FOREIGN POLICY FOR A POST-WAR RECOVERY PROGRAM 689

That in aiding nations who seek reconstruction in cooperation with each other and with us, we should found our assistance on the basic principles of human dignity and on a wise understanding of national differences, and should not attempt to impose our own particular ways of working toward the common end.

That in carrying out our aid program we should bear constantly in mind that our goal is the establishment of a world where stable economic conditions will allow peace and prosperity to flourish.

That in this joint task of European reconstruction the fullest feasible use should be made of the United Nations and its associated agencies.

And the committee also believes that to accept these principles is not enough. We, here in America, must also work for our beliefs. A committee on paper is a mere exercise; a committee in action can be a national force.

The committee already has begun to work. The members of the national council throughout the country are lending their support, and with the executive committee, whose chairman is Robert P. Patterson, we are engaged in presenting the issues to the American people so that they may understand the questions and provide their answers to the challenge.

The committee is distributing printed material, arranging for speakers, and working with other existing organizations for an increasing attention to the Marshall plan and support of its legitimate objectives. A petition to the Congress is being circulated calling for legislation to provide a sound and adequate program, in the light of Secretary Marshall's proposal, to aid European recovery.

But even this is not enough. Each of the members of the committee will also have to stir the minds of people in his own community and work for the achievement of an understanding deep enough to give the Marshall plan so firm a support that we will all "Think of our prosperity, our policy and our first principles as indivisibly connected with the facts of life everywhere."

Mr. ACHESON. That is significant because it shows the profound conviction of the great majority of Americans that American aid for European recovery is necessary. American aid is necessary not as an instinctive response, or not merely as an instinctive response to suffering abroad; it is necessary because our life and the peace and freedom on which our life depends are intimately interwoven with European recovery.

In the world which confronts us in 1948, the European recovery program is the front line of American security. When I was a boy my elders used to say the Navy was our first line of defense. We have learned in the last quarter century that vital as is the role of our military establishments, or of international military forces, our security and freedom depend in the first instance upon the actions of other nations and other peoples. These actions may gravely prejudice our security or greatly strengthen it. These actions are often forced by conditions largely or entirely beyond the control of the nations and people who take them—such as the ability to produce enough to live on. The course which the people of western Europe must take in the next 4 years is the most important decision affecting our national safety which is still open in the world today. The elemental necessity of the situation dictates that it should be a course which both they and we want.

They and we want them independent of outside dictation and of inside dictatorship, self-supporting and healthy in their individual and national lives. Our own safety is immeasurably increased if this is so. It is immeasurably weakened if any of them are weakened and is so. It is immeasurably weakened if any of them are weakened and fall by internal action or external pressure, or both, into the closed police, military and economic system which already stretches from the Elbe to the Pacific. It can happen. It has happened to others.

At the end of the war we thought that everyone believed that enduring peace and economic recovery from the war was most assured by political settlement and economic programs which were firmly founded on agreement between the great powers. The United Nations would, it was planned, go forward from this start on the basis of principle and organization which would bring to the settlement of international questions the conscience of mankind and the justice of laws and procedures which dealt equally with the strong and the weak.

It is now plain that the Soviet Union does not intend to join in the task of political settlement or economic recovery on any basis which the other powers, or any nation wishing to maintain its own integrity, can accept. On the contrary the Soviet Union is doing its utmost to prevent recovery in Europe. The years of delay and obstruction have

A BILL To provide means for financing United States programs of foreign aid and to create agencies to carry out such programs

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Emergency Foreign Reconstruction Act, 1948".

PART I—GENERAL PROGRAM

OBJECTIVES

SEC. 10. (a) It is essential to the future security and well-being of the United States that foreign countries which are themselves striving to rehabilitate and reconstruct their war-devastated economies but need assistance to achieve success in their efforts, be extended such assistance. It is the policy of the United States to act effectively in this regard under programs designed to achieve the following objectives without causing undue strain to the economy of the United States:

(1) Continuous application on the part of recipient countries, individually and jointly, of vigorous efforts directed to increasing the production of food and materials needed to meet not only their own essential internal needs but the needs of other countries as well, so that their deficits in essential commodities, articles, and materials will progressively decrease and their requirements from abroad be limited to a minimum consistent with sound economic balance.

