

I regret that Mr. Mitchell and his associates reached that decision, but I could do nothing but accept it. I thought, however, that I should immediately write you and tell you the story.

Now if I may briefly recapitulate, at the time that Hayden, Stone was interested in the stock transaction and you offered them a participation on original terms in the deal that you were handling as agent, you were acting, you wish the committee to understand, in behalf—

Mr. TOMPKINS (interposing). I hadn't offered them an interest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Beg pardon?

Mr. TOMPKINS. You said I had offered them an interest. I hadn't offered them an interest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You had not offered Hayden, Stone an interest on original terms in the Cleveland-Cliffs transaction in exchange for participation by the bank in the Hayden, Stone stock deal?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Not up until that time they were never offered an interest in it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This letter is dated February 2, and that is the purpose of your letter of transmittal to Mr. Greene. You wrote in the second paragraph of this letter as follows, Mr. Tompkins. [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1830":]

You will recall that when you told me that Hayden Stone & Co. had been in negotiation on that matter and asked what my point of view would be with reference to ceding that firm an interest in the bond financing, I told you that we would be very happy to offer them an interest.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (continuing):

I believe that you advised Mr. Hayden of our attitude on that point. At that time I suggested that I thought it would be very gracious, and helpful to the whole situation, if in return for our offering them an interest in the bond business they offered us an opportunity to join them in their purchase of the stock.

Now that is precisely the way investment bankers talk when they negotiate a deal. That has been the whole tenor of the testimony before this committee which has been received here for the past three weeks or so. Now I repeat again, because I think this is very important, Mr. Tompkins, do you want this committee to understand that at the time you were writing to Mr. Greene, for whom you were authorized to act only as agent, that in this particular transaction you were not acting at the same time for the Bankers Trust Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I certainly do want the committee to understand that.

Acting Chairman KING. Did the Bankers Trust Co. have any interest in the activities which you were carrying on as agent for Mr. Greene's company?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't think I understand, Senator.

Acting Chairman KING. Did the Bankers Trust Co. have anything to do with the work of the syndicate, the placing of those securities which were being issued, or the carrying out of that loan which was made to consolidate those debts which aggregated $25,000,000?

Mr. TOMPKINS. After the bonds were sold to the public there was a bank loan of $5,000,000 that had to be arranged and in that we participated.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I ask a question here, Mr. Chairman, if you are through?

Acting Chairman KING. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. I understand that your response to counsel's question was that you were trying to get this participation in the common stock in order to help carry the deal, and that you were acting as agent for Cleveland Cliffs and not for Bankers Trust?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; that is correct.

Mr. HENDERSON. But the negotiations were by yourself, representing Bankers Trust? You were not acting in an individual capacity as agent, were you?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I was acting as an officer of my bank; the bank was acting as an agent.

Mr. HENDERSON. Did you submit the question of the legality of that action to counsel, also?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Which particular action?

Mr. HENDERSON. This attempt to negotiate a reciprocal obligation with Hayden, Stone's transaction.

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I never discussed it with anyone.

MEANING OF UNDERWRITING AND THE BANKING ACT OF 1933

Mr. HENDERSON. The first paragraph of the Banking Act says:

After one year from the date of the enactment of this Act, no member bank shall be affiliated in any manner described in Section 2b hereof with any corporation, association, business trust, or any other similar organization engaged principally in the issue, flotation, underwriting, public sale, or distribution at wholesale or retail or through syndicate participation of stocks, bonds, debentures, notes, or other securities.¹

Do I understand that you take the position that the Bankers Trust as agent could do the thing that it was not authorized to do by the Banking Act?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I don't take that position. I have always assumed that the bank, although excluded from underwriting, could act as an agent for the account of another.

Mr. HENDERSON. And acting as an agent to perform all the acts that are ordinarily done by an underwriter, except that of taking the risk?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; my conception of my agency responsibility was to get as good terms as I could for my principal. I had to do a lot of things to accomplish that.

¹ The relevant provisions of the Banking Act of 1933 are set forth in "Exhibit No. 1530," Hearings, Part 22, p. 11607.

Mr. HENDERSON. And in doing that you felt that you were within your legal rights to try to get this reciprocal obligation for the common stock?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; I felt I was trying to form a syndicate as successfully as I could, and that if this house of Hayden, Stone had a piece of business which might be attractive to the other houses that I had in mind, as I said in that letter, it would make a very happy party.

Mr. HENDERSON. Why wasn't that something which Lehman Brothers would want? You had already at this time, had you not, selected Lehman Brothers to manage the deal?

Mr. TOMPKINS. If it were ever done; yes; but we were just starting then, Mr. Henderson.

Mr. HENDERSON. I know, but what I would like to get at—I am not so much interested in this single transaction, as you probably perceive—in bringing out an issue by an underwriter there are a number of steps to be performed; there are the various conversations with the issuers, sometimes leading on the part of the underwriter to the engaging of counsel, engineers, appraisers, and accountants. Now, in your opinion, can a bank, acting as agent, go that far?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I think that agency means what the term implies. In this case it was just as if we were given an order to sell $24,000,000 of bonds for the account of Cleveland-Cliffs for a commission.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, that is all right if you were given an order by Cleveland-Cliffs to underwrite. Very plainly, in your opinion, you couldn't do it?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; that would be unlawful.

Mr. HENDERSON. But what I am getting at, where is the line drawn? What are the things in this contract? The thing which you excluded in the written terms was the assumption of the responsibility, and in the succeeding letters you were careful to make it clear that you were acting as agent?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. Now, is there anything else in the transaction of the ordinary underwriting of an issue that a bank can't do, acting as agent? Do you think of anything?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think the bank could, in the first place, get together, say, a group of insurance companies and try to get them to buy the bonds. That was my original intention here. That wasn't possible.

Then the next thing it can do is to get together a group of houses, and it wants to make that group as strong as it can, of course.

Mr. HENDERSON. And if the group takes the issue the bank then buys some of the bonds?

Mr. TOMPKINS. After the issue; yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. But they can buy them from the underwriter?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Buy them from the underwriter, if he will sell them to him.

Mr. HENDERSON. What other things can a bank acting as agent do? Let me suggest one you have indicated here. It can do the thing which an underwriter ordinarily tries to do, or sometimes tries to do—there has been some denial of testimony here—to get reciprocal obligations which will sweeten the contract, or in your terminology, I think it was, to make it a happier party. Now, the bank can do those things can it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think the bank could form a syndicate for the purpose of selling the bonds, and in the formation of that syndicate the bank would be doing nothing improper if it made whatever moves were necessary to get a strong syndicate.

Mr. HENDERSON. And the bank could select the manager and also the subunderwriters?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, it certainly could select the manager.

Mr. HENDERSON. Could it select the subunderwriters?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I should think after it had its basic syndicate as we did in this case of four strong houses, from there on the job was up to the syndicate manager.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you think it could go further and indicate any of the distributors that might take part in the issue?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Oh, I think it could properly suggest to the syndicate manager that this certain house, Smith, Jones & Co., be given an interest in the business.

Mr. HENDERSON. So it could act in a cooperative capacity with the underwriters in determining what the distribution line should be?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; not that. I meant that just as a bank would do for any of its clients in any of its business, it would suggest to an underwriter that it would like to have such and such a name included. I don't think that after it passed—after the formation of the syndicate and there is a manager selected, then I think the bank steps out of the picture.

Mr. HENDERSON. How about a stabilizing operation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. The bank can't participate in that.

Mr. HENDERSON. Can't participate under the terms of the '33 act or of the Exchange Acts?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think that certainly under the Banking Act it couldn't.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, it can take a fee as an agent for performing all these things?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Not all of them, Mr. Commissioner. I think it can take a fee for finding the buyer for an issue.

Mr. HENDERSON. It can get a finder's fee? In this case it wasn't a matter of finding; the business walked into the office, in a way, didn't it? I mean isn't that—

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't think a finder's fee would accurately define what this was.

Mr. HENDERSON. But it could take a finder's fee, you think?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't know; I have never had that experience.

Mr. HENDERSON. In your experience no one of your clients has said, "We will pay you a fee"? Or you haven't had the experience in which you have said to a banking house, "One of our accounts is in need of financing and we think you ought to look into the business" and if they get the business, pay you a fee? You haven't had any experience like that?

Mr. TOMPKINS. We have done that on several occasions, but without suggesting any fee for it; just service to the depositor.

Mr. HENDERSON. Let me ask you this, before the manager of the syndicate is selected, can the bank, acting as agent, suggest the secondary group?

Mr. TOMPKINS. It could if it were asked to by the manager of the syndicate.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, could it, before the manager was selected, pick out the secondary group and then after it selected the manager say, "This is the secondary group"?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, I think that it would perhaps be going beyond what it was asked to do by its principal if it did more than just get the first group.

AUTHORITY TO SELECT THE UNDERWRITING SYNDICATE

Mr. HENDERSON. But this seven-page document ¹ that Mr. Nehemkis was waving at Senator King said, I understand, that you would use your best efforts. Now, would "best efforts" to you indicate the secondary group? Do you think that the bank acting as agent would select them even before they had determined on the principal underwriter?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think that it would have used its best efforts successfully to have gotten the commitment group, the original group; then the question of the secondary group for distribution would be up to the syndicate manager.

Mr. HENDERSON. Now, in this negotiation you had with Hayden, Stone, you were asking this reciprocal obligation as a quid pro quo for letting them in on original terms, not in the secondary group.

Mr. TOMPKINS. For suggesting them to Lehman Bros. who had already been selected as the head. I couldn't dictate the inclusion or exclusion of Hayden, Stone.

Mr. HENDERSON. You say you couldn't, maybe by that seven-page document, but you did. The very letter ² that you wrote to Mr. Greene recites that you did, and then they understood that they were being excluded because they wouldn't come across with the common stock.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That letter showed that I would be under no obligation to them to offer them an interest.

Mr. HENDERSON. Obligation as an agent?

Mr. TOMPKINS. As an agent.

Mr. HENDERSON. Acting for C. C. I.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes. If, however, Lehman Bros. and Kuhn, Loeb for reasons of their own, or the corporation, wanted them in the business, and they were prepared to make a commitment, of course they could come in.

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes; but did you discuss with Lehman Bros. at that time this reciprocal obligation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No, not at all; I had nothing to discuss.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, you did have something to discuss in the way of getting this reciprocal obligation, because when Mather was going over it you told him what you thought ought to be the terms on which they came in, and they came back and said the two transactions were separate.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. HENDERSON. Then you went further and talked a bit with him and said, "You take this attitude, you are not in the bond issue."

Mr. TOMPKINS. But you asked if I discussed it with Lehman.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1819."

² "Exhibit No. 1830."

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes. You said you had nothing to discuss, but you were discussing this particular item, and at the same time you had selected Lehman.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I had nothing to discuss with Lehman Bros. because there was no stock interest to offer to Lehman Bros. The matter was closed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The point at issue, however, Mr. Tompkins, is that the manager was very much concerned, or should have been very much concerned, as to who the manager's associates were, and you might have been in a position of having brought in a house that might not have been acceptable to the manager. Such, of course, was not the case, but that is the logic of your position. That is what the Commissioner, I believe, is asking about.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't know that I follow that.

Mr. HENDERSON. You had already selected Lehman, had you not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. To head it up, that is right.

Mr. HENDERSON. And now you were, as agent, going into a negotiation which admittedly is usually undertaken by the principal for the reciprocal obligation. If you had gotten that, then Hayden Stone would have been in whether Lehman wanted it or not.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Oh, no; not at all. It was entirely up to them.

Mr. HENDERSON. I thought you had the right to negotiate there, you were acting as agent and presumably you could make a commitment.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Our job as agent was to form a group sufficiently strong to make a commitment.

Mr. HENDERSON. You take the position, then, that if you had gone through with Hayden, Stone and they had given you the common stock participation, Lehman Bros. could have thrown it down?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Of course, because it was for them to accept, not me; it wasn't for the Bankers Trust Co. I would have gone, in that event, Mr. Commissioner, to Lehman Bros., Kuhn, Loeb, Field, Glore, and said, "Hayden, Stone & Co. would like to come in this business and they are doing a piece of common-stock business and there is participation in that which will be available to you all if you want it." Now they may have said, "Well, we are not interested in their common-stock deal, nor do we want them in this business."

Mr. O'CONNELL. What about Cleveland-Cliffs? Could Cleveland-Cliffs have required the syndicate manager to bring in this other firm?

Mr. TOMPKINS. As a practical matter they could have, because if they made the request it was a responsible house.

Mr. O'CONNELL. As an equally practical matter you were in the same position as Cleveland-Cliffs, were you not? You were their agent?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I was acting as their agent.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Could you not have done anything Cleveland-Cliffs could have done, as a practical matter, as far as dictating who could have been in the syndicate?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think so, in the light of the names of the houses involved.

Mr. O'CONNELL. It doesn't seem to me that your position is distinguishable from that of Cleveland-Cliffs. You operated as their agent with power to act; you could dictate who would be in the syndicate. You dictated the manager, I mean you selected the manager.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I selected the manager. You have to have a place to start from. But as a matter of fact, after the selection of a manager and in the formation of syndicates it isn't a matter of dictation, it is a matter of mutual agreement. You are dealing with responsible houses.

Acting Chairman KING. The manager of Lehman Bros. could have rejected any person participating in the syndicate if they desired to.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Oh, yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. But you as an agent could have rejected Lehman Bros., too, could you not? You were the top man in this thing.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I suppose I could have, theoretically.

Mr. HENDERSON. You were the one who had the contract.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; but after having invited Lehman Bros. to head up this syndicate and told them of my contractual relationship with Cleveland-Cliffs and discussed the other members which I had in mind I can't see at that point that I could very well have dropped it.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, speaking legally you could.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Legally I could have.

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes; that is what I mean.

Mr. TOMPKINS. But practically, no; I don't think I would have.

Acting Chairman KING. If you had suggested someone that Lehman Bros. didn't want, they might have refused to take charge?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Oh, absolutely.

Acting Chairman KING. In other words, your suggestion that A, B, or C might be included in the syndicate didn't compel them to accept them, and if you had made the request or if Mr. Greene had made the request that they take A, B, or C into the syndicate and Lehman Bros. had said "no," why, perhaps they might have withdrawn the commitment to Lehman Bros. if it hadn't been reduced to writing or hadn't become a concrete contract; nevertheless, Lehman Bros. could have rejected their suggestions, and they could have been bound by Lehman Bros.' action in the matter.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. HENDERSON. Let me ask you this: Do the officers of Bankers Trust sit in on discussions with underwriters and issuers or depositors of Bankers Trust?

Mr. TOMPKINS. We sit in with the borrowers, with the issuer.

Mr. HENDERSON. You sit in as banker to the borrower.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. HENDERSON. In negotiations with the underwriters?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Not necessarily; not always in negotiations.

Mr. HENDERSON. But in discussion.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. Did you take a fee for that?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; this is the only instance I know of where a fee was even suggested.

Mr. HENDERSON. But if this long series of things we have been through is correct, there is nothing to prevent, legally, a bank from engaging in a large number of the activities which are ordinarily the function of an underwriter.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes. I have never seen it work in practice—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). No; because of the risk-taking in that respect. The thing which an issuer wants is that guarantee, of course, to buy.

Mr. TOMPKINS. If the issuer is a depositor of the bank he certainly has the right to come to the bank and ask advice on a proposed issue, and that we give him.

Acting Chairman KING. The committee will stand adjourned until 2:30.

(Whereupon, at 12:40 p. m., the committee recessed until 2:30 o'clock p. m. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

At 2:30 p. m. the committee resumed its session, after the noon recess.

Acting Chairman HENDERSON. The committee will be in order.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins, will you please resume the witness stand?

No action was taken, Mr. Tompkins, with regard to the proposed bond issue between February 7 and May 3 because as Mr. Greene testified this morning the suit brought by the Department of Justice to restrain the merger of Republic Steel and Corrigan-McKinney; is that your recollection, sir?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; I think we were doing our analytical work on the property, and so on.

Mr. HENDERSON. Off the record. (Making inquiry.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. After the decision had been reached in this case negotiations were once more resumed, were they not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And by June 6 the underwriters had been selected?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I would say about that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the underwriters were Lehman Bros., Field, Gore, Kuhn, Loeb, and Hayden, Stone?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter by yourself dated June 6, 1935. Will you be good enough to examine this document and tell me whether you recognize it as a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody, Mr. Tompkins?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document as identified by the witness is offered in evidence, may it please the committee.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. The document will be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1831" and appears in the appendix on p. 12752.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now did not the four investment banking firms meet in your office on or about June 28 to agree upon the terms of the bond issue?

Mr. TOMPKINS. They met in my office, but I don't think at that time set the terms at all.

DISCUSSION OF UNDERWRITING TERMS, JUNE 28, 1935

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a letter dated July 9, 1935, from Mr. Lewis Strauss, addressed to you, together with a memorandum by Mr. Strauss. Will you be good enough to examine it and tell me whether you recognize it as a true copy?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May it please the committee, the two documents identified by the witness are offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. They will be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1832 and 1833" and are included in the appendix on p. 12753.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read to you from the last paragraph of the letter dated July 9, 1935, from Mr. Strauss to yourself [reading from "Exhibit No. 1832"]:

As you may recall I made a memorandum at our last meeting in your office of my understanding of the agreement which we had reached and read it to the group. It is now a part of my office record and I am enclosing a copy of it herewith.

And then there is attached to the document identified by you, and now in evidence, the following memorandum, prepared by Lewis Strauss. For the sake of the record, Mr. Lewis Strauss is a partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The memorandum reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1833—"]:

The following memorandum of conclusions reached at meeting in the office of Mr. B. A. Tompkins of Bankers Trust Company on June 28, 1935—

That was the date, you recall, I asked you about a moment ago—jotted down by me at the time and read to those present, being—Messrs. B. A. Tompkins, Robert Lehman, Monroe Gutman, Russell Forgan, John Fennelly, Richard Morris, Lewis L. Strauss.

"A group is formed to do financing for a company proposed to be organized by the consolidation of Cliffs Corporation and Cleveland-Cliffs Company, to consist of Messrs. Lehman Brothers, Field, Glore & Co., Hayden, Stone & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., each party to the group to have an equal interest of 25%; if any other parties are admitted to the business they are to receive participations made up pro-rata from the shares of the participants and are to be admitted only upon general concurrence. Lehman Brothers are to manage the initial business; subsequent leadership is to rotate; Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to be silent members of the group, that is to say their name is to appear where legally required in the Registration Statement and in the body of the Prospectus (not the front page of the Prospectus or advertising) and on the last line in each instance and in no other documents without their consent.

"Lehman Brothers and the Bankers Trust Company are to receive under the agreement with Mr. Greene, $\frac{1}{2}\%$ each from the Company—not to be a cost to the business—but Lehman Brothers' $\frac{1}{2}\%$ may be in the nature of a management fee if legally necessary to so arrange it. No precedent of management fee is to be applicable to subsequent business.

"The stock collateral when, as and if liquidated is to be handled by the group as a whole."

Initialed "L. L. S.," being the initials of Lewis L. Strauss.

(Senator King took the chair.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. According to this memorandum, Mr. Tompkins, you had agreed to divide your 1 percent agent's fee with Lehman Brothers, the manager of the syndicate. Is that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. It is and isn't.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In what respect isn't it correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. In this respect: By that time it had become obvious that we could not do a first-mortgage and collateral-trust issue, that we would have to do two issues, and that I was not going to be able to make the arrangement that was contemplated in the January contract. I, therefore, agreed with Mr. Greene that my commission should be reduced by 50 percent, and he in turn agreed to pay half of 1 percent to Lehman Brothers as managers of the syndicate. I wasn't splitting my fee; I was taking a lower fee and he was making another arrangement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This morning there was marked for identification committee "Exhibit No. 1823." I want to read to you from a memorandum written by Mr. Greene on June 13, 1935 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1823"]:

Mr. Tompkins then went on to state that they had discussed the matter of a 1½ commission and had agreed to this arrangement: that the Bankers Trust Company would keep ½% for themselves out of which they would pay White & Case's bill up to the present time and also White & Case or any other firm who did the legal work drawing the issue and protecting the interests of the Bankers Trust Company as trustee of the bond issue. He stated—that the other ½% would be paid to Lehman Bros. for their assuming the leadership of the purchasing group.

Referring to Mr. Tompkins—

Now, just so that the record may be thoroughly clear, is it a fact that that the total 1 percent was shared by you with Lehman Brothers?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; it was a fact that the Cleveland Cliffs Co. paid me a half and paid Lehman Brothers a half; I didn't share it with Lehman Brothers. Perhaps we both mean the same thing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I rather think we do.

POSITION OF BANKERS TRUST UNDER AGREEMENT OF JUNE 28, 1935

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would this be a fair conclusion for me to draw from the memorandum embodying the agreement reached by the investment banking firms: that the Bankers Trust, having started out as an agent, in order to avoid conflict with the Banking Act, ended up by becoming co-manager of an underwriting syndicate, the very thing the law sought to prohibit?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; that would not be a correct conclusion.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then I ask you to state wherein the conclusion is unsound.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Because the Bankers Trust Co. never departed from its agency position; it never had a dollar of commitment in this situation, and never proposed to take one unless it might, after the bond issue had been made into a public offering, elect to buy some bonds.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins, I recall to your attention, if I may, the following statement by Mr. Strauss, who in this memorandum submitted to you apparently embodied the general understanding reached by the banking group [reading from "Exhibit No. 1833"]:

Lehman Brothers and the Bankers Trust Co. are to receive under the agreement with Mr. Greene, ½% each from the Company—not to be a cost to the business—but Lehman Brothers' ½% may be in the nature of a management fee if legally necessary to so arrange it.

Now, if you weren't in effect and for all practical purposes acting, whether consciously or unconsciously—don't misunderstand, I do not allege any impropriety on your part as co-manager of this issue, why was it necessary for Mr. Lewis Strauss, who I think is a very careful draftsman in these matters, to state—

but Lehman Brothers' $\frac{1}{2}\%$ may be in the nature of a management fee if legally necessary to so arrange it.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't know what was in Mr. Strauss' mind, but what that memorandum meant to me was that a syndicate having been formed and a manager having been selected, that manager was entitled to a management fee, that he was to get from the company, and it was to be his to the exclusion of the other participants. It had no relationship whatsoever to my job, the job I had done in forming the syndicate, because once that was formed then it had to be managed, and the management of a syndicate involves getting participants setting up selling groups, arranging concessions. I had nothing to do with that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think I understand that and I think the committee does. May I ask you to recall the concluding paragraph of Mr. Strauss' letter to you, in which he said as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1832"]:

As you may recall, I made a memorandum at our last meeting in your office of my understanding of the agreement which we had reached and read it to the group.

The group consisted of yourself, Mr. Robert Lehman, Mr. Monroe Gutman, Mr. Russell Forgan, Mr. John Fennelly, Mr. Richard Morris, Mr. Lewis L. Strauss. I think it is a fair inference, is it not, Mr. Tompkins, that had there been any dissent on the part of any of those members Mr. Strauss would not have been at liberty to send you a copy of his office memorandum. That is a fair interpretation, is it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, will you explain to me, if you can, why it was necessary for Mr. Strauss to insert that peculiar language—

but Lehman Brothers' $\frac{1}{2}\%$ may be in the nature of a management fee if legally necessary to so arrange it.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That I can't answer, I don't know why he put that in.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Tompkins, taken together with Mr. Greene's understanding of this 1 percent that was being split, is the inference a natural one that what was being done was that either the agency fee was being split or the management fee was being split? It is that 1 percent contained in your original contract that was being divided, was it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; the 1 percent, so far as the company was concerned, was going to be paid one-half to me and one-half to somebody else. There was a reason for that, which was obvious because it was already apparent—it had been long before June—that we couldn't perform under that contract; that this property wouldn't stand $24,000,000 in bonds; that I couldn't take them and sell them to an insurance company or a group of insurance companies.

We had to adopt an entirely different scheme, and we discussed 10 or 12 before we reached this final one, and I didn't want the existence of that contract or the requirement on the part of the company that paid me 1 percent, or any other amount, to interfere with the conclusion of that business. When the time came that Lehman Brothers felt if they were going to act as manager, they wanted a special fee for that, and Mr. Greene was prepared to pay that; I said all right.

Mr. HENDERSON. Pay it out of your 1 percent?

Mr. TOMPKINS. If you view it in that way, it was out of that 1 percent.

Mr. HENDERSON. According to Mr. Strauss' memorandum,¹ the only reason they called it a management fee was that it was legally necessary so to arrange it. That would mean that either you had been performing some of the managerial duties imposed on an underwriter or else Lehman, because you say he could not arrange it within the terms you expected so you couldn't complete your agency, was getting a half percent for taking over some of the agency's responsibility.

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I don't think that follows, Mr. Commissioner. A syndicate manager doesn't start to work until the syndicate is formed. That half of 1 percent to Lehman Brothers was to compensate them in the management position.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do I understand by that—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). Pardon me, I think we went through this morning the things which a manager does, and it seemed to me that the agent in your case was doing some of them. Independent of the legal niceties in this particular case, and whether a management fee was being split or an agency fee was being split, it is evident that if you wanted to call it one thing you could really have a bank getting an overwriting fee. Isn't that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; the bank would still be getting a fee for acting as an agent.

Mr. HENDERSON. Then you can call it an agent; that is, a bank can constitute itself an agent. Let's take the case of an issue. If a bank has a customer, a depositor, who needs some financing, in the old days you would take it over in the other department—in your case you could take it over to the company—and legally you could underwrite the issue, and no questions would be raised at all. Now, assuming there is a continued close relationship on the banking end, the same circumstances present themselves; on account of the age-old relationship to the company, the bank performs almost all the functions that it used to in the old days.

If it is willing to take an agency contract, it could get what in effect is a split in the management fee, could it not, and still be within its legal terms?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; because the syndicate manager would require, as Lehman Brothers in this instance, full pay for their services as manager.

Mr. HENDERSON. They might get their full pay, because the management fee differs, as I have had occasion to note here recently; sometimes there was no management fee and sometimes it is a quarter, sometimes it is an eighth, and sometimes it is three-eighths. It might reasonably be, in troublesome issues, even higher. But I am assuming a good old rock-bound case, where the company was not put to a tremendous amount of expense, where the bank itself—well, maybe all they did was pick out the historical underwriters and take it over to an underwriting house and say: "The company will stand for an overwriting here of a quarter of a per cent. We have done all the work, we will take an agency contract in this thing, and we will take one-half that quarter per cent management fee."

¹ "Exhibit No. 1833."

That would be perfectly possible, would it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That could be done. Of course, it isn't done.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It was done in the case we are discussing.

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; but you mustn't confuse that with the type of case that Mr. Henderson was discussing. He said a good old rock-bound company.

Mr. HENDERSON. Take the same set of circumstances. Suppose the bank did all the work; suppose it said, "Give us the trust business, and give us the payment business, and give us a deposit with a compensating balance for our trouble." That would be perfectly legal, would it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. HENDERSON. And isn't that the kind of thing that happens nowadays, rather than a splitting of a management or agency fee?

Mr. TOMPKINS. This is the only case, Mr. Commissioner, that I have heard of where an agency arrangement was ever worked out.

Mr. HENDERSON. But more likely it would be on the other basis, that is, the usual banking emoluments that come with an issuance.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Trusteeship and compensating balances, and so on. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, the agreement between the underwriters, Mr. Tompkins, according to the conference memorandum sent to you by Mr. Strauss, contained two major points. First, that that group consisting of the four houses previously mentioned was to handle all future financing for Cleveland-Cliffs; and the second point was that any of those four underwriters had the power to "blackball" the admission to the group of any new underwriters.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is a rather strong statement. This is not a club.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I shall read you the exact phrase if you hesitate about the word "blackball."

Mr. HENDERSON. I agree with the witness.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am not so sure, Mr. Commissioner.

The statement¹ reads that participants "are to be admitted only upon general concurrence." Now, if I understand that correctly, it means that a new members of the group could only be admitted after those four houses approved and any one of the four by disapproving could exclude any other house.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think that is a much kinder way to express it.

Mr. HENDERSON. Put it that they had the veto power.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Surely. I think that is normal.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words this account, Cleveland-Cliffs, had already become, in the words of Mr. Charles E. Mitchell, a "frozen account," and "the boys were already dividing up something they didn't own." in the words of Mr. H. L. Stuart?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, you had better ask Mr. Stuart or Mr. Mitchell to testify on that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They have done so already. On the same day as this conference you wrote to Mr. Greene, outlining the terms of the syndicate. I show you a letter from yourself to Mr. Greene, dated June 28, 1935. Tell me, if you will, sir, whether that is a true and correct copy?

¹ "Exhibit No. 1833."

Mr. TOMPKINS. This is from me to Greene; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document identified by the witness, may it please the committee, is offered in evidence.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1834" and is included in the appendix on p. 12754.)

Now it would appear, Mr. Tompkins, that Mr. Greene was very disappointed with your construction of the contract terms as set forth in your letter of June 28, to which reference has just been made, being committee "Exhibit No. 1834"?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I just glanced at the letter; I didn't read it. I just identified it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins, would you examine the letter dated July 2, 1935, from Mr. Greene to yourself, and tell me whether that is a true copy?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; I identify it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter identified by the witness, Mr. Chairman, is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It will be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1835" and is included in the appendix on p. 12755.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read to you from the third paragraph of Mr. Greene's letter to you under date of July 2, 1935 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1835"]:

I am disappointed, however, in the last paragraph on the first page in which you state the terms upon which the bonds will be handled.

Note the next sentence, if you will, Mr. Tompkins:

Your statement is, of course, a wide departure from our contract.

And I call your attention to the date of this letter, July 2, 1935, so that despite the testimony of Mr. Greene this morning in which he referred to this as an informal agreement, a gentlemen's agreement, as late as July 2, 1935, he did refer to it as a contract.

Continuing, Mr. Tompkins [reading further]:

But even considering it as an offer to substitute a new plan, it is not satisfactory. Under our present understanding, the price of the bonds is set at par for a 5% bond, less 1% commission, but with the usual clause that if market conditions change to a marked degree, the price is to be adjusted to a figure which is satisfactory to both parties. According to your letter of June 28 you reserve the right to buy the bonds at the best price which in the opinion of the group can be obtained at the time the issue is ready to go to the market. In other words, this would give us no part in determining the price at which the bonds are to be bought. If we are to depart from the contract provision that you are to take the bonds at par less 1% commission, it seems to me our arrangement should at least provide that the price at which the bonds will be bought will be mutually satisfactory.

And again note what Mr. Greene says in his following paragraph. Mr. Tompkins [reading further]:

Also the sentence in which you say that we can depend upon it that the public price will be fair to our company "and the syndicate spread equally fair" is open to the further objection that this clause apparently reserves to the group the sole right to determine what is fair in respect to these matters and would give us no voice in agreeing upon the syndicate spread. I think in respect to both of these vital matters, if they are to be left open to be determined in the future, it must be at prices and upon terms which are mutually satisfactory to the parties.

In a memorandum identified by Mr. Greene this morning, being committee's "Exhibit No. 1822," Mr. Greene wrote as follows—

Acting Chairman KING (interposing). Did you want to ask any question concerning the matter to which you just directed his attention?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No; I am proceeding with the same line of questioning now [reading from "Exhibit No. 1822"]:

I am more than ever convinced that Tompkins' idea is to string this along, writing indefinite letters, trying to get us up to August 12th without reaching any decision.

Now, why was the date August 12 significant? Was that the date on which the loan extension would terminate, Mr. Tompkins?

Mr. TOMPKINS. It has no significance in my memory.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It doesn't recall anything to you at all?

Mr. TOMPKINS. In fact, I think the bank loans were to mature in January 1936, as I remember it.

MEMORANDUM OF JULY 8, 1935

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a memorandum by yourself dated July 8, 1935. Will you be good enough to identify it for me, please? Is that a true and correct copy, Mr. Tompkins, of an original?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document identified by the witness is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1836" and appears in full in the text.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now read you the memorandum in question. This is for Mr. Monroe Gutman, Mr. Lewis Strauss, Mr. R. L. Morris, and Mr. Russell Forgan, from you to these gentlemen, dated July 8, 1935. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1836":]

1. It is agreed that in any future financing no originating commission shall be paid to Bankers Trust Company or to any other member of the group.

2. It is agreed that in any future financing leadership shall rotate as between the houses appearing in the circular and in the advertising. On any issue which follows the one now contemplated either Hayden Stone or Field Glorie will lead. Assumedly they will match for first position and the loser in that instance will automatically become head of any subsequent issue.

3. White & Case will act as counsel for the Trustee and Messrs. Lehman Brothers have suggested that Sullivan & Cromwell act as counsel for the bankers.

If the above is according to your understanding kindly initial and return one copy of this memorandum and retain the other for your files.

Did you receive confirmations from Kuhn, Loeb?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I assume that I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And from the other bankers as well?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I assume so.

Mr. LUBIN. Mr. Tompkins, was there any arrangement with the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co. when this issue was arranged as to future financing? Apparently, judging from these memoranda, such arrangements were made.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; this group was to do any future financing for Cleveland Cliffs.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, that was part of the contract, that if they wanted to do any financing in the future they would use the same group.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The original plans for the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. merger with Cliffs Corporation contemplated by the contract of January 30, 1935, in the subsequent negotiations fell through, is that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And accordingly you released Mr. Greene from his obligation of his January 30 contract.

Mr. TOMPKINS. For that and a lot of other reasons, not just on that technicality.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a memorandum dated August 28, 1935, written by an associate of yours, Mr. Dana Kelley. Do you recognize that as a true copy of an original in your possession and custody, Mr. Tompkins?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This document, identified by the witness, Mr. Chairman, is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1837" and is included in the appendix on p. 12756.)

ARRANGEMENTS AS OF OCTOBER 28, 1935

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On October 28, 1935, was not a new plan of financing worked out, one that did not depend upon a merger of Cleveland-Cliffs with Cliffs Corporation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. At about that time; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And were not the participants in the financing and their interests set forth in letters by Lehman Bros. on or about October 28, 1935?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Don't hold me to the date; I don't remember. About that time; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not this the same group of investment banking firms as had previously been determined upon and acting under the terms as set forth in the first bankers' agreement?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I wish to offer in evidence at this time three letters to which reference has been made, covered by a stipulation entered into with me by Lehman Bros. under date of January 5, 1940.

Acting Chairman KING. They are explanatory of some of the matters to which reference has been made?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, sir; and this avoids calling one of the partners here, wasting his time, and so forth.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1838 to 1842" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12757-12759.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. There will be offered later three further documents covered by the same stipulation. At the time they are offered in evidence I will indicate that they are covered by the stipulation under which the committee has received these documents in evidence. They are signed by Lehman Bros.

Mr. Tompkins, when the $16,500,000 bond issue was offered in December, each of the four principal underwriters had participations of about $3,575,000, did they not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Greene had requested that A. G. Becker & Co., of Chicago, be included, had he not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't remember that specifically. I think he made quite a few suggestions.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall whether this firm actually was given a participation of $200,000?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I don't recall; but there is a list of the participants there somewhere.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You requested, did you not, Mr. Tompkins, that Lehman Bros. give a participation to C. D. Barney & Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I may have, but I don't remember. I may have.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you accept my statement as being correct, subject to your confirmation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Sure.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It would appear that unlike Mr. Greene's request, your request was not approved and C. D. Barney was not given a participation; do you recall that?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This document which I am about to refer to falls under the stipulation and is "Exhibit No. 1842."

Acting Chairman KING. Mr. Witness, are you interested in any particular firm or firms being brought into the syndicate, or was your principal interest, or your sole interest, concerned in getting adequate and competent underwriters or members of the syndicate so that the necessary financing for the Greene organizations might be consummated?

