

This is historical material, "frozen in time." The web site is no longer updated and links to external web sites and some internal pages will not work.

THE WHITE HOUSE
PRESIDENT GEORGE W. BUSH

Home > News & Policies > July 2001

Robert S. Mueller, III

On July 5, 2001 the President nominated Robert S. Mueller to be the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Recently, he served as the Acting Deputy Attorney General for the Department of Justice from January through May 2001. On October 7, 1999, Robert Mueller was confirmed by the Senate as the United States Attorney for the Northern District of California in San Francisco. Prior to joining the Northern District of California in 1998, Mr. Mueller was Chief of the Homicide Section of the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia where he had served since 1995 as Senior Litigation Counsel in the Homicide Section until assuming the position as Chief in 1997.

In 1990, Mr. Mueller was named Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Criminal Division of the U.S. Department of Justice by former President Bush and was responsible for developing and supervising the enforcement of federal criminal law. He supervised the Noriega and Gotti prosecutions, the Pan Am 103 investigation and helped develop the Justice Department's policies on corporate sentencing guidelines, computer crime investigations, and health care and money laundering prosecutions.

Prior to assuming the position of Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Mueller was an assistant to Attorney General Richard Thornburgh in the Department of Justice, and from 1986 to 1987 he served as United States Attorney for the District of Massachusetts.

Mr. Mueller has held various positions as a prosecutor and supervisor and has also had experience in the private practice of law.

Mr. Mueller served as an officer in the United States Marine Corps for three years, including one year in the Third Marine Division, Vietnam. He received the Bronze Star, two navy commendation Medals, the Purple Heart and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1966 from Princeton University and a Master's degree in International Studies from New York University. He received his Juris Doctor degree from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1973, where he served on the Law Review. He was born on August 7, 1944 and is married with two children. He currently resides in San Francisco, California.

History

Home • About Us • History • Directors, Then and Now • Robert S. Mueller, III

Robert S. Mueller, III

Director
September 4, 2001- September 4, 2013

Robert Mueller was nominated by President George W. Bush and became the sixth Director of the FBI on September 4, 2001.

Born in New York City, Mr. Mueller grew up outside of Philadelphia. He graduated from Princeton University in 1966 and later earned a master's degree in International Relations at New York University.

After college, he joined the United States Marine Corps, where he served as an officer for three years, leading a rifle platoon of the Third Marine Division in Vietnam. He is the recipient of the Bronze Star, two Navy Commendation Medals, the Purple Heart, and the Vietnamese

Cross of Gallantry.

Following his military service, Mr. Mueller earned a law degree from the University of Virginia Law School in 1973 and served on the Law Review.

After completing his education, Mr. Mueller worked as a litigator in San Francisco until 1976. He then served for 12 years in United States Attorney's Offices, first in the Northern District of California in San Francisco, where he rose to be chief of its criminal division. In 1982, he moved to Boston as an Assistant United States Attorney, where he investigated and prosecuted major financial fraud, terrorist, and public corruption cases, as well as narcotics conspiracies and international money launderers.

After serving as a partner at the Boston law firm of Hill and Barlow, Mr. Mueller returned to public service. In 1989 he served in the United States Department of Justice as an assistant to Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh. The following year he took charge of its Criminal Division. In 1991, he was elected Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers.

In 1993, Mr. Mueller became a partner at Boston's Hale and Dorr, specializing in complex white collar crime litigation. He again returned to public service in 1995 as senior litigator in the Homicide Section of the District of Columbia United States Attorney's Office. In 1998, Mr. Mueller was named United States Attorney in San Francisco and held that position until 2001.

Mr. Mueller and his wife, Ann, have two daughters.