(2) Continuous mutual help and cooperation among recipient countries directed to facilitating the economic interchange of goods and services among themselves, providing effective distribution and use of their own resources as well as of the resources received from abroad, and working toward the elimination of exchange controls, quota restrictions, and other obstacles to trade.

(3) The recognition by countries, other than the United States, which are in a position to supplement a program of aid, have the same incentive as the United States to do so, and enjoy access to United States supplies, of the desirability of cooperating in such program, each in relation to its ability to do so.

(4) Encouragement of private initiative to assume, as conditions permit, the emergency activities which have devolved on governments as a result of the economic devastation caused by the war.

In connection with and in furtherance of such purposes and objects, the Authority shall have the power—

The character of the consideration shall be that which the Authority deems to be the best obtainable in the light of the economic situation of the foreign country concerned, the relationship of the goods being furnished to the over-all plan of reconstruction and rehabilitation, and the objectives set forth in section 10 of this Act.

(b) To the extent that the Authority determines that securing consideration in United States currency, or in obligations payable in United States currency, is not feasible in the light of the factors set forth in subsection (a), the Authority may accept (1) local currency of the foreign country, (2) currencies of foreign countries other than the recipient country, (3) other consideration that has or will have a readily determinable market value, or (4) any combination of the foregoing, but consideration in the form of currencies of foreign countries other than the recipient country may not exceed 25 per centum of the value of the total consideration received. (c) Each local reconstruction fund shall be administered and utilized for the purpose of contributing to the rapid recovery of economic stability in the foreign country concerned and of developing new sources of wealth therein. (d) The powers in respect of the administration and use of any local reconstruction fund in any foreign country shall be subject to the following limitations:

(1) Such powers shall be exercised so far as practicable to avoid exercising control over the management or operation of any enterprise or project in which sums in such fund may be invested.

SEC. 30. (a) Section 4 of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 is amended—

(1) by striking out "$1,000,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$825,000,000"; and

(2) by striking out "$825,000,000".

(b) The second sentence of section 2 (a) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 is amended to read as follows: "The objects and purposes of the bank shall be (1) to aid in the financing and to facilitate exports and imports and the exchange of commodities between the United States or any of its Territories or insular possessions and any foreign country or the agencies or nationals thereof, and (2) to facilitate United States programs of aid to foreign countries in connection with the rehabilitation and reconstruction of their war-devastated economies by the strengthening of the national defense", as amended, is amended by striking out "February 29, 1948" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1949".

(b) The powers, functions, and duties of the Secretary of Commerce under section 6 of the Second Decontrol Act of 1947 are hereby transferred to the Executive Director of the Foreign Aid Council. Such transfer shall take effect sixty days after the date on which the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Emergency Foreign Reconstruction Authority first appointed under this Act qualifies and takes office.

Mr. JARMAN. Mr. Chairman, this is an all-important matter, a matter pertaining to which, as I understand it, the President will send a message to the Congress today or tomorrow.

I do not believe, in the first place, as I indicated by my vote, that such a matter should be taken up at the shank of the session when everybody is in a hurry to go home; further, I do not believe that such an important matter should be taken up without a quorum, and, therefore, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

Mr. VOYTS. Mr. Chairman, there are two actions that the committee can take. One is to adjourn and the other is to send the sergeant at arms for the absent members.

I ask the chairman to send the sergeant at arms for the absent members.

Mr. MUNDT. I second the motion, Mr. Chairman. This is a very important matter. We have dilly-dallied long enough.

Mr. JARMAN. I would suggest that is too important to dilly-dally on at this stage of the game, after you have tweedledeed and tweedledummed for 2 or 3 weeks on another matter.

Chairman EATON. If Mr. Crawford will act as the sergeant at arms we will ask him to go for the absent members.

I may say to our distinguished witness this morning that this committee has been under terrific and continuous strain for 36 days without a let-up. We are tired. I imagine that is why some of the members are not here this morning.

Mr. JARMAN. I thoroughly agree with the chairman and I want the witness to understand that the absence of the members and my point of order is not the least bit personal to him.

We will adjourn tomorrow or the next day and I don't think this is the time to take up such an important matter.

Chairman EATON. Off the record.

