

Prof. Duncan Hall Has Interesting Biography

Biographical material concerning Prof. H. Duncan Hall, formerly of the League of Nations Secretariat, who will speak in Ann Arbor at 4:15 Monday afternoon in the Rackham lecture hall, reads almost like the itinerary of a veteran globe trotter.

Prof. Hall is noted as an author, publicist, and university professor in addition to his high rank in the League of Nations. He received his training in several universities, including Sydney and Oxford, and has travelled and lectured in a number of countries.

His book "The British Commonwealth of Nations" was published in 1920 and summed up the past development and forecast the main lines of future development. It received such popularity that it was reprinted in the London Times and he was asked by the World Peace Foundation in 1927 to collaborate with President A. Lawrence Lowell in a publication on the same title in 1927.

In 1925 Prof. Hall was leader of the Australian delegation at the Institute of Pacific Relations and attended its conferences again in 1927 and 1939. After a year as professor of international affairs in the United States, including the Williamstown Institute of Politics and the Harris Institute, he was appointed in 1927 a high official of the League of Nations and for the next 12 years filled important posts in the Secretariat at Geneva. He played a leading part in the building up of the world system of control over dangerous drugs and wrote the League's official commentary on this subject.

In the last four years Prof. Hall was in charge of League broadcasting and films and of liaison with the British Dominions. He served as visiting professor at Harvard University in 1940.

Prof. Hall's speech Monday will be on the topic "The Dilemma of Democracy."

SPEAKS MONDAY: H. Duncan Hall, formerly of the League of Nations Secretariat, will appear Monday before students in the University graduate study program on "Public Policy in a World at War" which is entering its final week of lectures. Mr. Hall will address the group on "The Dilemma of Democracy" at 4:15 in the Rackham lecture hall.

[Editor. (Aug. 09, 1941).

Prof. Duncan Hall Has Interesting Biography,
Institute of Pacific Relations.
The Ann Arbor News.

Reproduced for educational purposes only. Fair Use relied upon. Source: https://aadl.org/aa_news_19410809-prof_duncan_hall]

Editor. (Aug. 09, 1941). Prof. Duncan Hall Has Interesting Biography. The Ann Arbor News. Reproduced for educational purposes only. Fair Use relied upon. Source: https://aadl.org/aa_news_19410809-prof_duncan_hall

TRANSCRIPTION

Duncan Hall Has Interesting Biography

Biographical material concerning Prof. H. Duncan Hall, formerly of the League of Nations Secretariat, who will speak in Ann Arbor at 4:15 Monday afternoon: in the Rackham lecture hall, reads almost like the itinerary of a veteran globe trotter.

Prof. Hall is noted as an author, publicist, and university professor in addition to his high rank in the League of Nations. He received his training in several universities, including Sydney and Oxford, and has travelled and lectured in a number of countries.

His book "The British Commonwealth of Nations" was published in 1920 and summed up the past development and forecast the main lines of future development. It received such popularity that it was reprinted in the London Times and he was asked by the World Peace Foundation in 1927 to collaborate with President A. Lawrence Lowell in a publication on the same title in 1927.

In 1925 Prof. Hall was leader of the Australian delegation at the Institute of Pacific Relations and attended its conferences again in 1927 and 1939. After a year as professor of international affairs in the United States, including the Williamstown Institute of Politics and the Harris Institute, he was appointed in 1927 a high official of the League of Nations and for the next 12 years filled important posts in the Secretariat at Geneva. He played a leading part in the building up of the world system of control over dangerous drugs and wrote the League's official commentary on this subject.

In the last four years Prof. Hall was in charge of League broadcasting and films and of liaison with the British Dominions. He served as visiting professor at Harvard University in 1940.

Prof. Hall's speech Monday will be on the topic "The Dilemma of Democracy."

SPEAKS MONDAY: H: Duncan. Hall, formerly of the League of Nations Secretariat, will appear Monday before students in the University graduate study program on "Public Policy in a World at War" which is entering its final week of lectures. Mr. Hall will address the group on "The Dilemma of Democracy" at 4:15 in the Rackham lecture hall.