- Extension of Director Mueller's Tenure
- End of an Era: Director Mueller Steps Down (includes video, photo gallery, accomplishments)

Directors, Then and Now

- James B. Comey, 2013-Present
- Robert S. Mueller, III, 2001-2013
- Thomas J. Pickard (acting), 2001
- Louis J. Freeh, 1993-2001
- Floyd I. Clarke (acting), 1993
- William S. Sessions, 1987-1993
- John E. Otto (acting), 1987
- William H. Webster, 1978-1987
- James B. Adams (acting), 1978
- Clarence M. Kelley, 1973-1978
- William D. Ruckelshaus (acting), 1973
- L. Patrick Gray (acting), 1972-1973
- J. Edgar Hoover, 1924-1972
- William J. Burns, 1921-1924
- William J. Flynn, 1919-1921
- William E. Allen (acting), 1919
- Alexander B. Bielaski, 1912-1919
- Stanley W. Finch, 1908-1912

The FBI Director: Background on the Position

Since its beginning in 1908, the FBI has been led by a single individual. At first called "Chief," this leader has been titled "Director" since the term of William Flynn (1919-1921). The FBI Director has answered directly to the attorney general since the 1920s. Under the Omnibus Crime Control Act and Safe Streets Act of 1968, Public Law 90-3351, the Director is appointed by the U.S. President and confirmed by the Senate. On October 15, 1976, in reaction to the extraordinary 48-year term of J. Edgar Hoover, Congress passed Public Law 94-503, limiting the FBI Director to a single term of no longer than 10 years. Details

Accessibility | eRulemaking | Freedom of Information Act | Legal Notices | Legal Policies and Disclaimers | Links | Privacy Policy | USA.gov | White House
FBI.gov is an official site of the U.S. government, U.S. Department of Justice

Close

FBI

HISTORY

A Brief History

Directors, Then And Now

Famous Cases & Criminals

Field Office Histories

Robert Mueller was nominated by President George W. Bush and became the sixth Director of the FBI on September 4, 2001.

Born in New York City, Mr. Mueller grew up outside of Philadelphia. He graduated from Princeton University in 1966 and later earned a master's degree in International Relations at New York University.

After college, he joined the United States Marine Corps, where he served as an officer for three years, leading a rifle platoon of the Third Marine Division in Vietnam. He is the recipient of the Bronze Star, two Navy Commendation Medals, the Purple Heart, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Following his military service, Mr. Mueller earned a law degree from the University of Virginia Law School in 1973 and served on the Law Review.

After completing his education, Mr. Mueller worked as a litigator in San Francisco until 1976. He then served for 12 years in United States Attorney's Offices, first in the Northern District of California in San Francisco, where he rose to be chief of its criminal division. In 1982, he moved to Boston as an Assistant United States Attorney, where he investigated and prosecuted major financial fraud, terrorist, and public corruption cases, as well as narcotics conspiracies and international money launderers.

After serving as a partner at the Boston law firm of Hill and Barlow, Mr. Mueller returned to public service. In 1989 he served in the United States Department of Justice as an assistant to Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh. The following year he took charge of its Criminal Division. In 1991, he was elected Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers.

In 1993, Mr. Mueller became a partner at Boston's Hale and Dorr, specializing in complex white collar crime litigation. He again returned to public service in 1995 as senior litigator in the Homicide Section of the District of Columbia United States Attorney's Office. In 1998, Mr. Mueller was named United States Attorney in San Francisco and held that position until 2001.

Mr. Mueller and his wife, Ann, have two daughters.

Related:

- Director Mueller Continues His Service in 2011

Resources

- Robert S. Mueller Set to Step Down as FBI Director

bio.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY
Queen
Latifah

VIDEO
Queen
Elizabeth II

Robert Mueller

Lawyer (1944–)

Robert Mueller is the 6th Director of the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and is best known for pushing to expand wiretap laws in the U.S.

Synopsis

Robert Mueller served in the Marines for three years during the Vietnam War and worked as a litigator in San Francisco before moving to starting his career in politics. He joined the U.S. Department of Justice in 1989 and became the 6th Director of the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) under President Bush. Mueller is best known for pushing to expand wiretap laws in the U.S.