(Discussion off the record.)

Chairman EATON. The committee will be in order. A quorum is present.

Our first witness is the distinguished member of the House, Mr. Herter, who will address us on the subject of H. R. 4579.

FOREIGN POLICY FOR A POST-WAR RECOVERY PROGRAM 689

That in aiding nations who seek reconstruction in cooperation with each other and with us, we should found our assistance on the basic principles of human dignity and on a wise understanding of national differences, and should not attempt to impose our own particular ways of working toward the common end.

That in carrying out our aid program we should bear constantly in mind that our goal is the establishment of a world where stable economic conditions will allow peace and prosperity to flourish.

That in this joint task of European reconstruction the fullest feasible use should be made of the United Nations and its associated agencies.

And the committee also believes that to accept these principles is not enough. We, here in America, must also work for our beliefs. A committee on paper is a mere exercise; a committee in action can be a national force.

The committee already has begun to work. The members of the national council throughout the country are lending their support, and with the executive committee, whose chairman is Robert P. Patterson, we are engaged in presenting the issues to the American people so that they may understand the questions and provide their answers to the challenge.

The committee is distributing printed material, arranging for speakers, and working with other existing organizations for an increasing attention to the Marshall plan and support of its legitimate objectives. A petition to the Congress is being circulated calling for legislation to provide a sound and adequate program, in the light of Secretary Marshall's proposal, to aid European recovery.

But even this is not enough. Each of the members of the committee will also have to stir the minds of people in his own community and work for the achievement of an understanding deep enough to give the Marshall plan so firm a support that we will all "Think of our prosperity, our policy and our first principles as indivisibly connected with the facts of life everywhere."

Mr. ACHESON. That is significant because it shows the profound conviction of the great majority of Americans that American aid for European recovery is necessary. American aid is necessary not as an instinctive response, or not merely as an instinctive response to suffering abroad; it is necessary because our life and the peace and freedom on which our life depends are intimately interwoven with European recovery.

In the world which confronts us in 1948, the European recovery program is the front line of American security. When I was a boy my elders used to say the Navy was our first line of defense. We have learned in the last quarter century that vital as is the role of our military establishments, or of international military forces, our security and freedom depend in the first instance upon the actions of other nations and other peoples. These actions may gravely prejudice our security or greatly strengthen it. These actions are often forced by conditions largely or entirely beyond the control of the nations and people who take them—such as the ability to produce enough to live on. The course which the people of western Europe must take in the next 4 years is the most important decision affecting our national safety which is still open in the world today. The elemental necessity of the situation dictates that it should be a course which both they and we want.

They and we want them independent of outside dictation and of inside dictatorship, self-supporting and healthy in their individual and national lives. Our own safety is immeasurably increased if this is so. It is immeasurably weakened if any of them are weakened and is so. It is immeasurably weakened if any of them are weakened and fall by internal action or external pressure, or both, into the closed police, military and economic system which already stretches from the Elbe to the Pacific. It can happen. It has happened to others.

At the end of the war we thought that everyone believed that enduring peace and economic recovery from the war was most assured by political settlement and economic programs which were firmly founded on agreement between the great powers. The United Nations would, it was planned, go forward from this start on the basis of principle and organization which would bring to the settlement of international questions the conscience of mankind and the justice of laws and procedures which dealt equally with the strong and the weak.

It is now plain that the Soviet Union does not intend to join in the task of political settlement or economic recovery on any basis which the other powers, or any nation wishing to maintain its own integrity, can accept. On the contrary the Soviet Union is doing its utmost to prevent recovery in Europe. The years of delay and obstruction have

(5) The adoption by recipient countries of fiscal, financial, and monetary programs designed to arrest inflation, to correct existing monetary weaknesses, to accomplish stabilization of exchanges, and generally to restore confidence in their currencies.

(6) The dissemination by recipient countries of full and continuous publicity regarding the purpose, source, character, and amounts of aid furnished by the United States, where such aid is not on the basis of commercial loans or normal commercial transactions.

(b) All agencies of the United States participating in the United States program of foreign aid (including United States representatives on international organizations) shall, in the exercise of their respective functions in this regard, be guided by the objectives set forth in this section.