Mr. TOMPKINS. My first interest was to have a group of original houses financially responsible for the size of the commitment. After that I had no further interest.

Acting Chairman KING. You felt that your agency was practically completed when a syndicate was formed which consisted of persons or groups or corporations competent to handle maturing obligations and to take the companies out of the hands of the court, receivers, whatever position they were in, and make them going concerns?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Acting Chairman KING. Were those companies—this is for my own information; it may not be relevant, strictly—in a bad way and had they been for some time, which resulted in receivership?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Cleveland-Cliffs?

Acting Chairman KING. Yes.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Cleveland-Cliffs had escaped receivership. It was in the hands of a creditors committee. It owed, roughly, $25,000,000 at the bank on short-term notes.

Acting Chairman KING. Were those commitments spread over a number of banks?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think about seven banks. It had made very substantial losses in the 3 or 4 years preceding this arrangement. It was a God-awful mess.

Acting Chairman KING. Was it important that something be done in order to save them from sale by some of their creditors?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; I don't think they were in danger of that, but what they had done, Senator, was to buy a long-term asset with short-term borrowing and they were constantly at the jeopardy of those short notes, and Mr. Greene very wisely worked toward a refunding of that short maturity into longer term bonds.

Acting Chairman KING. Well, I understood from you or Mr. Greene, or both, that the $26,000,000 was too large an obligation for the syndicate to assume, and so it was reduced down to $16,000,000, and then a $5,000,000 loan was made to the bank; the $16,000,000 was dealt with by the issuing of bonds or securities.

Mr. TOMPKINS. As a mortgage issue; yes, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. Now, what became of the residue of the obligation between the $16,000,000, the $5,000,000 cash, and the $25,000,000?

Mr. TOMPKINS. The Cleveland-Cliffs Co. not only operated its own properties, but it was the holder through subsidiaries of various substantial blocks of stock of steel companies, Republic Steel, Otis Steel, Wheeling Steel. The plant account of Cleveland-Cliffs stood at about $29,000,000. These underwriters, therefore, determined that they could only put a first-mortgage bond on that plant account to the extent of about $16,500,000, or we will say 50 percent of the plant value, roughly. It had in addition to its plant some $11,000,000 market value of steel stocks which it had in its portfolio, so we lifted that block of steel stocks out of the portfolio and made those stocks the collateral for the $5,000,000 bank loan.

Now, the difference that you mentioned was made up of the gradual sale of enough of those steel stocks to provide the cash for the difference.

Acting Chairman KING. Did these negotiations in which you have been the agent result in the saving of the company and its emancipation from its obligation so that it went on as a going concern?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is the history of Cleveland-Cliffs. It is today a successful, going concern.

Acting Chairman KING. Did you, as an agent, obtain more than one-half of the 1 percent which was to be paid for the services to be rendered in obtaining the necessary financial resources?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No, Senator. Perhaps I can make this clearer if I say that when Mr. Greene came to us in January of 1935, the situation was as desperate as the figures indicated. During the year 1935, as we came up to the fall, it was constantly improving. Not only was the earnings picture of Cleveland-Cliffs itself better, but the price of the steel stocks which was in its portfolio was constantly increasing.

Whereas in January he had contemplated selling a 5-percent bond issue to the extent of $24,000,000, 9 or 10 months later, in November of '35, he sold 4¾-percent bond issue, and he arranged a bank loan of 4¾ percent, and in the interim he sold some steel stocks and relieved the pressure on him in that way. But because a great many things had not happened which it was contemplated would happen when that so-called contract was drawn, namely, the merger of Cliffs Corporation and Cleveland-Cliffs, which never took place and never has taken place, that was one. The beginning of the Government suit that we didn't contemplate at the time in connection with B public and Corrigan, McKinney. Mr. Greene and I by mutual agreement decided to forget that contract. It was never executed in finality, and after this job was completely done Mr. Greene said to me, I think it was in October 1935, "Now, it looks as if this job is about finished. You have arranged this syndicate for us, and they are prepared to make a commitment. You have arranged a bank loan for us which is to be secured by these steel stocks. We have spent endless days and weeks on this thing, and you have been helpful, and while we both agree that we are going to forget this contract, I would like to pay you something for your time."

I said, "That is quite all right with me, and you can write your own ticket."

He said, "I would like to make you a payment of $25,000."

I said, "All right"; and that is what he paid me.

The 1 percent called for in that contract was never paid.

BANK LOAN OF $5,000,000

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As one of the conditions of the bond issue, did not Cleveland-Cliffs agree to borrow $5,000,000 from three banks, which, together with the proceeds of the bond issue, would refund all of the outstanding bank loans?

Mr. TOMPKINS. By that time they were down to about twenty-one million-odd. They had sold some steel stocks.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer in evidence an extract from the loan agreement between Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., Bankers Trust Co., Cleveland Trust Co., and the First National Bank of Chicago with reference to a loan of $5,000,000, that the witness has testified about. This is taken from the registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Acting Chairman KING. It will be received.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1843" and is included in the appendix on p. 12759.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, the Bankers Trust Co. and the National Bank of Chicago each received two million of this five?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the Cleveland Trust Co. received the remaining $1,000,000?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. All the other banks, Continental Illinois, Bank of Manhattan, National City Bank, Central United of Cleveland, received no part of this loan, although, as a matter of fact, they had been carrying Cleveland-Cliffs loans for a number of years?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right; they were just as unhappy about them as we were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact that some of these banks complained about their exclusion?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No; not that I know of.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They just "took it"?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, if they did complain, they would have done that to our banking department; it wouldn't have come to me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you happen to know whether or not Charles Hayden and other partners of Hayden, Stone & Co. requested a subparticipation in the bank loan for the Equitable Trust Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I knew about that, because that came to me. They had never been in the picture at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But they had requested a subparticipation.

Mr. TOMPKINS. For the Equitable Trust.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you happen to know of your own personal knowledge or information or belief whether or not Mr. Hayden owned the controlling interest in the Equitable Trust Co. at that time?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think he did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't it a fact that you refused a subparticipation to the Equitable Trust Co.?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine the letter dated December 18, 1935, from yourself to Mr. Greene, and tell me whether you recognize that as a true and correct copy of the original that is in your custody?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The letter identified by the witness, Mr. Chairman, is offered in evidence.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1844" and is included in the appendix on p. 12760.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not Bankers Trust Co. appointed corporate trustee under the indenture?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was not that in accordance with the contract of January 1, 1935?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you familiar with the fact that the bankers in pursuance of their agreement of December 4 with Cleveland-Cliffs also obtained assurances from the directors of Cleveland-Cliffs that so long as the bonds were outstanding the bankers would have a continuing interest in seeing that the company would have a satisfactory management?

AGREEMENT RE: MANAGEMENT OF CLEVELAND CLIFFS

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't remember that. Part of the agreement, you say?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes. From a letter identified by Witness Greene this morning, being committee's "Exhibit No. 1824," I now read to you, Mr. Tompkins, to see whether or not this doesn't refresh your recollection. That is a letter from Mr. Greene dated December 6, 1935, to the bankers [reading "Exhibit No. 1824"]:

DEAR SIRS: Referring to the agreement dated December 4, 1935, between this company and yourselves and certain associates under which you severally agree as therein provided to purchase \$16,500,000, principal amount of First Mortgage Sinking Fund 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ % Bonds of this Company, the Board of Directors has authorized me to advise you as follows:

We recognize that you will have a continuing interest for the protection of bondholders, in seeing that the Company has a satisfactory management, and, accordingly, desire to confirm the assurances given you during the course of the negotiations to the effect that, so long as any of the Bonds remain outstanding, the Company will, in case Mr. William G. Mather, Chairman of the Board of Directors or Mr. E. B. Greene, president of the Company, shall cease to hold such offices or cease to exercise their duties by reason of death or other cause, consult with you regarding the choice of a successor to either or both of such officers, to the end that any such successor shall be satisfactory to three or more underwriters named in the above-mentioned agreement who have agreed to purchase not less than 50% of the aggregate principal amount of bonds.

Yours truly,
Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company
by E. B. Greene.
President.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I ask a question right there——

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I just want to develop one or two things.

In effect, Mr. Tompkins, this agreement meant that the bankers could dictate to the directors who the future president or chairman of the board would be. Is that not correct, sir?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That was an agreement between Cleveland Cliffs and those underwriters.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Absolutely. You knew something about that, didn't you?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I remember it only vaguely.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had you ever heard of it prior to your testimony here and my reading of it?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No—Yes, in this way, that I know the bankers were concerned about a continuity of management there. They had seen what had happened to this company before Mr. Greene took the presidency and they were looking ahead to the day when he might not be president.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am going to repeat to you my question, which I would like you, as an expert banker, to give me your opinion on. In effect, did not this agreement mean that the bankers could dictate to the directors who the future president or chairman of the board would be?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I would have to examine the language of it pretty carefully to know whether that is right or not. I think that its purpose was to see that future officers of the company would be selected only after consultation with the bankers, that would be agreeable to the bankers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you say that the bankers possessing a veto power over who was to fill these two offices in reality were assured of controlling all future public financing by Cleveland-Cliffs?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Under their agreement they had a first call on any future financing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But in addition to that, pursuant to this arrangement in "Exhibit No. 1824," which has gone into evidence, since no person could be either president or chairman who was not acceptable to the bankers, didn't that in effect mean that they controlled all future financing because only these two men would ever hold those offices?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, that assumes that a board of directors could abdicate its right to choose its officers, the officers of the corporation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't that precisely what was done in this case, Mr. Tompkins?

Mr. TOMPKINS. If it is a good agreement; I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am not asking you to pass judgment on its legal validity; I am asking you as an expert, a banker of many years' standing in the community and well known in financial circles, to give me your opinion as an expert.

Acting Chairman KING. As to what?

Mr. TOMPKINS. You are asking me to give my opinion as to validity of that agreement and I can't do it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No, sir, I ask you whether in effect the Cleveland-Cliffs management didn't abdicate all their rights of management to four banking firms.

Mr. TOMPKINS. If that document is good legally, then the answer is "yes." I don't know whether they could impose that on a board of directors.

Mr. HENDERSON. You say you don't recall this particular clause very explicitly. Was that negotiated when you were agent?

Mr. TOMPKINS. This agreement about future management?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes.

Mr. TOMPKINS. It was done between Greene and the syndicate.

Mr. HENDERSON. It wasn't any part of your negotiation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you recall whether it is a common custom in connection with financing arrangements for the underwriters to get from the board of directors such a statement as this?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No, I think it would be most unusual.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you recall any other cases in which similar terms were negotiated, perhaps in the companies that were in desperate shape or the like?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I can't give you the names.

Mr. HENDERSON. It is done sometimes, is it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes, I would say, Mr. Commissioner, it is only done when you want to be sure that the people who are now in, and in whom you have confidence, are going to be there.

Mr. HENDERSON. Where you might say that the management is one of the considerations upon which the underwriters engage to take the underwriting?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Acting Chairman KING. Is it not a common thing between private persons in business and their local bank or persons who may loan them money, to annex as a condition to the extension of the credit that A, B shall continue in control of the sheep herd, or in control of the mine operation?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes, in direct commercial loans we ought to do that.

Acting Chairman KING. I have in mind cases where in mining operations loans have been obtained largely upon the strength of the ability of the man who was in charge. He was an expert technician and understood mining, understood the technology of mining, and the banker or private individuals would extend credit upon the ground that he be continued in control, because they had confidence in his technical knowledge and his understanding of mining activities, and if some new man came in who was unacquainted with the mine, the ore deposits, they would not feel safe in making the loan.

Mr. TOMPKINS. They would at least want an opportunity to review it.

Acting Chairman KING. To find out his competency.

Mr. LUBIN. Mr. Tompkins, do you know of any instances where such requirement was made on management, where management yielded, except in those cases where management was so hard up it had no other alternative? In other words, would it be likely that any corporation would yield its right to select its own officers or that any board of directors would yield its right to select its own officers, except under those conditions where they were so hard pressed that they had no other alternative?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think you are right.

Mr. LUBIN. In other words, then, it is those instances such as the chairman just mentioned which are typical only when the management has no alternative and has to yield to what the banker demands?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, in an industrial situation, management is of such paramount importance—it is the first thing we always look at—that a banker always tries to guard himself against a shift in that management, to the best of his ability. If you have an old-line company that has a long record of successful management, where you are absolutely confident that the board will always fill those positions with competent men, it never occurs to you to have an agreement. As in this case, it was only the fact that Mr. Greene had taken over this and was operating it and giving it vitality that made it possible to do this business at all.

Mr. LUBIN. In other words, if a telephone company should go to an investment house and want to borrow $20,000,000, no investment banker would dare put such conditions in the contract.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I don't think it ever would occur to an investment banker to do that.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Tompkins, in this case the underwriters might have had at least two thoughts in mind. In the first place, they were selling securities to the public, and in that case they wanted to keep the continuing good will of those with whom the bonds had been placed. The second thing they might have had in mind was the insurance of the continuing financing. Isn't that true?

Mr. TOMPKINS. To see that they——

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). That they got the financing.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I think they covered that in their first memorandum.

Mr. HENDERSON. This might have been just a double lock.

Mr. TOMPKINS. This was just to prevent any sudden shift in that management that might produce a management that would go out and buy another Corrigan, McKinney.

Mr. HENDERSON. I was just about to ask you that. There was in the antecedent history of this company considerable gyration, investment, and some might call it speculation with the funds, and it is likely that they had that in mind also. Is that what you mean by buying Corrigan McKinney—not “doing a Corrigan”?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Commissioner, a little too much vision, one might say.

Mr. HENDERSON. The vision turned out to be a nightmare in some cases.

Acting Chairman KING. Would not a reputable investment house that sells its bonds to the public, even though it doesn't put up the money itself but sells bonds and gets the money for its patron, be interested in having the company whose bonds it was selling or underwriting operated in a judicial manner and by persons competent to deal with the problems that would arise in the administration?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Absolutely.

Acting Chairman KING. And though they didn't put up their own money in some instances, their honor was more or less involved in the fact that they would sell these securities to the public.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. Therefore, is there anything improper, in your judgment, and has it not been the practice not only with private individuals who are loaning money, but investment companies and banks, to inquire into the character of the business and who was in charge of it, and to desire to be satisfied as to the competency of the persons in charge to discharge their duties and obligations so as to make the business a success?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is always a very important consideration in handling money.

Acting Chairman KING. So the investment company, I would suppose, would feel its honor was more or less involved when it sold securities to the public, though it did not advance its own money.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes; it has a continuing responsibility to the people who buy the securities.

Mr. HENDERSON. You get into a number of very delicate questions in management, do you not, when you get into the position of passing on management and its judgments. You get into what they call banker management once in a while, do you not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes. Management itself is a thing that a banker tries to avoid. He feels that his responsibility is to help select management, but wherever, in our experience, I have seen a banker as a banker try to operate an industrial company, the record of his management generally indicates that he ought to have stayed in the banking business.

Mr. HENDERSON. That isn't always true, though. There are some examples where the bankers took over successfully.

Mr. TOMPKINS. There are some examples.

Mr. HENDERSON. But I think I would incline to agree with you that they ought to stick to their banking.

Mr. TOMPKINS. In general.

BROKERAGE TRANSACTIONS FOR CLEVELAND-CLIFFS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Tompkins, did not the agreement between the bankers also include the right to participate in the commissions for brokerage transactions involving Cleveland-Cliffs?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And did not the four underwriting firms actually share commissions when Cleveland-Cliffs sold 10,000 shares of Republic Steel common in '35, and 20,000 shares in 1936?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now offer in evidence a letter from the files of Lehman Bros. and a memorandum from the files of Lehman Bros. covering brokerage transactions. These two documents are covered by the stipulation¹ previously admitted in evidence.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1845 and 1846" and are included in the appendix on p. 12761.)

¹ "Exhibit No. 1838."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And bearing upon the same subject three extracts from the registration statement of Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Acting Chairman KING. They may be received.

(The memoranda referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1847-1 to 1847-3" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12761-12763.)

FEES PAID TO LEHMAN BROS. AND BANKERS TRUST CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. According to the underwriters' agreement, Mr. Tompkins, of June 28,¹ Lehman Bros. were to be paid one-half percent of the principal amount of the bonds as a management fee. Is that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But they finally received a fee of only three-eighths percent.

Mr. TOMPKINS. It was readjusted among themselves.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Readjusted between the group?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When the contract of January 30, 1935,² was drawn up, Bankers Trust Co. was to be paid a fee of 1 percent of $24,000,000, or $240,000.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When the agreement among the underwriters was drawn up on June 28, 1935, Bankers Trust was to be paid a fee of one-half percent of $24,000,000 or $120,000.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In December 1935, Bankers Trust was actually paid $25,000.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So it would appear, would it not, that the longer you worked the less you got paid?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is unfortunately the case.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No further questions, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. HENDERSON. In some cases a banker works and doesn't get paid at all.

Mr. TOMPKINS. In some cases.

Acting Chairman KING. In some cases the banker loans money and he doesn't get paid.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is very often true.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I would like to ask a question. This morning I asked you a question or two about the consideration that was given to the question of whether or not what your bank did in this operation was in violation of the 1933 Banking Act, and I am not entirely clear exactly what consideration was given that question by you. Will you clear that up for me?

Mr. TOMPKINS. When Mr. Greene came to me and asked if we could undertake this job I said I thought we could as his agent. We discussed the general basis on which I might act as agent. Then I said, "We will reduce this to a contract which we will have the lawyers draw and which they can submit to your lawyers." White &

¹ "Exhibit No. 1833."

² "Exhibit No. 1819."

Case, my counsel, drew a contract which they sent to me and which I naturally assumed was drawn in keeping with the law.

Mr. O'CONNELL. But the only thing that you got from White & Case when they returned the contract to you was a statement to the effect that in their opinion [reading from "Exhibit No. 1825"]:

the same is in satisfactory form and sufficient for the purposes indicated.

Now that to you meant that they had considered whether or not that contract was proper under the Banking Act of 1933 and were so advising you in this fashion?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That, supplemented by long conversations with various members of the firm on this subject.

Mr. O'CONNELL. So it is clear in your mind at least that from this letter and from conversations with your lawyers it was their considered opinion that the contract was legal within the Banking Act of 1933?

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think, Mr. Tompkins, that you are dismissed and we are very grateful to you for having given us so much of your time.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Thank you.

(Representative Williams took the chair.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will Mr. William Whitehead take the stand, please?

Mr. Whitehead, will you examine these documents and tell me whether they were obtained by you from the files of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

Mr. WILLIAM WHITEHEAD (Securities & Exchange Commission). They were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I am offering in evidence at this time the documents identified by Mr. Whitehead of my staff, insofar as they pertain to another agreement between the Guaranty Co., which as you recall was the old affiliate of the Guaranty Trust Co., and Kuhn, Loeb, concerning American Smelting & Refining Co. The matter will be dealt with in the report which we will ultimately submit to the committee, but I would like them spread on the records of the committee.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. They may be received.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1848 to 1851" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12764-12765.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Mathers, will you take the stand, please? Both of these gentlemen have been previously sworn, and I merely want them to identify these documents. Mr. Mathers, will you examine those documents and tell me whether you obtained them from the firms, partnerships, or corporations indicated therein?

Mr. L. C. MATHERS (Securities and Exchange Commission). I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And they were given to you by duly authorized representatives in response to your request?

Mr. MATHERS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I ask leave of the committee that these documents be received.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1852-1 to 1856" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12766-12772.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. John F. Fennelly, please.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. FENNELLY. I do.

TESTIMONY OF JOHN F. FENNELLY, GLORE, FORGAN & CO.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you state your full name and address, Mr. Fennelly?

Mr. FENNELLY. My name is John F. Fennelly, partner of Glore, Forgan & Co., resident of Chicago.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How long have you been a partner of Glore, Forgan & Co.?

Mr. FENNELLY. Since July 1, 1935.

INDIANAPOLIS POWER & LIGHT CO. FINANCING, 1938

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On or about August 1, 1938, did not the Indianapolis Power & Light Co. engage in a refunding operation involving some $32,000,000 of 4-percent mortgage bonds and about $5,500,000 of serial notes?

Mr. FENNELLY. Yes. My recollection is that they were 3¾-percent bonds, but that may be incorrect.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is not Indianapolis Power & Light a subsidiary of Utilities Power & Light?

Mr. FENNELLY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not this financing brought out under the leadership of Lehman Bros.?

Mr. FENNELLY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you tell me who some of the principal underwriters associated with Lehman Bros. were in that financing?

Mr. FENNELLY. Well, my firm, Glore, Forgan & Co., The First Boston Corporation was, I recall. Frankly, the list as such is not in my mind. It was a very broad list of underwriters.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But those who had the largest participations were your firm and First Boston, and I show you a prospectus to see if that doesn't refresh your recollection and give you a clue to the other names.

Mr. FENNELLY. The First Boston was in second position; Glore, Forgan in third—this is in appearance; Halsey, Stuart in fourth position, and the last three houses named all having an equal interest in participation in the business; Stone & Webster and Blodgett, Inc., Blyth & Co., Brown Harriman & Co., all with the same interest; Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lazard Frères & Co. with an equal interest with the houses just previously named. Do you want me to go on?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No; that is sufficient; thank you very much. In the spring of 1938 did not Mr. Charles True Adams approach your firm with the suggestion that he would like your firm to head up the financing of Indianapolis Power & Light?

Mr. FENNELLY. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you not at that time advise Mr. Adams that you were a member of the Lehman group, and being under a commitment to Lehman Bros., could not accept his invitation?

Mr. FENNELLY. That is also correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not Mr. Adams inform you that he had no intention of having Lehman Bros. head up the group since he wanted the business handled by a Middle Western firm?

Mr. FENNELLY. That is the way that I stated his position in the letter that I subsequently wrote on this matter. I would like to say that is correct with a slight variation in that what he was trying to convey was that he had felt he had no commitment to do the business with Lehman Bros. and that as such he would prefer to do the business in the Middle West.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were you aware at the time of your discussions with Mr. Adams that in the spring of 1938 the finance committee of Indianapolis Power and Light had on or about July 15, 1937, already authorized Lehman Bros. to head up a syndicate for the refunding operations?

Mr. FENNELLY. No; I was not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You were not aware of that?

Mr. FENNELLY. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were you aware of that fact prior to your testimony here and my statement?

Mr. FENNELLY. Not as such. I knew that Lehman Bros. had gone to work on the deal in 1937. How far they had entered into an actual agreement with the finance committee I have never been aware.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I now refer the committee to "Exhibit No. 1852, 1 to 3," previously received in evidence, containing the authorization of the finance committee of Indianapolis Power & Light to Lehman Bros., authorizing them to head up the syndicate to which reference has been made.

Now, on May 24, 1938, during the time of your discussion with Mr. Adams, did you not have occasion to transmit the subject matter of your discussion to your New York partner, Mr. J. Russell Forgan?

Mr. FENNELLY. I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And now reading from "Exhibit No. 1853," previously received in evidence, a letter dated May 24, 1938, by Witness Fennelly to Mr. J. Russell Forgan, I call your attention, if I may, Mr. Fennelly, to the following paragraphs:

Some weeks ago when Mr. Adams first approached us with regard to helping him work out the reorganization of Utilities Power & Light, he told us that he would like to have us head up the financing of Indianapolis Power & Light. We immediately told him of our commitment to Lehman Brothers and that we had already accepted a position in Lehman's group subject to that position being satisfactory to us.

Now skipping to the third paragraph:

More recently, Mr. Adams asked us if we could work out a satisfactory arrangement with Lehman Brothers, and advised us that if we could do so he was prepared to proceed immediately with the Indianapolis financing. We have told Mr. Adams that we felt it was entirely possible for us to work out such an arrangement and would proceed to do so at once. Our ideas, as you know, of a satisfactory arrangement are a joint managership account which we should head in the West and which Lehman should head in the East. Pending the reaching of such an agreement, we find ourselves in the awkward position of being unable to talk with Mr. Adams about this financing, and at the same time realizing that practically everybody in the investment business is shooting at him about it, in fact we have good reason to believe that other members of the Lehman account are working independently and actively for the business. Our sincere feeling about this matter is that if Lehman Brothers are willing to agree to a joint managership as outlined above, we can be very helpful in convincing Mr. Adams as to the desirability of proceeding at once with the business. If this is not done, we feel that Mr. Adams is likely to let the whole matter drift, at least until next fall, by which time he may have missed the opportunity to do the job under present favorable market conditions. If Lehman Brothers cannot see their way clear to such an arrangement, we shall feel obliged to withdraw from their account. If we do so withdraw, we will agree with them that we will do nothing about this business, either independently or in conjunction with others, for some reasonable length of time. Our idea of a reasonable length of time would be from now until next fall, during which time Lehman Brothers would have a free hand as far as we are concerned, to proceed with their present negotiations.

Now Mr. Fennelly, did you succeed in getting joint managership?

Mr. FENNELLY. No; we did not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You had, however, a substantial underwriting position, did you not?

Mr. FENNELLY. That is right; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, if you will follow me on the postscript to your letter [reading from "Exhibit No. 1853"]:

Since writing the above, I have discussed the matter further with Charlie—

Charles Glore, I take it—

Mr. FENNELLY. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (continuing):

and we have both agreed it would be dangerous to show this letter to Lehman Brothers. He agrees, however, that the letter states his position exactly and that all of the matter contained herein can be used in discussing the matter with them; he is even willing to have you agree to a joint managership arrangement for all future Utilities Power & Light financing if you think it desirable. He feels it is most important that Lehman give us an immediate answer on this matter because he has just had another call from Adams asking about the situation and telling him that the finance committee of the Company in Indianapolis is anxious to proceed at once and that pressure is being put on him from all directions.

Did your partner discuss with Lehman Brothers the possibilities of joint managership on future Utilities financing?

Mr. FENNELLY. I really don't know whether they did or not, because we never came to an agreement with them on this particular piece of financing, and it is my belief that that subject was never discussed.

AGREEMENT ON LEADING POSITIONS IN FUTURE FINANCING OF INDIANAPOLIS POWER & LIGHT AND UTILITIES POWER & LIGHT

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If Indianapolis Power & Light should in the near future bring out another issue, what do you contemplate your relationship to the syndicate would be, Mr. Fennelly?

Mr. FENNELLY. Frankly, I have never given it any thought. My guess would be that probably we would expect a substantial position in the group under the leadership of Lehman Brothers. There is no necessity that that would follow at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Your treatment of Lehman Brothers in the spring of '38, when in effect you were offered the financing on a platter by the trustee of the organization, was extremely generous. Would you not in view of that fact expect to receive, shall I say, favorable consideration (a) in any Indianapolis Power and Light financing, and (b) favorable consideration in any future Utilities Power & Light financing as well?

Mr. FENNELLY. Frankly, we might expect it but I would be very much surprised if we got anything back from them. That has been the history of all such expectations as far as I can see.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You would not then hope to have even the same consideration that might be accorded to, shall I say, First Boston Corporation, who had an equal participation with you?

Mr. FENNELLY. Well, yes; I would be surprised if we did not receive as favorable consideration in the Indianapolis Power & Light account, but as far as the rest is concerned it would have no reference as far as I can see.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, I am afraid it is my painful duty to inform you that you will not receive that consideration, because in this particular case virtue was not rewarded. In connection with "Exhibit No. 1854-1," previously received in evidence, I now read to you, Mr. Fennelly, a memorandum by Joseph A. Thomas, partner of the investment banking firm of Lehman Brothers, dated June 26, 1939 [reading from "Exhibit No. 1854-1"]:

I met today with Sidney Weinberg and Howard Sachs, of Goldman, Sachs & Company, Harry Addinsell and George Woods, of the First Boston Corporation.

We made the following agreement on Indianapolis Power & Light financing: Lehman Brothers is to head the business, handle the details in our office and negotiate the deal in behalf of themselves, Goldman, Sachs & Company and The First Boston Corporation.

In the advertising the three firms are to appear on the same line in the following order: Lehman Brothers, Goldman, Sachs & Co., The First Boston Corp.

The management compensation is to be divided as follows: 40% to Lehman Brothers, 40% to Goldman, Sachs & Company, and 20% to The First Boston Corporation. All three firms are to have equal percentages in the underwriting.

We made a similar arrangement on Utilities Power & Light Company and its subsidiaries, i. e. management compensation to be divided into 40% to Lehman Brothers, 40% to Goldman, Sachs & Company, and 20% to The First Boston Corporation.

And then I have here, but they will no longer interest you, letters of confirmation from the respective firms, and I regret to say that Glore, Forgan was not included.

Mr. FENNELLY. May I ask a question with reference to that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to get one more thing in and then you may. I call attention to a collection of correspondence between Mr. Floyd Odum and Mr. Robert Lehman concerning the agreement entered into by the three firms to which reference has been made and which is now in evidence.¹

Mr. NEHEMKIS. No further questions of the witness.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Has anyone any questions?

"MORAL COMMITMENT" RESULTING FROM MEMBERSHIP IN AN ACCOUNT

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes. What was the reason you felt you couldn't talk to Mr. Adams about the financing?

Mr. FENNELLY. Simply because we had made a commitment to Lehman Brothers, being a member of their account, and we regarded that as a moral commitment which we weren't prepared to abrogate.

¹ See "Exhibit No. 1855-1 to 1855-4."

Mr. HENDERSON. Is that a usual thing in the underwriting business?

Mr. FENNELLY. I don't know whether it is usual or not, but I can assure you it was usual as far as my firm is concerned.

Mr. HENDERSON. That is, they make commitments in groups and then they will not engage individually in trying to get the business.

Mr. FENNELLY. I would like to put it this way, Mr. Commissioner, that we have gone to Lehman Brothers and asked to be a member of their account, had asked for a position in their group. Having gone to them and put ourselves under obligation to them, and they having agreed to include us in their group, we felt that it would be an unethical thing, and I mean that not professionally, but just simply human ethics to turn around and try to take the business away from them.

Mr. HENDERSON. They didn't have the business, did they?

Mr. FENNELLY. Well, they had it under the agreement which has been read to me.

Mr. HENDERSON. What was the status of Mr. Adams in the picture?

Mr. FENNELLY. Mr. Adams was a trustee of Utilities Power and Light, who, as I recall, had been appointed to that position in the spring of 1938, and as such he had no part in the negotiations in 1937.

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes; but did he have the say-so on the financing all that time?

Mr. FENNELLY. He led us to believe that he did.

Mr. HENDERSON. Was there a doubt in your mind that he did have the say-so?

Mr. FENNELLY. I shouldn't think there was any doubt in our mind; we knew that he was the chief factor in that holding company which controlled Indianapolis Power and Light.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, if you had not gone to Lehman, would you have been free, do you think, to accept the commitment?

Mr. FENNELLY. Yes; very definitely so; would have had no hesitation in so doing.

Mr. HENDERSON. Knowing that the prior indication of the board was that they wanted Lehman to hold it?

Mr. FENNELLY. Without any hesitation at all, because if Mr. Adams as trustee told us that he didn't recognize a previous commitment made when he was not trustee and was in a position to give us the business, if we had had no prior moral obligation in our own minds, we certainly would have taken the business.

Mr. HENDERSON. Absenting the trustee status, suppose it was generally understood that Lehman had the business and no contract had been executed, would you feel free to go?

Mr. FENNELLY. Absolutely, yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you in many instances do that?

Mr. FENNELLY. We have in my recollection in a number of instances, yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. In those cases with a historical relationship with any banking firm as issuer?

Mr. FENNELLY. Very definitely.

Mr. HENDERSON. Does that mean that your corporation is actively and vigorously trying to get accounts?

Mr. FENNELLY. All the time.

Mr. HENDERSON. Are you having any luck?

Mr. FENNELLY. Sometimes too few, in my opinion.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you think any part of that is due to general feeling that you are a Chicago house?

Mr. FENNELLY. The fact that we don't get more business? I shouldn't say so; no.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you go after any of the railroad accounts that come into Chicago?

Mr. FENNELLY. There has been so little railroad financing I would hate to make a statement as to whether we had or not, Mr. Commissioner. Nothing recent on it.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you make a persistent effort to try to get financing of Chicago concerns?

Mr. FENNELLY. Oh, yes; all the time.

Mr. HENDERSON. Have you been having any luck in getting any of them away from the eastern banking houses?

Mr. FENNELLY. I couldn't answer the question as far as getting away from the eastern banking houses, Mr. Commissioner, because, frankly, we don't think of ourselves as a Chicago banking house. We have an office in New York with four partners in New York, and three partners in Chicago, and while our background is more middle western than others, we are doing business in the East and we are doing business in the West. Does that answer your question?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes. I have no further questions.

Mr. LUBIN. May I ask the witness a question? Just what is involved in what you call in this correspondence your commitment to Lehman Brothers? Is it a commitment not to try to get firms that have had agreements with Lehman in the past, or is it a commitment to stay out of certain definite fields of activity?

Mr. FENNELLY. No, sir; not at all. That commitment is our own idea of a moral commitment of ours on this specific piece of business because we had gone to Lehman and asked them to be included in their account, and refers not at all to historical relationships, and it isn't a question of competition or noncompetition. We had given our word to somebody, and we just thought it would be a low trick to go out and try to take the business away.

Mr. LUBIN. In other words, Lehman already had a relationship with this corporation and you had agreed that as far as that corporation was concerned you wouldn't undertake to get the financing.

Mr. FENNELLY. We didn't make any such agreement. We understood that Lehman was in a position to head up a syndicate. We went to Lehman Brothers and asked if they would include us in their business as a prominent house with an important office in the Middle West—this was a Middle Western piece of business—and they agreed they would be delighted to have us in the business, and the point I want to express is there was no agreement about staying clear of this thing, we had asked to be in their business, and because we had asked to be in their business, we felt we had a moral obligation not to compete with them on this specific piece of business.

Mr. HENDERSON. It was a two-way commitment, was it not? They had agreed to give you a piece of the business, and they didn't.

Mr. FENNELLY. Oh, yes; they did.

Mr. HENDERSON. It had nothing to do with future financing.

Mr. FENNELLY. Absolutely not at all.

AGREEMENT ON FUTURE FINANCING OF ASSOCIATED GAS & ELECTRIC CO. AND SUBSIDIARIES—1937

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, before we conclude this session I should like to read a memorandum which has been covered by a stipulation which I shall ask you to examine in a moment. This is a memorandum regarding the relationship of The First Boston Corporation and Lehman Brothers in connection with Associated Gas & Electric financing and such is the agreement entered into on January 25, 1937, with reference to these companies. It reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1857-4"]:

With respect to all future financing for Associated Gas & Electric or its subsidiaries, the two firms are to manage such financing jointly as leaders (details of the handling of the business to be worked out later) due recognition to be given in such financing to the obligations of The First Boston Corp. to old participants in the Chase-Harris Forbes groups in a manner satisfactory to both firms.

In connection with New York State Electric and Gas Corporation financing, The First Boston Corp. and Glore, Forgan & Co. are to be managers; Lehman Brothers are to be offered an equal participation in amount with the above two firms, Lehman Brothers' name to appear in third place.

This is covered by stipulation entered into with me by Mr. Arthur Dean, of Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell, counsel to The First Boston Corporation. I ask that these documents be admitted in evidence, bearing on the points under discussion.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. They may be admitted.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1857-1 to 1857-5" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12773-12775.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I ask my associate, Mr. Mathers, to take the stand just for a moment? Mr. Fennelly, before you make your statement? Just be seated, if you will.

Mr. Mathers, will you be good enough to identify "Exhibit No. 1856," being a transcription of a telephone conversation by Mr. Iglehart re New York State Gas & Electric Co., dated October 20, 1932, so that the record may be thoroughly clear? Tell me once again where you obtained that document?