NAME

Robert Mueller

OCCUPATION

Lawyer

BIRTH DATE

August 7, 1944 (age 71)

EDUCATION

New York University,
University of Virginia
School of Law, Princeton University

PLACE OF BIRTH

New York, New York

ZODIAC SIGN

Leo

Early Life

Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Robert Swan Mueller III was born on August 7, 1944, in New York City. Mueller received his bachelor's degree from Princeton University, his master's in international relations from New York University and his law degree from the University of Virginia. He served in the Marines for three years during the Vietnam War, earning a Bronze Star and a Purple Heart.

Criminal Justice

After working as a litigator in San Francisco, Mueller served in the United States Attorney offices from 1976-1988. In 1989, he joined the United States Department of Justice, leading its criminal division in the prosecution of Manuel Noriega and crime boss John Gotti among other high-profile cases. He worked in the private sector from 1993-1995, returning to public service as senior litigator in the homicide division of the District of Columbia United States Attorney's Office. Mueller served as U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of California from 1998-2001.

FBI Director

In 2001, President Bush nominated Mueller as FBI Director, which was unanimously approved by the Senate. He officially took his post on September 4, 2001, just one week before the September 11 terrorist attacks. In the following months, Mueller acknowledged that the attacks might have been prevented had FBI headquarters followed through on tips from field offices. He then reorganized the bureau to focus on counterterrorism rather than domestic crimes.

Article Title

Robert Mueller Biography

Author

Biography.com Editors

Website Name

The Biography.com website

URL

<http://www.biography.com/people/robert-mueller-241110>

Access Date

March 18, 2016

Publisher

A&E Television Networks

Original Published Date

n/a

Robert Mueller

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Robert Swan Mueller III (born August 7, 1944) is an American lawyer. He served as the sixth Director of the American Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

Contents

- 1 Early life and education
- 2 Military service
- 3 Career
- 4 Federal Bureau of Investigation
 - 4.1 Domestic wiretapping investigation
- 5 Bibliography
- 6 See also
- 7 References
- 8 External links

Early life and education

Mueller was born on August 7, 1944, in New York City, New York, the son of Alice C. (née Truesdale) and Robert Swan Mueller.^[1] His maternal great-grandfather was railroad executive William Truesdale; his ancestry includes German, Scottish, and English.^[2] Mueller grew up outside of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. A 1962 graduate of St. Paul's School, he went on to receive an A.B. from Princeton University in 1966, where he played lacrosse, an M.A. in international relations from New York University in 1967, and a Juris Doctor from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1973.

Military service

Mueller joined the United States Marine Corps, where he served as an officer for three years, leading a rifle platoon of the 3rd Marine Division during the Vietnam War. He is a recipient of the Bronze Star, two Navy Commendation Medals, the Purple Heart and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Robert Mueller

6th Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation

In office

September 4, 2001 – September 4, 2013

President	George W. Bush Barack Obama
Deputy	Bruce Gebhardt John Pistole Timothy Murphy Sean Joyce
Preceded by	Thomas Pickard (Acting)
Succeeded by	James Comey

United States Attorney for the Northern District of California

In office

1998–2001

President	Bill Clinton George W. Bush
Preceded by	Michael Yamaguchi
Succeeded by	Kevin Ryan

Personal details

Career

Following his military service, Mueller continued his studies at the University of Virginia Law School, eventually serving on the Law Review. After receiving his Juris Doctor degree, Mueller worked as a litigator in San Francisco until 1976.

He then served for 12 years in United States Attorney offices. He first worked in the office of the U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of California in San Francisco, where he rose to be chief of the criminal division, and in 1982, he moved to Boston to work in the office of the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Massachusetts as Assistant United States Attorney, where he investigated and prosecuted major financial fraud, terrorism and public corruption cases, as well as narcotics conspiracies and international money launderers.