FOREIGN AID COUNCIL

Sec. 11. (a) In order that facilities may exist to promote the maximum coordination possible in formulating, within the limits of available funds and subject to this Act, and in carrying out the foreign-aid programs of the United States by the various agencies of the United States participating in such programs, there is hereby created an interagency council to be known as the Foreign Aid Council (hereinafter called the "Council"), which shall consist of the Secretary of State (who shall be chairman), the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of National Defense, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Commerce, the directors of the Emergency Foreign Reconstruction Authority (hereinafter provided for), and the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Export-Import Bank of Washington.

(b) The Council shall from time to time (1) advise and consult with the President with respect to the establishment by him, within the limits of available funds and subject to this Act, of the programs of United States aid to foreign countries, and (2) advise and consult with the President in connection therewith.

A BILL To provide means for financing United States programs of foreign aid and to create agencies to carry out such programs

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Emergency Foreign Reconstruction Act, 1948".

PART I—GENERAL PROGRAM

OBJECTIVES

SEC. 10. (a) It is essential to the future security and well-being of the United States that foreign countries which are themselves striving to rehabilitate and reconstruct their war-devastated economies but need assistance to achieve success in their efforts, be extended such assistance. It is the policy of the United States to act effectively in this regard under programs designed to achieve the following objectives without causing undue strain to the economy of the United States:

(1) Continuous application on the part of recipient countries, individually and jointly, of vigorous efforts directed to increasing the production of food and materials needed to meet not only their own essential internal needs but the needs of other countries as well, so that their deficits in essential commodities, articles, and materials will progressively decrease and their requirements from abroad be limited to a minimum consistent with sound economic balance.

(2) Continuous mutual help and cooperation among recipient countries directed to facilitating the economic interchange of goods and services among themselves, providing effective distribution and use of their own resources as well as of the resources received from abroad, and working toward the elimination of exchange controls, quota restrictions, and other obstacles to trade.

(3) The recognition by countries, other than the United States, which are in a position to supplement a program of aid, have the same incentive as the United States to do so, and enjoy access to United States supplies, of the desirability of cooperating in such program, each in relation to its ability to do so.

(4) Encouragement of private initiative to assume, as conditions permit, the emergency activities which have devolved on governments as a result of the economic devastation caused by the war.

(4) to make contracts and acquire and dispose of property in its own name;

(5) to engage in foreign exchange transactions;

(6) to adopt, alter, and use a corporate seal, which shall be judicially noticed;

(7) to sue and be sued, and to complain and defend, in its own name in any court of competent jurisdiction in the United States or in any Territory or possession thereof;

(8) to employ and fix the compensation of such personnel as it deems necessary to further such purposes and objects and to dismiss any of such personnel at pleasure, without regard to laws relating to the employment and compensation of officers and employees of the United States, except that so far as practicable clerical and stenographic personnel shall be employed from lists of eligibles furnished by the Civil Service Commission and the compensation of such personnel fixed in accordance with the applicable and policies in connection therewith, and (4) advise and consult with its executive director (hereinafter provided for) regarding the execution of such programs and policies. The Council shall meet at least once in every calendar month.

(c) The chairman of the board of directors of the Emergency Foreign Reconstruction Authority (hereinafter provided for) shall be ex officio the executive director of the Council. As such he shall have the responsibility of (1) examining all of the various needs of foreign countries in connection with the rehabilitation and reconstruction of their war-devastated economies, (2) formulating for the consideration of the Council proposed programs of United States aid to such countries and proposed policies in connection therewith, and (3) providing for the efficient execution of any programs of foreign aid and policies in connection therewith by issuing, with the approval of the President and after advising and consulting with the Council, directives to the various departments and agencies participating in such programs. Every department or agency to which any such directive is issued shall, within the limits of the powers granted it by law, forthwith comply therewith.

(d) The Emergency Foreign Reconstruction Authority shall furnish the Council with a staff to assist the Council in the performance of its functions.

PART II—EMERGENCY BASIC REQUIREMENTS ASSISTANCE

EMERGENCY FOREIGN RECONSTRUCTION AUTHORITY

SEC. 20. (a) There is hereby created, as an independent agency of the United States, a corporation to be known as the Emergency Foreign Reconstruction Authority (hereinafter called the "Authority").