Mr. MATHERS. I found this document in the files of the New York office of Glore, Forgan & Co. It is a copy of a transcript of Mr. Joseph A. W. Iglehart's telephone conversation on October 20, 1932, relative to New York State Electric & Gas financing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now Mr. Iglehart is no longer a partner, to your knowledge, of Glore, Forgan & Co.?

Mr. MATHERS. No, sir.

Mr. FENNELLY. He never was a partner.

Mr. MATHERS. He is presently a partner of W. E. Hutton & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you tell me the other person with whom Mr. Iglehart was holding the telephone conversation at the time?

Mr. MATHERS. The memorandum does not state, but Mr. Joseph Iglehart told me it was with Mr. Russell.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And can you tell me Mr. Russell's initials?

Mr. MATHERS. P. N. Russell, I believe it is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you went to see Mr. Iglehart expressly to ascertain who the other person on the telephone was, did you not?

MR. MATHERS. Yes.

MR. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Mathers.

I shan't discuss the document at this time. I think the committee will find at its leisure that this document is well worth reading.

AGREEMENT RE MANAGEMENT OF CLEVELAND-CLIFFS CO.—RESUMED—
STATEMENT BY MR. JOHN F. FENNELLY

Mr. Chairman, may it please the committee, Mr. Fennelly has asked leave of the committee to make a statement clarifying certain things that were said during Mr. Tompkins' testimony, in which he feels there may be some misunderstanding, and I have no objection if it is the committee's pleasure.

MR. HENDERSON. What is the nature of it?

MR. FENNELLY. With reference to the document that was filed, the contract entered into between Mr. E. B. Greene and the underwriting group, of which my firm was one, of which Mr. Tompkins testified he knew nothing about.

MR. NEHEMKIS. That was the letter in which Mr. Greene abdicated the functions of the board of directors for a period of time in favor of the four banking houses, one of which was Field, Glore, now Glore, Forgan, of which Mr. Fennelly is a partner. Does the committee care to hear Mr. Fennelly's statement?

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. I think you might proceed with that. I think that is relevant, if it is about that matter.

MR. FENNELLY. All I wanted to say was this, that that agreement was entered into between Mr. Greene and the four underwriting, four chief underwriting houses namely Lehman Brothers; Kuhn, Loeb; Field, Glore; and Hayden, Stone & Co. This point I wanted to put in the record was that that agreement was entered into at the specific request of Mr. E. B. Greene. Mr. Greene informed us he was concerned, in view of the past experience of Cleveland-Cliffs, about the continuity of that management, and was concerned about what might happen in the event he or Mr. Mathers, chairman of the board, should die, and he requested us to enter into that agreement with him. The agreement was never at any time brought up by the bankers and it was a kind of an agreement that I for one have never seen entered into in a mortgage issue of this kind. And it was only done because Mr. Greene was concerned that the continuity of the management should be preserved, and he wanted to have the outside assistance of the underwriters to that effect.

MR. NEHEMKIS. May I take this occasion, Mr. Chairman, of thanking Mr. Fennelly for having given us so freely of his time? He spent many hours with us on this problem.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Have you anything else at this time?

MR. NEHEMKIS. No, sir. Shall I tell you, sir, the witnesses for tomorrow? Tomorrow we expect to discuss the financing of the Wilson Co. and the Armstrong Cork Co., and the witnesses will be Mr. Joseph R. Swan, head of the house of Smith, Barney & Co.; Mr. John M. Schiff, and Mr. Lewis L. Strauss, partners of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. That is all for the present? The committee will stand in recess until 10:30 tomorrow.

(Whereupon at 4:05 p. m. the committee recessed until Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.)

INVESTIGATION OF CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1940

UNITED STATES SENATE,
TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE,
Washington, D. C.

The committee met at 10:45 a. m., pursuant to adjournment on Tuesday, January 9, 1940, in the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building, Senator William H. King presiding.

Present: Senator King (acting chairman); Representative Williams; Messrs. Henderson, O'Connell, Lubin, and Brackett. Present also; Clifton Miller, Department of Commerce; Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., special counsel; and W. S. Whitehead, security analyst, Securities and Exchange Commission.

Acting Chairman KING. The committee will be in order.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, it is always difficult to indicate in a sentence the nature of a day's hearing, but today we will be concerned with typical examples as shown by two or three pieces of financing of the continuing relationship of some of the New York banks that had affiliates, and also we will be dealing with some aspects other than price competition that mark out the distinction between the investment banking business, or profession, as some choose to describe it, and the usual concept of competition as we see it in industry.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will Mr. Joseph R. Swan, Mr. John M. Schiff, and Mr. Lewis L. Strauss take the witness stand, please?

Acting Chairman KING. Mr. Swan, you have been sworn heretofore, so we will not need to re-swear you.

Will the other gentlemen raise their right hands?

Do you solemnly swear the testimony you give in this hearing will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. STRAUSS. I do.

Mr. SCHIFF. I do.

TESTIMONY OF JOSEPH R. SWAN, SMITH, BARNEY & CO., NEW YORK CITY; JOHN M. SCHIFF, KUHN, LOEB & CO., NEW YORK CITY; AND LEWIS L. STRAUSS, KUHN, LOEB & CO., NEW YORK CITY

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you state your full name and address, Mr. Schiff?

Mr. SCHIFF. John M. Schiff, Oyster Bay, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you not a partner of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

Mr. SCHIFF. I am a partner of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How long have you been a partner of that firm?

Mr. SCHIFF. Since January 1, 1931.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Strauss, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. STRAUSS. Lewis L. Strauss, 52 William Street, New York City.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And are you not a partner of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

Mr. STRAUSS. I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How long have you been a partner of that firm?

Mr. STRAUSS. Since January 1, 1929.

Acting Chairman KING. A partnership and not a corporation?

Mr. STRAUSS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, was not the account of Wilson & Co. once handled by the Guaranty Co., the security affiliate of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York?

Mr. SWAN. It was handled by them in conjunction with others.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was that not the case also in the Pure Oil Co. financing?

Mr. SWAN. That was handled by Guaranty Co. alone.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in the case of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, was that handled by Guaranty Co. alone, or in conjunction with others?

Mr. SWAN. That was handled in conjunction with others.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall the situation with respect to American Rolling Mill Co.?

Mr. SWAN. That was handled by the Guaranty Co. in conjunction with W. E. Hutton & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in the case of the Armstrong Cork Co., Mr. Swan, was that not an account of Guaranty Co.?

Mr. SWAN. They were in that account. I think the account was, to my recollection, led by the Union Trust Co., of Pittsburgh.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Guaranty was joint manager?

Mr. SWAN. Very likely they were joint manager.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Has not E. B. Smith & Co. either headed or participated in all of the foregoing accounts?

Mr. SWAN. They have, I believe.

Acting Chairman KING. Is that an investment banking company of New York—E. B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. Edward B. Smith & Co. was a private partnership; it was not a corporation. It was a private company in New York, an investment company in New York.

Acting Chairman KING. What was the name?

Mr. SWAN. Edward B. Smith & Co., a firm which was originally formed in Philadelphia many years ago and has since transferred its principal office to New York.

FINANCING OF THE ARMSTRONG CORK CO.—1935 AND 1930 ISSUES

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, I show you a document which bears the title "Calendar Record on Armstrong Cork Co." Will you examine this document and briefly describe its purpose to me?

Mr. SWAN. This document was kept by what we call our new business department and was a record of the various times when we gave some attention to the company in question as to whether we should take some action in connection with them, or follow them up in some way. It was a record of our contacts with the company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you be good enough to examine the second sheet, which is labeled "Contacts with Armstrong Cork Co."? Will you be good enough to examine this sheet and tell me its purpose or function?

Mr. SWAN. This was another sheet kept by our new-business department to indicate what members of our firm were acquainted with and in contact with what members of some corporation we might be trying to do business with, or for whom we might be bankers.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you say, Mr. Swan, that that practice of keeping such references is a generally prevailing one in the industry?

Mr. SWAN. I do not know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Schiff, have you been following the testimony?

Mr. SCHIFF. Yes; I have.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know whether it is the custom of your firm to keep records of progress of negotiations and of individuals who have special contacts with officials of various companies?

Mr. SCHIFF. I don't think it is the general practice of our firm; no.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now on or about July 25, 1935, did not E. B. Smith & Co. head a group of underwriters which brought out a public offering of $9,000,000 15-year 4-percent debentures of the Armstrong Cork Co.?

Mr. SWAN. We brought out such an issue and I take your date as being the approximate date.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You may, if you wish, Mr. Swan, accept my dates and figures subject to further check on your part.

Do you recall who composed the original purchase group?

Mr. SWAN. My recollection is that it was Edward B. Smith, Lazard Frères & Co.—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). Kidder, Peabody?

Mr. SWAN. Kidder, Peabody and Kuhn, Loeb.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now Kuhn, Loeb had a nonappearing position in that?

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And by a nonappearing position is meant that the name of a particular house does not appear in the public advertising?

Mr. SWAN. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, to the best of your knowledge had Kuhn, Loeb ever been a participant in the financing of Armstrong Cork Co. when it had been led by the Guaranty Co.?

Mr. SWAN. I think not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you tell me that you are certain that it never was?

Mr. SWAN. I think I can go so far as to say I am certain; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And I think you indicated a moment ago that the Guaranty Co., along with Union Trust of Pittsburgh, had headed the financing previously.

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was not the last previous financing for the Armstrong Cork Co. an issue of $14,931,000 of 10-year convertible 5-percent debentures due June 1, 1940, and offered in June of 1930?

Mr. SWAN. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And to the best of your knowledge and recollection, that was the last piece of financing that the Armstrong Cork Co. engaged in prior to the offering under the leadership of E. B. Smith.

Mr. SWAN. To the best of my recollection; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall when the 1935 negotiations for the Armstrong Cork financing began, approximately?

Mr. SWAN. I don't know exactly when the negotiations began. As soon as the various officers of Guaranty Co. who became partners of Edward B. Smith & Co. went into that new firm and took with them a large part of the Guaranty Co. organization, we immediately set out to see all of our old contacts; amongst others that we immediately contacted was the Armstrong Cork Co. From that time on we were in contact with them from time to time. We advised them, I think, at one time that a certain piece of business might be done, but I think we rather advised against doing it, and then later on we took up active negotiations for an issue, and exactly when we took up those negotiations I am afraid I couldn't say. We were in rather constant touch with them over a period.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it be correct for me to state that the negotiations, discussions, conferences in the first instance, however, had been instituted by your people?

Mr. SWAN. Oh, I think so.

M. L. FREEMAN DISCUSSES ARMSTRONG FINANCING WITH KUHN, LOEB & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Schiff, are you familiar with a gentleman whose name is M. L. Freeman?

Mr. SCHIFF. Yes; I have made his acquaintance.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall whether or not on or about July 27, 1934, Mr. M. L. Freeman had occasion to discuss with you the possibility of financing the Armstrong Cork Co. through the good offices of your banking firm?

Mr. SCHIFF. I believe he did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Freeman, in the parlance of the Street, is a "finder," is he not? That is to say, he brings prospective deals to investment banking firms?

Mr. SCHIFF. I don't know whether you would call him a finder. I think he is probably a sort of middleman that brings people together. I don't know quite what the correct term is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What do you regard him as?

Mr. SCHIFF. I said a middleman who brings people together.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, just for my own information, what is the distinction between the person who is a "middleman" and one who is a "finder"? Perhaps there isn't any. If so, I would be glad to pass on. I just wanted to know, so I might be precise and accurate as I asked my questions of you.

Mr. SCHIFF. I suppose there is no terrific distinction. I just prefer my own definition.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you wouldn't object if I used the word "finder," would you? It wouldn't disturb you in any way?

Mr. SCHIFF. I just don't happen to like the word "finder," but that is a matter of preference.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will use for your benefit the word "middleman."

Now, in a subsequent discussion with Mr. Freeman, did he not say to you that the Armstrong Cork Co. had, after their 1930 financing with the Guaranty Co., attempted to borrow $2,000,000 from the Guaranty Trust Co.?

Mr. SCHIFF. I believe he did; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that the bank would only grant the company some $500,000?

Mr. SCHIFF. I believe he claimed that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And as a result, did not Mr. Freeman state to you that the company was forced to borrow from certain Pittsburgh banks?

Mr. SCHIFF. I think Mr. Freeman stated that, as I remember.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And as a result of that dissatisfaction, as Mr. Freeman indicated to you, with treatment received by the Guaranty Trust Co., the Armstrong people were a little bit loath to deal with those closely associated in the past with the Guaranty?

Mr. SCHIFF. That was what Mr. Freeman stated; yes.

SEEKING ASSURANCE THAT A COMPANY HAS MADE A "CLEAN BREAK" WITH ITS PRIOR BANKER BEFORE DISCUSSING FINANCING

Mr. NEHEMKIS. After the passage of the Banking Act, Mr. Schiff, was it not generally recognized in the Street that E. B. Smith & Co. had become the successor or heir of the Guaranty Co.?

Mr. SCHIFF. I think it was generally recognized that the chief officers and the main part of the staff of the Guaranty were going into E. B. Smith & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you not yourself recognize E. B. Smith & Co. as the successor to the Guaranty Co.?

Mr. SCHIFF. We recognized that the individuals of E. B. Smith had the contacts that they had while they were in the Guaranty.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You were aware, were you not, at the time of your conversation with Mr. Freeman that the Armstrong business had been an account of the Guaranty Co.?

Mr. SCHIFF. I was aware either at that time or shortly afterwards, after I looked it up.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When it was presented to your mind you were aware of that fact?

Mr. SCHIFF. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in view of the fact that the Armstrong Cork account had been a former account of the Guaranty Co., and in view of the fact that you and your associates recognized that E. B. Smith & Co. had certain relationships to that account, were you not somewhat reluctant to discuss this matter with Mr. Freeman?

Mr. SCHIFF. Well, I think we told Mr. Freeman that after all, any company could pick its own bankers, it was entirely up to the company—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But—

Mr. SCHIFF. May I go on with that—that if the company wanted to leave the people who had done their banking in the past, for some legitimate reason, naturally we should be glad to receive them provided they were the type of company that came up to our standards, but, on the other hand, if it was a perfectly happy relationship and they had been successful in taking care of their needs and had done it properly, we had not desire to try to take that away from them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Schiff, according to the professional code of the Street, would it not have been distinctly unethical for you to discuss this business with Mr. Freeman without first contacting E. B. Smith & Co., or unless you were quite certain that the company was coming to you of their own free will?

Mr. SCHIFF. I think it would have been bad business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But not unethical?

Mr. SCHIFF. Well, unethical and bad business, but after all you have a certain code of ethics, which I agree with, but you also are guided by what is good business and what is bad business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you do think that it would have been distinctly unethical to have discussed this with an official of the Armstrong Cork Co. without first having been in contact, let us say, with Mr. Swan's house?

Mr. SCHIFF. I think it would have been unethical and bad business, just as if some dentist called me on the telephone and said, "I hear you want a tooth pulled," and tried to get the trade away from my usual dentist who had been doing a satisfactory job.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So you feel that under similar circumstances it would be necessary, if one were adhering to the code of ethics of the Street, first to be clear of the other banking firm.

Mr. SCHIFF. But I want to point out one thing. It is not only the code of ethics; it is what is good business, what is good business and bad business for the continuation of your future business with your clients.

Mr. HENDERSON. With your clients and with other members of the fraternity, too?

Mr. SCHIFF. I suppose so, but I mean basically with the corporations with which you deal.

Acting Chairman KING. And if you established a reputation of trying to undermine other companies and steal the business away from them it would injure your own business.

Mr. SCHIFF. It would injure our own business certainly, just as much as if a doctor tried to steal patients; eventually he wouldn't have any patients at all.

Acting Chairman KING. Just like several lawyers dissolve and if they knew that the business of A, B, and C corporation was left with one member of the firm that had been dissolved, you would regard it perhaps as unethical to go to them and attempt to take it away from the one to whom it had been assigned and who had conducted it during the period of the partnership.

Mr. SCHIFF. I think that is fair.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Schiff, unless you had such unequivocal assurance from the other firm that had prior association with the business, your firm would have been placed in the position of entering into competition with, shall I say, a friend, and such competition would not be considered desirable? I take it that is the situation?

Mr. SCHIFF. No; I don't think it is. I think we are willing to compete at any time when a corporation is dissatisfied with its existing banking relations. We want to do new business, we are anxious to do it, but we see no point in trying to break up what is considered a happy relationship.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think you didn't quite understand my question, and I may not have made it as clear as it could be. In the situation that we are now discussing, the case of Mr. Freeman coming to you and telling you, "Here is a piece of business that I think you people might be interested in," under the code of ethics as adhered to by your firm and presumably by others, you do not feel free to discuss that with the company officials unless two things occurred: you were assured that the company was clear of E. B. Smith & Co., or, on the other hand, that you had first discussed it with E. B. Smith & Co. to make quite certain that further discussions would be satisfactory. Does that substantially summarize the ethical problem there?

Mr. SCHIFF. I think we would say that we wouldn't want to discuss it unless we had every assurance that the company had made a clean break with E. B. Smith & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, if those circumstances were not present in this situation, then you would be in the position, would you not, of competing for business against a friend—

Mr. SCHIFF. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that is not desirable.

Mr. SCHIFF. No; we would be in the position of breaking up a relationship that had been perfectly satisfactory.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, perhaps you and I are having some difficulties about the use of words. I used the word "competing." You seem to be very allergic to that word so I will try and use another one. If you had actively continued discussing this piece of business with officials of the Armstrong Cork Co., knowing that it was a former Guaranty account and hence by inheritance, so to speak, within the sphere of interest of E. B. Smith, that would not have been desirable from a business point of view. Do you follow me on that?

Mr. SCHIFF. I don't think it would have been desirable because if we did it enough we would end up with no corporations doing business with us at all.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I ask a question there? Would you be willing to say that it was unethical competition?

Mr. SCHIFF. I am not quite sure of the definition of the word "ethical" that keeps being brought in all the time. I am looking at it from the point of view of what is a sensible way to run your business. I think it would be bad business to do it. Certainly I think morals and ethics come in. It is just as unethical as it is in any profession.

Mr. HENDERSON. Take the condition existing after the divorce when these accounts presumably might be free. If you went out after any of those accounts, would you be competing for them?

Mr. SCHIFF. Certainly that is competing; yes.

Acting Chairman KING. As I understand the situation, if E. B. Smith & Co. had been doing business with the Armstrong Cork Co. and floated its securities, and the time had come when the situation developed that Armstrong Cork wanted to deal with somebody else and some representative came to consult with you, you would, before you would take that business, desire to know whether the relations between E. B. Smith & Co. and the Armstrong Co. had been severed or whether there were any obstacles, ethical or moral or in a business way, to your becoming a competitor with E. B. Smith & Co. in negotiating a deal with the Armstrong Co. to handle their securities.

Mr. SCHIFF. I think that is generally true. We are willing to compete where there is a complete break, but not where there is a continuous and happy relationship as between lawyer and client, doctor and patient.

Acting Chairman KING. But if you were satisfied that E. B. Smith & Co. would be willing to have others associated with it and the Armstrong Co. were perfectly willing to have others brought into the handling of their securities, would there be any objection from your point of view to your organization becoming, shall I say, a competitor or a partner or cooperating with the E. B. Smith & Co. in handling the new issue or refunding the issue?

Mr. SCHIFF. No; I think not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Schiff, I show you a memorandum which purports to bear your initials. Will you examine this memorandum and tell me whether these are your initials and whether this memorandum was, in fact, dictated by you on or about July 27, 1934?

Mr. SCHIFF. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I want to read to you a statement you wrote in this memorandum, Mr. Schiff. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1858"]:

Yesterday Mr. M. L. Freeman discussed with me the possibility of doing some financing for the Armstrong Cork Company, with which he has a connection. I told him that I would discuss it here in the office, and asked him to return today.

Having checked up on the Company and found that the original financing had been done by the Guaranty Company, I explained to Mr. Freeman that the Guaranty Company's successor was E. B. Smith & Co. and that naturally we did not want to poach on their preserves.

I venture to say, Mr. Chairman, that that statement epitomizes the entire problem that we have been discussing and presenting to you during these past several days. I am, indeed, very grateful to Mr. Schiff for having summed it up so neatly, so succinctly, for having made such an excellent presentation of a rather difficult problem.

Then you continue, Mr. Schiff, as follows. [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1858"]:

I told him that provided he explained in detail to the company that they were coming to us of their own free will, we should be pleased to have a talk with them if he would bring in one of their senior officers the next time he was in New York, which he agreed to do.

Mr. Chairman, may the document identified by the witness be presented in evidence?

Acting Chairman KING. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1858" and is included in the appendix on p. 12776.)

TRADITIONAL ATTITUDE OF KUHN, LOEB & CO. TOWARD COMPETITION WHERE A SATISFACTORY BANKING RELATIONSHIP EXISTS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Schiff, hasn't the position to which you have given philosophic expression in your memorandum been the traditional attitude of the house of Kuhn, Loeb?

Mr. SCHIFF. I think the traditional attitude of the house of Kuhn, Loeb has been as I just stated a few minutes ago. I probably can't restate it in the same terms, but generally that the corporation has the right to choose its own bankers, it is not tied in any way, it is entirely in the hands of the corporation; that if they want to change bankers that is their privilege, but as long as there is a satisfactory relationship between the corporation and its bankers we are not going to try to steal it away from them, but we are willing to compete openly for any unaffiliated corporation or any corporation that is dissatisfied with its existing relationship.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not that the position of your father, Mortimer Schiff?

Mr. SCHIFF. He is no longer living; it is very hard for me to speak for him.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't know, however, whether he had occasion to also express that view?

Mr. SCHIFF. I hope that was his position.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was it not also the position of your late, distinguished grandfather, Jacob Schiff?

Mr. SCHIFF. He died while I was still at school, so I can't tell you. I don't know whether he had that point of view.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I ask Mr. Strauss, who has been associated with the firm a little longer than you, whether or not the position of Mr. John Schiff epitomized also the philosophy and position of Mr. Jacob Schiff?

Mr. STRAUSS. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was it not also the position of Mr. Mortimer Schiff?

Mr. STRAUSS. It was. It might be stated, however, by way of amplification, that a change, a direct change in banker relationships of a corporate borrower was regarded by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. as contrary to the best interests of the public, the investing public, in that it made it impossible for a continual flow of banking advice to the borrower from one source.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I ask a question? Mr. Strauss, how did the investment banking fraternity regard a company that shifted around?

Mr. STRAUSS. I can't speak for the fraternity.

Mr. HENDERSON. How did your house regard it? Did you have a sort of danger signal up?

Mr. STRAUSS. Well, I might illustrate it by an anecdote or an instance, if you will permit me, that is fairly illustrative. Several years ago—I can't recall the date—the same intermediary or middleman brought the president and one of the junior officers of a corporation to see me, stated they wished to change their bankers, and upon their departure, I looked over their list of directors and found on their directorate a member of a banking firm whom I called to inquire about the circumstances, and who told me that they were in negotiation with that firm, whereupon we declined to have anything to do with it. The concern was McKesson & Robbins, and the banker in question was our mutual friend Mr. Weinberg.

I think the adventitious change of bankers without good cause is a sufficient red flag to a conservative banker to make him wish to know more about the situation.

Mr. HENDERSON. You wouldn't say, though, that everyone who wants to change bankers probably has something in his inventory.

Mr. STRAUSS. No; by no means; by no means; but in any event, a careful banker would wish to know why.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you think in this case that McKesson & Robbins wanted to change because they felt that the continuing relationship with Goldman, Sachs would disclose a fake inventory?

Mr. STRAUSS. I can't imagine what was in their mind in that instance.

Mr. HENDERSON. I was just wondering what was in your mind about it, because you used it as the instance.

Mr. STRAUSS. I have engaged in many speculations, but I don't think any of them would be proper for the record.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Strauss, are you not regarded as the expert in your firm on Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company matters?

Mr. STRAUSS. The habit in our firm is for all the partners who are in the office at the time to be fairly familiar with transactions.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that a general practice in your firm?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes; that is usually the practice where the number of partners are few.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, Mr. Schiff, then, would be as familiar, let us say, with Armstrong Cork as any of the other partners?

Mr. STRAUSS. Not necessarily; he might have been away at the time, or particular details of the transaction might have been handled by one or another, but there is no attempt to make an expert of any partner.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. For example, your firm differs in that respect from J. P. Morgan & Co. when it was in the investment banking business and had certain partners who were specialists in Telephone affairs and railroad affairs, and that sort of thing.

Mr. STRAUSS. I am unable to testify as to that, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You are familiar with Youngstown Sheet & Tube matters, aren't you?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I ask you to examine a memorandum dated November 18, 1927, which was apparently written by Mr. Jerome Hanauer. It bears the imprint of your stamp, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. For the sake of the record, will you be good enough to identify it for me, please?

Mr. STRAUSS. It appears to be a fairly long memorandum, Mr. Neheimkis, and I came down prepared on Armstrong Cork and Linoleum. I didn't know you wished me to testify with respect to this memorandum.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I shan't ask you any question on it.

Mr. STRAUSS. The memorandum is one bearing Mr. Hanauer's initial.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is fine, sir. Thank you very much.

I note back in 1927 this same mysterious middleman, finder or entrepreneur also was in to see your firm in regard to Youngstown Sheet & Tube matters. Let me read you, Mr. Schiff, from a memorandum by Mr. Hanauer as of November 18, 1927. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1859":]

Mr. Seward Prosser, late in the afternoon of November 17th, telephoned to me asking whether he could come around to see me and a few minutes afterwards he came. Mr. Prosser—

Would you identify Mr. Prosser for the record?

Mr. STRAUSS. Mr. Prosser was chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. SWAN. Chairman of the board at that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further]:

Mr. Prosser stated that he understood we were negotiating for the Youngstown refunding, and that he, realizing our usual practices, and our friendship for his company, felt we were negotiating under a misapprehension of the Bankers Trust Company's position: that the Youngstown Company and Mr. Campbell, the President, were the closest friends of the Bankers Trust Company, that Mr. Samuel Mather was a director of the Bankers Trust Company and it would be a great blow for the Trust Company if they should lose this business. * * * In reply I told Mr. Prosser that this matter had been suggested to us originally many months ago by an intermediary and we had at first ridiculed the suggestion, saying to the intermediary that the Bankers Trust Company was the banker of the Youngstown Company. The intermediary insisted that this was not so and that Mr. Campbell would like to do the business with us. We declined to discuss the matter any further with the intermediary and stated that we could only consider the matter if these things were stated to us directly by Mr. Campbell.

Continuing with the memorandum,

Mr. Schiff—

And this is Mr. Schiff's father—came into the room at about this time and most of what was said above was repeated on both sides—Mr. Prosser emphasizing what a blow it would be to his Trust Company to lose this business and Mr. Schiff emphasizing how we had made every effort to be sure that we were not competing with them. I stated that while we never competed for business, we of course would not take the position that if a corporation came to us and told us they were free that we would not deal with them.

That pretty much sums up the historical position, does it not, of the house of Kuhn, Loeb by Mr. Schiff?

Mr. STRAUSS. Mr. Nehemkis, of course, you are noting that you have omitted part of a paragraph there, and that is not a continuation of the memorandum.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am offering for the record the entire document. May it be received?

Acting Chairman KING. Yes.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1859" and is included in the appendix on p. 12776.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I asked a question, I believe, of Mr. Schiff and I don't believe the record shows any answer.

Mr. SCHIFF. What was the question again, please?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The question was, did not the various excerpts I read pretty much sum up the historical position of the house of Kuhn, Loeb on the problem of competing or not competing?

Mr. SCHIFF. They wouldn't compete except where there was dissatisfaction. As a matter of fact, I wasn't with Kuhn, Loeb at that time; I was working for the Bankers Trust Co. at that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The Bankers Trust Co.? How interesting!

Acting Chairman KING. If an issue were brought to the Street by a corporation from any part of the United States, and its representatives were seeking a house or an investment company that would take charge of their securities and dispose of them, I suppose that your house and any other investment house would feel at liberty to compete in the market for that business.

Mr. SCHIFF. Provided the corporation would have the standing of securities that we would be willing to offer to the public, a corporation of proper standing.

Acting Chairman KING. I am assuming that the securities which it would offer would be meritorious.

Mr. SCHIFF. Yes, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. But if the person should come to your house and state that he or his firm had been doing business with the Jones Investment Co., and that their relations were strained, and they didn't care to continue with the Jones Co., you would feel at liberty, then, to investigate the character of these securities with a view to deciding whether your house would undertake to negotiate?

Mr. SCHIFF. Yes, sir; we would.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I am not entirely clear on that. As I understood your prior testimony, it was to the effect that if an industrial concern or a prospective issuer came to your firm and was considering using you as a banker, you would first ascertain what its former banking connection was and would not discuss the situation with their company until you had ascertained the connection between the former banking connection and the issuing concern was no longer in your judgment satisfactory.

Mr. SCHIFF. If he told us he was no longer satisfied, we would take the word of the senior officer of the corporation.

Mr. O'CONNELL. You wouldn't contact the other bankers?

Mr. SCHIFF. I don't think—we might, we might not; I think circumstances alter cases. It is hard to lay down a hard and fast rule on that.

Acting Chairman KING. Would there be a different rule—and I am asking to make clear the distinctions which may be made in connection with your testimony and with the testimony of those who have preceded—would there be an analogy between the banking fraternity and the legal fraternity? Suppose that you were a lawyer and some prospective client came and stated that his firm was Jones & McLaughlin, that they had been his lawyers for many, many years, but he desired to disassociate himself from them and to get other lawyers. Would not a reputable lawyer, before taking over their business, call up Jones & McLaughlin to ascertain whether or not the relation of the client and the attorney still existed?

Mr. SCHIFF. I believe they would; I believe that is a very fair comparison, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. But if the relation did not exist, if they had broken off, then a reputable lawyer under the highest form of ethics would not feel debarred from taking on that business.

Mr. SCHIFF. That is correct, sir.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Schiff is not a lawyer, and I happen to be, and I am not so sure that a reputable lawyer, if approached by a prospective client, would be under any duty to determine that a change was satisfactory not only to the prospective client but also to the former attorney.

Acting Chairman KING. Well, then, you may differ from me. I have been a lawyer, and when a person would come to me to bring business and would tell me Jones & Co. had been their lawyers for years, that they had broken with them, I would feel at liberty to take their business, although I invariably would inquire of Jones & Co. whether that was a fact, that they had broken and they had paid their obligation, so that the relation between them no longer existed.

I didn't want my client to be sued by some other lawyer because he failed to pay his bill.

Proceed.

Mr. O'CONNELL. That is a very practical aspect of the problem.

PAYMENTS BY KUHN, LOEB & CO. TO M. L. FREEMAN

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Strauss, before leaving the matter of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., I would like to ask you a few questions about it. We have been speaking of this middleman or entrepreneur M. L. Freeman. I note that he comes into the Youngstown Sheet & Tube picture as far as your firm is concerned as early as the year 1927. Did he not in that year receive a payment from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of some $75,000?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes; he did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was that in connection with bringing you the Youngstown Sheet & Tube business?

Mr. STRAUSS. The question of whether he brought the business or not, Mr. Nehemkis, is a moot point. In any event, we felt sufficiently indebted to him for his services to pay him that.

I would like to comment on just another question. You referred to him as a "man of mystery." He is hardly that, he is very well known in Wall Street and in many other institutions besides those which have been mentioned today.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think before the testimony ends, we will see he is very well known elsewhere.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think, if I may interpret, counsel had in mind the mystery as to whether he was intermediary, finder, or middleman, and when you say it is a moot question whether he was paid a finder's fee, it still leaves it a mystery.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In any event, in 1936 did not Mr. Freeman also receive payment of $20,000 from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in full settlement of his services to date?

Mr. STRAUSS. He did. I don't recall the date but you have the figures before you.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was that not also in connection with the Youngstown Sheet & Tube matter?

Mr. STRAUSS. That was in connection with a great multitude of services. Mr. Freeman favored us with suggestions of scores of pieces of business which may or may not have been feasible. They were not for us. But he exhibited a degree of good will that seemed to me to warrant that compensation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is interesting to observe, however, that apparently for internal purposes in your office, you regarded that $20,000 payment in 1936 as referring to Youngstown Sheet & Tube matters, because your letter of transmittal of your check appears in your files under Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is correct. It wasn't possible to allocate it against the profits of businesses that didn't eventuate.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now didn't your firm bring out an offering for Youngstown Sheet & Tube about that time?

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't recall the dates, Mr. Nehemkis. As I said to you, I wasn't prepared to testify, on Youngstown financing, but those dates are of record, so it is quite easy to ascertain them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On April 23, 1936, an offering of $60,000,000 first mortgage bonds and $30,000,000 of debentures was made public. Now you were the leader of that financing, were you not, I mean K. L.?

Mr. STRAUSS. Unfortunately, I am asked to testify now about something which is a matter of record, but I don't have the facts before me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then suppose you accept these matters of public record as I indicate them to you, subject to confirmation.

(Off the record colloquy between Mr. Nehemkis and Mr. Swan.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Strauss, as one of the principal underwriters of that financing, were you not under a responsibility to have disclosed in your registration statement under item 25 that Mr. M. L. Freeman had received a fee of $20,000?

Mr. STRAUSS. No more than any other of our expenses. This wasn't an expense of the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was it, then?

Mr. STRAUSS. It was a part of our own expenses.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this $20,000 fee was charged up to your own expenses?

Mr. STRAUSS. That is right, and not to the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If it had been charged up to the business, you would have had to disclose it.

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't know what the legal requirement there is, but certainly he had nothing to do with the transaction at all. This was a compensation paid in respect of this and other services and was paid entirely as an expense of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now is it your contention, Mr. Strauss, that the payment of $20,000 to the gentleman whom we have been designating M. L. Freeman, was not a finder's fee?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes; it is my contention that it was not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That it was not a finder's fee?

Mr. STRAUSS. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you enlighten me at this time as to the nature of the services rendered by M. L. Freeman in 1936?

Mr. STRAUSS. In connection with that transaction he performed no services whatever. In fact, I doubt if he knew anything about it until he read it in the press.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And for his performing no services you were prompted to pay him $20,000?

Mr. STRAUSS. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then what did you pay him for?

Mr. STRAUSS. If you refer to the answer I made to a previous question,¹ I indicated over a period of years he has on many occasions proposed business to us, and he has proposed to us business that wasn't always feasible. Sometimes it was feasible for others. And in order to compensate him for those services and so, shall I say, insure his continued goodwill, this payment was made.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you be good enough to explain to me, then, Mr. Strauss, why this letter of transmittal sending Mr. Freeman a check of $20,000 appears in the files, "Re Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company?"

¹ Supra, p. 12489.

Mr. STRAUSS. I have seen that letter and pencil notation, and outside of the fact that there was no other place to file it, I can't account for the pencil notation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it be a reasonable hypothesis for me to make that conceivably this may have been Youngstown business? You indicate a certain vagueness as to why it should have been filed under Youngstown Sheet & Tube. May there not be some gaps in your recollection as to whether or not it was Youngstown business?

Mr. STRAUSS. No; it seems to me perfectly reasonable this man having been responsible, so far as I was concerned, for the initial Youngstown transaction, and this transaction having been not a direct continuation of it but nevertheless a contract with the same company, that some recognition of that might be appropriate even though it were not requisite.

PROFESSIONAL CHARACTER OF INVESTMENT BANKING

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By the way, and digressing for a moment, is it your opinion, too, Mr. Strauss, that investment banking is a profession and analogous to that of the lawyer's profession?

Mr. STRAUSS. With some fine nuances of distinction, I have always regarded banking as a profession in the same way as the medicine and the law; yes, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, you have dealt with lawyers, I assume, for many years in connection with your business. What would you think of lawyers who paid fees to other people for having brought business to them?