After serving as a partner at the Boston law firm of Hill and Barlow, Mueller returned to government service. In 1989, he served in the United States Department of Justice as an assistant to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh. The following year he took charge of its criminal division. During his tenure, he oversaw prosecutions that included Panamanian leader Manuel Noriega, the Pan Am Flight 103 (Lockerbie bombing) case, and the Gambino crime family boss John Gotti. In 1991, he was elected a fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers.

In 1993, Mueller became a partner at Boston's Hale and Dorr, specializing in white-collar crime litigation. He returned to public service in 1995 as senior litigator in the homicide section of the District of Columbia United States Attorney's Office. In 1998, Mueller was named U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of California and held that position until 2001.

Federal Bureau of Investigation

Mueller was nominated for the position of FBI Director on July 5, 2001.^[3] He and two other candidates were up for the job at the time, but he was always considered the front runner.^[4] Washington lawyer George J. Terwilliger III and veteran Chicago prosecutor and white-collar defense lawyer Dan Webb were up for the job but both pulled out from consideration around mid-June. Confirmation hearings for Mueller, in front of the Senate Judiciary Committee, were quickly set for July 30, only three days before his prostate cancer surgery.^{[5][6]} The vote on the Senate floor on August 2, 2001, passed unanimously, 98–0.^[7] He served as Acting Deputy Attorney General of the United States Department of Justice for several months, before officially becoming the FBI Director on September 4, 2001, just one week before the September 11 attacks against the United States.

Born	Robert Swan Mueller III August 7, 1944 New York City, New York, U.S.
Alma mater	Princeton University New York University University of Virginia
Religion	Episcopalian
Awards	 Bronze Star Medal Purple Heart Gallantry Cross
Military service
Allegiance	 United States
Service/branch	 United States Marine Corps
Battles/wars	Vietnam War

On May 12, 2011, it was reported that President Obama had asked Director Mueller to continue at the helm of the FBI for another 2 years beyond his current term, set to expire on September 4, 2013.^[8] The Senate approved this request on July 27, 2011.^[9] Mueller stepped down on September 4, 2013, and was replaced by James Comey.^[10]

Domestic wiretapping investigation

Director Mueller, along with Acting Attorney General James B. Comey, offered to resign from office in March 2004 if the White House overruled a Department of Justice finding that domestic wiretapping without a court warrant was unconstitutional.^[11] Attorney General John D. Ashcroft denied his consent to attempts by White House Chief of Staff Andrew Card and White House Counsel Alberto R. Gonzales to waive the Justice Department ruling and permit the domestic warrantless eavesdropping program to proceed. On March 12, 2004, President George W. Bush gave his support to changes in the program sufficient to satisfy the concerns of Mueller, Ashcroft and Comey.^[11] The extent of the National Security Agency's domestic warrantless eavesdropping under the President's Surveillance Program is still largely unknown.

At the memorial event of Giovanni Falcone, Mueller told the audience of American and Italian law enforcement that the relationships forged years ago between the Italian National Police and the FBI "have borne tremendous fruit in this age of international crime and terrorism. Those friendships have set the standard for global cooperation among law enforcement".

Bibliography

- Graff, Garrett (August 1, 2008). "Robert Mueller: Remaking the FBI". Washingtonian.
- Graff, Garrett (September 1, 2008). "Robert Mueller: Taking on the Terrorists". Washingtonian.

See also

- Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation

References

Wikimedia Commons has media related to Robert Swan Mueller III.