(b) The purposes and objects of the Authority shall be to assist the Foreign Aid Council and its executive director in the performance of their respective functions under section 10; to meet the emergency needs of foreign countries for food, fuel, and fertilizer required to enable them to achieve success in their efforts to rehabilitate and reconstruct their war-devastated economies; and to make available to such countries limited categories of consumer goods (other than food, fuel, and fertilizer) that will provide incentives to production and distribution therein, and limited quantities of agricultural, mining, and other productive machinery and equipment that is urgently required therein, where, in either case, such countries are unable to finance immediately the purchase of such goods, machinery, or equipment. In connection with and in furtherance of such purposes and objects, the Authority shall have the power—

(1) to determine, prescribe, and conclude the arrangements under which such commodities, articles, machinery, and equipment will be made available to any foreign country;

(c) The Board shall have power to prescribe, amend, and repeal bylaws, rules, and regulations (1) governing the manner in which the business of the Authority shall be conducted and its powers exercised, (2) defining the functions and duties and prescribing the compensation of the officers of the Authority, and (3) determining and prescribing the manner in which obligations of the Authority shall be incurred and its expenditures allowed and paid. The Board may require bonds of any officer of the Authority (other than the Chairman) and fix the penalties thereof, and may dismiss any officer or employee of the Authority (other than the Chairman) at pleasure.

(d) The officers of the Authority shall consist of the Chairman of the Board, not more than two vice presidents, a treasurer, a secretary, and such special officers and representatives as the Board may prescribe. The officers (other than the Chairman) shall be appointed by the Board.

compensation schedules in the Classification Act of 1923, as amended; and to contract for services;

(9) to create subsidiary corporations under the laws of foreign countries, where it is necessary or appropriate for the Authority to exercise its powers in foreign countries through subsidiary corporations created under the laws thereof; and

(10) generally to do all things necessary to the achievement of such purposes and objects, and the specification of particular powers in the foregoing paragraphs shall not in any manner limit the generality of the powers granted in this paragraph.

(c) The Authority shall not have any power to make loans payable in United States currency.

(d) The Authority shall have succession until January 1, 1954, whereupon all of its assets and liabilities shall vest in the Export-Import Bank of Washington, as liquidating agent, whose duty it shall be to wind up the affairs of the Authority as rapidly as possible consistently with orderly liquidation.

(e) The Authority shall be entitled to the free use of the United States mails in the same manner as the executive departments of the Government.

(f) Neither the Authority nor any of its functions, powers, or duties shall be transferred to or consolidated with any other department, agency, or corporation of the Government unless Congress shall hereafter otherwise by law provide.

Mr. JARMAN. Mr. Chairman, this is an all-important matter, a matter pertaining to which, as I understand it, the President will send a message to the Congress today or tomorrow.

I do not believe, in the first place, as I indicated by my vote, that such a matter should be taken up at the shank of the session when everybody is in a hurry to go home; further, I do not believe that such an important matter should be taken up without a quorum, and, therefore, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

Mr. VOYTS. Mr. Chairman, there are two actions that the committee can take. One is to adjourn and the other is to send the sergeant at arms for the absent members.

I ask the chairman to send the sergeant at arms for the absent members.

Mr. MUNDT. I second the motion, Mr. Chairman. This is a very important matter. We have dilly-dallied long enough.

Mr. JARMAN. I would suggest that is too important to dilly-dally on at this stage of the game, after you have tweedledee and tweedledummed for 2 or 3 weeks on another matter.

Chairman EATON. If Mr. Crawford will act as the sergeant at arms we will ask him to go for the absent members.

I may say to our distinguished witness this morning that this committee has been under terrific and continuous strain for 36 days without a let-up. We are tired. I imagine that is why some of the members are not here this morning.

Mr. JARMAN. I thoroughly agree with the chairman and I want the witness to understand that the absence of the members and my point of order is not the least bit personal to him.

We will adjourn tomorrow or the next day and I don't think this is the time to take up such an important matter.

Chairman EATON. Off the record.

(Discussion off the record.)

Chairman EATON. The committee will be in order. A quorum is present.

Our first witness is the distinguished member of the House, Mr. Herter, who will address us on the subject of H. R. 4579.