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't know as I ever heard of such an instance.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Have you ever read "The Canons of Legal Ethics" by chance?

Mr. STRAUSS. No; I have not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Have you, Mr. Schiff?

Mr. SCHIFF. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Have you, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't this curious? How does it all happen that you use the analogy of the relationship of the banker to his clients as corresponding to that of the lawyer to his clients—and, incidentally, the committee will recall that Mr. Whitney used that analogy, Mr. Sidney A. Mitchell used that analogy, Mr. Walter Sachs used that analogy, and Mr. Charles E. Mitchell, and I think Mr. Leib, and possibly others. Isn't that curious?

Mr. STRAUSS. Might I state what I think the analogy is? The analogy is, sir, that the choice is the choice of the client and that the relation is one of confidence.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now you say you have never read "The Canons of Legal Ethics." Do you know there is a provision in "The Canons of Legal Ethics" that expressly forbids a lawyer from paying money to a third party for bringing in business? And as a matter of fact, if I recall—and there are more distinguished lawyers sitting at the bench here—we use a rather ugly term for anyone who does that. Mr. O'Connell, don't we call that "ambulance chasing"?

Mr. O'CONNELL. That is right.

Mr. STRAUSS. Mr. Nehemkis, aren't there great differences between all the professions? For example, I am sure you would agree there is no question that both the law and medicine are professions, but no doctor would permit himself to be put up on the stand and questioned, for example, on the private affairs of a patient. There are these differences between the relationships—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). May I interrupt a moment because I think you have raised a rather interesting point. Simply because no doctor or no lawyer, by the recognized concepts of society, is permitted to be subjected to the kinds of, shall I say, indignities that the members of your profession are subjected to by people like myself, is plain recognition of the fact that society does not regard your profession as a profession in the same fashion that it regards the medical profession or the legal profession.

Mr. STRAUSS. The professor of that profession may have a better opinion of it than society.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is possible.

Mr. HENDERSON. Since this has been raised, Mr. Strauss, do you regard investment banking as a competitive profession? Is there competition in it?

Mr. STRAUSS. Within the limits of the definition of the term; we know that there is competition required by law in some instances, we know there is voluntary competition in others. I don't know just what you mean, Mr. Henderson.

COMPETITION IN INVESTMENT BANKING

Mr. HENDERSON. I think it is very pertinent since things have frequently come up during this hearing which would be a little bit quaint in competition. The investment banking witnesses have invariably said, "Ours is a profession," and every time we were directly on the point of competition we have been assured that the most vigorous competition prevades the investment banking business.

Now I am not qualified—I take it that you didn't undertake to be qualified either—to pass on the canons of the legal profession, but I think that I am reasonably qualified to test competition, and I am frankly between the two horns of a dilemma, and so we might say it is a competitive profession. Do we want to say that?

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't want to get myself in the position where I am speaking for the investment banking community. I am not qualified to do so. I can only tell you how I personally regard it, and I would attempt to answer your questions in the first person if they were put in the first person singular.

Mr. HENDERSON. Put them in the first person. What do you say? Do you regard it as a competing profession?

Mr. STRAUSS. I do in this sense, Doctor—

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). I am not a doctor. I have preserved my virginity for a good many years. I don't propose to lose it at this distinguished table. [Laughter.]

Mr. STRAUSS. I will answer that off the record. [Laughter.]

We are obviously in competition with all other investment bankers in that our brains and our experience are for sale. Our shingle is out. The prospective borrowers know that. That is the kind of competition that is going on day and night. However, we don't send a catalog of baby carriages every time we see a wedding announcement in the paper—following up your expression, to extend your metaphor.

Mr. MILLER. May I ask a question? Isn't the distinction, Mr. Strauss, that you are trying to make in answer to Commissioner Henderson's question as to competition, this, that in the investment banking business you are selling services, whereas in ordinary commerce and businesses, commodities are being sold? Isn't that the distinction that you attempted to make?

Mr. STRAUSS. If you will add to your point that we also take risks.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, do I understand then that accepting Mr. Miller's suggestion with your addendum, you feel that any service industry is entitled to be outside the frame of competition?

Mr. STRAUSS. I am sorry, I didn't follow that.

Mr. HENDERSON. Well, the cleaning and dyeing industry sells a service, the barber sells a service, and we had in N. R. A. a long line of service codes that presumably were under the regulation of competition. Now none of them, of course, put themselves on the plane of the investment banker, but they were certainly selling services, and it was not considered unethical to go after an account. In fact, in the automobile industry, for example, there is no such thing, as I recall, as a successor to a business; there is no question asked even in the steel industry whether U. S. Steel had formerly gotten the business if Mr. Weir wants to go after it.

Now, even if this were a selling of services, certainly all the ideology that surrounds American competition would be applicable, would it not?

Mr. STRAUSS. Perhaps it is my unfamiliarity with the subject—I don't know what the ideology surrounding American competition is.

Mr. HENDERSON. And I gather that is true of a lot of the investment bankers who have been down here.

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't think so, Mr. Henderson, because the attitude of the investment banking fraternity toward competition is a relative thing. Some institutions are more aggressive than others, and an answer that I might make as to our attitude wouldn't at all be applicable to the whole industry.

Mr. HENDERSON. Now let's suppose there were—I guess you didn't like "fraternity"—in the competitive profession of investment banking two or three firms which were more competitive, relatively. Aren't they working in a decidedly shrunk field when there is the captive company, you might say, the continuing relationship over a long period of years, when there is the reciprocal obligation passing all the time, and when there is the regard for business in its traditional relationship such as we have instanced here today, where you will not touch it unless the company declares itself free? Aren't they working in a decidedly shrunk area?

Mr. STRAUSS. No. In the first place, I don't know of a captive company, speaking only of my own experience. We have no contractual relation with any client that compels them to deal with us. As far as the more aggressive banker working in a restricted area, I think the record of the financing of the last year would bear me out that that is not the case.

Mr. HENDERSON. Right on that point, are you sure that there are no frozen accounts with K. L.?

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't know what a frozen account is.

Mr. HENDERSON. Maybe I will have to get Charlie Mitchell's definition for you, then. But aren't there accounts that over a long period of years have stayed with K. L.?

Mr. STRAUSS. We are very proud of the fact that over a long period of years some clients have continued to use us as their bankers, but there has never been any compulsion and frequently many months go by without even consultation.

AGREEMENTS FOR FUTURE FINANCING BETWEEN UNDERWRITERS AND BETWEEN ISSUER CORPORATIONS AND UNDERWRITERS

Mr. HENDERSON. Leaving apart the fact that there is no obligation on the company, do you not have contracts as do other houses for the future financing of business?

Mr. STRAUSS. None, none.

Mr. HENDERSON. Have you been following the testimony before this committee?

Mr. STRAUSS. I have not; except in the newspaper.

Mr. HENDERSON. Have you seen the references to the contracts for future financing?

Mr. STRAUSS. No; I don't think I have.

Mr. HENDERSON. We had one yesterday, Cleveland-Cliffs, where a part of the underwriting undertaking did envision going forward for all future financing. Then there is A. T. & T.

Mr. STRAUSS. You mean as between the underwriters?

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes.

Mr. STRAUSS. I saw some letters as I came in this morning that had been distributed yesterday. It seemed to me that perhaps was an arrangement that was subject entirely to the continued approval of the borrower, because, as I understand it, it is the borrower that allocates the participation.

Mr. HENDERSON. In this case it was not that. This was a little unusual, because we had the veto power in the management in the Cleveland-Cliffs case by virtue of a board of directors' letter to the underwriters. But there have been over a period—I think counsel could recite these better than I—numerous contractual relationships between the underwriting houses for continued financing.

Mr. STRAUSS. We have no such.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I interrupt to point out, perhaps refresh Mr. Strauss' memory, that I had occasion to offer in evidence at the end of the hearing the day before yesterday an agreement, an understanding, if you will, between Kulin, Loeb & Co. and the Guaranty Company of New York at the time that Mr. Swan was president of that company with reference to American Smelting & Refining Company financing.¹ I had occasion yesterday to offer in evidence before this Committee, and we listened to much discussion on a memorandum² written by Mr. Strauss in connection with Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company financing pertaining to mutual arrangements—

Mr. STRAUSS (interposing). Between the underwriters; and all those things, Mr. Nehemkis, are subject to the borrower.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1848,"

² "Exhibit No. 1833."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me finish my sentence. An arrangement between the underwriters pertaining to the future financing of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company, and if my recollection serves me correctly, Kuhn, Loeb is involved in some other arrangements of that sort involving underwriters.

Mr. STRAUSS. There may be many such, but none of those are binding on the borrower.

Mr. HENDERSON. Your answer to me was that you had no such with other underwriters; that is what I understood.

Mr. STRAUSS. There is a misunderstanding between us, then.

Mr. HENDERSON. Assume that you have these contracts as far as future financing is concerned—

St. STRAUSS (interposing). I wouldn't call them contracts, there is nothing enforceable in connection with any of them.

Mr. HENDERSON. Let's make it understandings.

Mr. STRAUSS. Precisely.

Mr. HENDERSON. And the testimony here has shown that you are probably better off with an understanding than you would be with a contract.

Mr. STRAUSS. Is that a question?

Mr. HENDERSON. I will make it a statement. I would say that the testimony as to the 60 companies covered by the Goldman, Sachs-Lehman Brothers treaty did show that one of those accounts passed, which to me is at least one of the indicia of competition. Now, with these contracts you have, with the attitude towards not competing so long as the banking relationship has not been abandoned by the company, would you not agree with me that the area of vigorous competition open to an investment banker has considerably shrunk?

Mr. STRAUSS. Why, no, Mr. Henderson, because if you will take the instance to which you have referred, you or Mr. Nehemkis, as having come up on yesterday or the day before, of the four firms who were in that particular piece of financing, Cleveland-Cliffs, the percentage of the banking area involved in that was infinitesimal compared with the total picture.

Mr. HENDERSON. Investment banking?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. The 1926 treaty for the Goldman, Sachs-Lehman agreement involved $200,000,000 and 60 firms.

Mr. STRAUSS. I know nothing about that.

Mr. HENDERSON. It is not a small amount that is covered by this type of understanding.

Mr. STRAUSS. As I understand it, that understanding between Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs was not one to which these 60 firms were a party.

Mr. HENDERSON. The evidence showed some of them were very painfully disturbed when there came that little dislocation between the companies.

Mr. STRAUSS. Perhaps because of the personal relationship, but I am assuming from hearsay that they were not parties to any understanding, any contracts between them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Commissioner, may I recall the witness' and perhaps your mind to the fact that Mr. Strauss' and Mr. Schiff's partner, Mr. Bovenizer, appeared here on the afternoon of the first day of our hearings on this subject. Mr. Bovenizer testified for some time, I think we finished up that day around 6 o'clock, and the evidence indicated to me, at least—I don't speak for the committee, of course—that the Chicago Union Station account, which was a joint account between your firm for many years and Lee Higginson, was as frozen as any account that I know anything about.¹ I would even go so far as to say it was more frozen than A. T. & T.

Mr. STRAUSS. Perhaps I am foggy-minded. Are you talking about an account between underwriters being frozen or an account between the borrowers and underwriters being frozen?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This business of language is tricky. I am using a word that I didn't coin. A great banker, Charles E. Mitchell, coined that word in the presence of this committee,² and by "frozen account," Mr. Mitchell, if I understood him correctly, meant the kind of account that over the years as the participations were allocated out by the leader or manager to the various members of the syndicate, remained fixed, crystallized, static.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is greatly at variance with the subject that I understood Mr. Henderson to first question me about, or you, sir, namely, as to whether there was a contract or a frozen relationship between the borrower and the banker. There are agreements between underwriters; I have come prepared to admit it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know of any agreements between underwriters and issuers?

Mr. STRAUSS. Do I know of any?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. STRAUSS. No; I can't say that I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Well, I intend to offer, may it please the committee, Mr. Chairman, either tomorrow or the next day, at an appropriate place, some 30 agreements which have in the past existed between investment banking firms and corporations controlling over a long period of time the issuance of securities by those corporations.³

Mr. STRAUSS. I would like to just say this, that I have negotiated with many dozens of borrowers and numbers of them second, third, fourth, and other times. I have never executed or even discussed such a contract.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But in the 'twenties wasn't that one of the most prevailing customs in the business?

Mr. STRAUSS. Not as far as we were concerned.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you have any general knowledge on the subject?

Mr. STRAUSS. I am sorry, I don't know what other houses have done. I would assume it was rather unusual, but that is purely pulled out of the air.

Acting Chairman KING. I assume that a banking house or investment company that has a client, and that client is satisfied, has issues year in and year out, sort of a continual relation, that there are evidences of that character of relation where the investment banker has for long periods of time supplied the credit for a particular client and that particular client when he needed additional funds, by refunding, or new issues, would go to that investment house that had been caring for his business for many years.

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes, sir, Mr. Chairman; despite the objection to the parallelism of the professional relationship, it seems to me that

¹ Hearings, Part 22, pp. 11426 et seq.

² Ibid, pp. 11570, 11573 et seq.

³ "Exhibits Nos. 1879 to 1925."

the client at any rate has regarded it in much the same way as he has the relationship with his lawyer and his doctor, he has gone to the institution he trusted and that he had dealt with before and whose habits of fair play he is familiar with and in most instances those relationships have continued over a period of time.

Acting Chairman KING. Can you conceive of anything unethical or improper for an investment banking house to establish relations under the terms of which when its client wants additional money and resorts to the investment house, that that investment house should not, if it can reach a satisfactory agreement with him, continue to serve him?

Mr. STRAUSS. No, Mr. Chairman; I not only agree with that, but I go further, I think a continuing relationship of a mutually free will nature is really essential to a proper consideration of the problems of the borrower. It is only through long familiarity with the requirements of a business and coupled with familiarity with the market that the kind of service can be rendered that is of the most use to the borrower.

Acting Chairman KING. An investment house desires to know, does it not, before it takes on an obligation to sell securities or to underwrite them, something about the character of the business and the habits of those in charge, their dependability, their character and integrity, and also, further, if they have outstanding obligations and if so why, what disposition, what arrangements have been made to meet them?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes, sir.

Acting Chairman KING. And all of those considerations are involved before the prudent banking investment house will undertake to dispose of the securities of a client.

Mr. STRAUSS. No investment banker could state it more succinctly.

Acting Chairman KING. What is that?

Mr. STRAUSS. I would accept that definition precisely.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was your previous remark?

Mr. STRAUSS. I said no one in this profession could state it more agreeably or succinctly.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Than the Chairman has just put it?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes.

Acting Chairman KING. Of course there is an element in those agreements where you underwrite that calls for perhaps great losses to be paid by the investment house if the securities are not sold or if there is a decline in the market, or if there is some interruption in the ordinary normal business.

Mr. STRAUSS. There are risks.

Acting Chairman KING. There are risks, so that not only is the relationship to which we have referred where client and lawyer are involved, but there is the additional question involved—namely, the risk, and the investment house assumes those risks, especially if they underwrite the securities.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is correct.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, I want the record to be decidedly clear. I think, if you will recall the interrogation, I have not raised the question of propriety with the witness. What I am interested in is, what is it? Is it a profession, or is it a business, or is it a combination? It is at least slightly tinged with the public interest to know what this thing is that handles tremendous sums of the public's money, and I think we are well served by this kind of discussion because if we get a clear picture, the public attitude is certainly on a good, strong, factual basis. I am not here raising the question of propriety: I am trying to find out just exactly what this thing is, and I have undertaken at various points to indicate where in my opinion it does not meet the tests of competition—free enterprise and free entry—which we presume exist in the public mind and which certainly are contemplated by the statute set down for the regulation of competition.

I think we are getting pretty well along in the testimony of the witness and the testimony of the committee.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Senator King, last night in looking over my papers, I read a rather interesting bit of testimony by one of the former partners of the gentlemen who are here this morning. I think it bears directly on the point. I want to read to you, if I may, the testimony of the late Otto Kahn, who in 1933 testified on a similar subject but a few doors down the corridor.

Mr. Kahn was asked by Mr. Pecora the following questions.¹

What is the general method, or what has been the general method by which your firm has financed railroad operations?

Mr. KAHN. May I ask, in order that I may correctly understand your question before I answer: Do you mean the general method in detail of buying railroad securities, or the general method in approaching railroads?

Mr. Pecora replied,

Well, take the latter part of your inquiry, for instance, the general method of approaching railroads.

Mr. KAHN. Well, I should say precisely the same method by which a lawyer approaches clients.

Mr. Pecora replied,

Well, lawyers are not supposed to approach clients.

And then Mr. Kahn continued, and this is what I wanted to get at.

Mr. KAHN. I was coming to that, Mr. Pecora. Or the method by which a doctor approaches a patient who is sick. He does not go after him. Ethically and as a standard of the legal profession you are not permitted to go after him. And I do not suppose that a doctor would be permitted to go after a patient under the ethical standards of the medical profession. For instance, he could not go if someone told him that "Mr. Smith in the next block is very sick with pneumonia, you better run in and try to find out if can get him." That would not be the way to do it. He gets his clients by reason of his reputation for ability and for successful cures and for sound advice given. And so it is with the lawyer. So it is with the architect. And so in our case it has long been our policy and our effort to get our clients, not by chasing after them, not by praising our own wares, but by an attempt to establish a reputation which would make clients feel that if they have a problem of a financial nature, Dr. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is a pretty good doctor to go to.

Mr. STRAUSS. I am awfully glad you read that. I wish I had that power of expression. I would like to put that in quotes.

THE ELEMENT OF PRICE IN INVESTMENT BANKING COMPETITION

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Strauss, a few moments ago you explained, or I understood you to explain, the plane upon which you understand competition operates in this industry. It is apparently a peculiar type of competition; that is, it doesn't reflect the element of price.

¹ Reading from hearings before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, pursuant to S. Res. 84, 72d Cong. and S. Res. 56 and S. Res. 97, 73d Cong., Vol. 3, pp. 959-960, June 27, 1933.

Mr. STRAUSS. Sometimes it does, sir.

Mr. O'CONNELL. But the element of price is a disturbing element, a risk element, is it not?

Mr. STRAUSS. No; there are certain securities, for example municipal securities, in which they are usually sold on price.

Mr. O'CONNELL. But they are sold that way because the law requires them to be sold that way. Would it not be fair to state that it is your position that price competition is undesirable in the field of investment banking?

Mr. STRAUSS. In the field of public investing; I think it is much more important to the investor than it is to the investment banker.

Mr. O'CONNELL. What is?

Mr. STRAUSS. That price competition should not exist.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Should not exist?

Mr. STRAUSS. Should not.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I am asking you if it is your position that price competition should not exist.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is my position.

Mr. O'CONNELL. What about in the field of public financing? Do you think it would be more desirable if competitive bidding for public securities were required by law?

Mr. STRAUSS. I would be glad to go into the general question of competition in public bidding if you wish me to do it. I would hate to do it just in answer to a question because it seems to me that the problem is one that has a good many angles and I don't want to get myself in the position where if I start to present a general theory you would feel that it is out of place.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think the witness is correct in that.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Yes.

Mr. STRAUSS. I have read that is not your desire, but I am prepared to do it if you wish.

Mr. O'CONNELL. That goes pretty far afield. The thing I want to be clear on is on whatever plane competition in the investment banking field operates it is your view that it should not include the element of price competition.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is my feeling, and of course it is obvious that sound performance is another element of competition as well as price.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Oh, yes; but it is equally obvious to me that price regulation is one of the most important functions of competition in competing enterprises.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is right.

Mr. O'CONNELL. It is a regulator of price.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is true.

Mr. O'CONNELL. It is one of the most important functions it has. As I understood it, it is one of the most important functions a system of competition has, and you feel that it is so inimical to the interests of the investment bankers and to the public that it should be eliminated entirely.

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes; and I am prepared to go into that at length if I am permitted to.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think at the proper time we would be glad to have that because we hoped to hear it, but for the purpose of this discussion I think, as was developed, Mr. Chairman, that the element of price is a minor element, whereas in industry it is an extraordinary and prime element which determines whether or not competition actually exists.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Strauss, you may recall that earlier I offered in evidence a memorandum¹ prepared by Mr. Schiff in which he had occasion to communicate that it would not be desirable for your firm to "poach on the preserves" of E. B. Smith & Co. without first establishing certain facts and conditions. I take it you agree with that general position.

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes. Of course, this was a memorandum for the use of Mr. Schiff's partners and in the use of a term I presume Mr. Schiff felt it was unnecessary to go into a disquisition in the memorandum of what he meant by a phrase or a sentence.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You all understood each other.

Mr. STRAUSS. We understood it.

FINANCING OF THE ARMSTRONG CORK CO.—1935 ISSUE (RESUMED)—
EDWARD B. SMITH & CO. BELIEVES ARMSTRONG IS ITS ACCOUNT

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact, Mr. Strauss, that you had a number of conferences with Armstrong officials during the early part of the year 1935?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that is the year following the date of Mr. Schiff's memorandum?

Mr. STRAUSS. Precisely.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Had you satisfied yourself before holding these conversations that the Armstrong people were coming to Kuhn, Loeb of their own free will, to use Mr. Schiff's phrase?

Mr. STRAUSS. I asked them that question when they came in. There was no other way of satisfying myself.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What did they indicate?

Mr. STRAUSS. To the best of my recollection they satisfied any qualms I might have had on that point.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But at that time you did not feel constrained to discuss the matter with E. B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. STRAUSS. I had nothing to discuss with E. B. Smith & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you had a very potent caveat by Mr. Schiff in his memorandum of July of 1934 that to continue such discussions might be construed as poaching on the preserves of E. B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. STRAUSS. If those relationships which were referred to in that memorandum had not been ruptured. There was no way of ascertaining that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that, if I understand correctly, you did ascertain that fact, namely, that the officials were coming of their own free will and you were satisfied on that point.

Mr. STRAUSS. I think the correspondence bears that out. They came to me after telegraphing me for an appointment.

¹ "Exhibit No. 1858."

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you did not discuss the matter at that time with any of the partners of E. B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. STRAUSS. Very shortly thereafter I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In fact, on March 14, 1935, did you not communicate with Mr. Swan and inform him that Kuhn, Loeb had this business and you would be very pleased if E. B. Smith & Co. would join hands with your firm in bringing out the financing?

Mr. STRAUSS. The precise language I used you wouldn't expect me to remember, but the general sense of what I said was undoubtedly just that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Swan, will you be good enough to examine these diary entries which purport to be made by various partners of yours pertaining to Armstrong Cork events, and tell me whether this is a true and correct copy of the original diary in the possession and custody of your firm?

Mr. SWAN. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, do you recall that on or about March 14, Mr. Strauss called you and said substantially what I have mentioned a moment ago, namely, that K. L. had the business and they would be very glad to join hands with you?

Mr. SWAN. I remember that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall, Mr. Swan, whether you explained at this time to Mr. Strauss that the Armstrong business was an old account of yours?

Mr. SWAN. I believe that we explained to Mr. Strauss that we individuals who had been in the Guaranty Co. had previously handled Armstrong business and that we considered that at that time that we were in contact with them in respect to business in the future, that our relations previously had been such that we expected that the Armstrong Cork Co. would continue with us as individuals.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Strauss, do you recall such a conversation between yourself and Mr. Swan?

Mr. STRAUSS. In general terms, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I read to you, Mr. Strauss and Mr. Swan, from a diary entry of March 19, 1935, by your partner, Mr. Swan, John Cutler [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1860"]:

Lewis Strauss of KL told JRS and myself—that being Mr. Cutler—

3/14/35 that they had this business—meaning K. L. had this business—and he—

meaning Lewis Strauss—

asked if we would be interested in joining them. We explained that this was an old account of ours and we believed it was still ours, but it was kind of him to think of us and we would like to consider the situation. I subsequently talked to Roy Passmore at the Bank—

Will you be good enough to tell me who Roy Passmore is?

Mr. SWAN. He is vice president of Guaranty Trust Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the reference to the bank is the Guaranty Trust Co.?

Mr. SWAN. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Continuing the diary entry [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1860"]:

who said that he had been in conversation with officers of the Company within the last thirty days and felt very sure that there was nothing in KL's contention, and that the Company would not do anything without discussing the matter with them at the Trust Co. first, and that he could not believe they would accept any other offer without giving us a chance—

"us" meaning E. B. Smith & Co.

I suggested it might be well for us to take a day and run down to Lancaster to see the plant, and he—thought this would do no harm.

Roy Passmore—

Now following Mr. Strauss' call, Mr. Swan, did not one of your partners communicate with another official to discuss the same matter, do you remember?

Mr. SWAN. Another official of the bank?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Of the bank.

Mr. SWAN. I don't happen to recall.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Why was it necessary to consult an officer of the Guaranty Trust Co. in this matter, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. When the officers of the Guaranty Co. became partners, when certain officers of the Guaranty Co., became partners of E. B. Smith & Co., they did so with the hope we could get the concerns with which the Guaranty Co. had been doing business to continue to do their business with Edward B. Smith & Co. and with us as individuals. It was naturally a matter of the highest importance to us that we accomplish this. We were well and favorably known to all of the men in the Guaranty Trust Co., we had been working there for many years, we had had these contacts with these concerns as officers of the Guaranty Co. It was naturally of great importance that we get the officers of the Guaranty Trust Co. to recommend us to people whom we contacted and whom we wanted to continue to hold. If they wouldn't recommend us, of course it would have been very adverse to us. Naturally we expected that they would recommend us, because they knew how we did business, they knew how we had conducted business in the past, they knew that our new arrangement provided ample capital to take care of the needs of these customers, and therefore we kept in touch with the officers of the Guaranty Trust Co., who were particularly handling the accounts which might be under discussion in order to urge them and persuade them and push them on to helping us in every way we could get them to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in that connection, Mr. Swan, was it not the practice and perhaps is it not the practice at the present time for members of your organization to frequently make use of the old records and books of account at the bank to check up on historical positions and percentage participation and advertising position and things of that sort?

Mr. SWAN. I would not say frequently, I would say occasionally.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Occasionally.

Mr. Strauss, do you recall that on or about March 20, Mr. Swan communicated with you concerning your claims to the Armstrong business?

Mr. STRAUSS. I wouldn't recall the date, but if there is a diary entry perhaps that would refresh my memory. I keep no dairy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I beg your pardon?

Mr. STRAUSS. I keep no diaries.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You mean as a partner of Kuhn, Loeb you keep no diary entries?

Mr. STRAUSS. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you, by the way, Mr. Schiff?

Mr. SCHIFF. No, I don't.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do any of your partners keep diary entries?

Mr. SCHIFF. I wouldn't know. I shouldn't think so but I wouldn't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not Mr. Swan state, Mr. Strauss, that he believed the Armstrong business was E. B. Smith's at this time?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you recognize the validity of Mr. Swan's position and did you not agree that K. L. would not compete for the business?

Mr. STRAUSS. Yes. As a matter of fact, I have some recollection at that time of having reached the conclusion that we were not the only parties with whom the company had discussed the matter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you not also indicate to Mr. Swan that you so informed the Armstrong people?

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't remember whether I did or not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me read you from a diary entry of March 20, 1935, by Mr. Swan's partner, John W. Cutler [reading from "Exhibit No. 1860"]:

JRS—

meaning Mr. Swan—

and I—

meaning Mr. Cutler—

talked to Strauss of KL&Co. and told him that we believed Armstrong to be our business and that when something could be done they would look to us. Strauss said if that were so KL would not compete, and that he would so inform the Armstrong people. If they really wish to make a change and clear with us, KL will then be willing to talk to them. We indicated that if and when the business would be done we would have a place for them.

Mr. STRAUSS. That is what I should have said and probably did say.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, Mr. Strauss, after Mr. Swan informed you of the fact that Armstrong Cork Co. was, so to speak, his business, and that this was confirmed by the Guaranty Trust Co., K. L. recognized, did it not, that the Armstrong business was within the sphere of interest, so to speak, of E. B. Smith and there—

Mr. STRAUSS (interposing). No, emphatically not. In fact, he said it was his business, in fact he indicated that the Armstrong Cork Co. regarded him as its banker and that there was some sort of negotiation or conversation, at any rate, that was under way or in progress or had taken place. In any event it was not a clear field, although if you will again turn to this memorandum that I have just heard I reserved the right, in the event that that should not be the case, to freedom of action.

"SHOPPING AROUND"

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On or about April 3, 1935, Mr. Swan, did not Mr. Cutler and Mr. Land of your firm call on some of the company officials at Lancaster in pursuance of the suggestion of Mr. Passmore of the bank?

Mr. SWAN. I am not aware whether it was at his suggestion or their suggestion.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall whether or not these gentlemen discussed with Mr. Suter, the vice president of the company, his previous visits to Kuhn, Loeb?

Mr. SWAN. I do not recollect that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't?

Mr. SWAN. I don't happen to remember.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall whether or not Mr. Suter was accused by your partners of having committed the unpardonable sin, namely, of having "shopped around" on the Street?

Mr. SWAN. I do not remember that they accused him of that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me read you a rather interesting statement in a diary entry by J. N. L., and I think J. N. L. is J. N. Land?

Mr. SWAN. J. N. Land.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This is a diary entry by Mr. Land as of April 6, 1935 [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1860":]

JWC—

being John W. Cutler—and JNL—

just identified.

called on the co.'s officials in Lancaster 4/3/35. Discussed refunding with 4% debts. or pfd. See letter in Buying Dept. file dated 4/4/35 for outline of plans discussed.

Notice carefully, if you will, the next sentence [Reading further:]

Suter said Co. had not done any shopping around.

Now obviously (and I believe I am correct in making this inference) Mr. Suter upon meeting Mr. Land and Mr. Cutler at the railroad station at Lancaster didn't jump on their necks and say, "No, I didn't shop around." Somebody must have accused him of having shopped around so that he was forced to defend himself.

Mr. SWAN. I don't think that that inference is of necessity correct. I don't know how he happened to make the statement that he hadn't been shopping around, but I don't think it is fair from a memorandum to infer anything about what provoked that statement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let us see if we can agree on this. Perhaps you are correct that that inference may not be fair, I don't know. Would you be willing to concede, however, that the problem of whether or not Suter had been shopping around was discussed in accordance with the diary entry from which I have just read?

Mr. SWAN. From the diary entry you have just read apparently the subject of shopping around was discussed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. To put it in a way so we may all be clear on that phrase, what is meant by shopping around?

Mr. SWAN. Well, I think shopping around means, as I understand it, getting simultaneous offers from two or more banking firms.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now the members of your profession, Mr. Swan, and your profession, Mr. Strauss, and your profession, Mr. Schiff, don't think that that is a very good practice, do you?

Mr. SWAN. Are you asking me?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. SWAN. I think I would like to go into this at just a little length, if I may. Of course, you must recognize that at this particular time the Guaranty Co. had ceased to exist. They had previously been bankers for the Armstrong Cork Co. Certain officers of the Guaranty Co. had gone into Edward B. Smith & Co. as partners. Those partners were making a great effort to secure the business of the Armstrong Cork Co., together with other pieces of business which they had previously handled. It is obvious from the record that at some stage of our effort to get this business, Mr. Suter was not clear as to just what he wanted to do and he did what I think I would have done in similar circumstances, he went around and discussed in a general way the affairs of the Armstrong Cork Co. with different banking houses, with us and with others. I think that he was trying to clear up in his own mind whom he wanted to select as his bankers and he went around and got a view of this situation by these various discussions. That I do not put in the category of shopping around. If I had been Mr. Suter I would have done just as he did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What is shopping around, as you understand it?

Mr. SWAN. Finally he came to the conclusion that he wanted to do business with Edward B. Smith & Co.. If after he had come to that conclusion he then continued to go to other bankers in order to get competitive offers to do his financing, that was what I would consider shopping around.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Strauss, as you previously indicated in your earlier testimony, you do not think that that is a very good practice to encourage?

Mr. STRAUSS. Well, it all depends on the circumstances, Mr. Nehemkis. If I had one security to sell and never expected to have another I would, to use the expression, shop around. If I expected, on the other hand, to do financing at some future time I would not.

Mr. HENDERSON. You say if you—

Mr. STRAUSS (interposing). I can only answer for myself.

Mr. HENDERSON. I know. If you were getting a piece of business—but how do you regard a company?

Mr. STRAUSS. If I were an executive in the unusual position of never having to sell but one issue, never again, so that continuing banking relationship or continuing financial advice was of no interest to me whatever, I should shop around.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Schiff, suppose this situation occurred, would this be an instance of shopping around? The X corporation has had continuous banking relationships with a firm and comes to see you. You are aware of the circumstances, but in an unguarded moment you commit yourself on price and then that individual runs across the street and begins dickering around with another investment banking firm on the basis of the price he has received from you.

Mr. SCHIFF. I hope we wouldn't be that foolish as to let such an unguarded moment take us unawares.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You will recall I said "assume."

Mr. SCHIFF. I don't think I can talk from assumptions like that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I thought I was giving you an instance that might lend itself to a "yes" or "no" answer. Suppose you tell me what your conception of shopping around is.

Mr. SCHIFF. I think shopping around is talking to several banking houses at the same time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. With an idea of the issuer jacking up the price as a result of getting several bids?

Mr. SCHIFF. Perhaps jacking up the price, perhaps getting more liberal terms in the indenture, which would be of destructive nature to the security holder.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you as an investment banker regard that as a desirable practice?

Mr. SCHIFF. I should think it would be most undesirable.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Beg your pardon?

Mr. SCHIFF. I should think it would be most undesirable for the corporation issuing and for the public.

Mr. HENDERSON. May I ask a question there? In that case I think you must put it on different grounds. I think I see your grounds, it is weakening the indenture, but it strikes me as a contrast between, we might say, the marketing of securities through an investment banking house and the selling of securities on the Exchange, which are strikingly different. The Exchange is the outstanding example (I hope it will continue so) of a place where supply and demand exist, where buyer and seller exist, and where an attempt is made to have a large number of buyers and a large number of sellers trying to fix on a proper market price. The Exchange is always considered the real place where free competition exists and it strikes me that there is a decided analogy there. I think you have explained some of the reasons why you feel that it marks itself off.

Mr. SCHIFF. I might say that the Exchange is the market for trading in seasoned securities. We are talking about underwriting and offering new securities, after all.

Mr. HENDERSON. That would be the same thing for the secondary distribution or for marketing some treasury stock that has already come on the market.

Mr. SCHIFF. But then you are offering a big block. The exchange is dealing in small amounts. The offering of a large amount gives an entirely different reaction.

Mr. HENDERSON. Yes; but if you offered a big block, in other words if the supply side was very heavy and the buying side was less heavy, the market would determine the price.

Mr. SCHIFF. And that is one of the main functions of the investment banker, to determine what is the correct price for the existing market, to give the individual investor the opportunity to get it at the correct price and the issuer the opportunity to get the correct price for him, and if he doesn't price it right he won't stay in business very long, he will lose his business.

KUHN, LOEB & CO. INFORMS EDWARD B. SMITH & CO. OF CONVERSATIONS WITH ARMSTRONG CORK CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, after your conversation with Mr. Strauss, when you informed him that you regarded the Armstrong account as belonging to your firm and that you were ready to handle it, did not Mr. Strauss thereafter keep you informed of all conversations which he had with the Armstrong people?

Mr. SWAN. I believe that he may have had other conversations of which he probably informed us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall, Mr. Strauss?

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't recall, but if there were conversations subsequently there couldn't have been many.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That wasn't quite my question. My question was, do you recall keeping Mr. Swan or his associates informed of each and every time you had occasion to discuss the matter with the Armstrong people?