1. "Robert Swan Mueller III". Chicago Sun-Times. July 30, 2001. Retrieved 2007-12-02.
2. "Ancestry of Robert Mueller". Freepages.genealogy.rootsweb.ancestry.com. Retrieved 2013-03-05.
3. "Remarks by the President in Nominating Robert S. Mueller as Director of the FBI". The White House. 2001-07-05. Retrieved 2007-09-28.
4. "Bush Names Mueller FBI Director". United Press. 2001-06-06. Retrieved 2006-06-10.
5. "Senate hearing set July 30 for FBI choice Mueller". CNN. 2001-06-18. Retrieved 2006-06-10.
6. "FBI director-designate has prostate cancer". CNN. 2001-06-13. Retrieved 2006-06-10.
7. "Robert S. Mueller, III, to be Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation" (Plain Text). United States Senate. 2001-08-02. Retrieved 2006-06-10.
8. "FBI Director to stay in post for another 2 years". CNN. 2011-05-12. Retrieved 2011-05-12.
9. "Senate Extends Term of F.B.I. Director". New York Times. 2011-07-27. Retrieved 2011-09-13.
10. "FBI — James B. Comey Sworn in as FBI Director". FBI. Retrieved 14 June 2015.

11. Eggen, Dan; Kane, Paul (2007-05-16). "Gonzales Hospital Episode Detailed". Washington Post. Retrieved 2007-09-28.

External links

- Profile (http://www.fbi.gov/about-us/history/directors/directors_then_and_now) at the Federal Bureau of Investigation and staff (<http://www.fbi.gov/about-us/executives>)
- Robert Mueller (http://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/Profiles/Robert_Mueller_topic.html) collected news and commentary at The Washington Post
- Appearances (<http://www.c-span.org/person/?robertmueller>) on C-SPAN
- Robert Mueller (<http://www.imdb.com/name/nm1694507/>) at the Internet Movie Database
- Works by or about Robert Mueller (<https://worldcat.org/identities/lccn-no91-25152>) in libraries (WorldCat catalog)
- Robert Mueller (http://topics.nytimes.com/top/reference/timestopics/people/m/robert_s_iii_mueller/index.html) collected news and commentary at The New York Times
- Robert Mueller (<http://topics.wsj.com/person/M/robert-mueller/5377>) collected news and commentary at The Wall Street Journal

Government offices
Preceded by Thomas Pickard Acting	Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation 2001–2013	Succeeded by James Comey

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Robert_Mueller&oldid=704095815"

Categories: 1944 births | American military personnel of the Vietnam War | American people of German descent | Assistant United States Attorneys | Directors of the FBI | Living people | New York University alumni | People from Pennsylvania | Princeton University alumni | Recipients of the Bronze Star Medal | Recipients of the Purple Heart medal | St. Paul's School (Concord, New Hampshire) alumni | United States Assistant Attorneys General | United States Attorneys for the Northern District of California | United States Marine Corps officers | University of Virginia School of Law alumni | Identity theft victims

- This page was last modified on 9 February 2016, at 14:36.
- Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Robert S. Mueller, III

Director of the Federal Bureau of Intelligence

Having been nominated by President George W. Bush, Mr. Mueller was confirmed as Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation by the United States Senate on August 2, 2001, and took the oath of office on September 4, 2001.

Prior to his current position, Mr. Mueller served in a number of positions in the United States Department of Justice:

From 1976 to 1988, Mr. Mueller held various positions as a prosecutor and supervisor, first in the office of the United States Attorney for the Northern District of California in San Francisco, and beginning in 1982 in the office of the United States Attorney for the District of Massachusetts in Boston. While in those positions, he investigated and prosecuted a number of major financial frauds, narcotics conspiracies, racketeering cases, terrorist cases, tax matters (including international money launderers), and public corruption cases (including the "Exam Scam" case in Massachusetts). From 1986 to 1987, Mr. Mueller served as United States Attorney for the District of Massachusetts.

From 1989 to 1990, Mr. Mueller served in the Department of Justice as an assistant to Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh.

In August 1990, having been nominated by President George Bush, Mr. Mueller was confirmed by the Senate as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Criminal Division of the United States Department of Justice. He served in that position until January 1993, and was responsible for developing and supervising the enforcement of federal criminal law. During his tenure he supervised, among other matters, the Noriega and Gotti prosecutions, the Pan Am 103 investigation, and development of the Department's policies on corporate sentencing guidelines, computer crime investigations, and health care and money laundering prosecutions.