Mr. STRAUSS. No, I don't recall that, but such things may have occurred.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am going to read to you from a diary entry by Mr. John W. Cutler, May 1, 1935. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1860":]

Lewis Strauss called JRS, said Suter had been in to see him when he was in New York the end of last week and that he had told Suter of his conversation with us. Suter had also been to the Guaranty and talked with Passmore, who said that he felt sure if they were considering immediate action Suter would have spoken to him about it.

Mr. STRAUSS. May I interrupt to say I am very glad you read that, because it enables me to answer a previous question to which I had to reply I didn't know. You asked me, as I recollect, whether having advised Mr. Swan that I would inform the company of my conversation, I had in fact done so; I think that diary entry would indicate that I had done so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now again on June 13, 1935, Mr. Cutler made this entry. [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1860":]

Strauss said he had not seen him recently—

Referring to Suter—

and believed he had reported to us each and every time the Company had said anything to them.

Now, Mr. Swan, was not the reason for Mr. Strauss' reports to you the result of K. L.'s recognition that the Armstrong business was within your sphere of interest?

Mr. SWAN. Oh, I think when we had the conversation in which Mr. Strauss said he would not compete unless the Armstrong people broke from us, that he recognized that the business was in our hands.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that for K. L. to carry on discussions with the company under the circumstances would be a breach of banker's courtesy to you?

Mr. SWAN. I think that he did not, as far as I know—he can testify to this; I don't think he carried on conversations with the company after he had advised Mr. Suter that he could not carry on such conversations unless he broke with us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you recall I just read into the record a diary entry as late as June 13, in which Mr. Strauss indicated that he was reporting to you each and every time the company had said anything to them.

Mr. SWAN. That may have referred to conversations far previous to that. I don't know—Mr. Strauss can testify as to whether or not he had any conversations with Mr. Suter after he advised him that he would not compete unless he broke with us. I just don't know. I don't think he had any conversations after that.

Mr. STRAUSS. I don't know. If I had any visits from Mr. Suter and Mr. Prentis, they were completely unsolicited and I have no recollection of them. On the other hand, if the records indicate they came in to see me, I would immediately confirm them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like to offer in evidence the diary entries previously identified by the witness.

(The diary entries referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1860" and are included in the appendix on p. 12779.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it your pleasure to recess at this time?

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. How long will it be before you conclude with these witnesses?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I should think Mr. Schiff and Mr. Strauss may be dismissed at this time. Mr. Swan unfortunately must continue this afternoon.

Mr. HENDERSON. I have a question before they go.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Very well, proceed if it is just a question. I think it is time to recess, but if there is only a question or two, we will have it now.

Mr. HENDERSON. I wanted to make this clear before these witnesses leave. When we were having the free-for-all discussion Counsel Nehemkis used the term "ambulance chasing" to indicate the payment of fees by the legal fraternity to bring in clients. I think he meant to say that if banking were clearly and exclusively on complete fours with a profession, then that analogy would prevail. Certainly, I don't regard the function which a finder or an intermediary performs as that of ambulance chasing. I think he performs a very definite function, and it would serve the general philosophy of investment banking much better if we had more finders and if they would bring in a lot of business to add to new investment.

Mr. STRAUSS. I would like to say amen to that.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. The committee will be in recess until 2:30.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I take it Mr. Strauss and Mr. Schiff are excused, and Mr. Swan must remain.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. All right.

(Whereupon, at 12:35 p. m., a recess was taken until 2:30 p. m. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

The committee resumed at 2:35 p. m. at the expiration of the recess.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. The committee will please be in order.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, will you be good enough to return to the witness stand, please?

(Representative Williams took the chair.)

TESTIMONY OF JOSEPH R. SWAN, SMITH, BARNEY & CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As you have already testified, Mr. Swan, on the subsequent public offering of the Armstrong Cork Co. issue, Kuhn,

Loeb was given a nonappearing position in the syndicate, is that not correct, sir?

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

EDWARD B. SMITH & CO.'S RELATIONS WITH ISSUER CORPORATIONS AND WITH GUARANTY TRUST CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, I show you a document bearing the title, "Outline of Guaranty Co. of New York's relationship to public financing of the American Rolling Mill Company." This document was obtained from your files. Will you be good enough to identify it for me?

Mr. SWAN. Are you going to question me about this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I do not intend to, sir.

Mr. SWAN. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I ask that the document identified by the witness be spread on the records of the committee.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It may be received.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1861" and is included in the appendix on p. 12781.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, will you examine this document which purports to be a memorandum by your partner, Mr. Weisheit, with reference to the Dow Chemical Co.?

Mr. SWAN. I have never seen it, or I don't remember it, but I have no doubt that it is all right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This memorandum prepared by Mr. Weisheit for Mr. Cutler reads as follows [reading from Exhibit No. 1862-1]:

Fred Kraye—

Will you tell me who Mr. Kraye is? Do you recall?

Mr. SWAN. Fred Kraye was formerly an employee of the Guaranty Co. I think he was later an employee of Edward B. Smith & Co. I think he is now an employee of Harriman Ripley & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Formerly Brown Harriman & Co.

Mr. SWAN. Formerly Brown Harriman.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1862-1"]:

Fred Kraye informed me today that he had been approached by Wertheim & Co. to form a joint account to buy rights to subscribe to this company's preferred stock with the idea of subscribing for the stock and marketing it. Recognizing us as the company's bankers, he had told Wertheim & Co. that Brown Harriman would do nothing without first talking to us and therefore wanted to know (1) whether we wanted to join Brown Harriman and Wertheim in such a joint account, (2) if we did not want to go along, did we have any objection to their approaching the large stockholders with the idea of making a bid for their rights.

Mr. SWAN. That is not the whole memorandum, is it?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. There is another part here. I am going to offer the entire memorandum in evidence. Would you like me to read it all?

Mr. SWAN. I think it would be interesting just to have you read how we approached Mr. Dow, and so on.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1862-1"]:

Or (3) did we prefer that they take no action whatever.

The next paragraph—

After discussing the matter with JWC, CWK, and Hamilton Wilson, who discussed the whole story with Mr. Dow, I informed FK that Mr. Dow had told us that he had received many letters from brokers who had common stock in their names—and so on.

The rest of the memorandum is not relevant to the discussion.

Mr. SWAN. No; I just wanted it brought out.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It will all be in evidence.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1862-1" and is included in the appendix on p. 12781.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, I show you a memorandum prepared by C. L. Austin, formerly with your organization, dated July 23, 1935, which purports to come from your files. Will you identify it for me, please? Do you so identify it?

Mr. SWAN. I do.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1862-2" and is included in the appendix, p. 12782.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would like to read into the record, Mr. Chairman, paragraphs of the memorandum identified by the witness [reading from "Exhibit No. 1862-2"]:

JRS and CSC—

That is a new set of initials to me—

Mr. SWAN. Charles S. Cheston.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Charles S. Cheston.

JRS and CSC called on Henry Dawes in Chicago on October 22, 1934, and discussed generally with him the possibilities of doing a refunding job when market conditions warranted. In view of the fact that Edward B. Smith & Co. had inherited the Guaranty Company's position, we stated to Mr. Dawes that we felt we should be given first consideration. Mr. Dawes said that it was too early to discuss the matter, but that he appreciated our stopping in and that he would let us know whenever he had anything to talk about.

Mr. SWAN. May I comment on that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Indeed, sir.

Mr. SWAN. It really is not a correct statement for us to say that we inherited the business. It has been testified here a number of times exactly what we did do, and we could not claim to have inherited the Guaranty Co.'s business. We as individuals had had relationships with these companies which we were trying to continue. I wouldn't want the Guaranty Trust Co. to think that I let this go by in this investigation and have you gentlemen understand that we thought we inherited their business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think, Mr. Swan, that the committee understands that there was no will drawn up or formal instrument executed by which this business passed on and that the word "inherited" is used rather loosely but with some significance.

Mr. SWAN. Well, I think I would like to say something about that. There never was a more definite divorcement from an institution than there was in this case. The officers of the Guaranty Co. who became partners of E. B. Smith & Co. went into an organization with capital provided entirely by the partners. It is a fact that in the case of some partners who were not men who had been officers of the Guaranty Co. they did borrow some money to put in the partnership. It was done entirely on our own resources and all that we got from the Guaranty Trust Co. was friendly Godspeed and hoping that we would do well and that they thought we were properly set up so they could recommend us to clients who might call on them for advice in regard to these matters.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, may I have leave of the committee to offer in evidence two documents obtained from the files of the Mellon Securities Corporation of Pittsburgh? The member of my staff who obtained these documents is not available. Will you accept them subject to future identification?

(Mr. O'Connell in the Chair.)

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. They may be accepted. Do I understand that a witness will identify them?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A member of my staff who did obtain them will be here tomorrow morning, or certainly not later than Friday, to identify them.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. But you wish them inserted in the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At this time so that the continuity will be clear.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. That may be done.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I therefore offer in evidence two memoranda from the files of the Mellon Securities Corporation, one pertaining to the Koppers Co., $25,000,000, series A, 4 percent first mortgage and collateral trust bonds due November 1, 1951, and the second memorandum pertaining to Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation financing, dated Aug. 17, 1936, this memorandum being a memorandum by C. L. Austin.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do you have any objection to this insertion for later identification?

Mr. SWAN. I don't know what it is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They bear directly on the point we are now discussing, Mr. Swan.

Mr. HENDERSON. They have been secured in the same manner as all other documents.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would be very happy to allow Mr. Swan to read them.

Mr. SWAN. I am just a little in the dark.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. There is really a very simple point about which I wanted to make the record clear.

(Mr. Swan read the two memoranda referred to by Mr. Nehemkis.)

Mr. SWAN. I have no objection to their being offered.

(The memoranda referred to were marked "Exhibits No. 1863 and 1864" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12787 and 12788.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I read to you from the Koppers memorandum by Mr. Austin. By the way, that is the same C. L. Austin formerly associated with E. B. Smith & Co. is it not?

Mr. SWAN. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1863":]

We stated clearly to Edward B. Smith & Co., and First Boston Corporation that we had no choice as to the selection of either house to appear second in the business: Smith on account of the indirect relationship through the Guaranty Company to the Koppers business.

By that Mr. Austin meant that the Guaranty Co. had had a participation in the Koppers business in the past?

Mr. SWAN. I expect that is so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I now read to you from Mr. Austin's memorandum in regard to Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation financing, as of Aug. 17, 1936. In his second paragraph, which you glanced at a moment ago, he said as follows [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1864"]:

We then approached Messrs. Swan and Walker of Edward B. Smith & Co., who were formerly connected with the Guaranty Company of New York, which had second position to the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh in the previous preferred stock issue of Jones & Laughlin.

I merely offer these and discuss them at this time, Mr. Swan, not because they have any special significance other than this—it is the only way one can make judgments about these matters—that representatives of the industry regarded E. B. Smith & Co. as the successor to the Guaranty Co. Maybe they were all wrong, but there has been a fairly voluminous amount of evidence that has gone in on that point.

Mr. SWAN. If I may comment on that, when we were turned out into the world from the Guaranty Co. we made, as I have said many times before, every effort we could to continue our relation with the business that the Guaranty Co. had done, and we didn't hesitate to stress very strongly our personal relationships which we had built up in the Guaranty Co. with whatever business was under discussion, and we tried to make our long personal relationship with this or that business count in our efforts to secure a favorable position in this or that respect. There is no question but that is what we endeavored to do.

FINANCING OF WILSON & COMPANY—1935 ISSUE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, has E. B. Smith & Co. done any financing for Wilson & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. Yes; we did, I think, two pieces of business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In 1935, in July of 1935, to be specific, did not E. B. Smith & Co. bring out a $20,000,000 first mortgage 20-year bond series A offering?

Mr. SWAN. I accept your date.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And did not E. B. Smith & Co. head this issue?

Mr. SWAN. We did, jointly with Glore, Forgan.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall who composed the syndicate?

Mr. SWAN. Well, there were quite a number in the group.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a memorandum bearing on this subject entitled "For Record Only," dated July 30, 1935, and ask you to examine page 2 and see whether it does not refresh your recollection.

Mr. SWAN. That is a correct statement of the group, I am sure.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you tell me who some of the members of the group were?

Mr. SWAN. Edward B. Smith & Co., Field, Glore & Co., Speyer & Co., The First Boston Corporation, Hallgarten & Co., Goldman, Sachs & Co., Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, Lazard Frères & Co., Hornblower & Weeks, Lee Higginson Corporation, Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was Kuhn, Loeb in a nonappearing position?

Mr. SWAN. They were in a nonappearing position.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was the amount of Kuhn, Loeb's participation?

Mr. SWAN. $2,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was that one of the largest of the participations?

Mr. SWAN. That was the third largest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not the Wilson & Co. account an old account of the Guaranty Co., Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. It was a joint account between Guaranty Co., Chase Securities Co., Blair & Co., and Hallgarten & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall when the Guaranty Co. had handled the last piece of financing for the company immediately prior to the passage of the Banking Act?

Mr. SWAN. I don't happen to recall it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. If I told you it was in 1931, would that help any?

Mr. SWAN. If you have got some memorandum that I could identify, it would help. I don't happen to recollect.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a memorandum by Mr. C. L. Austin, dated October 18, 1934, bearing on Wilson & Co., Inc. Will you glance at this and see whether this refreshes your recollection?

Mr. SWAN. May I read this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Please.

Mr. SWAN [reading from "Exhibit No. 1865"]:

The Guaranty Company informs me that the Purchase Group in the last Wilson financing, which was in June 1927—

That is dated 1934, this memorandum, so the last financing was 6 years before.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think in 1931 there was a note offering. I may be mistaken—I accept that, it is unimportant.

Now can you tell me who composed the purchase group in that 1927 offering?

Mr. SWAN. Guaranty Co., Hallgarten, Blair, Chase Securities, Continental & Commercial Trust Savings Bank, First Trust & Savings, Illinois Merchants Trust.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would you be good enough to read once again the first sentence of the first paragraph?

Mr. SWAN [reading from "Exhibit No. 1865"]:

The Guaranty Company informs me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. We had occasion this morning to refer to the occasional practice, shall I say, of members of your organization to refer to the records or books of the Guaranty Co. for information on old Guaranty business, did we not?

Mr. SWAN. We did, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this would apparently be one of those occasions, would it not?

Mr. SWAN. We asked the Guaranty Trust Co. to search the records of the Guaranty Co. and see if they could give us this information. We did not have access to the records.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't that a rather valuable right, Mr. Swan, to be able to have access to the material on file with the Guaranty Trust about past accounts of that bank?

Mr. SWAN. It is useful. I wouldn't say it was very valuable.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I just had in mind the fact that when The First Boston Corporation was organized, it thought that similar rights were sufficiently valuable that it was willing to pay for them.

Mr. SWAN. They got the records.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Exactly, because they thought they were that important.

Mr. SWAN. We haven't got the records.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But you have free entry and access.

Mr. SWAN. No, we have not. By special request, when they think our request is a reasonable and proper one, they will give us the information we ask for.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this account we have been referring to was jointly handled, you say, with Hallgarten & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. With Chase Securities, Blair, and Hallgarten.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now while you have the sheet before you, Mr. Swan, will you indicate which banking houses of the original members of this purchase group are no longer in business?

Mr. SWAN. The Guaranty Co. is no longer in business. Blair & Co. combined in some manner with the Bank of America, so that there is now an organization known as the Bancamerica-Blair—I don't know what that arrangement consisted of. Chase Securities Co. is now a part of The First Boston Corporation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are there any others on that list no longer in the investment banking business?

Mr. SWAN. The Continental & Commercial, First Trust, and Illinois Merchants are of course excluded from the investment banking business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I ask that this document dated October 18, 1934, and previously identified by the witness, be admitted in evidence.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1865" and is included in the appendix on p. 12789.)

Would it be correct for me to say, reconstructing the condition at this time in 1935, that any new financing by the Wilson & Co. was regarded as an open field, so to speak?

Mr. SWAN. Well, I think Wilson—of course, any banking business of any corporation is an open field so far as the corporation is concerned. I don't think that Edward B. Smith & Co. was regarded as having any preemptive rights to Wilson & Co. financing.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a matter of fact, a number of other investment banking houses, as the evidence will subsequently show, were likewise very interested in getting that business, weren't they?

Mr. SWAN. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. White, Weld & Co., for example.

Mr. SWAN. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Field, Glore?

Mr. SWAN. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Kuhn, Loeb?

Mr. SWAN. Yes, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Mr. Walker of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of course had been connected with Blair & Co., who were in the business previously.

EDWARD B. SMITH & CO. DISCUSSES WILSON & CO. FINANCING WITH E. A. POTTER, VICE PRESIDENT OF GUARANTY TRUST CO. AND DIRECTOR OF WILSON & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now preceding the actual signing of the purchase contract with Wilson & Co. for the offering of the securities, did you or any of the members of your organization discuss the prospective financing with any of the officials of the Guaranty Trust Co.?

Mr. SWAN. We discussed the prospective financing and other matters in connection with Wilson probably quite a number of times with Mr. E. A. Potter who was a vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a memorandum dated September 10, 1934, addressed to you, by Mr. C. L. Austin. Will you examine this and tell me whether you recognize it to be a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody?

Mr. SWAN. I identify that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document identified by the witness, Mr. Chairman, is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman O'Connell. It may be admitted.

(The memorandum referred to was marked: "Exhibit No. 1866-1" and is included in the appendix on p. 12790.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you be good enough, Mr. Swan, to explain the purpose in seeing Mr. E. A. Potter, of the Guaranty Trust Co., on this matter?

Mr. SWAN. Mr. E. A. Potter was a director of Wilson & Co., and a vice president of Guaranty Trust Co. in charge of the Wilson & Co. account. Once again, we were pressing as hard as we could to try to get business, and going to anybody that we could think of who might help us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You had a great number of conversations with Mr. Potter—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). Members of the organization had a number of conversations with him.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a matter of fact, according to the diary entries which your firm has been good enough to make available to us, I find in checking those entries that altogether there were 21 conversations with Mr. Potter about this particular matter, and possibly others, but certainly about this one matter.

Would it be correct for me to say that, as a matter of fact, Mr. E. A. Potter, Jr., was your chief conduit to the company?

Mr. SWAN. The Wilson & Co. matter goes back a long way. I myself, personally was a member of either the reorganization committee of Wilson & Co. or of the bondholders' protective committee, back I think in 1926, or thereabouts. Mr. Thomas E. Wilson was at one time a director of the Guaranty Trust Co. I knew him pretty well. Mr. Buethe, the treasurer of the company, was an old friend of mine from this previous contact with this reorganization. Mr. E. A. Potter was helpful to us in the matter because he knew us and knew our capability of doing business, but I think I can say that I had rather close personal relations with Wilson & Co. for 15 years.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you examine a memorandum I am about to show you from Mr. Safro, then of your statistical department, addressed to Mr. Karl Weisheit, dated September 5, 1934, and tell me whether you recognize this to be a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. SWAN. I so identify it.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1866-2" and is included in the appendix on p. 12790.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On the date specified, to wit, September 5, 1934, Mr. Safro wrote as follows to your partner, Mr. Weisheit. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1866-2"]:

He urged—

Referring to another person—that we use our influence upon those in touch with the situation (he meant E. A. Potter, Jr.).

Mr. SWAN. I am just wondering what the significance of that is. I don't know that we had any influence with Mr. E. A. Potter, or whether we carried out what this memorandum requested us to do. I know of no conversation with Mr. Potter about that particular point.

WHITE, WELD & CO.'S INTEREST IN WILSON & CO.'S FINANCING

Mr. NEHEMKIS. About the same time, I think, as you testified earlier, White, Weld & Co. was also interested in obtaining this business. Is that correct, sir?

Mr. SWAN. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact that Mr. Ben Clark, of White, Weld, saw you on or about March 4 and advised you of their interest in the business?

Mr. SWAN. They certainly advised us of their interest in the business at some time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall at this time the reasons for Mr. Clark feeling it necessary to discuss the matter with you at all?

Mr. SWAN. My recollection is that Mr. Clark was approached by the gentleman about whom there was a great deal of conversation this morning.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall his name? Mr. M. L. Freeman?

Mr. SWAN. Mr. M. L. Freeman. Mr. M. L. Freeman indicated to him that he could secure the business of Wilson & Co. for White, Weld & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am not sure you have quite answered my question. May I just repeat it to you substantially as I gave it to you a moment ago? Do you recall the reasons that prompted Ben Clark in manifesting his interest in the business to you? Why was it necessary for him to discuss it with you at all? As I understand the situation—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). I can reconstruct in my mind perhaps why he talked to me. Of course, he could tell you better himself than I could as to why he came to me at all, but my interpretation of it is that he had been approached by Mr. M. L. Freeman; that he knew of my past connection with Wilson & Co.; that he doubted very much Mr. Freeman's ability to secure the business for him; and that he came over to us, hoping that by approaching us as he did, that if we did the business he could get a position there.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you know that White, Weld had entered into a contract with Mr. M. L. Freeman, agreeing to pay him a finder's fee for that business?

Mr. SWAN. I did not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Never heard of that at all until this moment?

Mr. SWAN. Never heard of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would that mean now that you know that information, that they had the business when they went to that extent?

Mr. SWAN. Well, they might have entered into a contract based on his delivering the business, but I don't believe they thought they had the business. I know as far as I was concerned I thought they didn't have a chance of getting the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it be a fair interpretation for me to say the following, Mr. Swan: That White, Weld felt they had some claim, possibilities of getting this business, but recognizing the old Guaranty position in this account and your relations and some of your associates' relations to the financing, they felt that as a matter of bankers' courtesy, before going ahead too far perhaps they ought to discuss it with you.

Mr. SWAN. Well, of course it is difficult for us to say what their thoughts were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Perhaps this will help me out. Mr. Whitehead, will you take the stand, please?

Mr. Whitehead has been sworn. Mr. Whitehead, did you not obtain this letter that I now show you from the files of White, Weld & Co.?

Mr. WHITEHEAD (Securities and Exchange Commission.) Yes, I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was that letter given to you by a partner of that firm in response to your request?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I ask that this letter be received in evidence.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It may be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1867" and is included in the appendix on p. 12791.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This is a letter dated July 8, 1935, addressed to John W. Cutler, of your organization, signed by Faris R. Russell, partner of White, Weld & Co.¹ [reading from "Exhibit No. 1867"]:

You and Burnett Walker for your firm and Ben Clark and I for White, Weld & Co. have had several conversations during the course of the last several months with respect to refunding operations for Wilson & Co., Inc. Inasmuch as the understandings had between us were primarily between yourself and myself, I am sending this letter to you with a chronological history taken from our files on this matter. The history is as follows:

On February 26, 1935 an entrepreneur by the name of M. L. Freeman discussed with us the question of refunding the outstanding bond issue.

Mr. HENDERSON. What did they call M. L. Freeman this time?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They called him an entrepreneur. I would hesitate to say whether that is the same thing as a finder or middleman; maybe I had better use just the name which is here.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think he is an entrepreneur; that is my economic opinion on it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it all right for me to refer to him as entrepreneur? [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1867"]:

On February 26, 1935 an entrepreneur by the name of M. L. Freeman discussed with us the question of refunding the outstanding bond issue.

During the same week—

Will you note this, Mr. Swan?

Mr. Freeman demonstrated that he was not merely presenting an idea which is, of course, open field for all free lance promoters but introduced in our office J. D. Cooney, Vice President of Wilson & Co., Inc., and the whole discussion was with respect to the matter of refunding their outstanding bonds.

¹ In this connection see also infra, p. 12533 et seq.

Had you known that?

Mr. SWAN. I knew that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1867"]:

After such discussion, Mr. Cooney said that they would in the next few weeks decide on their program and said he would again discuss with us the question of what sort of a trade we might be able to work out.

We subsequently confirmed with Mr. Halstead Freeman—

This is another Freeman, and this Freeman is now a partner in Glore, Forgan & Co. Is that correct?

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And just for the sake of correct identification, at this time, '35, this Halstead Freeman was a financial adviser to Wilson & Co.

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And not yet a partner of Glore, Forgan.

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1867"]:

We subsequently confirmed with Mr. Halstead Freeman that there was an open field for the business.

We recognized also that of the original houses in the major position on this business, all but one had discontinued activities.

Recognizing, however, that some of the partners of your firm had previously been officers of the Guaranty Co., which had discontinued its business, and not knowing whether you were active in considering this business, we decided to discuss it with you and, if you wished us to do so, join hands with you in its development.

On March 6 Ben Clark saw Joe Swan and advised him of the above and Mr. Clark's report on the meeting states that "Joe was frank to say that they had no discussion so far." Further that Joe said "I do not want to tie you up in any way and I will look into it with the idea that we are two friends and you will hear from me when I get posted."

On March 11 you telephoned to me about this matter, stating that you understood Freeman had been in to see us saying that he had authority to represent the company. You stated that this had been checked with the company and it had been found that Freeman was not authorized to negotiate and you further stated that on account of your close friendship with the Guaranty Trust Co. you had as good a position as anyone to negotiate with Wilson & Co. and it was your thought that we should tell Mr. Freeman we were not in a position to deal with him and that your firm would follow the matter with the company and come back to us as matters developed.

On March 18th you telephoned me saying that the old account at the Guaranty was joint with Hallgarten & Co., that you had talked with Hallgarten & Co., whose Chicago partner is a director of the company, and had arranged that we were to be included in the business. You said further that you hoped it would be agreeable to us to let the matter of our percentage rest for the present as you intended to work out a fair and reasonable place for us. I told you this was satisfactory and left the matter in your hands.

I asked you whether there was any indication of serious competition from other directions and you stated that you did not see how with the friendship of E. A. Potter and Emerich there could be much doubt as to your getting the business. We consequently folded our hands to await developments.

Mr. SWAN. May I remark on that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. After I get a few other things into the record, then you will be free to comment. Mr. Whitehead, will you take the stand once again? I show you 10 documents from the files of White, Weld & Co. Would you be good enough to tell me whether these were obtained by you from the files of White, Weld & Co.?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. These were obtained from those files.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The documents identified by Mr. Whitehead are offered in evidence, may it please the committee.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. They may be admitted.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1868 to 1876-2" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12792-12796.)

Mr. SWAN. In spite of everything said in that letter I would like to reiterate it was my opinion at that time White, Weld & Co. had not the slightest chance of getting that business. That perhaps was borne out later, and adds substance to what I say, by the fact that we tried to get them in the business and that the company did not in the end want them in the business when the syndicate was being formed.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I was going to go into that with you, Mr. Swan, and if you wish we will discuss that.

Mr. SWAN. Because there are, of course, statements in that letter that certainly overstate any position we might have had at that time, that we had the business in our pocket—we thought we had a very good chance of getting it, and we were very confident they would not get it.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Swan, you have been at some length saying you didn't get it here, taking it from Guaranty, but when you come to dealing with White, Weld in this case your officers practically said, "Don't poach on this preserve," didn't they?

Mr. SWAN. No; I don't think so. I think in this case——

Mr. HENDERSON (interposing). May I have the letter just a moment? [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1867"]:

On account of your close friendship with Guaranty Trust Co. you had as good a position as anyone to negotiate with Wilson & Co. and it was your thought that we should tell Mr. Freeman we were not in a position to deal with him and that your firm would follow the matter with the company and come back to us as matters developed.

Mr. SWAN. It means to me, repeating what I said before, I didn't think they had a chance of getting the business. Here was an account that had been upset a good deal by dissolution of various affiliates, put out of business of the banks. There was room in this business for others. White, Weld were good friends of ours and at the particular time we were rather anxious to do some business with them. We thought that they would add to the account and we were glad to have them in the account. Of course, any discussions we have of that kind with anybody prior to the formation of a syndicate always presuppose it is subject to the company's approval, which had to be obtained in this case, and in the particular case, could not be obtained. We pressed pretty hard on the fact that we had personal relation with this company and other companies, and that we were getting after business pretty hard and hoped and expected to get it.

Mr. HENDERSON. And if you could scare somebody off the preserve by saying, "We know the Guaranty Co.," you didn't——

Mr. SWAN (interposing). That is an inference, of course, that might be made or you wouldn't have made it, but I would just like to say that certainly in this particular case which we are now discussing there is no validity in that inference.

Mr. HENDERSON. White, Weld certainly thought it had some validity in this?

Mr. SWAN. White, Weld was trying mighty hard to get a piece of the business and they were trying to get it then.

Mr. HENDERSON. And in writing this letter——

Mr. SWAN (interposing). This was all after the fact they didn't get the business, and they were very much upset about it and they wrote us this letter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You see this occurs after the financing, Mr. Commissioner, and I want to take it up again at a later time.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Well, Mr. Swan, in cases similar to this one, as former representative of the Guaranty Co., and having the contacts you had with these former issuing companies, you had no hesitancy in confidently asserting a claim to that business, did you? I am not saying a legal claim.

Mr. SWAN. I think I had a great deal of hesitation until the company designated us as their bankers. We didn't know whether these companies who had formerly done business with the Guaranty Co. were going to do business with us. We asserted to the best of our ability our personal relationship with the companies in the past; no question about that.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. You asserted that by virtue of your former experience with the companies you hoped to do that business and that other people should——

Mr. SWAN (interposing). We hoped to get the business and we went to the companies; we said to them, "Because of our personal relationships with you in the past we hope you will give us the business."

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Wouldn't you also think it proper to say to another investment banking house, "Keep your hands off this business"?

Mr. SWAN. I don't think we did this, and I think this letter would rather indicate—it says [reading from "Exhibit No. 1867"]:

Joe was frank to say that they had no discussion so far. Further that Joe said "I do not want to tie you up in any way."

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Could you have tied them up in any way?

Mr. SWAN. No, I don't believe so, unless they wanted to be tied up. I couldn't have tied them up in any way.

CONVERSATIONS WITH E. A. POTTER—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, will you examine what purports to be a series of diary entries made by various partners of your firm and tell me whether you recognize that sheet as a true and correct copy?

Mr. SWAN. I do, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document identified by the witness is offered in evidence. It is that document, Mr. Chairman, to which I referred earlier as showing twenty-one various conversations with people at the Guaranty Trust Co. concerning this piece of financing.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It will be admitted.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1877" and appears in the appendix on p. 12796.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Didn't Mr. E. A. Potter suggest that you write personally to Mr. Wilson about this matter, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. I believe he did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And following his suggestion and your discussion with him is not this a copy of the letter you wrote to Mr. Wilson?

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this letter dated March 13, 1935, by yourself to Mr. Wilson reads as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1878"]:

During the past few months various of my partners and I have had conversations with Mr. E. A. Potter, Jr., with respect to the possibility of a refunding operation in connection with your outstanding 6% Bonds.

The letter is offered in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It will be received.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1878" and is included in the appendix on p. 12799.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And I show you now a memorandum by Mr. Cutler dated March 8, 1935. Will you examine this and tell me whether that is a true and correct copy of an original in your possession?

Mr. SWAN. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document identified by the witness is offered in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It will be admitted.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1879" and is included in the appendix on p. 12799.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now at the time of these conversations with Mr. Potter did I not understand you to testify earlier that Mr. Potter was a director of Wilson & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was Mr. Potter by chance authorized by Wilson & Co. to discuss financing plans and programs with investment banking houses? Do you recall?

Mr. SWAN. Not as far as I know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it customary for directors of corporations to hold informal discussions of this character with various banking houses concerning future plans and programs?

Mr. SWAN. I think it is quite customary for investment banking houses to go to directors or officers of banks to discuss with them the possibility of business with a company in which they are directors. Of course, as far as Mr. Potter was concerned, we discussed no plan or program with him and he, as the memoranda and letters show, was on the telephone with Mr. Wilson informing Mr. Wilson that we had talked to him about this or that, and when I wrote the letter I referred to the fact that I had talked to Mr. Potter. There was a very close relationship between Mr. Potter and Mr. Wilson. Mr. Wilson was, as I testified—had been director of the Guaranty Trust Co. and he had a very high regard for the Guaranty Trust Co. and leaned on them a good deal for advice.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now on March 12, 1935, Mr. John W. Cutler had occasion to make the following diary entry [reading from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

Talked again with Potter on telephone, who called me. Explained that the Guaranty had handled previous financing for Company, and had associates in those former deals, some of whom would have to be taken care of.

Now was not Mr. Potter's communication tantamount to dictating who the members of the new syndicate were to be? In other words, did this not mean that the old banking group and their successors would have to be taken care of in the new financing?

Mr. SWAN. I have examined that memorandum and I am at a loss to understand it, except by substituting the name of Russell, who called me. It makes sense that way, and doesn't make sense any other way.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I thought it made sense, leaving the name Potter in, but, of course, I may be mistaken about that. I accept your explanation.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Who is Russell?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Faris Russell of White, Weld & Co. Potter is the gentleman to whom reference has previously been made, namely, E. A. Potter, Jr., vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co.; the witness has just indicated that it may be it should have read Russell. I indicated, although I accept the witness's explanation, that it might make awfully good sense leaving Potter in.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. In the second sentence which starts with the words [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

Explained that the Guaranty had handled—

Does that mean that Mr. Cutler explained or that Mr. Russell or Potter, as the case may be, explained? Have you that memorandum in front of you? Reading the word Russell in the first sentence, who explained in the second sentence?

Mr. SWAN. "Talked again with Potter." I would like to read this, substituting Russell.

Talked again with (Russell) on telephone, who called me. Explained that the Guaranty had handled previous financing for company.

Now we wouldn't have to explain that to E. A. Potter.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Who would have explained that?

Mr. SWAN. J. W. Cutler who talked to Russell or Potter. J. W. Cutler would not have to explain to Potter that we did the last financing for the company. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

Explained that the Guaranty had handled previous financing for the Company and had associates in those former deals—

Which of course Potter had known for years.

Some of whom would have to be taken care of.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. May I interrupt just for a moment, Mr. Swan? May I have the same privilege of doing the same thing and leaving it as it is?

Talked again with Potter on the telephone, who called me.

Now I insert a word. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

(Potter) explained that the Guaranty had handled previous financing for the company and has associates in those former deals, some of whom would have to be taken care of.

Mind you, Mr. Chairman, I do not doubt the witness's statement, but I present for the evaluation of the committee that reasonable men could take either interpretation.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. We are trying to interpret that, but I was merely asking Mr. Swan whether in the second sentence now, that we speak of, explained, he understood that it was Mr. Cutler that did the explaining, or whether it was the man on the other end of the telephone.

Mr. SWAN. May I ask you to read the last sentence? [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

Russell said he understood and would leave it to us to take care of his firm in the proper way.

Now, why do we switch from Potter to Russell? The only person that has been mentioned previously is Potter. The only way to me that this memorandum can be understood at all is to substitute Russell for Potter in the first line.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I will be frank to say that it puzzled me and I thought that it possibly meant that after this telephone conversation by Potter, who indicated that some of the old members of the group had to be taken care of, that Mr. Cutler then called Faris Russell of White, Weld and explained that conversation, and that Faris Russell said, "Joe, I understand, and we will fold our hands and await results."

Mr. SWAN. I feel so confident that Potter understood all this, and Cutler understood all this, and I understood all this, I can only ask you to accept it and I really think my correction is correct.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Just not to labor the point, as I understand your interpretation of it, Mr. Cutler was in a position to tell Mr. Russell that this previous financing having been handled by Guaranty, that his firm, that is, Smith, Barney & Co. and other associates in the former deals, would have to be taken care of.

Mr. SWAN. That is right, if we got the business. We at this time had not been named as bankers by the company. This all presupposes our securing the position as banker for the company.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Oh, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Shall I proceed?

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Yes; please.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, returning to the period of negotiations, Mr. Swan, on March 14, 1935, did you not, together with Mr. Cutler, talk with Maurice Newton, of Hallgarten & Co., about this business? Do you recall that?

Mr. SWAN. I believe so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And on the following day, March 15, did you not discuss the matter with Mr. Emerich, a partner of Hallgarten, and also a director of Wilson & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. I believe so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in the diary entry of Mr. Cutler as of March 18, 1935, he had the following to say [reading from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

JRS and I talked with Maurice Newton of Hallgarten 3/14/35 and the next day JRS talked with Emerich of Hallgarten, a director of Wilson. We told him we had been working on the business and referred to the old joint account they had with the Guaranty and asked them to join us, which they said they would be glad to do.

Now may I call your attention to the next entry:

We also told them we were committed to White, Weld & Co. for an interest if business resulted.

I continue:

I subsequently reported this to Faris Russell—

Faris Russell is the same Faris Russell, a partner of White, Weld, who again said they were entirely agreeable to leaving the makeup of the group and interests to us. I also reported the Hallgarten development to Ned Potter—

Ned Potter is the same E. A. Potter, Jr., vice president of the Guaranty?

Mr. SWAN. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (continuing):

who thought it was a wise move.

Now I read to you a subsequent diary entry of April 4, 1935, by John W. Cutler, as follows [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

JRS called on Mr. T. E. Wilson in Chicago 4/1 and was very cordially received by him. Explained to him the dissolution of Guaranty Company and status of EBS & Co. and advised him we were very anxious to be given consideration in connection with any financing which he might do.

So that up to this point the company had not yet really decided on who its bankers were to be?

Mr. SWAN. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Theoretically it might be anybody's business?

Mr. SWAN. It was entirely in the hands of the company to decide whom they might want to have handle their business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And at this particular time, you recall, March and April of 1935, the company was actively considering which banking house would receive the deal?

Mr. SWAN. I presume they were considering it. I don't know; I don't know whether they were devoting such time to it or not. We were paying attention to trying to get it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I wonder if that was altogether the case. For example, let me read you a diary entry by Mr. Cutler as of March 26, 1935 [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

Newton reported from Emerich, who attended directors meetings today, that the matter of refinancing was not discussed.

Apparently Mr. Cutler was very anxious to know about these things, because at this time he wrote down it was not discussed, and on May 3 of 1935 Mr. Cutler again wrote the following [reading further]:

Ned Potter said Company had engaged Price, Waterhouse to begin necessary work looking towards registration.

In other words things are beginning to pick up.

As far as he knew they had made no commitments with any bankers.

Now although the business had not been definitely awarded to you, you were nevertheless proceeding tentatively at least with the organization of the syndicate, were you not?

FORMATION OF THE WILSON & CO. SYNDICATE

Mr. SWAN. We were discussing it with others, yes. As I have said before, and I think these memoranda show, we were very active in trying to get this and other pieces of business. I think that we thought that one thing that would be helpful in getting this business was to get together a group of people who were persona grata with the company and would be a group of people with whom the company would like to do business. But we did not have the business at this time. We may be said to have been a little previous in the way we proceeded, but that is what is often done, and previous to people getting a piece of business they will often get together to discuss ways and means of securing it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In fact, it is necessary, if you are going to do a piece of syndication, when the deal materializes?

Mr. SWAN. We need a group if it materializes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you considered the advisability at this time of bringing in Field, Glore, now Glore, Forgan?

Mr. SWAN. We did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that was because of Halstead Freeman's connection with the account, was it not?

Mr. SWAN. We were rather strongly of the opinion, in which we were correct, that in this piece of business that the company would undoubtedly want to have a Chicago banker associated with it. The three Chicago banks which had previously been associated with this business were not able to be in the business any longer. We thought that Field, Glore & Co. were the bankers in Chicago most fitted to represent that Chicago market in the business, and we also felt that Halstead Freeman was rather predisposed to them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Cutler, on May 14, 1935, had this to say [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1877"]:

JRS spoke to Newton re inclusion of Field, Glore & Co., on account of Halstead Freeman, who is being retained by the company in connection with proposed financing. Speak to First Boston before going further.

Was not the reason for communicating with the First Boston Corporation, Mr. Swan, due to the fact that Chase Securities Corporation, the predecessor organization of First Boston, had been a member of the old Guaranty Company group?

Mr. SWAN. That was one reason. Another reason was that, of course, they would be very acceptable members of any group to do a piece of business of this sort.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, subject to the arrangement previously made, that certain documents be identified toward the end of the week, I should like at this time to offer in evidence a letter by D. R. Linsley, vice president of The First Boston Corporation, under date of May 18, 1935, addressed to J. R. Briggs, vice president of H. M. Byllesby and Company, marked "Confidential." Mr. Linsley wrote as follows to Mr. Briggs [reading from "Exhibit No. 1880"]:

On last Thursday Joe Swan of Edward B. Smith & Co. called up Harry Addinsell and told him that they were working on a refunding operation for Wilson & Co.

In checking up our past historical records, it came to my attention that over a period of years the financing for Wilson & Co. was handled by a group of which the Guaranty Company was the manager and in which were included Chase Securities Corporation, Blair & Co., Hallgarten & Co., First Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, Continental and Commercial, Chicago and Illinois Merchants Trust Company, Chicago.

For your confidential information, the Guaranty, Chase, Blair and Hallgarten each had an interest of approximately 18.75%.

In the early part of March Miles Warner—

Is that Warner or Werner?

Mr. SWAN. I don't know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS (continuing):

In the early part of March Miles Warner told me of the discussions which he had had with one of the Wilsons and asked if we would be interested in figuring on the business and on the 15th of March, in response to a wire from George Leness, I indicated to Miles that we were unwilling to undertake a deal along the terms similar to Swift or to enter into negotiations which involved a high degree of competition and stated that if the company was prepared to sit down and discuss the best form of financing, we would be interested in principle in so doing. I did not hear anything further about this matter and assumed that it had died a natural death.

At the time of my discussions with Miles, I did not realize that the Chase Securities Corporation had always been in the group headed by the Guaranty Company of New York. As Mr. Swan indicated that they had discussed this matter, we told him that we would be delighted to join with him in discussing the re-formation of the old group. We told Mr. Swan of Miles Warner's connection with one of the Wilsons and of our discussions with him and said that we would like to see—when, as and if the group is formed—that H. M. Byllesby and Company had a position in the business and that we assumed that this would be agreeable to him. He indicated to us that he also wanted to consider the inclusion of White, Weld and Field, Gloré.

I know that you will protect me on this information, but I want you to know the facts in connection with these discussions and while, naturally, I would not want to attempt to involve you in making any decision, it seems to me that it is most logical that the old group should have a legitimate claim on the business—particularly with the tie-in with the Guaranty Trust Company and if we can work it around so that H. M. Byllesby and Company has an original interest and an appearance position, it would seem to be the desirable thing to do—rather than to get into a competitive mess.

The document is offered in evidence, Mr. Chairman.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It may be received.

(Letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1880" and is included in the appendix on p. 12799.)

Mr. HENDERSON. Has Mr. Swan a copy of this? The next to the last paragraph relates to him. I don't want him to miss it.

Mr. SWAN. All right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Subject to the same arrangement, Mr. Chairman, I shall offer a memorandum by Mr. H. M. Addinsell of The First Boston Corporation, under date of May 16, 1935, relating to the Wilson & Company financing. Mr. Addinsell wrote as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1881"]:

Mr. Swan asked me yesterday whether we would join with them in re-constituting the old group which the Guaranty headed for Wilson & Co. business. After discussion here I told Mr. Swan that we would be glad to do so. I called his attention to the fact that Mr. Miles Warner of Byllesby, who is a personal friend of some of the younger Wilsons, had talked with Mr. Leness about the matter some months ago, but that we told Mr. Warner that we would not want to be drawn into competition for the business and we have heard nothing about it since.

This memorandum from which I have just read is offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It may be admitted.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1881" and is included in the appendix on p. 12800.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, subject to the same understanding, I shall offer in a moment a telegram from Mr. Linsley, of The First Boston Corporation, under date of March 15, 1935, over the Byllesby wire to Miles Warner in Chicago, as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1882-1"]:

After thorough discussion Wilson and Company we have decided as matter of policy that we are unwilling to undertake a deal along terms which are similar to Swift or to enter into negotiations which involve a high degree of competition. (Stop) If company is prepared to sit down and discuss best form of financing we would be interest¹ in principle in so doing.

May the document be received in evidence?

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It may be received.

(The telegram referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1882-1" and appears in full in the text on p. 12526.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Swan, you will recall that that telegram from which I read was sent three months before the previous memorandum by Mr. Addinsell of May 16, and that would seem to indicate that Mr. Addinsell's point of view was not a spur-of-the-moment decision, and that it was rather one which reflected the general position of his corporation. Would it not so seem to you, Mr. Swan?

Mr. SWAN. I don't know what Mr. Addinsell's views were. I wouldn't want to interpret his telegram.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, on June 6, 1935, did not the company finally decide to put the financing in your hands?

Mr. SWAN. On June 6? I think that is the correct date.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But it was not to be leadership of the account?

Mr. SWAN. It was to be a joint leadership by ourselves and Field, Glore.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall the membership of the syndicate upon which E. B. Smith and Field, Glore & Co. had tentatively agreed?

Mr. SWAN. I have read it over. I don't recall it without a memorandum.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you a memorandum dated September 9, 1935, and ask you whether this does not refresh your recollection.

Mr. SWAN. I identify this.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1882-2" and is included in the appendix, p. 12801.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you tell me the tentative members agreed upon at the time, if you can?

Mr. SWAN. This list which I am reading was a list tentatively agreed upon by Forgan, of Field, Glore, and myself before consultation with the company; this was to be submitted to the company: Edward B. Smith & Co.; Field, Glore; First Boston; Speyer & Company; Hallgarten & Co.; Bancamerica-Blair Corporation; White, Weld; Goldman, Sachs.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now the new names in that account as tentatively agreed upon were Field, Glore; White, Weld; and Goldman, Sachs—

Mr. SWAN (interposing). And Speyer.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Speyer. E. B. Smith had had some previous relation to the business through the association with Guaranty, the First Boston through the Chase Securities, Hallgarten having been joint account in the old days, Bancamerica-Blair also.

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, was not White, Weld's name suggested because of your prior commitment to them?

Mr. SWAN. I suppose that is a proper way to put it, yes; that and because they were, of course, primarily—each one of these that were suggested for these accounts, when suggested by the bankers, I think it is because they will add something to the account, and

¹ So in original.

White, Weld would make good members of the account in the first place, and in the second place because we had had these discussions with them about which we have had testimony.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in the world of investment banking, as in other activities, I suppose considerations other than those immediately at hand enter into determinations, and in the Wilson & Company syndication "banking politics" entered into the picture. For example, your list of participants was not altogether acceptable to the company. The company desired to include in the syndicate certain other houses, do you recall?

Mr. SWAN. I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Can you recall at this time the names of the other houses that the company wanted included in the syndication?

Mr. SWAN. I do, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What were the names of the houses that the company wanted included in the syndication?

Mr. SWAN. At one period of the discussion, the following is the list which was tentatively named: Edward B. Smith; Field, Glore; Speyer; Kuhn, Loeb; Hallgarten; Lazard; Lee Higginson; Hornblower; and Goldman, Sachs. The first list I read was before consultation with the company; the second list was after consultation with the company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Mathers, will you take the stand for a moment please?

I show you two documents, one a memorandum on the stationery of the S. S. Roma, and the other a letter from Mr. James D. Cooney to Mr. Wilson. Will you tell me where you obtained these documents?

Mr. LLOYD MATHERS (Securities and Exchange Commission). These are photostatic copies of originals in the files of Wilson & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The documents just identified by Mr. Mathers are offered in evidence.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. They may be admitted.

(The letters referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1883 and 1884" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12802 and 12803.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall the reasons why the company wanted Kuhn, Loeb, Lazard Frères, Lee Higginson, and Hornblower included?

Mr. SWAN. This memorandum states that Mr. Buethé insisted that Speyer appear ahead of all other houses.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which memorandum are you reading from?

Mr. SWAN. Memorandum of September 9, 1935. ["Exhibit No. 1882-2."]

Mr. Buethé—

who is the treasurer of the company—

insisted that Speyer appear ahead of all houses except the two leaders, because Speyer had been helpful on the reclassification of the stock last winter and had offered the first refunding plan for the company's consideration. Goldman, Sachs were included at the company's request because they had dealt in the company's commercial paper, and Hornblower was included at the company's request because they also had been of assistance to the company in the matter of reclassification of the company's stock.

INCLUSION OF KUHN, LOEB & CO. IN THE WILSON & CO. SYNDICATE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had never appeared in any of the Wilson & Co.'s syndicates. Kuhn, Loeb, however, was finally included in this syndicate. Is that not correct, sir?

Mr. SWAN. It was, at the request of the company, because of Mr. Elisha Walker's previous connection.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. While you have the document in your hand, read what it says about Mr. Elisha Walker on his firm being included.

Mr. SWAN. A list was agreed to here after discussion [reading from "Exhibit No. 1882-2"]:

subject to the approval of Mr. Thos. E. Wilson, who was expected to return from Europe within a few days * * * with the reservation that it might be necessary to make room for Kuhn, Loeb, who, through Elisha Walker, had put considerable pressure on the company for the business. (Blair, Walker's former affiliation, having had largest interest in previous financing.)

Ultimately Kuhn, Loeb was included in the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As I understand that, Mr. Elisha Walker had formerly been associated with Blair & Co. and had a large participation in the early Wilson business.

Mr. SWAN. And had been very active in the affairs of Wilson & Co. at one time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I beg your pardon.

Mr. SWAN. And had been very active in the affairs of Wilson & Co. at one time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Subsequently, Mr. Walker became a partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. He did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Kuhn, Loeb had never participated in the early historical accounts of Wilson & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. However, Mr. Elisha Walker was able to bring Kuhn, Loeb into this financing for one of the largest participations by virtue of the fact that he had formerly had an association with Blair & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. And that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were a very strong and powerful house who would be acceptable as an addition to any underwriting group of this sort.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And according to the entry made by J. J. B. of your own organization, Mr. Walker apparently did something else. He [reading from "Exhibit No. 1882-2"]:

Put considerable pressure on the company for the business—

So that you have this anomalous situation. Mr. Walker is formerly associated with Blair. He goes to Kuhn, Loeb. The legacy passes through the personage of Elisha Walker to Kuhn, Loeb. Kuhn, Loeb is included in the syndicate.

Mr. SWAN. It all indicates to me that each and all of us were very active in trying to get business, and if we had a previous connection with the company, we made every effort we could to make ourselves acceptable to the company.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Mr. Walker was doing the same thing that you were doing.

Mr. SWAN. I think he was.

RELATION OF THE INVESTMENT BANKER TO THE ISSUER AND THE INVESTOR

Senator KING. Would it strengthen the securities which were placed upon the market by having a number of reputable and strong investment bankers back of the guaranteeing or underwriting of the securities situation?

Mr. SWAN. I don't think I quite say it would strengthen the security; I think it would strengthen the market for the securities and add public favor to the securities; certain names in offering securities have a very favorable effect on those securities.

Senator KING. Where there are a large number of corporations issuing securities, initially, or for the purpose of refinancing outstanding obligations, does it give to the securities which are issued a higher market value which would inure to the advantage of the stockholders by having the securities endorsed by and disposed of through a number of large and well-known reputable banking houses, investment houses?

Mr. SWAN. Well, I think taking the extreme case, if not well-known, if rather poor investment houses father the security, it is detrimental to this security as opposed to having more reputable and better-known people sponsoring the security. There are a number of groups whose sponsorship of a security would probably result in those securities having the same market value.

Senator KING. It is important, is it not, to find as wide a market as possible for securities?

Mr. SWAN. I think it is very advantageous to the company to have their securities well sponsored and well distributed.

Senator KING. And is it not beneficial to the public generally to have the securities instead of being concentrated in a few buyers, say, in New York City or Chicago, having them distributed and purchased in all parts of the United States?

Mr. SWAN. I think that is advantageous, and of course in the handling of these underwritings, they are eventually distributed all over the United States.

Senator KING. They are not held by a few corporations, then.

Mr. SWAN. Well, only in the case of the private placements where they are held by very few corporations, but when security is initially bought by a banking house or by a group of banking houses, they eventually form what is called a selling group, composed of investment bankers distributed all over the country so that the bonds generally find lodgment pretty well all over the country. Of course, it is true certain securities will find a greater lodgment in Pennsylvania than they will in New England; another security will find a greater lodgment in New England than in Pennsylvania, for tax reasons or reasons of people being more familiar with this or that type of security.

Senator KING. Where there are a number of large investment companies that take over the securities for the purpose of selling them, is there any disposition to depress the market or to depress the value, the original value of the securities so that they will sell for less than they otherwise would sell for, or is it to their advantage to get for the securities offered as large a price as possible for the benefit of the companies that are issuing the securities?

Mr. SWAN. I think the investment banker holds a different role perhaps from people in most other industries. The investment banker has a very dual duty. He has a duty to the company that he is financing and he has a duty to the public that he is selling the securities to. I think the investment banker is always trying his best to find out what is the right price and that is not of necessity the highest price. If the investment banker isn't clever enough to find a price that is pretty close to the price that the securities will go to after they are issued, he will be unpopular with the borrower. If, on the other hand, he issues them at a price that declines from the offering price, it hurts his market. He has a very delicate position of finding the right price for a security, which is not of necessity the very highest price that at that particular moment the security might possibly be brought out at.

Senator KING. But doesn't it contemplate that the securities shall find markets and the house issuing the securities, or rather the corporation issuing the securities shall receive for its securities as high market price, as under all the circumstances would be just and fair?

Mr. SWAN. The investment banker stands a very much better chance of securing business if he has the reputation of paying corporations a good full price for their securities.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Swan, if the price declines after issue immediately because it is overpriced, you spoke of the result as far as the investor is concerned, but it also, does it not, hurts the corporation's credit?

Mr. SWAN. Oh, it reacts unfavorably against the company. If a company is a constant borrower—that doesn't mean that they borrow every year, but they borrow every once in a while—it is a very important thing to them that the securities should be favorably received and should be popular with the public and that popularity certainly, as far as I know, is achieved in just about one way, and that is that it is a profitable thing for the investor to buy and not an unprofitable thing for him to buy, so that a decline from the offering price of the security is detrimental to the borrowing corporation, in my opinion, except as Mr. Strauss said this morning, this is the one and only time they are going to borrow, and then presumably they don't care, but there are very few corporations that can say, "This is the last and only time I am going to borrow."

Mr. LUBIN. Mr. Swan, getting back to the question asked by the Senator of Utah relative to the advantage of having firms that have a very good reputation and substantial houses added to a selling group in the sense that such an addition adds to the attitude of the public in its faith of the security, such a thing would not be true under conditions such as has been described in the Wilson & Co. case by the addition of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. under pressure, would it?

Mr. SWAN. I haven't been quite able to hear you.

Mr. LUBIN. Perhaps I can simplify the question. Assuming that the addition of a well-established firm to the group adds to the prestige of the issue, the addition of Kuhn, Loeb under the condition described in this Wilson case would not have had any such effect.

Mr. SWAN. Would not add, you say? Kuhn, Loeb is an important name, very highly thought of by the investing public; I think it has a good effect on any issue.

Mr. LUBIN. Yes; but Kuhn, Loeb specifically provided that their name was not to appear in advertising or on the face of the prospectus, so that the public didn't know they had anything to do with it.

Mr. SWAN. The public may not, but every dealer did. It is the dealers who know those things. It is not the public who reads the prospectus which is prepared. The public doesn't read these great big prospectuses that we have nowadays; the dealer reads those prospectuses.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. But the public buy the bonds.

Mr. SWAN. The public buy the bonds because the dealer has read the prospectus and described the bond to the public from the prospectus, and the dealer makes his appraisal of the security and its value from the prospectus and he has clients who rely on him, and on his say-so to such an extent that they buy those bonds. They, I think, sell them, except to the professional buyer, from these prospectuses today.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It is clear, though, is it not, that the intrinsic value does not depend upon in any tangible way the identity of the underwriters, it depends rather upon the character of the issue.

Mr. SWAN. Only to this extent, that when people are known to have competent staffs and are competent people, I think it is generally conceded that the intrinsic value of the bond has been taken care of through the provisions of the indenture.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Would that depend more on the character of the manager, or the issuer?

Mr. SWAN. The manager of the account, oh, yes.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Kuhn, Loeb apparently had nothing to do with that.

Mr. SWAN. They had nothing to do with that, but their identity with it is helpful, their name is very highly regarded in our business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, subject to the previous arrangement, I should like to offer in evidence a document from the files of The First Boston Corporation relating to the subject under discussion by Mr. D. R. Linsley under date of June 27, 1935. The memorandum reads as follows (reading from "Exhibit No. 1885"):

While Mr. Burnett Walker of Edward B. Smith & Co. was here this afternoon, he explained the banking politics in connection with the proposed issue of $20,000,000 bonds for this company.

Field, Gloré are going to head the business in the west and Edward B. Smith & Co. in the east. The respective interests in the business are as follows—

And therein appears the list of the group and percentage of participation.

While it has not yet crystallized, it is probable that only the first five names will appear in the advertisement. Mr. Walker explained, confidentially, to me that the senior Mr. Wilson originally wanted Field, Gloré to head the business in the west and Kuhn, Loeb in the east, but that for various reasons, Edward B. Smith & Co. was finally selected. Mr. Walker stated that he might want to offer a slight interest to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and that while he had not definitely made up his mind to do so, he might ask each member of the group to give up 10% of their total to a pool. However, if there is any resistance, he frankly feels that Field, Gloré and themselves should make the contribution.

I told Mr. Walker that as far as we were concerned he could write his own ticket. He stated that probably in the course of the next four or five days further details would be made available to us.

I offer the document in evidence.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1885" and is included in the appendix on p. 12803.)

FAILURE OF WHITE, WELD & CO. TO BE INCLUDED IN THE SYNDICATE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Swan, there was one phase of the "banking politics" that Mr. Burnett Walker did not explain to Mr. Linsley, and that was how did it happen that White, Weld & Co. was not included in the final syndicate, although you felt all along that you had a commitment to them? Will you explain that?

Mr. SWAN. I would just like to comment on the words "banking politics." There never was any syndicate, that was more, I won't say dictated, but more laid out by the company than this one was. We consulted together on it. It is obvious that we presented a list and they wanted to add some names and subtract some names, and they wanted this person in for a certain reason, and that person for a certain reason. The banking politics referred to have nothing to do with politics within the group. I think the banking politics have to do, as between the company and certain bankers, such-and-such a banker had helped them in their reorganization, Goldman, Sachs had sold their paper for a good many years, somebody else had done something else. This was certainly one of the most thorough company syndicates. As far as White, Weld were concerned, anything, of course, which we had said to White, Weld had to be subject to the final decision of the company. It was the final decision of the company that they did not want White, Weld in the business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I merely ask the question, Mr. Swan, because your partner Burnett Walker having discussed the banking politics of the deal and Mr. Linsley having recorded them I was forcibly impressed with the significant omission of the reason for the exclusion of White, Weld & Co., and I am very grateful to you for enlightening us.

Mr. SWAN. Is it important for your inquiry why they are excluded?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. SWAN. May I suggest that you call a witness from the company?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is not necessary, because I shall continue reading from "Exhibit No. 1867," previously received in evidence, being a letter sent to Mr. Cutler by Faris R. Russell. I now read from that:

Recently when it became apparent that the business was in the immediate making and not having heard from you, I called your office but could not reach you. Later the same day Burnett Walker telephoned me asking for a review from us of the Wilson & Co. matter as between ourselves and yourselves. I gave him the above story.

The committee will recall that I read that previously.

I did not hear further from Burnett Walker but he came over and saw Ben Clark, expressed extreme regret and stated that embarrassing as it was to your firm, we could not be included in the Wilson & Co. business, that Field, Gloré & Co. and the company itself had refused your request that we be included.

The above chronological story of this matter is based on memoranda made immediately after the various conversations took place, and, hence, is neither hazy in our minds nor subject to misunderstanding or faulty recollection.

The above is not sent to you as a record on which we make any claim on you for Burnett Walker has already stated your position.

The experience, however, makes it necessary for us to raise a question as to another matter so I request that you show this letter to Joe and ask that he let us know just what he wishes us to understand with respect to the position reserved for us in the matter of Columbia Gas & Electric, about which I have never had any conversation with him, but it was cleared with Joe by our mutual good friend, Jim Hutton.

In order that you and Joe may have before you the Columbia Gas & Electric situation—and so on, the remainder not being relevant to your discussion.

Mr. HENDERSON. Who is Mr. Hutton?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Hutton is with W. E. Hutton, and Company, an investment banking firm.

I now refer the committee to "Exhibit No. 1867" previously offered in evidence, subject to Mr. Swan's identification of a similar letter obtained from the files of his company, and the reason I am referring to them both is because of certain pencil notations on one and so that the record may be thoroughly correct and proper in all respects, we had better have them both.

Mr. SWAN. You handed me the White, Weld one.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Oh, I am sorry. This has already been marked for the record.

Mr. SWAN. May I see it?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This being committee "Exhibit No. 1867."

Mr. SWAN. May I point out something in this?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I just want to have one other identified. Mr. Whitehead, will you take the stand, please.

Is this a copy of a letter which you obtained from the files of White, Weld & Co.?

Mr. WHITEHEAD (Securities and Exchange Commission). That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now on this letter in connection with the statement, Mr. Chairman, that [reading from "Exhibit No. 1867"]:

Field, Gore and the company itself had refused your request that we be included—

There appears the following pencil notation:

B. Walker says this is incorrect.

Was that the comment you wanted to make?

Mr. SWAN. That is the comment I wanted to make. I have discussed this with him and he tells me that Field, Gore & Co. had nothing to do with the exclusion of White, Weld.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is precisely the reason why I wanted both letters in the record so that correction would appear.

The document from the files of White, Weld & Co. is now offered.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It may be admitted.

(The letter referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1886" and is included in the appendix, p. 12804.)

Mr. SWAN. I have here, Mr. Chairman, three or four papers which have to do rather with the technical and mechanical handling of our business. Here is one which we call [reading from "Exhibit No. 1887-1"]:

Schedule of operations followed by Smith, Barney & Co. when acting in capacity of head manager in wholesaling a new issue

And you see it gives here all of the things that we have to go through when we are doing that.

I have here a "Buying Department Work Sheet" which shows all of the things we do in preparing an issue.

And I have here a memorandum for the Industrial Division of the Buying Department, "Outline for use as Guide in conducting Investigations of Industrial Companies."

And I have here a "Buying Department Work Sheet Form for use in Connection with Issues Headed by other Houses in which we have a Position as an Underwriter."

This record that you are making here is something that will doubtless at some future time be studied by people who are interested in investment banking, and there is a good deal here that is of interest that those interested in investment banking could obtain a good deal of information from. I should like to present it for the record if it is your pleasure that I do so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I am very happy to receive it and I recommend it be spread on the records of the committee.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Very well, it may be received for the record.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1887-1 to 1887-4" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12806-12829.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. While we were discussing the problem of mechanics, Mr. Swan, will you be good enough to identify this performance record card kept by Edward B. Smith & Co.?

Mr. SWAN. I identify that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will the reporter be instructed to mark two sheets, being the performance record cards or typical examples of performance record cards kept by E. P. Smith & Co. These together with typical cards kept by other investment houses will be referred to on Friday.¹ Since the witness is here, I asked that he identify them.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. These will be marked for the record.

(The cards referred to were marked "Exhibit No. 1888" and are included in the appendix on p. 12831.)

PROFESSIONAL CHARACTER OF INVESTMENT BANKING—RESUMED

Mr. SWAN. Mr. Chairman and Mr. Examiner, before I leave the stand, I would like to ask whether it would be proper for me to say a few words about this question of the professional aspect of the banker. As an investment banker, I sat here this morning when you were questioning Mr. Schiff and Mr. Strauss, and I didn't like to break in on that at all, but I think it is something that I would like just to say something about, if you will ask me a question about it, or if I may just volunteer it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I would be very happy to have you, if that is the pleasure of the committee.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. That is fine, you may go ahead.

Mr. SWAN. I want to say this because it seems to me it is quite important. I don't think the investment banker can claim that his business is a profession. I think the investment banker, however, can claim that it has the characteristics of a profession, that it is similar to a profession, that it is not the same as a profession but it has a great many similar characteristics.

¹ Infra, p. 12682.

I think in addition to that it has what I have spoken about previously in my testimony, this question of the dual capacity, our attitude toward our relations with the borrower and our relations with the public. I have a feeling—I have had it during this investigation—that the idea of stressing the professional character of our business is not quite accepted. Now we who have a good deal of pride in our business—and I think most of us in our business have a good deal of pride in it—do feel that our business has very professional aspects and we try to make our business as professional as we can. We think it is to the interest of the public that our business be regarded as professional. We think that it helps to carry out our obligations to the borrower and to the public, that the greater professional character it can be given the better, and instead of aiming toward possibly depreciating our business or the character of our business by more severe competition, competitive bidding, and all that sort of thing, I feel very, very strongly that the effort should be to try to raise the character of our business. If our business isn't sufficiently professional today, let us try somehow or other to get it on a more professional basis. I think that is the thing that is going to be for the best interest of the public. Now, Mr. Henderson, this morning you said in some connection with something you were talking about that we were considering the public interest. I think it is the only interest to be considered.

Mr. HENDERSON. I said it was at least slightly tinged with the public interest.

Mr. SWAN. Well, it is the only thing, sir, and I agree that we are talking about the public interest, we are not talking about the interest of the borrower, bank, or investor, but we are talking about the public interest. and I contend and contend very strongly that to raise the character of the investment banking business, to make it more professional rather than less professional, would accrue to the public benefit. If anything happens in connection with our business that makes us mere—what is the word I want—mere—

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Merchants of securities?

Mr. SWAN. Not merchants of securities, just peddlers of bonds, that is not going to accrue to the public interest in any way. I could go on and talk a good deal about the professional aspects, about competition, but I do want to stress this fact that I hope you gentlemen will consider in your deliberations, whether our business shouldn't be raised to a higher level rather than to try to push it down lower.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who should do the raising of the character of the business? You said someone should do it. Now who?

Mr. SWAN. We should raise it ourselves. Let me say this, Mr. Nehemkis, that I believe if you gentlemen feel there is a great deal of concentration in a few hands, I believe that that concentration is in few hands because we fellows have tried to make our business professional, because we have approached it on a professional basis, we have emphasized the professional aspect of it, and our attitude toward the borrower and the investor is a professional attitude. I think anything that makes us peddlers of bonds instead of investment bankers, is not in the best interest of the general public.

Mr. LUBIN. Mr. Swan, may I ask a question? Is it your opinion that the addition of competition in the functioning of an industry or a service lowers the standards of the service?

Mr. SWAN. I think that our business is very highly competitive as it is today. I think it is just as competitive as it can be, and I think all of this testimony that has been brought out here indicates it. When there is an opening for anyone to get a new piece of business, every banker in the country is after it. After a banker is selected for a piece of business, I think that the people who have a regard for the professional aspects of the banking business don't try to interfere with friendly and good relationships between banker and client, but every one of us, every one of us, is letting every concern in this country know that we are right there waiting to take business any time an issuer is dissatisfied. Every issuer knows that he can go to a half dozen or a dozen people and they will take his business just like that [snapping his fingers] and in our dealing with our borrowers we are constantly conscious of that fact, that there is great potential competition in our business all the time.

Mr. LUBIN. What would you, for the sake of the committee, say what the industry itself could do or what might be done by some other agency to improve the standards rather than lower them?

Mr. SWAN. Well, I am fearful that competitive bidding would do everything harmful; I think the S. E. C. has done a great deal for our business. I happen to think that the N. R. A., when our business had the opportunity to form a group under the N. R. A., gave us great opportunities. That was destroyed. I think the S. E. C. has done a great deal for the raising of standards of our business, and there have been a great many people in our business all the time whose standards have been very high; I don't mean that there haven't been high standards in our business, I believe there have. I think there have been periods, for instance in the twenties, when terrible mistakes were made, but I do think that the requirements of the S. E. C. for full publicity and various things like that that have been brought about by that law have been very beneficial. Now I am fearful that something is going to be done that will counteract, perhaps, the good things that have been happening to our industry. I think our industry is on a lot better basis and is getting increasingly so. I think this National Securities Association which is just about to become active under the act is going to be beneficial, and I think the tendency of our business is toward a higher basis all the time. I am just fearful that something will be done to retard it.

Mr. LUBIN. If we could just for the moment, for the sake of argument, lay aside that fear, I would appreciate it very much if you could illuminate a bit further your previous statement, namely, that it should be made more professional. I am interested in that.

Mr. SWAN. I think all of these things are tending to do that. I think we within ourselves are tending to become more professional all the time. Mr. Nehemkis asked who will raise the standards. We should raise them, but we should have the help of people who can help us. The S. E. C. is helping to raise the standards of our business, but they can do things that will lower the standards of our business. I think things are improving in our business. There are some pretty high standards in my business, I think.

Mr. LUBIN. But you do feel if you had more competition in the business you would be lowering the standards?

Mr. SWAN. No; it isn't a question of competition. I think the competition exists, but there is a very distinct difference between competition and competitive bidding. I think competitive bidding would very materially lower the standards of our business. I think instead of getting away from this concentration which we are fearful of, it would increase the concentration. For instance, my firm is in a much better position to bid competitively than a lot of others. I think a lot of us would have a great deal better chance of getting this business on competitive bidding than we have now, maybe, but it wouldn't do the business any good, because competitive bidding—of course, you can talk at great length about competitive bidding—does two things: competitive bidding not only raises prices to the investor, it certainly does that, but it lowers the quality of the goods, and I think a professional attitude and approach to this business raises the quality of the goods and gets the security, gets the goods, to the investor at a proper price. That isn't necessarily the top price but it is very close to it.

Mr. LUBIN. In other words, you don't feel that the same mechanism that is used in the markets for selling other types of goods and services, namely, that if the bidder who secures the order can't deliver the goods the market should take care of that and that his competitor who can do a better job should survive, should be used here?

Mr. SWAN. I think our business is a different type of business from that. I say we are not professional but we have many characteristics similar to a profession, or we should have, and I believe we have. I hate to see that broken down. I believe this dual relationship with the investor is quite different from any other business that I know of.

Mr. LUBIN. Thank you.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. We are very grateful to you, Mr. Swan.

(The witness, Mr. Swan, was excused.)

FINANCING AN UNDERWRITING TRANSACTION—THE DAY-LOAN PROCEDURE

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I should like to ask your indulgence for about 8 minutes. There are certain technical details in reference to the day-loan procedure which Mr. Swan and others in the industry have very kindly consented to make available to us. A member of Mr. Swan's organization will testify briefly with regard to the day-loan procedure with respect to certain offerings involving E. B. Smith Co., and then documents will be identified and offered in evidence that have been made available to us by other banking firms. I ask your indulgence in this matter because I regard this mechanical technique as rather important to the committee's understanding of this problem of the investment banking processes that we are engaged in.

Mr. Coulson, will you take the stand, please?

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in this proceeding will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. COULSON. I do.

TESTIMONY OF WILLIAM H. COULSON, SMITH, BARNEY & CO.,
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you state your full name?

Mr. COULSON. William H. Coulson, Garden City, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you are a member of the staff of Smith, Barney & Co.?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is the customary procedure, is it not, Mr. Coulson, for an underwriter when making payment for his participation to present a check to the manager drawn to the order of the corporation whose securities have been offered by the underwriting group?

Mr. COULSON. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And immediately after the closing there is released to each of the underwriters by the syndicate manager the total number of bonds to be taken down by such underwriter for his own retail distribution?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And any bonds given up by an underwriter to the selected dealers, or, as the case may be, for institutional sales, are retained by the manager against receipt?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And before the close of business on the initial delivery day, does not the manager reimburse the underwriters for the bonds retained?