Mr. Mueller joined the office of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia in May 1995, where he first served as Senior Litigation Counsel in the Homicide Section. He became Chief of that Section in 1997.

Mr. Mueller assumed the position of interim United States Attorney for the Northern District of California in August 1998. He was nominated by President Clinton and confirmed by the Senate for that position on October 7, 1999. He held that position until August 2001, although he served as the Acting Deputy Attorney General of the United States Department of Justice from January to May 2001.

Mr. Mueller also has experience in the private practice of law. From 1973 to 1976, Mr. Mueller was a litigation associate in the San Francisco law firm of Pillsbury, Madison and Sutro. From 1988 to 1989, Mr. Mueller was a partner in the Boston law firm of Hill and Barlow. From January 1993 to May 1995, Mr. Mueller was a partner in the Boston law firm of Hale and Dorr. His practice concentrated primarily on white collar crime matters, internal corporate investigations, the establishment of compliance programs, and complex civil litigation.

Mr. Mueller served as an officer in the United States Marine Corps for three years, including one year in the Third Marine Division, Vietnam. He is the recipient of the Bronze Star, two Navy Commendation Medals, the Purple Heart, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Mr. Mueller received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1966 from Princeton University and a Master's degree in International Studies from New York University. He received his Juris Doctor degree from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1973, where he served on the Law Review. In 1991, Mr. Mueller was elected a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers.

People

Home > People > Robert S. Mueller III

Share

Robert S. Mueller III

Partner

robert.mueller@wilmerhale.com

Download vCard

Download PDF

1875 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20006 Map
+1 202 663 6364 (t)
+1 202 663 6363 (f)

- Biography
- Experience
- Professional Activities
- Honors & Awards
- Publications & News
- Speaking Engagements

Practices

- Litigation/Controversy
 - Investigations and Criminal Litigation
- Regulatory and Government Affairs
 - Strategic Response
- + Cybersecurity, Privacy and Communications
- + Defense, National Security and Government Contracts

Education

JD, University of Virginia School of Law, 1973, Served on the Virginia Law Review
MA, International Relations, New York University, 1967
AB, Princeton University, 1966

Bar Admissions

District of Columbia
California
Massachusetts

Robert S. Mueller III became the sixth Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) on September 4, 2001, one week prior to the attacks of September 11. He is widely credited not only for leading the FBI during an extremely challenging time, but also with transforming the Bureau from a traditional law enforcement agency to an intelligence-based national security organization.

Broadly recognized for his experience in privacy and cybersecurity matters, Mr. Mueller's practice is focused on investigations, crisis management, privacy and cybersecurity work. With increasing attention on privacy and cybersecurity by boards of directors, and the realization by companies of the significant legal exposure they face from breaches of their information technology systems, Mr. Mueller is well positioned to lead the most sensitive internal investigations and to counsel on crisis management issues. He has experience advising companies on preparing for cyber incidents, and with responding to and investigating privacy and cyber breaches, at both the state and federal level.

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> People Blogs Publications & News Events Pro Bono About 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Departments Intellectual Property Litigation/Controversy Regulatory and Government Affairs Securities Transactional 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Alumni Careers ClientCommons Login Media Contacts WH Connect WH Emergency 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Offices Boston Address: 60 State Street Boston, Massachusetts 02109
---	--	---	---

In every area of practice, WilmerHale brings the insight, dedication to excellence, and commitment to client service needed for our clients to achieve their business objectives. Our five-department structure and team approach to service enable us to provide the highest level of responsiveness and access to lawyers with the most appropriate experience.

Connect

-  Email
-  Facebook
-  Twitter
-  RSS

+1 617 526 6000 (t)
+1 617 526 5000 (f)

WILMER CUTLER PICKERING HALE AND DORR LLP

Attorney Advertising. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome.

© 1994-2016 Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr LLP
Privacy Policy | Legal Notices | EEO Policy | Site Map