Mr. COULSON. He does.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Usually each underwriter takes out with a bank what is known as a day loan in order to pay for his commitment?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The day loan may be for the entire amount of the underwriting commitment or for a portion thereof?

Mr. COULSON. It is usually for a portion of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In any event, the balance is financed out of firm capital?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is the practice of the New York banks, is it not, to require the underwriter who applies for a day loan to execute an instrument which sets forth the purpose for which the loan is to be used, that is to say, to pay in whole or in part the purchase price of the securities that are being offered?

Mr. COULSON. It is a rather technical document.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think I have one here. Is not this the instrument, which happens to be of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, characteristic of the ones used by New York banks?

Mr. COULSON. Yes; it is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is also required, is it not, Mr. Coulson, under the terms of this instrument which you have just identified, that the securities upon receipt by the underwriter be held in trust for the bank as collateral security for the loan?

Mr. COULSON. It is.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, the underwriter becomes a trustee with respect to such securities in behalf of the bank?

Mr. COULSON. Yes; the proceeds of the day loan are used in facilitating the delivery of the securities by the underwriter.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in the case of such instruments, do you know whether or not it is stated that with respect to such securities a lien or mortgage shall arise in favor of the bank?

Mr. COULSON. On the securities involved; yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is the practice, incidentally, of the Guaranty Trust Co.?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does not the bank generally charge 1 percent interest for this accommodation?

Mr. COULSON. They do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Having executed the day-loan agreement, the underwriter usually sends it back to the bank, together with his check for the face amount of the loan, and then another check for 1 day's interest. Is that not correct?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Generally the underwriter will take out this loan with the trustee of the new issue as a kind of compliment, perhaps, to the trustee, or perhaps, with banks where the underwriter keeps his deposits or otherwise uses such bank for his banking requirements?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In the event all of the bonds retained by the manager are not sold by the initial delivery day, does not the manager arrange a loan, using the unsold bonds as collateral?

Mr. COULSON. Yes; unless he wishes to use other capital for that purpose.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And if that be the case, each underwriter is thereafter reimbursed from the proceeds of the loan made for its account?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Each underwriter then uses the proceeds of such loan plus the proceeds he receives on the delivery of the bonds against his retail sales to liquidate the day loan?

Mr. COULSON. And plus the amount he receives from his contribution to the selling group.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Or in the event he has failed to sell all of the bonds which have been allotted to him by the manager for his own retail distribution, and if his capital is insufficient, arrangement can be made for a collateral loan on the balance of the unsold bonds. Is that not correct?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The day loan then serves a rather important function in the underwriting business in that it releases for the period of its duration the underwriter's capital?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. To put the matter differently: If it were not for this credit accommodation by the commercial banks, underwriting capital might become frozen and the extent of underwriting activities perhaps become somewhat restricted?

Mr. COULSON. That is a rather involved question. The day loan is a credit facility. It makes for a very simple operation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Mr. Coulson, just in the interests of economy, can you furnish me with an answer to my question? I think it is a difficult question to ask you without much preparation. We might suggest that you write to us about it, when you can more leisurely study it. Would you prefer that?

Mr. COULSON. I would say the day loan is used as a convenience. The underwriter might be in possession of wholly owned marketable securities equal the amount of his commitment which he could take to the bank and borrow against. Then he would pay the issuing corporation, but at the end of the day he would be in funds over and above his normal cash requirements, so he would have to go back to the bank and take up his wholly owned securities and bring them back to his office.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, I would like to turn with you, if I may, to specific examples of the day-loan procedure just by way of illustration. Suppose we take, as our first, the Pure Oil Co. 5 percent cumulative preferred stock. E. B. Smith & Co.'s commitment with respect to this offering was for 58,936 shares at 100 in the principal amount of $5,893,600, is that correct, sir?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that was the amount which was paid to the Pure Oil Co.?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not the closing date for this transaction October 22, 1937?

Mr. COULSON. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And did not E. B. Smith & Co. arrange a day loan at Guaranty Trust Co. on October 22 for $4,500,000?

Mr. COULSON. They did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was not the balance, in the amount of $1,393,600 made up from a bank balance of E. B. Smith & Co. at the Guaranty Trust Co. on October 21 in the amount of $2,282,656.57?

Mr. COULSON. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thus making a total of $5,893,600?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now was not the day loan paid off before the close of business on October 22?

Mr. COULSON. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. However, this offering having been a slow moving deal with an unsold balance of stock remaining, was there not a collateral loan made by the Guaranty Trust Co.?

Mr. COULSON. There was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this loan was on 58,936 shares at a loan value of $64 per share?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Or the aggregate amount of $3,771,904?

Mr. COULSON. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that the difference between $64 and $100 which was financed by the firm was $2,121,696?

Mr. COULSON. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Those two figures giving a total of $5,893,600?

Mr. COULSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now suppose we turn, as a second illustration, to the $85,000,000 Shell Union Oil Corporation, 15-year 2½-percent debentures due July 1, 1954. Was not Smith, Barney & Co.'s underwriting commitment for $4,000,000 at a value of 96¼?

Mr. COULSON. Ninety-six and a quarter is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Ninety-six and a quarter.

Mr. COULSON. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that would represent $3,850,000?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the accrued interest amounted to $6,388.88?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that the total paid to Shell Union Oil Corporation by Smith, Barney & Co. was $3,856,388.88?

Mr. COULSON. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not the closing date for this transaction July 24, 1939?

Mr. COULSON. It was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, of the total underwriting commitment, was there not financed by day loan of the Guaranty Trust Co. on July 24, 1939, $3,300,000?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was not the remainder made up by a bank balance of Smith, Barney & Co. at the Guaranty at that time, at the close of business July 21, $851,234.74?

Mr. COULSON. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that the amount taken from Smith, Barney & Co.'s bank balance for this purpose was $556,388.88?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And those two figures represent a total of $3,856,388.88?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now let us together recapitulate the situation. The underwriting involved $4,000,000?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They have a give-up to the selling group of $750,000?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which left a balance for retail sales of $3,250,000?

Mr. COULSON. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now there were additional bonds unsold to the dealers taken down in the amount of $274,000?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that there was a total for retail sales of $3,524,000?

Mr. COULSON. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And they were sold at a retail price of 97¾?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Giving a total of $1,624,000?

Mr. COULSON. Correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that as of July 28 there was an unsold balance of $1,900,000?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. However on July 28 this unsold balance was in fact sold?

Mr. COULSON. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that none of these bonds were pledged for a collateral loan?

Mr. COULSON. From July 24 until July 28.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Coulson.

Now before you leave may I ask you to identify that document which you have in your hand as one which was prepared by you and other members of your organization and made available to us pursuant to our request?

Mr. COULSON. Yes; this is the document I prepared.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And is it your signature which appears on the letter of transmittal?

Mr. COULSON. Yes; that is my signature.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, Mr. Coulson.

(The witness, Mr. Coulson, was excused.)

Mr. Whitehead, please take the stand.

Were the following documents obtained by you from the houses indicated and will you be good enough to state which houses?

Mr. WHITEHEAD (Securities and Exchange Commission). These documents were obtained from Kidder, Peabody & Co., The First Boston Corporation, and Halsey, Stuart & Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you have certain instruments that were furnished to you by several banks, have you not?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. I have.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And which banks furnished those instruments?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. These were furnished by the investment banking houses that I have just mentioned.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And they are the——

Mr. WHITEHEAD (interposing). Forms used.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. By which banks?

Mr. WHITEHEAD. They are used by the Guaranty Trust Co., the National City Bank of New York, the Bank of the Manhattan Co., Chase National Bank of the City of New York, the City National Bank & Trust of Chicago, The Continental National Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, and The Manufacturers Trust Co. of New York.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, Mr. Whitehead.

May it please the committee, I ask first that the document dated September 1, 1939, identified by Witness Coulson be admitted in evidence.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. It will be admitted.

(The letter referred to and accompanying schedules were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1889-1 to 1889-5" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12832-12836.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that the several documents and bank instruments identified by Witness Whitehead likewise be spread on the records of this committee.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. May I ask if those documents indicate by title what they are?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They do, sir.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. They may be admitted.

(The documents referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1890 to 1894, 1895-1 and 1895-2, and 1896" and are included in the appendix on pp. 12837-12854.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The witnesses tomorrow appearing in connection with the financing of the Standard Gas & Electric Co. are as follows: Mr. Victor Emanuel, Mr. Joseph H. Briggs, Mr. Allen Dulles of Sullivan & Cromwell, and Mr. Fuller of the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation.

Acting Chairman O'CONNELL. The committee will stand in recess until 10:30 tomorrow morning.

(Whereupon at 4:30 p. m. the committee recessed until 10:30 a. m. on Thursday.)

INVESTIGATION OF CONCENTRATION OF ECONOMIC POWER

THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1940

UNITED STATES SENATE,
TEMPORARY NATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE,
Washington, D. C.

The committee met at 10:40 a. m., pursuant to adjournment on Wednesday, January 10, 1940, in the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building, Representative Clyde Williams, presiding.

Present: Representative Williams (acting chairman), Senator King; Messrs. Henderson, O'Connell, and Brackett.

Present also: Clifton M. Miller, Department of Commerce; Peter R. Nehemkis, Jr., special counsel; Samuel M. Koenigsberg, associate attorney, and Lawrence R. Brown, investigator, Securities and Exchange Commission.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. The committee will be in order.

Mr. HENDERSON. Mr. Chairman, today the Securities and Exchange Commission Investment Banking Section continues with that part of the presentation which is related to the contracts and understandings existing between investment banking firms and corporations which are issuers of securities. Today, however, the case selected shifts the scene from what you might call the "deer runs" and the "salt licks" of Wall Street to the international theater, and banking concerns in Belgium, England, Paris, Berlin, and New York are concerned.

The case to be presented involves another aspect which we thought important to present to this committee, a case in which a banking firm which has both investing and underwriting functions utilizes to a certain extent the investment portion of its business as an aid in securing contracts for future issues.

This leads me, Mr. Chairman, to point out, as I have wanted to for some time, that the Investment Banking Section has been at work with a small staff for quite a long period. A really complete presentation, even along the narrowed lines we indicated at the outset, could probably have occupied the attention of this committee for many, many weeks. As you are aware, numerous other subjects, probably 40, press for hearing before this committee.

That means we have had to select certain cases for presentation. We have had to narrow down the number of cases, investment banking houses, and statistics concerning them, to those we felt were illustrative. We have adopted, as you know, the case method because I think it is apparent to the committee that if we had relied merely on the cold information supplied by prospectuses and the generalized testimony of men in the investment banking field, the committee would have had no opportunity for critical analysis of the varied functions of investment banking.

There were several attempts on the part of witnesses to play down the implication of terminology which certainly would not have come before the committee had we not utilized private memoranda and private letters. We take no great delight in exposing to public view private and confidential information, but I will be glad to rest our case on the necessity of doing so in order to obtain a real basis, as I said before, for judgment by the committee.

I think one other thing might be said at this time which I have wanted to say. Generally there has been associated with the banking inquiries, with anything banking, a certain amount of feeling about exercise of influence upon the investigators and upon the people responsible for the presentation. I am prepared to say today, and I think Counsel Nehemkis will agree with me, that despite the fact that we have touched many of the most important investment banking houses in this country, no improper influence or pressure of any kind whatsoever, political or economic, has been attempted to be exercised on this staff. I think it is worth while noting that at this point, because certainly there has been no interference in any way. In the completeness of the presentation I think the responsibility for choice of what would be presented has lodged with Counsel Nehemkis. Is that correct, Mr. Nehemkis?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Absolutely correct, sir.

Mr. HENDERSON. I think we are ready to proceed.

AGREEMENTS BETWEEN UNDERWRITERS AND CORPORATIONS ISSUING SECURITIES

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, before calling my first witness, there is a bit of old business from yesterday which requires but a moment. The committee will recall that I had occasion to ask Mr. Lewis Strauss¹ of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., whether he knew of the existence of agreements or understandings or contracts between investment banking firms and issuers of securities, and Mr. Strauss said he did not. I then stated to the committee that either this morning or tomorrow, I would have occasion to offer in evidence some 29 or 30 contracts of that nature. I should like to keep my word with you this morning and take this occasion of offering in evidence 29 contracts containing preferential rights to future financing entered into at various times between investment-banking firms and corporate issuers of securities.

Of these 29 contracts, 19 are as nearly as can be ascertained presently in full force and effect.

In the case of four of these contracts, the parties who are underwriters are out of business and it is questionable whether or not successors to such underwriters, if any, have succeeded to the rights under such contracts.

In the case of six of these contracts, Mr. Chairman, they have been canceled by the mutual consent of the parties thereto.

¹ Supra, p. 12496.

This pile of contracts is perhaps too great to ask the committee to print, and so I ask leave of the committee that they be filed with the committee, and in lieu of printing these contracts, an abstract of the provisions of each of these contracts be spread on the record of the committee.

Acting chairman WILLIAMS. Has the source from which those contracts came been placed in the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. On each abstract appears the source. For example, the first one which happens to be a contract between the Airplane Manufacturing & Supply Corporation and the underwriter, being G. Brashears & Co. of Los Angeles, the source says, "From registration statement, Securities & Exchange Commission."

The next one happens to be, and this I assure you was a pure coincidence, Associated Gas & Electric Co., and the source is Halsey, Stuart & Co., New York, and the name of my staff associate who obtained it appears.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Very well, they may be admitted.

(The contracts referred to were marked "Exhibits Nos. 1897 to 1925" and are on file with the committee. The abstracts accompanying each contract were numbered accordingly and are included in the appendix on pp. 12854-12860.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Joseph H. Briggs will take the stand, please.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Do you solemnly swear the testimony you are about to give in the matter now pending will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do.

TESTIMONY OF JOSEPH H. BRIGGS, CHAIRMAN, EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, AND EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT, H. M. BYLLESBY & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Briggs, will you state your full name and address, please?

Mr. BRIGGS. Joseph H. Briggs. I live in Highland Park, Ill.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At the present time, Mr. Briggs, you are chairman of the board of directors and chairman of the executive committee and executive vice president of H. M. Byllesby & Co.?

Mr. BRIGGS. We have no chairman of the board; I am chairman of the executive committee and executive vice president.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And H. M. Byllesby & Co. is an organization devoted to investment banking, is it not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You were a director of Standard Gas & Electric Co. at one time, were you not?

Mr. BRIGGS. I was a director of Standard Gas & Electric Co. I would say for 10 or 15 years, resigning some time in 1936.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You had also been a director of Standard Power & Light Co. at one time, had you not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And a director of some of the subsidiaries of Standard Gas & Electric?

Mr. BRIGGS. I was a director of two or three of the subsidiaries, as I remember.

RELATIONSHIP OF H. M. BYLLESBY & CO. TO STANDARD SYSTEM OF UTILITY COMPANIES

Mr. NEHEMKIS. H. M. Byllesby & Co., the organization with which you are now associated, was originally an organization devoted to furnishing services for utility companies and other business organizations interested in the utility field. Is that not correct, sir?

Mr. BRIGGS. At the beginning, H. M. Byllesby & Co. did operate, supervise, and manage utility properties.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in connection with its operation and supervision of such properties, did not Byllesby acquire small utility properties here and there throughout the country?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in connection with these acquisitions did not H. M. Byllesby & Co. operate these companies itself?

Mr. BRIGGS. They did until about 1921.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And at that particular time what was the occasion for Byllesby ceasing to operate these properties?

Mr. BRIGGS. A separate corporation was created, a management and service corporation, whose stock was turned over to the Standard Gas & Electric Co. That corporation continued the operation and supervision of these properties.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What payment did H. M. Byllesby & Co. receive for turning over the properties to Standard Gas?

Mr. BRIGGS. H. M. Byllesby & Co., as I remember it, received no payment.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you receive any securities of the company to which the properties had been turned over?

Mr. BRIGGS. If there were any securities turned over, they have been a very small amount.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was the consideration, if any, for turning over these properties?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not remember at this time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You can't recall at this time why it was that Byllesby turned over a number of utility properties to another system?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, I think we all felt it would be much better to have our operating and supervision company owned by the holding company which owned the subsidiary properties.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But as a businessman of long standing, you don't want me to believe, and I am sure you don't want the committee to believe, that there was no consideration involved in making this transfer.

Mr. BRIGGS. We had an investment in common stock of Standard Gas & Electric Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Prior to the transfer of the property?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct, and to the extent that the profits would come in from the operating and supervising company, to that extent we would get some benefit on our common stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Between 1913 and 1919, did not H. M. Byllesby & Co. build up its own securities distributing organization?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And during those years did you not specialize in public-utility securities?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And in connection with this specialization in public-utility securities, did you not also specialize in the financing of companies within the Standard Gas system?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do I understand correctly, Mr. Briggs, that from the time of the incorporation of Standard Gas & Electric in 1910, until 1928 or '29, that Byllesby maintained control of Standard Gas & Electric by means of stock ownership and through various interlocking directorates?

Mr. BRIGGS. By control, you mean 51 percent of the voting stock?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Something of that nature.

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not believe at any time between 1920 and '29 we had actually 51 percent of the voting stock. I think the amount may have approximated 40 percent.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Without, however, having had that legal requirement of voting control, is it not a fact that during this period, H. M. Byllesby & Co. to all practical purposes did have control through stock ownership?

Mr. BRIGGS. I would say that is a correct statement.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And there were various interlocking directorates throughout the system, were there not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As a matter of fact, by November 9, 1936, did not H. M. Byllesby & Co. own about 76 percent of the Series B common stock of Standard Power & Light?

Mr. BRIGGS. I can answer that by saying I believe that is approximately correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. At the present time does not Standard Power & Light hold the following securities of Standard Gas & Electric: Some 40,000 shares of $7 cumulative prior preference stock and 1,160,000 shares of common?

Mr. BRIGGS. I have not had an opportunity to recently check the holdings of Standard Power, but they do own in excess of 50 percent of the common stock of Standard Gas & Electric Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the common holdings are over 50 percent of all outstanding?

Mr. BRIGGS. Of Standard Gas?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

THE STANDARD SYSTEM—CONSTITUENT COMPANIES—ASSETS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, can you tell me, Mr. Briggs, what the principal companies are that make up the Standard system, as we shall be using that phrase "Standard system" throughout the day?

Mr. BRIGGS. The principal subsidiary companies—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). May I interrupt just for a moment? As you go over this list, for the convenience of the committee, so they see the breadth of the system perhaps you would also indicate generally the territory served by the companies you will enumerate.

Mr. BRIGGS. Philadelphia Co., which in itself is a holding company, controls the Duquesne Light Co., Equitable Gas Co., and those companies serve the territory in and around Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Northern States Power Co. serves the territory extending from on the north Minot, N. Dak., to some place in Iowa, and extending as far east as Lake Michigan. It is rather integrated, an interconnected property, and pretty well covers that territory.

The Louisville Gas & Electric Co. serves the town of Louisville, and surrounding territory, with both gas and electricity.

The Oklahoma Gas & Electric Co. serves the principal towns of Oklahoma City, Muskogee, Norman, and I believe serves about 50 percent of the State with electricity.

Do you want the smaller companies?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then you have the Mountain States Power.

Mr. BRIGGS. The Mountain States Power Co., is a small company operating in the territory of the States of Oregon, Idaho, and runs down to Wyoming.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then you have the San Diego Consolidated.

Mr. BRIGGS. The San Diego Consolidated serves both gas and electricity in the city of San Diego and surrounding territory.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. There is also the Wisconsin Public Service Co.

Mr. BRIGGS. The Wisconsin Public Service Co. serves both gas and electricity to a territory situated in the center of Wisconsin.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then you also have the Southern Colorado Power Co.

Mr. BRIGGS. The Southern Colorado Power Co. serves Pueblo and surrounding territory.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you also own some traction lines out in San Francisco, do you not, the Market Street Railway Co.

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, they own an interest in the Market Street Railway.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Haven't you got some utility properties down in Mexico?

Mr. BRIGGS. One or two isolated properties.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What do you call that, Public Service Co. of Mexico?

Mr. BRIGGS. When you say "we," I suppose you are referring to Standard Gas.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes. What does the Standard Gas call that, do you know?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Have you any idea as of the present time, Mr. Briggs, what the total assets of the Standard system companies represent?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, I would say they would be in excess of $1,000,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know, roughly speaking, what they were about 1936?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, they would be slightly less; there has been some construction program since that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That $1,000,000,000 figure that you mentioned a moment ago wouldn't include certain affiliates where Standard Gas & Electric owns anywhere between 40 or 50 percent of the stock, for example, the Market Street Railway Co., Mountain States Power, and Northern States Power, would it?

Mr. BRIGGS. My figures contemplated the inclusion of those properties.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, from the description of the territory served, which you have just given to the committee, and the assets involved here, we have a pretty substantial utility system, haven't we?

Mr. BRIGGS. I would say that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It compares with any of the big systems in this country.

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

STANDARD'S ACQUISITION OF INTEREST IN PHILADELPHIA CO. SYSTEM—
AGREEMENT WITH LADENBURG, THALMANN & CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, in 1924 and 1925, did not Byllesby and Standard Gas & Electric attempt to acquire stock control of the companies grouped under the Philadelphia Co.?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And these companies had been associated with Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. and their banking associates who in turn controlled a large portion of this stock. Is that not substantially correct?

Mr. BRIGGS. Those companies have been associated with Ladenburg, Thalmann, and other bankers. I do not believe that they have a large substantial stock.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They had some stock.

Mr. BRIGGS. They had some stock, that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A question of degree, that would be perhaps open to further research.

Mr. BRIGGS. I would say that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you happen to know at this time who the banking associates of Ladenburg, Thalmann, were in these earlier financings?

Mr. BRIGGS. The First National Bank of New York, and the Chase Security Corporation, Lee, Higginson & Co., the Haystone Securities Corporation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The Haystone Securities Corporation, if I may be permitted to interrupt, was the personal holding company of the late Mr. Hayden, wasn't it?

Mr. BRIGGS. No; the Haystone Corporation was a security affiliate of Hayden, Stone.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You mentioned the Union Trust of Pittsburgh.

Mr. BRIGGS. The Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You said the First National Bank of New York. Did you not mean the First Security Co., the affiliate of the First National Bank of New York?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the Chase Securities Corporation was the affiliate of the Chase National Bank, was it not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, Byllesby's attempt to obtain control of the Philadelphia Co. system through stock acquisitions was not altogether successful, was it?

Mr. BRIGGS. Eventually it was successful.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But at the earlier period there were certain difficulties, were there not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that instead of, at the earlier time, obtaining complete control did not Byllesby come to an agreement with Ladenburg, Thalmann concerning the control of the properties about June of 1925?

Mr. BRIGGS. I would not remember the date, but I believe that is substantially correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And was not the net effect, shall I say, of this agreement to give Byllesby a voice substantially equal to that of Ladenburg, Thalmann in the affairs of the Philadelphia Co. system?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And did not Ladenburg, Thalmann also emerge with a stock interest in Standard Power & Light?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now offer in evidence an agreement dated the 19th day of June 1925, between Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., H. M. Byllesby & Co., and Standard Gas & Electric Co. This was obtained from the files of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Docket No. 31-420, Commission's exhibit No. 29. It is a matter of public record. It is now offered in evidence.

(The agreement referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1926" and is included in the appendix on p. 12860.)

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Do you want this for the record?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I think it should be printed in full, if the committee please.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It will be accepted.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I now offer in evidence a memorandum of agreement between H. M. Byllesby & Co. and Standard Gas & Electric Co., dated June 19, 1925. This document which I am offering in evidence was likewise obtained from the files of the Securities and Exchange Commission, being Docket No. 31-420, Commission's exhibit No. 30.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1927" and is included in the appendix on p. 12865.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Briggs, was not the Standard Power & Light Co. made the repository for the securities of the holding companies which controlled the Philadelphia Co. stock?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is true.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not Byllesby & Co. somewhat anxious at this time to establish a more complete measure of control over the Philadelphia Co. utilities?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, we were anxious to consolidate all of these properties within the Standard Gas system.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And by an agreement of March 22, 1928, Ladenburg, Thalmann agreed to certain sales of securities, do you recall that?

Mr. BRIGGS. I am not familiar with those transactions because I did not handle them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You, of course, were aware that they had taken place?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And are you not aware that there was provided for at that time, on your own knowledge and information and belief, that the resignation of certain Ladenburg, Thalmann partners and associates from voting trusts and offices connected with the Pittsburgh Utilities was contemplated?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the execution of proxies for Ladenburg, Thalmann's remaining holdings of Standard Power & Light stock in favor of certain corporation action contemplated by Byllesby or Standard Gas & Electric was likewise contemplated?

Mr. BRIGGS. I believe that is correct.

AGREEMENT WITH RESPECT TO FUTURE FINANCING OF STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CO., HOLDING COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA CO. UTILITIES, MARCH 1926

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I offer in evidence an agreement of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., Standard Gas and Electric and Byllesby, dated March 22, 1926. This document, like the other previously offered, is obtained from the files of the Securities & Exchange Commission, being Commission's Exhibit No. 31, in volume 2 of exhibits in connection with the file 31-420.

Mr. Chairman, may I suggest that it merely be filed and not printed. It is a public record. Anybody who wants to make reference to it in the future can go up to the S. E. C. and look at it.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. All right; it may be filed.

(The agreement referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1928" and is on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Briggs, did not this agreement, to which reference has been made, contain a provision with respect to future financing?

Mr. BRIGGS. I can't recollect at the present time that it did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Perhaps this will refresh your recollection about it. Paragraph 2 (c) of the agreement to which reference has been made provides as follows [reading from "Exhibit No. 1928"]:

That Ladenburg and Byllesby shall at all times be the bankers for Standard Power & Light Corporation and United Railways Investment Company and their respective successors, and for all their respective subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries (including Market Street Railway Company) as the same may now or hereafter exist in connection with the issuance of any securities and other related matters, and that all profits therefrom shall be divided between them equally, subject to such allowance as may be jointly made to other bankers.

Now, was not the effect of this provision to provide for a sharing in financing profits between Byllesby and Ladenburg, Thalmann?

Mr. BRIGGS. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The agreement also contained provision with respect to management engineering fees, did it not?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not remember that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read to you from paragraph 2 (d) of the agreement. Perhaps this will recall it your mind [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1928"]:

That all management, engineering and similar fees, less expenses incurred in connection with the handling of such fees, and less fees paid to any person, firm or corporation not directly or indirectly connected or affiliated with any party thereto, to be paid by Standard Power and Light Corporation or by United Railways Investment Company, or their respective successors, and by their respective subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries, as the same may now or hereafter exist, shall be paid to the aforesaid Standard Power and Light Corporation or to some corporation all the stock of which is owned by Standard Power and Light Corporation or to some other corporation or fund or account jointly agreed upon between Ladenburg and Byllesby.

Does that refresh your recollection?

Mr. BRIGGS. No; it does not. I have forgotten that completely.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall whether or not this agreement to which we were referring also contains provision with respect to counsel?

Mr. BRIGGS. No, I do not remember that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Perhaps this will refresh your memory [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1928"]:

2 (e) That Reed, Smith, Shaw and McClay and any firm successor to it shall for a period of five (5) years from the date of this agreement, unless Ladenburg and Byllesby shall otherwise in writing agree, be General Counsel in Pittsburgh to the Philadelphia Company (or its successors) and to all its subsidiary and sub-subsidiary corporations, substantially as heretofore; that Van Vorst Siegel & Smith, and any firm successor to it shall (in conjunction with Cummins, Roemer & Flynn, or other General Counsel) for a period of five (5) years from date of this agreement, unless Ladenburg and Byllesby shall in writing agree, be counsel in connection with corporate matters relating to Standard Power and Light Corporation, United Railways Investment Holding Corporation, Pittsburgh Utilities Corporation, United Railways Investment Company, Philadelphia Company, their respective successors, and all subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries thereof, as the same may now or hereafter be constituted, to the extent of assuring Van Vorst, Siegel & Smith aggregate compensation of at least Seventeen Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($17,500.) annually in connection with general corporate matters.

Does that refresh your recollection, sir?

Mr. BRIGGS. No, it does not. I might say at this time that my duties at that time were manager of our bond department, which involved the sale and distribution of securities and these matters were handled by other officials.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. So that you wouldn't be able to testify, I take it, at this time why it was thought necessary to freeze counsel into this agreement at the time?

Mr. BRIGGS. No, I cannot.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Returning for a moment to the provision with respect to future financing, Mr. Briggs, there were several security issues by Standard Power & Light and its subsidiaries beginning with the year 1926, were there not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And did not the participations follow the lines laid down in the agreement substantially?

Mr. BRIGGS. My memory is that they did.

SECURITY ISSUES PURSUANT TO AGREEMENT OF MARCH, 1926

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Chairman, I offer in evidence at this time a chart or table showing the securities sold to the public by the Standard Power & Light Corporation, and its subsidiaries, for the period March 22, 1926, through December 31, 1929, and the percentages of participation therein on the part of a number of investment banking firms. I also want to offer in evidence at this time a document furnished to the Commission by the Standard Gas & Electric Company showing the sources on which this table was predicated.

I leave it to your judgment, sir, whether you desire to have this merely filed or incorporated. It is merely for your convenience.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Have you any recommendation to make about it? The committee has had no time to examine it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I should say, sir, that if it is the pleasure of the committee "Exhibit No. 1930," which you now have in your hand, should be filed with the committee and the table printed in full.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It may be filed and the table may be admitted to the record.

(The table referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1929" and is included in the appendix on p. 12867. The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1930" and is on file with the committee.)

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Briggs, is the Standard Power & Light Company the top holding company?

Mr. BRIGGS. It is at the present time. It was not at that time.

Mr. O'CONNELL. What was Standard Gas?

Mr. BRIGGS. Standard Gas & Electric Company.

Mr. O'CONNELL. As of that time the Standard Gas & Electric was the holding company and the Standard Power & Light was an operating company?

Mr. BRIGGS. Standard Power & Light was the holding company, owning the securities of the properties operating in Pittsburgh. Standard Gas & Electric Co. owned the securities of the rest of the properties throughout the United States. In 1930, the transaction was put through turning all the properties over to Standard Gas and in turn making Standard Power the top holding company, holding 52 percent of the common stock of the Standard Gas.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I believe that the committee has before it the table which has now been received in evidence. I should like to direct your attention, if I may, to certain facts which appear in that table. It will be noted that the groups with one exception were composed of the same banking houses, apart from the occasional exclusion of the two smaller participants. It will also be noted that the principal underwriters were H. M. Byllesby Company and the Ladenburg, Thalmann group. It will be further noted that with the exception of one issue the interests of the several houses remained substantially the same through each of the issues from 1927, the first after the agreement, through 1929.

It will be noted further from this table that when a newcomer appeared each of the other houses took a small proportionate cut. Throughout all of this financing Byllesby and Ladenburg, Thalmann were the leaders of the financing. Each of these houses obtained either one-quarter of the issue or slightly less. In one case you will note, in the Standard Power and Light 6's of 1957, this percentage participation was changed.

STOCKHOLDERS' SUITS AGAINST H. M. BYLLESBY AND COMPANY AND STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CO., 1929

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Briggs, in the spring and fall of 1929 were there not several stockholders' suits brought against Byllesby and Standard Gas & Electric?

Mr. BRIGGS. There was one stockholders' suit; I don't remember several.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was there not a mandamus proceeding brought against Standard Gas & Electric by a group of stockholders for the inspection of its books? Did that not occur in June of 1929?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not remember.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall that in September of 1929, suit was instituted by a group of stockholders and an action was brought against Byllesby for an accounting?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not remember; no, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall that this accounting action was accompanied by a demand that Byllesby turn over to the Standard about $5,000,000 of profit resulting from its transactions with Standard?

Mr. BRIGGS. I can't identify the particular suit you have in mind.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, you say you do recall that there was one suit, can you identify that suit? What was that about?

Mr. BRIGGS. I am not sure; it was a suit, some proceedings, brought against us in connection—well, at this time I don't remember for what purpose.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know who brought it, a group of stockholders or someone else?

Mr. BRIGGS. It was brought by a group of stockholders in New York.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall who some of these stockholders were or the names of the stockholders who instituted the suit?

Mr. BRIGGS. I believe it was brought—if there was a suit, I do not know that—brought by the Schroder banking interests.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The Schroder banking interests?

Mr. BRIGGS. Stock owned by the Schroder banking interests.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall who the interests were that made up the Schroder banking interests?

Mr. BRIGGS. No; I do not.

H. M. BYLLESBY & CO.'S CONTROL OF STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CO.
THROUGH HOLDINGS OF MANAGEMENT PREFERRED STOCK

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, wasn't there also a demand that Standard Gas & Electric $1 par voting preferred stock held by Byllesby, and which in turn gave Byllesby control over the system, be canceled?

Mr. BRIGGS. I believe there was some discussion about canceling it at that time, but I do not know whether or not it was a formal demand.

Mr. HENDERSON. Do I understand correctly that the preferred stock had voting rights?

Mr. BRIGGS. In which company?

Mr. HENDERSON. Standard Gas & Electric.

Mr. BRIGGS. No; the only stocks that had voting rights were the common stock and a special—you are correct, it was a special preferred stock called a management stock.

Mr. HENDERSON. A management stock?

Mr. BRIGGS. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That was a peculiar stock. It was worth $1 and each stock had one vote?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. One-dollar, one-vote stock? Now, you said there were some discussions about canceling Byllesby's interest in this stock. Discussions with whom, Mr. Briggs? Do you remember?

Mr. BRIGGS. No; I do not recall that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The Schroder banking interests?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, I do not know that these stockholders were actually Schroder banking interests, but they were probably identified with foreign interests.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They were, to use a blunt word, "stooges"?

Mr. BRIGGS. No; I do not know that, even.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. They were "fronting" for foreign interests?

Mr. BRIGGS. Is that a question?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were they?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not know that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now the voting power obtained by Byllesby through these holdings that we have been speaking of were approximately 40 percent of the voting power of all classes of the Standard Gas & Electric stock, were they not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall at this time how much Byllesby paid for this stock?

Mr. BRIGGS. Which stock is that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. This $1 preferred stock which had one vote per share?

Mr. BRIGGS. Paid $1 per share for it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. What was the aggregate cost to Byllesby?

Mr. BRIGGS. One million shares were offered to the stockholders and I believe all except—I believe that only 2,000 shares were taken by the stockholders, and Byllesby bought the rest.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Cost you about $1,000,000?

Mr. BRIGGS. Close to $1,000,000.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall how much the other voting stock cost?

Mr. BRIGGS. Our holdings of Standard Gas common?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Per vote; yes.

Mr. BRIGGS. We had accumulated whatever holdings we had of Standard Gas common from time to time in the market; it would be impossible for me to say just what it cost us.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. But of this preferred stock to which we have been making reference and which was held by the public, that didn't cost one dollar, and that didn't have the right of one vote per stock held, did it?

Mr. BRIGGS. The ordinary preferred stock of Standard Gas? Oh, no, that was stock in one case with no par value and in another case $100 par value.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. How about the common stock?

Mr. BRIGGS. The common stock, as I remember it, was no par value.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did that cost more than $1 a share?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, Standard Gas common was issued from time to time by the treasury at varying prices.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall at this time whether any of that common stock ever did have a price of $1 per share?

Mr. BRIGGS. The ordinary Standard Gas common?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes.

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not believe that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, you are unable to recall at this time who initiated the series of litigation against Standard Gas and Byllesby, the time to which we are referring?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You do think, however, that the instigating of a series of steps in a move to perhaps oust Byllesby from control was done under the leadership of the Schroder interests?

Mr. BRIGGS. No, I do not believe it was done under the leadership of Schroder interests; I think the first large stockholdings of Standard Gas were owned by the Loewenstein interests in Europe.

ACQUISITION OF STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CO. STOCK BY THE LOEWENSTEIN AND EMANUEL INTERESTS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall that about 1927 and 1928 two particular interests began buying into Standard Gas & Electric common?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, the only one I remember at that time is the Loewenstein interests, which I think accumulated stock in 1927.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that was done through the Hydro Electric Securities Corporation, was it not?

Mr. BRIGGS. I am not sure; that may be right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And when you speak of the Loewenstein interests you refer to the late Captain Alfred Loewenstein, the Belgian financier, do you not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you also recall that one of these two interests that began buying into common at this time was a group represented by Mr. Victor Emanuel?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, you are referring again to 1927?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Between 1927 and 1928.

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, I do not know.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You can't buy up common over night; it takes a little time.

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not know just which period Mr. Emanuel and his associates started to accumulate stock. I imagine it was a little bit later.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, did not the interests or the foreign interests represented by Captain Loewenstein demand representation on the board of Standard Gas & Electric?

Mr. BRIGGS. It did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. John O'Brien, who was then the president and a dominant figure in this system, refused that demand, did he not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did not counsel for Mr. Emanuel's interests, as well as the Hydro Electric interests representing Captain Loewenstein, demand access to the books?

Mr. BRIGGS. I am not familiar with that. It may be correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall that this demand was refused?

Mr. BRIGGS. No; I do not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall that immediately after such demands, to which reference has been made, that suits were brought by the respective interests?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, I think I have testified that there was talk of suits being brought. Whether or not they were actually brought I do not know.

UNITED STATES ELECTRIC POWER CORPORATION (USEPCO) AND ITS ORGANIZERS

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall that about September 1929—we are moving a little farther now—that several additional financial interests joined hands with Captain Loewenstein's group and Mr. Emanuel's group?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, I was not familiar with the operations of that group at all.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall a company known as United States Electric Power Corporation?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall who formed that corporation on or about September 10, 1929?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not know who the original incorporators were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have some general idea of the people back of that corporation?

Mr. BRIGGS. Subsequently I did learn.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who were they?

Mr. BRIGGS. Mr. Emanuel, Mr. Riggs.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Riggs?

Mr. BRIGGS. Mr. Riggs, R. T. Riggs, attorney in New York, Mr. Langley, Mr. Granbery, Mr. Seagrave of United Founders Corporation. They were the principal men, I believe.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Langley is the head of W. C. Langley & Co.?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now was not also the Hydro-Electric Securities Corporation interested in United States Electric Power?

Mr. BRIGGS. I believe they were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation?

Mr. BRIGGS. I believe they were.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the Seaboard National Corporation?

Mr. BRIGGS. Yes, sir, I remember that name, also.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And A. C. Allyn & Co.?

Mr. BRIGGS. And A. C. Allyn, that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And American Founders Corporation?

Mr. BRIGGS. Well, the Founders is part of the Founders group.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And United Founders Corporation?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the latter two are investment trusts?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And have we mentioned Harris, Forbes & Co.?

Mr. BRIGGS. No, I believe they had a small interest, but I am not sure.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Harris, Forbes & Co. and W. C. Langley & Co. and A. C. Allyn & Co. and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation were all investment banking firms?

Mr. BRIGGS. I am not sure about Schroder being an investment banking concern at that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Emanuel's company, Albert Emanuel & Co., was an investment banking house, was it not?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not believe they came into the investment banking picture until later.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Koppers United was also interested for a short time, wasn't it?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do not know that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. These concerns pooled their Standard Gas & Electric holdings in the United States Electric Power Co., did they not?

Mr. BRIGGS. I subsequently found that out, yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Victor Emanuel was the president of U. S. Electric Power Co.?

Mr. BRIGGS. He became president, but I do not know when.

GENERAL SETTLEMENT BETWEEN USEPCO AND STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CO.—THE BANKING MEMORANDUM OF DECEMBER 1929

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, these various interests we have gone over, united interests in U. S. Electric Power, obtained a sufficiently powerful position in Standard Gas, did they not, to obtain joint control not only over the system, but with your support as well?

Mr. BRIGGS. An arrangement was made in 1929.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, as a part of the general settlement following this new alignment of interests, was not a memorandum prepared embodying an agreement between Byllesby, U. S. Electric Power and Ladenburg, Thalmann?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And this memorandum was dated, was it not, December 21, 1929?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I show you this memorandum and ask you whether you recognize it?

Mr. BRIGGS. I do.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is that your signature which appears among the signatories to the agreement?

Mr. BRIGGS. No; it is not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Whose signature is that?

Mr. BRIGGS. I think the document is all signed by the same person, evidently a copy of a copy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who is the Mr. Briggs referred to there?

Mr. BRIGGS. J. H. Briggs is myself.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you sign that document? Did you sign the original of which this is a copy?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you, sir. And this document is entitled "Banking," is it not?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And the other signatories to it, if you recall, were Mr. Victor Emanuel, representing U. S. Electric Power Corporation as its president?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Walter T. Rosen, a general partner in Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document identified by the witness is offered in evidence, may it please the committee.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It will be accepted.

(The document referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1931" and is included in the appendix on p. 12868.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now, did not the agreement of December 21, 1929, which is now in evidence before this committee, embody a division of the future financing of the system, Mr. Briggs?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Subject to certain particular situations specifically set forth in the agreement, did not this agreement provide that 75 percent of all future financing of the Standard Gas & Electric system was to go to United States Electric Power Co., and 25 percent was to go to Byllesby?

Mr. BRIGGS. That is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I ask leave of the committee that the witness be dismissed and that I call at this time Mr. Victor Emanuel. I think the witness should remain within call of the committee, but it is not necessary for him to remain in the witness chair.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. You may be excused, Mr. Briggs, for the present.

(Mr. Briggs was excused, to remain within call.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Victor Emanuel, will you please take the chair?

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in this proceeding shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. EMANUEL. I do.

TESTIMONY OF VICTOR EMANUEL, PRESIDENT, STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CORPORATION, AND CHAIRMAN, FINANCE COMMITTEE, STANDARD GAS & ELECTRIC CO., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Will you state your full name and address, Mr. Emanuel, please?

Mr. EMANUEL. Victor Emanuel, 895 Park Avenue, New York.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You were formerly senior partner of Emanuel & Co., were you not?

Mr. EMANUEL. For about 3 or 4 years.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And what was the business of Emanuel & Co.?

Mr. EMANUEL. Emanuel & Co., as I recall it, was—I don't know—formed in 1927 to 1928 and were purely a brokerage house up till 1934, 1935, and after that period at times they went into or they were in the investment banking business.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Are you not now a special partner in Emanuel & Co.?

Mr. EMANUEL. I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You are a director of several of the companies in the Standard Gas system, are you not, Mr. Emanuel?

Mr. EMANUEL. Two.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Which ones are they?

Mr. EMANUEL. Standard Power & Light Corporation and Standard Gas & Electric Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You are chairman of the board in both of these organizations are you not?

Mr. EMANUEL. I am president of Standard Power & Light Corporation and until recently was chairman of Standard Gas & Electric, but now I am chairman of the finance committee of Standard Gas & Electric.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you not hold any offices in the Philadelphia Co.?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; I used to.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you no longer hold an office in the Duquesne Light Co.?

Mr. EMANUEL. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Or in the Louisville Gas & Electric?

Mr. EMANUEL. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You are, however, a director of the Republic Steel Corporation, are you not?

Mr. EMANUEL. I am.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you are at present president of the Aviation & Transportation Corporation?

Mr. EMANUEL. I am.

PROGRAM OF UTILITY ACQUISITIONS OF VICTOR EMANUEL AND ALFRED LOEWENSTEIN

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Is it not a fact, Mr. Emanuel, that in associations with the late Capt. Alfred Loewenstein you bought into the Standard Gas system?

Mr. EMANUEL. He bought, or his companies bought, stock in Standard Gas considerably before I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And you subsequently became associated with Captain Loewenstein in the venture?

Mr. EMANUEL. Well, not exactly associated, because he died in 1928 and—I mean I don't know what you mean by associated.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Perhaps it will develop in the course of the testimony.

Mr. HENDERSON. Is that the fellow who fell out of the plane?

Mr. EMANUEL. It was.

Mr. HENDERSON. Was that in 1928?

Mr. EMANUEL. In 1928, I think in the early part of July.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Now did not you and the late Captain Loewenstein have a number of discussions about the subject?

Mr. EMANUEL. Well, in the winter of 1927 I think it was, I was in England and he had a number of holdings in American companies, including a considerable number of utility companies, and I never met him up to that time, but he had known my father, and he consulted me about some of these American investments.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In the course of your conversations and discussions with Captain Loewenstein did you not formulate a fairly large-scale program for utility acquisitions which you then thought it was possible to acquire?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; I can't say that I did. He came over here after I met him and he had a number of utility investments which I talked to him about and I think at one time I either wrote him or talked to him about forming a company in which we consolidated a number of public utility companies, but he wasn't interested in that and nothing came of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Emanuel, will you tell me whether you recognize this memorandum as one prepared by you on or about May 15, 1928?

Mr. EMANUEL. Yes; I think that was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Emanuel, I am going to read you from this document which you have just been good enough to identify for me. This document is entitled "Memorandum of Agreement Covered in Conversation Between Alfred Loewenstein and Victor Emanuel," regarding [reading "Exhibit No. 1932"]:

Standard Gas and Electric Company
American Water Works and Electric Company Inc.
Middle West Utilities Company

- 1-In the first instance, it is desired, if possible, to purchase control of the Standard Gas and Electric Company at a reasonable price.
- 2-If and when this is accomplished, an earnest endeavor would be made—
 - a—To purchase control of American Water Works and Electric Company Inc.
 - b—To effect a merger of the two companies.
- 3-At some future date, to secure control, if possible, of the Middle West Utilities Company on a mutually satisfactory basis.
- 4-In all the above negotiations, Captain Loewenstein and his associates and Victor Emanuel and his associates would be joint partners; that is, each group would take fifty percent interest.
- 5-A new holding company would be formed to finance with the public up to seventy-five percent of the purchase price of the different companies. It would be decided later if these securities would be offered solely in America, or in America, England, and on the Continent.
- 6-The balance of twenty-five percent, or more, to be raised equally by Alfred Loewenstein and his associates and by Victor Emanuel and his associates through their respective holding companies.
- 7-Victor Emanuel and his public utility organization to have operating charge of these properties, Victor Emanuel to receive a satisfactory compensation therefor.
- 8-The banking to be divided equally between banking houses connected with Alfred Loewenstein and banking houses connected with Victor Emanuel, it being understood that initially such bankers are the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation and A. C. Allyn & Company.
- 9-Exclusive of dividends on securities purchased, it is understood that revenues will probably inure to the groups through financing, management, and engineering services; these revenues, exclusive of the salary to be paid to Victor Emanuel as operating head of the company, will be divided equally between the groups.
- 10-In the first instance, these charges would probably be paid into the new holding company to be formed to take over these securities. As a half interest in the equity of this holding company would be owned by each group, each would share equally in such earnings.
- 11-It is understood that the bankers, the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation and A. C. Allyn & Company, would purchase these securities from friendly hands at prices which would result in their purchases being made on a non-competitive basis and at fair prices.
- 12-Should it be necessary, it is understood that Victor Emanuel could nominate six out of nine of the members of the board of directors of the new holding company, it being further understood, however, that Alfred Loewenstein and his associates would be fully protected by agreement as to all matters such as the purchase and sale of properties; purchase and sale of securities; management, financing, engineering, and all important phases of the operation and management of the properties. Such agreements are common, and Alfred Loewenstein and his interests would be just as fully protected as though they had half of the members of the board of directors.

13—It is further understood that Victor Emanuel would secure the approval of Alfred Loewenstein of any director he would name of American nationality, or his approval of any change that might be made in the board of directors.

Mr. Emanuel, I want you to examine the document once again. At the top of the document you will find three initials. Will you tell me whose initials they are?

Mr. EMANUEL. I think they must be Mr. Beale's.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who is Mr. Beale?

Mr. EMANUEL. I think he is president of Schroder Trust Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And Mr. Beale having read this document wrote on the top: "Not to be taken too seriously."

Mr. EMANUEL. He was absolutely correct. I never received a reply.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. When you wrote this document you took it pretty seriously, didn't you?

Mr. EMANUEL. I suppose I did.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is offered for the record of the committee.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1932" and appears in full in the text on p. 12563.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall about the same time you dictated the memorandum now in evidence preparing another memorandum sent to Mr. Fuller and Mr. Beale? I show it to you and ask if that isn't the memorandum. Do you recall preparing that memorandum?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; I do not. I might have.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It refers to "I" in the latter part and I have assumed from the nature of the discussion that it was written or dictated by you.

Mr. EMANUEL. It might have been, or it might have been somebody else in my office. I can't recall now.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Would it have been possibly dictated by someone else in close contact with Alfred Loewenstein?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; it would probably be somebody in my office.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Who else besides yourself knew Captain Loewenstein so intimately as to be able to discuss the details of this long-range program?

Mr. EMANUEL. I can't recall now. Mr. O'Hara, who was an associate of mine, might have been.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't recognize that document at all?

Mr. EMANUEL. In the first place, I can't read this photostatic copy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The only other person who could possibly have drafted that memorandum would be Mr. O'Hara?

Mr. EMANUEL. I can't say that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't know that? I think I shall have to call someone else to identify the document for just a moment, sir, so I can get it into the record. Is Mr. Fuller here? Mr. Fuller, will you be good enough to raise your hand and be sworn?

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in the matter now pending shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. FULLER. I do.

TESTIMONY OF CARLTON P. FULLER, PRESIDENT, SCHRODER ROCKEFELLER & CO., INC., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Please state your full name and address, for the record.

Mr. FULLER. Carlton P. Fuller, Summit, N. J.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And what is your business position, sir?

Mr. FULLER. I am president of Schroder Rockefeller & Co., Inc.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Fuller, I show you a document which came from your files. Will you be good enough to tell me if you recognize this as a true copy of an original in your possession and custody?

Mr. FULLER. I do not recall of my own memory this document indicated here, and I see nothing to identify it here, but I am willing to accept the probability that there is an original of it. Is that sufficient for your purpose?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is, sir. May I ask you one further question? Are you familiar with the contents of that memorandum?

Mr. FULLER. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You have never seen it before?

Mr. FULLER. I wouldn't say that. It is quite a long time ago, but I am not familiar with the contents of it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you know of your own knowledge or do you know on information and belief that that memorandum was prepared by Mr. Emanuel?

Mr. FULLER. I don't.

TESTIMONY OF VICTOR EMANUEL—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Thank you very much, sir. Mr. Fuller, you are dismissed for the moment.

The document which has been identified as coming from the files of Schroder Rockefeller & Co. by Mr. Fuller contains the following interesting paragraphs, and this is the purpose for which I wanted it identified so I might discuss it with you. I read to you from the last page of this memorandum dated May 18, 1928, entitled "Standard Gas and Electric Company, American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc. Middle West Utilities Company (combined with National Electric Power Company)" which the committee will recall are the same three companies that are referred to in a previous memorandum prepared and identified as having been prepared by Mr. Emanuel. [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1971"]:

Notwithstanding the fact that the entire transaction might be financed out for $137,000,000, provided we could purchase the controls above outlined, I agree with Captain Loewenstein that it would be good policy for us to have some amount of actual cash in the equity.

Nowhere in this memorandum have I discussed the many advantages that would inure to the bankers in this situation. I have thought this was too apparent to make any comment; it is sufficient to say, however, that they would be assured of an immense amount of prime public utility securities each year that would be purchased from friendly hands, and that their position in the situation would be even more attractive than that of the operators.

Do you recall having written those two paragraphs?

Mr. EMANUEL. I do not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. It is certainly apparent, however, from the language of those two paragraphs that only a person who knew of this long-range program that you and Captain Loewenstein were planning could possibly have written that statement; is that a fair inference?

Mr. EMANUEL. Perhaps somebody had talked to me, but Captain Loewenstein, as I recall it, was never a part of that program. I probably sent him the letter that you asked me to identify, but he definitely was not interested.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. In other words, as it was set forth in this memorandum from which I have read, and in the memorandum of conversation and agreement between yourself and the late Captain Loewenstein, the public was to really finance this acquisition to the extent of $137,000,000, and you and your associates would obtain all the advantages which would accrue to the bankers "from purchasing prime securities from friendly hands" was the phrase, and by that I take it at noncompetitive prices. Is that the general gist of the situation?

Mr. EMANUEL. That might have been my idea at the time. As I have to say again, I don't believe I ever received a reply from Captain Loewenstein to that letter I sent him, and I think it was always in my own mind that we would have an equity in the properties. I think I was merely pointing out that if they could be purchased at that price it might be possible to raise most of the money.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As it says in the statement from which I have previously read, "I," whether that is you or some other person, "agree with Captain Loewenstein that it would be a good policy for us to have some amount of actual cash in the equity."

Mr. EMANUEL. I think that was always the idea. I think, in this letter I read, it said something about that.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. To proceed with this program, Mr. Emanuel, did you not induce the London banking house of J. Henry Schroder & Co., and its American affiliate J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, to join hands with you in effecting the program?

Mr. EMANUEL. As I recall it, they had nothing to do with it. I knew that J. Henry Schroder & Co. in London had a relationship with the late Captain Loewenstein.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Let me see if I understand the record at the present moment. Are you contending that you never had anything further to do with carrying out this understanding that you reached with Loewenstein?

Mr. EMANUEL. As I recall it, he died in July of 1928, and he was succeeded by a man by the name of Fisher and I might have discussed it with Fisher subsequent to that, but I think by the fall of that year, I didn't discuss it any further because, as I recall it, he wasn't interested either.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You don't recall at this time, Mr. Emanuel, that you spent three or four years of your life in an endeavor to effectuate this program?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; I do not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Then we will go along with the evidence and that will recall it to you.

When I say "effectuate the program," I had in mind of course the concentration of activity on Standard Gas, on the acquiring of control of Standard Gas System which was a sizeable operation in itself.

Mr. EMANUEL. Well, after Captain Loewenstein died and Mr. Fisher came in the picture—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). He was the agent of the late Captain Loewenstein, was he not, at that time?

Mr. EMANUEL. He was an employee of his, and he succeeded him as, I think, managing director of the Hydro Company.

I don't think, in fact I am quite sure, that after the fall of that year, the year of Captain Loewenstein's death, that we never contemplated getting control, as you call it, of Standard Gas & Electric Company.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You never contemplated obtaining control?

Mr. EMANUEL. That is my best recollection. We did have some securities in the company, a large block of common stock, and I think we did ask for representation and we also asked for the retirement of the million shares of $1 stock, and we asked that the Philadelphia Company go directly into the Standard Gas & Electric Company. It was divided at that time between Standard Gas and Standard Power. But I don't think we ever asked for control, if you mean by control actually running the system.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall at this time that Loewenstein's interests were represented by the Hydro Electric Securities Corporation, a Belgian Corporation domiciled in Canada?

Mr. EMANUEL. I think that is correct.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And do you recall that that corporation joined you in effectuating the program?

Mr. EMANUEL. Well, again it comes around to what you mean by program. They had a very substantial stock interest in Standard Gas which they had considerably before the time I met Captain Loewenstein, at least I was so informed. And I think my first acquisition of Standard Gas stock personally was in 1927 to '28—'28, I think, the end of that year, and I conferred with Fisher about especially this million shares of preferred stock and the Philadelphia Company, and a few other points we had in mind, and we did cooperate in regard to that.

LEGAL MOVES AGAINST STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CO.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall, Mr. Emanuel, at this time planning out the first of a series of tactical moves, legal and otherwise, for acquiring control of the Standard Gas properties?

Mr. EMANUEL. If what you mean by "moves" is a mandamus action we had, and also a demand on the directors; they weren't for the purpose at the time of acquiring control. We had dropped that idea.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did you bring the mandamus suit?

Mr. EMANUEL. I don't believe I brought it directly, but the people in my office, I think Mr. Skillman, and a few other stockholders—

Mr. NEHEMKIS (interposing). That you rounded up?

Mr. EMANUEL. I can't remember that far back.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did they come to you voluntarily or did you go out and produce them?

Mr. EMANUEL. What I am trying to recall—I am trying to remember whether Hydro was a part of that action or not. I think it was primarily brought by me.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And what was your purpose in bringing this mandamus proceeding?

Mr. EMANUEL. As I recall it, in order to ascertain some information we didn't have.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. And that was the only way you could get it?

Mr. EMANUEL. It seemed to be the only way at the time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall being instrumental in organizing other legal proceedings?

Mr. EMANUEL. I don't think there was any other, except perhaps a communication to the directors asking for information.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Fuller, will you be good enough to take the stand, please.

TESTIMONY OF CARLTON P. FULLER—Resumed

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Fuller, I show you a document which purports to come from the files of Schroder, Rockefeller & Co., Inc., dated May 16, 1929. Will you tell me whether you recognize this as a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody, and be good enough also to glance at the top of this memorandum and tell me whether the initials that appear there are not your initials? I do not intend to examine you on this document. I merely ask that you identify it for the purposes indicated. Are those your initials?

Mr. FULLER. Those are my initials.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. That is a true and correct copy of an original in your possession and custody?

Mr. FULLER. I assume so, I haven't seen the original for a long time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Emanuel, I read to you from this memorandum under date of May 16, 1929, headed "Standard Gas & Electric Company." [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1933"]:

A letter on present status for London:

1.) Our cable No. 361 of April 12th outlined the possibility of litigation in which we did not desire to become involved and their reply No. 183 of April 13th agreed with this attitude and suggested that Harrison Williams and Electric Shareholdings press the attack. No communication with London has taken place since, but the following events have occurred:

2.) G. Reginald Schumann as nominee for Hydro-Electric signed a letter addressed to Standard Gas & Electric in conjunction with other stockholders demanding access to the books. This demand was refused.

3.) Emanuel's next step was to collect proxies for the annual meeting of Standard Gas, which was held May 15th. He procured 217,000 shares which were voted against Byllesby's nominations for directors.

4.) Schumann signed a proxy for Hydro-Electric stock in his name and in favour of Emanuel's men upon cable authorization from Fisher.

5.) Emanuel now asks Schumann as nominee to sign two further letters: a) a letter to Siegbert¹ & Riggs, authorizing them to represent the stock in his name in legal proceedings against Standard Gas b) a letter to Standard Gas & Electric Company in complete legal detail demanding access to their books and setting forth the reasons for such demand, presumably to be submitted to the court upon another refusal of the Standard Gas. Fisher has cabled special authorization to Schumann to sign the letter to Siegbert¹ & Riggs under a) above.

¹ So in original.

Mr. A. Dulles—

That I presume is Mr. Allen Dulles, of Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell. Do I hear any agreement on that from either of the witnesses?

Mr. FULLER. Yes.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1933"]:

Mr. A. Dulles states that there is no possibility of Schrobanco—

Schrobanco being the New York affiliate of J. Henry Schroder of London?

Mr. FULLER. That is the cable address of J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation which is the New York office of the London house.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1933"]:

* * * that there is no possibility of Schrobanco being drawn into these proceedings officially. It is of course possible that in the course of the trial some lawyer might refer to Schumann as employee of Schrobanco, and it is quite probable that our close relations to Fisher and Hydro Electric and Loewenstein will tend to identify us in the public mind with the litigation. Incidentally, Mr. Dulles says that this case, if it comes to trial, will be followed with the closest interest by all lawyers and will doubtless be one of the outstanding cases of the year, since it will make law on this particular subject.

However, Mr. Emanuel, that was not your interest in bringing this series of legal moves, was it?

Mr. EMANUEL. To make law? No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1933"]:

Emanuel has sent Fisher rather complete details which London might ask Fisher to show them.

I offer in evidence the document identified by Mr. Fuller from which I have been reading.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It may be received.

(The memorandum referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1933" and is included in the appendix on p. 12870.)

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Emanuel, do you now wish to change your testimony, or has your recollection been refreshed? Were you not at that time planning a series of legal moves? Were you not actively engaged¹ in a series of tactics to obtain control of the Standard Gas System?

Mr. EMANUEL. I was not. I was trying to obtain information.

Mr. HENDERSON. Trying to obtain information for information's own sweet sake?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; we wanted to get representation on the board, not control, and we wanted to get the 1,000,000 shares of $1 preferred stock retired. We wanted to get the Philadelphia Company back entirely in Standard Gas & Electric Company, as I recall it now.

Mr. HENDERSON. Who had control at this time?

Mr. EMANUEL. Well, I don't think anyone had 51 percent, but the practical control we construed to be in the hands at that particular time of H. M. Bylesby and Company.

Mr. HENDERSON. In order to achieve what you wanted, you had to supersede the existing nominal control, did you not?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; not necessarily. What we wanted to do was to get them to agree to these things.

Mr. HENDERSON. You are making some kind of a distinction on "control" in your own mind; is that it?

¹ So in original.

Mr. EMANUEL. Yes, sir. By control I mean where you actually control the company; you have the power of initiation in its management; you really run it.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Was not the purpose of these series of legal moves and other moves really to change positions with Byllesby, remove them from their then position in relation to the affairs of the company?

Mr. EMANUEL. No; I don't think it was.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Fuller, will you be good enough to examine a cable from the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, dated October 15, 1928, and tell me whether you recognize this as a true copy of an original in your possession. For the sake of the record this is a cable sent to London, J. Henry Schroder & Co. I do not intend to examine you, sir, on the contents of that document. You are being asked to identify it.

Mr. FULLER. That seems to be a photostat of a cable.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I read from the cable identified by the witness, dated October 15, 1928. Cable from Schrobanco to Schrodpriv—that is the cable address of the London house, Schrodpriv [reading from "Exhibit No. 1934"]:

Emanuel is seeing O'Brien again next week and proposes to alter his tactics telling him we have increased our holdings and have intention of further increasing (stop)

Also that we are not anxious to buy his preferred stock as we doubt validity and fear public enquiry (stop)

In view of O'Brien's fears, Emanuel feels we can obtain representation on board and interest in finance as large shareholders and have such a nuisance value as critics of all Byllesby operations as to make preferred stock of little value to them (stop)

Plan is to force O'Brien to join Emanuel and ourselves in all financial operations of Standard Gas and between us gradually obtain real control of common stock instead of trick control as now held by Byllesby (stop)

Mr. Emanuel, do you recall what you had in mind by the reference to the phrase "trick control"?

Mr. EMANUEL. I suppose I meant unusual control due to the fact that one million shares had one voted share with a par value of only one dollar.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you have in mind that this is an unusual means of control, for one dollar of preferred stock to exercise as against the equity interest? Is that what you had in mind?

Mr. EMANUEL. I think that is right, sir.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Continuing with the cable from Schrobanco to Schrodpriv. [Reading further from "Exhibit No. 1934"]:

If O'Brien inclined to cooperate on these lines corporation would be formed along lines described in my notes mailed to Baron into which Emanuel and Hydro would place all their Standard Gas common and O'Brien would place his preferred stock and some Byllesby stock in exchange for common stock of corporation for amounts to be agreed (stop)

The Baron referred to there, Mr. Emanuel, is Baron Schroder, of London?

Mr. EMANUEL. I did not write that, but I presume that is who it means.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall who the Baron was?

Mr. FULLER. I assume so.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Head of the London house?

Mr. FULLER. Head of the London firm.

Mr. HENDERSON. Is he still alive?

Mr. FULLER. Yes.

Mr. HENDERSON. Where is he located now?

Mr. FULLER. London; he always has been in London in his business control.

Mr. NEHEMKIS [reading further from "Exhibit No. 1934"]:

This corporation would proceed to acquire real control and finance its operations by means of bank borrowing followed by issues of stock and bonds STOP
Next steps contemplate very important mergers of companies known to Fisher STOP

Mr. Emanuel, were there not at this time taking place a series of steps, moves, and plans, all parts of a carefully formulated design for ousting Byllesby from its position in the Standard Gas system, and substituting in place thereof the interests represented by the late Captain Alfred Loewenstein and the interest represented by Mr. Victor Emanuel?

Mr. EMANUEL. I can't recall that that is the case; no. I don't think that I had in mind, as near as I can recall it, ousting Byllesby.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Did this cable sent by Schroder Banking Corporation, which has been identified by witness Fuller, to Schroderpriv in London, misrepresent your notions at the time it was sent, namely October 15, 1938?

Mr. EMANUEL. I don't think it entirely reflected my notions, if you mean by that that I was in favor of ousting Byllesby from Standard Gas. I was in favor of getting just what I testified before.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document will speak for itself, may it please the committee.

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. The exhibit may be received.

(The cable referred to was marked "Exhibit No. 1934" and is included in the appendix on p. 12871.)

Mr. HENDERSON. I wanted to ask a direct question. One clause of the telegram says, "This corporation would proceed to acquire real control."

Mr. EMANUEL. I meant by that control through the regular common stock, and not through the one dollar preferred stock.

Mr. HENDERSON. Then you did have some idea of acquiring real control?

Mr. EMANUEL. Well, evidently what that cable tried to express—it has been many years ago, and I can't recall everything that happened then—was an idea to put into a new company these securities held by Loewenstein and myself and my associate, and have control of the company evidenced through its regular common stock, and not though the $1 preferred stock.

Mr. HENDERSON. But who would have that real control?

Mr. EMANUEL. What was the date of that?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. October 15, 1928.

Mr. EMANUEL. I think that in my own mind was that the corporation would but Byllesby would continue operating the properties.

Mr. HENDERSON. But the real control on an equity basis would lodge with your group, would it not, assuming you got this group together?

Mr. EMANUEL. That I can't say, because it all depended on how much common stock Byllesby would receive in the new corporation for their new securities and if they wanted to buy any more or not.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Before proceeding so the record may be clear, is that now in evidence?

Acting Chairman WILLIAMS. It may be admitted.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. The document is signed by Frank, Mr. Fuller; that is Mr. Frank Common, president of Hydroelectric?

Mr. FULLER. My recollection is Mr. Frank Tiarks, a partner in our London firm, who was probably here at that time.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. You said a moment ago that Baron Schroder was head of the London house. Does the London house of J. Henry Schroder have other banking connections on the Continent?

Mr. FULLER. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does it have any in Germany?

Mr. FULLER. No.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Does the Baron spend part of his time in Germany, Munich?

Mr. FULLER. No; except for vacation.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. For the sake of identifying the figure, is that the same Baron Schroder whose name appeared in the press some time ago in connection with activities in Germany?

Mr. FULLER. No; not that I know of.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Not the same Baron Schroder?

Mr. FULLER. No. The Schroder family in Germany, and, of course, the Schroder family in England has many relatives there, but the English firm has been in England since 1804 and have never had any branch in Germany that I know of.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I was wondering—this is Baron Bruno Schroder?

Mr. FULLER. That is right.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Isn't it Baron Bruno Schroder who was the man instrumental in introducing Chancellor Hitler to the industrialists in Germany?

Mr. FULLER. No; he is not. I believe he is a member of the family but certainly not a member of the firm in London, and had no connection with them.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. I was anxious to see if we had the same people here.

Mr. FULLER. I show you a copy of a cable from Fisher to Loewenstol—I presume that is a cable name—Brussels—

Mr. FULLER (interposing). As I recall.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. As of October 19, 1929, and which purports to bear your initials in the upper right corner. Will you be good enough to tell me whether or not this is a true copy of an original in your possession and custody and whether or not in fact those are your initials?

Mr. FULLER. It seems to me to be a true copy.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Were not the international and domestic banking forces marshalled against Byllesby too great, Mr. Emanuel, and did not Byllesby finally capitulate to you and your associates?

Mr. EMANUEL. The only international, so-called international, firm that had any stock interest in this was Hydro, as far as I knew.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. A Belgian corporation domiciled in Canada?

Mr. EMANUEL. That is right, domiciled in Canada. I think what eventuated was that some time in 1929—I can't just offhand fix the date, but it was after this mandamus proceeding which hadn't come up to any court hearing, and after the demand on the directors for access to the books and records had been refused, that as I recall it, a Mr. Gray, I think it was, a firm called Ward and Gray, Wilmington, who I believe were counsel for Standard Gas in Wilmington, talked to Mr. Riggs, who was my attorney, and suggested that we have a meeting about this matter and that eventually resulted in the reorganization of Standard Gas and Standard Power in early 1930.

GENERAL SETTLEMENT BETWEEN USEP'CO AND STANDARD POWER & LIGHT CO.—RESUMED

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Do you recall whether as a result of the series of events which have been described in documents offered in evidence that Byllesby agreed to give you and your associates 50-percent control of the Standard Gas system?

Mr. EMANUEL. What happened was that it was sort of a complicated transaction. The group I represented got a minority of the directors of Standard Gas and a majority of the directors of Standard Power. However, the majority of directors of Standard Gas, of course, had a majority of that company and the Byllesby Engineering & Management Corporation, as it was then called, continued to operate the properties and have all power of initiative concerning their management. We had certain veto powers as to certain major actions that could not be done without the consent of three-quarters in number of the board of directors of Standard Gas & Electric Co. Those matters involved principal items like buying or selling properties or mergers or consolidations, reorganizations, and things of that nature. Also, as a result of that, $1,000,000 of preferred stock was retired, and the Philadelphia Co. went entirely into the Standard Gas & Electric Co.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Fuller, you said that Loewenstol was probably a cable name. Is that a cable name for certain directors who were part of the European group?

Mr. FULLER. Does it give a city?

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Yes, Brussels.

Mr. FULLER. I assume that was Hydro, Brussels office.

Mr. NEHEMKIS. Mr. Emanuel, I should like to call your attention to the following, which is a cable from Fisher, then representing the Loewenstein interests, to some of the Belgian directors of Hydro-Electric, as follows [Reading from "Exhibit No. 1935"]:

Subject to our counsel and Byllesby's counsel coming to terms between them upon language of series of written agreements embodying undermentioned settlement we have settled with Stand Gas board after long and exhaustive negotiations on following conditions: Firstly Byllesby surrender their own million preferred for cancellation. Secondly Stand Gas board equally divided our group appoints chairman company and chairman finance committee Byllesby keep presidency.

Continuing the cable,

Will explain to you on my return by what series of transactions this new company becomes possessed of half all Stand Gas common outstanding. It will therefore own control Stand Gas. * * *

This gives us full power protect our investment and means our cooperation necessary for everything material.

My associate calls my attention to one other provision that I should read to you, Mr. Emanuel:

Sixthly, our group receives 75 percent of banking which means issuance new securities to provide for annual growth parent company and subsidiaries totaling thirty to sixty million dollars. Seventhly, when steps to accomplish above completed we withdraw our legal action (stop) Emanuel has borne largest share work and deserves great credit. Please communicate above confidentially Fabri Baron Schroeder.

Mr. Emanuel, as a result of this series of operations which had been formulated and planned by you and your associates in cooperation with the international banking firm of J. Henry Schroder & Co., and the domestic forces that had been marshalled and against Byllesby, it is fair to recapitulate, is it not, that Byllesby completely capitulated to you and your associates that Byllesby agreed to give you and your associates 50 percent control over the Standard Gas System, in fact, the battle had been won?

Mr. EMANUEL. Well, we carried our main point about the retirement of the million shares of preferred stock and the putting of Philadelphia Company into Standard Gas and had gotten representation on the board, which we thought our interests deserved. However, I didn't send that cablegram. We never got the chairmanship of Standard Gas or any office of Standard Gas. We had a minority representation on the board, and as I explained, due to the bylaws of Standard Gas, or charter, I don't know which it was, I suppose the charter, on certain major things it took three-quarters of the board to agree before that could be done. It was more in the nature of a right to pass on those major things. We had no power of initiation whatsoever.

